They do say, and often with considerable reliance that there are more ways than one of killing a cat.

The offer came as a surprise and was greatly appreciated. It showed a spirit that has often been said to be lacking here, but which is becoming stronger every day.

Criticism, whether adverse or otherwise, makes life, and in the position of a columnist one can expect almost any kind of criticism.

The big county fair opened today, and with a real boom. The official opening was at 2 o'clock this afternoon and following that came the parade of floats.

The fair this year will be the biggest ever held in this county, and the displays and exhibits that will be seen today for the public, will represent some of the best ever seen.

If the weather is at all favorable the crowds will break every known record. The fair has grown with leaps and bounds and this year the visitors will see the finest ever.

More news about the killing of the wild calf. Later revelations showed that the posse in pursuit of the wild animal ran out of ammunition on the first trip, and had to return for more supplies.

What is the busiest industry in the United States? Turning out over two and one-half million cars and trucks a year? The producing of 90,000,000 tons of pig iron and the manufacturing of the greatest volume of iron and steel products in the world?

NO—at least no, according to B. C. Forbes. Mr. Forbes says that the busiest industry in America is law-making. "Think of it," he says, "fully 90,000 bills dealing with business, have been introduced in the state legislatures in the last twelve months and it is figured that the new state laws will be passed at the rate of 1,000 a month all through 1923.

America is the land of mass production mania. In the case of industry, some regard is had for quality. In the case of our lawmakers, quantity, judging by results, has been the aim.

Ads and items in the news often provoke facetious comment upon the part of the observer. For instance, one reads that hundreds of kegs of beer were dumped into New York harbor, and is moved to comment that the quantity of pickled herring etc. should be plentiful.

STAEBLER OIL CO. OFFERS CORNER FOR CHELSEA SIGN

WILL AID COUNCIL IN EVERY WAY TO PLACE SIGN AT INTERSECTION OF ROADS

Another possibility has presented itself for the sign at the intersection of M-17 and M-92. Mr. Staebler of the Staebler Oil company heard of the difficulty the Village Council had met in erecting a sign and came to President Daniels, offering his corner as a possibility for a sign.

The offer of Mr. Staebler came after considerable publicity had been given the matter through the Tribune.

The northwest corner owned by the Staebler Oil company will prove a satisfactory place for the sign and the offer of Mr. Staebler was to the effect that he would be glad to do anything possible to assist in placing the sign.

The council instructed the committee in charge of the matter to continue their work and complete arrangements with Mr. Staebler. The same type of sign that was proposed last, that is, a perpendicular sign in the shape of a V erected on a pole was decided best. The matter though was left entirely with the committee.

The regular business of the meeting was transacted and the bills allowed. The clerk read a communication from the State Highway department relative to the state laws in effect, in regard to the traffic on trunk lines.

AT LAST A FILM THAT GIVES COPS A SQUARE DEAL.

"In The Name of The Law" Redeems Men in Blue; Puts the Police in The Right Light.

The days of lampooning the police in motion pictures are over. For years the men who patrol the streets of the country, who risk their lives to safeguard our homes and our property, have been made the butt of comic films that make them appear like anything but human beings.

Now comes a motion picture which shows the policeman in the right light. It is called "In The Name of The Law" and is being distributed throughout the country. Thousands of big theatres are showing it; hundreds of police chiefs and thousands of policemen have given it their heartiest endorsement.

"In The Name of The Law", which will be shown at the Princess Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, was made for the main purpose of entertaining the millions of men and women and children who patronize moving picture theatres.

It unfolds a tale of poignant humaneness. It tells a story about Policeman Patrick O'Hara and his family, consisting of Mother O'Hara, who is the bustling type of lovable housewife, and their two fine sons, Harry and Johnnie. An adopted daughter, Mary, also plays an important role in the picture and about this family group has been woven a story of striking appeal.

Policemen, the country over have given "In The Name of The Law" their heartiest approval because it shows for the first time on record the sweet home life of a policeman's family. It depicts the years of toil during which a policeman and his devoted wife save diligently and at last put away sufficient money to buy a home. It shows how firmly they both stand in the big crises of their lives.

