There are about 30 men in the field throughout the state at the present time doing official testing for the disease. The intradermal test is being used now. The first temperature being made 72 hours after the start of the test. In the case of a reaction at the end of 72 hours a second temperature is made at 96 hours and a third at the end of 120 hours. ADOPT RESOLUTION

The following is a resolution adopted at the meeting of the School Officers, held in Ann Arbor October 24:

We, the committee on resolutions on behalf of the Rural School Officers, wish to express our appreciation of the work of the State Normal College for the betterment of the rural schools.

Resolved: That in our judgment the pupils in the eighth grade of a rural school should be given credit, in his yearly work with the final examinations, similar to a pupil in a graded school.

Further: We believe that the Superintendent of Public Instruction should have the power to condemn a school site as he has of condemning a school building.

Further: That in view of the benefit derived from the use of recreative material on the public school, distributed by the state, that the Legislature at its next regular session be asked to appropriate annually to the Division of Physical Education of the Department of Public Instruction for further distribution, the sum of twenty (20c) cents per child of school age for the purposes above mentioned.

Further: We recognize that with the great number of one-room schools that there are in this county and the large number of beginning teachers that annually enter the teaching force, it is impossible for the County School Commissioner to render the assistance to the teachers that is necessary in order to guarantee the results in our rural schools which we desire. Because of this fact we recommend that the County School Commissioner be supplied with at least one Field Assistant who will serve as a Helping-Teacher for the rural schools of the county.

Further: We wish to especially commend the Michigan State Normal College for its efforts in the training of teachers for the country schools. We believe that the state should spare no means to guarantee trained teachers for every country child. That this may be done, training facilities should be provided at our State Normal College as rapidly as the demand increases. Not only should teachers for these schools be provided, persons who because of their experience, their interest in the problem, their superior personality and special preparation are equipped to inspire and guide rural teachers and stimulate better rural life.

Further: We recommend that a copy of these Resolutions be sent to the various candidates for the State Legislature and their attitude toward these recommendations be ascertained.

ROAD TO EASE

A black skinned Algonquin Indian crouches down to the Hudson bay post at Bear island, Ontario. He brings a story about an Eskimo in the far north who has tamed polar bears and trained them to do his heavy teaming.

Big game hunters will doubt it, for the polar bear has a body about as large as a piano box and one of the most ferocious and cunning of all animals.

The incident, however, sets you thinking about the tremendous amount of work that man has passed off on domesticated animals. He has made slaves of horses, cattle, chickens, Eskimo dog, camels, elephants and hosts of others.

Of all these, horses are the most intelligent. Elephants come second. In India they are trained to work all day on such tasks as moving and piling logs.

Any old man can recall when farmers used dogs, running on a treadmill, to churn butter. Horses were similarly used to operate threshing machines.

Man is a parasite.

Until the invention of the steam engine, his existence depended almost entirely on his parasitic use of animals and vegetable life.

The steam engine ushered in a new era of power. Previously, there were few instances of man using power not generated by animals—such as wind moving sailing ships and water-power turning the prayer wheels of India.

Gradually we are shifting from our position as a parasite on animals and vegetable life. The auto is relieving the horse. So are railroads and flying machines. There is talk of food being produced synthetically in laboratories instead of by growing and killing plant life. Where we once preyed exclusively on trees, a form of plant life, for our dwellings, we now turn to brick, concrete and metals like iron.

In school, you studied about the three kingdoms of nature—animal, vegetable and mineral.

Man rose to his state by being a parasite on the animal and vegetable kingdoms. Slowly but surely he is relaxing his grip on this and fastening himself as a parasite on the mineral kingdom. A good illustration is taking oil out of the ground instead of getting it by killing whales and hogs.

It is a peculiar change, taking place without attention. But it is vastly important in the history of mankind, a definite and separate step higher in the cycle of man's existence.

LOADING AND CRIME

Too much leisure! That's the story in brief of the boy bandit ring, of more than one young man's deviation from the narrow way. The boy had more time than he knew what to do with,—fell in with the wrong lot, gambled lightly, got in a little deeper, won a little, experienced the feeling of money in the pocket without effort of earning it, and the job to which he was once devoted, lost its appeal.—The dollars came too slowly, and then one day he slipped.

