ORDER MOTOR INSTALLED AT TOWN POWER PLANT

Village Council Takes Steps to Avoid Shutdown of Lights and Water Supply When Smoke- stack Buckles During Blow

A 150 H. P. motor was expected to arrive at the local electric plant from Detroit today and will be erected immediately to relieve the engine now in operation. The motor will be used to operate the large generator and the engine and small generator operated only during the evening when the load is heaviest. Workmen have removed 20 feet from the top of the smokestack at the plant, it having buckled during the storm last Saturday.

In an effort to avoid a possible shutdown of the village water supply and electric light service, the village council, at a regular meeting Monday evening, ordered Superintendent Boehm, of the municipal power plant, to have installed a motor large enough to operate the generator at the local plant. The motor will be operated by power from Consumers Power Company, of Jackson.

Action of the village council was taken as a result of the buckling of the smokestack at the power plant, the stack assuming an angle of dangerous proportions during the wind and snow storm of Saturday night. Because of the damage done by the storm, only two courses were open to the village, one being to erect a new smokestack, which would mean a delay of from seven to ten days, and the other to install electric motors with which to operate the generator at the plant. The latter course met with the approval of the council, partly because of the delay necessary in erecting a new smokestack and partly with a view to using the motor should the Consumers Power Company be permitted to operate in the village after the annual election in March. Cost of the two projects also entered largely into the decision to install the motor.

Two propositions were considered in connection with the motor. Either the village could rent a 100 h. p. or 150 h. p. motor, or, in the event it might be deemed advisable, a motor would be purchased outright, either course to be contingent upon conditions imposed by companies dealing in this line of supplies. Superintendent Boehm was instructed to immediately make a trip to Detroit in the hope of closing a deal whereby a motor would be secured on one of the two propositions. Council also took up the matter of submitting the Consumers Power Company proposition to voters of the village at the annual election on March 12, at which time citizens will have a chance to signify their wishes in regard to granting a franchise to Consumers Power Company to furnish electric power for a term of years. The agreement, which is the same as that submitted last fall, was passed without dissent of council members. Contracts, agreements, and resolutions pertaining to the proposed franchise will be published at a later date.

President Wurster, in preparation for the annual election March 12, appointed Geo. P. Staffan, D. C. McLaren and D. E. Beach as commissioners to proceed with the printing and issuance of ballots.

Discussion of the proposed paving of M-92 through Chelsea held the boards for some length of time Monday evening, estimates furnished by the state highway department being read by Clerk Walworth in a communication from the department. Councilmen were urged by President Wurster to attend the hearing to be held in the town hall Tuesday morning, February 6, at 10:30.

Allowance of bills and other routine business completed the session.

BODY OF FORMER RESIDENT SHIPPED HERE

Geo. P. Staffan received a telegram Wednesday morning from Albert and John D. Watson, stating that the body of their mother, Mrs. J. D. Colton, was shipped by express from Los Angeles, California, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Colton and her son, Albert, left here about three years ago and have made their home in California since that time.

Mrs. Colton was the daughter of the late John Dunning, who was a pioneer resident of Unadilla. For a number of years she was a resident of Chelsea.

It is expected that the body will reach here Friday and the burial will be in the Dunning family lot in the Unadilla cemetery.

BOYS' GIRLS' TEAMS WIN FROM SALINE

Local High Teams Score Another Win and Add to Long String of Season's Victories

In a game which started like a whirlwind and ended in a calm, Chelsea High boys' team last Friday evening copped another victory from Saline high in a game at the Welfare building. Not once during the entire game did the Saline boys have so much as a chance to carry home the bacon. The game ended 26 to 3.

Mayer, forward of the Chelsea team, carried off high honors during the first half, he scoring eight out of thirteen points in this period. Twelve of these points were made during the first quarter.

In the last half Brooks, local center, was scoring champion. In this period he caged six field baskets for a total of twelve points, Mayer also shooting a basket from the 15-foot line.

One of the features of this game was the inability of the Saline players to team the ball to their own end of the floor. So well were they guarded that the only opportunities afforded for shots at the basket were so long that they were practically impossible to make. Shots from the middle of the floor were not uncommon and not once during the game did they succeed. Only one field basket was scored and one free throw was made by Gruner. Saline was held scoreless during the first and third quarters.

