BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE PAID REV. BEATTY

Business Suspended During Funeral Hour Saturday—Largest Assemblage of the Kind in Years.

A beautiful tribute was paid the memory of Rev. H. R. Beatty, Chelsea's Methodist minister, whose sudden death was chronicled in the last issue of The Standard, when people—friends and former parishioners who held the pastor in high esteem, came from various places and gathered at the Methodist church in honor of the memory of one they loved.

The funeral services were held at the church at one o'clock Saturday afternoon, and during the hour business activity in Chelsea was suspended, all doing homage to the memory of one who was universally beloved by his fellows. Members of Jackson Commandery, Knights Templar, were present in uniform, and members of the local fraternities—Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias—attended in one mass body, and the church was filled with sorrowing friends from Chelsea, Grass Lake, Blissfield, Jackson, Adrian and other places.

Friends were privileged to gaze upon the features of the man that was for the last time before the opening of the service, passing before the bier in harmony with the beautiful melody from the pipe organ.

The casket rested before the altar rail amidst a profusion of beautiful floral tributes, banked upon the altar rail and surrounding the casket. Many handsome floral designs were contributed by friends, lodges and societies, among them the beautiful Knights Templar emblem, the cross and crown.

The service opened with song by Mrs. A. A. Palmer, followed with scripture reading by Rev. E. A. Carnes of the Chelsea Congregational church, an earnest and beautiful prayer was offered by Rev. E. R. Rice of Adrian, and the sermon was delivered by Rev. A. W. Stalker of Ann Arbor, the district superintendent, it was announced, was unable to be present.

Rev. Stalker refrained from taking a Bible text for his sermon, but, in a quiet way paid a fine tribute to the man that is no more, his character and soul. Being a close friend to Mr. Beatty, Rev. Stalker was familiar with the life work and aims of the deceased. His life, he said, was devoted to doing good among his fellows, and his memory and example should remain as an inspiration for good among his friends and acquaintances. The sermon was a beautiful eulogy.

The Knights Templar ritualistic ceremony was then conducted in an impressive manner by members of Jackson Commandery, a song by Mrs.

Palmer and prayer concluding the service.

The funeral cortege then proceeded to Williamston, where Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. & A. M. conducted the Masonic burial service.

CHELSEA SCREW CO. WORKING OVERTIME

Local Labor Employing Industry In Flourishing Condition.

The wheels are humming merrily every working day at the plant of the Chelsea Screw company, a labor employing industry that means much to the business activity of our city. The plant has not only increased its working force but is running overtime to keep up with orders. During the past three weeks enough orders have been received to keep the automatic and finishing machines running for some weeks to come.

The company has about 100 machines of various kinds in operation and have 2 new finishing machines on the way, which will be installed and put in operation as soon as they arrive.

LYCEUM COURSE STARTS WITH VIM

Full House Greeted "The Mountaineers" Tuesday Evening.

A full house greeted "The Mountaineers," a musical aggregation of six young men, who gave the first number of the Lyceum course at the town hall Tuesday evening.

The program consisted of musical selections by various combinations of instruments, including accordion, guitars, clarinet, saxophones, and banjo. There were also several instrumental and vocal solos, one of the party possessing a tenor voice of more than ordinary quality.

The accordion was an entire band or orchestra by itself, manipulated in the clever hands of the performer. The solo work on this instrument was highly entertaining and the accompaniment played for the solo work was excellent.

The vocal solos were exceptionally good and there were several saxophone solos, duets and trios that were pleasing numbers. The company appeared in Italian Mountaineer costume and made a picturesque group.

The course of entertainments is given under the auspices of the Brotherhood of the Congregational church and the Evangelical League of St. Paul's church, and these societies are to be congratulated upon the excellence of their choice of entertainments if the first number is a criterion of what is to follow.

The next entertainment will be given by the Herrod Jubilee Singers, famous Negro entertainers, on the evening of December 18.

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. William Rothmann Married Fifty Years.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rothmann celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday, Sept. 26, by entertaining a number of relatives at their home.

A sumptuous dinner was served to the guests, who were all relatives, and this feature was an enjoyable one. Their children were all present except one son, who lives at Indianapolis. A sister of Mrs. Rothmann, Mrs. Christian Walz, who was bridesmaid at the wedding of half a century back, was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Rothmann were both born in Germany and have been 49 years in this country, 29 of which they spent on the farm in Waterloo, where they now reside. They first lived at Cincinnati and for a time in Indiana.

The present ages of the estimable couple are 67 and 75 years, Mr. Rothmann being the senior.

Those present at the celebration were: Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Harr and children of Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rothmann of Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Rothmann and Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Rothmann of Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Aue of Cincinnati, William Rothmann and family of Indianapolis were unable to be present. There are 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren in the family.

Many nice gifts were presented the honored bride and groom of 50 years ago.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and the Fraternal organizations for the beautiful floral offerings and sympathy in our sudden bereavement and death of our beloved husband and father, also many thanks to Rev. Stalker, for his comforting words, and to Mrs. Palmer for her beautiful songs. We also wish to thank the Knights Templar for their services here and Olive Lodge, F. & A. M. for services at the grave. Also all those who so kindly offered their automobiles. Mrs. Beatty and Children.

STATE PARK PROJECT MAKING PROGRESS

Round Lake, Adjoining Wampler, Included in Public Park.

Many Standard readers are interested in the state park project, which is under way at Wampler Lake, near the borders of Washtenaw, Lenawee and Jackson counties, hence we reprint the following clipped from the Clinton Local of last week:

The history of the matter dates back to the start of the park project in that vicinity, as the first visit of the state officials there revealed the fact that Round Lake should be included in the park and that the state should control its whole circumference.

This was made easy on the north side of the lake by the offer of Henry Leitz and Fred Ives of the Maple grove landing, Wampler's lake, donating land on the northwest part and by the donation of the right of way for a road on the northeast shore by Mr. and Mrs. Don Beljan, but on the southeast side much of the land was valuable either as woods or farm land and was not so easily obtained.

The Hane land of 100 acres between Round and Wampler's lakes which forms the main body of the park, was acquired by condemnation proceedings, the state furnishing the money for the same, a procedure which it has not done in any instance before or since.

The state not being willing to go any farther, however, it was evident that the Ayres tract of 65 acres must be obtained through private means and by the untiring efforts of a committee composed of George H. Lancaster of Clinton, Wm. C. Eccles of Tecumseh and Stuart H. Perry, W. H. Burnham and Clark E. Baldwin of Adrian, the sum of $3,000 was raised and the deed of the Ayres tract was obtained. This tract adds to the state land by about two-thirds and makes the total acreage now obtained of both land and water about 165 acres, exclusive of certain additions which are yet to be made.

