"BILL"

Monday is Labor Day. Just why has the first Monday in September been made a holiday and called Labor Day? According to the best information possible it is a holiday set aside for the workmen in this country and is also observed in Canada and Australia.

It may be that the day has been well earned, in that it is to honor the laboring or working class, (which really goes in by far the greatest percentage of us) but the day comes at the close of the summer season, and there is a good many who have a hard time to figure out why it is a holiday and just where the rest comes in.

It being a day in honor of the workman, how would it seem if all the working people really stopped during the 24 hours. Most of us would have a lot to kick about because we are used to continuous service in certain things that a 24 hour shut down would almost make us mad.

In reality, should such a shut down be made, the loss to the country would be so great that it would be almost unbelievable. As the day approaches we wonder what we will do. We have planned for weekend trips to various places, some will go by car, some by train, some by motor. Some may even travel by airplane. Some people will go to the lakes and others to summer cottages and cabins. We will find exclusive hotels and resorts, while still others will just stay home and be comfortable.

Near Chelsea there will be one of the biggest picnics of the season when the Masons from over the entire county of Washtenaw and even adjoining counties will gather near here for a big celebration. Chelsea is indeed fortunate to be so near the place that can accommodate the crowds and the people who are interested will no doubt be there in full force.

If the crowds as expected arrive all room in the grove will be needed. Some of the folks will either have to walk on the others' heads or they will never be able to get near the picnic grounds. If the place gets so crowded, some of the folks can take to the water, and if the day is especially hot, no doubt many will.

But coming back to Labor Day, one man when asked what he was going to do over Labor Day, answered that he thought he'd take a boat trip. When asked where he was going he said that his intentions were of going to Niagara Falls. Immediately the crowd thought came to those that had thought of going to the spot in the United States most frequented by newly married folks and its reputation has been widely advertised as a spot to take a honeymoon trip to. Whether this particular young man is going on a honeymoon trip or just a pleasure trip, could not be determined, and before the discussion was all over, he was not certain that he was going.

When Labor Day comes, the children all over the country have but one thought, and that is, school starts tomorrow. On Tuesday all the children in the vicinity will start back to school. They will see their new teachers, pass their opinions, naturally as we all have done, and try to get back into the form of studying every once in while.

How many times the thought occurs to the young minds, "I wish the school would burn." Or then again, "I wish that teacher would get sick." These wonderful days make it hard for young folks to sit in school rooms, and back of it all is the greatest fundamental of this country. Education.

Mothers are glad that school starts, because then there is no longer the continual watching of all day. There is no more the continued call for cookies or something to eat. For the mothers, however, it will be a relief to see their offspring start back to school.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
GUILD HAVE PLANS FOR FAIR.
The Congregational church Guild have already made preliminary plans for a fair to be held in the church.

The date for the event has been set for Thursday, December 6th, and the preliminary work is being handled by a committee, who are working at it. In connection with the Fair a chicken pie supper will be served evening and if the plans that are formulated are all carried out, it will be one of the biggest Fairs ever held in the church.

O. E. S. TO SELL
LUNCHES AT PICNICCounty Masonic Picnic Promises To Be One of The Best In Years

Big plans for the County Masonic picnic to be held Labor Day are all formulated and practically every bit of preliminary work has been done. The entire county will join in for the big celebration to be held all day, Monday, September 3rd at Eisenbecker's Grove North Lake.

Olive Lodge of Chelsea had planned a separate picnic, but later decided that the big picnic would be much better and so they have combined their efforts with those of the county association to make the day a gala one.

Various chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star are going into competition with one another to have stands on the grounds during the day where lunches will be sold. The ladies of Olive Chapter, O. E. S. are working hard to have the best stand on the grounds, and from the amount of food that has been pledged so far by various members they will have no trouble in keeping the crowd interested in food.

As the plans have been made by the committee in charge such things as frankfurts, rolls, coffee, fried cakes, ice cream, pie, cake, cracker jack, pop, ginger ale, cigars and candy will be on sale at the Chelsea stand. All the baked goods on sale will be home-made and this will no doubt be a big inducement to hungry picnickers.

The members of the Chelsea chapter are desirous of making their day a most successful one, as they hope to use the proceeds of the sale in partial payment of their portion of interior expenses of the hall.

With the weather man promising good weather, the crowd at the Masonic picnic should be an exceptional one. Chelsea orders will be out in full force and with members of the fraternity and their families coming from every section and corner of the county the grove should be packed.

MAN SEVERELY INJURED
IN AUTO CRASHCar Hits Three Others Before Going Into Ditch.

A Ford touring car was badly smashed Wednesday afternoon when it ended a wild and disastrous trip finally ending in the ditch. The car driven by an Ann Arbor man was going west on M-17 about a mile west of town when the driver tried to pass other cars.

After passing the first car he swung out again to pass the second, but another car coming from the west struck him and pushed him into the ditch he was passing. Then the car jumped back and across the road and into the ditch, turning over.

Accompanying the driver were a colored man and woman. After the occupants had been pulled out of the wreckage it was found that the driver was seriously injured. A local physician attended him and gave him first aid. A passing motorist carried him on into Ann Arbor to the hospital. He had a bad gash on his head and several body bruises and cuts.

The other occupants of the car were also hurt but not seriously. The woman had a cut on the head and arm, and the man was cut on the leg and suffered body bruises.

Empty bottles were evidence that the parties had been drinking. The driver when taken to Ann Arbor was still unconscious. The automobile was a bad wreck, and three other cars were damaged by the car.

