EDITORIAL COMMENT

TEAM WORK GETS THINGS

"We have enough men here, if we work together to do most anything we set out to do for the good of the community." This remark in substance, was made by R. D. Walker, president of the Brotherhood of the Congregational church, while addressing the members present at the meeting Thursday evening.

There is a whole lot of truth in that statement, and it has been demonstrated again and again, especially in the various drives during the war period. So many things have been put across by team work that it seems there is no limit to what can be accomplished.

At the Brotherhood meeting there were perhaps two dozen men. Suppose these men wanted to obtain some object for the good of the community and they buckled right down to business, worked in sympathy and harmony, what would stop them from gaining their object? Why, nothing. But let there be discord among the men, let them see-saw and step out of team work, practically nothing could be accomplished.

"What is the biggest detriment to a community?" was asked of a body of business men in a town recently by an expert on salesmanship. When the local men failed to respond, they were told, first and foremost the self-satisfied business man and the self-satisfied citizen. Contentment, said the expert, breeds stagnation, and let the people of a community rest contented with conditions as they exist, the community is bound to go backward. It will be impossible to keep abreast of the rapidly moving times, with the constantly changing methods of doing things, if we are contented.

The business man that is complacently satisfied with conditions as they are can not expect his business to grow. The church, school or society that is satisfied with the way things are will retrograde beyond a doubt, and the community that is contented and satisfied with its environment will remain just where it is until a new generation pulls it out of the rut.

Yes, a score or less of men who will put their shoulders to the wheel and push altogether could accomplish great things in a community and not even the habitual knocker could stop progress under such conditions.

FARM LEADERS URGE

STATE INCOME TAX

According to a communication received this week, the Michigan State Farm Bureau, the Michigan State Grange and other farm organizations are urging their members to vote yes on the proposed state income tax measure which will appear on the ballots in November. Such a measure, continues the communication, would place on the tax rolls an enormous wealth in stocks, bonds and other intangible property paying practically no state tax at present and would thereby relieve the enormous tax burden being carried by farm and town real estate, the farm organizations declare.

According to the Farm Bureau, five to ten billion dollars in stocks and bonds and other intangible property in Michigan is paying no state tax. On the other hand five billion dollars in farm and town estate, less than half the wealth of the state, has been carrying the entire annual state tax of $20,000,000. Hence, farmers hold that a state income tax at a fair and reasonable rate, would greatly relieve the heavy tax burden carried almost solely by real estate and would more justly distribute the tax burden.

Over $500,000 worth of corn was grown by the 29,000 young farmers who were members of boys' corn clubs last year, according to reports to the United States department of agriculture.

TIME LIMIT FOR FILING

CLAIMS FOR VETS' TRAINING

Chicago, October 18.—The district office of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau at Chicago, Illinois, announces that the last day for filing claims for federal vocational training is December 16, 1922. Every disabled ex-service man or woman who feels that he or she is entitled to government training must make application for same prior to the above date.

The act of congress making appropriations to supply deficiencies in appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, and prior fiscal years and for other purposes, approved June 16, 1921, contains the following provisions:

"That any person entitled under the provisions of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, as amended, to take vocational training must make application therefor within eighteen months from the date of the approval of this Act."

No applications for vocational training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, can, therefore, be considered unless such applications are submitted prior to December 16, 1922. The application for vocational training of any disabled ex-service person will be interpreted to mean written application or communication from such person expressing a desire for vocational training. In other words a letter from a service man bearing his signature and stating that he wishes to make application for training will be sufficient to insure him of consideration of his claim.

All men and women who served in the armed forces of the United States during the World War, and who incurred a disability either through wounds or disease, due to service, which would prevent their "carrying on" in their pre-war occupations, are entitled to government training. Any applications and any information concerning same should be addressed to the District Office, U. S. Veterans' Bureau, 111 N. Canal street, Chicago, Illinois, or to the nearest sub-district office.

JUDGING TEAMS OF STATE PLACE HIGH

Students and Club Members Are Near Top at St. Paul Dairy Show.

East Lansing, Mich.—Student and club judging teams from Michigan were well up toward the top in competition with 20 states at the National Dairy Show at St. Paul, Minn., on Oct. 9. Results have just been received at East Lansing.

The team composed of senior agricultural students from M. A. C. placed eighth in the field of 20 in judging all breeds. Lynn Heatley of North Branch was eighth among 60 individuals in judging all breeds, while Waino Hell of Ironwood was fourth in judging Jerseys. Other men on the student team were Ralph Kidder and Paul Barrett, both of Jamestown, N. Y.

The Michigan boys' team placed eleventh in the judging of all breeds. The contest was won by Maryland. Donald Kline of Genesee county was fifth among individuals. Heath Holden of Oakland county was first in judging Holsteins, while Kline was fourth. Theodore Knopf of Lenawee county was fourth in judging Jerseys. The Michigan team as a whole was second in the Jersey competition.

To protect growing plants from the strong winds which occur in Guam during certain parts of the year, the Federal agricultural experiment station on that island reports the successful introduction of the use of the pigeon pea, planted around the garden in double rows. It makes a thick growth, reaching a height of 10 to 15 feet, bears large quantities of edible peas, and is effective without replanting for two or three years.

