J. VINCENT BURG BUYS VOGEL BUSINESS HERE

L. P. Vogel Retires From Retail Business to Take Up Duties as Chelsea Sewer Company Secretary.
After more than thirty-four years in the drug and grocery business in one capacity or another, in Chelsea, L. P. Vogel on last Friday disposed of his store, corner of Main and Middle streets, to J. Vincent Burg of this place. Mr. Vogel recently was elected secretary of the Chelsea Sewer Co., and duties at the manufacturing plant in this capacity made such a demand on his time that sale of his store was deemed quite the proper procedure.
Mr. Burg, a native of Chelsea, has made Chelsea his home practically his entire life with the exception of eleven years prior to 1922 when he was engaged in the drug business in Detroit. In a statement to the Standard this morning, he declared radical changes were to be made in the physical make-up of the store. Discontinuance of some old lines, introduction of new changes in interior decorations, and remodeling of the store building itself are on the program for making this corner one of the most conspicuous in town. Thoroughly conversant with the business he has purchased, and possessed of the "push" necessary to put across an aggressive business-getting campaign, it is expected his efforts will be rewarded by an appreciative public.
Mr. Burg has been engaged the fore part of this week in moving a large stock of goods from his Detroit store to his newly acquired business place here.

CHELSEA WILL STAGE FREE CHAUTAUQUA

Sixty-Four Signatures Guarantee Public Privilege of Hearing Unusual Talent.
Success of the Chautauqua program for Chelsea for the coming summer was assured the fore part of this week when Miss Grace Bennett, representative of the Mutual-Morgan Chautauqua Bureau, secured the desired number of signatures. Sixty-two names appeared on the final list as submitted by Miss Bennett.
That there is to be no charge and the tent is to be thrown open to the public without cost to anyone outside of the persons signing the contract was the basis on which the chautauqua program was sold locally and this, no doubt, will be met enthusiastically on the part of the public in general who will be glad of an opportunity to witness high class entertainment as well as instructive lectures through the medium of the mid-summer tent and platform. Four days and seven sessions will be devoted to the usual work of chautauqua, special hours being set aside for children and lecture and entertainment hours for adults. Music, readings and lectures will be heard from some of the best companies and individuals on the road today. Numbered among them are:
The Croatian-Tamburica orchestra, one of three organizations of its kind in America today, and similar to the organization heard during the winter lyceum course here. They are a musical organization from the Balkan states playing their native instruments and appearing in vocal numbers also.
Eugene Barker, tenor, with Miss Lee, violinist, a company of artists with an established reputation.
New York Dramatic company, giving one of New York's latest plays, Mattison Wilbur Chase, lecturer of marked ability, who will speak on "Big Bugs and Big Humbugs."
M. H. Jackson, lecturer who has been on the platform for a number of years.
Eugene Garhart Morrison, reader of national reputation who reads "The Copperhead," and other numbers of equal interest. She carries a musical company of girls with her.
It is believed that the numbers slated for Chelsea will prove highly entertaining as well as instructive and sincerely hoped the public will respond to the opportunity presented.

MRS. VERONA FLETCHER

Mrs. Verona Fletcher, aged 76 years, died Tuesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Kellogg, 119 Buffalo street, Ypsilanti. Mrs. Fletcher was born in Georgetown, Wash-tonaw county, with her parents when she was two years of age. She married William Fletcher in 1872 and they resided on a farm in Sherron during their married life. Mrs. Fletcher died in 1926. Mrs. Fletcher continued to live on the farm until 1903, when she came to Chelsea, where she had since made her home. Besides Mrs. Kellogg, Mrs. Fletcher is survived by two other daughters, Miss Harriet Fletcher of Ypsilanti; and Mrs. A. B. Moehlman of Detroit; and two sons, William G. Fletcher of Venice, Calif., and John L. Fletcher of Chelsea, several grandchildren.

TABLE PETITIONS FOR GASOLINE STATIONS

Acceptance of Sewer Plans and Disposition of Gas Rates Occupy Attention of Council Monday.
Presentation and consideration of petitions for permission to install curb gasoline stations in the business district of the village occupied considerable portion of the regular session of council at their meeting on Monday evening.
Petition of Staebler brothers for permission to install a curb gas station in front of their business block on West Middle street, which had been tabled at the last regular meeting several weeks ago, was again tabled on Monday evening without action having been taken. Petitions of Henry Penn and Kausch & Fahrner to install gas pumps at the curb in front of their stores also were tabled.
Prof. Merrill of the University of Michigan, recently engaged by council to draw plans for sewers on South Main street, south of the D. U. R., was present and submitted the plans for their consideration. His plans were accepted and the clerk instructed to inform the state highway department of the readiness on the part of the village to proceed with laying of sewers. It is expected the street will be paved from M-17 to the D. U. R. during this season.
Following the usual run of business in the council chamber, members of the board and a large delegation of citizens gathered in the auditorium of the town hall where the question of gas rates was discussed at length with Harry Douglas, manager of the Wash-tonaw Gas Co., of Ann Arbor. While nothing definite resulted from the session hope was expressed by Mr. Douglas that a slight reduction in rates would become effective late this spring when it was believed coal would be purchased at a lower price than heretofore. Further than this no conclusion was reached.