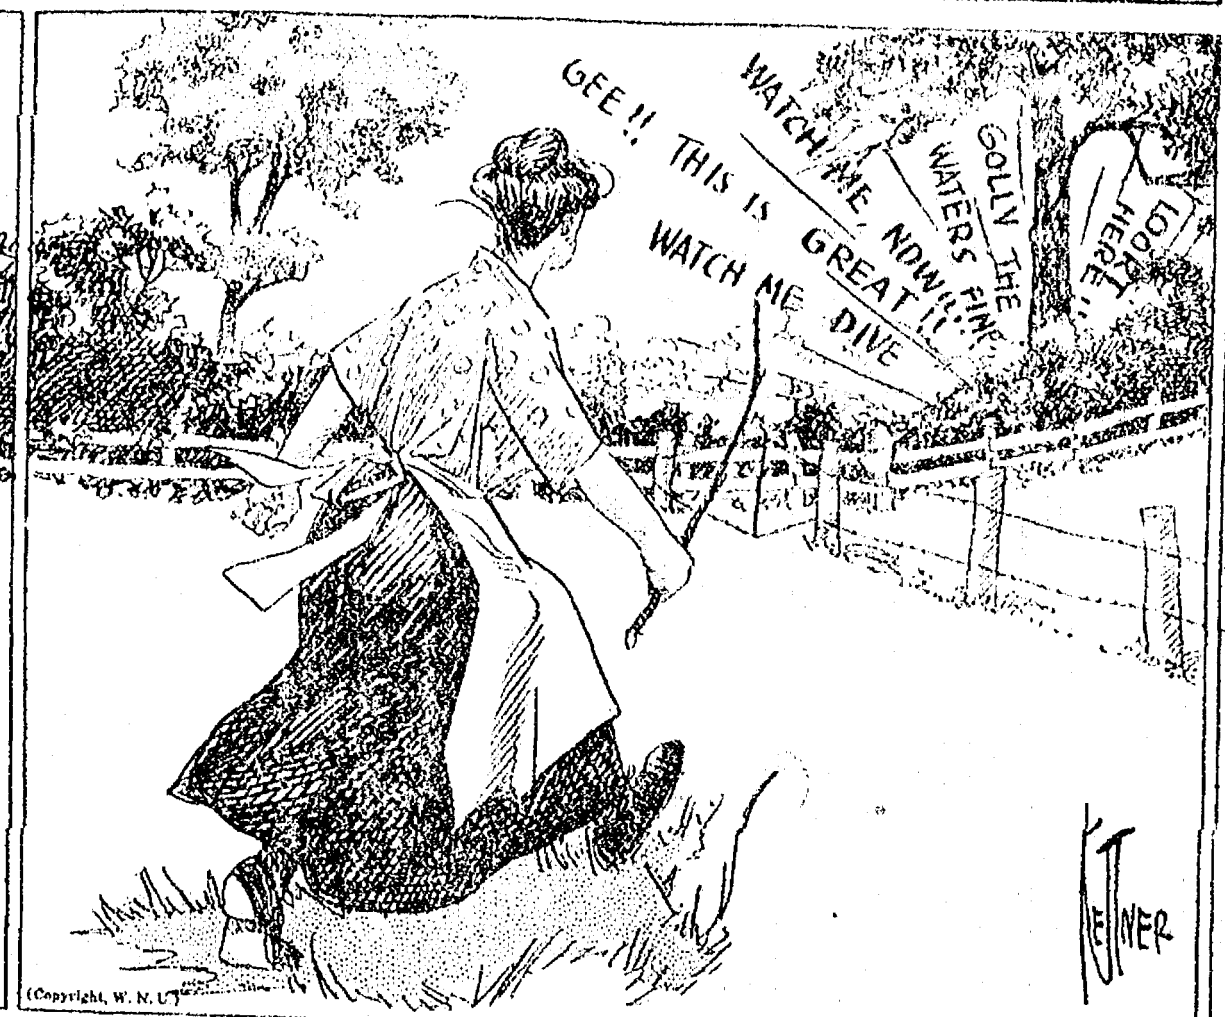

KIDDIES HAVE BIG TIME
AT CRADLE ROLL PICNIC

A most delightful day was spent by the Cradle Roll and Beginners classes of St. Paul's church at the annual picnic on the church lawn, Wednesday afternoon. The program occupying the afternoon, consisted of games, surprises and stunts. The fishing pond was the main attraction for the children, every child received a gay colored squawker, that made a noise; it was the merriest party that some of the Cradle Roll babies had ever seen. The tallest child present was Junior Seitz and the smallest Paul Schneider both received a prize. Every minute was enjoyed by the kiddies and mothers. Thirty-five were present and enjoyed the luncheon served on the lawn. The best thing for the entertainment of those present was provided by Mrs. Tisch who knew full well that ice cream and suckers were essential for the success of a children's party.

SENSATIONAL
FIREWORK DISPLAY

Attractions at The Washtenaw County Fair.

Features in Fireworks will be prominent in the nightly displays at the Washtenaw County Fair this year as arrangements have been made by the management to present a mammoth program of pyrotechnics as a part of the evening's entertainment.

This is of special interest to the children as the arrangements made call for such displays as will most strongly appeal to them and everything possible in this direction will be carried out. They will see such familiar objects as barn yard favorites displayed in living fire. The cows, chickens, thrashing machines and even the old farm house itself will be portrayed and with the superb serial rockets and monster bombs, provide a varied entertainment that will be of an interesting and sensational nature.

Immense wheels, glittering stars, vari-colored shells and gorgeous fountains will be exhibited, together with many kind set pieces in which patriotic and other devices will be seen. Fireworks have been popular from time immemorial and the fair management have decided to give them the prominent place on the evening bill of attractions.

Niagara Falls will be depicted in fire, with the torrent rushing over the brink in such luminous waves that it lights up the entire grounds and rivals the mid-day sun in brilliancy. Kodak owners will have ample opportunity to take photographs by the light, so vivid will it be and those who go in for amateur photography can obtain pretty pictures of the nightly displays as souvenirs of what it is believed will be the best fair ever held in Washtenaw county up to the present time.

20,000 PER CENT CONSIDERED
GOOD PROFIT BY WALL STREET

German Marks reached a new low record Wednesday when they dropped to 10 cents a million. One vendor made a neat profit of 20,000 per cent. He bought ten cents worth of marks—one million—and sold them for 20 cents for 10,000. The report comments that even Wall Street admitted that was a good margin. On each dime invested the vendor realized $20.

TRAVEL SKETCH OF
BOSTON AND ENVIRONSTourists To Eastern Places Of Interest, Increase Yearly

By Carrie Krell

A noted London clergyman now visiting this country said recently, "It is quite as impossible to see America in one summer as it is to tour Europe satisfactorily in an equally limited time."

The Old World will be of exceeding interest to the student of history and of literature. The New World is beginning to realize something of the value of its comparatively new historical wealth scattered in many parts of our vast domain, but largely abundant in the Atlantic coast.

