INCUBATOR SETS BARN
AND CHICKEN HOUSE
AFIRE THURSDAYBuildings Saved by Firemen, Sparks
Ignite roof of house.

The Chelsea fire department was called to the home of John Dummel, on McKinley street, Thursday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock when a blaze started in the chicken coop. The fire destroyed a large portion of the chicken house and of the adjoining barn. The fire was started from an incubator. It is not known whether the lamp exploded or became overheated and ignited some of the inflammable material nearby. When the department reached the scene the fire had gained a good start, and before the water could be turned on it looked as if the barn would be completely destroyed.

Quick work on the part of the firemen saved the building. Sparks set the roof of the house afire, but these were quickly put out with the use of a garden hose.

Practically all of the chickens were saved. A Ford car was in the barn and early arrivals removed that to safety. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

MEMORIAL SERVICES
IMPRESS ALLTown Hall Filled For Exercises Of The Day.

The Memorial services held at the town hall at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon, were exceedingly impressive. Smith's band opened the program by playing "The Star Spangled Banner." Rev. C. S. Risley, pastor of the Methodist church, gave the invocation, this was followed by a song by the Chelsea male quartette. C. E. Bowen then read Gen. Logan's Order, a patriotic melody by the band was followed by Doris Foster, reciting Lincoln's Gettysburg address, singing by the pupils of the public school, male quartette and parochial school concluded the first part of the program. The address of the day was delivered by Prof. Thomas H. Reed, of the U. of M., who paid high tribute to the veterans in an inspiring patriotic address closing with the benediction by Rev. C. S. Risley.

The Memorial Day parade conveyed the spirit of the day to those who lined the street to watch it, headed by the band, came the world war boys, followed by the civil war veterans in automobiles, the women's relief corp, followed by the school children carrying flags, marched to the cemeteries, where the graves of the departed soldiers were decorated with flowers. The fine spring day had apparently drawn many persons to the lakes for an outing, nevertheless there was a good sized and enthusiastic turnout.

FOREST FIRE PERILS
MICHIGAN TOWNSHundreds Battle for Homes in Ontario
Minn., and Quebec.

Hundreds of men, women and children have been battling a forest fire in northern Michigan, that is also sweeping through Ontario, and Minn. and Wis. Thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done in some sections and the battle against the flames continued all night.

Hundreds of people including whole villages spent Wednesday night and all day Thursday battling flames. Two resorts near Pentwater, Mich., and White River, Ont., may be wiped out. A special train waits at the latter town to rush the people to safety if the wind changes.

Word from Munising, Petokey and Iron Mountain, tells of the hazards and the extensive fires that are raging in those localities. Hundreds of persons spent Decoration day aiding farmers to keep the flames from their buildings. Many large lumber camps are reported in danger. Rangers and men have been working for the past few days to fight the fire, but with little results.

VISIT FINE FARMS

Four men from Chelsea motored to the Owosso Sugar Co. Prairie stock farm Thursday. O. C. Burkhardt, John Heischwerdt, D. E. Beach and Otto Luick made the trip. Mr. Burkhardt completed arrangements for the shipment of another bunch of sheep for this year. The menport a most enjoyable time, and their trip was an educational and instructive one.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Spiegelberg of Detroit, will occupy the Wheeler cottage for the summer.

another holiday. That won't make many of us mind either. Possibly some would like to have more holidays, but if we had too many we'd soon run out of working days.

M. J. Noyes Celebrates 85th Birthday

Michael J. Noyes, one of Chelsea's oldest and best known residents was the guest of honor at a pleasant family party, which was held at his home in celebration of his 85th birthday anniversary. A fine dinner was served the table decorations being red and white.

A large birthday cake with candles was prominent in the center of the table. Among the guests were Mr. Noyes' four daughters, Mrs. J. Harry Osborne of Onaba, Neb.; Mrs. Jacob J. Haarer of Detroit, Mrs. Sumner G. Bush of Chelsea and Mrs. Ralph H. Holmes of Battle Creek. Mr. Noyes was presented with many beautiful gifts as souvenirs of the occasion.

Mr. Noyes was born May 23, 1838, in Washington, Macomb county, Mich. He graduated from the home academy, and later attended the University of Michigan. As a young man, he was in the United States surveys for several years, surveying for the government in the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minn., Wash., Oregon, Calif., and Nevada.

In 1869, he made a trip to California, crossing the plains with an ox-team. This took from April to August. He made another trip in 1866 by stage-coach. Mr. Noyes spent two years on a ranch in Washington territory, also several years in Nevada as a mining engineer in the gold and silver mines.

While in Nevada in 1861 the war broke out, and he served as engineering officer on the staff of Brig. Gen. Welly, with the rank of major.

He was married Dec. 29, 1866 to Miss Frances C. Bates of Lennox, Macomb county, Mich., and they still reside at the home where he purchased 55 years ago. Four daughters were born to this union, all of whom are living. They also have four grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mr. Noyes and the late George P. Glazier established the first bank in Chelsea, which was known as the Noyes & Glazier bank, in connection with which the ran a drugstore.

In politics a Republican, Mr. Noyes served two years in the legislature under Gov. Bagley as representative from Washenaw county. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and was one of the first worshipful masters of Olive Lodge No. 156, F. & A. M.

Several years ago, Mr. Noyes purchased the John Beam farm four and one-half miles south of Chelsea, and gave considerable attention to farming and the raising of high grade stock.

He is a great reader and is keenly interested in all civic and national affairs, and until a year ago had enjoyed exceptionally good health.