All was well and the boys of both teams were fighting hard until an accident resulted in Raymond Rouser, of Saline, being knocked out. For a time it was thought he was seriously injured and he was carried out of the hall. A physician was called, and he was soon able to be up and around again. But the accident took the pep out of both teams and from that time on the game was a foregone conclusion. (Continued on Page Eight)

H. J. DANCER STORE CHANGES OWNERSHIP

Former Proprietor Sells After Fifteen Years at Same Stand in Furnishings and Shoe Business.

Another important business change has taken place in Chelsea this week. Herman J. Dancer has sold his stock of furnishing goods and shoes to A. G. Hindelang and E. A. Fahrner, and the store was closed Wednesday while an inventory of the stock was being taken.

Mr. Dancer has been in business here for the last fifteen years. The business was established by E. R. and H. J. Dancer, who remained together for ten years, since which time it has been conducted by H. J. Dancer. Mr. Dancer retains his interest in the Goebel Garment Co. He will, for the present, take a rest from active work, for a short time.

Messrs. Hindelang and Fahrner are both well known to the residents of this vicinity, having been engaged in active business either as clerks or owners of hardware and furniture stores in Chelsea for about 15 years and their business ventures have always proved a success. Both Mr. Hindelang and Mr. Fahrner sold their interests in the Chelsea Hardware Co. and retired from business January 1. The Standard bespeaks success for the new business firm which continues the business in the location that Mr. Dancer has occupied for many years.

STATE ENGINEERS HOLD ROAD HEARING

Outline of Boundaries and Assessments Decided on When State, County and Village Officials Meet at Town Hall.

At a meeting of engineers from the State Highway Department and property owners of Chelsea and Sylvan held in the Sylvan Town Hall Tuesday forenoon the boundaries for the assessment district for trunk line road M-92 were fixed as recommended by the highway department.

The assessment will take in all of the property within the village limits, which has about 800 lots and the assessment will be about $800, or $1 per lot, for the cement pavement of 20 feet in width running south from the D. U. R. line to the intersection of M-17. The estimated cost will be about $16,000 for the strip of pavement. Of this amount the state pays 75 per cent, Washtenaw County, 15 per cent, Sylvan 5 per cent and the village 5 per cent. These figures do not include the cost of surfacing the road with asphalt which will have to be decided upon later. Last year the cost of paving a 20-foot concrete drive and surfacing with asphalt cost $42,000 per mile but the engineers present were unable to give an estimate of what it would cost this year.

From the intersection of the D. U. R. track south to Pierce street, it was decided to make the drive full 30 feet wide, as the state officials stated that under no consideration would the improvement be made unless the full drive of 30 feet with curb and 12-inch tile were provided for.

The cost of the 5 feet on either side of the 20 foot drive is to be paid for by the property owners and the village at large. The village also will have to pay for the two street intersections.

By a resolution adopted by the Chelsea common council last May, the pay for the extra five feet either side of the 20 foot driveway will be divided by the property owners paying two-thirds of the cost and the village at large one-third.

By a resolution which was adopted the time for payment of the cost of construction was fixed covering a period of three years. But any of the adjoining property owners can pay their portion of the expense at the end of the first or second year.

The proposed road improvement is built under what is known as the Covert Act. The State Highway Department will issue bonds for the cost of the work and the county at large will pay the interest on the bond issue.

The engineers will submit their plans to the Chelsea common council for adoption and approval as soon as they are completed to conform with the decision of the assessment district as sanctioned by the property owners at the meeting Tuesday. From present indications the work will be done the coming season.

County Road Commissioners O. D. Luick and Geo. W. McCalla were present at the hearing.

STATE OFFICIAL ADDRESSES MEETING

Former Superintendent of Chelsea Schools is Speaker at Monthly Gathering of Parent-Teachers.

"It takes a higher development of brain power to live today in the 60-65 mile-an-hour age than it did in the 3 to 6 mile, or 'ox-team' age." So declared Prof. E. E. Gallup, state officer in charge of federal supervision of vocational education, in an address before the Chelsea Parent-Teachers' Association, at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening.

Taking as his text "From the Ox-team to the Automobile," or "A Century of Progress," Mr. Gallup drew a comparison of the two periods of living, illustrating his points by personal experiences and observations in his travels and encounters over the state.

Prof. Gallup emphasized the harmony of the ox-team age, when things moved at a three to six mile pace, before the days of the faster modes of transportation such as the automobile. Everybody and everything moved at the slow pace, making it easier to have harmony, according to the speaker, who then proceeded to show the need of harmony and cooperation at the faster or "60 to 65 mile" age, when things move with the speed of the automobile.