MICHIGAN GROWER'S WHEAT WINS FIRST

C. D. Finkbeiner of Clinton carries Off Honors in Show at Wichita, Kansas.

East Lansing, Mich.—First prize in the class for soft winter wheat was won by a Michigan grower at the International wheat show at Wichita, Kan., according to word received here. He is C. D. Finkbeiner of Clinton, a member of the Michigan crop association. His entry consisted of one bushel of certified Red Rock wheat.

In a special class for wheat of any variety shown by persons making their first entry at Wichita, Mr. Finkbeiner with another bushel of Red Rock won third. This was in competition with hard winter and spring wheats from all over the continent as well as wheats of the same class as Red Rock. He will enter his wheat in the International Hay and Grain show at Chicago next December. Red Rock wheat is the variety developed by Prof. F. A. Spragg, M. A. C. plant breeder. It has proved a favorite not only in Michigan but also with growers of several surrounding states.

STATES TO SAVE FREIGHT ON

SURPLUS WAR MATERIAL

The various western states will save considerable money in payment of freight on surplus war material through new rates that have been secured by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture. Large quantities of material are still being received by the bureau and allotted to the states for use in road construction.

Recently, through representation of the bureau as to the character of the material and the use to which it is to be put, considerably lower rates have been granted. On transcontinental shipments, motor vehicles now take a rate of 60 cents per hundred, against a former all-rail rate of $5.35; machinery, 60 cents per hundred, and similar reductions on other classes of material.

These rates have been effective only a short time but have been immediately reflected in increased requisitions from western states.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS TO HOLD BIG STOCK SALE

On Saturday, Oct. 21, the Holstein pure bred cattle breeders of this county will stage the biggest sale of pure bred cattle ever held in Washtenaw county, at the Ann Arbor fair grounds, where approximately 100 head of Holstein cattle will be sold. Many prominent local breeders of Holsteins will have cattle in the sale. Among the larger ones are Wm. B. Hatch, who will sell over 30 head, being practically a dispersal of the Hatch herd. Bazley stock farm, R. J. Bird &amp; Son, Garth M. Beckington are also large contributors. Some of the more prominent consignors from other parts of the county are Leon F. Stautz, Manchester; R. B. Waltrous, Chelsea; Wm. Austin, Saline; Huron Hill farm; I. H. Riggs, Elmer Riggs, all of Belleville.

R. Austin Backus, a prominent eastern pedigree expert, will act as sales manager.

The sale is being held under the auspices of the Washtenaw County Holstein-Friesian Cattle Breeders club which is an organization consisting of all breeders of pure bred Holsteins in Washtenaw county and the western part of Wayne county. Glenn Bird is president and L. A. Seamans is secretary. This year's sale is the fifth annual one to be held by the club. Former sales were held at Scotney Brothers' Ypsilanti farm and Stoneacres farm.

This will be the first sale of stock held on the new fair grounds and the officials are looking for a large and enthusiastic crowd.—Ypsilanti Record.

COPIED PRACTICES OF BIRDS

Man in His Attempted Conquest of the Air Has Only Imitated the Feathered Creatures.

Now that man has practically conquered the problem of flying, it is interesting to observe that he actually learned this in the same way as did the birds themselves.

But birds were originally not birds at all, but belonged to the reptile family, and acquired wings through a long series of changes in the forward part of the body. These reptiles could swim, and this is the nearest approach to actual flying there is.

The first fossil bird on record appears to have had quill feathers between the legs and the body, being a combination of bird and reptile. These feathers and tail enabled it to sail through the air. Continued practice of this sailing would have a tendency to affect the scales on the body of the reptile through friction with the air, causing them to split and become fuzzy.

Scientists agree upon this, but they do not all stand together upon the question of the probable manner in which flying was first attempted, remarks the Detroit News. Some think that these creatures learned to fly by springing upward from the ground, others say that they started from the top of a tree or hill and sailed downward. It probably was practiced in a downward direction from a height, and the cumbersome creatures gradually learned from moving their wings to steady themselves in sailing downward. Afterward they found that by continued flapping they could also rise. Man, in learning to fly, also imitated the birds in this respect, for he started where the birds did. His first success with the flying machine was in "gliding" from a height downward, and, too, learned how to start from the ground and rise.

PIT OF REMARKABLE DEPTH

Strong Belief Held in English County That "Eldon Hole" Is Absolutely Bottomless.

Far from habitation, on a hillside in the moors of Derbyshire, England, lies a dreadful chasm in the rock. The chasm is of no great width, but has a sheer descent to a tremendous depth. This is the bottomless pit of "Eldon Hole," regarded for centuries as unfathomable. The gap is surrounded by a low stone wall, and a projecting ledge at one end enables the adventurous investigator to peer down into the gloomy depths. For ages the chasm was regarded as a terrible place, popularly supposed to lead directly to infernal regions. A gruesome story relates that 800 years ago a man was lowered into the cleft to a depth of 800 feet. When the unfortunate fellow was hauled up again he was a raving maniac, and died eight days later. For centuries the place was regarded with superstitious awe and no real attempt was made to find the bottom until about 1700, when one writer stated that half a mile of rope had failed to reach it. As the whole district is honeycombed with holes and crevices, it is probable that the chasm of "Eldon Hole" leads to a maze of underground passages.