UNION MEMORIAL SERVICES

The Union Memorial services at the Methodist church Sunday morning were of unusual interest and very impressive. Said by many to be the most beautiful services ever seen. The music by the double male quartette and solo were of high order and greatly enjoyed. Only four of the veterans of the Civil War were present, soon they will all be gone.

G. E. De Chane and Charles Danielson of Chicago were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harris, Sunday. Mr. Danielson is Mrs. Harris' uncle.

TRIBUNE SMILES

If you want to please your friends, get thru talking so that he can begin.

A man's garden is the evidence of how many feet there are in a yard.

It might all be summed up in the old line that "anyone can get thru school on brains."

It costs a man a good deal to live up to his ideals. That's the reason many a man can't afford to get married.

Self made men are scarce, but self made fools are plentiful.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Julia Bowen

Mrs. Julia Pierce Bowen, widow of the late Charles M. Bowen, and one of the real pioneers of this vicinity, died early Sunday morning, May 27, at her home in Ypsilanti. She was 88 years old last November, but had never been seriously ill until last fall, when she was weakened by a severe attack of neuritis. She recovered from this, however, and was fairly well during the winter, but commenced to fail about a month ago. Arrested circulation developed and her strength was not sufficient to overcome it.

Mrs. Bowen was born Nov. 25, 1834, in Lima Township, a little over a mile east of what is now Chelsea, though at that time there was no such town. Her parents were Darius and Nancy Pierce, who had emigrated from Ontario county, N. Y., two years earlier, five days travel by ox team being required to cover the distance between Detroit and their future home. Julia was the sixth of a family of 10 children, and was the last to survive. Two brothers, Parson and Henry were soldiers in the Civil War the former dying of fever, and the latter being killed at the second battle of Bull Run. Two other brothers, Edwin and Nathan, were among those who traveled overland to California in the early fifties, soon after the discovery of gold.

In May, 1860, she was married to Charles M. Bowen, also of Lima, and four years later they emigrated to southern New Jersey, which was then being developed as a fruit region, and was comparatively new country. Thus she represented the fourth consecutive generation of the family to play the pioneer role. Her parents emigrated to Michigan, her grand-parents to New York from Berkshire county, Mass., and her great-grand-parents to Berkshire, then a wilderness from eastern Massachusetts.

After about 17 years, Mr. and Mrs. Bowen returned to Michigan, living near her parents' old home east of Chelsea until 1897, when they removed to Ypsilanti.

Mrs. Bowen was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and was for many years an active worker in the W. C. T. U. She leaves four children, Prof. W. P. Bowen, of the State Normal College, Misses Caroline and Cara Bowen of Ypsilanti, and Nathan H. Bowen of Detroit. There are five grand children and three great grand children. Henry C. Pierce and Alvin D. Baldwin are nephews and the late Mrs. Wm. Coe was a niece.

Mrs. Fred Gentner and daughter Lotie, spent Wednesday in Grass Lake.

ST. MARY SCHOOL
GIVES TWO PLAYSMembers of St. Mary School Entertain Large Audience with Interesting Plays.

The two plays, "The Heirs of Rockford," a four act drama, and "Robert of Sicily," a three act drama, given by the members of St. Mary Academy at their hall Tuesday evening, was well attended and was a complete success in every respect. The entertainment was certainly a credit to the school and enjoyed by all. The music by the orchestra and the dancing by the children between the acts, was greatly enjoyed.

Those in the play deserve a great deal of credit for the way in which they handled their parts and those in charge are to be complemented upon their results.

OUR POLICIES

Let us all get together for a bigger and better Chelsea. A sewerage system for Chelsea. A building program that is bound to build.

DRAWING A CROWD:

One of the great unsolved mysteries of cities is why people like to gather in a crowd and watch the pick and shovel brigade dig a hole in the ground. It's a curiosity that isn't limited to cities. Go out into the country, start digging, and it'll be just a matter of minutes until the farmer will climb down off his tractor or desert his plow and hurry across the field to watch.

One theory is that the lure of digging into the earth is inherited from boyhood when all of us were firmly convinced that pirates' treasure was buried nearby.

A second is that the soil down under the surface attracts us because we realize, that's where we came from, and that's where we'll return.

The best one, however, is this: We're curious.

The crowd that gladly gathers to watch the ditch digger is also ready to stop and gaze, semitrance fashion, at the safe being hoisted out of a building, the fallen horse, the bootleg victim sleeping in the gutter, or similar unimportant sights.

It lures them all—from rushing business man to corner loafer, rich, poor, highbrow, simpleton. Afraid they'll miss something. Never too busy to waste time.

However, let's keep on gathering in crowds to watch. Thereby we express the insatiable curiosity that is back of all progress. Curiosity, which drove Adam and Eve out of the Garden of Eden, is the guiding force of most of their descendants.

WHERE YOUR FOOD COMES FROM.

Ever stop to wonder where the food you eat comes from? A commission man, "shopping" in New York city, finds spinach from Mexico, honeydew melons from South Africa, fresh almonds from the Holy Land, new potatoes from Florida, green peas and asparagus from California, butter from Denmark, eggs from China, meats from New Zealand and Argentina.

The prices are prohibitive to most people, on the foods "out of season." But even the average person "has it on" such ancient personages as King Tut, when it comes to drawing on the far corners of the earth for food. That's what modern transportation and cold storage refrigeration (invented by Teller who died in poverty) does for us. Why, Tut didn't even have ice.

FETCHING US OUR SUPPLIES.

