GEORGE H. KEMPF EXPIRES SUDDENLY

Former Chelsea Business Man Dies
On Way to His Cavanaugh Lake
Summer Home.

The sudden death of George Henry Kempf, which occurred about 12:15 Friday afternoon, came as a great shock to his many Chelsea friends. About 11 o'clock Friday forenoon Mr. Kempf was about the streets of Chelsea transacting business and led his store building for a period of five years to Keusch & Fahrner.

Accompanied by Wm. Kelly and his chauffeur Mr. Kempf left here to go to his summer home at Cavanaugh Lake to spend the afternoon fishing. When the party were near the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Weber, Mr. Kelly noticed that Mr. Kempf was sitting in a stooping position, and when he failed to reply to Mr. Kelly's questions he was straightened up and driven to the Weber home, where it was found he had expired. Death was due to apoplexy. The remains were taken to the Staffan undertaking rooms.

George Henry Kempf was born in Chelsea, June 6, 1869, and was the oldest son of Charles H. and Mary Freer-Kempf. He received his education in Chelsea public school and at Albion college. About 35 years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Linna Angevine of Albion and for the past 22 years have maintained their home at Cavanaugh Lake, spending the summers here and the winters in Detroit. Chelsea, he has always considered his place of residence, coming here regularly to cast his ballot.

Deceased was in the mercantile business in Chelsea for several years, being engaged with his father in the furniture trade under the firm name of Kempf & Son. Later he entered the dry goods business, founding the firm of Kempf & Schenk. After retiring from the dry goods store he engaged in the furnishing goods trade under the firm name of Kempf & McKune, and after disposing of this he retired from active business.

During the administration of Governor John T. Rich Mr. Kempf was a member of the governor's staff, and for a number of years he was connected with United States internal revenue department at Detroit. He was a member of Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. & A. M., Knights Templar Commandery of Ann Arbor, the Shrine in Detroit, the Grotto of Jackson and the order of Elks.

The widow, one sister, Mrs. C. J. Chandler, of Grosse Pointe Shores, two nephews and three nieces are the surviving members of the family. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Congregational church, Rev. E. A. Carnes conducting the services. The Masonic order conducted their burial ceremony at the grave in Oak Grove cemetery.

LEACH-BREITENWISCHER

Pretty Home Wedding Solemnized
Yesterday Afternoon.

A very pretty wedding took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leach, of Chandler street, when their only daughter, Miss Gladys Alberta, was united in marriage with Mr. Wilbert Breitenwischer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Breitenwischer, of West Middle street, Rev. E. A. Carnes conducting the ring service. The couple were attended by Miss Lillian Breitenwischer, sister of the bridegroom and Mr. Clarence Leach, brother of the bride. Raymond Leach, nephew of the bride acted as ring bearer.

The ceremony was performed under an arch with a large wedding bell hung in the center, and a background of ferns, asparagus and cut flowers. The home was decorated throughout in blue and white, and cut flowers. The bride is a graduate of the Chelsea high school and has been the guest of honor at several social functions given by her friends during the last three weeks. The groom is employed in Ann Arbor as a mechanic.

A wedding dinner was served at 6 o'clock to thirty-five of the immediate relatives of the couple.

Following the dinner the young couple left on a trip to Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will occupy apartments at the home of the bride's parents.

BISHOP GALLAGHER CONFIRMS CLASS AT ST. MARY CHURCH

SIXTEEN CHILDREN AND FOUR
ADULTS RECEIVE SACRAMENT.

House of Worship Nearly Filled to Witness Beautiful and Impressive Service Monday Evening.

St. Mary Catholic church was the scene of an impressive and beautiful ceremony Monday evening, when the Right Reverend Michael Gallagher, bishop of the Detroit diocese, administered the holy sacrament of confirmation upon a class of eight girls, eight boys and four adults.

Men of the church formed a double line from the rectory to the church entrance, through which marched the confirmation class led by the altar boys, bearing the cross and lighted candles. After seating the class the altar boys returned to the entrance of the church and escorted the Bishop and priests to the chancel.

After the opening devotionals Bishop Gallagher gave an earnest and instructive talk to the class. Coming to the time of enrollment into the church, the Bishop advised them their lives would require more self-reliance, independence and strong character. In simple words and examples he showed them the temptations that lay in life's pathways and admonished them to become soldiers of Christ and remain loyal to their religious faith. Soldiers of Christ, like the soldier in war, must defend himself and help others. As soldiers of Christ you must be equipped with knowledge of your holy religion. As Catholics you will be persecuted because of your religion. Equip yourself with knowledge and truth and use the gifts of the Holy Ghost to defend yourself. Prayer, said the Bishop, is the one great weapon. If we pray salvation is certain. Make a resolution that you will be faithful to prayer, for prayer brings you into communion with God. Prayer is the weapon that assures victory. Be loyal to the church to which you belong and receive the reward that awaits you.

The impressive sacrament of confirmation followed, after which the class publicly acknowledged their faith by reciting the creed, the Lord's prayer and "Hail Mary." Rev. Fr. Henry VanDyke, rector of St. Mary, was master of ceremonies, assistants being Rev. Fr. John Doyle, chancellor of the diocese, Rev. Fr. Hackett of Emmet and Rev. Fr. Cook of Redford.

The music by organ and choir accompanying the services was beautiful and in harmony with the important occasion.

The confirmation class is given below, the name of the confirmand preceding that of the sponsor:

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR
MISS DOROTHY NOTTEN

A pleasant social event was the miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Dorothy Notten, a bride of this week, at the home of Mrs. Leonard Loveland at North Francisco Saturday afternoon.

Seventy guests, members of the Ladies' Aid society and Epworth League of the Salem M. E. church, and friends of the honored guest participated in the social function. Miss Mae Schroeder of New York City was also among the guests.

Many gifts useful for housekeeping were presented Miss Notten, giving her quite a start in beginning her new home.