In historic Boston the tourist may find many noted buildings and literary names. He may visit Faneuil Hall—ancient cradle of liberty; the Old North Church, and Paul Revere's House; the Bunker Hill Monument and the old Frigate Constitution, Cambridge, noted for the oldest college in the United States, 1636, has its well known Memorial Hall in memory of Harvard men who served in the Civil War; its University Museum has the unique Ware collection of glass flowers.

The statue of John Harvard, the homes of Longfellow and Lowell, and beautiful Mount Auburn Cemetery with its distinguished dead, are worthy of attention.

Among modern buildings of interest are: the Boston Public Library, Trinity church, beautiful in architecture and notes for the pastorate of Philip Brooks, the Christian Science church built at a cost of $2,000,000 and seating five thousand people.

The tourist may go from Boston to Marblehead to see its winding streets so narrow that the corner of a house was removed to permit the passing of Lafayette's carriage in the early part of the 19th century.

Not far away is Salem with its "House of Seven Gables" dear to every reader of Hawthorne. Lexington and Concord present their historical fields and literary homes. The tourist may visit "The Old North Bridge" where once "The embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard round the world." The former homes of Emerson, Hawthorne, Louise M. Alcott, and the site of Thoreau's hut near Walden Pond, may be seen.

Southeast of Boston lies historic Plymouth, New England's "stern and rock-bound coast" is plainly evident as the tourist passes intervening towns associated with names of John Adams, Samuel Woodworth, Daniel Webster, and John Alden. In Plymouth the foremost object of interest in Plymouth Rock lying in its original place where the tidal waters wash its surface, and protected by its beautiful new stone canopy. 1620, date never-to-be-forgotten! Not far away is the National Monument to the Forefathers, dedicated in 1889. Its appropriate and gigantic statue of Faith is the largest granite statue in the world. Pilgrim Memorial Hall contains several noted paintings and many relics of the Pilgrims.

Each summer records an increasing number of tourists visiting not only the Old World, but also scenic and historic United States.

There are books on how to play golf. The golf widow need one on how to stop playing it.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION
STILL FLOURISHESHighway Improvement in Michigan
Not Dependent on Gasoline Tax.

Detroit, August 30. The famous concrete road system of Wayne County, Michigan, which has served as an example of modern highway construction all over the country is being increased this year by a record-breaking amount of new cement surface, according to Edward N. Hines, chairman of the county road commission and former president of the Detroit Automobile Club.

"Despite gloomy pronouncements of the gasoline tax bloc in the state legislature, who maintained that no roads would be built in the state this year unless their pernicious measure was passed, we are going ahead at a great rate than ever before," declares Mr. Hines.

Builds 15 Miles.

"Up to August 25th we built 458,728 square yards of 9-inch concrete road which, reduced to miles of 18-foot roadway, would mean the addition of nearly 45 miles of new road. The linear mileage of our new road is not quite that great, due to the fact that we have increased our minimum width to 20 feet, with widths of 24, 27 and 40 feet not uncommon.

"Wayne's new roads are in addition to maintenance, always in progress and are also in addition to the considerable amount of bridge and grade separation work, implied in both old and new construction," concludes Mr. Hines.

It is also a noteworthy fact that the work of improved highway building throughout the entire state is also progressing at a rate highly gratifying to the motorists and those benefited by the better transportation, which good roads imply.

Up to the week of August 18th contracts let for concrete road construction in the state totaled 2,212,666 square yards. The contracts for gravel, macadam and other types of highway, also show gratifying increases.

Michigan's progress in improving both its trunk lines and its contributing system of highways continues, it is plain, at a satisfactory pace.

It is expected that the commanding officers of Moslem Temple, Michigan Sovereign Consistory and the officers of the Wayne County Masters Assn. and their families will attend.

COOLIDGE NOW ORGANIZED FOR
OWN ADMINISTRATIONSemp Succeeds Christian Washington
Sees Drive for Nomination.

By Robert Fuller

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—President Coolidge's first thirty days in office ends this week. During that brief time the nation has witnessed a most unexpected and complete change in the national political situation.

Commencing next Tuesday, September 4th, the real Coolidge administration swings into action. Geo. C. Christian, Secretary to the late President Harding, will be succeeded by Pres. Coolidge's new secretary, Campbell Bascom Semp of Virginia.

The appointment of Semp by Coolidge is still a source of astonishment to official Washington. However, it has now been accepted as a virtual announcement by Coolidge that he is out in full force for the Republican nomination in 1924.

C. Bascom Semp of Big Stone Gap, Va., former Congressman and Republican State Chairman since 1905, is known as the Republican Patronage Boss of the South. The appointment of Semp, the first made by Coolidge, has been termed a magnificent political stroke to capture Southern Republican support and delegates to the next G. O. P. Convention.

The astonishment at the appointment of Semp, is in the fact that pages in the Record of the last session of Congress, are filled by debate in which Thos. W. Harrison of Va., (Democrat) charged and backed up his charges by producing signed letters and checks, that Semp had sold G. O. P. post office patronage for sums ranging from $50 to $300. Semp claimed the money represented only campaign contributions.

When it came to a vote, the Republicans ousted Harrison and seated Semp's man, John Paul, but Harrison had his revenge by being re-elected to the next Congress. The last Congress was the first time Semp had failed to return, after succeeding his father at the latter's death in 1907. Semp dropped out at this last election.

C. Bascom Semp was born at Turkey Cove, Lee County, Va., Sept. 4, 1870, studied law at the University of Virginia, was once mathematics instructor, practiced law at Big Stone Gap, Va., was President of the Semp Coal Company and the Hamilton Realty Company. Mr. Semp is a bachelor. He declined offers made by President Harding of a place on the Civil Service Commission, as Assistant Secretary of Commerce and as Ambassador to Peru, the White House announcement at his appointment disclosed.

OUR POLICIES

Let us all get together for a bigger and better Chelsea. A sewerage system for Chelsea. A building program that is bound to build.

WHAT FOLKS TALK ABOUT.

Men often wonder what women talk about when they're alone. We presume women have a reciprocal curiosity.

Henry T. Moore, decided to make a scientific investigation of "sex differences in conversation." He tells about it in the Journal of Abnormal Psychology.

Every evening for several weeks Moore walked up and down the night life district of Broadway in New York, listening to the talk between men, between women and between mixed groups.