A soldier at the battlefield requires 30 pounds of food and allied supplies a day, army experts figure. For a million men, 30 million pounds of food and stores daily. This emphasizes how transportation is needed wherever men congregate in large numbers.

Peacetime included. For instance, the railroads move 40,000 pounds of paid freight a year for each of us, or about 110 pounds a day. In addition are deliveries by wagon and motor truck. Conservative guess would be that it requires the movement of 200 pounds of food, coal, building materials, etc., each day for each of us, to keep our civilization moving.

ON THE STAGE.

Shakespeare had been dead 46 years before a woman played the part of Juliet. She was Miss Sanderson. Her first appearance was at Lincoln's Field Inn, London, in 1662. Previously the role was acted by men, following the old custom of those days when actors had low social standing, were classed as vagabonds, and women were not approved as actresses.

The Chinese still have a similar notion, explaining that they hold their women in too high esteem to let them display their charms before an audience for profit.

Maybe this is because the Chinese are backward. If it is, there's a lot of Chinese in a good many Americans.

"CUT DOWN."

Old garments, 55,600 a year are remodeled by farm women "as a result of demonstrations by county extension agents," reports department of agriculture.

You wonder why the outside assistance is necessary, especially if you recall when pa's old suit was cut down to Willie and a "reefer" overcoat lasted through several generations.

As time goes on, we Americans get more helpless. Maybe the day is not far off when the government will have to step in and show us how to wash dishes and repair the flivver.

COLOR OF YOUR HAIR.

The color of our hair is due to the way which we see things, says Professor Pinkler of Vienna. He claims he has proof. If so, it explains an old mystery, never definitely solved, though various plausible theories have been advanced to explain differences in pigmentation, etc.

According to Pinkler, light enters different eyes in different ways. Town dwellers see dark—and grow dark. Mountain and field dwellers see fair—and grow fair. The jungle African sees darkly—so gets his color.

6,000 NEW LOCOMOTIVES.

Railroads this year are expected to buy 6,000 new locomotives, which would be more than in any year since 1905. Important news for business men directly, and all of us indirectly, for shortage of locomotives is a main cause of car shortage.

Worse than the two combined is the increasing shortage of adequate terminals in cities. In other words, congestion of population is the basic problem in transportation the same as in nearly everything else.

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore
There is society where none intrudes,
By the deep sea, and music in its roar,

From these our interviews in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the universe and feel
What I can never express, yet cannot all conceal.

All measurements quoted are for level teaspoons and tablespoons.

This morning on my desk I found a letter asking for a receipt for a good pie plant pie. The plant is fine right now so this is timely and I hope you will find it good.

Peel and cut pie plant in small pieces, about two cups full, then take yolks of two eggs and one cup of sugar and cream together. Lastly mix with pie plant and pour in pie plate lined with crust. If you think it looks too thin add small tablespoon flour. Bake three quarters of an hour. Then beat egg whites and three tablespoons sugar and put on top and brown.

Calls—following an invitation or the first calls of a bride or other new residents in a neighborhood, should be made within two weeks. IMAGINATION is the key which unlocks the door to opportunity. Our job today is to get ready for tomorrow. Money is the trade token of labor. Labor is power—and power is good—when it is used with a thought of tomorrow.

The man standing behind that door is the YOU of tomorrow. Who he is and what he is depends upon you and you alone.

Initiative is the individual need today—it's the word with four "T's" in it. Put that word in your tomorrow's tool box. and use it. It will get you somewhere.

Indifference—Doubt—Lack of Self-Confidence—Want of Purpose—they all lead to defeat and make labor drudgery and unprofitable.

A bank book is an important text book. Acquire one, filling its entry regularly even though in a small way, and soon you will be able to grasp opportunities which will insure your tomorrow.

IMPROVED ROADS

MOVEMENT OF DIRT ROADS

ment of the present not common or dirt roads, aggregating many hundred thousand miles, by M. C. Krump, a consulting engineer, as the next step in the betterment of the present movement.

According to authoritative information, Mr. Krump, in Forbes magazine, "a national program for building in all 180,000 miles of the (in 20 years is practically carrying out). Phenomenal of motortruck and omnibus has thereby at the same time secured, if the business organization for the best utilization of vehicles keeps pace with the increase in road facilities. This secured, and guaranteeing a fair development, it must now be found out how much more may be done for the neglected roads are also looked into locally by the business mind engineer.

on roads, if not all sand, will and afford traction for any surface and subgrade are both dry. The wheels need not be than for similar loads on improved roads. If the road is and high enough above the water, the required height depends on the drainage conditions of the country, the subgrade may remain dry, and the surface it will be wet and perhaps slippery after rain, will dry and will not suffer from wash-out, thorough drainage is the of a common road. If such has been effected, all upkeep reduced and all subsequent impact of the road surface can be effective and lasting without regrading, whenever such is wanted."

DRAGGING RULES

Always ride the drag, do not walk.

Begin on the outside and on the opposite unless road is peaked and needs lining.

Don't sleep on the drag; result will prove your worth. Pull all the perceptible ruts as they are deepened.

Put the humps to a level.

If the drag cuts too deep, on the ditch and vice versa. The amount of earth carrying by the drag and the in cutting and filling are ruled by the driver.

To make a drag cut deep, driver should throw his upon the one foot near cutting or forward corner of drag.

The drag will cut less as the driver's weight is toward the rear and opposite corner of the drag.

If the front rail becomes with weeds or if it is to deposit the load in a the driver should quickly his weight to the farther of the drag.