A man's character may best be judged by the way he spends his leisure time. During that period he demonstrates to the rest of the world what he likes to do more than anything else,—at least, anything at his immediate finger tips. Idle hours are essentially supplemental to the main scheme of life. Idle hours are becomes the side issue instead, it is time to swear off playing golf forever. What do you do with your leisure time?

MARCEL WAVE

Marcel, aged Frenchman celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of his invention of the Marcel wave.

Discover anything to magnify the beauty of women, and you have a short cut to fame and wealth. Marcel, once poor, is a millionaire. Come back to earth 1,000 years from now and "Marcel wave" still will be part of the language.

It's all for the best. The beauty of women, in nature's scheme of things is more important than science and engineering. Reproduction of life is nature's first concern. As a sideline, she lets us erect perishable building projects and invent false philosophies.

PRICES

Senator Capper tells about a certain make of bran, which wholesales at $23 a ton and costs consumers $500 a ton when it reaches them in package form.

The manufacturer would tell you that he has to get the price to cover the high cost of marketing.

There is only one real problem in economics. That problem is distribution—shortening the gap between producer and consumer. The gap, however, steadily widens.

DROWNED

Can you swim? It is as important as knowing how to put out a fire or dodge autos.

Deaths by drowning this year are high. More than 6,000 Americans are drowned a year, reports Metropolitan Life Insurance company. So far in 1922, your chance of drowning is about one in 10,000. Odds in your favor will increase as the summer bathing season has ended.

Are you neglecting to give yourself or children the protection of knowing how to swim.

ARMY

The regular army has been cut to an enlisted strength of 125,000. This is about 100,000 fewer than a year ago.

Until Europe gets the same idea thru its cement head, it will continue sinking deeper in the mire.

GUARD AGAINST STONE BRUISES

This Form of Injury to Tires is One of Most Common and Expensive to Owner.

BREAK IN FABRIC IS INSIDE

Inexperienced Driver Who Gets Hard Bump Against Curb or Any Other Object Usually Looks for Injury on the Outside.

A "stone bruise" is the term used to describe an injury to a tire caused by striking some object with sufficient force to cause the tire fabric to be broken. It need not be a stone that causes the damage.

The break in the fabric may be in only one ply, or it may be in all of them; but in any case it is always the inside ply that breaks first.

An inexperienced driver whose tire gets a heavy blow from a stone or a curb usually looks over the outside of the tire to see if any damage has been done.

Bump Against Curb Will Cause "Stone Bruise."

But the old driver knows that if harm has been done the place to look for it is in the inside and that any break in the fabric will be registered on the inside ply first.

Inside Ply Shorter.

Normally the inside ply is shorter than the rest and each ply is shorter than any of the others which are located outside of it. This is because it is on the inside of the circumference of the tire. Now if the tire is suddenly compressed at some point to a considerable extent, such as shown in the illustration, the relative position of the plies is reversed; that is, the outside ply becomes, at this particular point, the inside ply as regards the curvature and the inside ply becomes the outside ply as regards curvature.

If it should happen, as it often does, that only one or two inner plies are broken, there will not be any signs of the injury on the outside until a considerable time afterward. This is because the other plies still unbroken will continue to hold against the air pressure even though they will be under excessive strain. But continued flexing will eventually break them also, and the result may be a blowout, which may occur at any time, even on a perfectly smooth pavement.

Other Effects.

Another effect of a break in one or two inner plies may be that from continued bending the broken edges of the fabric rub a hole in the inner tube at that point. Sometimes the break is so pronounced, especially in a fabric tire, that the air pressure forces the inner tube into the break and as this is continually closing and opening, as the tire rolls, the action is like a pair of pinchers and cuts the tube.

If the tube is chafed through or cut after a bruise, such as described, the air will pass directly through the carcass and force the rubber side covering, and sometimes the tread, loose from the fabric. When this happens the user generally terms it a blowout, and as a matter of fact it is; but, contrary to the opinion often held, it is seldom the result of a defect in manufacture. It can generally be traced to an injury sustained some time prior to the final breaking down of the tire.

Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner, has submitted a report to Governor Grosbeck regarding what might soon become an international question. The British embassy maintains that the Port Huron oil refinery located on Black River is slowly polluting the waters of the St. Clair, which marks the boundary between the United States and Canada. To such an extent that farmers near Sarnia, on the Canadian side, are having difficulty in finding a place to water their live stock.

