M. A. SHAVER SUFFERS PARALYTIC STROKE

Suffers Stroke of Paralysis Tuesday Night and Fails to Regain Consciousness.

As the Standard goes to press we learn that Milo A. Shaver passed away at his late home on West Middle street at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Milo A. Shaver, lifelong resident of Chelsea and for the past twelve years conducting a harness shop here, was expected momentarily to pass away late Wednesday afternoon, after only a few hours illness following a stroke of paralysis suffered about nine o'clock Tuesday night.

Physician and relatives held no hope that he would rally from the effects of the stroke which probably will prove fatal.

Mr. Shaver was about the streets Tuesday and in the evening had attended for a short time the feather party at Firemen's hall. Upon returning home he retired and soon after suffered the stroke. His sudden illness comes after several months of ill health during which time he has been able to spend only a small portion of his time at his harness shop on East Middle street. The fore part of this week he closed his shop and intended going to Detroit today to take special treatment.

Mr. Shaver is aged 60 years.

WORLD WAR VETERAN EXPIRES AT HOSPITAL

Member of 28th Infantry Buried in Oak Grove Cemetery After Funeral at St. Paul's.

Julius J. Gross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gross of Lima, was born in Northfield, June 15, 1888 and passed away Saturday afternoon in Ann Arbor at the U. of M. hospital, from the results of injuries received while serving with the 28th infantry in the U. S. army in France during the World War.

He went to Camp Custer in 1917 with the first enlistment and was placed in the 160th depot brigade, Co. F of the 28th infantry. He was transferred to the 8th company of the 160th depot brigade just before leaving for France and served with that company at the battles of Cantigny and Soissons.

He was honorably discharged from the service at Camp Custer after the armistice. His health never was of the best following the war and October 20 he entered University hospital and was operated upon for tumor of the brain. He did not recover from the operation.

Mr. Gross was a member of St. Paul's church, Chelsea. He also was a member of Otsego Lodge, No. 9, I. O. O. F. of Ann Arbor, and belonged to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He is survived by his parents, four brothers, Adolph of Dexter, Albert of Jackson, Frank of Lima and Herman of Lima; and three sisters, Hilda of Lima, Mrs. Clarence Eschbach of Chelsea, and Mrs. Leigh Luick of Lima.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home and St. Paul's church, Rev. P. H. Grabowski conducting the services. Burial in Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea. Members of the American Legion were the bearers at the funeral.

CHURCHES HOLD UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES

Uniting in one body for the annual Thanksgiving service, churches of Chelsea gathered at St. Paul's church on Wednesday evening and listened to a program of sermon and song appropriate for the occasion.

Rev. Sutherland, pastor of the First Congregational church, delivered the sermon.

FELLOWSHIP CLUB WILL ENTERTAIN BROTHERHOOD

At the next meeting of the Fellowship Club of the Methodist church the Brotherhood of the Congregational church will be entertained in the Methodist church parlors, on Monday evening, December 3.

Prosecuting Attorney Laird of Ann Arbor, will be the principal speaker of the evening, his subject being "Law Enforcement." There will be special music and other forms of entertainment and it is hoped every member of both bodies will turn out to the scrub lunch at 7 o'clock followed by the program.

Committees appointed are: Entertainment—Steiner, McClure, Faber. Menu—Muschbach, Weinberg, Philip Brosamile.

AGED RESIDENT TELLS MANY EXPERIENCES

Accounts in the Ann Arbor Times News and Detroit Free Press during the past week carried reminiscences of Geo. A. Peters, of Scio, said to be the oldest resident of Washtenaw county at the present time. Mr. Peters will be 99 years old in June of next year. However, in spite of the greatly advanced age of the Scio resident, who has many relatives in Chelsea, this village still boasts the privilege of being the residing place of the oldest inhabitant of the county in the person of "Uncle" Robert Foster, who will reach his 99th birthday anniversary in January of next year.

Mr. Peters is well known to the residents of Chelsea. He is an uncle of Mrs. R. D. Walker and a great uncle of D. H. Wurster and Howard S. Holmes. Mrs. R. P. Copeland of Dexter is a niece and Dr. R. S. Copeland of New York City is a great nephew.

The following biography of Mr. Peters appeared in the Detroit Free Press, Sunday:

"Unlike 'Uncle Jimmy Haskins' of Edward Howe's 'Anthology of Another Town,' who could recall no more remarkable event than that he once had shot a squirrel after several others had missed it repeatedly, 'Uncle Gus' (George A.) Peters, of Scio, the oldest man in Washtenaw county, has a memory stocked with interesting experiences.

'Uncle Gus,' who will be 99 years old June 30, 1924, was born in Orleans county, New York, his father George Washington Peters, settling on section 15, Scio township, June 1, 1826. His first recollection of Ann Arbor was the Fourth of July celebration of 1829, the settlement then having half a dozen log cabins and as many tent shelters.

'I remember that,' Peters said Saturday, 'because there were big dishes of rice pudding and raisins, the first I had ever seen. My! but it was good! My helped me to it, and I wanted more, but my was afraid it would make me sick.'

'In those days the Indians made their headquarters at Unadilla, Livingston county, and once a year took the trail to Amherstburg, Canada, to receive their bounty from the British government. On one of their trips I was playing near the trail, which passed by our home. One of the braves picked me up and started to carry me in his blanket. But father, who had seen him, came running with a club, and the Indian dropped me.'

When George and his brother Henry were about 16 years old they rented the Scio grist mill, which they operated for nine years.

'I would travel around the country buying the wheat and Hank ran the mill,' the old miller explained. 'Then at dusk I would unhitch my horse and handle the night shift at the mill until midnight. We took The Detroit Free Press and bought wheat at five cents under the Detroit quotations. The only year we made any money at the mill was in 1846, the year of the potato rot in Ireland. Wheat advanced from 48 to 50 cents a bushel in the fall to $1.25 a bushel in the spring, and flour from $3 a barrel to $8.'

In 1852 George Peters was seized with the gold fever and sailed for California via New York and Panama, the journey taking two months. Peters spent five years digging gold, making 'several thousand dollars.' He returned to Ann Arbor in 1857 and intended to go back to California, but instead fell in love with Miss Jane Jacobs, whom he married a year later, and remained here. Mrs. Peters is now 82 years old. He tried to enlist at the start of the Civil war, but was rejected, being blind in one eye.

Nominated for congress in 1880, on the Greenback ticket, Peters campaigned throughout Washtenaw, Jackson and Wayne counties.

'I made some pretty fair speeches too, they tell me,' he chuckled. 'Of course I knew we'd be beaten, but I did draw a nice vote.'

'But all this can't be of any interest to anyone,' he exclaimed. 'Wait until I'm 125. What I really tribute my long life to is the fact that I've always worn leather boots, and kept my feet, ankles and legs protected. These low shoes they wear nowadays are bad for the health. The wind blows up your pantaloons and your ankles get wet.'

'If it isn't my boots that 'ave kept me healthy, it's that well outside. We've used the water from it for the last 80 years. When we dug the well we struck a layer of black sand, and I think there's some mineral in the water that's beneficial.'

'Pa forgot to tell one thing,' interrupted Mrs. Peters. 'He bought the first kerosene lamp owned in Chelsea.'

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Miss Agnes Irene Weber and Mr. Clare H. Fenn Made Man and Wife in Church Ceremony.

Amid profuse decorations of yellow and white chrysanthemums and before a large audience of relatives and friends of the parties to the ceremony, Miss Agnes Irene Weber and Mr. Clare H. Fenn, both Chelsea young people, were united in holy wedlock in St. Mary church at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning. Rev. Henry VanDyke, pastor of the young couple, officiated at the ceremony which made them man and wife.

The bridal couple were attended by Miss Margaret Howe, of Detroit, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Hubert Foster, of Grass Lake, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Mr. James McCarthy of Chelsea, and Clarence Foster of Grass Lake.

Attired in a gown of brown material, the bride presented a beautiful appearance throughout the ceremony. Her bridesmaid was also suitably gowned for the auspicious occasion.

Following the church services a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Weber, East Middle street, about fifty guests being received. Those in the receiving line were the bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Weber and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Fenn. A wedding breakfast was also served the guests following the reception. The hostess, Mrs. Weber, was beautifully attired in a gown of black velvet while her daughter, Miss Dorothy Cavanaugh, wore a gown of apricot tulle. Decorations of the home were similar and yellow and white ribbon.

Out-of-town guests were present from Rochester, Detroit, Jackson, Ann Arbor and Grass Lake.

The bride of Wednesday is an accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Weber, a native of Chelsea, and at the present time is teaching in the public schools of River Rouge, where she will continue her work until the close of the present school year. Mr. Fenn is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Fenn, a native of Chelsea, and a promising young business man, being proprietor of a drug business at Michigan Center.

Following a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Fenn will reside in Michigan Center.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Fenn are popular young people of Chelsea, and claim an unusually large number of friends both here and elsewhere. They will enter upon their marital venture with the congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends.

PRISON POET TO SPEAK

The Chelsea Parent-Teacher Association has secured John Francis Glynn, the "Prison Poet," to deliver his lecture, "The Crucifixion of American Manhood," at a special meeting to be held at the high school auditorium on Wednesday evening, December 5.

Mr. Glynn comes well recommended, having addressed clubs at the University of Michigan, churches, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. He will speak to 3000 students at the Ypsilanti Normal school early in December. He is the author of "Songs From the Silence," a book of Prison Verse.

It is urged by officers of the association that there be a good attendance so that reorganization may be effected.

WASHTENAW ROAD PAVING TO BE FINISHED IN SPRING

Washtenaw road paving will be discontinued Saturday for the winter. Shouldering of the road paved will be completed this fall but further paving is impossible because of weather conditions.

The road uncompleted and which will be finished early in the spring, is about one and a half miles in length and is in the approximate center, beginning just west of the road intersection by the N. Y. C. R. R. tracks and extending a short distance west of Carpenter road.

The contract for asphalt coverings for Washtenaw road in the cities of Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor has been let to the Ann Arbor Asphalt company, who will finish their work before winter arrives.—Ypsilanti Record.

DOUBLE HEADER GAMES WITNESSED FRIDAY NIGHT

Chelsea high school boys lost their first basket ball game of the season last Friday night when the C. S. club of the University of Michigan defeated them 18 to 11 in Welfare Hall.

Girls of the high school defeated the Girls' team of St. Mary school 21-19. Both games were hotly contested, showing the fighting spirit of all teams participating.