HIGH GOVERNOR ISSUES SPECIAL PROCLAMATION

People Generally Asked to Take Part in Appropriate Services on Sunday, May Eleventh.
Governor Grosbeck of Michigan, in a proclamation issued at his office, asks universal observance of Sunday, May 11, as Mothers' Day. The proclamation follows:
Custom has decreed that once each year a day shall be set apart from all others especially for observance as Mothers' Day. The plan was brought forth so that every person might give more than ordinary attention to Mother, so that we might show to her our deepest appreciation of her sacrifice, devotion, guidance and loving care.
In the rush and swirl of present day affairs and business one is inclined to forget for the moment the determination of Mother that we should have the blessings of life that she did not enjoy, and that to bring about the realization of her ambition it deprived her of the very happiness she sought to bestow upon us. It has been this motherhood ideal that has raised the standard of American citizenship to its present exalted place.
In every home, no matter how elegant or humble, that same mother devotion and sacrifice has always existed and always will. If mother love ruled the world there would be no conflicts, no destruction of human life because of greed, no sorrow because of unrighteous designs.
Every day should be Mothers' Day, with possibly a little greater manifestation upon Mothers' Day of our appreciation because of her sacrifice and devotion.
By virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I do hereby designate and proclaim Sunday, May eleventh, 1924, as Mothers' Day, and I call upon our people, both old and young to gather in their several places of worship and take part in services appropriate to the day.
And let absent sons and daughters take this occasion to visit the mother in the old home, or where such a visit is impossible, let them send a message of cheer and greeting.
In accordance with a resolution of the Congress of the United States, I further request the people of Michigan on the day aforesaid to display the United States flag in their homes and in other suitable places as a fitting expression of their desire to pay homage to American motherhood.
Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this nineteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and of the Commonwealth the eighty-eighth.
ALEX. J. GROESBECK,
Governor

DEPLORES LACK OF INTEREST IN HOME ENTERTAINMENT FOR SUMMER SEASON WHILE SURROUNDING VILLAGES ARE PREPARED.

Editor, Chelsea Standard, Chelsea, Michigan.
Dear Sir:
May I ask that you spare me a little space in your fine paper, which is enjoyed by every one in this, as well as other communities.
We hardly pick up a paper or attend a club meeting, you always hear the same cry "Patronize home industries," of which I am a firm believer, and believe in boosting your home town in every way possible. Give the people the best of entertainment, creating a cooperative feeling which we should be able to accomplish, if in no other way than through our local Kiwanis club recently organized.
Last year we raised the small sum of three hundred dollars for the support of a band, to give public entertainments every other Saturday night during the summer months, which was the means of bringing thousands of people to town, which meant considerable money being spent here that would not have been had we not had the concerts. How many stop to realize that the small sum of three hundred dollars spent for the support of a band last year, brought more money to Chelsea than any other form of entertainment possibly could.

C. H. S. ALUMNI WILL HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Plans for Elaborate Reunion Affair Made at Committee Meeting Monday Evening.
Preparations are reported booming for the annual banquet of the Chelsea High School Alumni Association, which will be held this year at Macabee hall, Friday evening, June 20. At a meeting of committees called recently by President Warren Coombs 30 persons were present, representing various classes and a good deal of enthusiasm was revealed.
A committee appointed last year, consisting of N. H. Bowen, '05; Mrs. H. S. Holmes, '08, and Mrs. Grace Fletcher Moehlman, '12, has worked out a new plan by which the Alumni classes are divided into three groups, and Group A, consisting of all classes whose years end in 8, 9 and 10, will be in charge of this year's program.
Carlton C. Runelman, '08, one of the most popular of the Alumni speakers, who made a fine impression a year ago, will act as toastmaster. Mr. Runelman is now a successful business man, located at Lowell, Michigan. Other well known Alumni, both from earlier and later classes, will speak or give musical numbers.
Owing to the enthusiasm shown, and to the fact that several classes will have special reunions which will bring many members back, it was decided that a larger place than usual must be secured for the meeting. After the banquet and program, which will be completed by about 10 o'clock, there will be dancing, while there will be other features for those who do not care to dance.
To assist in stirring interest among the classes and securing a large attendance, the following persons have been unofficially designated as "keys," and are rendering the officers and committees much valuable assistance: 1872, Mrs. William Campbell; 1882, Edward Hoag; 1883, A. W. Wilkinson; 1885, Miss Etha Barber; 1887, Ransom Armstrong; 1892, Mrs. B. B. Turnbull; 1893, Mrs. J. E. McKuns; 1894, Miss Nellie Lowry; 1896, Miss Nina Crowell; 1897, Miss Minnie Schumacher; 1898, Mrs. Edith Boyd Weber; 1899, Mrs. Florence M. Rogers; 1900, Mrs. Chauncey Freeman; 1901, W. A. DeGole; 1902, Miss Martha Kusterer; 1903, Mrs. Walter Kautlehner; 1904, Mrs. G. O. Leonard; 1905, Howard Boyd; 1906, Miss Mildred Daniels; 1907, Miss Beryl Namara; 1908, Mrs. H. S. Holmes; 1909, Mrs. A. A. A GOVERNOR IN PRISON

Sad news from the capitol of Indiana, Governor McCray is sent to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta for ten years for attempted fraud, through the mails. He had resigned just seventeen minutes before his sentence, so only a private citizen goes to Atlanta. But it was the governor, in office, who was convicted.

Outside the state, few newspapers played it up as big news. Evidently a governor in trouble isn't as live news as a Senator accused before an oil committee. Anyhow, crime is so rampant today that even high officials are not considered immune from temptation.

Those who fear that public confidence in government has already been irreparably shaken by the Washington exposures are surely not consoled by a governor's conviction. Many people see only six and corruption and negligence and malfeasance at Washington, and believe there is nothing else there. And yet government is, and has always been, fundamentally sound and strong. These departures from rectitude are unusual; they are "news" because of their novelty; they are minor phases and tiny sore spots of a great and healthy organization. Out of hundreds of high officials, only a few have been found wanting. Surely there is encouragement in that.

Out of our forty-eight governors, with all the temptations, threats, demands, and pleas of those who put them there, it is seldom that one yields. Thus do we see our first natural and generalizing suspicions put to rest by cold logic. Our government is there, and withstands all the floods firmly. If we have lost faith in it, part of the fault lies with us.

STONE SEEMS STRONG

Our new Attorney General Stone is apparently far different from the Daugherty which the press portrayed. Evidently he is going to justify his selection. He announced right off the bat that he was going to try to enforce prohibition. That sounds encouraging, but he can't enforce it unless people want it enforced strongly enough, and unless they see that he is in earnest and join with him.