The earth dug up by the cutting corner of the should be gradually worked to the center of the road under the forward

The rear rail should be set leaning so as to trowel surface smoothly.

The angle of the drag with and the length of the are dependent upon local and materials, but are noticed by an intelligent

Richard Lloyd Jones Says

UMPIRE YOUR OWN GAME

Days have the greatest respect for the fellows who play the game. The boy who cheats, who breaks the rules of the game, may seem to be successful; he may claim the fruits of temporary victories, but once he is discovered in wrongdoing, he has lost more than in all the hollow victories he seems to have gained. This playfellow view him with suspicion; he has lost the priceless possessions of confidence and trust.

The world is ever ready to cheer for the fellow who will honestly lose and find victory in losing. The world has nothing but contempt for him who seeks victory by a conduct that should elicit character.

When the New England baseball league brought its season to an end a few years ago excitement ran high among the fans. The two teams that played off for the pennant had each won two games in the final contest. The bleachers were packed to witness the one last struggle that should decide.

In the last half of the ninth inning, the score stood 2 to 1 against the team at bat. There were two out; two men on bases; the batter up had twice fanned the air; the grandstand was tense.

The pitcher delivered; the batter swung; the grandstand sprang to its feet—a phenomenal hit. The ball shot upward and outward as if started on a journey to Mars. The fielder raced to the corner of the grounds; it was a desperate race.

The keeper of the grounds had not calculated that any ball would ever be driven so far. Along the fence there was a margin of tall grass. Into this the fielder raced. He sprang for it, and with it fell into the grass. The crowd stood breathless. Then from the grass the fielder rose and held high the ball in his hand, an evidence that he had made the catch, that he had made an out, completed the inning, won the game, gained the pennant for his team.

The moment was his. The fans of his city spent their wild enthusiasm in maddening cheers. Then all changed. The hand that held the ball high was lowered and the head that had risen defiantly out of the tall grass sank and was shaken negatively. The cheering ceased; funeral silence lay over the bleachers like a cloudy blanket.

The fielder had won a victory that was above the pale of pennants. He who hung his head in humiliation was lifted into the glory of heroism by men who admired a man who dared multiply himself honestly, who could be as fair by his opposing team as by his own team, who could put the Golden Rule upon a baseball diamond and make it a thing of matchless glory.

Every man is instinctively honest. Every man wants to be honest. But the hunger for success, the ear that aches to hear his fellow men cheer, outlines dulls the conscience to compromise with self to shade the truth with shallow falsehood. But each such compromise makes more blunt and beading that conscience which is the prop of character. And victory, real victory, comes only to those who have made character the Gibraltar of their lives.

The boy who learns to play the game squarely will become the man who plays the game of life squarely, who will take no mean advantage, who knows that no game is ever won unless it is rightly won.

Poem by UNCLE JOHN

The world is full of pitfalls that a fellow should avoid, and the sucker that detects 'em has to keep his wits employed. Then it's right to load a warnin' to our unsuspectin' young, which ort to come impressive, from a fellow that's been stung. . . .

WARNINGS If you run across a sniper with a bunch of oily stock, refer him to yer enemy, that's jest around the block, for he has no objection to the way a fortune's made, and you wouldn't want to do a thing that's in restraint of trade!

In general, I would advocate remainin' home of nights, for there's many a fool distraction, when you're out a-seen' sights, I wouldn't want to stray away—a mile or so from camp,—it's mighty nigh a Waterloo, to run across a vamp!

HOMER PHILOSOPHY for 1923

Once there was a wise boy. He was wise, not foolish, because he bought a car, and wiser still because he used it. Whenever he got into a jam he'd go into the garage and take a long look at that Motor. And his eyes would fix themselves on the shock absorbers. He'd paid about $20 for them. When he first drove the car he found out he'd better dodge the bumps and soften those he couldn't dodge.

Nowadays he sees that life is just a village roadway calling for improvements, and not a very long roadway either. A little cautious driving and we can reach the end without much shaking up. Then we can go into neutral without worrying.

Spring Fashion Notes of Interest to Women

In the spring modes crepe de chine frocks are accompanied by capes to match.

The sport sweater is becoming gaudier in its coloring and we find them embroidered in brushed wools of contrasting colors.

Smart street shoes for spring are of patent leather with a modified heel and tongues made of platted ribbon attached to the shoe with cut steel buckles.

A new material of marked distinction is a sheer crepe of firm texture which serves as a background for the most exquisite embroidery in gay colors simulating cross stitch.

Long, straight coats of sand colored wool and silk are new and very attractive. One particularly lovely model is of heavy crepe covered with fine embroidery in the same tone. A collar and cuffs of violet squirrel add to its chic.

The plain yellow or orange sweater is no longer considered "chic" unless its sleeves and edges are embroidered in several colors. For instance, a yellow brushed wool jacket has a wide border at the bottom of jacket and sleeves of gray and black wool embroidery. The slip-ons are using contrasting stripes throughout them.

Satin, molres and grosgrain claim first attention because of their style dominance, but faille, taffeta and velvet all claim a prominent place in the sun. The reddish browns and greens, the orange-yellow tones and reddish-purple shades gayly flaunt their colors, while black still claims its own, more frequently trimmed with gay colors than was true last season.

The third gift of $10,000 from the same anonymous donor, has been received by J. J. Holmenga, president of Calvin college, of Grand Rapids, for the $100,000 dormitory to be erected this summer. The gift swells the fund to $82,000.

Voters of the Adrian public school district defeated a proposal of the board of education to bond the district for $450,000 for the erection and equipment of a new junior high school building by a 13 to 5 vote last week.