RELATED JUSTICE

The plans of the Presbyterian church to establish a $25,000,000 fund to pension old clergymen of that denomination are being watched by an applauding world, long accustomed to seeing ageing ministers humiliated by poverty when the church retired them. Similar movements have been under way in other denominations on a smaller scale for decades; but the idea, however old and often attempted, of properly and regularly providing for retired crusaders of the Cross is still awaiting systematic development.

The Episcopal fund for this purpose went over the $7,500,000 mark, while the Congregationalists easily raised $5,000,000. The Methodists, long leaders in the attempt, cannot make as good showing as the more affluent denominations, but have pushed the universal movement.

It is hardly surprising that it took so long to inaugurate a pension system for ministers. A regular salary for ministers is a comparatively new idea, and even now the salaries ill compare with returns from other professions. Also church members are being but slowly educated up to paying willingly, regularly and proportionately to their ability.

It is also to be noted that the ministers, and not the pew-holders, had to initiate and carry on this movement for old-age pensioning. It is true that the ministers are the financial as well as the spiritual leaders of their churches, and that the laymen are not organized. Yet it is an added humiliation that ministers must deal so intimately, so strenuously, so imperatively with crude financial matters, especially as they relate to keeping a very real wolf from the door and providing against a very real almshouse.

It is true to say churches, like other organizations, should provide a dignified pension for preachers. It is not true to refer laymen to their shifted responsibility. Pewholders are, in a sense, employers, and if they cannot be moved by logic to care for a faithful worker, they should prove their faith in their leader by letting sentiment hold sway.

Ministers by nature are loth to plead for what is so obviously their just due. Except for the press, which is oft too indifferent, they have no champion. Unlike the physician who can command his fee under penalty of refusing future service, the minister accepts what is given. Though his work is more essential to the ultimate good of the universe than that of the physician or lawyer, he is unappreciated to the point of neglect. Finally, they had to quiet their qualms and risk misunderstanding, by organizing for bringing peace to gray hairs. They are succeeding nobly. They are also overcoming a natural and cultivated indisposition toward such things as money. If by further organization, cooperation and systematic effort they can provide better pay for ministers, thus enabling them to do better work and assuring increasingly stronger men for the profession, they will more nearly realize the exalted creed of the calling.

THE FILM REVOLUTION

Whether due to protest of fans or the natural course of events, the moving picture world is undergoing a revolution. Salaries ranging as high as $10,000 a week, in the case of Mary Pickford, Jackie Coogan and others must be reduced ninety percent, say producers. Extravagant pictures requiring expensive sets, elaborate decorations and costumes and costly exploitation must give way to more modest attempts. A revolution is under way, and tomorrow's motion picture may be enjoyed without the subconscious knowledge that the film cost a million dollars to produce, or that the star owns ten motor cars, or that between clicks of the cameras the actors play poker for thousand dollar stakes.

Fact and fable have been curiously blended in film advertising. The romance of this newest and biggest industry tends toward distortion of facts. Yet, although we accept press agent tales with a generous pinch of salt, we know stars are much over-paid; that there is a tremendous waste of money among half a dozen middle-men in the exhibiting business; that the merits of the picture do not justify such expenditures for marble palaces, and that more money does not necessarily imply more art.

No movie star needs or should have ten thousand dollars a week, $500,000 a year. Not even an editor is worth that salary! The mere $3,000 a week received by Mabel Normand, Richard Barthelmess and others is more than far more deserving people get in a year.

Not in it necessary for art to be elaborate or expensive. Producers are in a rut as regards ideas, and wildly competing to spend most dollars. Now they are retracting their race; perhaps they will also climb out of the rut. We do not insist on rich heroes going into the country for a ride, having a flat tire, meeting and falling in love with a pretty country lass, marrying her, having his mother and sisters ignore her, later to receive and love her when she does something heroic—and similar bromide twaddle. Give us a change from meteoric rises from rags to riches; from obviously un-mated couples after four reels of tribulations kissing for a hundred feet in the last reel and starting out to live happily ever after—which any sensible person knows they won't do; from all the distortion of life and begged questions and hackneyed plots. The price is not the factor. Twenty, thirty, fifty cents is not too much for an evening's entertainment. But give us simplicity, sincerity, sublimity. Show us idealized life without sensationalism. Inspire us without preaching at us. Teach us without boring us. Move us without resorting to cheap melodrama and milk-and-water sob stuff.

That is a task for producers. It doesn't require much money, and not only will mean greater returns, but will come nearer to achieving the real and oft-boasted aim of the cinema. There is a surprising number of people who long for fewer insipid serials and more convincing and consistent productions. Perhaps this belated and involuntary change of front will reward them.

THE GREAT MOMENT

Marcel Rueilan, French ace, probably knew he was "going west" when he saved a jammed crowd from a wild airplane at Port Golden, N. J., by throwing himself on the whirling propeller. He had flown too much, cranked too many powerful motors, seen too many arms clipped off by the wicked blades not to realize the danger in trying to stop a pilotless ship running amuck by grabbing the propeller. But it was either he or perhaps a dozen, and training and instinct sent him leaping quick as light, hoping his unleashed servant-master would accept his sacrifice and spare others. He stopped the plane; they have sent his body back to his homeland, while his comrades of the clouds pray that they may die as bravely.

Rueilan was a soldier, and had courted gaily with death above smoke-fogged battlefields. Also, he was of a people to whom such deeds are a religion. His courage, whether natural or cultivated, arouses latent heroism in every man's heart; it will be just a bit easier for the rest of us to make good when our great moment comes.

No person can exhibit courage who is not a hero. A coward can not rise to an opportunity like this; his weakness restrains him. He who thinks, plans and acts timidly or furtively is that kind of a man, doomed to remain so. The man who snatches another from in front of a train or stands firm for his convictions though the world oppose him has been doing that kind of thing all along on a smaller scale, until the emergency finds him prepared for sacrifice. Such deeds are not born of a moment, but are the summary, the objective, the justification of a lifetime. The plane in this case just happened; Marcel Rueilan had been for years. The propeller blades, at once his opportunity and his Nemesis, were a big test, but he had been meeting and passing similar tests in little ways all his life, and he did not hesitate.

Character, wise men tell us, is an accumulation of our deeds and thoughts. Apparently those who aspire to die bravely are expected to live bravely, lest the great moment which comes to every man find the hand feeble, the heart weak and the eye dim.

Sherwood Anderson, who wrote best-selling novels about marriage and divorce, is suing his wife for desertion. Even an authority may neglect his own teachings.

When the inner tomb of King Tut is opened in the spring, the slumbering monarch will be greeted by a tiny phonograph playing a modern jazz record. If any explorer is stricken dead, we will understand and forgive.

Robert Saylor, of Atlanta, hanged himself rather than go to the poorhouse. With but a half dozen years to live, he found the Silence sweeter than charity, and after four score years of independence, thought it better to unlock the door with unshackled hands. Tragic that man's resourcefulness and industry cannot always match his spirit to save such sacrifices. But what would man be worth without pride?

Northern New Jersey congregations prayed for rain. Back in the stone age, man did the same, only he had an idol of wood. Faith in the supernatural, and its responsiveness to appeal, was then universal and taken for granted. Only when man put on trousers did he become ashamed of his worship. Jungle folk thought playing was the only way to propitiate the elements. Now it is front page news.

VACCINATE AT ONCE! SMALLPOX IS ABROAD

Need of widespread vaccination against smallpox is once more in evidence. An epidemic recently saw inception at Hudson, and this is one of many sporadic outbreaks being reported the state over to the Michigan Department of Health. Unless people guard themselves by vaccination, smallpox will find a fertile field for reaping a grim toll in Michigan this winter.

The Hudson epidemic started mildly enough, but in a short time the entire community was threatened. An epidemiologist was accordingly dispatched to the scene by the State Department of Health, but when he arrived there he found a rigorous program of vaccination already under way. School children were treated thus, then the factory population. Those concentrating in groups were vaccinated first. All known cases were quarantined, reported cases were investigated, and local motion picture houses rendered aid in spreading advice of what to do.

Too much praise cannot be accorded a community for taking hold as Hudson did in her time of emergency. A few days of prompt and vigorous repressive measures on the part of the health officer and local authorities marked a change for the better, and the disease now is under control. For all the state medical inspector had to do, he might have been no more than a casual visitor. Hudson's decisive methods of checking smallpox stamp her as a progressive community others may do well in imitating.

This epidemic shows the worth of vaccination as a smallpox preventive. American leadership stamped out the disease in the Philippine Islands in 1898. Only with the coming of forgetful, newer generations has smallpox been returning to the islands. Periodic vaccination practiced everywhere would obliterate smallpox from the earth.

Feathers and a feather is used for mining in North China, instead of a gun to work out the gold. The Mongol—so Dr. Ferdinand Ossendowski tells us in his book "Beasts, Men and Gods"—lives flat on the ground, brushes the sand aside with a feather and keeps blowing into the little excavation so formed. From time to time he wets his finger and, picking up on it a small bit of grain or a diminutive nugget, drops it into a little bag hanging under his chin. In that way he collects about a quarter of an ounce, or five dollars' worth of gold a day.

WHERE ALL THE SUGAR GOES

Bakers and Makers of Candy and Soft Drinks Use Vast Amounts of It.

Not more than half of the sugar we Americans consume is used in our homes. The rest goes into manufactured products. The estimates of the quantities used in manufacture run this way:

Our candy makers alone use more than 350,000 tons, and 130,000 tons more go to sweeten up chocolates and ice cream.

Every year the bakers dip into the national sugar bowl for well over 45,000 tons for bread, 55,000 tons for crackers and 90,000 tons goes every year into frostings and odds and ends in the bakeries.

Fourteen thousand or more soft-drink makers hit the nation's sugar bin for at least 130,000 tons for their concoctions and another 100,000 tons goes into condensed milk.

Twenty thousand tons of sugar is chewed up each year in gum; and less aesthetic jaws worked on another 15,000 tons that goes into the nation's "cigar" tobacco, this not including about 6,000 tons that goes to smoking tobacco.

The country's pill and potion bill disposes of about 8,000 tons of sugar each year, and the corner druggist uses an unknown quantity in filling what the doctor ordered.

Even sticky fly paper and roach ant and rat killers draw from the sugar supply to the tune of hundreds of tons.

And nobody knows how much has gone into bootleg and home-brew.—Nation's Business.

SCALING SHIPS BY MACHINERY

Labor-Saving Device for Cleaning Bottoms of Vessels Is Run by Compressed Air.