There is quite an amount of open pasture land next to the road running north and south, east of Round lake, some swamp land near the same road. The rest of the land is of bold wooded hills giving fine views of the lake.

It is expected a drive through the entire length of the park will be laid out at once and completed this fall.

A large amount of work has already been done, including a road going around back of Cedar hill. Wells have been driven and a public comfort station is being built at the northwest entrance to the park. It is expected a road will also be built around the north side before the cold weather sets in.

One subscription of interest is that of the late Geo. B. Horton, who only a short time before his death sent his check for $100 with a brief note saying: "I consider it a privilege to assist in so worthy a cause as the Cedar Hill park project."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

FORD VS. COAL PROFITEERS.

The resumption in operation of the plants of the Ford Motor Co. last Friday morning brought a feeling of relief in the business circles of the nation. And well it might, for the closing of this great industry September 16 cut off the earnings of something like 120,000 hands. This means something to business activity and had the shut-down extended for any length of time the result would have been serious. However, the crisis has passed and the multitudes made idle are again at the wheels of production. Henry Ford ordered his plants closed because he did not approve of the profiteering methods of the coal barons. It was his aim to put an effective block on the soaring of coal prices. His action was termed as an "industrial strike," and fortunately for the 120,000 employees depending for a livelihood on their daily labor the "strike" proved successful after less than a week's duration.

The resumption of the plants is due to the result of a conference Edsel Ford had in Cincinnati with a group of 50 coal producers whereby arrangements were made to secure sufficient coal to keep the plants running.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Among the numerous days set aside for observance, fire prevention day is one that the people of the nation should pay special attention to, especially when one considers the immense annual loss suffered by the people of this country. President Harding requests the observance of such a day on Monday, October 9, and sets aside that day for the purpose.

Statistics show that fires not only cause an enormous property loss, but what is worse the loss of human lives. During 1921 half a billion dollars worth of property went up in smoke and 15,000 lives were lost in fires. Already this year $230,000,000 has been added to the nation's ash heap, and if the average keeps up another million will be added before another night. In the last 40 years nearly eight billion dollars' worth of property has burned up—enough to build 20 Panama canals. The losses of 1921 were six times as great as those of 1881, although there were no great conflagrations last year.

In connection with President Harding's appeal for the observance of the day, the Adrian Telegram comments editorially as follows:

"The important point in connection with these fire losses is not their magnitude, appalling as it is, but the fact that the greater part of it was, and is, preventable. In other words, most of it is due to carelessness, negligence and ignorance. Some of it unfortunately, is due to crookedness, but that is a small proportion; most of it is due to negligence—of property owners, of builders, of public officials of tenants, of employees, of casual individuals, in short everybody.

"Since pretty nearly all of us are to blame, the only hope lies in a general education of the whole people. The word education in this case does not mean special instruction or training, but only reminding. Perhaps 'waking up' would be a better term than education. The person who leaves matches lying around for the rats, or who drops a cigarette stub into a waste basket, does not need instruction; what he needs is a sharp reminder—the sharper the better.

"Fire Prevention Day may not accomplish any results that we can see or measure, but it will set a great many people to thinking. And that is the whole story—to set people to thinking. If we all used our wits there would be no 'preventable' fires."

THE NEXT STRIKE

(By Dr. F. A. Perry)

Yes, there will be another strike. We cannot say whether it will be in Michigan or Missouri, Kentucky or Kansas, or whether the city affected will be Toledo or "Timbuctoo," but we do know that there will be, somewhere in America, another strike. Some day, in the not distant future, a strike order will be issued and the men will trudge out, 95 per cent of them not knowing what for, but never-the-less blindly obeying an order which requires them to stop work.

While we are not able to foresee where the strike will be, we are never-the-less able, with a great deal of accuracy, to state several definite things that will take place.

First of all, then, there will be a tremendous loss in money. The strikers will lose their wages, which in the aggregate will amount to many millions of dollars; dollars which they sorely need for life's necessities; these will be lost. Of that, we are certain.

Then, again, there will be a great deal of suffering. The wives and children of the workers will be compelled to do without food, clothing, and other necessities, to say nothing of the luxuries to which they are justly entitled. So we can state with certainty there will be a great deal of suffering.

But there is another fact which can be stated positively, that is, there will be created a great deal of ill will and bad feeling. Employers will feel hateful toward their employees. They will be saying bitterly "Of what use are the thousands of dollars we have paid out to make labor conditions better, to improve sanitation, to install safety devices, and to increase the comfort and contentment of our men? They only walk out on us when we need them most." And such employers will be likely to allow their bitterness to extend to all laborers, and a class spirit will be created.

But it will also create ill feeling in the hearts of the laborers as well. Most of them will not know why they are striking, but they will be told that it is because their employer has been unjust and unfair. This will be to them a great surprise, as they had always supposed him to be a kind, generous man, in fact, in times of trouble and sickness, they had proved him to be such, but now they are disillusioned. They are told that he is a very bad man, and their hearts are filled with hate and vengeance, and they are ready to join in an attack upon his property, and even on his life.

Another thing that we know positively about the next strike is that it will end in failure. After some weeks, or months, as the case may be, of idleness and consequent suffering, and as the slender bank accounts become exhausted, and the needless wrangling ceases, the men will trudge back again to their accustomed places and go to work, having accomplished nothing, and having subjected themselves and their families, and society at large, to a great deal of inconvenience, they will quit the strike and be whistling cheerfully as they find the joy of honest toil, and thus, the next strike, like all preceding strikes will be over.

MICHIGAN MOVES FOR BETTER DAIRY CATTLE

Five New Cow Test Associations Start in September, Bringing Total to Record Point.

East Lansing, Mich.—That Michigan dairy farmers are engaged in a steadily increasing drive for better standards in the industry is indicated by announcement that five new cow testing associations opened for business in the state this month. This brings the total of Michigan test associations to more than 25, by far a record for the state.

The cow test associations, which are organized and fostered by the dairy division of the Michigan Agricultural college, serve as a means of spotting the low producing or "boarder" cows in the herds of the members. Carefully kept records on the production of each animal in an association member's herd, enable the dairy farmer to know his good cows from his poor ones, and result in greater efficiency in the handling of the herd.

About 25 farms are included in the average association, with a trained cow tester in charge who visits each farm one day a month. The cost per herd is kept down to a very reasonable figure through this co-operative plan.

The new associations starting in the state this month are in Eaton, Ogemaw, Macomb, Calhoun and Genesee counties. Eaton and Calhoun now have two associations according to H. E. Dennison, extension specialist with the M. A. C. dairy department, who has been working on the organization of the associations.