Ancient Advertisement.

A drinking cup was recently sold at London, belonging to Sir Arthur Evans' collection, which is chiefly interesting because on it in Greek is an inscription claimed to be the first known advertisement. It runs rather plaintively: "Made by Epsilon, let the buyer remember." For the Twentieth century buyer, it is not a question of remembering, but of endeavoring to trace the history of one whose work must be more than 2,000 years old. Epsilon is believed to have been an artist of Sidon, the principal city of Phoenicia for many centuries, and even in the Middle Ages a place of considerable importance. Now it is little more than a village, its glory having faded as completely as the fame of its citizen, whose request, nevertheless, to be remembered, has not remained wholly unheeded.

Domestic Staff.

"Oh, goodness gracious mercy, I'm most distracted! I've looked for it everywhere and I simply can't find it!" "What's the matter?" "My key!"

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of parks, boulevards, public places, streets, alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated, but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will empower the legislature to authorize municipalities to acquire land and property in excess of that needed for parks, boulevards, streets, etc., and issue bonds for the payment of same.

A proposed amendment to section 3 of Article X to read as follows:

Sec. 3. The legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation, except on property paying specific taxes, and taxes shall be levied on such property as shall be prescribed by law. Provision may be made by law for a tax of not to exceed four per centum upon or with respect to the net gains, profits and incomes, from whatever source derived, which tax may be graduated and progressive and which may provide for reasonable exemptions. For the purposes of such tax, property and persons, firms and corporations, upon which such tax may operate may be classified. Provided, That the legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule of taxation for such property as shall be assessed by the state board of assessors, and the rate of taxation on such property shall be the rate which the state board of assessors shall ascertain and determine is the average rate levied upon other property upon which ad valorem taxes are assessed for state, county, township, school and municipal purposes.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will authorize the enactment of an income tax law providing for a tax of not to exceed four per centum upon net gains, profits and incomes, and providing for a classification of property and persons upon which such tax may operate.

A proposed amendment to Article VIII, by adding section 30, to read as follows:

Sec. 30. The legislature may provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts, and confer power and authority upon them to engage in work of internal improvements in connection therewith.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will authorize the legislature to provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts with power to engage in work of internal improvements in connection therewith.

AN EDITOR'S OPINION OF

"OVER THE HILL"

(By William A. Allen)

Witnessing the screen version of Will Carleton's "Over the Hill," one can understand why it played one solid year in New York city, and was there seen by more than 1,000,000 people. It pictures the universal family, and, best of all, the universal mother.

Sedate men, austere men, old and young men last night felt the tremendous urge of its emotion and its sparkling shafts of humor as a harp responds to the musician who plays it, and tears—real, water tears—rolled down many a cheek which had not been so affected since childhood.

The picture is a ten-reel affair, wholesome, clean, inspiring. It is not a great spectacular extravaganza calling for massive settings, gilded scenes or an expensive cast; yet with its homely story, a little old-fashioned mother, an affectionate but weak-willed husband, six kids, a dog and a humble home, it has an appeal which sets the other and more pretentious showings in the shade.

There is a Mother's Day feature to it, too, which appeals to welfare workers everywhere; for one is waffled, as it were, on a magic carpet into one's own home, and in the warp and woof of the carpet is woven the silver threads of a mother's "Great sacrificial, unselfish affection for the "bone of her bone and the flesh of her flesh," and through it all there is a song of home that leaves an ache in the heart and a glow in the soul. It brings out the meanness, the pettiness, the cowardice of us; but, thank God, it also shows our fineness, our generosity and our nobility. One cannot help thinking, after seeing the play, that a man whose Christian mother stands up for him at the Gate will be able to carry on a very good argument with St. Peter.

No one should miss "Over the Hill" which appears at the Temple theatre Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 25 and 26.

High Grade Securities

It is very seldom, if ever, that stock salesmen make an effort to sell you securities in old, time tested companies, with a history of satisfactory earnings covering a period of years.

Here is the reason: If they sold you securities of an old established public utility, industrial or railroad company, their commission would only be about $1.50 on each $1,000. On doubtful new promotion and wild cat stocks the salesman's commission often runs as high as $100 or perhaps $150 on each $1,000. That is why they can camp on your trail for days and even weeks to sell you worthless stocks. Have this bank investigate thoroughly before purchasing.

Grand Rapids—Recalling a June night in 1921, when a masked band of men and women forced their way into the bedroom of Nina D. Bennett, dragged her into the open, partially undressed, and pelted her with eggs, the while calling her vile names, a motion to set aside a verdict of $2,000, awarded Mrs. Bennett, was filed in circuit court.

Flint—Experimenting with a strange appearing copper tube he found near a local factory, resulted in the maiming for life of Louis Bancheline, 45 years old. Bancheline found the tube on his way home from work. He attempted to clean it of some substance clogging it. As he probed in the tube, it exploded, tearing both of his hands.