A pot-luck supper was served and all reported a jolly good time.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH MISSION FESTIVAL

HOUSE OF WORSHIP WAS FILLED
THREE TIMES SUNDAY

Visiting Pastors Assist in Interesting
Services—Good Sermons and Excellent Music Are Features.

The annual Mission festival at St. Paul's Evangelical church Sunday proved successful from every standpoint. The attendance at each of the three services was large, the sermons by the various pastors were instructive and the music by the choir inspiring.

The morning service was German entirely—songs, prayers and sermon. Rev. C. C. Haag, head of the Deaconess hospital of Detroit preached an excellent sermon on missions. Special music by the choir were two selections, "Der Herr ist Gross," by Lorenz and "Die Bessere Heimat," by Albot.

The afternoon service which was partly German and partly English, with a German sermon by Rev. F. R. Lueckhoff, of Saline township and an English sermon by Rev. G. W. Krause of Lansing, until recently pastor of the church here. Both sermons were along missionary lines, interesting and scholarly. Rev. C. C. Haag also gave a short but interesting talk on the Deaconess hospital of Detroit.

As in the forenoon, the hymns sung were German. At this service the congregation was favored with a fine vocal solo by Paul Niehaus, entitled "The Living God," by Geoffrey O'Hara.

In the evening the church was again filled to capacity, and this service was English entirely. Rev. W. Simon of Detroit preached the sermon, taking his text from St. Matthew 20:18-20, "Go ye therefore into the uttermost parts of the world and preach the gospel to all nations."

His sermon was along home missionary lines. He pointed out that we are all missionaries, that we inherited the charge Jesus gave to his disciples. When at baptism you promised to promote the growth of the new life in a baptized child you became a missionary. Your responsibility does not stop at baptism. The responsibility becomes greater to the parents, sponsors and the Christians of a community to keep the spiritual life of a child growing.

"Be Thou My Guide," by Ashford, was a pleasing musical number sung by a trio composed of Mrs. Emmet Sargent, Mrs. J. N. Strieter and Paul Niehaus.

Before the offertory, Rev. P. H. Grabowski heartily thanked the visiting ministers, the choir, the ladies who worked faithfully to get the church in readiness for the festival and all others who helped to make the occasion such a successful one.

The choir and organ selections throughout the three services were exceptionally good and the decorations of flowers and ferns were very attractive and pleasing.

While the offering of the three services did not come up to that of last year, the sum, about $310, was gratifying and very welcome.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED AS BOOTLEGGERS

Quantity of Hooch Confiscated and Three Pinched by Local Officers.

Lack of sufficient evidence for conviction allowed three men, suspected of bootlegging, liberty after being taken to Ann Arbor by Deputy Sheriffs Palmer and Steiner. However, seven pints and two half gallons of "hooch" were confiscated by the officers.

The arrest was made Friday forenoon near the Chelsea Elevator Co.'s building where the men stopped presumably to take aboard the liquor, which was found hidden near a car alongside the warehouse of the Elevator company.

Deputies Palmer and Steiner took the trio to Ann Arbor, where they were released because of lack of evidence for conviction.

The supposition is that the men, who evidently were in Chelsea all night, asleep in their car, unloaded and hid the booze so as not to be found in the car, while they breakfasted, expecting to stop and load it as they left town.

The liquor contained labels of the American Drug Syndicate with the word "Al-Ko-al" 92.5% alcohol and for external use only.

The queer actions of the men attracted the attention of people down town in the early morning and the location of the booze was pretty well known before the capture was made.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

LOOKING AFTER HIGHWAYS.

Fall is one of the periods of the year when it is important that the condition of our highways should receive careful attention. It is important to the farmer and business activity generally that highways should be kept in passable condition during the fall and winter months. By taking care of the little things at this time greater expense may be saved later.

We are not familiar with the condition of all the roads in this township and do not confine ourselves to Sylvan and Lima. But there are many spots on the Chelsea-Manchester road that need attention now for the good of the road.

There are numerous small ruts or water holes that can now, especially after a rain, be practically eliminated by scraping at small expense. These small water holes, if left, will soon undermine the solid gravel bed and the road will have to be rebuilt.

A little work now on main traveled roads by every township, through which they traverse will save greater expense later. Fill up the ruts with the scraper, spread a load of gravel here and there to turn the water from the surface, save the greater expense of rebuilding, and have the roads between trading centers passable during the winter months.

"WAGE SLAVES."

(By F. A. Perry.)

There is a great hue and cry from certain quarters these days about our modern "wage slaves," meaning, of course, laboring men.

Men who hired out to work, receiving for their toil the compensation agreed upon are said to be mere "wage slaves," in fact, but little above the men who were bought and sold in the market places of past years.

We confess our inability to understand the reason for such comparisons, unless these advocates of revolution would have us regard every man who works for a living as a "slave," and unless they are trying to outlaw all honest toil.

But what are the facts in the case? Is the man a slave who has the right to vote upon all questions relative to the affairs of his city, state and nation?

Is the man a slave who owns his own home, and is the head of one of the families which make up the community in which he lives?

Is the man a slave who is privileged to choose his place of employment, and to sell his labor where it will bring him the largest returns?

Is the man a slave, the members of whose family mingle on a social equality with the people of his neighborhood?

Is the man a slave whose children attend the public schools and receive the same instruction and enjoy the same educational opportunities that are afforded to all other children?

Is the man a slave who owns stock in the industry in which he is employed, and whereby has a voice in shaping its policies?

Is the man a slave who can return to his fireside at the close of the day, for an evening at home, or with his family enjoy an entertainment in the public parks, or in places of amusement of his own choosing?

Is the man a slave who by the use of his brains and by his industry is privileged to climb to the highest positions in the factory where he is employed?

Is the man a slave who can say truthfully to his son, "Study hard, my boy; yet may be the President of the United States some day."