Reports received by the United States department of agriculture indicate that 2,215,000 farmers, or an average of about 1,100 per county, adopted methods introduced by the county extension agent in handling their live stock or crop in 1921.

Cool weather is approaching. Plan to bake, your own bread this winter, and for best results use 1900 flour.

By ELLA SAUNDERS

"Too bad!" said the matron, shaking her head sadly. "It's just too bad that poor little Mrs. Marriott should lose her baby like that."

"Pity she couldn't have had this one," groined the doctor, pointing to the lusty eight-hours-old youngster in the beribboned cot in the babies' room.

"What chance has it in life?" demanded the doctor fiercely. "The child of a tramp, father unknown, starting life in some public institution, it's damned before it's born."

The nurse came in. "Mrs. Marriott's waking up," she said. "She's asking for her baby."

"No, she mustn't be told till tomorrow," interposed the doctor. "The shock might prove fatal. It's a mercy she didn't die as well as the child."

"I'll break the news tomorrow. The most important thing is to keep up her spirits. Tomorrow she'll be better able to bear the news."

The nurse turned away. From one of the rooms in the maternity ward a feeble voice was heard asking for the child.

"How's the other mother getting on?" the matron asked the doctor.

"Oh, fine, of course. What else do you expect of that class of woman? It's the unwanted children that live, not the wanted ones."

"The matron went into Mrs. Marriott's room. The thin, eager, pretty little woman looked up at her from the bed. "Can't I see my baby, just for a minute?" she asked.

"Not today, dear."

"He's all right, isn't he? Something in the nurse's look made me afraid—"

"He's all right and you shall see him tomorrow," the matron promised her.

But the look on little Mrs. Marriott's face haunted her as she went out and closed the door. She heard the nurse calling her.

"Mrs. Sims! Mrs. Sims! Will you come here a moment? I don't like—"

"The matron hurried into the ward, toward the bed where the pauper woman lay. She was lying flat back on the pillows, her face very strange and white.

"Call Doctor Addison!"

The doctor entered the ward. At the sight of the woman in the bed he hurried forward. He raised one wrist, felt the pulse, stared into her face.

"I'll get some brandy," whispered the matron.

But she stopped suddenly. There was no need for brandy. Silently, imperceptibly, the life had flickered out—a clot in the heart, of course.

The doctor and the matron faced each other in the babies' room. In the corner the nine-hours-old youngster cried, making absurd, bird-like noises. The matron was speaking.

"Nonsense, Mrs. Sims!" exclaimed the doctor indignantly. "You don't mean that seriously."

"Doctor, I do. Dishonest? What do we care? The mother longing for a child, and the motherless child. It's right. It's natural."

"It can't be done."

"It must be done. I'll take the blame. It's not necessary for you to know. It was God's mercy that happened in the ward just now. Doctor—"

A sound at the door made them start guiltily apart. Little Mrs. Marriott stood in the doorway, her eyes wide with fear.

"Mrs. Marriott! Get back to your bed immediately! I never heard of such a thing! It ought to mean your death!"

"I can't help it! There's something happened to my baby. I can feel it! That nurse wouldn't look me in the face when she spoke to me about him. I must see him! I must!"

The doctor's eyes met the matron's. Some invisible sign seemed to have passed between them. Mrs. Sims went to the corner and plucked the newborn child out of its bassinet.

"Well, if you must see him you must," she said, holding it in her arms. "Now you get back to bed instantly. Mrs. Marriott, and then, if you're very good, I'll bring him in to you for a few minutes."

Preserved in the Mine.

A copy of a San Francisco newspaper was found some time ago in a mine which had been abandoned for 20 years. The paper was dated September 10, 1881, and the mine working which sheltered it all this time was near Tonopah. The paper contained articles relative to the impending death of President Garfield and a description of the mineral exhibit at the Paris exposition.

Do Not Trade Your Liberty Bonds For Worthless Stocks

RECENTLY a man living not so very far from here was persuaded by an oily toungeed stock salesman to exchange his Liberty Bonds for stock.

This man did not take the time to investigate—just took the salesman's word for it. Now he is sorry for he finds that the stock is worthless.

This loss might have been avoided had the man come to this bank and had us investigate this stock thoroughly before making the trade.

We will give you a fair and unbiased opinion on any security offered you, based on facts obtained from a large statistical library on securities to which we now have access.

Americans and Other Foreigners Are Taking Advantage of Easy French Laws.

SECRECY IS THE CHIEF FACTOR

American Lawyer in Paris Declares the Whole Divorce Situation in France an Abuse and Scandal—Grounds for Decree.

Paris.—The increasing number of divorces obtained in Paris by prominent Americans and other foreigners seeking relief from matrimonial infidelity has led to many inquiries as to why the French capital apparently has become such a European Reno for discontented spouses.

The chief magnet appears to lie in the fact that divorce proceedings may be brought in French courts with slight ease and completed without even friends and acquaintances becoming aware, at least through the medium of French newspapers, that there has been the slightest ripple on the sea of domesticity. Publication of such proceedings by native newspapers is a criminal offense, on the ground of lowering public morals. The newspapers may print the names of those involved, if they can obtain them, and the fact that a divorce has been granted, but nothing more.

Recent publicity in the United States of some divorces of Americans in Paris has caused an unpleasant feeling of apprehension among attorneys for others who have been contemplating divorce action. Several cases of Americans are reported to have been taken to Tours, Rennes and other provincial cities, both for the still greater seclusion offered and because the provincial court calendars are not so crowded as are those in Paris.

Must Establish Residence. Provisional decrees usually may be obtained in France in from one to three months, and final decrees 50 days thereafter. The complainant must establish residence in France, but a declaration that he intends to stay indefinitely is held to be sufficient, or the inclusion among his papers of a year's lease on an apartment. The second essential condition is that the defendant must appear before the court in person, or through counsel if he is a resident of France. But if the defendant lives outside the country, as is the case of Americans, notice must be given through the state department.

There are three grounds for divorce in France: adultery, conviction of a felony and cruelty. Both physical violence and mental anguish are accepted under the heading of cruelty. Neither party to a divorce is allowed to remarry in France within ten months, because of the question of custody and sustenance for the children.

"The whole divorce situation in France, from the American viewpoint, is an abuse and a scandal," said Charles F. Beach, an American lawyer in Paris. "There is no suggestion of Reno in the attitude of the French courts, but French judges are not aware of the advantage that is being taken of them by Americans who are procuring divorces. These divorces are generally of no value in the United States, but Americans obtain them and they may hold until their validity is contested. Any kind of rope of sand will hold until it's pulled."