Petoskey—Twelve thousand square miles of Michigan's 2,000 of inland waters have been robbed and polluted until they now are technically known as "barren." James Oliver Curwood, author and conservation advocate, declared at a meeting of conservation delegates here. Eighty per cent of our streams, he declared, have become useless except as disease laden and life-destroying sewerage channels.

Kalamazoo—James Wilson, a farmer, is in a critical condition at a hospital where he was taken after he was gored by a bull, Wilson was walking to the barn when the animal which had never before shown any traces of violence, suddenly charged upon him, knocked him to the ground and gored him. Wilson undoubtedly would have been killed but for the help of two passing boys who set their dog upon the bovine.

Ann Arbor—The annual report of Sheriff A. C. Pack, presented to the board of supervisors, showed that prisoners in the Washtenaw jail had been fed at an average cost of eight cents a meal, during the last year. Reports show that there are 19 other women in Michigan whose fathers served in the Revolution. Mrs. Barrett was given an ovation but was not strong enough to make response.

Bay City—Sensational movies of black hand operations were blamed by Frank Sedlar, of Owosso, for his trouble when he was sentenced to three years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., by Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, for sending black hand letters through the mails. Sedlar pleaded guilty to sending a letter demanding $10,000 to C. D. Bell, general manager of the Owosso Sugar company. The letter made threats against the life of Bell in case the money was not left at the place named, and was signed, "Iron Hand Gang."

Grand Rapids—Beginning a six year cruise in a 16-foot canoe, L. H. Smith left here for the Panama canal. He expects to arrive in 1928. Smith turned out to see Smith as he embarked on his long journey. The first leg of the journey was to the Havens where Smith

Lapeer—By the expenditure of approximately $400,000 for extensions to the Michigan Home and Training School here, the State will soon remove the reproach of failure to care for its sub-normals and dependents. Nine new buildings, to accommodate 775 patients, are near completion and the authorities promise that within 60 days the institution for the first time in many years will be without a waiting list.

Port Huron—Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner, has submitted a report to Governor Grosbeck regarding what might soon become an international question. The British embassy maintains that the local oil refinery located on Black river is seriously polluting the waters of the St. Clair, which marks the boundary between the United States and Canada, to such an extent that farmers near Sarnia, on the Canadian side, are having difficulty in finding a place to water their live stock.

ASK PEDESTRIANS TO KEEP TO LEFT

Strollers on Country Roads Urged to Face Oncoming Traffic in Rambles.

PERILS OF NIGHT ARE BARED

Dark Clothing Often Shuts Man on Street From Gaze of Driver in Automobile—International Road Congress to Meet.

New York—Pedestrians along country roads and those who walk in the streets at night in preference to using the sidewalks can contribute materially toward the reduction of automobile accidents by walking on the left side of the road, facing oncoming traffic, according to D. H. Lewis, acting executive chairman of the American Automobile association.

"Courtesy on the part of the automobile driver demands the use of dimmed lights at night," said Mr. Lewis, "and this factor, while it contributes to the safety of passing motorists, makes it exceedingly difficult for the automobile driver to see a pedestrian walking along the edge of the road in the same direction the car is traveling. This difficulty is increased if the pedestrian happens to be wearing dark clothing. The result is that the driver is practically on top of the pedestrian before the latter becomes visible."

Warning to Pedestrians. "Walking on the left hand side of the road is just as good for the pedestrian and enables him to see the approaching automobile in time to step aside if the motorist does not see him in time to swerve."

"The pedestrian should remember that the rules of the road require the autoist to keep to the right and should contribute to the factor of safety by keeping to that side of the road which best enables him to escape the oncoming car and especially the occasional speed fiend or 'flivverboob' who cares nothing for consequences and speeds regardless of the rights of others, for it has been truly said that whether you were in the right or not does not matter after you are in the hands of the undertaker."

Roads Congress to Meet.

A certain indication that after eight years of war and upheaval the world is beginning to return to a normal state is contained in the announcement that the International Road congress, which ceased operations in 1914 because of the European conflict, is to resume its deliberations early next May at Seville, Spain. The program for what promises to be the greatest and most important conference on highway improvement ever held, has just been received from the office of the general secretary in Paris.

Thousands of delegates, representing national and state governments and good roads associations in the United States, Belgium, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan, France, Great Britain, Italy, Holland, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland, Argentina, Czechoslovakia, Spain, Portugal, Norway, Germany, Yugoslavia, Poland, Austria, Cuba, Chile, Brazil and many other countries, will participate in the congress and exchange views and experiences for mutual benefit. English, French and Spanish have been adopted as the official languages.

UNEARTH COIN OF YEAR 1724

Workmen Excavating Old Headquarters of General Washington Make Interesting Find.