Scaling ships' bottoms by machinery is the latest labor-saving practice devised to aid "those who go down to the sea in ships." Ever since the advent of iron and steel hulls, one of the meanest jobs faced by Jack is cleaning the vessel's underwater section when the ship is placed in dry dock. Hammers with chisel-like heads, wire brushes and even cold chisels have been laboriously wielded to clean off marine growths, rust and the old paint.

Now comes the ship scaling machine run by compressed air and looking very much like the pneumatic riveters so painfully familiar to New Yorkers who live near modern building operations—and who doesn't? By its use, one man in a day as could six men with the old-time methods and do a better and cleaner job at that. Gauge goggles are needed, however, in operating the ship scaler, because it works so fast, that bits of metal, rust and paint fly about in a veritable shower. Another modification of the machine is run by electricity.

Voice Pictures.

So that future generations might be able to compare the quality of her song with that of voices yet unheard, Melba consented to sing into Professor Low's "audiometer," an instrument which photographs the waves of sound as they come from the singer's lips. This photograph is quite different from that of any other voice ever recorded. No other has had anything resembling the same variation combined with the same regularity. It is full of harmonics and infinitesimal variations in the wave, but these waves are perfect in regularity. This might account for its carrying power, by superimposition, since it is not a loud voice in the ordinary sense.

Heroic Act of Collie.

A collie dog is reported to have saved the life of a London (Ont.) girl, while accompanying the child to a nearby store. The girl stopped on the railroad tracks in the path of a fier. Realizing the child's peril, the dog threw himself against her with sufficient impact to knock her clear of danger, and was cut to pieces by the train before he could regain safety. The little one's mother had tried to discourage the dog from going when the daughter started on her errand.

Shooting Cement.

An 18-mile tunnel has been pierced to bring New York's water from the Catskills. Four hundred thousand barrels of cement will be used in lining the tunnel. A mixing plant at the mouth of each one of the seven shafts of the tunnel discharges compounded concrete down an eight-inch pipe at the rate of a mile a minute. The concrete is shot into steel forms by a "concrete cannon."

Frank About It.

A visitor to a mountain village found a sect which believed that the world was flat and made that a tenet. "You hang together well," he suggested to an elder.

"We don't always hang together so well at that," responded the elder frankly, "but we ain't got enough members for a split."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Watch Geese" for Warehouse.

Several of his watchdogs were stolen, so now a London warehouseman is using geese instead, taught no doubt by the old story of Rome being saved from night capture by the geese of the capital. Geese are nervous birds and can be relied on to cackle in the presence of anything unusual, be it men. Many men are afraid to go near a goose.

BREVITIES.

Saline—For the benefit of our subscribers in other states, we are mentioning the fact that dandelions and other flowers are still blooming in Saline yards on this bright and glorious 22nd day of November, 1923.—Observer.

Dexter—The tax rate of school district No. 9, fr., which includes Dexter village, for the year 1923, is $28.41 per thousand dollars of valuation. Outside of Dexter village the rate will be $3 more per thousand or $26.41.—Leader.

Pineknob—Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Maycroft are now located in the Congregational church parsonage. Rev. Maycroft, the new pastor of the Congregational church, came here from Old Mission where he had been located for the past four years.

Manchester—The calendar for December is arranged so that the regular monthly meetings of all the Masonic bodies in this village come the first week: Blue Lodge on Monday the 3rd; Council on Tuesday the 4th, and Chapter on Thursday the 6th. It will also be the date for election of officers.—Enterprise.

Stockbridge—Fire which is supposed to have caught from a passing train, destroyed the barn on the Will Evers place, in the eastern part of the village, Tuesday noon. An Overland sedan, owned by Frank Gerinski was also destroyed. Both barn and auto were covered by insurance.—Brief-Sun.

Ypsilanti—Members of the city council in meeting Monday night voted to increase water rates in Ypsilanti $1 for every six months due to added expense in the water department. The vote was carried over the veto of the mayor, who contended that the additional expense was unnecessary.—Record.

Grass Lake—The Cable for the Boulevard lighting system has arrived and is being placed this week. It is expected by those having the work in charge that they will have the lights burning by Saturday evening. The new lights are beautiful and will be a great addition to the appearance of our Main street.—News.

Ypsilanti—President Charles McKenny, Dr. M. S. Pittman, both of the Michigan State Normal college and John Dawson, president of the consolidated school board were the speakers at the ceremonies Thursday morning celebrating the breaking of ground for the new consolidated school, five miles south of Ypsilanti.

Brooklyn—The family of Robert Kline, occupying a cottage on the north side of Stony Lake in Napoleon township is under quarantine for smallpox. Mrs. Kline and a nine-months old baby girl are afflicted with the trouble in mild form. They lately came from Jackson and Mr. Kline has been employed in Jackson.—Exponent.

Brooklyn—Talking about ten liters of pigs, Trace Donohoe of Norwell says that he marketed a litter of 12 pigs in Detroit on October 28 for Clarence Camburn of Wolf Lake. The pigs were just 12 days over six months old and weighed 2830 pounds in Detroit. This is a 236 average. The pigs were Poland China with a Duroc cross.—Exponent.

Manchester—Mrs. Barbara Holmes, who has been chief operator at the Manchester phone exchange, for these many years, has decided to join her sister Mrs. Fred Steinkohl of Lansing and another sister in a three months' vacation in Florida, after the holidays. The telephone company recognizes her efficient and loyal services and readily consented to give her a leave of absence.—Enterprise.

Saline—Member when almost every community had its sorghum mill, and what a lot of that delicious article was consumed on flapjacks during the winter months? We were forcibly reminded of it on Sunday when a couple of residents of the big city, lured to the country by haunting memories of their boyhood days, stopped us to inquire where such a mill could be found.—Observer.

Brighton—The village council has carefully considered the question of the public improvements proposed for Brighton. They have investigated thoroughly the proposition that is to be placed before the voters at the special election on December 10, and believe they are acting for the good of the village when they recommend that the bond issue be carried and be carried strong.—Argus.

Jackson—George Barrey, Napoleon township farmer, was arrested by sheriff's officers late Thursday afternoon to answer a charge of cruelty to animals. It is claimed that Barrey left one of his horses in a swamp two days, where it was found by hunters and later killed by Humane Officer Pulling who had been called by Sheriff Stoddard. He pleaded not guilty and his case set for December 5. He was released on his own recognizance.—News.

Clinton—While grading the Chicago turnpike in the Irish Hills district Saturday afternoon the steam shovel unearthed two bones which Foreman Leland Brighton suspected to be those of a person. Upon closer examination they were found to be the bones of a man's leg. Further excavating led to the discovery of nine skeletons, which were in a well preserved state. Kettles, a teaspoon and tablespoon, a stone hammer, a tomahawk, arrow heads and other relics were found during the next two days, disclosing the fact that the old Chicago turnpike evidently passes over an old Indian burial ground.—Local.

Christmas Seals Helped to Make These Tots Happy

TWO KIDDIES AT A SUMMER CAMP

Every summer hundreds of under-nourished and sickly children enjoy the hospitality of summer camps scattered throughout the state. At these camps the kiddies are given an opportunity to play, eat and sleep in the open air, to eat the right kind of food and to get the proper amount of healthful exercise.

Summer camps are a part of the work carried on with Christmas seal sale funds. Every penny that is spent for seals is a contribution to the health and general welfare of hundreds of children. Every seal that is used becomes a weapon in the hands of skilled tuberculosis fighters. Buy Christmas seals and help make trail children strong.

The Book Worm.

A man tries to keep the dust and grime off the books on his bookshelves just so long, and then gives up in despair.

Fuel Briquets.

The United States produces only 0.43 per cent of the world's fuel briquets; the industry being developed chiefly in countries where a large part of the available coal is of low grade and unsuitable for use in the raw state.

LOOK 'EM OVER

With prices at present low levels, why take a chance with any other than a tire of known value?

You can get the famous All-Weather Tread Goodyear Cord with the new beveled edge for about the same price asked for many tires that don't begin to give equal service.

You can get the Goodyear Wingfoot Cord with the Cross-Rib Tread for 20 per cent less. The 32x4, for instance, sells for $6.25 less than the All-Weather Tread.

You can get the standard Goodyear All-Weather Tread Fabric tire for still less than you pay for Wingfoot Cords. In the 34x4 size, this tire—for years the standard of quality—costs you $7.30 less than the All-Weather Tread Cord.

Then if you use Clincher tires, there are 8 different types of Goodyears at different prices to select from.

Why experiment—it costs no more to buy standard quality.

Put Goodyears on and forget tire trouble.

Evening worship 7:30 o'clock. Subject: "Our Fathers Will."

The desire for worship is instinctive in the heart of man and will grow. So long as babies are borne, mothers will name them, not number them; so long as men love maidens they will marry and not merely mate together; so long as men see loved ones die, they will watch for the rising of another sun; so long as men and women march like pilgrims across the storm-seared earth they will feel the need for God and will lift up their hands and hearts in prayer, and thanksgiving. Remember this is Thanksgiving week, and be thankful every day.

We, (the pastors) will be looking for you all to be present at the church of your choice each Sunday.

OVERLAND CHAMPION
GIVES FREE RIDES

Week of November 22-29 Set Aside
By All Willys-Overland Dealers
as National Champion Demonstration Week.

November 22-29 will be Champion Demonstration Week among Willys-Overland dealers, branches and distributors throughout the United States.

Willys-Overland, Inc., has set aside this period as a merchandising period when greatest stress would be laid upon this most versatile of all its models, to mark the climax of the most successful year that Willys-Overland merchants have ever yet enjoyed.

For the first time since this new car was first announced early in October all of the 5000 dealers throughout the land have now been furnished with sample cars of this type. Factory production has been speeded up to such a point where it is adjudged to be nearly adequate to the demand. For the first time President John N. Willys and General Sales Manager L. G. Paed consider the circumstances in their dealer organization to be ripe for a universal effort to acquaint the motor car buying public with the many uses of this unique model.

No car that Willys-Overland has ever introduced has met with the spontaneous and immediate acclaim that greeted the Champion. While radically novel and fresh, yet it proved to be the type of motor car that many have longed for and hoped for. It probably is the most divergently useful car ever brought out. Its front and rear seats can be easily and quickly adjusted to three different positions, permitting a tall driver to manipulate foot pedals same taken a short driver can adjust the driver's seat so that he can easily reach the pedals. Rear seat can also be moved forward or back to accommodate the convenience of the passengers.