In the cast are such capable players as Emory Johnson, who produced the picture; Ralph Lewis, who appears as Officer O'Hara; Ella Hall, Johnnie Walker and others.

RADIO DRAMA THE LATEST DEVELOPMENT IN FIELD

Ann Arbor, Mich. Sept. 17.—A new species of drama is being evolved with the development of the radio in the electric field. It is a type that will not require its spectators to travel to the theater and idly watch the players in their efforts to appear natural and realistic.

The winning play will be sent out from the Schenectady station by the WGY Players during the winter months when transmission conditions are at their best. It is expected that a million people will be listening in when this play is broadcasted.

The requirements of such drama are peculiar in that the author must base his appeal entirely on the imagination and the auditory sense of his public. He must place himself in the position of one who is writing a play for a blind public. He must so construct the lines of his play that they will not only express the thoughts of his characters but will also describe the action and convey a picture of the scene in which the action takes place.

CONVENTION SYSTEM ON TRIAL IN NEXT NATIONAL ELECTION

Public Will Watch to See if Presidential Preference as Expressed in Twenty State Primaries Is Followed.

Written specially for The Tribune by ROBERT FULLER.

Twenty states will hold preferential primaries in the next national election. For the rest the delegates will be chosen in convention. This will give the public a fair opportunity to learn how far political conventions follow the expressed will of the people.

For years there has been a growing feeling among the people that the voters of America have little or nothing to do with the actual choice of their president.

Whatever may be true of this contention will be disclosed definitely when the results of the primaries and of the state conventions are placed in juxtaposition. With twenty states holding primaries and twenty-nine conventions, the story should be told with unerring accuracy.

Illinois has both primary and convention. The district delegates in this state, elected in the primary and the delegates at large in convention.

The states in which preferential primaries are to be held and the dates thereof are as follows:

- California—Tuesday, May 13. Florida—June 3. Georgia—Date fixed by State Executive Committee.

- Illinois—Tuesday, April 8. Indiana—Tuesday, May 6. Maryland—Monday, May 5.

- Massachusetts—Tuesday, April 29. Michigan—Monday, May 5. Montana—Tuesday, May 27.

- Nebraska—Tuesday, April 15. New Jersey—Tuesday, April 22. North Carolina—Saturday, June 7.

- North Dakota—Tuesday, March 18. Ohio—Tuesday, April 29. Oregon—Friday, May 16.

- Pennsylvania—Tuesday, May 20. South Dakota—Tuesday, March 18. Vermont—Tuesday, May 20.

- West Virginia—Tuesday, May 20. Wisconsin—Tuesday, April 1.

The opening gun in the presidential contest will be staged in South Dakota, which holds its presidential primary on March 18 next.

In the following states the delegates are elected by state conventions, the dates of which have not yet been fixed: Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois (delegates-at-large only); Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New York (delegates-at-large only); North Carolina (delegates-at-large only); Oklahoma (delegates-at-large only); Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas; Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Wyoming.

In Arizona, Washington, Arkansas and usually in Louisiana delegates to the Democratic National Convention are named by the Democratic State Committee.

The State-wide primaries next year will be held as follows:

- Alabama—May 13. (No Presidential primary.) California—May 13.

The Lamp Went Out The Year 5684. Fliers and Divers Only. Goodbye Harlem.

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

The little moon, travelling along 25 miles a minute, got between the earth and the sun the other day and for 189 seconds the sun's light went out, entirely at certain places, to a limited degree elsewhere.

The moon was something like a child walking between you and your reading lamp. The eclipse was photographed by scientists on the earth, and from flying machines, but only savages were agitated. We don't believe, as they once did, that a dragon is eating up the sun. And we don't think that angry gods are warning us to behave ourselves.

In the old days they took eclipses so seriously that two armies, about to fight, turned tail and went home in a hurry when the sun began to disappear. It was a poor ruler that didn't have some kind of eclipse when he died.