Referring to the age in which our forefathers lived as the ox-team age, the speaker ventured a prediction or guess that the future would be known as the "radio" or "aeroplane" age, in which things would move as much faster as the automobile does the ox-team. All of which, according to Prof. Gallup, leads to the need of greater preparation if we are to combat our share in the world during this age. (Continued on Page Eight)

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

February 14 is St. Valentine's Day and will doubtless be observed by most schools and a lot of "toy" school children. The story of the origin of Valentine's day is not generally known, in spite of the fact that nearly everyone in some manner or other observes it.

The custom of sending Valentines can, without doubt, be traced in origin to a practice among the ancient Romans. At the feast of the Lupercalia, which was held on the 15th of February, in honor of the great god Pan, the names of all the virgin daughters of Rome were put in a box and drawn therefrom by the young men and each youth was bound to offer a gift to the maiden who fell to his lot and to make her his partner during the time of the feast. This custom became allied to the name of St. Valentine, probably only through a coincidence in dates.

St. Valentine was a bishop of Rome during the third century. He was of most amiable nature, and possessed remarkable gifts of eloquence and was so very successful in converting the pagan Romans to Christianity that he incurred the displeasure of the emperor, and was martyred by his order February 14, A. D. 270. When the saint came to be placed in the calendar, his name was given to the day of his death, and this was made a festival, to offset that of the Lupercalia, and an effort was made to substitute the names of saints for those of girls in the lottery, but naturally without success. Many other customs of medieval and later times, which have become allied in name to a holy saint of the church, are unquestionably of purely secular, even a pagan origin.

GOLDEN EGGS

With France in control of the richest section of Germany, and with little clashes between French and Germans a daily occurrence, it is evident that a volcano of marital hate is simmering preparatory to a grand holocaust.

The fact that Germany is torn with civil war, with the Fascisti in possession of her Bavarian province and threatening the entire nation, will aggravate rather than alleviate the tension and the coming embroilment.

France still insists that her dignity will fall like a pane of glass, and her pride suffer beyond repair unless she strikes to her old bargain of trying to punish her sister nation. That her army costs her far more than she can get out of German industries doesn't worry her at all. She is biding off her nose at great expense to spite her face, and making a foolish spectacle of herself.

She has a wild idea that Germany is hiding a supply of gold under her stockings, and she is going to find it or die trying. She regards Germany as another goose which has stopped laying golden eggs, and killing the goose for the sake of the gold supply believed to be concealed seems the only way.

Nearly everybody concedes that France has a legal right to seize and occupy and—if she can—operate German industries. But that legal right is modified by an equally obvious, and more far-reaching moral obligation to Germany, to herself and to the rest of the world which she is so dangerously endangering with the impending disaster of war. France's feelings were stepped on; like the chicken nation that she is, only blood can atone. She will not neglect the insult of Germany's failure to pay.

She is on German territory, trying to operate Germany's factories, and acting bossy with Germany's citizens. Since Germany believes herself wronged and with her national honor in dust, whatever she might attempt in retaliation would merit little surprise or censure.

Like the old fable, France is attempting an impossibility. She cannot cut blood from a turnip. The German goose lays only when she can, and decapitating her will bring to light no hidden store of gold. There are no golden eggs in Germany. And since France has deposited the richest section of the Fatherland, and has given Germany what to her is just cause for refusing further payments, it is evident that France can neither afford to leave now, nor to remain as she is. She has most obviously started something, and to achieve favorable results must carry on. Her fault lay in starting so soon, without outside aid or approval, and without considering other methods. But since she has started in to collect by force, and since the wrong is already committed, she cannot find heart to back out.

The question is not of American alliance with either party. We have foregone all entangling affiliations, and are far more neutral than at the beginning of the world war. We are not against France as a nation and we are certainly not hostile to Germany. We sympathize as individuals with the Daschund, even tho the people has a measure of right.

We are interested in the European strategies because they so closely concern us. Any moment we may be asked to avenge the death of an American tourist who got between the warring factions and got killed. And when we get mixed up in Europe again, the angels will weep.

ROBBING CHILDREN

Since the law prohibiting child labor, an enormous increase in the number of children employed has resulted, declares a bulletin of the Children's Department of Labor.

In 1920, there were over a million children between the ages of ten and fifteen employed, of whom 378,063 were under fourteen. Since then, we are told, children have been employed in ever-increasing numbers, and there seems no restriction to prevent it.