The car's most remarkable characteristic, however, is that both front and rear seats and upholstery can be entirely removed and made up into a luxurious bed right in the car, a feature that will prove invaluable to tourists and campers.

With rear seat and upholstery removed fifty cubic feet of space for salesman's samples, suit cases, trunks and luggage, farm tools, produce and supplies, camp duffle and other equipment that it might be necessary to transport, all of which can easily be loaded into this compartment.

The entire week will be devoted by the Willys-Overland dealer organization to a thorough display and demonstration of this car's many uses.

KING CRAB NOW IN ALASKA

Migrates From Japan and Canneries Are Kept Busy Packing the Giant Shellfish.

The king crab, formerly only found in merchantable quantities near Japan, has invaded the waters of Cook Inlet, Prince William sound, off Sitka, and Bering sea, in such numbers that four canneries in Alaska are packing the giant shellfish, says a Seattle correspondent. About 20,000 cases is the expected output, worth $35 a case, or $700,000.

The king crab measures from three to five feet from tip to tip of the huge claws, or pincers, and in weight from four to twelve pounds. The largest specimen of the king crab, of which Dean John N. Cobb of the College of Fisheries, University of Washington, has heard, was found in the net of a Japanese fisherman, and measured 39 feet from tip to tip, weighing 40 pounds.

Just why these crabs should migrate to the American shores is a mystery. Pacific coast packing plants will turn to crab packing on a large scale.—New York World.

Louvain Library Building Checked

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university and chairman of the National Committee for the Restoration of the University of Louvain, has just received a cablegram from Carroll Greenwood, in charge of the work at Louvain, to the effect that the architects have stopped the restoration of the 600-year-old library for lack of funds. The work was to have been financed by the educational institutions of this country, $1 from every student matriculated. But only $300,000 has been contributed, and $700,000 more is needed to complete the edifice. The photograph shows it as it is, only one quarter completed.

THE BUCCANEERS A. D. 1670

It is only a couple of centuries since Spain was the greatest nation on earth, with the Atlantic for her duck pond, the American continents for her back yard, and a notice up to warn away the English, "No dogs admitted."

England was a little power then, Charles II had to come running when the French king whistled, and the British were so weak that the Dutch burned their fleet in London river. Every year a Spanish fleet came from the West Indies to Cadiz, laden deep with gold, silver, gems, spices and all sorts of precious merchandise.

Much as her sailors hated to see all that treasure wasted on Spaniards, England had to keep the peace with Spain, because Charles II had his crown jewels in pawn and no money for such luxuries as war. The Spanish navy would come to him making doleful lamentations about his naughty sailors, who, in the far Indies, had insolently stolen a galleon or sacked a town. Charles, with his mouth watering at such a tale of loot, would be impressively shocked. The "Jew French" must have done this, or the "perfidious Dutch," but not his woolly lambs—his innocent mariners.

The buccaneers of the West Indies were at many nations besides the British, and they were not quite pirates. For instance, they would seem to seize a Protestant shipload of salt fish, but always attacked the papist who had golden galleons. They were serious-minded Protestants with strong views on doctrine, and only made their plundering excursions to seize the goods of the unrighteous. Their opinions were so sound on all really important points of dogmatic theory that they could allow themselves a little indulgence in mere outrage, sacrilege, arson, robbery and murder, or fry Spaniards in olive oil for concealing the cash box. Then, enriched by such pious exercises, they devoutly spent the whole of their savings on staying drunk for a month.

The first buccaneers sailed out in a small boat and captured a warship. From such small beginnings arose a pirate fleet, which, under various leaders, French, Dutch, British, Portuguese, became a scourge to the Spanish empire overseas. When they had rates, and the sailors of the whole squadron were butchered while they drowned. Still Fort San Carlos, now bristling with new guns, had to be dealt with before the pirates could make their escape to the sea. Morgan pretended to attack from the land, so that all the guns were shifted to that side of the fort ready to wipe out his forces. This being done, he got his men on board and sailed through the channel in perfect safety.

And yet attacks upon such places as Maracaibo were mere trifling, for the Spaniards held all the wealth of their golden Indies at Panama. This gorgeous city was on the Pacific ocean, and to reach it, one must cross the isthmus of Darien by the route in later times of the Panama railway and the Panama canal, through the most unwholesome swamps, where to sleep at night in the open was almost sure death from fever. Moreover, the landing place at Chagres was covered by a strong fortress, the route was swarming with Spanish troops and wild savages in their pay, and their destination was a walled city esteemed impregnable.

By way of preparing for his raid, Morgan sent four hundred men, who stormed the castle of Chagres, compelling the wretched garrison to jump off a cliff to destruction. The English flag shone from the citadel when Morgan's fleet arrived. The captain landed one thousand two hundred men and set off up the Chagres river with five boats loaded with artillery, thirty-two canoes and no food. This was a mistake, because the Spaniards had cleared the whole isthmus, driving off the cattle, rooting out the crops, carting away the grain, burning every roof, and leaving nothing for the pirates to live on except the microbes of fever. As the pirates advanced they retreated, luring them on day by day into the heart of the wilderness. The pirates broiled and ate their sea boots, their handkerchiefs, and certain leather bags. The river, being foul with fallen timber, they took to marching. On the sixth day they found a herd of wild cattle and ate it up, but only on the ninth day had they a decent meal, when, sweating, gasping and swearing, they pounced upon a herd of asses and cows, and fell to roasting flesh on the points of their swords.

On the tenth day they debouched upon a plain before the City of Panama, where the governor awaited with his troops. There were two squadrons of cavalry and four regiments of foot, besides guns, and the pirates heartily wished themselves at home with their mothers. Happily the Spanish governor was too shy for he had prepared a herd of wild bulls with Indian herders to drive into the pirate ranks, which bulls, in sheer stupidity, rushed to fly through the pirate lines, were readily shot down, but the rest brought dire confusion. Then began a fierce battle, in which the Spaniards lost six hundred men before they bolted. Afterward, through a fearful storm of fire from great artillery, the pirates stormed the city and took possession.

Of course, by this time, the rich galleons had made away to sea with their treasure, and the citizens had carried off everything worth moving, to the woods. Moreover, the pirates were busy in burning the town, so that the treasures, which had been buried in wells, or cellars, were lost beyond all finding. During four weeks, this splendid capital of the Indies burned, while the people hid in the woods; and the pirates tortured everybody they could lay hands on with fiendish cruelty. Morgan himself, caught a beautiful lady and threw her into a cellar full of filth because she would not love him. Even in their retreat to the Atlantic, the pirates carried off six hundred prisoners, who rent the air with their lamentations, and were not even fed until their ransoms arrived.

Before reaching Chagres, Morgan had every pirate stripped to make sure that all loot was fairly divided. The common pirates were bitterly offended at the dividend of only two hundred pieces of eight per man, but Morgan stole the bulk of the plunder himself and returned a millionaire to Jamaica. Charles II knighted him and made him governor of Jamaica as a reward for robbing the Spaniards. Afterwards his majesty changed his mind, and Morgan died a prisoner in the tower of London as a punishment for the very crime which had been rewarded with a title and a vicereignty.

A Serious Situation.

"Did you know," asked Mr. Nutting of his neighbor as they sat discussing the affairs of the world on the neighbor's piazza, "did you know that there are seventy-five thousand people in Massachusetts, all native-born Americans, who can neither speak nor write the English language?" "No!" replied his friend. "That seems impossible. Are you sure of your figures?" "Perfectly sure." "And they're all American born, you say?" "Yes, sir, every one of them native born—and every one of them under two years of age."

State and General News Section of the Standard

A Brief Summary of General World, State and Markets for the Readers of Chelsea and Environs.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Hillsdale—Mrs. Emily Brown, 93 years old, Hillsdale's oldest resident, died at her home here.

Iron River—Civil war veteran Andrew J. Boyington, 83 years old, of this city, died here recently. He was one of three surviving civil war veterans.

Monroe—Henry J. Shovar, 80 years old, county treasurer of Monroe from 1902 to 1906, civil war veteran and former supervisor of Frenchtown, died here recently.

Menominee—Mrs. Eugene Houtte was the first Menominee woman this season to bag a deer. It weighed 160 pounds. Few women in Cloverland applied for hunting licenses.

Grayling—Fire destroyed the Michaelson Memorial M. E. church and parsonage here. Loss was about $50,000. This was the only English-speaking Protestant church in the city.

Caro—One of the largest deposits of the marl beds in the state has been opened in Watertown township. County Agent Sims urges using marl and other forms of limestone for acid soils.

Muskegon—Michigan hunters visiting Canada this year have found that they not only have to capture the game but pay for it. A tariff of 4 cents a pound is charged on deer brought over the boundary.

Detroit—Michigan has had 864 drownings in the last 12 months, or almost one for every day in the year. Throughout the nation, 6,000 men, women and children lost their lives last year according to reports compiled here.

Muskegon—Ralph Ek, 20 years old, of Grand Rapids, attended the Lansing-Muskegon football game recently, and tried to leave the field by scaling the fence. As he jumped, the ring he was wearing caught in one of the iron pickets, nullifying off his finger at the second joint.

Grand Rapids—A special committee appointed by Warren R. Townsend, chairman of the county road commission, have been seeking available sites for two state tourist camps for Kent County. It will be proposed that the State and county divide the purchase price.

Marcellus—While oiling the upper part of the machinery of a windmill at a height of about 35 feet, a moving part of the mechanism pinched Floyd Herring, a farmer living near here and knocked him from the platform to the ground below, crushing his body from the hips down.

Saginaw—Jacob H. Lewis, 95 years old, first white settler in Tittabawassee Township, died here. He came to this section nearly 70 years ago and was a school teacher and preacher, riding out among the Indians to spread the gospel. He was supervisor from his township for five terms.

Ann Arbor—Conrad N. Church, for several years a Michigan newspaper man, has left here for Blytheville, Ark., where he will become editor and publisher of the Blytheville Courier. He has been succeeded as managing editor of the Ann Arbor Times-News by R. Ray Baker, of Grand Rapids.

Kalamazoo—After having served six years on the Council and having been influential in local politics for nearly 40 years, James Alexander Taylor, former alderman from the Fifth Ward, went before the Circuit Court last week for his naturalization papers. Taylor, until a year ago, believed that he had been a citizen since 1859, his father having taken out his first papers in that year when his father failed to do this at that time.