He discovered that, out of every 100 women conversing with women, 44 were discussing persons of the opposite sex, men. Twenty-three talked about clothing, building and interior decorations. Sixteen discussed persons of their same sex.

Where a woman was talking to a man, in 22 cases out of 100 the conversation was about men and the same number about money and business. These were the leading topics.

In the case of a man talking to a woman, the talk in 25 out of 100 cases concerned amusement. Second choice topic was money and business, 22.

Where men were with men, no women present, the talk in 48 out of 100 cases had to do with money and business. Amusement ranked second, 14 out of 100. Third came persons of the same sex, 13 cases. And only 8 out of 100 conversations were about women.

According to Moore's eavesdropping, money and business dominate nearly a half of the conversation between men, while nearly half of the talk of woman to woman deals with men.

Here is a contrast of interests that might be expected as a biological matter. It strikingly emphasizes the wide gulf that separates the two sexes, as regards capacities for various kinds of enthusiasm.

Of course, Broadway is not altogether typical of life in general. It is a center of diversion and the crowds found talking there at night are light hearted and none too serious minded. Still, it's in our recreational moments that our real selves—our suppressed or repressed desires—rise to the surface.

Moore found that the two sexes have this in common: Their conversation is—or, at least, was on Broadway—limited almost exclusively to money and business, amusement, persons of the same sex, persons of opposite sex and clothes, buildings and interior decorations. Rather dimmed outlook for the more "serious" topics of life.

RED CROSS NEVER SLEEPS.

There is no more effective system available in searching for missing persons than the Red Cross chapters, maintaining home service throughout the country. But this equipment is made doubly effective where inquiry is augmented by securing the co-operation of local motion picture theatres.

Rawlins, Wyo., furnished an example noted by Thomas Temple, field representative of central division, says the Red Cross Courier. Carbon county chapter endeavored to locate a man who had lost contact with his family. The slide was shown in the theatre in that city, which has many oil fields in its vicinity, for it was thought the man might be employed in the district. Sure enough, a man in the audience recognized in the portrait one of the men working with him and reported the fact to the Red Cross.

FOR AMERICAN BOOKS.

Pennsylvania is the scene of the last move in the campaign against un-American school history textbooks. Governor Pinchot attached his signature to a resolution adopted by the legislature giving the state department of public instruction authority to investigate all textbooks of history and discontinue those found to contain improper matter. The public indignation that followed the exposures in New York city and state, Washington, D. C., Wisconsin, and Oregon of several American history textbooks that subordinated the truth to alien propaganda has found expression in resolutions by patriotic societies and in the action of legislators in other cities and states. The purification movement should continue until our textbooks are freed from foreign influence and cease to act as the vehicle for exploiting the personal opinions of their authors on international or domestic politics.

WILL POWER

He fasted 70 days—Jonas Forse, 74, farmer near Rush Lake, Minn. His purpose? A last resort attempt to regain his health. It was a losing fight. He died. But he kept on his feet up to the last week. That's what will power did for a man with one foot in the grave. It suggests the possibilities of what will power can do for people blessed with good health.

Will power is to human careers what the 'B Battery' is to radio.

THE PASSING STREET CAR.

Street cars will soon disappear entirely in New York and be replaced by busses, predicts that city's police traffic expert, Dr. John A. Harriss. He also predicts overhead roads and streets with four lanes, the inner two for express traffic, autos to run a mile without stopping. This may be a picture of the average city later, the chances are that the airplanes will to considerable extent eliminate autos by taking traffic into the air.

Michigan Happenings

Supervisors and a number of officers from agricultural centers painted a dreary picture when they appeared before the state board of equalization at Lansing. Representatives of a dozen agricultural counties told the board the farm values were decreasing, farming communities were going backward because the young and the old were leaving for high city wages, and farmers throughout the state could not meet their taxes. The prosecuting attorney of Lapeer county, asserted the farmers not only could not pay their taxes but were unable to borrow money on their farms.

An investigation into the price of coal in Grand Rapids was directed by the city commission. Evidence presented to the commission indicated that Pocahontas run of mine is being sold as high as $13 here, although it is being sold in Chicago for $8.25 delivered. It is said. The city purchasing agent, said quotations on Pocahontas run of mine were $3.74 to $4 at the mine, and that the freight rate from the coal district to Grand Rapids was $3.48 per ton.

An ordinance was adopted by the Pontiac city commission which makes it possible for the commission to hold hearings at which witnesses may be compelled to testify and produce any books, records or papers demanded of them. Persons refusing to do so can be held guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not to exceed $500 and imprisonment in the jail for not more than 90 days.

Blame for the wreck of the Knights Templar special train from Grand Rapids to Flint, in which five persons were killed and 27 injured near Durand, June 6, is officially placed on poor track conditions, and operating officers of the Grand Trunk Western railroad are held responsible. In a report published at the Interstate commerce commission offices at Washington.

It is understood the preliminary work of the investigation will be completed shortly and steps looking toward possible court procedure will be taken.

Brown Bread.—One egg, one-quarter cup brown sugar, one-quarter cup molasses, two cups sour milk, two cups graham flour, one cup white flour with one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons soda, nuts and raisins if desired. Bake in moderate oven one hour.

Clean all fish, fowls and vegetables in a paper and burn it. This saves dishwashing and scrubbing.

Dish Cloths.—One cannot be too careful about the condition of the dish cloth and towels. They should be washed, rinsed and hung to dry after each using.

Stained China.—It is a nuisance to find that china is stained with tea or other marks. To remove such stains, put the china in a saucepan of warm water with a little soda and let boil for about ten minutes.

Leather Trimming is a popular trimming for coats, gowns and even hats. Some hats are made entirely of leather.

Good Form.—A hostess presents all her friends to a guest of honor and if the company is small she should try and make all her guests know each other. She must see that lonely people are generally introduced, but she should never lead a guest about a large room for the purpose.

Our Complexion.—If rouge is used at all it should be applied with great discretion. The moment it becomes apparent it has defeated its purpose, which is to stimulate a faint and healthful touch of color. Each person must discover for herself the color which is least conspicuous. Dark red rouge are generally best for all except blondes.

Tourists continued to journey north in great numbers, while birds have already started their migration southward owing to the cold nights. Hundreds of martins which spent the summer near Holland, have started south. It is the first time that the birds have departed before September.