New York—Workmen engaged in excavating on the site of the mansion in Montclair, N. J., that was used by General Washington as his headquarters in the revolution found several old copper coins, one bearing the inscription, "British North America, 1724." Dr. Maurice Cohen, who now owns the property, obtained some of the coins. The workmen were moving a ten-ton boulder from one corner of the property to the site of the Washington headquarters. The boulder will bear a bronze tablet bearing a picture of the old mansion and a suitable inscription placed there by the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution. The old mansion was razed 15 years ago.

Indian Relics Found.

Salina, Kan.—Relics of the days when the Indians roamed the central Kansas prairies are being taken out of the sand pits east of Salina. Bones of large and unnamed animals have heretofore been found in this neighborhood, but these bones that are now being found in the sand pits are unlike anything ever seen here. The most of the specimens have large teeth, well preserved, while others are badly decayed. In addition to the bones many large bullets of lead, flattened by having come in contact with some object, are found.

MORE DAIRY-ALFALFA CAMPAIGNS PLANNED

Clinton, Kent and Genesee Counties to Be Visited During October and November.

East Lansing, Mich.—Three counties of Michigan will be visited in the near future by specialists from the crops and dairy departments at M. A. C. who will put on intensive dairy and alfalfa campaigns reaching to outlying as well as central farm communities of these counties.

The campaign in Clinton county will start on Oct. 23 and continue until Nov. 3. Kent county will be visited beginning Nov. 6, and a similar drive will open in Genesee county on Nov. 20. It is the purpose of agricultural leaders at M. A. C. to carry these campaigns into a number of other counties during the fall and winter months. A year ago a similar series resulted in an immense increased acreage of alfalfa and in a boost to the cow testing association movement in the state.

H. V. Kittle, agricultural agent, is planning the details of the Clinton drive. Local meetings have been scheduled at many points in the county. Two groups of M. A. C. experts co-operate in spreading information regarding better dairy practices and the opportunities offered by alfalfa.

Punishment.

She was only three years old, but she was very vain. After all, age has little to do with vanity.

Her governess found her the most difficult of the three children to manage, and the whole family was surprised when they discovered that the young girl who was hired to wheel the baby out in the park could manage her as easily as if she were a model child.

"How do you do it?" the mother asked one day.

The girl smiled. "She's easy enough to handle," she said. "Made-moiselle always tries to reason with her. That doesn't do any good, because she just turns unthinking ears to her. But when I have her out, if she won't behave, I just take her little curls and tuck them away up under her hat so no one can see them. Then in about two minutes she'll promise to be just as good as gold if I'll only pull them out again."

Books Centuries Old.

Some of England's oldest art treasures, from Durham cathedral's monastic library, were recently brought to London and placed on view at the Victoria and Albert museum. Most of the work in northern English of the earlier Anglo-Irish schools of Lindisfarne and Durham, and the examples of calligraphy and illumination range in dates from the Seventh to the Fourteenth century. Among the manuscripts are two traditionally attributed in the Middle Ages to the venerable Bede, but this ascription is not now accepted. There are, also, several of the books given to the monastery by the Bishops William de St. Carlisle (1080-1093) and Hugh de Pulsey (Pudsey) 1154-1195. Three of the four volumes of Pudsey's Bible, as one of the most splendid in existence, are included in the exhibit.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

It's usually a sign of sick kidneys, especially if the kidney action is disordered, passages scanty or too frequent. Don't wait for more serious troubles. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Chelsea testimony.

Chas. Hyzer, Madison street, says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble and backache. Sharp shooting pains through my kidneys made work a burden and if I stooped I could hardly straighten again. Finally a friend who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results told me to try them and after using them I was soon relieved. Three boxes cured me so I am glad to say Doan's are a fine remedy."

Mr. Hyzer gave the above statement March 1, 1913, and on April 27, 1920, he added: "I am glad to again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and confirm my former statement. The cure Doan's made for me has remained permanent."

about the horses.

The constables drove the Hunkies back toward their quarters. "Two of you'll be enough!" shouted Quinn after them. "The other two—Beckett and James—will dismount and rest their horses. I'll want you chaps!"

"You've had some trouble," said Quinn to Andersen.

"Why, this ain't trouble, inspector," answered the Swede. "You just look inside that room. I guess it ain't the worst, what I told you already."

Quinn strode to the door of Wilton's bedroom, uttered a sharp exclamation and bent over the body of Jules. He came back quickly.

"Who killed that Indian?" he asked.

"Lee Chambers, I guess."

"Tell me what you know."

"Why, all I know is he done some crooked work on the freighting and beat it out of camp before Mr. Carruthers had time to fire him. Last night he came back after the fire, which I guess that feller there knows something about."

"I tell you I don't know nothing!" yelled Tongway, who seemed in the extremity of panic.

"Mr. Carruthers said Mr. Chambers killed Jules there and got into the safe. I dunno no more than that. But—"

Suddenly, with a frenzied scream, Tongway leaped from his chair for the door again. Andersen was just quick enough. He caught him on the door-sill, and the two men struggled furiously. Tongway snatched Andersen's revolver out of his hand. Andersen's hand closed on the outlaw's wrist.

Quinn ran to grasp Tongway's arm, but before he could hold it the struggle ended. For Tongway had got his finger on the trigger and was trying to bring the weapon in line with Andersen's head. Andersen swung the outlaw's arm around, and the bullet, discharged too late, passed through Tongway's left arm.