Ludington—Smith Hawley, 76 years old, one of the best-known fruit growers in Western Michigan, died at his farm home in Summit Township. An early member and past president of the Michigan Horticultural Society, Mr. Hawley was the pioneer of this district in preaching the gospel of spraying as a means of raising better fruit. He conducted experiments in this line long before the Michigan Agricultural College had installed its extension course.

Ann Arbor—The Catholic students of the University of Michigan have forsaken their chapel at the corner of State and Jefferson avenue to worship Sundays in a movie theater so that their building may be remodeled into classrooms. This step has been taken in accordance with an agreement entered into between the Rev. Fr. Michael Burke, pastor of the chapel and the University, at the time the University purchased the property last year.

ROUND UP REDS IN BOMB PLOT

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT TO ACT

Police Fear Other Attacks Are Planned Against Fascist Consulates.

Spanish and Italian Anarchists Are Believed to Have Formed New Organization.

Philadelphia—Police began a round-up of known anti-Fascists Sunday in their investigation into the bombing of the Spanish and Italian consulates here.

Fearing attacks in other cities as a protest against the recent Fascist agreements between Premier Mussolini of Italy and General Primo Rivera, dictator of Spain, the consulates have wired their home governments to warn their consulates in other cities.

The department of justice, it is reported, probably will investigate the bombings.

Authorities were working on the theory that a new secret organization of Latin Reds, sworn to warfare against the Fascist movement, is responsible for the bombings.

Six professional bombers, according to information obtained by the police, placed the infernal machines in the doorways of the consulates.

Three men suspected of being implicated in the bombings are already under arrest and detectives Sunday continued rounding up "Reds," with the hope that they may give a clue that will lead to getting the guilty parties.

Senor Ortiz was thrown from his bed by the bomb which exploded in the vestibule of his home and office on Pine street.

Chevalier Luigi Silletti, Italian consul, was at his home in a different section of the city when the bombers placed a second infernal machine on the steps of the Sons of Italy State bank, above which the Italian consulate is located.

Both attaches told police they believe anarchist groups were responsible for the two attacks.

WORLD RELIEF BODY PROPOSED

League of Nations Seeks to Create Federation to Aid Distressed.

Geneva—The secretariat of the League of Nations has just sent out to all members of the league draft copies of the proposed international convention for the creation of an international federation for mutual assistance in the relief of peoples overtaken by disaster.

The proposed convention constitutes the first effort to establish on an international basis among nations the principle already established among individuals of mutual dependency and assistance.

In great disasters like the recent Japanese quake, instead of leaving the stricken people to the charity of the world and to a hastily improvised relief, it is proposed to constitute a worldwide federation of nations, wherein each will contribute its quota, not as mere charity but as a mutual reciprocal assessment, for the relief of all stricken people, and to be available at all times to carry aid the moment it is needed.

The proposed international relief convention constitutes the league's first effort to carry into reality the principles embodied in the league covenant that the world is entering on a new basis of recognized mutual dependency amongst nations.

NEW CHANCELLOR APPOINTED

President Ebert Selects Cuno Aid to Form New Cabinet.

Berlin—Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, who was minister of the treasury under Chancellor Cuno, has accepted President Ebert's invitation to form a new cabinet.

The decision to ask Dr. Albert was reached after prolonged conference which President Ebert had with Heinrich Brauns, minister of labor, Dr. Jarres, minister of the interior, and Dr. Otto Gessler, minister of defense.

It is assumed that these three men will be members of the new ministry. If Dr. Albert is successful in forming it, and it is possible that the other outgoing ministers may also remain in office.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senator Johnson Challenges Coolidge and Others to Direct Primary Fight.

STRESEMANN CABINET IS OUT

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SENATOR HIRSH JOHNSON of California, avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has started into making things lively for his rivals, including President Coolidge. He has warned them that he proposes to make a determined fight in every state against "hand-picked" delegations, and challenged them to meet him in the primaries in a straight-up contest. His statement, issued from Washington, is supposed to have been the result of unwarranted intimations that Mr. Coolidge would not make a direct campaign for state delegations, relying largely on delegates from states that have no direct primaries, and on those which would turn to him after their favorite candidates have been eliminated from competition.

"I insist that the rank and file of the Republican party have a right to express themselves as to the candidate of the party for the presidency," Senator Johnson said. "I am seeking to have that preference expressed. I shall accept the determination of the voters with equality and philosophy. I do not fear to go before the people upon that which I believe, and no other man who is a candidate should hesitate to have those whose support he seeks express themselves on his candidacy."

"The members of the party, rather than a few self-constituted bosses, are entitled to select the candidate. We are going to put it up to the American people. I insist that all candidates should go before the people on the same principle."

Senator Johnson indicated that his main fight would be made in such states as Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska and New Jersey. He is looked on with considerable favor by many Illinois Republicans, but who contend with the strong following of Coolidge and Lowden. In Indiana Senator James E. Watson says he may become a candidate "if for no other reason than to keep the state's delegation from Hiram Johnson."

While he is too radical for such men as Watson, the California is too conservative to split the other Senator Johnson, Magnus from Minnesota, that loud-speaker arrived in the national capital and told the pop-eyed world that Hiram was a backslider and the cause of progressivism, that the third party movement was growing very strong, and that the farmers must be given protection against their enemies, the grain and dairy companies. He seems to be right about the third party movement. Indeed, a third party was formally organized in Chicago by a group under the leadership of J. A. H. Hopkins of New York and the call for its convention, to be held May 30, was issued.

Another meeting of progressive groups was held in Omaha and representatives of fifteen states endorsed Ford for president and called a convention at Detroit December 12.

WILLIAM G. McADOO had his first test of strength among the Democrats last week in South Dakota, where the county proposal conventions were held. Ford supporters were his opponents, and while results are not quite definite, it appears that McAdoo won throughout the state by a vast two to one. The Republicans were fairly divided between Coolidge and Hiram Johnson. Most of the successful delegates named unopposed delegations to the state convention.

DR. STRESEMANN and his cabinet fell again after the reassembling of the Reichstag, as had been expected. The chancellor made a long and passionate statement, winding up with the declaration that Germany's internal condition was hopeless and that he could not see the slightest prospect of improvement, and the offer to relinquish office if the Reichstag considered it necessary. He was heckled by the Communists and others, and when he demanded a vote of confidence this was refused him by a vote of 230 to 155. He and his ministers at once resigned. At this writing it seems likely that the new chancellor will be either Herr Lebach of the Bavarian People's party or Dr. Albert, who was in charge of the propaganda bureau of the German embassy in Washington before America entered the war.

Had Stresemann been able to defer the vote on the Reichstag for a quarter of an hour he might have been a savior, for the news came, just too late, that the industrial magnates of the Ruhr and the Hindenburg had signed a treaty with the French which is expected to bring comparative peace and prosperity to the occupied regions, since under it the coal and steel plants will resume operations.

In Upper Silesia the organized farmers, who are nationalistic, declared a food boycott against the towns until Stresemann and his cabinet should resign. Immediately the hungry townsfolk flocked into the country by thousands and burned and looted the farmsteads. They were fought by the junkers and their employees and by the police, and there were many fatalities. The farmers' organizations, it is stated, could provide plenty of food for all of Germany until next March if they wished, but they will not do so until a nationalistic government is established.

ONCE more the Anglo-French entente, periodically smashed by the foreign correspondents, has been saved. Notwithstanding his fiery and defiant addresses, Premier Poincare yielded to the British view as to what was best to do in the matters of the return of the former crown prince to Germany and the resumption of the activities of the allies' military control commission, and agreed that there should be no threats of sanctions nor anything that might sound like an ultimatum to Germany. The British gave in on some minor points, and thereupon the council of ambassadors sent to Berlin two notes. In one the Germans were told that since Frederick William already had returned, he might remain as a private citizen, but the government was asked to see that no steps be taken to place him on the throne. It was also warned that it must not permit the former kaiser to return. In the other communication Berlin was informed that "the allied governments have decided that the operations of military control and aeronautic supervision must be resumed without delay under conditions which will be notified to the German government by the presidents of the commission of military control and the committee of aeronautic guarantee."

"Should these operations meet with obstruction from German authorities or German nationals, the allied governments intend to take measures which may seem to them proper to assure execution of the treaty." It was understood that the Stresemann government would find the notes from the allies entirely satisfactory. The French press, except the government organs, was not so well pleased with them and the premier was rather severely criticized for his "surrender." But from his point of view Poincare seems justified. Prime Minister Baldwin faces a hard fight in the coming British elections, and one of the chief complaints against him is that he has suffered so many diplomatic defeats at the hands of Poincare. The latter cannot expect that in the event of Baldwin's defeat the new British government will be even as friendly to his policies as has been the present cabinet. Therefore he could well afford to give Baldwin the diplomatic victory of last week. After the British elections the whole question may be reopened.

DESPITE the misgivings of Senator Lodge, Senator Sino and some other Republican leaders who fear it may cause disaster for their party, President Coolidge has decided to support Secretary Mellon's tax reduction program boldly and unreservedly. With a revenue surplus piling up it is the duty of the government to reduce the tax burden, the President holds, and he is confident that the radicals will be unable to put any extreme measure through congress. His attitude toward soldier bonus legislation has not been disclosed, but he probably will follow the example of President Harding and insist that if a bonus bill be passed, a means for financing it be provided by congress.

J. C. WALTON, suspended governor of Oklahoma, was found guilty of eleven of the sixteen charges promulgated by the senate court of impeachment and for corruption in office, moral turpitude, neglect of duty and general incompetence was removed from his office. The vote was 41 to 0. Walton's one consistent supporter being absent. Six of the original charges were dismissed. No evidence for the defense was presented, for Walton had withdrawn his counsel after announcing that he could not stand the "humiliation of an unfair trial." His attorneys, however, intend to try to carry the case to the Supreme court of the United States. A grand jury in Oklahoma City considered the evidence on which the deposed governor was convicted and indicted him for criminal offenses.

DR. FREDERICK A. COOK, the Arctic explorer who gained notoriety by his bogus "discovery" of the North Pole years ago, and who of late has been a spectacular dealer in oil stocks, has come to the end of his rope. Tried before Federal Judge Kilts in Fort Worth, Tex., for misuse of the mails in connection with the operations of the Petroleum Producers' association, of which he was the sole trustee, he was found guilty and sentenced to fourteen years and nine months in prison and fined $12,000. Nineteen co-defendants were also found guilty. Judge Kilts in passing sentence denounced Cook scathingly for robbing widows and orphans, concluding: "You ought to be paraded as a practical warning in every state where you have sold stock."