"Easy come, easy go" explains the failure of thousands of well-paid workers to get ahead in the world, to better their condition, to own a home, provide for old age and give their children a better chance than they had.

How easy it is to set aside a certain portion of one's earnings to be deposited in a bank regularly on each pay day! And how astonishingly rapid is the growth of this reserve when it is added to consistently! This habit, if formed early in life and followed persistently, in itself is sufficient to insure financial success.

Start a savings account with at least one-tenth of your earnings deposited on every pay day. You can easily adjust your expenditures so that you will never miss this amount. Just as easily, you could spend one-tenth more than you are making, and never get any real benefit from it. It is all a question of depositing it and letting it stay in the bank.

Many great fortunes were originated in this way—by saving a certain percentage of earnings and putting it to work for its owner. Interest works for you day and night and on holidays. It increases your capital, and the return is constantly growing.

Start a savings account.

SPORTS

COMES HERE SUNDAY.
Game which had been scheduled to be played last Sunday at Wilkinson field, but which was postponed in respect to "Dick" Schmidt, star of the team, whose funeral Sunday, has been changed Sunday.
It will come here with the usual of winning, and if nothing happens they will put up a game. If Chelsea is in form it will be able to put up a stiff game. This will be the first game of a 5 game series which will no doubt come loaded. Lineup will be the same as usual. Miller will do mound duty for Gus Ech, well known Dexter team, has sent in no lineup team, and will probably keep it until the game starts.

COMPANY HAS TWO BIG GAMES FOR THE WEEK.

Scow Company is getting set for game with Waterloo Saturday at Wilkinson field. This is the rubber game of a five game series. It is certain to be full of action. Scow will pitch for the Scow team with Brosnan opposing. In the four games played this year there has only been one point in the score which shows Scow are evenly matched. This will start at 2:30 o'clock. Saturday morning at 10 o'clock the Scow team will be the opponent of the Scow Co. on Wilkinson. Sugar Loaf Aces have been a good ball all season and expect to take this game by a large margin. The Scow Co. is just as determined to win this game as Sugar Loaf. A hot battle is looked for. Scow is slated to pitch for the Scow Co. and C. Rowe for Sugar Loaf.

Hubbard will jump against Ed. Board, star Harvard Negro, who holds the world's record of 52 feet, 3 inches in the jumping event and Sol Board, another Negro athlete, who is a considerable class in the jump.
Michigan contingent, composed of Board, Brookner and Higgins, left for Chicago yesterday for preliminaries which will be held Saturday and tomorrow.

SHE WILL DANCE IMPROVE HER TENNIS

Wills, National Champion Countess Cost and Played To Win Title

By Alida Chamberlain

York, August 30.—Helen Wills, California, believes in the first sport, which is "keep your eye on the ball." She believes in the rule of extreme sacrifice—and result, she is today National Tennis Champion, the youngest to wear the crown.

Wills won the honor in defeating America's heretofore greatest tennis player, the veteran woman, Molla Bjurstedt, who held the title for seven years. The title match played here

National Champion and Only 17

Helen Wills, 17 year old California girl, is the new National Women's Tennis Champion, defeating the seven time champion, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt, at New York last week, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1. Now the youthful star is returning home to take up her education at Stanford University. She will not play in any more tournaments this year.

was won by Miss Wills in straight sets score 6-2, 6-1.

Now that Miss Wills is speeding to her far-western home, where next week she lays aside her tennis racket to take up studies as a freshman in the University of California, it is interesting to know of the singleness of purpose displayed by this young girl in her climb to the top.

Miss Wills, accompanied by her mother, came to New York a month before the National Championship play was scheduled and started a careful preparation for the big tournament.

Then came the minor tournaments and the usual social round of entertainments, dances, luncheons, etc., for visiting players.

Since Miss Wills' rise to the heights it is recalled she realized fully what the title would cost her in personal sacrifices and was willing to pay the price. She was never seen amongst the throngs at any of the social affairs. She accepted no invitations. Instead, she kept regular hours in dining, sleeping and exercise. Her campaign was mapped out and she let nothing interfere.

As much as her young girlish nature must have craved the social relax and pleasures, she turned her back on all invitations and kept only in mind eye the one thing she wanted most—the championship. She won the championship—won on real ability—ability backed by physical condition which was wonderful to behold.

Throughout the full week of play against the best women tennis players this and the old world could produce, this 17 year old girl flashed through her matches a victorious inspiration to physical fitness.

J. M. Jennings, referee of the championship match and a tennis authority, recommended to the mother, Mrs. Wills, that the study of esthetic dancing would help the new champion's footwork, so dancing is to be a part of Miss Wills' education before her return to defend her title in 1929.

Human Hair Made Into Cloth Resists Heavy Pressure

Tons of human hair are being turned to cloth by a southern factory in supply to demand of cotton-need oil mills of that section for a fabric that will withstand, for time at least, a pressure of 4,000 to 4,500 pounds a square inch. Only that made from hair is strong enough. Formerly it was woven from camel hair, but the price of that product went to such high levels as to prohibit its use. After a series of tests, a method was devised for weaving human hair in specially constructed machines. The search for a sufficient supply to keep the factory going ended in China, where they found a veritable army of coolies ready to sacrifice their heads for American money. Bound in huge bales, the hair is then ready for weaving, having already been inspected and sterilized on the way over from the Orient. Washed and carded, it is twisted into strands and fed into the looms, where it is woven into cloth 36 inch thick, the weight 400 pounds.

Water Bike Aids Life Guards in Saving Drowning Persons

To aid life guards in rescue work, a floating frame supported in the water between two air tanks, enables them to reach danger points quickly. Half submerged, the rider drives a propeller by working pedals with his feet, traveling at greater speed than swimming would permit. The body of the victim may be easily thrown across the front of the tanks and carried to shore.

Auto Lights Under Fender Remove Strong Glare

By having all of its rays strike directly on the road ahead, an automobile light attached by a single bolt to the under of the front fender inside the wheel, away from the glare of the headlights, is a new device that frequently annoys those driving at night. Its shaft of light, thrown for 300 feet, is low enough to avoid the eyes of approaching motorists and clearly mark the road in both directions, preventing many accidents and making driving necessary. A bracket holds the light to the fender, and the light is turned on by a switch on the dashboard.