All the above and much more applies to the average American workman, whose standard of living is unexcelled in any nation, and whose liberal wages is enabling him, not only to lay aside money for the future, but also to secure interest in the industries of the community.

Let any reasonable person turn over the pages of history, and read from the record there the meaning of the word "slave." Let him contrast for one moment the condition of the poor, ignorant human being who possessed nothing, received nothing, and could hope for nothing, the human slave of past days. Let him compare, we repeat, the state of such a poor unfortunate with the unlimited opportunities presented to the American laborer; and he will never again apply the term "slave" to the workers in American industries. Moreover, if he is sincere, he will forever close his ears to the asinine ravings of the radical agitators who are insulting the employed men of today by branding them "wage slaves."

THE SCREEN

(Quinn Martin in New York World) It is not the fault of the millions of persons in this country who make the motion pictures their only form of amusement that they have almost from the beginning been chary about their choice for the cinema play as a whole. But it does seem to us that even the photoplay ought to be given credit where credit is due.

We have made an investigation and a comparison of the quality of films shown throughout the country at this time, as alongside those exhibited a year ago, or two years ago. We were prompted to do this because of a statement made by Will H. Hays in Minneapolis a few weeks ago, in which he said, in part:

"This new program has been under way less than six months, but the results are already showing. This season's run of photoplays will indicate plainly the results of a sincere effort and desire to make better pictures."

When we started in to dig out the truth about the statement, we sneered to ourselves, because we had a feeling we were going to be able to pin upon the cinema chief the brand of exaggeration, egotism and inaccuracy.

The fact of the matter is that after looking over reviews, criticisms and comment upon films written even as late as one year ago it is found that there not only is a great deal in what he says, but the evidence confronts us with the fact that today there are being exhibited in the theatres and put together in the studios a class of photoplay which, on the whole, ranks high above the class that was being turned out prior to the beginning of the present year. Naturally we are not in a position to say to just what extent the influence of the former postmaster general has gone in the matter, but we are prepared to say that within his six months as director general of the photoplay there has been a remarkable betterment in the product.

This change has been most marked in the matter of the moral intent of the various pictures being made. Two years ago criticisms of films were taken up to a great extent with protests against the sickening sex play stamp placed upon the society drama and the like. We find that within the year of 1922 we have not felt called upon more than half a dozen times to refer to indecency or obscenity in pictures.

This does not mean, of course, that we have found any considerable number of pictures which have come up to our idea of what the ideal picture ought to be. This may best be expressed by saying that we have never seen a photoplay that was as good as we thought it ought to have been. But it is apparent that in intent and effort, in desire and ability on the part of the producers, there is a very decided change for the better.

We have visited the New York censorship bureau to learn whether in the last few months that body has been called upon to slash into many films in order to remove the "dirt" which crept into so many films in other days. We are told that the censors' scissors have been comparatively idle for months. So that it appears the wilful desire in present objectionable matter in the films has been cut off to a great extent at the root—in the studios.

In our list of pictures which, while not in any instance a perfect example of the photoplay art, possess the quality of sincerity and high-mindedness, and which struck most forcibly as being excellent testimony to Mr. Hays' statement of the producers' intent at least, there were such things as the Famous Players' "The Dictator" and "If You Believe It, It's So," and "Borderland," "Clarence," the Tarkington story, is now being directed by Mr. DeMille. "Our Leading Citizen," the George Ade story, was another. In the Fox list we found "Monte Cristo" and "Nero" and "Just Tony." We announced before that this company now was making "If Winter Comes" into a picture.

"Ben Hur" is now on the ways in the Goldwyn studios on the coast and this concern has given us such pictures as "Sherlock Holmes" and "Remembrance" by Rupert Hughes, which has not yet been released to the public; as well as "Hungry Hearts" and "The Christian."

There was "The Prisoner of Zenda" by the Metro Company, and "The Storm," "Human Hearts" and others by Universal. Before long the Baby Peggy film is to be presented, "Little Red Riding Hood," and "Hansel and Gretel" is on the way.

In the Vitaphone list there are "My Wild Irish Rose" and the "Prodigal Judge."

Constance Talmadge has just completed what is said to be her best picture, "East Is West," sister Norma has done "The Voice From the Minaret," and at the Strand now is Hal Roach's new Harold Lloyd comedy, "Grandma's Boy." Soon George Ade's new story "Back Home and Broke" is to be seen in films, and Thomas Ince will give us "Skin Deep" and "Lorna Doone," among others.

The Educational Company has some short subjects such as "The One Man Reunion" and "My Country." Madge Kennedy has finished a pretty story called "The Purple Highway," which the Kemma Company has high hopes for. Warner Brothers are making "Main Street" and one or two other screen versions of popular novels. Selznick has under way "Rupert of Henzau" to follow its present comedy feature, "Reported Missing." And there are others and yet others.

So that after fair and thorough reflection, it looks to us as though better pictures, certainly cleaner pictures, are here! It is a long, long road before they reach the stage of excellence. But, as some one has said, Rome wasn't built in one day.

Never start a bad story about another person. Some one may confuse the name and bring it onto you.

"LIGHTNIN" COMING TO

CAPITOL, OCTOBER 18 and 19

When it plays its widely heralded engagement at the Capitol Theatre, Jackson, Wednesday and Thursday, October 18th and 19th, with a matinee on Thursday, "Lightnin" will be cordially welcomed by theatre goers who have waited nearly four years to see Bill Jones, the flirtatious vaudeville actress, the Reno Judge, the famous courtroom scene, the divorces hotel astride the California Nevada border and the other characters and scenes of John Golden's record-shattering comedy classic. Seats are now on sale.

For three years "Lightnin" packed the Gaiety Theatre, giving Broadway a new long run record, and now in its second year at the Blackstone Theatre it also holds Chicago's endurance championship. It is by long odds the most successful of all contemporary American plays and few of the classics can match its box office feats.