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HOOVER says the government is not considering any plan for the relief of the hungry people in Germany, though several persons have talked of the matter with the President. As to whether relief is needed, Mr. Hoover says, the breakdown in distribution, coupled with considerable unemployment, has caused suffering in the poor districts. Uncertainty of business life has multiplied many times, but Germany as a whole is still a powerful country in business, agriculture, and trade. Purchases by Germany from the United States in the first six months of 1923 aggregated more than $143,000,000, or about 570,000,000 gold marks. The industrial plan of Germany is better than it was before the war, and there is even danger that it is overdeveloped. Crops throughout Germany are reported generally good, in some instances being the best for fifteen years or more.

Major General Allen's committee for relief of hungry German children is all ready to open its campaign for the collection of funds from American citizens and it is announced that at least $10,000,000 will be needed. The American Friends service committee will administer the fund and the German government will kindly attend to the insurance, warehouse and other overhead charges.

FRIENDS of Korea in America, who are organized, have filed with Secretary of State Hughes a formal protest against the alleged murder of about 500 Koreans during the great earthquake and fire in Tokyo, and Yokohama. Dr. Floyd W. Thompson, president of the society, who signed the protest, declared an eyewitness saw 250 Koreans "bound hand and foot, placed on an old junk, covered with oil and burned alive." What Secretary Hughes can do about it is not indicated.

KING ALFONSO, Queen Victoria and Dictator Primo Rivera of Spain all went to Italy last week and were received by King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini with impressive ceremony. It was said a military alliance between the two countries would be signed to balance the alliance between France and Jugoslavia.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter-box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGELMANN, 2082 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles, causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Engelmann. You should give it a fair trial now.

Something in a Name.

Mrs. James had just moved into the neighborhood and it was her first meeting with the local sewing circle. As the conversation turned on the absent men, one of the women said to Mrs. James: "What does your husband do?"

"Oh!" said Mrs. James, "he is manager of a tail factory."

"Tail factory?" said the other. "Why, I didn't know we had such a factory in town. Where is it located?"

"Well," replied Mrs. James, "husband calls it a bucket shop, but I think tail factory sounds much better."—Forbes Magazine.

Things to Give for Christmas

FANCY NEEDLEWORK

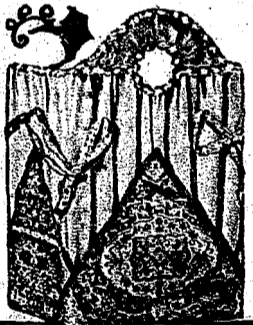

Everybody goes about the ordinary business of life, in plain dresses of dark woolen cloth, that depend upon collar and cuff sets to lend their variety and a dainty flavor. Therefore these sets are among the most acceptable of Christmas gifts. An endless variety of embroideries in white or in bright colors, comes by the yard, in straight or curved sections. One has only to stitch these sections to bands of lawn, to make a set like that pictured. Other sets are made of net, lace and sheer fabrics—the last finished with needlework in embroidery or fancy stitches.

LACE DANCE HATS

Gold or silver lace and a bit of gray chiffon or malines will serve to make the pretty dance cap, with soft crown and up-rolling brim, as shown here. Tiny flowers at the front and a ribbon sash adorn it. The brim is supported by two fine wires.

SCREEN FOR TELEPHONE

Either men or women friends will appreciate a pretty telephone screen for a gift. Here is one with a foundation of cardboard, covered with satin and ornamented with triangles of tapestry or figured ribbon, finished with gold braid. The reverse side is lined with plain silk.

FOR HOUSEWIVES

Housewives will appreciate holders for handling hot dishes and kitchen utensils. They are simply squares made of bright prettiness, padded with woolen cloth. A container for them is provided with a hanger, so that they can be hung up near the kitchen stove.

Increase Income by Crop Rotation

Tennessee Farmer Is Successful by Adopting New System of Management.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A farmer in Henderson county, Tennessee, has been running his farm for the past six years according to a system of crop rotation and management worked out with his county extension agent.

Cotton Returns Small.

Previous to this time practically nothing was grown on this and other farms in the county but cotton and, even with the greatest economy, not more than $500 could be cleared a year. In 1915 the new system was started. Under it, cotton is grown in rotation with pasture crops on the hill land, each field in turn producing cotton two years and pasture for six years. On the level land, hay and corn are rotated, with peas planted at the last cultivation of the corn to keep up the soil fertility and furnish some hog feed. Under the new system as much live stock as the pastures will feed has been added, chiefly hogs, sheep, and some mules, with cows to furnish milk for the family.

Big Features of System.

The three main features of the system are, first, increase in soil fertility; second, economy in labor; and third, several sources of income. In 1922, this farmer, J. F. Pope, spent only $150 in labor, chiefly for chopping and picking cotton. He can do most of the work himself, with the aid of his two sons, ten and twelve years old. The main money crop is still cotton, but cotton grown on soil steadily increasing in fertility. Live stock, corn, and hay are also sold. Last year over $600 worth of live stock was sold from the farm and $1,750 worth of cotton, corn and other crops, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, leaving an ample supply of feed for the next year. The year's expenses are covered by the $150 spent for labor and $238 for fertilizers and incidentals. The farm income has increased each year since the new system was adopted.

Mr. Pope's neighbors have watched the development of the farm closely, and a number are working out systems along similar lines for their own farms, according to reports.

Artificial Light Will Increase Yield of Eggs

The hen has a long wait between evening feeding and morning feeding during the long nights of winter. Her crop capacity for food is sufficient to keep the digestive organs busy for about eight hours. After that she must call upon her reserve supply of food to maintain body energy, and it is this reserve supply of food which she uses in the manufacture of eggs. That is where the benefit of artificial light comes in. Lengthen the short days of winter so that the hen can consume the same amount of feed that she does during the natural laying season and you have a good chance of getting the same egg production that comes in the natural laying season. All the hen needs in addition to good feed and comfortable quarters in winter is more daylight.

Keeping Farm Accounts Is of Greatest Value

According to the department of farm organization at the University of Illinois, probably the greatest value of keeping farm accounts is that it enables the farmer to diagnose his own situation. If at the end of the year he finds that his farm is less efficient than the average of a considerable number of farms keeping the same kind of records, in crop yields, in return for capital invested in and fed to live stock, the number of acres of crops worked per man and per horse, or in the amount of expense for a given income, he will know where and can study out the way in which he can make changes that will increase his net income.

Experiment Station Is Intended to Benefit All

The agricultural experiment station is not a model farm, neither is it a rich man's plaything, nor is it self-supporting.

It is a laboratory, indoors and out of doors, in which the great problems of agriculture, horticulture and animal husbandry are worked out for the benefit of all.

The farm implements and methods of a century ago were not very different from those of the Pharaohs and Caesars.

Progress in agriculture began with investigation.—Director C. G. Williams, Ohio Experiment Station.

Simple Treatment Will Prevent Grain Diseases

Oat smut, one of the most widespread and destructive diseases of small grains, caused by a fungus which lives inside the oat plant and transforms the head at maturity into a dusty black mass of spores, can be easily controlled by a disinfectant treatment of the seed at planting time, the best treatment so far perfected being that with formaldehyde, according to Dr. W. D. Moore, extension plant pathologist, who urges farmers to use this form of insurance against serious loss.

Diseases of Cabbage Family Preventable

Bulletin Says Rotation of Crops Is Advisable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Practically all the crops which belong to the cabbage family, such as cauliflower, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, collards, and kale, turnips, radishes and rape, are subject to the same diseases. Such diseases, says the United States Department of Agriculture, are preventable in the main by simple means of plant sanitation.

A new bulletin just issued by the department as Farmers' Bulletin 1331, Cabbage Diseases, treats of the spread of the various diseases and their control. Some of the more important cabbage diseases discussed in this bulletin are black-leg (foot-rot, wilt), soft rot, root-rot (wilt), downy mildew, white rust, drop (water-rot), spot diseases of cauliflower, black leaf-spot (black mold), ring spot, powdery mildew, and damping-off.

Rotation of crops should be practiced, avoiding crops which belong to the cabbage family and other closely related crops. Mustard and related weeds which harbor cabbage pests should be kept down. Drainage water and refuse from diseased cabbage fields will carry infection. So will stable manure with which diseased material has been mingled.

The seed bed is often the source of infection. The greatest pains should be taken to insure healthy plants. Locate the seed bed on new ground, if possible, or sterilize by steam the soil used. Clubroot is avoided by the free use of lime and by setting healthy plants. Disinfect all cabbage seed before planting, to prevent black-rot and black-leg. Yellowing is due to a fungus which persists in the soil for many years. Varieties of cabbage resistant to this disease are available.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Finds Beef Type Can Be Good Milk Producer, Too

"It is possible for the beef type of shorthorn to be a heavy milk producer," says Dr. C. W. McCampbell, head of the animal husbandry department in the Kansas state agricultural college. "This was demonstrated by the department at the Sni-A-Bar farm belonging to the W. R. Nelson estate, near Kansas City."

"The show at the Sni-A-Bar farm was the first strictly shorthorn show in the United States. The best herds throughout the country were shown. One of the most interesting features was an exhibit of the heavy-milking, thick-fleshed shorthorns forming an experiment now being conducted by the animal husbandry department."

The chief purpose of this experiment referred to by Dr. McCampbell is to show that it is possible for the beef-type shorthorn to be a heavy milk producer. The cows in this experiment are giving from 1,000 to 1,500 gallons of milk a year and their calves are winning prizes at the international live stock shows each year.

Desirable All-Egg Meal Developed in Ohio

A process, has recently been developed by some poultrymen in Ohio, which may make a desirable feed by converting the by-product eggs from hatcheries into an all-egg meal for poultry feeding. According to these men, about half of all the eggs that go into hatcheries finally become a by-product from which little value has been realized. In fact, they say, many hatcheries are obliged to pay for the removal of this product. The process consists in passing the liquid eggs over a heated revolving drum, which cooks and dries the product. The new feed is said to be rich in protein, vitamins, fats and minerals, and in tests seem to be proving a good feed for growing chicks.

Watch Your Grading in Offering Fruit for Sale

Grading laws in many states are making better returns possible for better growers. The public has confidence in a standard grade, and it is to the interests of farmers and fruit growers to maintain proper standards. As a matter of self-protection any one offering fruit for sale must see to it that the fruit grades up to the label. When inspection shows otherwise things may be a little uncomfortable for the packer. If you are putting up "choice" stuff which is supposed to be sound, ripe, of one variety, of a certain size, free of dirt, insect, disease, or weather injury, see that the fruit is all of this, and more. A little extra quality has never been known to hurt the reputation of a man putting up a fruit pack.