QUICK ACTION BRAKES EXTRA LARGE AND EXTRA SAFE

In the construction of Dodge Brothers Motor Car, every consideration has been given to the owner's safety.

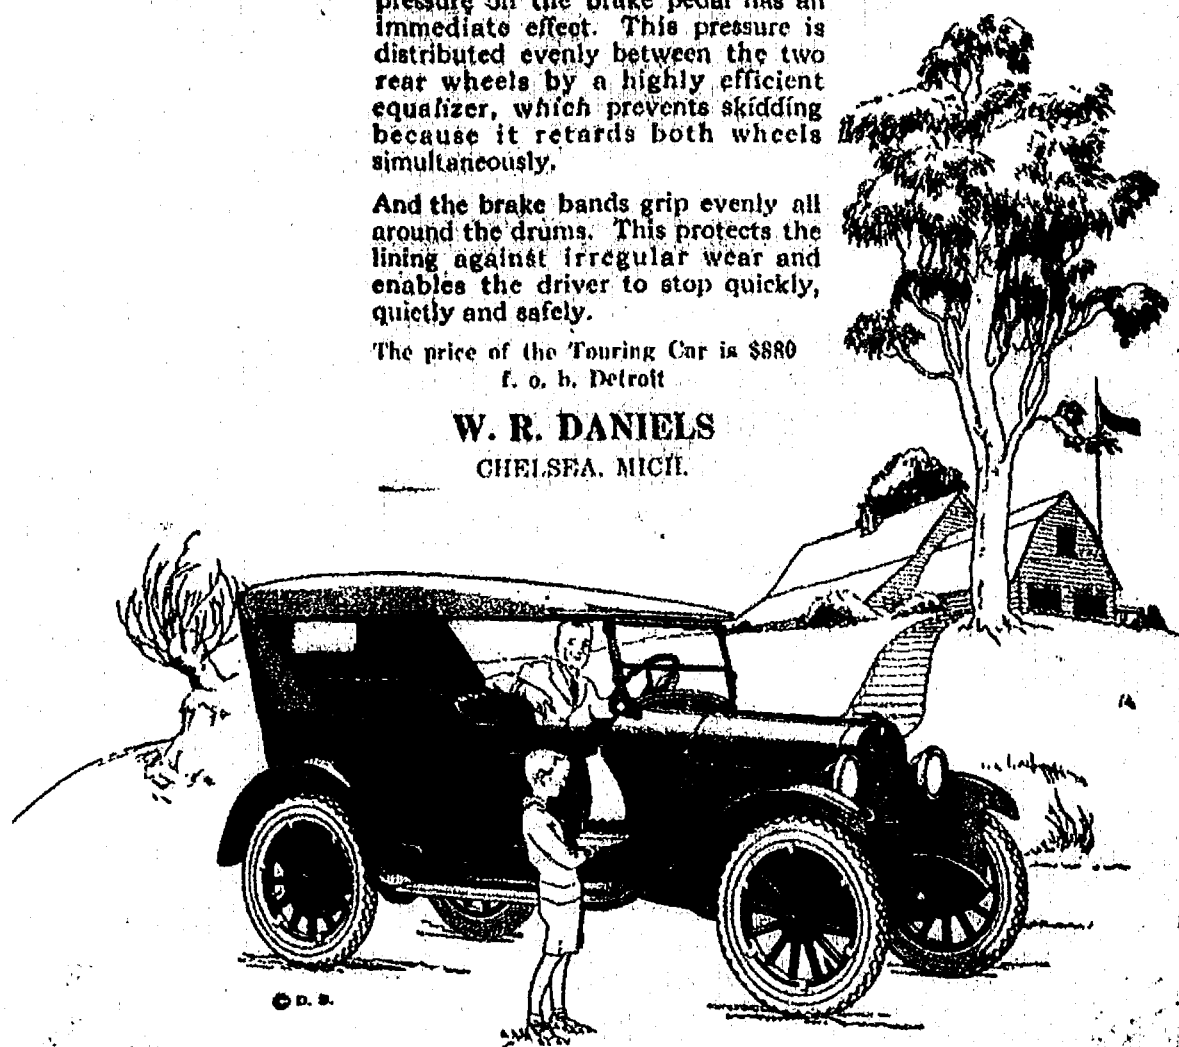

This is particularly evident in the brakes, which, with their 14-inch drums and 2 1/2 inch lining, are appreciably larger than the average. The extra surface thus provided develops greater friction when the brake bands contract over the drums—and it is this friction which stops the car.

Connecting levers are designed to transmit the maximum of power with the minimum of effort. The slightest pressure on the brake pedal has an immediate effect. This pressure is distributed evenly between the two rear wheels by a highly efficient equalizer, which prevents skidding because it retards both wheels simultaneously.

And the brake bands grip evenly all around the drums. This protects the lining against irregular wear and enables the driver to stop quickly, quietly and safely.

The price of the Touring Car is $880 f. o. b. Detroit

Safeguarding Quality

To have confidence in any product it is necessary that you know something about how it is produced and what means were taken to insure quality and consistently maintain it.

AMERICAN Certified Quality GASOLINE

is refined from only the best grade of crude oil; but more than that is required to produce a gasoline that will give real service and satisfaction. During the process of refining, American Gasoline is subject to more than a hundred rigid tests before the product is ready for the market. To further safeguard the quality and maintain it, the finished product is constantly checked and tested by able chemists in our laboratories. From these numerous tests it is evident that the greatest possible care is taken to produce a gasoline of distinctive quality excellence. Performance is the test of quality.