Tag Fish for Identification

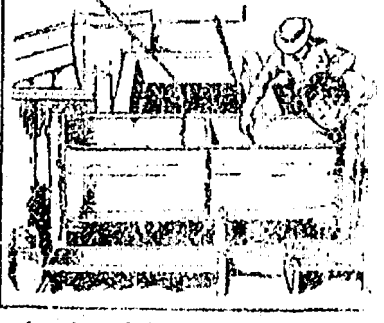

A practical and comprehensive plan has been suggested by the Bureau of Fisheries, to help in studying the habits of various fish such as salmon, codfish, pollock and haddock. A device similar to a bachelor button of aluminum is riveted into the fish's tail. With this system the oceanic migration of fish, their rate of growth in various localities, and age can be determined. The bureau pays 25 cents each for tags sent in, accompanied by place and date of capture, length, weight and sex of fish, and how marked.

Mixing Feed for Hogs

The novel method of slopping is shown in the drawing has been found to be a great time and labor saver on a large farm. The iron tank shown in the foreground is placed at one end of the concrete water trough, and can be filled with water by the pipe that supplies the trough. Tankage, shorts, or other ground feed is mixed in the tank and enough water is added to make a thin slop. Then the valve, actuated by the arrow is opened, and the troughs filled, whereupon the valve is closed again, the pipe swung over to another trough, and this one filled. The slop is then fed to the hogs.

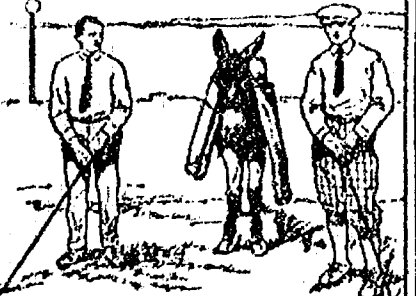

Sick Cured With War Gases

Deadly gases developed during the war are now being used to cure disease. Grip, colds, and the "flu" are quickly checked by chlorine gas, say army chemists. Mustard gas is being used to combat tuberculosis, while paraffin, and other diseases, are being treated with some success with "lewisite," a gas of arsenic and antimony, invented for use by American troops.

Mule, as Caddy, Carries Bags of Golfers

Because of lack of caddies, a mule is being used on one golf course in the South to carry the bags of the players. One of the mule's advantages over the human caddy is the fact that he can carry as many bags as can be strapped on his back. Then, too, he works without tips or pay.

How Hogs Husk Corn and Realized a Profit for Two Farmers

In January, 1923, C. H. Harlan, of Wibaux, Dawson County, Montana, had fifteen acres of White Flint corn buried in a snow drift with no one to husk it. Lewis Odland, of Beach, North Dakota, just over the line, had thirty-five pure bred Poland China pigs with little or no feed to carry them through. Mr. Odland proposed to hire his hogs to Mr. Harlan to husk the latter's corn, the consideration being five per cent of the gain put on the pigs. The proposition was accepted. The pigs weighed 4180 pounds when turned into the corn field January 8. Ten were marketed March 24, and the other twenty-five head were marketed April 18. The total gain made by the pigs during this time was 4760 pounds. They were sold at $6.50 per cwt., returning Mr. Harlan 20.65 per acre for the corn. These pigs were from a registered boar and pure bred sows, all of which were farrowed in June, 1922. When they were turned into the corn the snow was drifted up to the tassels on the stock on the west side of the field, and from that down to half way to the ears on the east side of the field. The field was eighty rods from the shed provided for the pigs, and there was only one day during the feeding period when they remained inside, and that day a terrible blizzard raged throughout. Mr. Harlan fed them some ear corn that day. As the snow began to melt in February and March, the ears on the stocks began to appear, and by the time the snow had disappeared, the corn had disappeared also. These pigs averaged 119 pounds each when turned into the field and 255 pounds each as they were marketed, making an average gain of 146 pounds per pig per day, while digging their food out of the snow. Their only drink was cold water, hand fed twice daily, by Mr. Harlan. No tankage was supplied and the only feed supplement was a mixture of salt, lime, and lignite coal dust. Besides the herd of thirty-five pigs, a stag making seventy pounds gain was turned into the field, and from March 16 to April 18 there were two sows with pigs and six head of cattle running in this corn field. When Mr. Harlan figured the profit his porcine hired hands had made him, he insisted that Mr. Odland take more remuneration than was agreed upon, but Mr. Odland felt that the convincing performance of his hogs was in itself an additional remuneration. This incident demonstrates that the proper kind of hog can fit profitably into a diversified farming program much needed throughout the Northwest country at this time.

WANT HAYS TO MANAGE AGAIN

G. O. P. Makes Overtures To Get Him Back From Mexico Into Politics

By Robert Fuller

Washington D. C., Aug. 30.—Strong pressure is being brought to bear on Will Hays to have him give up his place as Director General of the Motion Picture Industry and get back into the political game.

Leaders in various groups are urging him to indicate a willingness to serve again as chairman of the Republican National Committee for the 1924 campaign, the same job he had in the 1920 election of Harding.

Definite overtures have been made to Hays by a number of Coolidge boosters as well as other party leaders. This development is a bit surprising in the fact that some political prophets have accepted as almost certain that Will H. Butler, Boston lawyer and a Coolidge man who succeeded Secretary Weeks as a member of the Republican National Committee, would be the President's choice for chairman. This is not the first time Will Hays has been approached regarding a return to the chairmanship which he gave up to become Postmaster-General in the Harding cabinet. It is a well-known fact that the late President had him in mind for the 1924 chairmanship before starting on his ill-fated Alaskan trip.

One group of Republicans are urging Charles D. Hiles, who managed the Taft campaign in 1912. Hays, however, is the favorite of the majority at this time, if he can be persuaded to again become active in Republican politics.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Watts motored to Toledo, Ohio, Sunday to visit friends. They returned Tuesday evening.

Mrs. John Farrell was in Detroit on business Wednesday.

Chats With Your Gas Man

Six per cent is all you spend your total income for the service rendered by your utility companies, including gas, electric light, water, telephone and street car fare. This is a good figure, springing on the person who claims that a reduction in utility rates would save hundreds of dollars a year to each customer.