By the expenditure of approximately $400,000 for extensions to the Michigan Home and Training School at Lapeer the State will soon remove the reproach of failure to care for its sub-normals and dependents. Nine new buildings, to accommodate 775 patients, are near completion and the authorities promise that within 60 days the institution for the first time in many years will be without a waiting list.

Mrs. Beatrice Hackett, Ludington, 41 years old, was killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun, in the hands of her husband, Frank Hackett. Not knowing the gun was loaded Hackett placed a ramrod in the barrel to clean it. As he broke the gun and lifted it to look through it, the shell was discharged and shot the ramrod out toward his wife on the other side of the room. The rod passed through the woman's neck, through the wall of the house and out into the alley, 120 feet away. Officers investigated but found no inquest necessary.

Investment of approximately half a million dollars is being made at Wadhalla, a couple of miles from the Pere Marquette junction of that name near Ludington, by the Wilkinson-McCue Co., importers, breeders and brokers of the silver-black fox and representing W. Chester McCue, of Prince Edward Island, Canada. This company has purchased 12 acres, including the pheasantry and game preserve maintained for several years by E. Jaser and also including Emerson Lake and a half mile frontage on Long Lake.

An appropriation of $125,000 has been granted the building and grounds department of the University of Michigan, for the improvement of its shops and the erection of a new storehouse.

Representatives of the striking shop crafts and officials of the Grand Trunk Railway settled their differences at a conference in Detroit last week and the railmen have resumed work.

The One-Call System

MANY concerns who handle doubtful promotion securities have a school for training salesmen to sell the investor on a ONE CALL SYSTEM.

These salesmen are trained in this school to make big promises of dividends and paint such a rosy picture of their "scheme" that they rush the investor off his feet and make the sale on the first call.

This ONE CALL SYSTEM may be fine for the salesman and the house handling questionable securities but it is usually disastrous for the investor.

When you are considering the purchase of securities of any kind take your time and have this bank make a thorough investigation before you buy. We have every facility for obtaining for you reliable information.

Judge Its Quality—Then Price

There's something alluring about the Studebaker Special Six Sedan.

You notice it when you pass one on the street. It grows on you as you examine the car's details. It becomes even more pronounced when you take the wheel and drive it.

No wonder the Special Six Sedan carries such an appeal! Its beauty of line, finish and appointments fascinate you. The delightful harmony of color in the upholstery, the completeness of the appointments and the soft carpeting afford real elegance—and at a new low price.

The body is a striking example of the handicraft of Studebaker artisans. Built in Studebaker plants where the coachmaker's art has been handed down from father to son for more than two generations.

It is mounted on the same dependable Special Six chassis that has added new fame to the name Studebaker wherever cars are known.

Compare its appearance, its endurance records, its comfort, its equipment and its recognized reliability with any car within hundreds of dollars of its price. Judge it on quality first—then price—because price alone is no indication of its intrinsic value.

You can have confidence in the quality of Studebaker cars—in the 20 years of business success and manufacturing integrity back of them—and in the sterling dollar-for-dollar value built into them.

The name Studebaker on your car insures satisfaction!

"I'm going to stay right with you," said Lulu. She wondered what she should do if Di suddenly marched away from her, through that bright doorway and into the street. She thought, "I must follow." And then her whole concern for the other of Di's course was lost in her agonized memory of her terrible broken shoes.

She Turned Her Back Squarely Upon Lulu and Looked Out of the Window.

Di did not march away. She turned back squarely upon Lulu, and looked out of the window. For her life Lulu could think of nothing more to say. She was now feeling miserably on the defensive.

"They were sitting in silence when Bobby Larkin came into the room. He flew to meet him. She assumed all the pretty agitations of her role, ignored Lulu.

"Bobby! Is it all right?" Bobby looked over her head. "Miss Lulu," he said fatuously. "If it isn't Miss Lulu."

He looked from her to Di, and did not take in Di's resigned shrug. "Bobby," said Di, "she's come to stop us getting married, but she can't. I've told her so."

"She don't have to stop us," quoth Bobby gloomily. "We're stopped."

"What do you mean?" Di laid one hand flatly along her cheek, instinctive in her melodramatic.

Bobby drew down his brows, set his hand on his leg, elbows out.

"We're miners," said he.

"Well, gracious, you didn't have to tell them that?"

"No. They knew I was."