Thomas Jefferson, a son of the late Joseph Jefferson, plays the title role in the classical cast that Mr. Golden has assembled for a tour of important cities that might otherwise be compelled to wait two years longer to see the play. Bessie Bacon, daughter of Frank Bacon, and for more than two years prominent in her father's supporting cast, will be seen as the actress, and Ida St. Leon, has been transferred from Chicago, where she has been Mr. Bacon's leading woman, for the role of Mildred Buckley. Other principals are Charles E. Evans as the Judge, Robert Keith as John Marvin; Walter Dickinson as Everett Hammond; Walter Ducart as Raymond Thomas; Harry Buchanan as Rodney Harper; Mart Heisy as the sheriff; Felix Haney as Zeb Carothers; Johnnie LeFevre as the hotel clerk and Grace Henderson as Mrs. Jones. The cast also includes Harry Matland, Eugene Kane, Helena Shipman, Grace Chappelle, Genevieve Micaney, Vera Milne Hall, Marguerite Miller and Elva Nelson.

In its brisk humor, wholesome heart appeal and splendid humanity of its characters, "Lightnin" is typical of the plays that Winchell Smith has contributed to the American stage. Mr. Smith, collaborated with Frank Bacon in writing it and he has personally staged the production to be seen here. Action takes place in Nevada, on and near the California state line. A land swindle forms the base of the plot and there are two love romances as well as the rebuilding of a broken home.

Now is the time to do the things you should have done yesterday, but it makes double work today.

ADVISE FRUIT TREE PLANTING IN SPRING

Advantages of Fall Outweighed in Michigan by Danger of Winter Killing, Says M. A. C.

East Lansing, Mich.—That the safest course for the average Michigan orchardist is to plant his trees in the spring, in order to avoid danger of winter injury from severe cold, is the opinion of Prof. F. C. Bradford, of the M. A. C. department of horticulture.

The advantages of fall planting, which are great in certain sections, are more than outweighed in this state by the chances that an unusually severe winter will result in serious injury or even actual killing of the newly planted trees.

"The arguments in favor of fall planting are logical enough," says Prof. Bradford. "There is generally less work to be done on the farm at that season. Conditions in the fall favor good root growth and sound establishment of the trees. In the spring, there is danger of a too heavy drain upon the trees in supporting not only root growth but also the opening leaf buds."

"The advantages then would seem to rest with the fall planted tree, other things being equal. However, the other things are not always equal, and climatic conditions must be taken into consideration. In some sections fall planting is almost universal, but in others it is just as universally avoided. Where winters are really cold, fall planted trees are liable to severe damage, while in other zones, generally southerly in location, mild winters make fall planting advisable."

"Michigan lies, for the most part, in a sort of neutral zone where some winters are mild enough so that trees planted the previous fall come through nicely. Some Michigan winters, on the other hand, are so cold that even trees set out the previous spring are in danger and fall set trees have no chance at all."

"Inasmuch as we cannot predict in October what the winter will be like, the safest course is to plant in the spring in Michigan."

STATE REPRESENTED WELL AT DAIRY SHOW

Leer Association and M. A. C. Judging Team Features of National Event at St. Paul This Week

East Lansing, Mich.—Michigan dairy interests are represented fully at the National Dairy Show this year. The big congress, which rates as the premier event of its kind in the country each year, opened at St. Paul, Minnesota, on October 7 with special exhibits from Michigan rated among the features of the show.

The Leer Guernsey Breeders Association, of Alpena county is showing an exhibit of eight animals at the National. This display, which was taken West by the American Guernsey cattle club, is reported as creating widespread interest among dairy cattle men at the show. The Leer exhibit shows the result of twelve years continuous use of pure bred sires in grading up the native class of cows that have been found in Alpena county, and gives an excellent idea of the possibilities of the work. A native scrub cow, a half blooded Guernsey, and further generations up to the fifth cross, or a thirty-one thirty-seconds Guernsey calf, are included in the Leer display.

A student judging team from the M. A. C. is also carrying the state's colors in competitive judging at the National Dairy Show. This team, composed of four agricultural students from M. A. C., will meet the pick of college student judging teams from all over the country. Last year the M. A. C. finished third at St. Paul.

CO-STARS VISIT CLIFF DWELLINGS IN ARIZONA
Tenants Dead 4,000 Years So Jack Holt and Bebe Daniels Left Visiting Cards.

Leaving visiting cards at the homes of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Dwellers, has been a recent pastime of Bebe Daniels and Jack Holt, popular Paramount Stars.

Of course, the towering rock residences of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. haven't been occupied for more than four thousand years—but inasmuch as the cliff-dwellings were only a short walk from the Arizona "location" camp of co-stars—it wouldn't have been neighborly not to have dropped in.

For scenes in "North of the Rio Grande," a romantic tale which carries its action above and below the border, the Jack Holt-Bebe Daniels company camped for several weeks at Mormon Flats, fifty miles from Phoenix, and in the heart of the cliff-dwelling and Apache country. The rough and rugged surroundings are said to have afforded Mr. Holt and a band of 25 cowboys splendid opportunities for some "trick" riding.

"North of the Rio Grande" will be seen at the Princess theatre Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 18 and 19. Reprising Sturgeon directed. Well-known supporting players include Alce B. Francis, Will Walling, Charles Ogil, Fred Huntley, Shannon Day and Jack Carlyle.

Howell—Two young men of Brighton, John Bidwell and Ralph Collins, have the distinction of having made the trip from Kansas City to Brighton, a distance of 900 miles in a Ford car in 48 hours steady pull. The young men took turns at the wheel and did not stop from the time they started until they arrived in Brighton.—Democrat.