It is a great temptation for parents who must eke out a bare existence on the earnings of a lone breadwinner to send their children to work in a factory, where they may earn a little toward the family support. Only those who have felt the worst pinch of poverty can appreciate that. And it is also a temptation to the manufacturer or other employer to hire little boys and girls for a small fraction of a man's daily wage, especially when the children can do almost as much work as a man.

The fact that the Child Labor law has been declared unconstitutional, and therefore void, does not remove the necessity for some restriction against this practice. It is for the good of the nation that children be permitted to enjoy a normal, care-free childhood in the open air, and to be educated in day schools.

Children have inherent rights. They came unmasked into the world, but once here, society must protect them. They are due a normal childhood. Their elders should support them. There is something ghastly about a lad of ten or twelve working with his father for their daily bread. When children are allowed to work in places where their bodies are dwarfed and their minds dulled, they are being robbed of their priceless heritage, which can never be regained.

A THANKLESS JOB

About the only person in official Washington who gets less public notice than the vice president, is the third cook in the White House. Both have very important functions, and both were tickled pink to get their jobs. But when it comes down to making a hit with the public through sundry blowing of one's own horn, removing the bushel from one's light, and getting one's name and photo in the papers, our amiable vice president has very little show.

He has always been a sort of standing figure of speech. The vice president has from the beginning endured an ignored second place. Although he would become chief magistrate of the nation if the president were to die, yet while that worthy lives his lot is honorable but ignored.

He has never even had an official home in the capital, being forced to dicker with apartment landlords like a humble senator, bootlegger or movie actor. Washington offers him no place to lay his head. The president occupies a marble palace while his second in rank must find his own lodging.

It was a woman who tried to solve the problem of housing the vice president. Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of a senator, has offered to give free of charge to the United States a new and completely furnished mansion on Sixteenth Street, in the most exclusive residential section. All Congress has to do is to formally accept the gift, appropriate a thousand or so a year for its maintenance, and lo—the vice president has a home. There are no conditions, no strings, nobody wanting pull. Just a free gift from a rich woman in honor of her dead husband and son.

Congress is up in the air. It gets that way when anything out of the ordinary routine comes up. What it would do with a real problem is hard to tell. Resign, probably. Now it is clearing its official throat, looking wise, consulting old records for precedents and wondering if the shades of departed vice presidents would approve the gift, and its acceptance. Cal Coolidge, the man who would benefit by the gift, is less excited than the raft of new congressmen and freshmen senators, who expected nothing more intricate than a new tariff bill or the Child Labor amendment proposal would be offered them for solution the first year.

We are watching the lawmakers at their favorite pastime; doing nothing and looking most wise while doing it. We are wondering if Mr. Coolidge and his successors will have to live in a flat during their tenure of office, paying out $3,000 a year rent on a $12,000 salary and being patronized by a lordly janitor, just because Congress doesn't know what to do in a pinch. And of course Mrs. Henderson cannot be made to understand why her gift is refused if Congress gets jealous of Mr. Coolidge and vetoes the proposition.

Truly, the life of a mere vice president is thankless and hard. He presides over the senate in the day time, is hounded by lobbyists with pet theories at his meals, rides in a sumptuous trolley car and dreams of the happy days when he had money and friends and influence, which are now conspicuous for their absence.

BRITAIN'S SOUR GRAPES

When Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the British Exchequer, got back to England after his unsuccessful mission to Washington to reduce the interest and effect cancellation of the war debt, he vented his little wrath in a peevish tirade against everything on this side of the Atlantic.

He, along with some millions of other Englishmen, thought that the paltry billions which England owed us should be wiped off the state, and when he with his other silk-hatted friends found Washington obdurate to their frantic pleas, they went back home disgruntled at their frigid reception.

His pet grudge is against American politicians, whom he accuses in his best King's English of being a bunch of numbskulls and pig-eyed egotists. He says the American people don't get a chance to be heard on such questions as donating that little sum to the government of Johnny Bull; that politicians didn't let them make their prepared speeches, and that we're way behind the times in matters of international diplomacy.

"Americans are still country folk, politically," he declared. The house and senate are composed chiefly of men from farming and pastoral communities. The bulk of Americans have no knowledge of international trade."

Maybe we don't know much about silk-gloved international dickering. Maybe we're behind the times when it comes to cancelling a huge bill just because a few titled sons of a decadent aristocracy call with engraved cards and ask the favor. Maybe we do send farmers to congress. And maybe our politicians do play a high hand about the capital.

