"BILL"

The young men in Chelsea seem to be stepping out for themselves of late. The last two weeks three of the young men here have entered business for themselves. It is a most noble commendable idea. Just another example of better times and of the younger generation going forth to try on business. It is not the older men that are doing it, however, some of the older ones think a good idea also.

Free "Travelers" are getting very glib these days on both the light and passenger trains. Hardly a train goes thru that does not have from one to 20 "Travelers" and the passenger trains one often men on the tender.

Boose on the tender going east thru are generally due for a soaking a few miles east. When the train hits the water pan at Four Mile, they generally manage to fill tank and the overflow offers a cool for the rider. No doubt many of a need it, but would rather take some other way.

Draw hats are now in real season. But it might behoove many to watch their old straw hats if hope to use them this year. One young boy scout has the honor of being a fine cash prize for the contest of the best bird house. He is one of his Dad's straw hats and it is a board, cutting a hole in top to allow the birds to enter and then finished it by painting green.

With the farm weather comes the time for the lakes and the water. The lakes have been straightened and put in readiness for the summer. Sunday was such a warm that the refreshing water was too good for many and the cool dips were taken have been reported.

Tomorrow we get a day off. It's the regular holiday since the first of year. Of course there have been days in between but only a few the benefits of them. This is one we can all have. But it comes at the end of the year when there is so much to be done at home that almost none will have a plenty to do to by their time.

There was a good one on Bill Kolb morning. His first night at the proved to be too much, for the City Cafe was not open at the usual time this morning. Bill says it is the time in 4 years and from what he has seen he must be right. Bill if you want a thing done right, yourself. He left some one else to alarm clock and the result was a longer sleep for the weary. A bad idea for some of the rest of try some time.

MOTHER OF THREE BURNED TO DEATH

CAN OF KEROSENE EXPLODES WHEN MRS. S. HAGADON STARTS FIRE.

Five Months Old Baby Rescued From Home, Almost Suffocated.

Mrs. Sam Hagadon, 28, of Sylvan, was burned to death Monday noon, when a can of kerosene she was using to help in starting a fire, exploded. The injured woman had the entire contents of the can blown over her and before she could be reached her clothing had been completely destroyed and her body badly burned. She was rushed to Ann Arbor where she died about 6 hours later.

An infant daughter aged 5 months, was asleep in an adjacent bedroom when the accident happened and to rescue the child it was necessary to break open a window in the room. The child was almost overcome by the smoke and heat, when it was rescued, but was revived after a short time.

The accident happened about 11 o'clock Monday morning. Mrs. Hagadon had had a fire in the kitchen stove early in the morning but had thought that it was out and was about to start a fire to prepare the noon meal. After putting a few pieces of wood in the stove she was pouring on the kerosene which was ignited by the live coals that were smoldering there. The explosion occurred almost instantly, the bottom of the three gallon can being blown out. The entire contents of the can was thrown over Mrs. Hagadon and the flames spread at once.

She rushed from the house calling to her husband who was working with Ellsworth Hoppe in the barn nearby. Both men, seeing the smoke in the house came running. Mr. Hoppe rushing to the house to save the baby, while Mr. Hagadon endeavored to help his wife.

Mrs. Hagadon had gone but a few feet into the yard when she collapsed. Her clothing, which had been saturated with the kerosene was burned entirely from her body and the burns covered her body except for a small portion of her leg near the ankle.

Persons nearby aided in serving the injured woman, and local physicians were called immediately. They expressed no hope for her, at the time, but rushed her to Ann Arbor, where treatments could be given. Mrs. Hagadon died at the hospital about 5 o'clock last evening.

The interior of the home was partially destroyed by the flames that spread from the explosion. The kitchen and contents were almost all destroyed and the other portions of the house were badly damaged by the smoke and heat. The neighbors and persons nearby joined in and fought the fire, saving the home.

When the baby was rescued Mr. Hagadon rushed to the home of Mrs. Guthrie where the baby was left and cared for.

Mrs. Hagadon, formerly Miss Lucille Eberly of Chicago, was born in Peru, Indiana, January 1, 1895. She was married to Sam Hagadon October 2, 1914, and has resided near Chelsea since her marriage. Besides her husband she is survived by three children, Dorothy, aged 7, Frank, aged 4; and Bertha, aged 5 months. Also by a sister in Port Wayne, Ind., and an aunt and three cousins in Chicago.

Funeral services will be held from the home of Chas. Hagadon in Chelsea, father of Sam Hagadon, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. S. Risley will officiate. Interment will be made in Oak Grove cemetery.

WILD RIDERS CAUSE EXCITEMENT SUNDAY NIGHT.