Another thing, of less significance, he wants the public notified whenever Federal prisoners are pardoned. It won't help much, for when a man goes to prison he is immediately forgotten. This is a fast world. When a man is pardoned, and the newspapers encourage to play it up so the world will know it, the publicity isn't as helpful for one starting anew. But Stone knows his business, and has the public confidence. Anglers had been an expert fisherman, too, and he'll become popular overnight with such a hobby. That's an American method. Nor is it deplorable. All a really great man needs in order to multiply his admirers by the hundreds is to show streaks of humaneness. Harding played golf, and see the good will he created. Lincoln told a hundred of stories, not all innocent, but look at the personal influence he obtained. America admires strong men, great men, good men. But they must be so much so that they stay on a pedestal. We not only condone human qualities in our heroes, but demand them. Stone is a good fisherman. That will help him to be a good Attorney General.

A WOMAN'S ARGUMENT

When a vaudeville jester or newspaper paragrapher needs to make a joke and has no new material, he pokes fun at feminine reasoning ability. Yet Princeton University students had a surprise the other day when a debating team from Vassar College for women beat their crack speakers on the Princeton floor.

It doesn't prove anything, one way or the other, of course. Hen-pecked husbands will grind their teeth or say the subject was one-sided. Women who know they can reason—and they all can—won't call it proof, either. But it's an interesting phase of a much-mooted, and really uncalled for, argument. It isn't nice for men to accuse women of foolishness when, instead of following slow processes of piling fact on fact until they build up a structure, they leap up instantly to the same point. Sometimes they go wrong on these jumps; often their institution misses fire. But no man who himself argues reasonably ever says a woman cannot.

A MOTHER OF FOURTEEN

Mrs. Anna Werlitz, who has fourteen children, quotes a news item, has a few good words for what she calls "happy mothers," who "go to party after party" and then come home and sleep the clock around because they have no children to look after. "They don't know what they're losing," she says, "and they will look back and see how empty life has been." Being a mother of fourteen, she can speak from experience.

have that number. Nobody would advise that. But when a mother of 14 says anything about rearing children, or getting all the joys out of life that motherhood alone can give, folks listen. Not everybody dislikes flappers, or even childless wives. It is all a matter of individual preference and desire. But it is interesting to note that a large family always gets space in newspapers, and that nearly everybody has a good word for such parents and broods. Mothers of 14 are quite too rare, and even two or three children have saved many a home from unhappiness.

WANTED, FOLLOWERS

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, New York clergyman, says on his eighty-second birthday that what our nation needs is leaders. He asks a great army of young men and women, with visions, ideals, ambitions, and character to lead the masses. That is the usual plea heard at High School commencements; students are urged to prepare to lead a world which needs leaders, as if undoubtedly does. But the most widespread need is for followers. We have plenty of leaders; not all are strong, not all can see straight, not all have qualities of leadership. But look at the masses. Education trains captains, but even they must march behind majors and colonels, and generals. If a High School or College makes youth rebellious against authority, it has falsified its purpose. Knowledge brings power, but a little knowledge plays havoc with one's thinking. It is dangerous.

It takes longer to train a good soldier than an officer. John Citizen is much more useful at the point than on a bench. A lawyer does more good in his personal and social life than when facing a jury. A minister wins folks, not from the pulpit, but with pastoral activities. Anything a leader hopes to do depends upon those under him. It is the masses, the real people, which make the republic. If service is one's ultimate ambition, a workbench is as suitable as a swivel chair. There is far more honor in being a good follower than in being a mediocre leader, which is what most are.

Dr. Parkhurst was right, of course. A few good leaders can inspire the masses to constructive action. But, again, it is the masses which carry the day. They always do the work. Whether they get the glory doesn't count so much. If they realize their own worthiness.

Incidentally, making good in the ranks is the most reliable way to promotion to leadership. Hundreds of soldiers during the war, who really tried to do justice to their uniform, got metal bars on their shoulders. That's the best way to train for leadership.

COMING FROM AUTHORITY

A dispatch from Philadelphia tells that Abe Buzzard, who has been in prison for forty-two years, will become an evangelist upon his release. Since Abe, now seventy-two, was jailed first as chauffeur, his criminal career adds weight to the announcement.

"I have many years left in which to undo the harm I have done," said the aged convict. Here he makes hope replace actuality, of course, for at seventy-two most men begin to count the months ahead. The rest of his statement arouses another question, that of reparation, which we won't try to settle. Perhaps even his remaining years he can do the world more good than many men out of prison do in a lifetime.

Al Jennings was also a criminal, a train robber, and likewise turned to preaching when convinced he was on exactly the wrong track. The reformer's has accomplished isn't overwhelmingly evident, but he can be credited with motives, at least. Perhaps Abe Buzzard won't set the world on fire with new zeal for righteousness, despite its urgent need. But he will be in position to reach and appeal to men where exhorters of better education and more upright experience would miserably fail. He knows what wrong-doing is, whether or not it pays, if its pleasure are rest or forgetful, its genesis and its ending. His pleas for higher things will have a noticeable sincerity, and his admonitions will be authoritative.

One reason why many ministers fail to reach people, especially young folks, is their obvious unawareness of the world's temptations. They urge that all one has to do is to turn about, start anew, and behold it is done. Those fighting the black bottle speak of its lure which to its devotees is an irresistible giant. It is not, nor should be, necessary for reformers to have experienced the thrills and penalties of things they condemn. Their opinion would then lack in exaltation what it might gain in understanding. Yet the world listens less incredulously, less indifferently when one who has gone down to the depths or up to the heights returns with a solemn warning or a glorious vision.

YOUNG WOMEN AND PEACE

At the national Y. W. C. A. convention in New York City last week, world peace, child labor laws, and immigration were among the topics discussed. The first got considerable attention, evidently because young women are vitally interested in it. Nor is a Y. W. C. A. concave the wrong place for such big subjects. Not many of the women were "young"; but even a girl has eager ideals and practical enthusiasm. The women realize, of course, that the most they can do is to excite public opinion against war and preparation for war. That is all anybody can do, a few Congressmen and the like, can do; they carry out the will of the people, when they are called upon to do so.

problem in our government. Few people want anything very hard, and when they do they can seldom convince their Congressmen, who control national destiny, that they want it. If these young women want world peace hard enough, and make other people want it and ask for it persistently, we can have it. That is all there is to it.