Many Uses for Ribbon From Your Scrap Bag

The number of bags and card cases and purses that can be made of ribbon are as myriad as the number of pieces of ribbon in one's silk scrap bag. It all depends on the size of the scrap of ribbon what kind of a creation can be made. The clever-fingered woman can have an almost limitless number of cunning card cases, purses, etc., with little work, if she will utilize the bits of ribbon she has. The decorations and trimmings can be of ribbon bits, the smallest bit of ribbon making for a tiny French flower, heads combined with the ribbon allow for attractive decorative schemes. Sachet bags of ribbon as an ending for the streamers may add individuality to the dress, coat or cape. Combined in the padding of ribbon flowers on the girdle or hat, sweet perfume radiates from the wearer. The elaborate and beautiful girles model today serve other uses than decoration. Many of the flowers are utilitarian and hide the powder. The rouge puff, sachet padding or a tiny mirror that can be brought out at will. "Follotte girles," that is what some of the novelty girles

Michigan's own ferry for the carrying of automobiles across the Straits of Mackinac likely will be placed in operation this summer, possibly within a month. This was indicated when State Administrative Board authorized Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck to proceed with the purchase of a steamer for the service. When the Legislature convened this year a bill was introduced providing for establishing a ferry at the Straits. It went through with little or no opposition and is now a law. The state board purchased a dock at St. Ignace.

Michigan Happenings

Edward N. Hines, chairman of the Wayne County Road Commission, made public at River Rouge the results of traffic counts made one Sunday at the new bridges in West Jefferson avenue and Fort street over the River Rouge. Between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. 12,171 vehicles passed over the Jefferson avenue bridge, and only 6 were horse-drawn. Not one horse appeared in the procession of 10,251 vehicles over the Fort street bridge during the same period. The statistics indicate also, Mr. Hines thinks, the effect the new bridges have on traffic.

As a crowning event of his twenty-fifth anniversary on entering the priesthood, two high honors, one from the church and the other military, were conferred upon Rev. Father Patrick R. Dunigan, pastor of St. Michael's Catholic church of Flint, and Red Arrow hero, at impressive ceremonies, last week. More than 150 priests and sons from all parts of Michigan attended mass at St. Michael's church, in the morning, at which time the Rt. Rev. Bishop Michael J. Gallagher, named Father Dunigan a monsignor.

The former home of many Methodist ministers at Manistee, has been moved to a new location. The house has been in use since 1871. ## Chats With Your Gas Man

The earliest water heater dates back some two thousand years. This was a crude device—a crude bronze boiler with a handle by which it could be hung over an open fire.

Following this came a container into which hot stones were placed, much as they are placed on the chestnut stove. France, in the Middle Ages, developed a hollow cone of like a huge golf tee, into which hot charcoal was fed, and of which sat a kettle of water.

Later there came the "spirit lamp" which marked the real advance in water heating, at least as to convenience and efficiency. This was followed by the humble teakettle and considerably later by the so-called water heaters in our ranges.

Years later the gas water heater arrived, and for the first time in history a bath could be prepared with no more than turning a cock and lighting a match.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Under the name of "Captain Sazarac," and disguised Jean Lafitte, a former freemason of Saratoga, returned to the city of New Orleans. He is recognized by two of his old companions, Alderman Domingue and Beluche. At the dining table Sazarac has won much money from Colonel Carr, a French officer. As he last winter, Carr has won a woman, presumably a slave. Carr compels Sazarac to accept the challenge. He wins. His old associates and Carr demand of him an account of his life.

CHAPTER II.—A project of the youth-club of New Orleans is the rescue of Napoleon Bonaparte from St. Helena, and a ship, the Scylla, has been made ready. From De Almonister Carr learns that the girl he "won" at the card table in white of high estate, and that the matter has been made a word in the city's resort.

"The jest is this, indeed! Upon the packet trip, this man was an eyes for one of you. Chagrined that I would not introduce him, he was bent upon breaking me at cards. He had the luck of a roll devil even to the last throw at Masspero's. Eh, well, it was but a jest! The town chuckles over it. I ventured him against his winnings of the packet, a bond girl of our household. He took it exceedingly well!"

"We traveled with no servant save the public help," the wife put in. "That is true," Carr straightened up with drunken gravity. "But he took

She swept scornfully upon her husband—"Did you, then, cheat at the cards?"

"The finger, he thought, evilly enough, there was a wench of San Domingo—there was one of you. He was imbecile enough to learn for her glances!"

"Your word, sir, if you recall," said Sazarac gravely.

"A jest! Who would deem it but a cardroom jest?"

The stranger turned as if to escape from an unpleasant situation. But the older woman suddenly came between them. "But what is this curious thing they whisper of along the promenade? I caught a laugh, a plying look!"

"She swept scornfully upon her husband—"Did you, then, cheat at the cards?"

Carr roared his wrath: "No—no my honor! There was no need!"

"The affair is done," murmured the stranger. "Your pardon, Madame!"

But as he made to pass, Carr must have once more at him. "Your wager, sir? The prize you claim—which was it?"

"The silence grew acute. The two women stared unbelievably; the younger turned widening eyes upon the silent stranger.

"He told you—that?"

"Nothing, Madame. Allow me to depart!"

"He meant me! A girl of San Domingo! I should have known in the cardroom!"

You were not mentioned, Madame! I never knew your name before. You will allow me to go, Madame! It is enough!"