Stockbridge—Anson Croman arrived home Friday from DeMoines, Iowa, where he attended the annual National Encampment of the G. A. R. He reports a very nice time with all kinds of hospitality. There were 20,000 old veterans who attended and 15,000 marched in the parade. The oldest man to attend lives near Ovid, and is 102 years old.—Brief-Sun.

Several witnesses were called to the stand, but no one was able to say just what engine struck the unfortunate man. Smith's mangled body was found Tuesday evening lying close to the eastbound lead track at the Junction by Charles Ellingwood.—News.

Ypsilanti—Horace Cleaveau, of Ann Arbor, was arrested Monday night by Officer Henry Lawrence on a charge of driving an automobile in the city while under the influence of liquor. Pinckney—For some time past Henry Reason, who works the Floyd Reason farm southeast of town, has been watching the flock of sheep for dogs which have developed a taste for mutton. Last week two dogs visited the flock and one left with a quantity of lead in his anatomy while the other dog remained on the ground—a very dead dog. George Holbin, while in town Saturday night, claimed that he was the hero of the occasion, having shot at least one of the dogs.—Dispatch.

Pinckney—Unadilla farmers have taken steps to stop hunting on their farms. On account of many annoyances from men from cities who have no respect for farm property, leaving gates open, cutting wire fences and committing other nuisances, to say nothing of desecrating the Sabbath by hunting on that day, which is said to be an offence punishable by $25 fine, they are organizing for self protection and when the organization is perfected no hunting will be allowed on Unadilla township farms.—Pinckney Dispatch.

Manchester—Many years ago when the government laid out what was termed the Detroit-Chicago "military" road running along the south line of this township, it was to be a six-foot or 100-foot road, but we do not believe that width was maintained, at least it does not appear to be wider than other roads—four rods. Up to the present time perhaps it has made very little difference. When vehicles were drawn by horses that was wide enough but since the advent of motor vehicles 100 feet is none too wide.—Enterprise.

Stock in the Ford Motor Company

SMOOTH stock salesman who recently worked in this community used this argument to sell his stock: that if a person had invested $5,000.00 in the original stock of the Ford Motor Company that he would be worth today from 10 to 12 million dollars.

This salesman's argument may have been good, but what about the securities he sold? Investors now find them to be absolutely worthless.

Remember this, that while all the salesman's arguments may be essentially true, the securities he is trying to sell you may be the kind that need investigation.

BEWARE OF RABIES HUNTING SQUIRREL

Medical Authorities State Many of the Little Game Animals Are Afflicted.

The following clipping from the Lansing Capitol News of October 7 was received by W. F. Kantlehner from his brother, William, of Lansing, and will be of interest to readers of The Standard:

"As a result of proof that a little wire terrier dog owned by John Wilson Dodge, had rabies, Mr. Dodge and two members of his family are now in Ann Arbor taking treatment at the Pasteur Institute there.

"Last Saturday afternoon Mr. Dodge was sitting in a swing near his cottage at Pine lake. Suddenly he noticed that the little dog was running about the yard, snapping and acting queerly. Two or three times the animal ran between Mr. Dodge's legs, snapping as he ran, although he did not bite him. The dog also ran up to Mrs. Dodge and other ladies who were about to go in bathing.

"Shortly afterward, and before the dog had bitten anyone, he was shot, and upon the advice of Dr. William W. Thorburn, Lansing veterinarian surgeon, the dog's head was sent to Ann Arbor for examination. The result was that the dog was declared to have had the rabies and the Dodge family went to Ann Arbor immediately for treatment.

"Medical authorities at Ann Arbor declared in a letter that Dr. Thorburn received today, that in all probability the dog had been bitten by a squirrel and inoculated in that way. It stated further that many squirrels are afflicted with rabies this year, careful in shooting them as any blood that touches a sore will be apt to cause rabies inoculation. They also warn the people of Michigan that it is exceedingly dangerous to eat squirrels this year."

SCHOOL NEWS

In other words, do not bring your children up to be leaders, and expect them to stay at home. Let them reach for greater heights.

Lapeer—John Kowalski, bank rober, pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the Metamora State Savings bank, June 2. Judge Williams sentenced him to from 10 to 20 years in Jackson, with recommendation of 10.

Muskegon—Joseph H. Castenholz, for three years mayor of North Muskegon, has resigned. The mayor says he does not believe he should serve longer as it is necessary for him to spend the winters on his ranch in California.

Detroit—W. J. Doughty, president of the Detroit Air Cooled Car company, has announced acquisition of property at Wayne, 18 miles from Detroit, where production of the new car will be started in the near future. The property comprises about 14 acres.

Pontiac—A decrease of state taxes in Oakland county of $85,000 for the winter collection is contained in the assessment received Oct. 4. The total is $545,955, as against $631,665. The amount of county and road taxes is to be determined by the board of supervisors.

Howell—Mary Agnes Funsch, Brighton school teacher, suffered fractures of both her legs, internal injuries and a fracture of the skull when she was hit by a truck, while on her way to school. She was hit as she alighted from another vehicle, and was hurled through the air 30 feet.

Howell—The engine of the threshing machine owned by Park Braydon and operated at the George Turner farm, five miles north of Howell, blew up and Louis Latson, the engineer, was badly scalded. The explosion set fire to the farm buildings which were destroyed with a loss of several thousand dollars.

Ludington—Claiming rights under an old partnership agreement and a contract with this city in regard to the factory property, Ben Homel took forcible possession of the Ludington Garment Co. plant, engaging employees to retain possession. Homel was formerly a member of the concern and is now proprietor of a rival local shirt factory.

Big Rapids—The Masonic Temple
dedication ceremonies at Middleville were attended by the only surviving charter member, S. G. Webster of Big Rapids. Fifty-six years ago Mr. Webster, with about seven others, organized the Middleville chapter. He was the first senior warden under the dispensation, and first secretary after the chapter was granted.