OVERLAND BLUE BIRD IS LOWEST PRICED CAR WITH BALLOON TIRES

With public interest in balloon tires at its height, Willys-Overland announces its newest model, the Overland Blue Bird—the lowest priced motor car with genuine balloon tires furnished as standard equipment.

Those who have seen the car at its preliminary showings at the factory agree that the Blue Bird is the most striking design that has ever been produced by this organization. The combination of a long, roomy body done in rich Peacock Blue, set off by black fenders and running gear, smartened by nicked radiator, windshield stanchions and outside door handles; with upholstery of a bluish shade to match the body, and a top of similar hue; creates an appearance of spirit and sparkle that is entirely in-keeping with its happy choice of trade name.

This new creation is another instance of Willys-Overland's endeavor to work steadily toward the end that beauty, utility and economy can be assembled in a single unit. It is one more illustration of fine, well-bred coloring, which combines attractiveness with utility. The hue used on the new Blue Bird will stand up under the most exacting weather conditions and cannot be influenced by the summer sun or by winter's dampness and frosts.

A new standard in riding qualities has also been reached by the coupling of the patented triple spring suspension with Balloon tires. The wheelbase of the new car is 106 inches, giving it a spring base of 136 inches. The weight of each Overland spring is about twenty pounds. The material is chrome-vanadium steel, carefully heat treated, having an elastic limit of 130,000 pounds. The springs are so designed and assembled in the chassis that all road shocks are absorbed with a minimum distortion of chassis.

Addition of genuine Fisher 31x5.25 balloon tires, which further cushion the road, positively guarantees utmost physical relaxation to the occupants of the car even over the roughest highways.

The power plant is the same that has made the entire nation gasp by its stamina and power in difficult road and mountain tests in all corners of the country. Its repeated ascents of Motorcycle Hill in Arizona, its scaling of the meteor-ripped sides of Stone Mountain near Atlanta, Ga., are but two high points of a series of spectacular feats that have thrilled motoring circles during the past ten months.

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Charles A. Sink of Ann Arbor has announced that he will be a candidate at the Republican primaries for Representative in the Michigan legislature from the first district of Washtenaw County.

Mr. Sink is an experienced legislator, who has served most effectively in past sessions. In 1919-20 he represented this district in the House and in the following season he sat in the Senate representing the 12th district comprising Washtenaw and Oakland counties. At the expiration of one term, conforming with a traditional gentlemen's agreement between leaders in the two counties whereby the Senatorship rotates between the two, he was not a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Sink's wide experience in private and public life has made him a most capable legislator and during his service at Lansing, although serving a single term in each house, he was recognized as one of the important leaders. In the Senate he served as a member of the finance committee, an appointment seldom held by a first termer. He was born and raised on a farm and is thus sympathetic and conversant with rural problems. In Ann Arbor he served for six years on the city council and for twelve years on the Board of Education.

Chelsea H. S. Girl Writes Winning Essay

Following is another of our First Prize essays, written by Ruth Dancer, student in the local high school.

"IN THE HOUR OF TRIAL"

Liberty, the dearest and most precious privilege of any peoples, is not bought with a trifle. Liberty is indeed, a "jewel of great price", the price being the sacrifice and devotion of thousands of patriots who count no price too dear for liberty.

Liberty, the foundation of the ideals which have long made America a haven for the (oppressed) persecuted of every land, was indeed a costly purchase being (the price) what we received in return for long years of oppression and then "Valley Forge", by which the depth of our hatred for tyranny and determination to secure freedom was measured.

With winter close on their heels, Washington with his little band of patriots retreated from the capital, Philadelphia from a superior British force to the bleak heights of Morristown, then to make winter camp at Valley Forge.

That winter at Valley Forge is a memorable one in American history, for then was the turning point of the war, which decided the future fate of American history, decided whether it was to be free, or slave. It represents American fortunes at their lowest ebb, for with force without and dissension within, both intent on the same aim, the downfall of the one man whose genius made successful revolution possible, the chances of the successful ending at that time, seemed possible only by a miracle. (for) with George Washington's fate in the balance, America's was also.

The terrible suffering yet wonderful courage of the Americans' army at Valley Forge, has been recorded in indelible history. An army destitute of the barest necessities of life, in the middle of a coldly cruel winter, but animated by a patriotism equal to defying personal suffering, is a memory which makes it possible for us to comprehend what stuff composes the price America paid for liberty. Those men lived in rude huts, which were, as actual experience proved them, no shelter, they slept, for the most part, on the snowy ground. Their clothing was a few miserable rags, which had survived the hardships of the marches, their food, often only hard-bread, or parched corn. How many of us, under these circumstances, would have remained in Valley Forge, a week, unless animated by an all powerful motive, and led by a general for whom we would have gone through fire and water?

Far harder to bear than physical suffering, and far harder for patriotism to combat, is the subtle reaction, which sets in, when an army feels that its hardships are not being appreciated, and that their country is not behind them.

It takes the finest and most inspiring sort of leadership, under such circumstances, to keep up the morale of an army and it is a very fine tribute to pay to a general, to say that he has been able to under such circumstances.

Washington was confronted by just such circumstances. It was common knowledge that the politicians who were in control of Congress, were doing more to improve their own fortunes than their country's.