It is not enough! You do not know all, sir!" She turned swiftly to the drunken colonel and struck him sharply in the face. "You dared this infamous coward! I—a slave of San Domingo!"

Carr stood in an abrupt sobering. "Lafitte, this is folly!"

"I shall speak! Whom could you mean?"

"Eh? A jest! I said, a jest—not meant for anyone's ears but his and mine! He had the impudence to come here—to claim—something—then settled back on the rail unceremoniously."

"Something?" Miss Lestron turned to Sazarac. "Sir, and what?"

"I do not know. I had no thought to seek Colonel Carr and demand satisfaction. The affair could have been arranged at the Oaks with no breath of the quarrel's point. One of us should die—of the other's lips sealed in honor. Was that not enough, Madame?"

Sazarac, the river gambler, saw a gleam of light in her eyes. Grateful, new, scorn, or the brief interest in this idea of protecting her, he could not say which, for she turned at once to the other man. Her voice flowed steadily but mounting to a peak of incredible contempt.

On the turn of a card, sir? You are high—very high—an an enormous risk in a Charlot

"Will you be still?" blustered Carr, staggering forth. "A jest—I said a jest on him! Your name was not in it! I said a slave girl. Duh—I will go to Langhorne and borrow a wench to pay my debt, if that is the issue!"

"You had best both be still," warned the older woman, frightened now. "Louise, come—this is no matter for a cardroom brawl. Sazarac—if he is caught for a gentleman in this city, must challenge. I suppose—ah, God! He will challenge—"

And, passing them with high head but tear-dimmed eyes, Madame Carr went to her chambers.

"Bah," muttered Carr with sudden drunken sleepiness. "Go home, Sazarac! You, to your rooms, Louise! My head aches with all this ranting! It was a jest. On Sazarac, because of his taking my last farthing—on Louise, because of her airs. Enough, it's done. Sazarac can challenge and be damned. He can send a second—if he knows a gentleman in the city, which is improbable—when I am sober. My affair is in Langhorne's hands. Now, to bed!"

He staggered along the gallery. But suddenly, with a shrug, a howl—a face so red in the moonlight—Captain Sazarac addressed him.

"Sir, I am minded to recall my words. Now, I shall claim my wager!"

"I say—to bed!" mumbled Carr thickly. He reeled at his door, waved a pistol finger at them and crashed against the furniture within.

Miss Lestron stood at the balcony of the winding staircase as the stranger was descending. A step below he turned:

"I claim my wager. Let them have a care who put a jest upon me in this town! The sea is near—and it is with Wilde, Mademoiselle, and deep, and far—very far, is the way to its secret places."

"I do not understand," she was watching him intently. He had gone to the next turn of the staircase. The moonlight struck the silver of his sword hilt. She leaned forth, and her eyes struck fire from his own when he glanced up. "For?" she whispered. "And it may be beautiful!"

He watched her lips. The perfume of the jasmine wall seemed to rise from the court and engage her; she seemed aloft in a purple sea formed by the shadows. A face, a form huddled in the midst of his dark years of remembrance. The soul of his youth was stirring. He had dared all, lost all, on devious quick, hot, prompt as this, in days long past behind.

"I love you," he said quietly. "You will remember that."

She heard his foot on the stone of the court. He was passing the pomgranate clump when he thought something flashed near him in the moonlight.

A white thing, a light thing—a feather, a petal in the air. But he saw no more, nor heard a sound from above. He went to the uncanopied street, wondering if she had waited until his footsteps died away. He wondered why he had spoken; and then he laughed. Sazarac, the gambler, was laughing. Presently he muttered and straightened up, a white blossom in his hand.

"Eh?" he said. "A camellia. . . It has been in her hair. She was to wear it to the opera, and Carr's cry tonight prevented. I would have seen her pass. . . she would have thought me a red-eyed beggar standing by the doorway, but I would have seen her pass."

John Jarvis stared up at the silent balcony. Then he, too, went his way. "The Cafe la Veau Qui Peto," he grumbled. "I shall put on my old waistcoat again to get drunk in Sazarac! Duh—in this Sazarac! A flower from her hair, and the fool did not see it! A flower for Sazarac!"

At the Cafe la Veau he entered by the garden gate and went to sit among the huge wine tuns under the third shed. "Three measures of liquor and I could paint a white camellia against her hair," he mused; "but the taproom and I together could not paint love in her eye—for me."

After that he sought a bench and slept. Presently in came another and by the same stealthy passageway. A huge scoundrel, this, with broad hairy chest, and intemperate arms. He examined the sleeping painter, took off his coat and spread it above him. "He must be kept drunk and asleep," muttered Johnness. "The fool would shout it through the town—the Captain Jean returned, and meeting us old ghosts up from the islands! Enter, Old Salt-Nose! None here save John, the taproom avocet. A howl from him and he draws my knife point! Sit quiet and await. Our host gave me the keys and is asleep. . . he prefers not to know what he should not know, like any wise man!"

CHAPTER IV

The Old Sea-Rovers Awaken. At midnight Captain Sazarac turned from the rue de la Lave to the broad pavement that skirted the Place d'Armes, and, for a moment, contemplated the changes which even the few years of the American occupation had wrought in the Parks of the New world. A painted iron palisade with ornate grill gates enclosed the square before the cathedral, which he had known as a dusty parade-ground over which lazily flapped, now one now the other—the royal standard of Spain or the fleur-de-lis of France. A portion of the ancient wooden galleys still remained, but about it, now, the children played of mornings, listening to the four-note tales of Bras Coupe, the terror of the scoundrels, who preyed on human flesh and was proof to musket balls, as the colored nurses had it.