But in going back to England with a wild tale of American greed and his frigid reception, our worthy chancellor isn't helping himself or his cause even a little bit. It is one thing to report that we courteously but firmly declined at the present time to decrease interest rates or to subtract any part from the total indebtedness. And it is another thing entirely to draw a picture of stupidity and bull-headedness and political intrigue for the stolid, credulous British people.

America is noted over the world for the courtesy she invariably extends to visiting foreigners, whether titled or peasants, rich or otherwise. Any foreigner who has a real message, or is worth while, or who is interesting can get an audience here, with all the respect which is due him and his nation. We have had some dozens of meritorious and otherwise Frenchmen and Britishers and Italians and Germans over here on unofficial visits during the past year, and gave them a glad hand, even if we didn't fall over ourselves in gladness. The Tiger of France is a recent example. We didn't agree with him about returning to "finish the war" but he thinks we're a nice people.

We are sorry our British friend didn't see the velvet glove over our iron hand. We are sorry he felt that our politicians were inferior to his titled members of parliament. We feel sure that he caught an unfair glimpse of official Washington, and that his opinion of the shrewdness and ability of our "farmer representatives" is quite unfounded. And, above all, we know that Britain's cause isn't helped one iota by his peevish splutterings, and that he needs an ice-bag and a sleeping powder the worst kind.

"Claims for exemption in income tax returns for the support of sponging relatives will not be allowed," Fred L. Woodward, collector of internal revenue, Detroit, announced Tuesday. "Quite a number of taxpayers are claiming exemption because they are supporting relatives, but when we investigate we find that those relatives are quite able to support themselves. If a relative is absolutely incapacitated and the taxpayer is his sole support allowance will be made, but Uncle Sam will not stand for any allowance for supporting spongers who live upon others."

JOKERS WHO KILLED GLENN MUST APPEAR

Judge Parkinson announced Monday morning that employees of the Reynolds Spring company who know anything of the fatal practical "joke" that killed Ross Glenn, when he grasped an electrically charged wheelbarrow which his fellow-workers had wired, should appear in court and tell what they know, whether they wish to or not. John France and J. Jay Duffy who have pleaded guilty to manslaughter, were the only ones to appear, although the judge had issued an order directing all the employees who had guilty knowledge of the incident to be in court Monday.

A strongly worded chastisement was given out by Judge Parkinson for the benefit of those who failed to appear in the case. He almost issued an order for the sheriff to bring them into court, but at the suggestion of the prosecuting attorney, who thought that the men would all appear next Tuesday, the case was postponed until that time.

The judge complimented Duffy and France on their fairness and told them to inform their fellow employees that if they did not voluntarily appear at court next week they would be brought before him by process of law.—Jackson News.

ADVERTISING DOESN'T PAY!

Isn't it funny?
That a man who thinks
He is a business man
Will get up in the morning
From an advertised mattress,
Shave with an advertised razor,
And put on advertised underwear,
Advertised hose, shirt, collar, tie,
shoes

Seat himself at the table and
Eat advertised breakfast food,
Drink advertised coffee or substitute,
Put on an advertised hat,
Light an advertised cigar,
Go to his place of business and
Turn down advertising on the ground that advertising doesn't pay?

CHELSEA TEAMS
WIN FROM SALINE

 Thus on the Saline team, especially, showed up considerably so that interest in the game led to a great extent. During the last half it was Chelsea's ball practically the entire time and they merely teamed it back and forth, Brooks dropping in a basket at will.

The line-up and summary:
 Chelsea 25 Saline 3
 Myer RF Cross
 Risley LF Gruner
 Brooks C Morris
 Buchter RG Wheeler
 Vogel LG Rouser

Substitutions: Kenner for Risley, Graber for Vogel, Secherbile for Gruner, Cullen for Rouser, Weidmeyer for Cullen.

Field Goals: Brooks 7, Mayer 4, Risley, Kenner, Morris.
 Free throws: Mayer, Brooks, Gruner.

Following their old style of play—that of letting the opposing team get a few points by way of encouragement and then swamping them—Chelsea girls got real "peevish" at themselves and during the balance of the game held the Saline quiet to practically nothing. Lambert, of the locals, during the final half, dropped in eight field baskets for a total of 16 points, Ellsworth adding four more points during the game in field baskets. Lambert also made two free throws. The game ended 25-10 in favor of Chelsea girls.