The Reverend Increase Mather, who wrote his interesting essay on "Remarkable Providences" in the early Puritan days, found it easy enough to explain an eclipse in Massachusetts. He said it expressed the grief of Nature at the death of President Channing, of Harvard. Quite a compliment for Harvard.

We know that an eclipse means nothing at all except that the moon gets in front of our sun lamp and shuts out the light for a minute. We have progressed in that way. But we don't yet know enough to stop murdering each other as they did in the days of superstition and darkness.

Tuesday was Rosh Hnshah, the Jewish New Year, number 5684.

Christians call it the year 1923. Other religions and nationalities have other years and other dates, a majority believing that the world is about 6,000 years old, and ought to end soon.

If old Earth told her real age, we should learn that many things happened here a thousand million years ago. When it STARTED, we don't know.

Flying machines dropping bombs that cost a few dollars have again demonstrated for the benefit of the American people that battleships are obsolete. The old battleship Virginia used as a target was sunk in thirty minutes by a fier 10,000 feet up. How many forty million-dollar battleships will this country build to supply amusing targets some day for foreign fliers?

Forty million dollars spent wisely on flying ships, with a few more millions on submarines, would make fighting fleets unnecessary and attack by any nation foolish.

A while ago, anybody asking the Government to fix the price of oil would have been called an anarchist by the moderates, and murderous Bolshevik by real Tories. Now, in Texas, the oil men themselves ask the State Government to fix a price. When prices get sick, any doctor is welcome.

Kemal Fasha comes back to the front page by preventing restoration of the harem in Turkey. It was once as difficult to imagine a Turk without many wives as of a Chinese without a pigtail. The pigtail is gone, and the harem wives are going. Wise Kemal says that one Turkish wife, of the new woman type, is as much as any one Turk can or ought to own.

Wheat was lower last week. The earthquake leaves thousands in need of food, but that doesn't help the price of wheat. Nations always find money to buy wheat for war, no matter how high the price. They do not spend so easily merely to relieve human suffering.

THE $50,000 HUMAN MACHINE.

The average American now lives to the age of 56, compared with 41 back in 1870. But by 1950, people will have a life span of 70 years, predicts Dr. George Marlin Kober of Georgetown University Medical school.

His prediction, of course is based on a supposition that people will increasingly live more sensibly and correctly. We hope so. But Doc certainly is an optimist.

Four hundred years ago the average length of human life was somewhat between 18 and 20 years. And it was only 26 years as late as 1800. A gain of about five years in two centuries.

There has been a gain of 31 years in the average life span since 1800.

People live longest in New Zealand, averaging 60 years at death. In India the average age of death is before 25.

These "average" figures, however, are arrived at by adding up and striking an average of all deaths, including babies. The gain has been mostly in cutting the death rate among children especially babies. This has raised the average. It is doubtful whether there are any more people living to "a ripe old age" than formerly. Or even as many, for that matter.

The gain has been made largely in cradle years. As regards individuals who reach maturity they seem to die at about the same average age as in former generations.

As far back as 1908, experts estimated that 3,000,000 Americans were constantly on the sick list and that 42 out of every 100 of these illnesses were preventable cases. Similar situation today.

When people succumb to preventable diseases, they generally are victims of their own carelessness. This carelessness in many cases results from underestimating their personal value in cold dollars and cents.

For instance, take a man with an income of $3,000 a year. Now, $3,000 is 6 per cent interest on an investment of $50,000. If the $3,000 a year man had an auto or any other machine worth $50,000 he would insure it against every possibility of disaster, and he would care for it as if it were a priceless possession.

On the other hand, the 3,000 a year man often neglects his $50,000 body as if it were an old bit of junk.

Give your body a square deal. Treat it with the consideration and care that its high value deserves.

EARLY, LATE, WINTER, ANIMALS' FORECAST.

Wild ducks and cranes up north are beginning to fly south almost two months ahead of the usual time. This is announced by Canadian National railways, relaying word received from their agents.

Old settlers in Ontario say that never within memory have they known the ducks and cranes to start their southward migratory flights so early.

The settlers believe than an early winter is coming.