The fact is that a reduction of great as eight per cent would represent a saving to the average man of one-half of one per cent of his total income.

The six per cent for all utility services compares with twenty per cent spent for clothing, fifteen per cent spent for moving, books, charities, etc., sixteen per cent for rent and taxes, and twenty-five per cent for food.

The service rendered by the public utilities service companies is a luxury in everything but name.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Returning to her home in a small town, Milton Center, a clerk to New York, the widowed mother of ten-year-old Ann, who announces her wedding to Hudson Cortlandt, socially and politically prominent. Her husband has not been told about Ann, and the now wife fears he will be displaced.

CHAPTER II.—With Ann, Mrs. Cortlandt returns to New York. To the house of Hendricks Cortlandt, her husband's brother, with whom the latter is living. Hudson practically refuses to have anything to do with Ann, and the child is gladly adopted by Hendricks Cortlandt. Sailing with his wife, the postman as United States minister to Switzerland, the pair are lost in the wreck of the vessel.

CHAPTER III.—Ann satisfactorily fills a gap in Hendricks Cortlandt's lonely heart and their affection becomes mutual.

CHAPTER IV.—At sixteen years of age Ann is confronted with the beginnings of the Civil war. As Hendricks Cortlandt's acknowledged mistress she is naturally prominent socially, and the situation is resented by Mrs. Remmeslyer, Hendricks' sister, whose son, Hendricks, has been looked upon as the natural heir of the Cortlandt wealth. The Civil war breaks out, the fall of Fort Sumter causing consternation in New York and the North generally.

CHAPTER V.—A tentative engagement between young Remmeslyer and Ann is undertaken, the latter being in a New York regiment on the first call of the North to the colors.

CHAPTER VI.—His brief term of enlistment expired, Hendricks Remmeslyer returns to New York. Ann is instrumental in causing him to re-enlist. War hospitals are established in New York, and Ann is eager to help in the work, but meets with opposition from her guardian and his sisters.

CHAPTER VII.—Ann has her way, and in spite of Mrs. Remmeslyer's open opposition and her guardian's little concealed aversion to the idea, takes up the work of cheering the unfortunate wounded who have been sent back from the front.

"I don't know, hours, I think."

"You can stop, now."

The magazine dropped to the floor with a little crash, yet the figure on the cot did not stir. "Is he dead?" Ann whispered.

The doctor nodded, and beckoned an orderly over to him. "We'll get him out while the men are eating their supper. Did you have any trouble with him?"

Ann shook her head. She could not believe that while she had sat so close to him, death had snatched him away. She was tremulous and shaken. He did not look different, she thought, and yet, everything was changed. . . . He was no more. . . . Her lips whispered the words stupidly. . . . It was incredible.

"You'd better go home," the doctor advised. "You've done a good job here. When are you coming back?"

Ann's eyes dropped to the still form the orderly was covering with a sheet. . . . It seemed an indefinitely long time ago that work in the hospital had looked like a desirable adventure. . . . She shivered uncontrollably. "Tomorrow," she said, her voice very low.

The safe pleasantness of the Washington square house enveloped her in peaceful restfulness. All the way home she had been planning what she could say to the dead boy's mother; that task still confronted her, but she was glad she had it to do. She put out her hand to ring the bell, but before she could sound its friendly jangle the door was flung open and there was Mrs. Remmeslyer on the threshold.

"I know all about where you have been, miss," the lady cried, and swept the girl into the library, where Mr. Cortlandt was reading his afternoon paper. Ann thought that there was more of reluctance than reproach in his manner, as he looked up at her.

"I'm glad I went, uncle," she said, defiantly. "You know, yourself, that I was useful."

"Yes," Mr. Cortlandt admitted judicially, "you were."

"Hendricks," his sister said, severely, "don't encourage her! How could you do such a thing. Ann, after we had all agreed it was improper?"

"Because I know you are all wrong," the girl answered, with a spirited lift of her head. "Uncle—you saw me there. Is there anything improper in what I was doing?"

"Well, it was unconventional, my dear, for you to be there at all."

"So is war unconventional!" She swung on Mrs. Remmeslyer. "Go there yourself, and look at them, and tell me then whether it seems important if I am conventional or not!"

"I couldn't bear to set my foot in a hospital, Ann—and my boy under arms! My nerves would never stand it—and yours shouldn't, either!"

"Well," said the girl, dryly, "I guess I haven't any nerves. Death! She had seen death that day, and they talked to her of nerves! 'Uncle, may I go back tomorrow? See what I've promised to bring them!' She produced the crumpled piece of paper upon which she had, early in the day, written her list, and read from it, triumphantly, 'Licorice, raspberry vinegar—to make a cold drink, you know, uncle—a pipe and tobacco, household candy, a German Lutheran clergyman—that man is very ill, I'm afraid he may not live until morning—tooth-picks, a comb, oranges and apples, pickles, plug tobacco.'"

Mr. Cortlandt smiled. "Yes," he said, "you may go back."

"She will become the talk of the town," his sister warned him.

"In that case," Mr. Cortlandt responded dryly. "It is just as well that there will be something to say of her." He drew Ann close to him, and she pressed her cool cheek against his gratefully.

"I met a nice man there today," she volunteered placidly, in hopes of creating a happier atmosphere, "a Mr. Whitman."

"Mr. Whitman?" her guardian smiled whimsically. "Not Walt, I presume?"

"But yes," said Ann eagerly, "that is just who he was. He says he is a poet."

Mr. Cortlandt demanded sharply, "What did he say to you?" It seemed to Ann that he turned pale, but she knew that she must be mistaken.

"We talked about the wounded men," she said reasonably, "and he told me what I could do for them."

Mrs. Remmeslyer cut in here, "You see, Hendricks, what the hospitals mean? Walt Whitman?"

"But," Ann protested, "I liked him. He is a nice man. You don't like him, do you, uncle?"

"No."

"Why not? I did."

"I don't know him."

"That's no reason. He is good—and kind. Don't you like his poetry—is that it? Is he a bad poet?"

"No, I think he may be a good one. But his subjects—" He broke off, and Ann thought his face was flushed.

"We won't discuss it."

"I congratulate you on your wisdom," Mrs. Remmeslyer said coldly, and Ann held her peace. She realized that the introduction of her new acquaintance into the conversation made her hospital service more bleakly undesirable than before.