Indeed one of the most pitiful things about the winter at Valley Forge is the fact that it was due in a large measure to the selfish disregard of those who put sectional above national interests. The very efficient commissariat, headed by Col. Joseph Trumbull, had been changed so that it included mostly men who knew more about politics than the business on hand, and as a result large quantities of supplies never reached their destination through lack of teamage. There was on foot, also an attempt known as the Conway Cabal from one of its chief members, to remove that most ardent of patriots, and ablest of generals, Washington, and put in his place, the weak, inefficient, self-seeking, Gates. The Cabal attempted to accomplish its purpose by the most depreciable methods; first by an official persecution, in which Washington's military authority was so much lessened, that he was placed in a position of practical inferiority to Gates, for whom he was known to entertain little respect, (under) in this way the conspirators hoped to force him to resign. For a time, Washington's pride cut to the quick, by this indignity, for he was a quick, high tempered man, almost led him to leave the country, which had allowed him to be treated so shamefully, to its own resources. And I believe that if Washington had resigned, the little army at Valley Forge, which was keeping alive the protest against tyranny, would have melted away, and the struggle for liberty, whose result which we take as so for gone, would have slipped away with it, to remain quiescent for another long period, until another great leader could be found. But at length Washington's patriotism conquered, and despite base innuendos as to his personal character, ability and even patriotism, he remained faithful to his country and his band of devoted soldiers.

Despite the sickness and suffering in the camp, the little army came out a better army with no small amount of glory to its credit. Baron Von Steuben, that crack drillmaster, drilled, and suffered, with them, until by spring he declared them almost veterans. As to glory, to this period belong the capture of the Hessians' revelers at Trenton, and battle at Princeton, where the wily "Old Fox" slipped once again from under Cornwallis's grasp. By this time too, the long wished for French alliance had been consummated. After this time, America could look forward with some assurance at least toward the successful conclusion of the war.

So America was tried, and the trial proved her true gold.

WHY SUFFER SO?

Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp, shooting twinges, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ills? Chelsea people recommend Doan's Pills. Ask your neighbor! Could you ask for stronger proof of merit? John Kelly, W. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "My work started my kidney trouble. The secretions which were highly colored and contained sediment passed irregularly and were painful in passage. I suffered from rheumatic pains in my back and got sore and stiff. Mornings I felt tired and took an hour or so to get limbered up. I was often nervous and dizzy, especially when I stopped. I used different remedies but received no relief until I saw Doan's Pills advertised and tried some. Doan's completely relieved me." (Statement given March 1, 1919).

On April 1, 1921, Mr. Kelly said: "I am now in good health and I give Doan's Pills the highest recommendation."

Their Jealousy Cured

By JUDY BLAIR
(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)
"GIVE her something to be jealous of," suggested Hamblin.

"That's the only cure, Harry," she said, "if once she had some reason to be jealous of you, maybe she wouldn't be so absurd about ridiculous things like that girl in the shop."
Grey winked his forehead in thought. "The Hamblins and the Greys were old friends, but Mrs. Grey's jealousy of her husband of five years' standing was threatening to disrupt his home. If he spoke to a girl, if a girl smiled pleasantly at him, like the girl in the department store, he heard about it for days.

"That's exactly what she is doing, here and mine," said Grey. "And we're really fond of each other, too; that's the absurd part of it."
"I'll tell you what we'll do," said Kitty Hamblin, and the three conspirators put their heads together.
"The Greys attended the dances at the Country club this week, and Hamblins were there, too. Kitty and Anna Grey exchanged gossip—Kitty was the only woman whom, for some reason, Anna was not jealous of. She let Harry dance with Anna without demur, but let him dance with any other woman, and his wife's eyes flashed a salvo of gunfire at him.

"The first time Harry danced with Kitty Anna looked quite the same as usual. The second time he could see out of the corners of his eyes, that she was taking interest. The third time—and they were dancing with their faces very close together—Anna's eyes flashed dangerously.
"It's working," whispered Kitty. "Just look at her! My, you're in for a scene, Harry! I only hope you manage to cure her, that's all."
With her arm drawn through his she accompanied him to a secluded part of the club veranda. It was very secluded, very quiet, there and now heard was a low, woman's moan. Kitty took her seat beside Harry upon a bench behind some ornamental shrubbery. She peered through the leaves. Suddenly she squeaked Harry's arm.

"She's found us," she whispered.
"Looking through the leaves of the ornamental shrubbery, Harry saw the dim outlines of a waiting form, which he recognized as his wife's.
"You may kiss me now, Harry," said Kitty.
The kiss that broke the silence of the night sounded like the bursting of a motor car tire. A gasp came from the other side of the shrubbery. Next moment, as the pair engaged, they saw Anna Grey weeping hysterically in the shadows.
"Poor kid," said Kitty. "Let's go and tell her."
Anna looked up with a fearful face as they approached.
"Listen, my dear," Kitty began. "Oh, you've got your excuse ready, no doubt," sobbed Anna. "You're a bad, wicked woman to lead my husband astray."
"Honest, Anna, we knew you were there, and it was just a joke—"
"Oh, I won't stay and listen to those falsehoods!" Anna cried. "Harry! Harry, you must choose between us once and for all!" she cried, dramatically. "Which is it? Which?"
"Why, you, Anna, of course," stammered Harry. "But honest, it was a joke, and—"
She flung her arms around his neck. "Oh, Harry, it's so noble of you trying to shield her!" she cried. "It's just like you. I've always been so proud of you, and I just knew you could attract a lady if you wanted to, and I wanted you to make me jealous so that you'd be dearer to me than ever."
"Um—yes," answered Harry thoughtfully.

Held Him Back

A man over seventy years old walked ten miles from his home to an adjoining town.
When he reached his destination he was greeted with great astonishment by his friends who lived there.
"You walked all the way!" said one of them.
"I did," replied the old man.
"However did you get along?"
"Oh, first-rate," replied the pedestrian; "that is, I did until I came to a sign, 'Slow down to 15 miles an hour! That kept me back a bit.'"

Short, the Tall Man

"Isn't a lawsuit involving a patent right about the dullest thing imaginable?" asked one lawyer of another.
"Not always," was the reply. "I attended a trial of that character not long ago that was really funny. A tall lawyer named Short was reading a 6,000-word document he called a 'brief'—Everybody's Magazine.

This Writer Objects to Sweet Mannered People

To ordinary human beings few are so annoying as those who are so sweetly mannered. Sweetly mannered in the London Times. The writer says they are easier to deal with than the most brutal of men.