Owosso—A value of $5,000 is placed on the affections of Mrs. Ethel Riegle, of Cornum, by her husband, Herman Riegle, in a suit now on trial in circuit court. Riegle is suing Clifford Ladd, a musician, charging that Ladd stole Mrs. Riegle's love. The Riegles were married in 1914 and lived happily, the husband says, until a year ago, when Ladd came into his wife's life.

Ann Arbor—After losing the first round of her legal fight to be reinstated in the Michigan state normal college at Ypsilanti, from which she was expelled last March, Miss Alice Tanton, of Detroit, through her attorney, Walter Nelson, has applied for an extension of time in which to apply to the supreme court for a writ of certiorari. Judge George Sample granted 60 days' extension.

Kalamazoo—Southwestern Michigan is facing its greatest nut harvest in 10 years, according to reports from farmers and members of nutting parties. The supply of walnuts, butter-nuts and hickory nuts especially will be plentiful. There are also hazel nuts in abundance. Trees that line the highways in all directions are loaded with nuts and thousands of bushels already have fallen to the ground.

Dowagiac—Chapel services will be restored at the Dowagiac High School in an effort to improve the behavior of the student body, the board of education has decided. Since school reopened for the fall term members of the board of education, teachers and parents have noted a growing spirit of unruliness among the students—a spirit that led to a class fight in which considerable property was destroyed and 14 students were arrested.

Pontiac—There is no race suicide in the home of Jay Charron, Royal Oak Township carpenter, who is the father of 31 children, 19 of whom are living. Charron is a native of Ottawa, Can., and has made his home in this state five years. Members of the Charron family range in ages from 1 to 32 years. Charron has had two wives.
The first died after bearing 13 children in 12 years. The second Mrs. Charron has given birth to 18 children.

Traverse City—A bass lure, forgotten and left floating on Silver Lake, attracted the attention of a sea gull,
and when B. F. Brace pulled the lure in he had a bird. The gull was hooked harmlessly and Brace extracted the hook without harming the bird. On its leg he found an aluminum band marked "Notify Blo. Survey. No.
292,257." Mr. Brace has notified the United States Biological Survey of his find. The bird, when released, took the air uninjured.

Muskegon—The graves of unknowns and others buried in the Potter's Field at Oakwood Cemetery, Muskegon, are to receive needed care. The city commission, in its budget for next year, provided $7,000 for improving the Potter's Field. This portion of the commission, where unknown dead and others who were unable to purchase lots were buried, is to receive the same care as other graves in the cemetery. The Board of Health and Welfare which has charge of the cemetery recently contended that neglect of the Potter's Field showed poor citizenship.

She was faintly conscious of a gag thrust into her mouth, of being carried, struggling, out of the store, of being lifted into the rig. Then she revived to find herself huddled upon the floor, her father bending over her with his wrists tied, and mumbling in her ear. The engineer, seated in front of them, was driving furiously along the trail southward. Hackett, with one leg thrust out on either side of the vehicle, was wiping the blood from his face.

Desperate as she was, Molly would have tried to leap from the rig but for her father. She heard him continue mumbling; and at length the meaning of his words reached her brain, and the horror of them numbed her and repressed all thought of fighting.

"It'll be all right, my lass," the old man was muttering. "They won't hurt ye no more. They're taking us to Tom Bowyer. I reckon! He's bested us. We'll have to give in. We'll make the most of it."

The old man shook with fear, but he laid his hand caressingly upon her head. And afterward Molly recalled that gesture, and remembered that it was his right one.

At the time she thought nothing. She lay back with her head against the seat, resolved to husband her strength for a more desperate struggle later, if need be. Her dress was rent, her hair fell to her waist. Rain had begun to fall; the horses, lashed incessantly, tore madly through the darkness, and the rig swayed dangerously from side to side.

Molly's thoughts ran on as fiercely. They were taking her to Bowyer, then! But Bowyer was at Cold Junction, and surely he could not harm her there! And he was taking her father. She must remain at his side and protect him. She sat passively upon the floor, hearing the frenzied babbling of the old man, and soothing him with one hand stretched out upon his.

But this was not the way to Cold Junction. This led toward Chain of Lakes, where several fishing clubs had purchased ground and water rights and set up camps. Her heart sank. She caught at Hackett's arm.

"Where are you taking us?" she pleaded. "Won't you let us go back? I'll say nothing if you let us go—I'll say nothing!"

Hackett grinned at her and tried to put his arm about her. She struck out.

"Bring Her In!" He yelled to Hackett. At him, and with an oath, he pushed her back violently into the bottom of the rig.

She gathered all her courage to wait. And the waiting was not long. The upland was surmounted, and a lake came into sight, a neck of land, and the dark outlines of camp buildings, upon it. A light showed in a window. Chambers pulled up the horses.

He leaped to the ground and, catching McDonald by the arm, pulled him roughly out of the vehicle. He hammered fiercely upon the door, which opened. Tom Bowyer appeared on the threshold. The factor began to tremble. Bowyer pulled him unceremoniously inside.

"Bring her in!" he yelled to Hackett. The outlaw caught Molly by the waist and swung her to the ground. She tried to break from him, but Bowyer, having thrust McDonald inside, snatched her from Hackett's grasp and, picking her up bodily, carried her into the lighted room.

Bowyer deposited the girl on the divan, went out and pushed McDonald in after her. Outside Molly heard a fierce altercation in progress—Bowyer's threatening tones, Hackett's sal-len answers and Lee Chambers' querulous whine.

Presently the two men went out and Molly heard the horses being led away. She tried to adjust her torn dress, to fasten up her hair. Bowyer came back.

"Now we'll have a few words to gether," he said, leaning at Molly.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wilton carried the dead man into his room and laid the body on the bed. His face was set like flint. In this he traced the work of Bowyer; but the tool, Lee Chambers, was the object of his immediate vengeance.

Before anything else he must discover the motive of the burglary. He opened the safe, which he had shut, and went through the papers very deliberately. He was astonished to find that everything appeared intact and just as he had left it.