The spectators, who had gathered outside the shack, had come running in at the sound of the shot. Quinn ordered them out and, taking off Tongway's coat, he cut the sleeve of his shirt away. One of the constables brought him his first-aid case and soon had the wound palmed with iodine and bandaged.

"I'll not need you any further," said the inspector to Andersen. "You'll help keep the men in their bunk-houses, in case of trouble. Take three or four of your own men. I'm going after Carruthers, and I expect to be back by noon."

He called the second dismounted constable and they rode off at a swift pace toward the portage.

CHAPTER XV

Bowyer's Hour.

Bowyer looked the incarnation of insolence and triumph as he stood in the doorway, red-faced, red-haired, like some sleek fox that has put off its habitual cunning because it is at last secure from danger.

His vicious eyes fixed themselves upon the girl's face as she fastened back the hair that hung about her.

"That brute was rough with you," said Bowyer. "But I guess you gave him better than he gave you. I guess he got what he deserved. I told them you weren't to come to any harm. Well, McDonald, they didn't use you too rough, eh?"

"We were brought here by force and violence," said Molly defiantly. "Are we to be kept here in the same way?"

Suddenly Bowyer stepped forward and took her hands. "Molly—listen to me now," he said. "Listen quietly. I'm not going to hurt you. I love you. I've got to have you, Molly. But I want you to love me. Let's forget it all. What'd you say, Molly? Did you ever think of what I've got to offer you?"

She tried to draw her hands away, but he held them tightly, and, remembering her resolution, she stood with them passive in his own.

"What's your answer, Molly?" asked Bowyer.

"Never!" she cried. "You knew that! Did you think I was going to change because you had had me kidnapped and inflicted this outrage upon me?"

Bowyer turned toward the factor. "Maybe she'll obey you, McDonald," he said softly, and something in his tone arrested the girl's attention.

McDonald was gray with fear. He leaped up. "Molly, he means it!" he screamed. "We can't escape him. He'll get you as he's got me. Molly, say 'yes' to him, because he's won. He'll get what he wants, anyway. And it's no shame to see when you're beaten, and to give way."

The sight of the trembling old man went away all the girl's resolve. Her mother's face flashed before her. Her mother's face flashed before her.

"If You Touch Me Again, I'll Kill You!"

Bowyer's ran behind the divan and snatched up a rifle that stood there. She raised the stock above her head with both hands.

"If you touch me again I'll kill you!" she cried.

Bowyer looked at the factor. "Then I'll tell her what I know," he said. "For years I've stood by you and shielded you—"

The factor's hands went up as if he were warding off a blow, and there was the mute appeal of a whipped dog in his eyes. Bowyer went on:

"For years I've protected you from the law. Now I've done with you."

"You can tell me, Tom Bowyer!" cried Molly.

He swung toward her. "I'll tell you, then," he roared. "Your father's a murderer. He's been wanted by the police these twenty years, or more, and he's still wanted. The police don't forget. I knew it from the first. He came to me and asked my help after he'd murdered a man in a common brawl. He wanted to give himself up. I told him not to. I got him his job at the portage, where he'd be secure. I've stood by him, been his friend, protected him. But I'll protect him no more."

He wheeled upon the factor. "Now speak to her again!" he shouted. "You're her father!" There was intense mockery in his tone. "She'll obey you. Ask her if she wants you to swing in the jail-yard at Yorkton while she's on her honeymoon with Will Carruthers!"

With a whimpering cry the factor dropped to his knees and hid his face in his hands. Molly let the rifle fall and shrank back against the wall. A cry broke from her lips.

"It isn't true, father!" she begged, fixing her eyes in terror upon the factor's. "Tell him it isn't true. You didn't kill that man who insulted my mother! And, if you did, you did it to protect her. Tell him it's a lie!"

The factor's whimpering moans were all her answer. They ceased, and for a full minute there was not the least sound in the room. Slowly Molly raised her head, and the look that had come into her eyes at last was one that Bowyer had seen in the eyes of many men and women before. He knew that the time of his triumph had come.

"Unless I marry you, Tom Bowyer," said Molly, "you will betray my father, who trusted you?"

"I'll give him up to justice," Bowyer shouted. "I'll fight with what weapons I've got. Wouldn't any man who was a man fight for what he wanted most of all in the world? If you don't give up, I swear he'll hang. You know what Canadian law is. I swear to you I'll have him hanged in Yorkton inside of six months if you don't agree to what I'm asking of you."

"And if I do agree?" asked Molly, shuddering.

The sudden glance of hope in the factor's eyes went to her heart. But McDonald, crushed under his servitude, had a flicker of manhood after all.

"Don't do it, Molly, lass!" he shouted. "I'll hang!" He turned to Bowyer. "I'll hang!" he shouted, and then his voice broke into a whimper.

"Shut up, you old fool!" said Bowyer, contemptuously. "If you agree, Molly," he said, "the part will all be forgotten. I swear it will. I love you, and I'll be true to you. I'll give you what you want, and I'll give you what you need."