Not Difficult to Wean Colt by Proper Feeding

It is common practice to wean colts at from four to six months of age. If the colt has learned to eat grain, there should be no difficulty in the weaning process and it should not suffer any setback in its growth. Ground oats, bran and cornmeal, one-third of each by weight, to which is added a little oil meal make a good ration for the weaning. Provide good pasture and in the winter, clover or alfalfa hay. Be sure it has plenty of fresh water at all times.

ANOTHER NURSE PRAISES TANLAC

Mrs. Leona Culpepper, 17 Lucile Avenue, who was a trained nurse for fifteen years, is another highly esteemed Atlanta woman whose gratitude and desire to help others prompts her to tell of the wonderful results she derived from the Tanlac treatment.

"I had suffered from nervous indigestion and loss of appetite for four or five years," said Mrs. Culpepper, "and was nearly always nauseated. I had heartburn so bad I could hardly stand it, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework."

"Reading what Tanlac had done for others, I decided to try it, and by the time I finished the first bottle I was feeling so much better that I bought two more. When I had finished the third bottle I was feeling fine and had actually gained sixteen pounds. Tanlac is all that is claimed for it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute.—Advertisement.

HYPO-COD MADE THIS SAGINAW MAN WELL

He Had Such A Pain In His Back That He Could Not Work Until He Took Earle's Hypo-Cod

Mr. W. E. Johnson, of 335 N. Third Ave., Saginaw, Mich., writes that, "I suffered from a severe backache which the doctors called Lumbago. I would have cold chills and pains in my back and side until I could hardly move, and I had tried everything, but nothing seemed to help me until I started to take Hypo-Cod. The second day after starting to take this wonderful medicine I began to move around a little, and noticed that I did not have near as severe pains. After taking one bottle I was able to go back to work, and after the second bottle my Lumbago, as they called it, was a thing of the past. I have gained in weight, strength and all around health, and I believe that I am better in every way since taking Hypo-Cod." Too many people suffer like Mr. Johnson when there is no reason why they should. Hypo-Cod is bringing health and happiness to many Michigan homes, and there is no reason if you are in ill health why you should not benefit by taking this great health builder. It is pleasant and easy to take with none of the oily, fishy taste of the Cod Liver Oil. In fact it has a pleasant wine-like flavor. Get a bottle from your druggist today, or send $1.00 to the Earle Chemical Co., of Wheeling, W. Va., for a full size bottle to be sent you prepaid.—Advertisement.

Health and good looks—the reward of internal cleanliness

HEALTH and good looks go hand in hand. If you do not keep clean internally, your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks, and insomnia—each of which saps your health and vitality. Soon much more serious conditions follow.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation.

Physicians Favor Lubrication

The lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine

Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

BLAST FURNACE DUST BEING MADE USE OF
For more than three years the Ford Motor Company at its River Rouge plant has been saving dust until today a veritable mountain of it, containing at least 50,000 tons, stands out in imposing proportions at one place on the plant grounds.
Of course, it isn't dust in the ordinarily accepted terms, but a much more valuable property.
It is blast furnace dust, a fine, sand-like substance which is blown from the furnaces in the blast and utterly worthless in that state, but valuable because fifty per cent of it is iron ore. The other fifty per cent is coke dust.
So the Ford Motor Company has been saving it until the time came when the iron ore could be reclaimed, and in examples of the value of little savings this certainly stands out as among the most striking.
A moment's figuring will show it. Of the 50,000 tons in the dust mountain at River Rouge, 50 per cent or 25,000 tons is iron ore in dust form. The Ford Model T cylinder casting when finished weighs 82 pounds, and reclaiming of the 25,000 tons of iron ore dust means sufficient iron for more than 600,000 cylinder castings.
The company has now started to reclaim this dust through the new sintering plant which has just begun operations and which forms another highly interesting feature of the River Rouge activities.
The Sintering Plant, a model of efficiency, is erected in close proximity to the two big blast furnaces and joins the giant ore bins from which the furnaces are fed.
The furnace dust, caught up in suction conveyors, is carried directly to the Sintering Plant and there is mixed with cast iron borings gathered from the various Ford manufacturing units.
Conveyors also carry the mixed dust and borings to the plant and dump the mixture into the Sintering pan which is of three ton capacity. A gas flame of intense heat is passed over the dust and action of the coke, under this heat and the suction draft fuses the mixture into chunks of sufficient size and weight for use in the furnace, and thus the iron ore in the dust is reclaimed.
Ford sinter as produced at the now River Rouge Plant is of finer quality than any on the market, running between 70 and 75 per cent iron. It is considered an important blast furnace material and because of its porous nature permits better and more effective operation of the blast with the result that the furnace product is more uniform and therefore a higher quality iron for the castings.
An average of fifty tons of blast furnace dust comes from the two furnaces daily. The Sintering plant will produce more than 250 tons of sinter a day due to the mixture of iron borings and dust, which speeds up the process reducing the sintering period from 20 or 30 minutes under ordinary circumstances to about seven minutes. At least 100 tons are being taken every day from the great mountain of dust which the company has been saving and is estimated that at this rate it will take a year and a half to use up the mountain and turn it into Ford iron.

Preparing For the Future

Was a much harder task for the pilgrims than is yours today. They had to rely on the blunderbus and plow to provide them with the necessities of life and practice extreme economy in preparing for the future. You, on the other hand, have but to lay aside a few of the dollars you needlessly spend each week. Put them into a Savings Account with us, let us add interest, and, presto!—your future is assured.

GULL IS MASTER OF THE AIR

Also Shows Sagacity in Pursuit of Food—Will Steal and Murder Like a Pirate.

One of the prettiest sights was the gulls, which filled the air like so many feathery snowflakes. Their immaculate white bodies and soft wings tipped with black were delightful to see.

They were masters of the air. There was a constant adjustment of wings to meet every air current that struck the rocks where we camped; but in a steady breeze the movement was too slight to see and they hung motionless, as if in a painted sky. They tucked straight in the teeth of the wind. I saw one retain perfect poise and at the same time reach forward with his foot and scratch his ear.

A gull in his own country will steal and murder like a pirate. If a murre or cormorant left its home without a guard, these saintly looking scavengers swooped down to eat the eggs and young.

The murre has a large, tough-shelled egg which the gull's bill cannot penetrate. But these robbers know enough to pick it up, fly out, and drop it on the rock below or nose it along until it drops to the shelf below, when they can devour the contents.

Often times I have seen a gull pick up a young murre or cormorant not long out of the egg and swallow the youngster alive. The downward course of the young bird was marked by a huge in the gull's neck.

I have often seen a western gull act in a way that speaks well for his sagacity. I have watched him open clam and mussels at the seashore. His bill is suited for crushing the hard shell, but he will take a clam, rise to a height of 30 feet, and drop it to the hard sand and gravel below. If it doesn't break he will continue the performance. I saw one bird do this 15 times before he was successful.—National Geographic Magazine.

BRITAIN AS SEEN FROM AIR

Photographs Show Complete Preservation of Boundaries Between Fields of Ancient Celtic Inhabitants.

Every day that passes suggests a new use for the airplane. The latest revelation comes from southern England, where photographs taken by O. G. S. Crawford show the complete preservation of the boundaries between the fields of the ancient Celtic inhabitants, who dwell in England before the coming of the Romans and Saxons.

From the ground almost all vestiges of the ancient system of division have long since vanished, but photographs from the air still show the ancient field boundaries as a kind of pattern seen through those of the present day. The air photographs reveal cartworks which the observer on the ground can scarcely see.

The Celts appear to have made their boundaries of broad low hanks in which they placed a good deal of chalk. Although the banks have vanished to a great extent, the earth where they once were remains a lighter color because of the mingling of small grains of chalk in the soil.

A definite relationship can be seen between the fields, roads and the sites of ancient villages. Mr. Crawford even thinks that he sees evidence of an ancient system of irrigation. The boundaries are supposed to be from 1,500 to 2,500 years old.—From the Living Age.

Needed More Advice.
The man who entered the doctor's waiting room was very seedy looking, and down at heel. The minute the medical gentleman set eyes on the visitor he knew that he would get no fee out of him.

"What is the matter with you?" inquired the doctor, when he had time. "My eyes are inflamed," replied the other.

Rather than twice daily with water in which has been dissolved as much boracic powder as you can put on a dime," said the doctor.

"Thank you," murmured the patient, turning away. A moment later he re-entered the waiting room.

"Tell me, doctor," he said, with an ingratiating smile, "where do I get the dime?"

Was Well Posted.
A judge was pointing out that a witness was not necessarily to be regarded as untruthful because he alters a statement made previously.

"For instance," he said, "when I entered this court today I could have sworn I had my watch in my pocket. But then I remembered I had left it in the bathroom at home."

When the judge got home that night his wife said: "Why all this bother about your watch—sending four or five men for it?"

"Good heavens!" said the judge. "What did you do?"

"I gave it to the first one who came. He knew just where it was."

His Failing.
Mr. Wombat is always looking for the perfect office boy—like the one in the third reader who picked up the pin. He had never yet found him, but the other day thought he had him. The boy didn't seem so promising, but was told to look in again the next morning. As the kid went out he stooped over and salvaged something.

"Call him back," directed the boss. The bookkeeper called him back.

"What did you pick up just then, my fine little fellow?" asked the boss. The kid extended a grimy palm.

He it reposed a cigar butt.

The Madness of Benetto

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"LEAVE him alone, Maria. It is his madness."

The comely widow wrung her hands. "Seven years Benetto has boarded with me, and as good as told me he'll marry me some day, and now the old fool—fifty-five if he's a day—he says he's going back to Sicily. Thirty years he's been in this country, and made money, and now he's going back, and all his relatives dead."

"Leave him alone, Maria," said her brother Tomasso.

Tomasso and Benetto were friends of long standing. Benetto explained to Tomasso:

"You see, I am growing old. And if your sister would return with me to the homeland I would make her my wife. We would have a fine olive farm on the hills near Palermo. But she will not come. And I grow old."

"You are an American, Benetto," his friend ventured.

"I am American, yes. But the love of the homeland, it is always there. My friend, it is madness if you like, but I long for the Sicilian sun, for the blue sea and the soft winds and the gray of the olive orchards. I long to see the faces of those whom I knew as children."