Liberal Regarding Divorces. At the ministry of justice the suggestion that Paris is becoming a second Reno for American divorces is not well received. M. Lemerleux, first assistant to Minister of Justice Barthou, said that France was a liberal country regarding divorces, having been the first continental country to grant them to foreigners, under the law of 1884, and that possibly Paris was being visited for this purpose just as Rome was such a resort for Italians because of the lack of a divorce law at home.

M. Wells, director of civil affairs, at the ministry of justice, said he did not think it logical that France should be looked upon in the United States as a country where divorces could be easily obtained, since there were few legal grounds for divorce here than in America. Generally speaking, France grants divorces to foreigners if their own countries permit divorces. Judges during the last few years have been taking a more lenient view toward applications for divorce by foreigners. Previously the applicants usually were notified that they should apply for divorces in their own country.

Ten-Year-Old Wound Is Fatal. Camden, N. J.—After carrying a bullet in his brain ten years, Catello Benedetto, twenty-seven, died at Cooper hospital after it had been removed. De Benedetto, who was an Italian soldier in the war with Turkey, was struck twice in the head. One bullet was removed and he was thought to have recovered.

Sting Mototist on Hand. Delaware, O.—A bee stung one of Miller's hands. He slipped at the same time with the other, lost control of his automobile and was injured severely. He is at a hospital. Miller is a business man of Delaware.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Bay City—George H. Randall, Sr., well known retired lumberman, was found dead in his bed at the Imperial hotel. Coroner H. M. Simon decided death was due to natural causes.

Kalamazoo—William Ritchey, 60, who escaped from the Kalamazoo Hospital for the Insane, later hanged himself on a tree south of the hospital grounds. A posse was searching for him when his body was discovered.

Bay City—T. M. O'Brien was named receiver for Meagher brothers, in an action started before Judge S. G. Houghton by the stockholders, asking dissolution of the corporation. The concern deals in ice, fuel and butchers' supplies.

Cadillac—Names of all Wexford county men who died in service during the World War are wanted by the Cadillac post of the American Legion for a memorial tablet to be presented Armistice day by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Ann Arbor—Miss Sarah A. Hall, oldest daughter of Arthur A. Hall, registrar of the U. of M., has accepted the position of chief actuary of the Ladies of the Maccabees, in the head office of the organization, at Port Huron. She will begin her duties on October 1.

Saginaw—T. Leo Jones, Michigan district president of the United Mine Workers of America, has resigned to go on a vaudeville tour with a local orchestra, in which he plays a saxophone. He has been succeeded by George Toskey, St. Charles, district vice-president.

River Rouge—River Rouge will soon be a signless city. A resolution was passed by the city commission ordering that no billboards could be erected and that those already in use must be taken down by January 1, 1923. The commission declared that the billboards destroyed the beauty of the city.

Mears—A broken arm and other injuries are not preventing Swift Lathers, editor of the Mears News, from publishing his weekly newspaper. The newspaper is being edited from a room in the Paulina Stearns Hospital at Ludington, where Lathers was taken after the truck on which he was riding upset.

Saginaw—When Dr. Ralph S. Jiroch saw flames in the basement of the home of Miss Agnes E. Muir, an invalid, he jumped from his automobile, rushed into the house and carried Miss Muir, who was one of his patients, to a place of safety, before she was overcome by the dense smoke. Firemen were compelled to use gas masks to fight the fire.

Saginaw—Resumption of service on the Saginaw street car lines, which have been idle more than a year, is asked in initiatory petitions circulated here by the Saginaw Auto Dealers' association. It asks that Otto Schupp, trustee, representing holders of first mortgage bonds, be permitted to operate the lines at a fare of 10 cents for a single ride, or 20 rides for a dollar.

Charlotte—Miss Minnie Mills, educated in Olivet College and a missionary in Smyrna when that city recently was destroyed by fire, escaped from that port while hundreds of others were being killed by the Turks. Word of her safety came in a cablegram to her sister, Mrs. Abbie Thomas, of Charlotte. Miss Mills, the cablegram stated, now is quartered in a Girls' School in Athens.

Mt. Clemens—Unable to furnish $10,000 bail, Fred "Pug" Hamilton, charged with criminal assault upon Rose Connolly, a Detroit girl, was lodged in the county jail. He was arraigned before Justice William J. Dusse, waived examination and was bound over to the next term of circuit court. Detroit authorities are aiding local officers in tracing Hamilton's police record.

Ionia—Suit for $10,000 has been started against the Ionia Free Fair association by Ernest Thornton by his next friend as a result of the fireworks explosion in which he lost part of his right hand. Thornton obtained fireworks from the grounds which he carried home. They exploded on the way tearing his hand to pieces and a hole in his throat. The throat has healed and all that is left of the hand is the thumb and little finger.

Marquette—Appointment of a commission of physicians to determine the mental condition of Arthur "Gypsy" Bob Harper, Jasper Perry and Charles Roberts, Marquette prison inmates, charged with the murder of Fred C. Menhonnit, deputy warden at the Marquette branch prison, who died as a result of knife wounds alleged to have been inflicted by them during the fight in the prison chapel, December 11, 1921, will be petitioned for in circuit court.

Flint—A warrant was issued in justice court charging Joseph Morrow, alderman from the First Ward, with defrauding the city of $50. According to the complaint, Morrow, on July 1, sold gravel pit equipment owned by the city for $300, received a check for $250 and $50 in cash. It is alleged that he reported to the council that the equipment brought only $250. The warrant grows out of a John Doe investigation started here by Circuit Judge F. W. Brennan and Harry Galt, prosecuting attorney. Morrow denies the charges.

Houghton—Announcement was made of a wage increase by the Copper Range Consolidated, averaging 15 per cent for all employees of the Champion, Battle and Trimountain mines and stamp mills.

Ionia—Henry J. Cook, the oldest employe in point of service at the Michigan Reformatory, has resigned as record clerk. He is the Democratic nominee for sheriff. Mr. Cook has been employed at the reformatory 31 years.

Muskegon—John C. Boukema, former Muskegon newspaper man and for the last five years secretary of the Manistee Chamber of Commerce, has been named secretary-manager of the Muskegon chamber to succeed James M. Coak.

Lansing—Assistant Attorney O. L. Smith, was appointed by Attorney General Merlino Wiley, to represent the office in prosecution of the score of communists awaiting trial on a charge of criminal syndicalism in Berrien county.

Grand Rapids—Grand Rapids furniture manufacturers are protesting individually and through their organization, the Furniture Manufacturers Association, against the proposed 10 per cent duty on mahogany and other cabinet woods in the log.

Byron—The Byron council has decided to allow pool rooms to operate in this village this year. A motion that all applications for license be rejected, lost when H. C. Seaman, village president, broke a tie vote with his vote in favor of the pool rooms.