A robust cheerfulness may easily pass down to insensibility. When one's own delicate nerves and one's own delicate sense of humor are suffering, one may wring one's hands and uttering piteous complaints, "I'm so little that they can handle their spirits. But about a sweetly mannered person there is always a hint of a hint of a hint. It lays claim both to a more acute than to a more perceptive to suffer on our own and admitting that pitifully a cold in the head is a nuisance. It takes toothache but as a call more sweetness. Wet through, and to the bone, even undignified, it is still sweet. The more it becomes maddening. The more sweet eye, the sweet smile, the mouth, the slight tilt of the head, one side, the measured and the voice, the unalterably sweet and full sentiments, all seem to accuse more natural selves of being creatures of a lower grade.

Onlooker Dreams of the Origin of Round Cheese

The damaged brig has for neighbor a bank of humbler degrees, a large in course of lading with round cheeses of the country. From round one to another, they pass through mathematical precision, through the hands of three stout Dutchmen, before reaching their allotted berth. The onlooker gets about counting them, chancily, till, speculating whose stibbly robust appetites they are destined to satisfy, he loses count. Of the quiet, level meadows, he dreams where these golden wheels had their remote origin. From these his fancy flies to Alpine pastures where the cattle feed amid ceaseless music of their bells. As then to a vale amongst the mountains; it is late evening; he is in a garden, in the cool darkness. About of the darkness and the distance there comes a faint postcard of a lone miles away. Closer and closer; surely a chime of bells. How brought nearer? Not a foot can he hear, but still the chime advances. Only when it is all but above of where he is seated does he catch the muffled tread of many a hoof upon the road, deep in dust, and know that the kine are pacing homeward, bringing an echo of the mountain's toll to the bosom of the plain—Christopher Munchin, in Talks and Trails.

When Wood Duck Nest

Far from its natural element, wild and often a mile or more from the nearest watercourse, the wood duck, unlike other members of its family, usually builds its nest. However, difficulty of transporting the food from the nest to the feeding ground is solved in a truly remarkable way. No sooner are the eggs hatched and the ducklings, about the size of baby bluebirds, than each parent bird takes a little one in its bill, wriggles through the opening in the chestnut tree's white bark which harbors the nest, and with a quick glance lest some waterfowl or hawk be lurking nearby, to creek or water hole. Here the ducklings are dropped gently into the water, without previous preliminary lessons, these newly hatched birds dart over the surface of the water, under the cover of marshgrass or lily pads, where they hide until the return of their parents with morsels of their owners and alsters.

Highest Points

The maximum difference in the elevation of land in the United States is 14,777 feet, according to the United States Department of the Interior. Mount Whitney, the highest point, is 14,501 feet above sea level, and a point in Death valley is 278 feet below sea level. These two places are both in California and are less than thirty miles apart. This difference is small, however, as compared with that in Asia, where the Computed Air Mass line, Mount Everest rises 29,002 feet above sea level, whereas the lowest point of the Dead sea is 1,200 feet below sea level—a total difference of 30,202 feet. In Europe the difference between the highest and lowest land points is about 10,000 feet.

EXCITING EVENTS FEATURE TRIP AROUND THE WORLD
 In a letter to relatives here, Levi B. Palmer, on a round-the-world trip on the ship, Empress of Canada, writes in part:

Owing to our great distance from wireless stations, combined with unfavorable atmospheric conditions in this part of the world, we have received no news from the outside world during the past twenty-four hours. News we get from letters are about a month old but we are glad to get news from home.

We visited Ceylon at a time that is of intense interest to natives and foreigners there. It is the time-honored event of capturing alive as many of the thousands of wild elephants as possible. These drives occur several years apart and are conducted in a systematic way. Four months ago plans were made, a stockade or trap erected and five thousand Singalese put into divisions, twenty-five hundred men by day and the same number by night, advanced in form of a circle 80 miles in diameter gradually drawing to the stockade. Forty-two elephants were trapped. The beating of kettles, firing of guns and shouts of men with the trumpeting and rushing of so many wild elephants was exciting as told by some of our passengers who were fortunate to be at the last days' roundup. Darwin Curtis, a big game hunter and writer, said it was the most exciting of his experiences. The party told of many interesting sights in the jungle, including white herons, crocodiles, monkeys, lizards of great size, and beautiful birds of paradise.

Colombo and Kandy on the island of Ceylon are the two finest places we have visited yet. Ceylon has 250,000 acres of tea plants. Sir Thomas Lipton has many large warehouses where tea is dried and packed.

Our next port is Calcutta, of 1,300,000 inhabitants. It is very hot here only a few miles from the Equator, and we will soon be half way around. Ox carts are in general use for merchandise, rick shaws for passengers and few autos, lots of lepers with arms and legs off, begging on streets.

Everyone complains of not getting mail. I have received very little since I left home. Will write you from Manila. Too lazy to write more in this hot climate.

ALL NATIONS MARCHING TO ARMAGEDDON
 "And He Gathered Them Together Into a Place Called In The Hebrew Tongue Armageddon."—Revelation 16:16.

The greatest crisis of the ages is upon the nations of earth. Sensing the coming explosion, statesmen of the world express themselves on this wise:

"1928 is worse than 1914."

"A new chapter opens in the history of Europe and the world, with a climax of horror such as mankind has never yet witnessed."

"We have come to the crossroads and no one knows the way out."

Fear has laid hold upon the peoples in all walks of life. And why? Because the old world has ended, at which time Jesus declared there would be distress of nations with perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear of what they see coming on the world. According to the Bible the world or order of things under Gentile dominion legally ended August 1, 1914. Jesus foretold that the nations at that time would become angry; that nation would rise against nation, followed by famine, pestilence and revolution. These things have been fulfilled since 1914. Many futile attempts have been made to settle the world troubles. God foretold their failure, and added: "Gird yourselves, and ye shall be broken... Take counsel together, and it shall come to nought." (Isaiah 49:10) And why? The answer is, because this is the day of God's vengeance, and his indignation is upon all nations.—Isaiah 34:1-8.