"Here in this America, it is so harsh, so unsympathetic. I choke, I die, Tomasso. And now that I grow old I must see my native land once more, to end my days there."

Tomasso repeated all this to Maria, who wrung her hands again.

"He is mad, mad, talking about olives and vineyards," she said. "What is a but in a vineyard to a nice city apartment with a good janitor and hot and cold water simply by turning a faucet. Instead of dragging pails from the spring. Does Benetto think that I am going back to that drudgery of my youth?"

"It is madness, Maria, but it will pass, it will pass," said Tomasso.

"Pass? The fool has taken his ticket for Palermo. Seven years he boarded with me, and as good as asked me to be his wife. Woe is me!"

Nevertheless Tomasso and Maria saw Benetto on board the boat. He was traveling second cabin. He had a leather trunk. He looked quite an American as he stood on the deck in a lordly way, gazing down superciliously at the returning immigrants in the steerage.

"It is a pity you would not come, Maria," he said. "But when I have bought my olive farm and built my house I shall write to you about the sun and the blue sky and the gray of the olives, and then you will come."

"It is his madness," whispered Tomasso to his sister. "Pay no attention."

The sicken blow. "All visitors ashore!" the stewards were shouting. Maria clung to Benetto. "Ah, Benetto, come back to us," she pleaded.

"No, you shall both come out to me, to the dear homeland," answered Benetto. "You wait until I write to you; you will understand then."

They went ashore. Weeks passed, they grew into months. Only one letter had come from Benetto. Then he ceased writing.

"We shall never see Benetto again," wailed Maria, wringing her hands. "Seven years my boarder, and I looked forward to our old age together. Now he is lost to us forever."

Tomasso was afraid that was the case. He tried to comfort his sister, but in vain. And gradually they became reconciled to Benetto's loss. Probably he had married—certainly he was on his farm by now, happy in his madness.

A year after Benetto had sailed there came a knock at the door. Maria opened it. There stood Benetto. But how changed! He wore a stylish sack suit, he was clean-shaven, and in his buttonhole there was pinned a tiny American flag.

Maria and Tomasso cried out, and both fell about his neck.

"Eh, well," said Benetto sheepishly. "I have come back. Everything has changed at home, it was all very disappointing. They are very primitive people round about Palermo."

"But the farm—?" hazarded Tomasso.

"I have sold it. You see, when I was there I pined for the sun and blue skies of America, and—and for you, my friends. And I am not used to Sicilian ways of living. So I have rented a fine five-room apartment up town, with a splendid janitor, and—and you must live with us when we are married, Tomasso."

Then they knew that Benetto's madness had passed.

Kent's Hole.

A cavern in the vicinity of Torquay, England, famous not only for its remains of extinct animals, is known as Kent's Hole. Although the existence of this cave had been known from time immemorial, it did not attract the attention of scientists until 1820. Excavations were carried on by Pengelly from 1865 to 1890, at a cost of nearly £2,000 and yielded results of the highest importance to the science of anthropology.

There were found flint tools of the Paleolithic age and implements of bone, such as needles, awls and harpoons. The animal remains discovered comprised those of the lion, hyena, bear, wolf, fox, rhinoceros, mammoth, Irish elk and reindeer, showing that these animals once lived in Britain and were contemporaneous with men of the Stone age.

The troubles that usually make winter motoring unpleasant disappear completely when Staebler Gasoline and Oils are used. They'll make any car work better. Yet they cost no more!

Ordinance No. 58

An ordinance to regulate and control the driving of automobiles, motor vehicles and other vehicles within the Village of Chelsea.

The Village of Chelsea Ordinance SECTION 1. No person shall operate an automobile, motorcycle or other motor vehicles on any street or public highway in the business portion of the corporation at a greater rate of speed than fifteen miles an hour, or on any street or public highway elsewhere in the corporation at a greater rate of speed than twenty miles an hour.

SECTION 2. The owner, operator, driver or person in charge of any other vehicle, shall conform to and observe the following rules of the road:

1. All vehicles shall be driven in cart, drag, wagon, automobile, motorcycle, motor vehicle, carriage or a careful manner and with due regard for the safety and convenience of other vehicles and pedestrians.

2. Every vehicle shall keep on the right side of the street, except when necessary to turn to the left in crossing or in overtaking another vehicle.

3. Vehicles going in opposite directions shall pass each other at the right.

4. Every vehicle overtaking another vehicle shall keep to the left of the overtaken vehicle in passing, but must not interfere with traffic from the opposite direction, nor pull over to the right before entirely clear of the overtaken vehicle.

5. Vehicles turning to the left into another street shall pass to the right of and beyond the center of the street, before turning.

6. No vehicle shall be driven through a procession except with the permission of the person in charge of said procession.

7. A vehicle shall not stop on a crosswalk nor within a roadway intersection.

8. No vehicle shall stop on any street, except within one foot of the curb, or in any such way as to obstruct free passage on the street.

9. No vehicle shall make any turn or cross any thoroughfare at a greater rate of speed than fifteen miles per hour.

10. Any person or persons operating or driving any motor vehicle or other vehicle shall, at the intersection of any public street or highway, within the limits of the Village of Chelsea, keep to the right of the intersection of the center of such street or highway when turning to the left. When vehicles approach an intersection of two or more public streets or highways the vehicle approaching from the right of driver shall have the right of way with the exception of Main street (which is a State Trunk Line) where the vehicle thereon shall have the right of way.

Any person operating a motor vehicle shall approach all street intersections in a careful and prudent manner.

11. Vehicles moving slowly shall keep as near as may be convenient to the curb on the right side allowing more swiftly moving vehicles free passage to the left.

12. Drivers of motor vehicles before turning, stopping, backing or changing their course, shall make sure that such movement can be made with safety and shall give audible or visible signal of such intention.

13. No vehicle shall turn to proceed in the opposite direction except

Whole Meal in Pill

Is Scientist's Dream

A good hearty meal, all in a pill that can be carried in a vest pocket, is the dream of scientists of today, according to Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon general of the public health service.
Some day it will be washing and the dinner table will be gone and forgotten. The farthest scientists have progressed, according to Mr. Cummings, is to remove all the water from foods and condense them some 70 per cent.

Quite a Change.

A St. Louis pastor took for his Sunday evening topic "A Good Breeze" and preached with a bouquet frozen in ice at his side. "How far we have traveled from the 'hell fire and brimstone' sermons of the past," comments F. C. Boston Transcript.

IT IS SERIOUS

Some Chelsea People Fail to Realize the Seriousness of a Bad Back.

The constant aching of a bad back, the weariness, the tired feeling, the pains and aches of kidney ills may result seriously if neglected. Dangerous urinary troubles often follow.

A Chelsea citizen shows you what to do.

Lewis Eschelbach, farmer, R. F. D. No. 2, says: "I was in bad shape with kidney trouble. I wasn't fit for any kind of work as my back was painful and there was a constant weakness and soreness just over my kidneys. My head ached and I was nervous. I didn't get my relief until I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills from Freeman's Drug Store. Three boxes of Doan's cured me, so I am glad to recommend them."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Eschelbach had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

at street intersections.

14. No vehicle shall stop anywhere in the Village with its left side to the curb, and when any vehicle is parked it shall be inside the diagrams, or markings, as designated on the streets.

15. No vehicle shall remain backed up to the curb anywhere in the village unless it is actually loading or unloading, and in such case no longer than the actual loading or unloading requires.

16. Automobiles leaving any public garage or alley shall stop before crossing the sidewalk line and give proper signal, and the utmost care shall be used in entering the same. Signals in such cases may be used freely.

17. No person while under the influence of liquor shall drive any kind of a vehicle upon the streets of the Village.

18. Not more than two persons shall occupy the front or driver's seat of an automobile, except that a child less than ten years of age may occupy the front driver's seat as a third person, and no person, adult or minor, shall be seated in the lap of the driver, nor shall the driver be seated in the lap of a person when the automobile is in motion.

SECTION 3. It shall be deemed a violation of this Ordinance for any person in charge or control of any vehicle to make with such vehicle or any device connected therewith any excessive noise to annoy the public, or to open the muffler on any vehicle, or to permit such vehicle or any device thereon to emit smoke, gas or steam within the streets, highways or public places in the Village.

SECTION 4. It shall be deemed a violation of this Ordinance for any person to hitch onto or get upon or take passage on any vehicle which is passing through or upon the streets in this Village, without the consent of the driver or operator of such vehicle.

SECTION 5. Any vehicle standing at the curb in the congested district shall move away from such curb at the request of the Marshal, or of any member of the Common Council.

SECTION 6. No person shall drop, place or throw, or cause to be dropped, placed or thrown, upon any street of the Village, any glass, nails, tacks, wire, scrap of metal or any other substance tending to injure the tires of any automobile, motorcycle, motor vehicle or other vehicles.

SECTION 7. Any person violating any of the provisions of this Act and who shall be convicted thereof, or who shall plead guilty to any complaint for the violation thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars and cost of prosecution, or if such fine is not paid then by imprisonment in the county jail for not exceeding ten days; for the second offense he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars and cost of prosecution, or if such fine is not paid then by imprisonment in the county jail for thirty days.

SECTION 8. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in full force on and after twenty days of its passage and due publication.

Approved November 19, 1923.

W. R. Daniels, President.

Geo. W. Walworth, Clerk.

Spine and Lungs of Boy Affected By Tuberculosis

TOMMY TAKES A SUN BATH

"Back to nature" is Tommy's slogan as he sits in the open air at the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Howell. He is taking the sun cure for tuberculosis of the spine and lungs.

Tommy has bone tuberculosis. His head is sunken between his shoulders and his twisted body is crooked for all time. But Tommy is a plucky little fellow. As he sits in the sunlight with his companions—there are many children at the sanatorium in an almost similar condition—he gazes first into the sun and then into the future, wondering whether either or both have any promise for him.

How the Seals Help.

Forty-two million Christmas seals are now on sale in the state of Michigan. Every seal that is sold is a blow against the disease that has injured Tommy for life and that killed 2,654 Michigan people last year.

Everyone cannot take an active part in the fight against the "Great White Plague," but everyone can buy seals.

Christmas seals fight tuberculosis. Buy them. Give Health.

Cannot Eat in Church.

"Ever notice a crowd of people nowadays?" remarks an observant citizen to the South County Pioneer.

"It is eternally gnawing away at candy, popcorn, peanuts and ice cream cones. No wonder churchgoing is on the wane—people are not allowed to eat at church."—Kansas City Star.