Grand Haven—Marie Donnelly, of Dallas, Tex., and Harry Schafer, of Muskegon, were arrested by Sheriff Fortney, at the Ottawa County Fair, at Holland, for selling "moonshine" at a booth where they advertised spark plugs for sale. The sheriff seized 23 bottles of "hooch."

Eaton Rapids—M. D. Crawford, local banker, has a freak in the grape vine, two vines, a Concord (purple) and a Niagara (green) growing side by side. In some manner a bunch from each vine became entangled with the result that they have developed and grown firmly together.

Crystal Falls—Iron county has purchased from the owners the Indian burying ground adjoining the old Indian village site at Chicago lake. It has been tidied up, the houses over the graves rebuilt where they were found to be in decay, and the tract dedicated to the use of the public.

Iron River—James Peterson, of this city, was the victim of the first hunting accident in this vicinity this season. The accidental discharge of his companion's shotgun caused a flesh wound and the loss of blood caused his death before physicians arrived. Peterson was a former aviator in the Army.

Big Rapids—Thomas Shaw, 80 years old, only living brother of Anna Howard Shaw, died here after a long illness. Sixty-seven years ago he came to the county, but afterward lived at Northville and in Black Hills, S. D. He was chief bagler in General Custer's brigade, in the Civil war. He leaves his widow and a daughter by first marriage.

Muskegon—Adam Strohm, Detroit librarian, has written Muskegon county officers expressing his appreciation for having been stopped for speeding in Muskegon County a few weeks ago. Mr. Strohm says he believes the Muskegon system of stopping tourists and warning them when violating the law will cause people to become more considerate in the future.

Lansing—Joseph G. Gourlay, a teacher at the West Junior High School who eloped last June with a 14-year-old girl pupil, was sentenced by Judge Leland W. Carr, in the Ingham Circuit Court, to serve from five to 10 years in the Michigan State Prison at Jackson. Gourlay, 42 years old, married and father of three children, pleaded guilty to a statutory offense. In his own defense he declared the girl had told him that she was 18 years old.

Pontiac—Pontiac firemen have a new task. In addition to their regular duties at the fire halls where they work every other 24 hours, they have been asked by Chief Frank Kuhn to devote some of their spare time to an inspection of the business places and homes with the idea of eliminating fires. The firemen will look for fire hazards which are unnecessary and will suggest the removal of inflammable materials from basements or wherever they are discovered.

Grand Rapids—The Kent county road commission has received from Philip B. Colgrove, of Hastings, president of the Michigan State Good Roads Association, approval of the dates, November 21, 22 and 23, for the annual convention of the organization to be held here. It had been proposed that the convention should be postponed until next spring. Sessions will be held at the Coliseum, where one of the largest exhibits of road machinery ever shown in the state will be on display.

Ann Arbor—For the student who plans to enter the University of Michigan this year equipped with an automobile and intends to stage gay parties in it, there awaits a great surprise in the form of a city ordinance which has just gone into effect. It aims directly at the driver of the automobile. The ordinance reads: No more than two persons shall occupy the front seat of an automobile, except that a child under 10 be the third person. And no person shall be seated in the lap of the driver, nor shall the driver sit in the lap of another

STUMP CAMPAIGN ON IN UPPER COUNTIES

Land Clearing Train Carrying Information to Farmers in Cut-Over Sections of Lower Peninsula.

East Lansing, Mich.—A special land clearing train, carrying full equipment for demonstration of all practical means of stump removal and manned by the same staff of Michigan Agricultural college specialists who handled a successful train in the Upper Peninsula last spring, is swinging down through the northeast counties of the lower peninsula during the last two weeks of September. Early in October the train will circle back north along the east edge of the state.

During the first week of the campaign, which opened at Cheboygan on September 18, crowds averaging more than 100 gathered for the land clearing schools and demonstrations which were held along the route, and it is expected that attendance will be even larger than this as the train reaches more southern counties.

Blasting and removal of stumps, handling of explosives, and all other features of land clearing work are demonstrated by the train "crew," which is headed by L. F. Livingston of the M. A. C. staff. Many phases of the program are of a sensational nature, as well as giving the solid information needed by those who are to clear the new country, and as a result crowds have shown unusual interest in the schools.

One stunt which was pulled on Monday, Sept. 25, at Otsego Lake, was a ditch blasting demonstration to drain mosquito infested areas in the territory. Another outstanding feature of the campaign will be an extensive ditch blasting demonstration on the T. F. Marston farm at Bay City on September 30. Mr. Marston, as secretary of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, has been active in assisting the college staff in lining up the itinerary for the schools.

The Michigan Central railroad, over which the train is being run on its southern swing, and the Detroit and Mackinaw road, over which it will work back, are co-operating in the campaign by furnishing transportation on their lines.

Jury Deliberates Fifteen Days. Pittsburgh, Pa.—James J. Flannery, wealthy clubman, charged with the murder of his young wife in February, was acquitted after the jury had deliberated fifteen nights and fourteen days. It was the longest deliberation of a jury in the history of Allegheny county.

Bullets Glance From Head of Man. Billings, Mont.—Two bullets which struck his forehead but glanced away without serious injury prevented Fred D. Mill from shooting himself after he shot his sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Stroh, in the leg. The woman's wound is not serious. Mill was intoxicated at the time, police say.

Girl Is Underwater Soprano. Washington.—Bernice Hackney is an underwater soprano. She entertains her friends by singing while under water. She doesn't know how she does it. She says she simply opens her mouth and sings, while her friends hold their ears to the surface of the water and listen.

Are Extinct Bugs. Livingston, Mont.—Insects, buried for thousands of years in a glacier in Yellowstone park, known as Grasshopper glacier, are not grasshoppers at all, but an unclassified insect now extinct, according to William C. Aiden, expert in glacial geology for the United States government.

Police Sergeant Saved Own Son From Drowning

Police Sgt. Charles Tuley of Vancouver, B. C., was strolling along English bay when he heard the cry of "boy drowning." Fully dressed, he jumped into the water and seized the lad, who was about to sink for the third time. Taking the body ashore, he discovered he had rescued his own son.

WORN NERVES

Nervous trouble, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reason to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors. Ask your neighbor! Mrs. E. Hooker, N. East St., Chelsea, says: "I was in bad shape with kidney trouble brought on by hard work. There were times when I could hardly get about because of the sharp, shooting pains across my back and many a night I was kept awake with my back. I was so dizzy I had to catch hold of something for fear of falling and I felt tired and nervous which interfered greatly with my work. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and went to Freeman's drug store and got two boxes. After using them I was better." Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hooker had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertiser's.

Where Extra Service is Demanded Firestone Cords Predominate

WHEREVER the exacting conditions and tests of tires are most severe—there you will find Firestone Cords in universal use.