Wilton could not understand it. He tried to figure it out. He had already come to the conclusion that the fire had been started with the purpose of drawing himself and those in the vicinity away from the office, while the burglary was being committed. But why had it failed? And what had Chambers been after?

He must have known that there was no money in the safe. The men's pay came up monthly by special messenger, and was handed out the same evening. It would arrive on the Monday. Chambers could not have been after spoil of that kind.

Wilton looked through Joe's papers again. Everything seemed intact, and nothing had even been tampered with. It must have been that Chambers took fright after the murder.

Suddenly Andersen came running across the smoking ground, followed by some half-dozen of the engineers. The foreman came panting up to the door of the shack.

"The men are crazy drunk, Mr. Carruthers, and they're planning to attack the office!" he gasped. "Somebody's been telling them the safe's full of money and that they're going to be laid off because of the fire."

Wilton reflected a moment, while the engineers gathered anxiously about him.

"They can't open the safe," said Wilton. "At least, there's only one man can, and he's been at it already. No, never mind what I mean! I don't want bloodshed. I'll open it and show it to them." He turned to one of the engineers. "Take four men with you and hurry to the store and see that no harm comes to Miss McDonald and her father," he ordered. "And take this," he added, picking the revolver out of the drawer and handing it to him.

"You'd better come too, Mr. Carruthers," the man suggested.

"No, I'll stay here," said Wilton. "Hurry!"

that knocked him senseless. He stooped, took the revolver and turned and faced his assailants.

"Now, men," he said crisply. "I've told you that you shall examine the safe, and I'll keep my word. Three of you enter. The rest will wait outside."

After a pause three of the workmen came forward uncertainly. Wilton took them inside the shack, opened the safe door and took out the contents, package by package.

"Satisfied there's no money?" he asked.

"I guess that's so," admitted the leader of the men, reluctantly.

"Then get out," said Wilton, driving them toward the door.

The three rejoined their companions and, with sullen mutterings, the workmen lurched away, aimlessly, and totally unable to unite on any further plan for aggression now that their leader was gone. Andersen and one of the engineers picked up Tongway and brought him into the shack. The man was still unconscious. However, he showed signs of coming to shortly.

"Jules is dead," said Wilton quietly. "Jules dead?" shouted Andersen. "Murdered. It was Lee Chambers. He must have been hanging round the camp. He got into the safe, too, but was scared away before he took any thing. Come inside!"

At the sight of the dead man on the bed Andersen swore softly.

"He must have been with those two liquor peddlers," said Andersen. "I guess they set the fire, all right."

"I guess they did," said Wilton. "And I want you to go on to the next camp and telephone in to Clayton and get the police up here right away."

"I done it, Mr. Carruthers," said Andersen. "You see, sir, just as soon as the fire began I seen that gasoline on the engine sheds. And I'd heard the men talking, because I picked up a little of their language. I knew there was trouble coming, and I phoned Mr. Quain. He said he'd get an engine and come right up with some of his men."

"Well done!" said Wilton. "We'll have this man for them, at any rate."

Tongway stirred, muttered and suddenly sat up on the floor, looking at his captors in bewilderment. Wilton quietly took the revolver out of his pocket and walked toward him.

"I'm going to ask you a few questions, Tongway," he remarked in a casual tone. "You'll find it to your advantage to answer them. Who sent you here?"

"Tongway broke into a short laugh. "You think dey tell that to me?" he sneered. "Jim Hackett don't tell me no'tings. He say you got de job—you do it!"

"You came with Hackett; but what was the game? You were told to sell liquor round the camp and make the workmen drunk and discontented. I guess you have an idea whom you were working for, besides Jim Hackett, eh, Tongway?"

"Maybe I do," muttered the outlaw. "I guess you shoot me unless I say Mr. Bowyer, eh?"

The parry was effective. "You came here with Hackett and Lee Chambers to fire the camp," said Wilton. "Lee Chambers' job was to steal papers from the safe while we were fighting the fire. You were going to meet somewhere afterward. Where was it?"

The man burst into scornful laughter. "You don't bluff me," he jeered. "I guess you don't want to be charged wit' another murder, eh?"

"Do you?" asked Wilton.

"How's dat? You don't fix no murder on me."

"Come here!" said Wilton, taking him by the arm and leading him to the door of the bedroom.

The moon, sloping in the west, threw a flood of light on the white face of Jules, showing the crushed skull and Tongway, screamed and started away, the blood-clots that stained the pillow. Tongway screamed and started away, but Wilton held him fast.

"What you want to know?" babbled the outlaw.

"Where were you three going to meet afterward?"

"In de clubhouse of de fishing camp at Chain of Lakes, twelve miles south," groaned Tongway, sinking back against the wall.

"That's where we'll find them," said Andersen.

Wilton handed him the revolver. "You'll guard your prisoner, and hand him over to the police when they arrive," he said.

Then he saw men running toward the shack, and stepped outside. It was the party whom he had sent to the portage.

"They're gone!" panted one of them.

"Gone? What do you mean?" shouted Wilton.

"Miss McDonald and the factor. They went to bed last night. Now—they're not there. There's been foul work done, and a fight. Her room is all in confusion, the bedclothes dragged into the store, a pitcher smashed to pieces."

Andersen pulled at Wilton's sleeve. "We'll catch the horses at the muskeg," he said. "You stay here. It's our job, sir."

"No, it's my job, Andersen," answered Wilton, "and, by G—d, it'll be a thorough one!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Wilton Rides Alone.

He ran down toward the swamp, followed by the party of engineers. The horses, released during the fire, were grazing along the edge; they were wary, however, and would not let themselves be approached. For some minutes the men made fruitless efforts to surround them.

However, Wilton managed to catch the mane of a big draught-horse which had been in the front row of the grading yokes and, despite its clumsy appearance, had taken the saddle and had a tolerable action.