CHAPTER VIII

Washington—Sixty-One.

Hendricks had been gone for a month before Mr. Cortlandt found it possible to go to Washington, and by that time Ann was so deeply involved in hospital service, that she had some difficulty in getting away.

Hendricks met them at the station; Ann had been looking forward with impatience to seeing him again, but now that the meeting loomed imminent she was curiously reluctant.

Hendricks enveloped her in a huge embrace, and kissed her; he held her at arm's length, rejoicing. "She looks tired out, sir," he said, as he took his uncle's hand. "Too much hospital nonsense!"

The color flew into Ann's face as she jerked herself free, but she said nothing; she did not even so much as glance at her guardian, for she was afraid lest he, too, might be criticizing Hendricks adversely.

They drove at once to the hotel, in an open barouche which enabled Ann to look eagerly about her.

The hotels were all overcrowded, but Hendricks had reserved rooms for his uncle, and, after a few moments' wait in a swarming lobby they went upstairs. Ann opened her window. The street was cleared for troops to pass; the band swung around the corner, with a massive crash of drums and horns, and behind it came a regiment of cavalry.

They marched on, company after company, while the music of the band grew gradually fainter; at the end was a group of mounted negroes, and a long string of baggage wagons, each with four horses and a rear-guard. Ann gasped. This was warfare.

Mr. Cortlandt put his hand on her shoulder. "Hendricks has the day off," he said, "and he suggests we ride over to Arlington."

"Where Colonel Lee lived? Oh, what a heavenly plan!"

In half an hour they were riding through the streets on their way to the long bridge. They rode on between wide fields where the grain stood in shocks, and woods where the air quivered with the glint of yellow falling leaves, until they came to the gates of what had been Robert E. Lee's estate.

The house loomed up ahead, a huge place, with an ample central building and wide-flung wings. It was, Ann thought, the sort of place a man would build for future generations—for his sons' sons—to inhabit, and looking at it, she felt sorry for Colonel Lee, as she called him, giving him the title he had borne in the United States army.

"It must have been hard to give all this up," her guardian said, voicing

Thursday, August 23, about sixty members of the Glenn family met at Fraser's Grove for their annual reunion. Among the interesting features was the program consisting of short talks by Dr. Bernard Glenn of Detroit, Mrs. Harriet Sharp of Perry, Webster Pearce of Mt. Pleasant and E. Noah of this place. Mrs. R. S. Whelan who is in her 84th year recited "Thanatopsis" which she first learned when she was 18 years of age. Election of officers resulted as follows: Harvey Pearce of Ispenning, president; P. E. Noah, vice president; Mrs. Ora Kille of Munith, secretary; Caspar Glenn of Stockbridge, treasurer.

her unspoken thought. "He must have cared a lot."

"Dirty traitor!" Hendricks said briefly.

Mr. Cortlandt frowned. "He did what he thought was his duty, Hendricks. Make no mistake about Lee. He is an honorable man, mistaken, but a gentleman, although an enemy."

Ann's eyes shone on him for his generosity; she felt inexpressibly melancholy, as she slipped down from her horse quickly, before Hendricks could touch her.

General McDowell was glad to see them, and showed them over the lower floor of the house. Here and there a heavy damask curtain had been torn from a window, and lay in a crumpled heap on the floor, and in almost every room some pieces of the delicate Sheraton furniture had proved inadequate to the repose of heavy soldiers; wrecked chairs were shoved into a corner, or lay broken in the fireplaces, and glass from secretary doors lay in shattered piles where it had fallen. Traces of men's occupation were everywhere. The dining table was littered with soiled glasses, empty bottles, rinds of cheese, and pipes, while newspapers lay about, spread open, everywhere.

Ann's attention was caught by the clusters of new buildings, which showed up white and raw, here and there in the environs of Washington.

"What are they?" she asked, curiously.

A grave-faced captain answered her. "The barracks over yonder? The government is building hospitals."

"But—there are acres of them!" Ann cried, aghast.

"It'll be bloody business, ma'am, before we're done. The trouble with you Northerners is you underestimate us."

He turned away as he spoke, and Ann whispered, "Who is he?"

"He's from Tennessee. There's no better Union man in the army, though."

The city commission of Monroe accepted the offer of a nursery company of a tree to be planted in Soldiers and Sailors park as a memorial to Warren G. Harding. There now are a number of trees in the park placed there in memory of Monroe county men who lost their lives in the World war. The park also contains the statue of General George Armstrong Custer, moved to the park from another section of the city. A committee of the commissioners was named to obtain a bronze tablet, suitably inscribed for the tree.

Decision as to the winner of the Edward Bok $100,000 prize for the best method of promoting world peace will be made January 1, 1924, by the co-operating council of military and civil organizations, Grand Rapids, according to John G. Emory, representative on the council of the American Legion, who has returned from a visit to the committee headquarters in New York. The committee will have from November 15 to January 1, to inspect the communications received on the subject.

A proposal to bond Iron Mountain for $300,000 to buy the Iron Mountain Water Works company will be voted on at a special election September 10. The company is asking $210,000, but the city council has decided it will require $180,000 more to extend and improve the system. Lake Antoine, the source of the city's supply for 30 years, soon will become inadequate to meet Iron Mountain's development. If the bond issue passes, water will be taken from the Monominee river and filtered.

Michigan farmers will reduce their acreage of wheat 18.5 per cent, and rye, 9 per cent, according to a survey completed by Vernon H. Church, federal statistician, and L. The survey was undertaken in co-operation with the federal government at the suggestion of many farmers that they could better plan and regulate their planting if they could be informed in advance as to probable acreage.

Completely at sea as far as any reliable clues are concerned, Gratiot county officers were balked in their efforts to capture the automobile gunman who held up the Bank of Elwell, near Riverdale. Some county officers seemed inclined to think that the holdup has some connection with the attempt to blackmail the bank weeks ago, when the cashier was ordered to place $500,000 in a pile near Pine river in Alma.

With the city council of Bessemer in a quandary over the question of a water supply, the mayor has decided to call a mass meeting of the citizens to sound out public opinion before any definite move is made. With the city already bonded to the extent of $215,000 on its water system, a falling of the supply wells has left it in a situation such that it will be with-out water in a short time, it is said.