Some wild drivers caused a lot of excitement for a short time here Sunday night. The excitement started when the people from out of town were diving on Main street and ran into Bert Conlan's car, damaging it considerably. A large crowd soon congregated in front of the Princess theatre and was about to disband after the other car left. But instead they had another chance. The car with the wild drivers did some quick twisting around and missed several cars along the street and then at the corner of Main and Middle it crashed into the electric light post, knocking every globe from the post. The crowd that had congregated up the street a block now rushed to the next corner to see what was happening and what might happen next. The names of the "wild riders" were taken and no doubt they will be apprehended.

Roland Guenther Kicked in Face by Frightened Horse.

Roland had gone to the barn and was getting ready to hitch the horse. He was about to put on the collar when the horse became frightened and reared kicking him in the face, knocking him down. The horse had become so excited that he jumped up into the manger and also stepped on Roland's leg.

HONOR NATION'S HEROES

To stilled drum and measured tread
With grief Columbia bows her head

O, may they not have died in vain!

Capital City Has Worthily Honored The Nation's Great

It is the great number of federal statues and structures which strike the visitor as making Washington different from any other city. Many of these bronze statues are of the heroic figures of the Civil war, Union generals and admirals, many of them equestrian statues, on comparatively small granite bases. Some of the older of these have been criticized by artists as rather commonplace. Undoubtedly the artistic taste of the people has advanced during the last generation, resulting about twelve years ago in the erection by congress of a fine arts commission charged with the duty of passing upon all statues, structures and public works of art and their erection. This has brought about a marked improvement in both the selection of design and subjects, and their appropriate placement with reference to the future development of Washington, which is the hope of every one will eventually become the most beautiful city in the world. The improvement is seen in the removal last year from Dupont circle of a standing bronze statue of Admiral Dupont, of Civil war fame, and the erection in its place of an exquisite memorial fountain with a bronze bas-relief of the admiral. Early in April a memorial was dedicated to General Meade, commander of the Army of the Potomac and the hero of Gettysburg, the turning point in the Civil war. The group of which the great warrior in full military uniform is the central figure includes also figures representing Military Courage, Energy, Fame, Loyalty, Chivalry and Progress. The Meade memorial is the gift of the state of Pennsylvania.

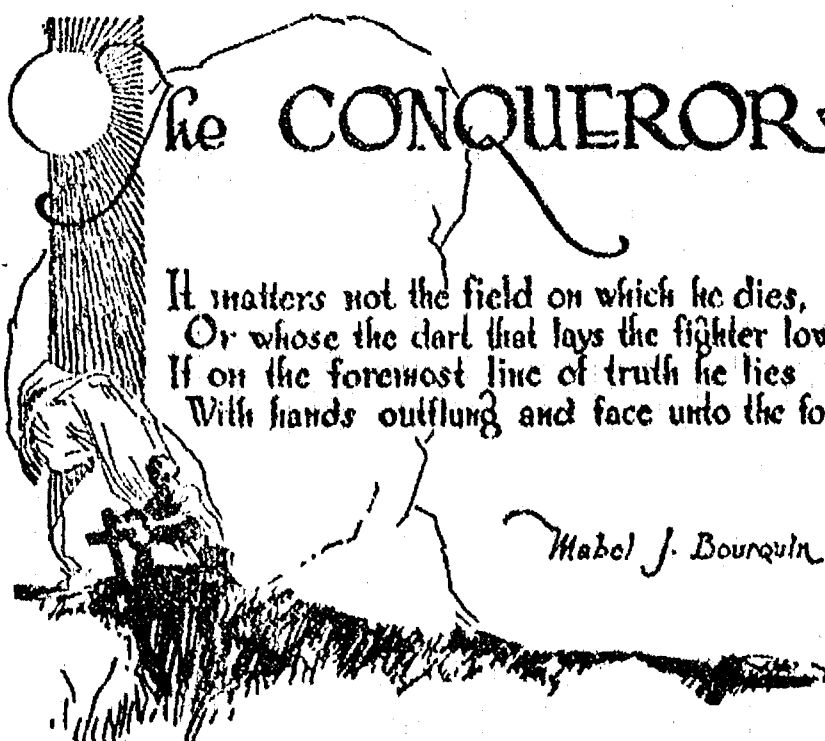

General Grant Statue.
Another great memorial is the heroic statue of Grant which was dedicated with military and civic honors and a great procession of 10,000 soldiers and members of organizations marching in line. This memorial had been building since 1902 at a cost of more than $240,000, and it ranks as one of the greatest war memorials of the world. The equestrian figure of the Union commander-in-chief sits his horse in characteristic attitude on a lofty pedestal, 40 feet in height, flanked by lions and further to the right and left by two heroic groups of subordinate statuary, the fighting arms of the great army, the cavalry and the artillery. The height of the bronze horse and the figure of Grant is 17 feet, and its weight is 10,500 pounds. With one exception, it is the largest equestrian statue in the world.

yet so perfect are the proportions of the equestrian group that it appears entirely natural. One can study for hours the grandeur of the Grant statue and the spirit of war as portrayed in the plunging horses of the equestrian group and the tremendous action depicted in the artillery charge, and marvel at the achievement.