Referring to the day in which we are living, Jesus declared that there would be a great falling away from the faith by professed Christians. A fulfillment of this is before our eyes in all the denominational churches. The Fundamentalists are making a desperate fight against the Modernists; the latter opposing the Bible, denying man's origin, his fall, the ransom sacrifice and the presence of our Lord, and scoffing at his second coming. This is as Jesus said, it shall be. As in the days of Noah, so shall it be at the end of the world.—Matthew 24:37.

Armageddon was the great battle-field of Palestine. There Gideon and his army met to fight the Midianites who in their distress and excitement destroyed one another. Gideon's band pictured the Messiah, while the Midianites pictured Christendom. That battle of Armageddon foreshadowed the complete downfall of Satan's empire, and the establishment of Messiah's kingdom.

Jehovah foretold that the nations would assemble and bind themselves together, and that then they should be destroyed.—Zephaniah 3:8.

There are three great agencies, dominated by evil spirits, that are gathering the nations to this mighty conflict. (Revelation 16:13) They are: (1) Satan's organization bent upon the destruction of the Lord's anointed; (2) world rulers made up of the commercial and political giants supported by an apostate clergy, determined to rule mankind in behalf of the minority; and (3) a false system of religion which holds before mankind false doctrines and false hopes. Like frogs, they boast of their ability to bring peace and prosperity and order out of the chaotic condition. They prepare for war and appeal to the patriotism of the rank and file to induce them to enter the conflict, a certain class of the clergy joining in preaching the people into the trenches. This they do in a desperate attempt to hold the evil order of things together.

The Lord, as the antitypical Gideon, is turning on the light that the people may see the true situation. But the powers that be, disregarding God's Word as the Prophet foretold, will rush on to the conflict and "fall and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you."—Jeremiah 25:28-30.

The trouble will be followed by the establishment of peace and righteousness under the reign of the Messiah. It shall be a time of refreshing and blessing for mankind. (Acts 3:19-24) Then, says Jesus, those who keep his sayings and obey his word, turning to righteousness and following the same, will live forever and not die.

Many ask: What shall we do? And the Lord's Word answers: "Before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon you, ... seek ye the Lord, all ye meek (teachable) of the earth, ... seek righteousness, seek meekness; it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger."—Zephaniah 2:23.

The church was organized in purity to represent the Lord. But under the leadership of selfish and ambitious men, influenced by the great adversary, it has degenerated, as now evidenced by the open fight between the Fundamentalists and the Modernists. Our sympathies are with the Fundamentalists. (John 8:44) In the denominational churches, however, are multitudes of good, honest, order-loving people, who have hope for a better day. They have some faith in Jesus Christ as the Redeemer of mankind. They believe that he is the Son of God. They believe in the resurrection, and that the salvation of man depends upon the merit of Christ. They are sheep amongst wolves in the ecclesiastical system. The Lord loves them and is calling to them through his Word: "Come out from amongst the wicked systems, that ye be partakers of their sin; and receive not of their plagues."—Revelation 18:4.

The time has come for truth to triumph, and the light and the day to come. The day of the Lord's anger is at hand, and the people are being warned.

Chats With Your Gas Man
 WHY are some gas bills higher than they should be? Because the housewife uses the giant burner on her range, when a smaller one would do.

She lights two burners at a time, and then lets one of them wait while she is getting food ready.

She takes food off the fire and leaves the burner lighted.

She buys so-called gas-saving devices, without figuring out whether they really save gas, although the gas company would tell her.

She uses the gas oven to heat the kitchen and to dry damp clothes.

She allows water and foods to boil furiously, instead of turning down the flame.

She uses a worn-out range, with burners out of adjustment.

She never cleans the burners of her range.

She uses larger cooking utensils than she needs.

She uses open vessels, which consume five times as much gas as closed vessels of the same size.

STANDING shoulder to shoulder with public officials, doctors and nurses, thousands of American funeral directors are constantly safeguarding your health.

Their part in stamping out contagion and saving human life is one of their many almost unobserved, yet very definite, contributions to public safety and peace of mind, and to the highest modern standards of living.

Because they are prepared, you do not have to be. They have provided facilities equally accessible to all, adequate to every material and spiritual necessity, and thoughtfully designed with the sincerity and good taste befitting equipment which is intended to carry a message of love and esteem.

By their preparation they have relieved the family and its friends of all perplexing responsibilities, and by the influence resulting from their own progress, they have brought about the abolition of traditional funeral customs that did violence to the finer sensibilities.

EXCITING EVENTS FEATURE TRIP AROUND THE WORLD
 In a letter to relatives here, Levi B. Palmer, on a round-the-world trip on the ship, Empress of Canada, writes in part:

Owing to our great distance from wireless stations, combined with unfavorable atmospheric conditions in this part of the world, we have received no news from the outside world during the past twenty-four hours. News we get from letters are about a month old but we are glad to get news from home.

We visited Ceylon at a time that is of intense interest to natives and foreigners there. It is the time-honored event of capturing alive as many of the thousands of wild elephants as possible. These drives occur several years apart and are conducted in a systematic way. Four months ago plans were made, a stockade or trap erected and five thousand Singalese put into divisions, twenty-five hundred men by day and the same number by night, advanced in form of a circle 80 miles in diameter gradually drawing to the stockade. Forty-two elephants were trapped. The beating of kettles, firing of guns and shouts of men with the trumpeting and rushing of so many wild elephants was exciting as told by some of our passengers who were fortunate to be at the last days' roundup. Darwin Curtis, a big game hunter and writer, said it was the most exciting of his experiences. The party told of many interesting sights in the jungle, including white herons, crocodiles, monkeys, lizards of great size, and beautiful birds of paradise.

Colombo and Kandy on the island of Ceylon are the two finest places we have visited yet. Ceylon has 250,000 acres of tea plants. Sir Thomas Lipton has many large warehouses where tea is dried and packed.

Our next port is Calcutta, of 1,300,000 inhabitants. It is very hot here only a few miles from the Equator, and we will soon be half way around. Ox carts are in general use for merchandise, rick shaws for passengers and few autos, lots of lepers with arms and legs off, begging on streets.

Everyone complains of not getting mail. I have received very little since I left home. Will write you from Manila. Too lazy to write more in this hot climate.