But hardly had he made sure of it by a grasp on the mane and upper lip than the remainder, snorting and flourishing their heads, dashed through the corral and galloped full speed toward the lake.

"We'll be with you in a minute, Mr. Carruthers!" shouted one of the men as they went in pursuit.

But Wilton, without answering, had sprung on the beast's back and, leaning forward, caught the broken halter and guided it across the swamp. He had no doubt that the outlaws who had set the fire were responsible for Molly's abduction and, if the trail led up to Bowyer, as he was sure it would, God help Bowyer!

In a couple of minutes he had put on the saddle and tightened the girth, bridled the animal and was riding hard along the southward trail, unarmed.

Meanwhile the rest of the party spent a fruitless half-hour trying to catch horses. At length, after a consultation, they hurried back to the camp, collected a few more Canadians and Americans, and started out after Wilton, leaving a half-dozen to keep the workmen in check.

In the shack Tongway stared apathetically at Andersen, who sat with the revolver in his hand, keeping watch over his captive.

"You think I kill dat feller, eh?" he demanded after a while.

"I dunno, my friend," answered Anderse. "If you did, I guess you'll swing for it, all right."

"See here! Jim Hackett told me to come here an' tell de men dere's money in de safe, an' dey're fools to be worked like dogs and den be laid off because de company's busted. Dat's all I know. I told dem to get der pay what was coming to dem."

"Possibly," said Andersen. "You was a fool to do it, though. That story's for the police; it ain't for me. You can tell the inspector when he gets here."

"See here! You let me go!" yelled Tongway. "I didn't do no'ting. What for you arrest me?"

"Boss's orders," said Andersen, gruffly. "That'll be enough. Set down like a good feller, now."

"You lie! I tell you I didn't do dat!" screamed Tongway, sinking back into his chair and shuddering.

They watched each other for some time. It was beginning to grow light. Suddenly the trample of horses was heard outside. Then Inspector Quain appeared at the door of the shack, accompanied by four mounted constables.

"Had considerable trouble, eh?" he said, dismounting and casting a glance about him at the burned-out buildings and the still burning sheds.

"That fire was set by enemies of the Mississippi," shouted one of the engineers. "And we've got one of the men in there!" He pointed toward the shack.

Quain turned to his men, who were awaiting the order to dismount. "Round up those men in their bunk-houses and keep the lot of 'em under guard!" he said, pointing toward the groups of laborers that had gathered

ARMY IN NEED OF LIEUTENANTS

Examination in September Designed to Meet Demands of New Appropriation Bill.

ARE GIVEN CHOICE OF BRANCH

Scarcity of Officers Means Every Man Who Passes, Should Get Commission—Regulations Provide Liberal Exemptions.

Washington. — Examinations conducted by the War department to fill up the ranks of the second lieutenants among 1,771 officers required by the new army appropriation bill will be started throughout the country early in September. The number of second lieutenants now with the colors is exceptionally small, so that it is expected that every man who qualifies will receive a commission.

Appointments will be tendered successful candidates as soon as practicable after December 31, 1922. These appointments will be made in all branches except the judge advocate general's department. It is the policy of the War department to appoint an officer in the branch of his choice, if possible. For this reason candidates will be asked to express their preference.

Preliminary examinations will be conducted to determine the physical, moral and mental qualifications of applicants in order to avoid inconveniences and unnecessary expense both to the candidate and the government.

Subjects Embraced.

The elementary portion of the final examination embraces the subjects of history, grammar, geography, arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry and physics. The advanced part of the examination consists of a large number of subjects, including mathematics, advanced mechanics, surveying, languages, literature, electricity, chemistry, law and minor specialties. Examination is required in but three of the subjects of the advanced group, these to be selected by the candidate.

Candidates for appointment in the air service, engineers, signal corps and ordnance department are required to satisfy certain technical requirements, either by examination or by having graduated from technical schools.

The regulations provide liberal exemptions from examination in various subjects according to education, training and experience of the candidate. The granting of exemptions has been placed entirely in the hands of the examining boards and requests for exemption cannot, therefore, be considered by the War department.

Where to Apply.

Application blanks may be secured from the commanding general of the corps area in which the candidate lives. All information concerning the examinations may be obtained from the same source or from the adjutant general of the army.

The location of the various corps area commanders is as follows:

First corps area—Army base, Boston, Mass.
Second corps area—Governor's Island, New York.
Third corps area—Standard Oil building, Baltimore, Md.
Fourth corps area—Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.
Fifth corps area—Columbus barracks, Ohio.
Sixth corps area—1819 W. Pershing road, Chicago, Ill.
Seventh corps area—Army building, Omaha, Neb.
Eighth corps area—Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.
Ninth corps area—The Presidio of San Francisco, Cal.

WORK AGAINST HOG CHOLERA

EXTENDED TO OTHER STATES

The United States department of agriculture this year extended its cooperative hog-cholera control work to South Dakota, Washington, New Mexico, and West Virginia, making a total of 34 states in which work is being done in co-operation with state authorities. Co-operation among the different agencies is now at its best, and is therefore more effective than ever.

The object of the work with the various states is to prevent and control outbreaks of hog cholera and to prevent the spread of the infection and to reduce losses.

During the year, hog cholera has been kept well under control, but special care must be taken in October, November, and December, when usually there is an increase in its prevalence. Farmers will save more hogs and prevent disastrous losses if they do not delay reporting immediately to the state veterinarian, the county agricultural agent, the representative of the Bureau of Animal Industry, or local veterinary practitioner any suspicious cases of sickness among their hogs. Anti-hog cholera serum is not a cure, but a preventative treatment, and should be applied as soon as possible when the disease appears in the herd or in the neighborhood. The preventative treatment is a good insurance against losses from hog-cholera.

Be an expert on one thing and the world will forgive you for what you don't know about the rest.