While the whole team worked together in a very creditable manner, Miss Lambert deserves special mention in regard to her splendid fighting spirit and ability as a forward on her team. Working in splendid co-operation with her partner at the forward position, she has added the life necessary to put the team in the winning column this season. Her ability to make baskets has put her in a class by herself, while every member of the girls' team is skilled in the art of getting the ball to her. Team work is prominent in all the games which the girls have played thus far and accounts for the many victories they have achieved.

The line-up and summary:
 Chelsea 25 Saline 10
 Lambert RF Kidder
 Ellsworth LF Vasek
 Turnbull C Bracey
 Dancer RG London
 Eppler LG Gross
 Brooks LG Lamb

Substitutions: Dancer for Turnbull, Harris for Brooks, Surdane for Bracey, Wheeler for Surdane.
 Field goals: Lambert 8, Kidder 4, Ellsworth 2.
 Free throws: Lambert 2, Kidder 2, Brooks of Chelsea, refereed both games.

Friday evening the Chelsea teams will travel to Saline and take on the teams of that place on their own floor. By that time it is expected Saline will have recovered from their defeat last Friday evening and put up a real scrap. If this is the case two good games will be witnessed, and it is expected a large crowd of fans will accompany the local teams. A special car will be chartered to transport teams and fans to Saline and will leave Chelsea at 4:45 Friday evening. About sixty persons can be accommodated including the teams and the fare will be about $1.34.

STATE OFFICIAL
ADDRESSES MEETING

 ing this "radio" age.

"The boy and girl of today has just as much chance to succeed as did our forefathers," said Mr. Gallup, he predicting that the time would come shortly when hero worship would not be confined to the poor boy who rises from the rail-splitter to the president's chair, but would be shared by the son of the idle rich, who makes good in spite of the handicap of wealth and luxury. Introduction of vocational education will bring this about, in the opinion of the former superintendent, this department of education being adopted on a large scale in the larger cities, and advocated for the smaller communities such as Chelsea. He emphasized the need of such education which, he said, would be of benefit to the city boy or girl even as it would benefit the farmer boy or girl. In that it would make either of them the better fitted for their particular line of endeavor.

The speaker paid a high tribute to American youth, asserting that when the crisis comes, the youth of this country will rise to the occasion, whether it be in the automobile age or the radio age just as their forefathers did in the olden days. Instead of the two alternatives open to the girl of one hundred years ago, he declared there were myriads of opportunities for the modern young woman to make her contribution to society, this also being brought about by different branches of vocational education. Mr. Gallup lamented the fact that there are no home-making courses in the Chelsea schools, yet praising the number of girls who are going out from the local schools prepared to take up this particular line of endeavor in spite of the lack of the department.

In his address of the evening, Prof. Gallup criticized the local schools for their lack of vocational education but praised highly the academic work of the schools, referring to the fact that this part of local school work was acceptable to all colleges when applications were made for entrance. However, he said, the local school was not entitled to the name "public" school, until vocational training had been added to the already established courses. The commercial department was mentioned as the only vocational training available here.

Mr. Gallup was very optimistic in his outlook for the future. Studying, as he does, the development and advancement of the student of this "automobile" age, he professed to have great faith in the present generation and the contribution they will make toward the future. His remarks were encouraging and constructive, leaving his audience with a wider vision of the possibilities for the future.

The former superintendent, who left Chelsea about four years ago, was in charge of the local schools for a number of years, and on his visit here Wednesday enjoyed the renewing of friendships and acquaintances made during his stay here. He has been connected with the state educational department for a number of years.

Instrumental music for the evening was furnished by the high school orchestra, and vocal numbers were rendered by P. F. Niehaus, accompanied by Miss Milda Faust. The next meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association, as announced by President Schuyler Foster, will be held the second Monday of March, at which time a debate will be held on the question of whether a combined gymnasium and auditorium should be constructed. Refreshments will also be served at this meeting. In connection with the Music Memory contest locally, it was voted to appropriate a certain amount toward the awarding of prizes to local contestants, this amount to be determined later by a committee.

AUCTIONS—The auction season is now here, and the Standard wishes to remind those who expect to have an auction this season that it can furnish an auctioneer and print the bill.

Observations from some dance halls suggests that the fox trot might well be called the calf trot.

Anyway the women who put the long skirts don't have to spend much time darning their stockings.