CHAPTER XVI

Under Arrest.

Molly saw it all as if in a dream. The hideous presence of her assailant was still with her. Then she saw Hackett and Bowyer pull pistols from their pockets. And each act was executed in her mind and vision through a mist as if it would never end.

D—n it! You look as if I was asking something awful of you! What's the matter with me? Ain't I good enough for you?"

She looked up, to see Bowyer's red face peering into her own. She shivered, as if with mortal cold.

"I'll marry you," she said.

The slow smile that spread over Bowyer's face was indescribable. He turned to McDonald. "Well, that's settled at last," he said, rubbing his hands together in gloating self-satisfaction. "Get to bed, McDonald! Molly and I will sit up a while and talk over the details of our honeymoon trip. That ain't your business. Maybe we'll do a little love-making on the side, too, but not too rough. I guess I know how to handle a girl!"

He strode toward the door and opened it. The factor stood stock-still for a moment. Then, at Bowyer's call, he stumbled toward it, and Bowyer led him across the passage into another room.

"You'll be comfortable in here, McDonald!" Bowyer shouted, slapping the old man on the back. "And don't you fear for Molly. I'll take mighty good care of her."

There followed his returning footsteps, and the sharp, sudden click of a key. Then came a furious rattling from within. Bowyer turned angrily.

"Go to bed, you old fool!" he shouted. "Didn't I tell you I'd take care of her?"

The rattling ceased, but Molly heard the factor's feet shuffling as he stood ill lamp, and hurried it at their backs.

It struck them fairly, sending them staggering before they had time to fire. Instantly the curtains before the windows were ablaze. A stream of burning oil shot across the floor to the divan, which began burning furiously, filling the room with smoke. Wilton and the two men closed.

There followed a furious struggle. The combatants rolled over and over, stumbling against the burning divan, knocking over the chairs, crashing in to the walls. All the while McDonald hammered at the door and added his shouts to the uproar.

Molly darted across the passage and released him. "They're murdering Will!" she cried. But the old man, staggering out, only shouted distractedly. Molly ran back. Hackett had Wilton by the throat, and, as she entered the room, Bowyer wrenched himself free, raised his pistol, and brought the butt crashing down on Wilton's head. Wilton toppled back into the blazing oil.

Bowyer aimed, but Molly knocked up his arm, and the shot went wild. Bowyer turned upon Molly with a ghastly grin.

"D—n you!" he shouted, raising his pistol to strike her down. McDonald sprang between them, Hackett pulled at Bowyer and dragged him to the door. He whispered in his ear, and Bowyer cursed him. They clinched in the passage.

Molly was unconscious of what was transpiring. She had rushed to Wilton, and, grasping him by the shoulders, pulled him out of the flames. Seizing him in her arms, she began madly beating out the fire that was licking his clothes and hair. She tore off his blazing coat and with it extinguished them. Then, holding his head against her breast, she staggered toward the door through the thick smoke. McDonald at her side.

As she neared it Hackett leaped forward. He pushed the factor violently back and slammed it. An instant later there sounded the click of the key in the lock.

"The window! The window!" shouted the factor.

But that side of the room was a living wall of fire, and they seemed to be trapped hopelessly. The heat was becoming intolerable.

Molly ran behind the blazing divan, picked up the rifle, and drove a smashing blow against the back wall. It cracked; again and again she dashed the stock against it, until a section of the pine planks gave way under her assault.

Together they carried Wilton through into a room behind. Outside it was quite light; a gust of wind came through an open window and fanned the flames to fury. With a roar the fire leaped up the outer walls, and the whole front of the camp was ablaze.

Molly scrambled to the sill, clung there, and dropped. The factor, leaning out, lowered Wilton's body. And he himself dropped to the ground below.

He slid his arm about her waist and bent his red face toward hers. For an instant the girl misunderstood. Then she leaped to her feet, her eyes blazing.

"Get out of my way, Tom Bowyer! If you try to stop me I'll murder you!" she screamed.

She ran round behind the divan, snatched up the empty rifle, and, as Bowyer followed her, brought down the stock with all her strength.

Had it struck his skull it would have knocked him unconscious. But in the nick of time he leaped aside, and it fell across the muscles of his neck and shoulders. With a howl of pain he wrenched the weapon from her hands. He bent her across the face again and again with his fists. He seized her by the hair, twining it in his hand, and, forcing her head back, put his hands over her mouth.

She tried with all the strength she possessed to pry his hands away; the red and swollen face that leered into her own seemed to fill all space, like a huge, evil sun. With all the strength that remained in her she tore at the red hand over her mouth, and bit into it until her assailant yelled with pain. His grasp on her throat loosened for an instant. She drew in a deep gasp of air. Then she saw that the door was open.

Hackett was in the room. He was shouting to Bowyer, who released the half-conscious girl, stood up, and yelled in answer. The outlaw was tugging frantically at his arm. There came the plunge of a heavy body against the door of the camp. Hackett sprang forward, and fell sprawling back under a terrific blow.

Wilton stood on the threshold.

PIPE ORGAN, PIANO AND-VIOLIN RECITAL.