Sculptor's Great Work.
The Grant memorial has been the life-work of the sculptor, Henry Merwin Shrady. His father, Dr. George F. Shrady, had been the attending physician upon General Grant during his last illness, and out of this personal acquaintance young Shrady had listened to vivid accounts of the achievements of the great general. For some time the form which his design should take greatly perplexed Shrady, and well it might, for here was to be erected a great memorial by the congress of the United States to cost a quarter of a million dollars, and in the capital of the United States, to commemorate the victor of many battles in the conflict for the preservation of the Union, and who had won the battle that ended the war. But, inspired by the thought, Shrady conceived the idea of a monumental marble platform nearly 300 feet in length, with Ulysses S. Grant on horseback at a height of some forty feet in the center, two great bronze lions on either side guarding the flange, and a group of equestrian in action on the right and a dashing artillery group on the left. With this conception he went to work nearly twelve years ago. Shrady died, after a physical breakdown from the many years of effort in completing the great memorial. It was his life-work.

Many and far were the ways we went,
And this is the sum of our loss—and gain—
To dance by the fire and be content
With the sun and the rain and the wind and the rain.
Whether we do it on the hill or plain,
Savannah in care or London with toil
We teachd nothing that left us state
But the rain and the wind and the sun and the soil.
Time has thickened on us in our cell
And crusted the web of the dream we spin.
We found beauty it could not spoil
In the soil and the rain and the wind and the sun.
Now, when the lengthening shadows run
And the fanfare dies and the ranks are thinned,
We shall be close with the things we won—
The rain and the soil and the rain and the wind.

Or whose the dart that lays the fighter low,
If on the foremost line of truth he lies

A NEW WORLD.

Professor Ellwood of the University of Missouri begins his "Reconstruction of Religion" with the following statement: "A crisis confronts religion in the modern world. A new reformation is necessary within the Christian church, if it is to survive, besides which the Protestant reformation will seem insignificant. Like all other institutions, religion is in revolution."

There comes the question, "Can Christianity, can religion, survive, even if such a revolution comes?" Let us put it this way, "Is there any probability that, revolution or no revolution, the world will ever become religionless?"

Some men have tried to live without religion. Now and then, a man lives without arms, or without legs, but he is abnormal, a cripple. Spiritually the religionless man is as abnormal, as crippled as is the armless or legless man physically.

Men have made great improvements in the ways of getting from place to place. Originally there was only one way—to go on foot. By utilizing animals, the winds and machinery man has passed through many revolutions in methods of travel. As a result now, he not only travels on land to which he was confined originally, but he crosses seas, even swimming through the depths like a fish and journeys through the air flying like a bird, and at such speed and comfort as was never imagined by the fathers. Still, man needs feet and legs. To be deprived of them would make the modern man a cripple just as it did the ancient man.

Historically, psychologically, considered, and estimated by the practical every day life of the times, religion is an essential to the well being of the spiritual man as feet and legs are to the physical man. There have been as many and as radical changes in the modes of expression in religion as in the methods of travel. And there is no more probability that man can ever get along without religion than that he can get along without hands and feet. And there is no more possibility that there will ever come a time when he will be born with some substitute for religion than there is that he will be born with wheels, or fins, or wings as substitutes for feet and legs. God made man so that feet and legs and religion are permanent, not temporary or false, element in his happiness. There is no chance whatever that revolutions will mean religious extinction. If we are to have such a revolution as Professor Ellwood predicts we will anticipate it as meaning a happier humanity and again say, "All hail revolution!"

But when Mrs. Bevan (as kindly a soul as exists) talks of her four children back in England, observers say that her face mellowed and her eyes glow with a heavenly beauty and softness. There is nothing quite as beautiful as the look in any mother's eyes when she thinks of her children. Real beauty is spiritual, not material.

TO UNLOCK A TREASURY.

Ironworkers cheer as they finish the big bridge over the Tanana river in Alaska. Far off, in Washington, D. C., the government announces: "This practically completes the building of the Alaskan railroad."

Watch its results, to see how government ownership works when it doesn't inherit the mistakes of private ownership. Tar Sports or stains can be removed by rubbing lard on the spot and then washing.

A Fall.—When a child gets a bad fall, peel and grate a raw potato and rub part affected, and it will reduce the swelling in a short time.