The hard jobs seek Firestone. And so well has Firestone responded under difficult conditions—so consistently has mileage mounted to totals impossible to obtain from ordinary tires that today Most Miles per Dollar is the buying slogan of thinking motorists everywhere.

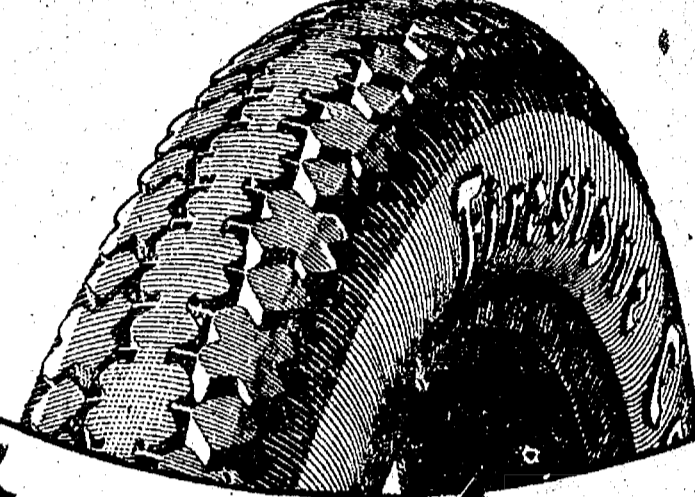

The blending and tempering of rubber, gum-dipped cord construction, air-bag cure—all these mileage methods have been developed by men whose life work is the production of constantly increasing tire values for the public.

Users in this vicinity verify Firestone reputation, and report almost daily some new Firestone record of extra distance travelled.

Don't be satisfied to buy tires—buy values—the longest mileage at the lowest price consistent with such reliable performance.

Make Most Miles per Dollar your principle of tire economy—choose your next tire on that basis.

Sunflowers, which the Federal experiment station at Matanuska, Alaska, has been trying out as a possible forage crop for that region, are reported to the United States department of agriculture as having made a much better growth last year than formerly. Mammoth Russian seed was planted May 24. About one-fourth of the plants started to head and a number of these developed full blossoms before frost. Some stalks grow to a height of 8 feet and were 2 inches in diameter. The station considers that if this variety can be made to approximate this yield every season, it will prove a valuable crop for silage.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE
No. 17484
MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw, ss.

Whereas having been appointed Probate Court for said County of Washtenaw, Michigan, to receive, examine and determine all claims and demands against the estate of said deceased, and to show late of said estate hereby give notice to all persons who have claims against said Probate Court, to present their claims to me at the office of said deceased, in the Village of Chelsea, Michigan, on the 20th day of October, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to receive, examine and determine the same.

Afterward Wilton could not imagine he had found strength to resist with Molly lost, Jim Betts himself surrendering, and Kitty crying for the line, why did he go in that black hour of her presence, the day when she was for the taking?

This was one of the worst blows that had fallen. If Betts had lost faith, who would have kept it? He understood the allusion to Kitty. Betts thought he was in love with her. Then so must other people.

He was due at the court that day, and gave his evidence. The half-breeds received each six months in the penitentiary—a light sentence, on the jury's recommendation. Afterward Wilton had a talk with Quain.

The two men had sullenly refused to give any reason for their flight. If the outlaw Hackett had advised them, they did not put in that plea.

The jury had believed that one of them had accidentally shot Joe, and that this had been the cause of their disappearance. So did Quain, apparently.

"I'm afraid, Will, that we can't hope for anything fresh upon that subject," he said.

This business done, Wilton went to see Kitty, swallowing his pride. After all, it was for Joe that he was pleading. Kitty received him in the old friendly manner, with a touch of reserve that should have put him on his guard. But he began eagerly:

"Kitty," he said, "you know we've crossed the Muskeg."

Then Kitty showed her claws.

"I was so glad when I heard of it, Will," she said. "You've been trying to do that all the summer, haven't you?"

"Why—yes, of course," said Wilton, looking at her in astonishment.

She put her hand on his arm with a caressing gesture. "Do tell me what a muskeg is, Will," she said. "I've heard you speak of it so often, and I can never remember the meaning of those words."

And with that the last of Wilton's illusions fell from him, leaving him face to face with stark reality. He faced Kitty very gently.

"Kitty, listen to me now," he said. "I've been in this game for Joe—and for you. When Joe died I saw that we'd have to fight hard to keep the line. I saw a lot of money in it, later, and meanwhile you'd have enough to live on, so that we could use your capital and your control to carry out Joe's plans."

"Yes, Will," said Kitty, with the air of one who listens wearily to a lesson.

"Joe's borrowing on those shares has changed everything. The loan has to be repaid before the year is out. If it isn't, you lose the line. They'll wreck it, and they'll wreck your fortune, and that of the other investors. Then they'll reconstruct. When the line has ceased to have any value at all, Bowyer and Phayre will have a new line of their own. Do you understand?"

"I'm trying to, Will," said Kitty. "But what do you want me to do?"

"I'm proposing this for your sake, Kitty. If you sell your property in Winnipeg you can raise three or four hundred thousand. I believe I could borrow the rest. That will meet Phayre's loan, and you'll hold the line. It's the only way, because no bank would lend you money on the rest of your shares now, after Bowyer's campaign against us. And he's made the most of the subsidence. It's speculative—what I'm suggesting. But Joe would have done it. And in a few years I'll mean millions."

"Are you sure, Will?" asked Kitty, eagerly.

"Not sure, Kitty, but nearly sure."

"Will, you are Joe's executor. Do you advise me to take that risk?"

"No!" said Wilton sharply.

"But you just said—"

"As Joe's executor, I can't. It's not sound business. An executor dares not advise throwing away a certainty for a speculation. As Joe's executor—no!"

"Then why did you advise me to?" asked Kitty innocently.

"Because I thought you cared for the line, Kitty. Because I thought you shared Joe's dream for the future of the Missatibi. I thought that, even if you lost, you'd have your house here, and your forty thousand, and you'd feel that you'd done what Joe would have wanted. As your executor I say, sell out to Phayre before it's too late. At least—at least—"

He could get no further. Kitty looked up into his face. "Will, I know how you feel," she said softly. "I'm so sorry. I've done what you wanted, Will. But I haven't done it for Joe. I've done it for you, Will, you've made your own obstacles. You've never understood me. It's you I want to help; it's you I want my money for, Will."

Afterward Wilton could not imagine he had found strength to resist with Molly lost, Jim Betts himself surrendering, and Kitty crying for the line, why did he go in that black hour of her presence, the day when she was for the taking?

CHAPTER X
The Abysmal Depths.