"But, Silly! Why didn't you tell them you're not?"

"But I am."

Di stared. "For pity sakes," she said, "don't you know how to do anything?"

"What would you have me do?" he inquired indignantly, with his head held very stiff, and with a boyish, admirable lift of chin.

"Why tell them we're both twenty-one. We look it. We know we're responsible—that's all they care for. Well, you are a funny . . ."

"You wanted me to lie?" he said.

"Oh, don't make out you never told a lie."

"Well, but this—" he stared at her. "I never heard of such a thing," Di cried accusingly.

"Anyhow," he said, "there's nothing to do now. The cat's out. I've told our ages. We've got to have our folks in on it."

"Is that all you can think of?" she demanded.

"What else?"

"Why, come on to Bainbridge or Holt, and tell them we're of age, and be married there."

"Di," said Bobby, "why, that'd be a rotten go."

Di said, oh, very well, if he didn't want to marry her. He replied stonily that of course he wanted to marry her. Di stuck out her little hand. She was at a disadvantage. She could use no arts, with Lulu sitting there, looking on. "Well, then, come on to Bainbridge," Di cried, and rose.

Lulu was thinking: "What shall I say? I don't know what to say. I don't know what I can say." Now she also rose, and laughed awkwardly. "I've told Di," she said to Bobby.

"That wherever you two go, I'm going too. Di's folks left her in my care you know. So you'll have to take me along, I guess." She spoke in a manner of distinct apology.

At this Bobby had no idea what to reply. He looked down miserably at the carpet. His whole manner was a mute testimony to his participation in the eternal query: How did I get into it?

"Bobby," said Di, "are you going to let her lead you home?"

This of course nettled him, but not in the manner on which Di had counted. He said loudly:

"I'm not going to Bainbridge or Holt or any town and lie, to get you or any other girl."

"Come on, Aunt Lulu," said Di

"Oh, Dwight," said Lulu.

"She knew it, too," he said. "I— I put me out of business, I can tell you. She gave me my start—she took all the care of me—laughed me to rood—she's the only mother I ever knew—"

He stopped, and opened his eyes wide on account of their dimness.

But eventually they were back again before that black bag. And Di would say nothing. She laughed, squirmed, grew irritable, laughed again.

"Put an end to this, Lulu," he commanded. "Where were you two—since you make such a mystery?"

Di's look at Lulu was piteous, terrified. Di's fear of her father was now clear to Lulu. And Lulu feared him, too. Abruptly she heard herself temporizing, for the moment making common cause with Di.

"Oh," she said, "we have a little secret. Can't we have a secret if we want one?"

"Upon my word," Dwight commented, "she has a beautiful secret. I don't know about your secrets, Lulu. Every time that he did this, that look, lifted look of Lulu's seemed to bleed.

"I'm glad for my dinner," remarked Monona at last. "Please excuse me." On that they all rose. Lulu stayed in the kitchen and did her best to make her tasks indefinitely last. She had nearly finished when Di burst in. "Aunt Lulu, Aunt Lulu," she cried. "Come in there—come, I can't stand it. What am I going to do?"

"Di, dear," said Lulu. "Tell your mother—you must tell her."

The city market, operated at Muskegon this season by the Muskegon County Farm Bureau, is reported to have proved a marked success. The city started the market a year ago and last spring it turned the direct supervision of the market over to the farm bureau, although it provided regulations by means of ordinances.

The Ingham county board of supervisors, has announced taxes for this county will be about $200,000 less this year than last. One reason is that the county road commissioners have decreased their tax from one and one-half mills to one mill, and another that the state is asking for $65,000 less this year.

Marquette County will expend $108,000 in 1923 for the construction of good roads. Of this amount, $113,000 will be invested in new trunk line routes.

Several barns in Plainfield Township, near Stockbridge, have burned recently and farmers fear that some of the buildings were set afire. Circumstances, they say, strongly indicate arsonists are at work.

Miss Ruth Vorburg, sophomore at Western State Normal school at Kalamazoo has been elected to the national student council of the Y. W. C. A. She is the only undergraduate representative from Michigan.

Investigation is being made into the death of Hamilton Lumber, 74, Port Huron, whose body was found floating in the St. Clair river. Lumber had been out of work and was known to have worried over loss of his last position. Relatives scouted the suicide theory, however, declaring him a victim of heart trouble.