In the narrow way between the cathedral and the old Spanish colonnade the exile paused again. Documents of court and account were tucked to the wooden doors. Not so many years ago had not the Grand Lafayette sent his men up from the plafond, furnished refuge for the escape of his brother, Pierre, from this same prison! And time and again had not he built himself to read, on these same boards—the city's proclamation for their capture—the law's futile fury when no man durst lay hand upon them, so completely did the Grand Terre adventures awe the town?

"How many changes!" mused the wayfarer. "Hailed by the city as a hero, pardoned by the President and acquitted for service to the nation, repudiated, denounced again and driven from the seas! Yet I walked these streets when no merchant was too proud to traffic for the goods we brought from the gulf privateering. And again the good sea calls—again, again!"

He came up smiling—use to say. He made his fortune that way. He had hard luck a plenty, too. And settled down and fought her through.

And every time he got a job. He just took on a tighter hold. Slipped back some when he tried to climb. But came up smiling every time. —James W. Foley.

GOOD THINGS FOR EVERY DAY

"This is the time of year when a 'hotted dinner' is appreciated. Of course it is delicious, but it is worth it. A few minutes with open windows and doors will carry away all trace of the cooked vegetable odors. It is a good plan to keep the kitchen door closed and a window lowered from the top while the cooking is going on. Cabbage, rutabagas, carrots, potatoes are the vegetables usually cooked together. A nice, fat piece of corned beef with a piece of fat pork makes a good flavor. The meat is put into the vegetable kettle and cooked for an hour at simmering temperature before the vegetables are added. The cabbage is cut into quarters, and if small two will be needed for a family of five who are healthy and like boiled dinners. A good, big rutabaga, weighing three or four pounds, should be cut into wedge shaped pieces; the carrots, if small, may be cooked whole; otherwise they are cut into halves and quarters. The potatoes are best left whole, and should be of uniform size. Cook slowly for an hour or more, then serve with vegetables arranged in alternating colors around the platter, with the meat in the center. The hash, which may be made from the left-overs, is often as much enjoyed as the original dinner. Chop the vegetables, add some of the broth and chopped meat, stirring until well mixed and seasoned. Salt will need to be added unless the meat is very salty. The hash is very nice and tasty, and may be kept for a dinner some later in the week."

Rice Salad—Take one cupful of cooked rice, one cupful of sliced cooked beets, and two cupfuls of minced celery. Season with one-quarter of a teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a dash of cayenne, and moisten with a good hot dressing.

NORTH LAKE WINS.

The North Lake nine played the Sugar Lake team Sunday afternoon. North Lake winning the game with a score of 24 to 6. Hankard pitched for the winners and Rowe for the losers.

SCREW CO. PLAYS WATERLOO.
The Chelsea Screw Co. ball team will go to Waterloo Saturday afternoon to play a return game with the Waterloo Glens. The game will be called at 2:30 P. M.

CHLSEA GOES TO GRASS LAKE SUNDAY.
The Chelsea Independents will journey to Grass Lake Sunday where they will play the Grass Lake ball team in a return game. Chelsea has been out practicing most of the week and will be in good shape Sunday for the stiff aggregation they will meet. There will be some new faces on the nine again, if plans develop. Miller and Collins will probably be the batteries for the game.

FIVE HOMERUNS
Pete Schneider, of the Vernon Coast League team set a new record when he slammed out five home runs in six times at bat last week. The former record was made by Bobby Lowe, of Boston, who registered four.

ATHLETES ASSEMBLE IN ANN ARBOR FOR BIG TEN MEET
Ann Arbor, Mich., June 1.—On the eve of the greatest track and field meet in the country this year, the Big Ten meet to be held here tomorrow, Ann Arbor is a veritable beehive of track followers.

The Michigan Union building, which is the headquarters of the athletes, is fairly swarmed with some of the greatest figures in track circles throughout the world.

The University of Iowa team arrived Thursday morning 20 strong, and with coaches, trainers and followers, went immediately to the Union and to their allotted rooms for rest. Among their sturdy athletes is the Charles Brooks who is reputed to be the fleetest mortal in the world to-day in running the 220 yard low hurdles and the only man who has ever run the distance in 23 seconds.

Little Drake University of Des Moines, Iowa, is represented by 2 performers who are determined to uphold the name of their school among athletes who are famed the world over and who are second to none.

The brilliant Michigan athletes, acting as hosts to the great gathering, have been confined in their rooms for rest in preparation for the morrow's activities for their is a hard lot. Pager to add another championship to the already long list of Michigan achievements this year, they will find a worthy foe in the mighty Illini, coached by the redoubtable Harry Gill.

The preliminaries were run off this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. Eastern time the finals will begin. The University of Michigan band will march on to the field at 1:45 followed by the officials and participants who will stand at attention while the National Anthem is played after which the 100 yard dash will be called and the great meet will be under way.

OFFICIALS NAMED FOR BIG TEN MEET
Ann Arbor—Officials for the Western Conference track and field meet, which is to be held here, have been selected by the Board of Directors of the Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association which is in charge of the meet.

Thirty-two men, among whom are some of the most prominent figures in track circles in the middle west, have arrived in Ann Arbor on a special car to take charge of the meet. In accordance with Big Ten custom, the officials will all be attired in white trousers, blue coats and straw hats while the attendants on the field will wear uniforms. The officials, attendants and participants are the only ones who are allowed on the field.

bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J.
Dunn, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right.
I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and aches."—Advt.