If you remember, we were talking of this job of being housewives and mothers. Really you have no idea how much true pleasure you can get out of it all if you only see it right. There is where the little thought vision comes in. To prepare the food that is going to make your boys and girls strong and healthy. To make the home as attractive as you can so your family will want to be there in the home. To keep yourself fit, always loving, kind, forgiving and attentive. Oh isn't it something big, something huge. But something worth while and then maybe some day as you reward, your sturdy boy or girl that have helped build will be a Mark Twain, a President Lincoln, a Maud Adams or a Florence Nightingale. But if only clean mind and clean womanhood is your reward. How worth while to know you have done your best.

1923 Memorial Day 1923

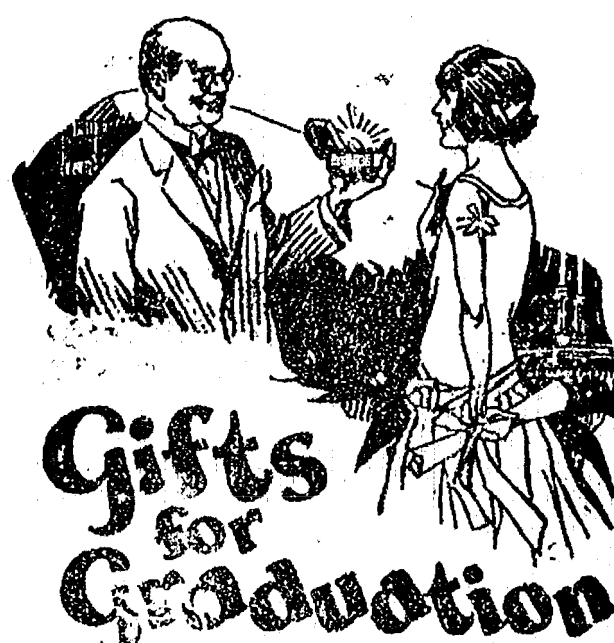

UNDER THE LIGHT OF A GREAT NEW TRUTH, AMERICA WAS BORN. IT WAS A THOUGHT IN GOVERNMENT SO NEW AND OVERWHELMING THAT IT THRILLED MEN'S SOULS. FOR IT THEY WOULD FACE ANY FATE.

IT WAS THE IDEA THAT ALL MEN ARE BORN FREE AND EQUAL. THE MOST RECEPITIVE BRAINS OF THAT TIME CROUCHED IN A WONDERFUL PHRASING OF OUR DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE. IN THAT SETTING, WE HAVE CHERISHED IT TO THE PRESENT DAY AND WILL CHERISH IT FOR ALL TIME TO COME. IT HAS BEEN THE BIG THEME ABOUT WHICH HAVE CLUSTERED BIG DEEDS AND BIG SENTIMENTS FOR A CENTURY AND MORE.

BOTH FOR AMERICA AND FOR THE WORLD, LET US KEEP FIRM THE HIGH RESOLVE AND MEET THE ENEMY OF OUR FLAG. WHETHER THAT ENEMY BE HERE OR OVERSEAS. ONLY BY SO DOING CAN WE HOPE TO HONOR OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS FOR THEIR HIGH, UNSELFISH AND HEROIC SERVICES.—ONLY BY SO DOING CAN WE PREVENT THOSE WHO MADE THE SUPREME SACRIFICE OF OFFERING THEIR LIVES ON THE ALTAR OF LIBERTY FROM HAVING DIED IN VAIN.

Absence of winter makes the heart

Naturally, the rising generation

the air.

In the Realm of Society

We Talk of The Flag.
"Tell me about the flag," he said.
As I was putting him to bed,
"And why men wave their hats and cheer
Whenever it is drawing near?"
And so we stopped undressing then
To talk about the time when men
Were facing cannon shot and shell
To serve the flag we love so well.
I told him of the men who died
In frozen wood and countryside
Long years ago in battle grim
To keep a flag like that for him,
I told him all about the stars,
The spotless white and crimson bars,
And what they dreamed of and they sought
As bitterly they bled and fought.

"Let no one tell you as you grow
That nothing to the flag you owe.
Let no one whisper that it means
But pleasant days and peaceful scenes,
And merely calls to mind a land
Where wealth abounds on every hand,
Because no more that flag will fly
When men, for it, refuse to die."

"And it may be," said I, "that you Must some day serve that banner, too,
And then if such a day should come
That sounds again the stirring drum
And blows once more the martial fife
Be not a slave to peaceful life.
As they were men, you be a man
And give that flag the best you can."

delightfully entertained. High honors were won by Mrs. Arthur Collins and the consolation score was made by Mrs. Wm. Baird. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers.
Spring blossoms banded in all the corners added greatly to the beauty.
Following the cards refreshments were served to the guests and at a late hour all departed after a most enjoyable evening.

Lumbago.
This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J.
Dann, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right.
I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and aches."—Advt.