Molly did not see Bowyer for two months after Kitty's departure. His next visit was as unexpected as all of his. It was in the afternoon, and the girl came back from a walk along the shore to see him seated in the store, sleek, red, and self-satisfied, and her father standing beside him, with that look of awful fear on his face. She had a momentary impression as if the factor stood up like a well man; but as she entered, the right leg went dragging under him, and the arm fell limp at his side.

"How d'ye do, Miss McDonald!" called Bowyer. "I just dropped in to have a chat with the factor in passing. Big things happening here, eh? The Missatibi's mighty slow in crossing the Muskeg."

Molly flamed at the insult to Wilton. She looked at her father, and the expression on his face went to her heart. She turned swiftly to Bowyer.

"I don't want you to come here again," she said.

He started up, spluttering. "We don't want you," she continued. "And we won't be persecuted by you. There's law in this country."

He burst into mocking laughter. "You never spoke a truer word, Miss McDonald!" he cried. "I came here as a friend."

"You can go as an enemy!" she retorted. "And you can go now. And remember—there are men about here who can use a whip!"

He glared at her, but went without a word, and Molly ran to the factor. "He's torturing you!" she sobbed. "I don't know what his power over you is, but he mustn't come here again!"

A few days later Bowyer went in to Clayton and, by chance, his visit coincided with Wilton's.

When Wilton left her house, Kitty sank down into a chair, clasping and unclasping her fingers nervously. The first time when Wilton had repulsed her, she had been too humiliated and conscience-stricken to bear him resentment. Her visit to Molly had been a sudden evil impulse, which, when done, she had attempted to justify.

She had, of course, succeeded. Gradually she had begun to look upon herself as a deeply wronged woman. When a woman loves, love is its own justification for acts done in its name.

On the second occasion of her advances to Wilton she saw by instinct that she had almost conquered. She saw, too, that, having lost, she had lost forever. She might win Wilton yet, but never in that way.

Now she would go to any lengths to oust Molly. Molly had never written to her since her departure, and she did not even know if her scheme had succeeded in estranging her from Wilton. But she inferred success from Wilton's bearing. He had not looked like a successful lover.

Bitterly she reflected on her marriage with Joe. She had never loved Joe, but neither had she hated him. She had loved Wilton, and bound by tradition and social circumstances, she had concealed it. Then—Joe had died. Everything had seemed possible. And Wilton had engaged himself to another—to her best friend. Kitty was not a bad woman, but she meant to fight for her own. She would win Wilton, cost what it might.

When, therefore, late on the day after he had called on her, the maid announced Tom Bowyer, who had never been in her house before, she sent down word that she would receive him.

Neither Wilton nor Bowyer was aware that the other was in Clayton when Bowyer called, nor did they meet.

Kitty came downstairs, to find Bowyer standing in the parlor, twirling his hat in his hands. There was a singularly vulpine look on the red face. For an instant Kitty shuddered inwardly. Her passion for Wilton was taking her into unrelieved companionships.

She asked him to sit down. "I'm pleased to see you, Mr. Bowyer," she said. "It was very good of you to call."

Bowyer uttered a short laugh. "I'm not a calling man, Mrs. Bostock," he said, "and the ladies don't like me. They know too much about me."

"That's very poor taste on their part," said Kitty.

"That's as may be. I came here on business."

"I'm glad to see you on business, then," said Kitty.

Bowyer looked at her in admiration. "I see we understand each other," he said. "That's what I like. You ought to have been a man. Not but what you'd have been spoiled if you had been," he added, with a clumsy effort at a compliment.

Kitty laughed outright. "Now I know you have come to get something," she said.

"Not exactly. We've fixed things so that you'll be able to pull out about Christmas with your full investment. But suppose Carruthers makes trouble? Remember, you've gone what you did for his sake as well as your own. You want to help him go into a more remunerative investment. You know that little affair of his is off?"

She started violently, and Bowyer did not need to await her answer.

"That's what I came to tell you," he went on. "So I know we can count on you to smooth things over if Carruthers begins to wonder. You're staunch, then?"

"You can count on me, Mr. Bowyer," answered Kitty, loathing herself and him. "But how about yourself? I understand from you that you were going slow. I hope you're not going too slow?"

"I'm going to speed things up soon," he answered, frowning. "What's happened helps things along. I don't know what the trouble was. I thought at first it was one of those lover's quarrels. But it's lasted." His face grew red. "I went there," he said thickly. "She wouldn't have anything to say to me. Ordered me off the place."

Bowyer leaned forward confidentially. "See here, Mrs. Bostock," he said. "If I get her out of the way—if I guarantee that Will Carruthers and she won't meet again, how'll that suit you?"

"You've changed your mind about marrying?"

"Maybe yes. Maybe no. I'm not a marrying man. Nobody is. It's generally an accident—or a trap. But I can promise you there'll be no trouble from that quarter. Also, that she'll be out of the district before winter."

"That won't do," said Kitty with sudden fierceness. "She may come back."

"She won't. And if she did, and went down on her knees to him, he wouldn't look at her."

"What do you mean?" asked Kitty breathlessly.

Bowyer leaned forward again and whispered in her ear. Kitty was as pale as death. "How'll that do for you?" he asked triumphantly.

Kitty rose, trembling. "I'll stiek to my word," she said. "But you're the lowest cur I've ever known, Tom Bowyer, and I hope—I hope somebody flays you—flays the skin off you before you've run your course."

"I'll take my chance of that," grinned Bowyer, as he rose.

Kitty sank back in her chair, her hands over her face. Of a sudden the abyssal depths of sin had opened beneath her. She was tempted to run after him and call him back. But she could not stir. It was some time before she forced herself to rise. She went to the window. She guessed that Bowyer was going to the bank. He would return that way, and she could call him in and tell him that she had changed her mind.

Suddenly she started back behind the curtains. Wilton was passing on the other side of the road. He held his head high, yet he walked like a man who was broken.

Kitty watched him go by. Her heart was full of pity for him, for his quixotic dreams, his foolish faithfulness to Joe. The picture that Bowyer had limned of Molly faded from her mind under the brighter glow that came into it.

Like Wilton, Bowyer had business to transact with Phayre. He went to the bank; it was after hours, but he knew Phayre would be there, awaiting him.

"Carruthers is in town," said the bank president.

"He is, eh?" asked Bowyer, darting a keen glance at him. "When did he get in?"

"Day before yesterday. He was subpoenaed on that case."

"That's so, of course," said Bowyer. "What did they get?"

"Six months apiece."

"No new light on the murder of our friend?"

"Nothing. Quain didn't go into that phase of the affair at all. He'd questioned them, and couldn't prove anything."