Hudson Bay trappers report that the wild rice, favorite food of wild ducks and geese, matured very early this year. The trappers say this is another indication that an early winter is coming.

The weather this year has been so queer all over the world, due to the sun's giving off about 5 per cent less heat than usual, that winter might arrive two months ahead of its customary schedule without amazing us.

Spring was late in most parts of the earth. Summer came in hot waves, working double to make up for lost time.

The maple leaves in the tourist country of Ontario started turning red and yellow in mid-August, nearly a month early. That looks like an early fall, forerunner of an early winter.

Ojibway Indians, on the other hand, insist that all the seasons are three weeks late this year and that winter will arrive late instead of ahead of schedule. They base their prediction on the fact that in August they had to fish 200 feet deep to catch genuine salmon trout, whereas normally they would find these red trout "floating" 100 feet below the surface of the lake.

The Indians figure that the salmon trout will be three weeks late in rising to spawn on the shoals this fall. Which, say the Ojibways, is a sure sign of a late fall and a late winter.

The controversy narrows down to this: Which is the better weather prophet, a wild duck or a deep water fish? Both are guided by instinct of a mysterious sort that enables them to sense the weather months ahead.

Even old mother nature seems to be contradictory this year, as confused as we who in our race to civilization have lost the sixth sense possessed by wild ducks, salmon trout and to a lesser extent Indians.

THE GOOD FOOD.

Bakers have been running a big national campaign to induce us to eat more bread. They say bread eating by Americans has fallen off a fourth. If each of us ate one more slice of bread a day, it would increase our national consumption of wheat 171 million bushels a year. This the bakers urge us to do. They argue that it would help the farmer.

It would help the wheat farmer, to be sure. But it would injure other farmers, especially meat growers, for if we eat more bread we'll naturally eat less of something else. However, bread is the best bet. Highly nourishing. Few foods are cheaper which they be why Americans are eating less of it.

HASTINGS COMPANY LOSES LEGAL TILT.

Opening Skirmish in Insurance Battle Gives Honors to Lapeer Firm.

White Cloud, Sept. 12. — George Cary, Jr., of Lapeer, was acquitted in Justice W. B. Red's court of obtaining money under false pretenses. The case was hotly contested due to litigation of two insurance companies. Mr. Cary is a representative of the State Mutual Cyclone Insurance Co., of Lapeer. He sold insurance to persons in Newaygo county who already had insurance in the Michigan Mutual Windstorm Insurance Co. of Hastings, a competitive company. The latter company sent a detective, John Halloran of Grand Rapids, up here and a warrant was issued for Mr. Cary's arrest, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses, the alleged false pretenses being that he stated he was an authorized agent of the Hastings company. After hearing testimony in the case the jury was out but a few minutes and rendered a verdict of not guilty. One member of the Michigan Mutual Windstorm Insurance Co. of Hastings, testified for prosecution. —Grand Rapids Press.

Did you ever wish you knew how to make the famous lassis? Here's a fine and reliable recipe.

To one quart of sifted flour add a piece of butter size of an egg, three tablespoons of sugar, two eggs, two teaspoons of milk, two teaspoons of cream of tartar, one of soda, pinch of salt. Stir the cream of tartar, salt and sugar in the flour, add the eggs without beating, the melted butter and one cup of milk and stir together. Dissolve the soda in the other cup of milk and stir all. Bake in muffin pans fifteen or twenty minutes.

Good Form.—A girl should not give her photograph to a man who she has known only a short time. In the hands of an untried acquaintance it might cause her great embarrassment. The same holds true of letters. Correspondence should be carried on between friends only, and even then a girl is wiser to write nothing she would not be willing to have anyone read.

Cat Flowers.—Shave a few thin slices of a mild soap into the water before putting in your cat flowers. They will stay fresh much longer.

After Sweeping it is well to dust off your rugs with a cloth or mop. Wring very dry out of plain water or water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

If Linoleum is varnished when it is new it wears much longer.