AT METHODIST CHURCH IN CHEL-SEA ON FRIDAY EVENING, OC-TOBER 20, AT EIGHT O'CLOCK.

Mrs. Emma Fischer Cross, teacher of piano at the University School of Music, will give a pipe organ and piano recital at the Methodist church
Friday evening, Oct. 20, with Miss Emilie Mutter, the 12-year old violinist child artist.

Little Miss Mutter has been enthusiastically received wherever she has appeared in concert, displaying a wonderful technique and finished interpretation for a child so young. With Mrs. Cross she has given concerts in Cheboygan and Benzonia recently and in both cities the auditorium was filled to capacity by very appreciative audiences. The Cheboygan Tribune says of Miss Mutter: "Little Miss Mutter played with ease, confidently sure of every tone she wished to produce. Her poise, combined with rare modesty, makes her personality irresistible and her marvelous execution and talent charm all who hear her."

Mrs. Cross has been a pupil of Leochetizky of Vienna, Austria, and has given many concerts on the Pacific coast. A few of her press notices may be mentioned:

Tacoma Daily Ledger: "Mrs. Cross is an artist in the true sense of the word."

Seattle Times: "Mrs. Cross in her solo numbers displayed a clean technique and a warm personality."

Ann Arbor Times: "An accomplished pianist and organist, Mrs.
Cross' program was one of remarkable versatility."

The program Friday night follows:
Organ—(a) "Prelude Heroic," W.
Faulkes; (b) "In Paradisum," Dubois; (c) "Festival Overture," Flagler Violin—(a) "Hungarian Idyll," Kelar Bela; (b) "The Rosary," Nevin-

PARENT TEACHERS ELECT OFFICERS

First Meeting of the Season Held Monday Evening—Refreshments and Social Hour.

The Parent-Teachers meeting held Monday evening was a very successful affair. A very good program was rendered, as follows:

Music—High School Orchestra.
Violin Solo—Mrs. Lattin.
Reading—Doris Foster.
Vocal Solo—Miss Yake.

The newly elected officers of the association are as follows:

President—S. P. Foster.
Vice President—Mrs. E. P. Steiner.
Secretary—Mrs. Jane Harris.
Treasurer—Mrs. Ed Beach.

The new president, Mr. Foster, was called upon to give a speech and he responded, emphasizing the importance of parents co-operating with teachers.

Supt. Clark then gave a short talk in which he outlined some of the ways in which the organization might function. Later the work of the school system last year and the values and results of the new activities introduced were explained. Mr. Clark mentioned the chapel exercises and stated that they had been planned to be of an instructive as well as of an interesting nature. He then spoke of what was accomplished in debating, stating that in the last debate which was with Durand the judges pronounced the contest a very close one and Durand later won second place in the state contest.

The most important of the new activities entered upon was the task of the publishing of the first Senior Annual which was accomplished by the Senior class. This annual cost the Seniors approximately $460. Part of the funds, to the amount of $125, were raised by the Senior play and through bake sales. The remainder was provided by the means of the advertisements given by the business men of Chelsea and through the sale of Annuals. There are still a number of Annuals to be sold and some of the students will make a second canvas of the town in a few days. It is to be hoped that loyal support will be given them, as there still is a deficit of $7.00 to be met and any additional money will go the Athletic association.

for the underclassmen to work to-ciate editors of the Annual staff. It is also an invaluable memento of High School days.

Some of the new activities that Mr.
Clark has planned for this year are the entrance of the school into the Interscholastic Association for dec-lamation and oratory and the organization of a live High School orchestra. Mr. Clark said that little had been done so far this year in athletics as so many of the boys whom it was necessary to have to form a football team were working nights after school and could not give their time. Other boys could not join as their parents objected to their playing football.

Basketball practice starts this week in the Welfare building which has been put in condition by the high school boys and girls. The basket ball season bids fair to be a good one for the school.

Miss Jayne was called upon to give a few remarks and she emphasized the need of home study by high school students.

Refreshments and a social hour closed the meeting.

FORD CUTS $50.00
ON ALL MODELS

Reduction Became Effective at Midnight Monday—Causes Surprise.

At midnight Monday a $50 cut in the price of all models of Ford cars became effective, according to announcement Tuesday by the Ford Motor Co.

The reduction came as a big surprise in the motor industry and was made despite the fact that the company now has orders two months ahead of production.

Notification of the new prices was wired to dealers throughout the country.

Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., issued the following statement:

"The revision in prices is the result of the increased volume of business which our company has enjoyed during the present year, and also to the fact that we now own and operate many of our own sources of raw material, which enables us to continue increasing the quality of our product and at the same time keep the price so low that Ford cars are within the reach of everybody. Our production for 1922 is already in excess of a million, which has been an important factor in bringing down costs. Our present daily output is averaging better than 5,000 cars and trucks, which means a complete Ford car or truck every 5½ seconds of each eight-hour working day."

CARD OF THANKS.
We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for the beautiful floral offerings and kindly sympathy shown us during our recent bereavement;
also many thanks to the K. O. T. M., American Legion and the Masonic Lodge.