Bowyer fell into a brown study for a few moments.

"Carruthers been here yet?" he inquired presently.

"Not yet. He's trying to raise a cool half-million in town. I guess he's been to the last likely place by now. So he'll be here tomorrow to renew the loan."

"You'll renew, of course," said Bowyer. "Excellent wheat lands! Fine investment for your bank, the Missatibi! By the way, you hit it strong with that cartoon!"

They both laughed, first at the cartoon, then at Bowyer's raillery.

"No more trouble with Clark?" asked Bowyer.

"Not at present. I guess that extra two hundred squared him. He's a dangerous customer to handle, though. And absolutely indispensable for a job like we had to handle. A first-class man at his trade, cool as a cucumber, and looking like a gentleman. You'll find it hard to beat that combination. He could have had more than the two hundred he held me up for."

"He's certainly worth it," admitted Bowyer. "What'll you do with him next year?"

"Why, he seems to like the work here," answered Phayre, laughing. "I'll keep him on, under my eye—at a reduced salary."

They both chuckled over that, but

Bowyer grew serious quickly. "Well, I've fixed Kitty Bostock," he said. "Lord, it's a cinch handling that type of woman. Once they fancy some particular man, they'll go through hell to get him."

"You've told her you'll buy her shares at par," he said. "You haven't committed yourself irrevocably to that?"

Bowyer threw his head back and emitted one of his short laughs. "Well, I may change my mind," he said. "It isn't in writing."

"Suppose she raises Cain?"

"She can't. She's in too deep. She doesn't know how deep."

Phayre laughed again, but nervously. "I never cared much for this business, Bowyer," he said. "If Joe Bostock hadn't died as he did I'd never have got mixed up with it. But that gave us our chance. If it was a very lucky accident. If we weren't committed beyond recovery, I'd pull out even now."

"Pull out?" echoed the other. "How the devil can we pull out? The trick's done."

"You've—"

"I've fixed it about that safe. We had a devil of a job the first time we tried. He's got a deafmute there who seems to have eyes like a cat, and sleeps with them open. Carruthers caught Lee Chambers at the window and smashed his nose. And, of course, Chambers' usefulness at the camp is ended. However, I've fixed it now, and a day or two will see us with what we want, and Carruthers with what he doesn't want."

"I suppose there's no doubt those half-breeds did kill Joe Bostock," suggested Phayre, darting a keen look at the other.

AUTO CLUB HEAD FIGHTS GAS TAX

CALLS PROPOSED PLAN TO MULCT CAR OWNERS FOR FUEL THEY USE UNJUST.

PAY ENOUGH NOW IN TAXES

If Additional Money Is Needed to Run State Affairs Conference Should Be Called to Work Out Plan.

BY COL. SIDNEY D. WALDON President Detroit Automobile Club

Certain interests in the State of Michigan are advocating a tax on all gasoline used within the borders of the State. They have been openly working for the measure for some months to develop sentiment in favor of additional taxation for the man who owns a motor car. It is their intention, they intimate, to go before the Legislature in January, 1923, and ask that body to enact a law that will require every user of gasoline to pay a tax of one cent or more per gallon on all they purchase.

As is usually the case in tax matters the proponents of the plan are proceeding under the assumption that anything used in connection with an automobile is readily taxable. They seem to feel it is the duty of the more than 500,000 motor car owners in Michigan to dig into their purses just because somebody happens to think this a good way to raise money.

Auto Made Michigan

If there is one State in the Union where unjust taxes should not be saddled on to the motor car it is Michigan. The motor car has been the making of the Wolverine State industry. Had not this wonder industry of the 20th century developed in Michigan the State would be industrially where it was two decades back. We all know Michigan was not among the industrial leaders, though she is today, and the motor car is to be thanked for the progress made.

The motorists of Michigan and the United States are already paying their fair share and perhaps more of, the tax. Take, for instance, the main tax levies, of which there are five. They may be listed as follows: 1. National income taxes common on all individuals.

2. Sales tax paid by the manufacturer and passed on by him to the owner, and limited to the automobile and a few other industries.

3. Taxes on repair parts; a permanent charge on the life of all automobiles whether passenger or truck, a tax specific to the auto owner.

4. State license and registration fees, a virtual monopoly to the automobilist.

5. Scattering taxes, such as driver's license, chauffeur's license, certificate of title, etc.

Motorists Pay Millions. Bureau of Internal Revenue figures for 1920, the last available in Governmental reports, show that the public treasury collected in round figures $287,000,000 in special and discriminatory taxes on automobiles in the year. The Federal Government took $140,000,000, the States $107,000,000, and Municipalities $11,000,000.

A study of tax figures in Michigan is interesting. It reveals that personal and real property pay only 2.90 percent on assessed valuation, while motor cars pay 5.12 percent, almost 100 per cent more. These figures are based on State figures for 1921, personal and real property value being $6,483,535,114, while cars are worth $131,814,863. The real and personal property pays $168,388,566.57, and the automobiles $6,751,924.51.

When a Michigan man buys a Ford car he must pay taxes equaling approximately 7 percent of the cost of the car. The United States takes part and Michigan the rest. Is any other property as heavily taxed?

Many people have tentatively assented to a tax of one or more cents per gallon because they have been told it is a small item and because they do not realize how much the motor car owner is already paying in taxes on his vehicle.

Would Cost $4,000,000. Figures supplied the Detroit Automobile Club by the Standard Oil Co. and Sinclair Refining Co., the largest gasoline dealers in Michigan, show that motorists of Michigan will be forced to pay approximately $4,000,000 per annum if they accept the gasoline tax. This sum is based on gasoline sales in 1921. Are the motor car owners of Michigan ready to hand over this amount just to satisfy the whim of some group of tax proponents?

The idea seems to be to tax the automobile when in doubt. It is assumed that the motorist is "easy" and will not object to a little more taxation. Even if more money is needed to operate the State Government no tax of any kind should be founded on reasons of expediency such as ease of collection or ability to pay. Every tax should be based on rules of justice and equality.

The gasoline tax is not just, inasmuch as motorists are already paying a fair share of Michigan's taxes. If more money is needed to conduct the State's affairs some equitable way of assessing the additional tax should be worked out. It cannot be found in the present plan as promoted and advocated by certain citizens of Michigan who are ready to tax the automobile

JURY CALLED FOR NOVEMBER 8

Due to custom which has been practiced every two years in Washtenaw county circuit court, it has been decided that the jury for trial of criminal and civil cases will not be called for the fall term until Nov. 8 instead of the first week in October.

Circuit Judge George W. Sample has consulted as many members of the bar as he could reach, and this decision has been the result.

Only criminal cases on the October docket which will not be contested will be heard during the first week in October.