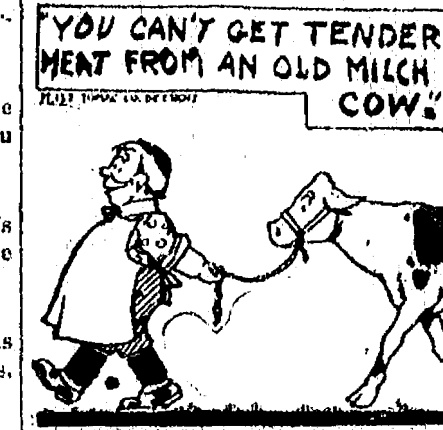

Our Complexion.—A dry skin is apt to wrinkle easily, and excessive dryness is an indication that the natural lubricant of the skin is lacking. One should be careful what kind of soap one uses and often until the condition improves should use no soap. It should be plentifully fed with a good massage cream and two or three times a week the cream should be allowed to remain on the face over night.

CITY MOTOR SALES

The Cortlandts of Washington Square

by Janet A. Fairbank

COPYRIGHT BY THE DOBBS-HERRILL CO. SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Returning to her home in a small town, Milton Center, from a visit to New York, the widowed mother of ten-year-old Ann...

CHAPTER II.—With Ann, Mrs. Cortlandt returns to New York, to the house of Hendricks Cortlandt, her husband's brother, with whom the latter is living...

CHAPTER III.—Ann satisfactorily fills a gap in Hendricks Cortlandt's lonely heart and their affection becomes mutual.

CHAPTER IV.—At sixteen years of age Ann is confronted with the beginning of the Civil war. As Hendricks Cortlandt's prominent society...

CHAPTER V.—A tentative engagement between young Hennessy and Ann is understood, the youth enlisting in a New York regiment on the first day of the North to the colors.

CHAPTER VI.—His brief term of enlistment expired, Hendricks Hennessy returns to New York. Ann is instrumental in causing him to re-enlist. War hospitals are established in New York, and Ann is eager to help in the work...

CHAPTER VII.—Ann has her way. In spite of Mrs. Hennessy's open opposition and her guardian's title, she succeeds in securing a room at the hospital to cheer the unfortunate wounded who have been sent back from the front.

CHAPTER VIII.—With her guardian, Ann visits Hendricks Hennessy in his camp on the outskirts of Washington. He strongly disapproves of her work in the hospital, but at last gives it up. There is a rift in their affection.

CHAPTER IX.—From Libby Nelson, Donsley Howard, forgotten boyhood friend of Ann, is brought to the New York hospital. The girl has her share in caring for him. Beyond possibility of recovery, Ann has him removed from the hospital to his home, where he passes his last few days in comfort.

CHAPTER X.—Dispatches from the front announce the death of Hendricks Hennessy. Ann had written to him, breaking off their engagement, but had confided in no one, and her guardian and relatives naturally believe her heartbroken. Hendricks Cortlandt is best by the President on a diplomatic mission to Europe.

As she hurried through the streets she tried to fix her mind on the person, but in vain. She knew enough of conditions near the front to realize that it required intense personal interest to accomplish anything there; it was not an errand which could be entrusted to a clerk...

It was a pity that she was a girl. She considered, for a moment, putting the matter before Mrs. Cortlandt, and urging her to take the trip, but at once she knew that lady would only echo the doctor's same judgment that all they could do was to wait. Ann felt that it would be more than she could endure if she was forced to hear that unanswerable statement again. Her tired nerves wrank miserably from the prolonged emotional crisis into which her news would plunge the women of her family...

At the door Joseph told her that Mrs. Cortlandt and Fanny had responded to a call from the Sanitary Commission ladies, and had gone there to work. "Miss Fanny, she say to tell you to come too, Miss Ann. They's a supper prepared by de ladies, and she say dey need you."

The girl's first sensation was relief at postponing the telling of her news; it would, she thought, give her that much more time to find some one to go to Virginia. There was a train at nine o'clock. Every one away, like this. It was accidental.

"I can't go, Joseph," she amazedly began to say. "I am leaving to-night—for Philadelphia."

"Philadelphia, Miss Ann?"

"Perhaps Mr. Hendricks isn't dead, Joseph. I have to go to find out."

There was a great flurry of exclamation and excitement, while Ann ate her supper, and packed a small travel-bag. Old Joseph insisted on accompanying her to the ferry, and in the carriage he began to have a change of heart. "I don't seem right to me, Miss Ann—you going off all by yourself, this-way," he protested from time to time. "You had better carried her...

Ann shook her head. "I can't wait," she said stolidly. "You would not be allowed to go beyond Baltimore without a pass from the governor." "How can I get a pass?" "You would have to go to Harrisburg for it—and it is a great question if you could succeed in reaching the capital. You know Ewell is raiding in that neighborhood. We fear that at any moment he may cut off the city."

"Well," Ann murmured, regardless of high-bred Philadelphia eyebrows lifted at her expense. "Harrisburg next." She was rather cast down at the delay, and she was moreover, afraid that Mrs. Cortlandt might succeed in reaching and stopping her. She looked about her for possible aid, and her eyes fell on the only man in the room. He was a young captain, smart of figure and evaded of face. He was...

"I Suppose Not," Ann Drooped Again, Hopelessly.

looking at her when she noticed him; his eyes were the sort in which pity lies in ambush; he was a young man born to be pulled.

"Ann went over to him at once. 'I wish you would help me,' she said, trustfully as a little child.

"Anything I can do?" stammered the young man. "Are you in trouble?"

"Yes, great trouble." She sighed deeply. "I must get to the front," she said, "and I hear I have to have a pass, to go beyond Baltimore."

"They are hard things to get, these days," he murmured sympathetically, "and only fancy—I have one here that isn't needed."

"You have a pass?"

MICHIGAN HAS FINE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE THIS SEASON.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17. Followers of University of Michigan football games this fall will have an equalled opportunity to see some of the best teams in the country in action on Ferry Field. Of the eight games scheduled by Michigan, six will be played on the home grounds and it is expected that all seasonal attendance records will be shattered.

To start off the season Case scientific school of Cleveland will act in their usual role as openers, this year on October 6th.

The following week, October 13th, Vanderbilt, champions of the south in 1922, will journey to Ann Arbor for an inter-sectional clash. Captain Harry Kipke and his warriors have not yet quite lived down the scare they received at Nashville last year when the southerners held the romping Michigans to a 0 to 0 score. From little Gus, the water boy, both ways, the Michigan squad is looking forward to vanquishing the southern gentlemen and the Tennesseans are said to feel the same way. Their coach, Dan McGugin, is a former Michigan man and played on Vost's Michigan team in 1901 and 1902. He was assistant coach at Michigan in 1903. Incidentally he is related to the Michigan mentor and would consider it a worthy achievement for the year to squelch the Yostmen.

October 20th, the following Saturday, the Conference schedule will open in Ann Arbor when the Ohio State team, still bitter from their Dedication Day loss last year, will journey north for revenge. In popular interest the Dempsey-Firpo argument and the Bambino's race for home run supremacy are able to run only a close second and third to the Buckeye-Wolverine squabble.

The following Saturday the Michigan Aggies en masse will come to Ann Arbor for the annual battle and the next Saturday the Wolverines will journey to Iowa for a game with the Hawkeyes which will settle much in general opinion concerning the 1922 championship.

The next game on Ferry Field will be the following Saturday, November 10th, with the U. S. Marines from Quantico. The service men have been practicing for a month and will give the Wolverines a hard battle. Secretary of War Denby, a former Michigan center, the famous Marine band and about 1,500 enlisted men will follow the team to Ann Arbor.

The following Saturday Michigan will travel to Madison for a game with Wisconsin and will close the season on Ferry Field November 24th, in the homecoming game with Minnesota.

Two municipal landing fields in Detroit for air-craft, complete air mail service, new commercial air lines, city and state legislation for aeronautical development and use of air-craft for the state forest patrol, these are some of the aims of the Detroit Air board, organized in Detroit. The formal meeting was held at the Board of Commerce. In a national way, the new organization will work for the establishment of a new department of the federal government, its head to be a member of the cabinet, and for an academy of aircraft.