ALL NATIONS MARCHING TO ARMAGEDDON
 "And He Gathered Them Together Into a Place Called In The Hebrew Tongue Armageddon."—Revelation 16:16.

The greatest crisis of the ages is upon the nations of earth. Sensing the coming explosion, statesmen of the world express themselves on this wise:

"1928 is worse than 1914."

"A new chapter opens in the history of Europe and the world, with a climax of horror such as mankind has never yet witnessed."

"We have come to the crossroads and no one knows the way out."

Fear has laid hold upon the peoples in all walks of life. And why? Because the old world has ended, at which time Jesus declared there would be distress of nations with perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear of what they see coming on the world. According to the Bible the world or order of things under Gentile dominion legally ended August 1, 1914. Jesus foretold that the nations at that time would become angry; that nation would rise against nation, followed by famine, pestilence and revolution. These things have been fulfilled since 1914. Many futile attempts have been made to settle the world troubles. God foretold their failure, and added: "Gird yourselves, and ye shall be broken... Take counsel together, and it shall come to nought." (Isaiah 49:10) And why? The answer is, because this is the day of God's vengeance, and his indignation is upon all nations.—Isaiah 34:1-8.

Referring to the day in which we are living, Jesus declared that there would be a great falling away from the faith by professed Christians. A fulfillment of this is before our eyes in all the denominational churches. The Fundamentalists are making a desperate fight against the Modernists; the latter opposing the Bible, denying man's origin, his fall, the ransom sacrifice and the presence of our Lord, and scoffing at his second coming. This is as Jesus said, it shall be. As in the days of Noah, so shall it be at the end of the world.—Matthew 24:37.

Armageddon was the great battle-field of Palestine. There Gideon and his army met to fight the Midianites who in their distress and excitement destroyed one another. Gideon's band pictured the Messiah, while the Midianites pictured Christendom. That battle of Armageddon foreshadowed the complete downfall of Satan's empire, and the establishment of Messiah's kingdom.

Jehovah foretold that the nations would assemble and bind themselves together, and that then they should be destroyed.—Zephaniah 3:8.

There are three great agencies, dominated by evil spirits, that are gathering the nations to this mighty conflict. (Revelation 16:13) They are: (1) Satan's organization bent upon the destruction of the Lord's anointed; (2) world rulers made up of the commercial and political giants supported by an apostate clergy, determined to rule mankind in behalf of the minority; and (3) a false system of religion which holds before mankind false doctrines and false hopes. Like frogs, they boast of their ability to bring peace and prosperity and order out of the chaotic condition. They prepare for war and appeal to the patriotism of the rank and file to induce them to enter the conflict, a certain class of the clergy joining in preaching the people into the trenches. This they do in a desperate attempt to hold the evil order of things together.

ENCUMBER BOONTS FOR BAND CONCERTS

It will be spent or raised from five hundred to seven hundred dollars to this year we did not raise the money for entertainments which means there will be no inducements to bring outside people to come here and no doubt will be largely felt. Our neighboring towns have all arranged for public entertainments which means, at this day and age of the Automobile, people will go where they can enjoy themselves most, and of course, will do their reading while there.

Isn't it surprising how some outsider can come into a city like ours, solicit say from five hundred to seven hundred dollars to bring some outside entertainment here and how hard the people will fall for it. Nevertheless this same thing is being done right now. On the other hand, when we are asked for a few dollars for the support of a home band we can't hardly do this because it means that every cent we pay towards the support of a home band will stay and be spent in our home town and affords free entertainment for all.

Ask yourself which would be the most profitable, to raise two or three hundred dollars for public band entertainments during the summer months bringing thousands of people into our town which means a certain amount of money being spent here as well as keeping the amount given for such entertainments home where bring some outside entertainment here for only a limited number of people to enjoy for a few days and all the money be taken outside of town.

Chelsea has never been without a home town band and has never experienced bringing an outside band and if we are to do this this year for Decoration Day it will surprise us when we learn it costs us from two to three times the amount to do this than our home band would charge for the same number of men and no better music. Then the realization of a home band will be appreciated.

Why can't our Kiwanis club take matters in hand before it is too late and maybe arrangements can be made to raise money for public entertainments by our home band, made up of Chelsea men and who last year gave us some of the best concerts Chelsea ever had.

Lets every one of us get together, boost Chelsea and her band this year, patronize home industries and use our money for home entertainments. I thank you.

Very truly,
A SUBSCRIBER.

CONGREGATIONAL
E. L. Sutherland, Minister.

Mother's Day—A special day for our mothers—Come and bring her with you. If she is not here, go and see her; if far away, write her, show her that you still love her. If she is gone, let her know that you care for her. Let her know that you are still here. Let her know that you are still here. Let her know that you are still here.

With an attendance of well over a hundred members and their families, the Fellowship of the Methodist church held their final meeting of the spring season in the church parlors on Monday evening. Scrub lunch supper at seven was followed by a program of orchestra music, vocal numbers and a debate on the question "Should the gates be closed to Immigration?" By a vote of 35 to 25 the audience declared the affirmative side to be winners. A. B. McClure, P. M. Dreesman and Theo. Bahmiller composed the affirmative and N. W. Laird, John Faber and O. C. Burkhardt upheld the negative side of the question. Much amusement was occasioned by humorous features brought out during the debate.

SEE HER FACE BEAM WITH JOY AT YOUR THOUGHTFULNESS. MAKE HER GREAT, BIG LOVING HEART THROB WITH HAPPINESS ON THIS DAY SET ASIDE FOR HER REVERENCE—SUNDAY, MAY 11.

Mother's Day—Mothers don't ask for much in this world—and too often they get less. The older we get the more we realize this and how much we truly owe them. Mother nature in to get joy from giving—from self-sacrifice. They don't look for anything in return.

But oh, how happy it does make them to hear that they are thought of once in a while. To receive some token of love and affection from those to whom they have given their all.

The purity, the wholesomeness, the beauty of flowers is the nearest thing akin to mother love on this earth. They make the ideal remembrance for Mother's Day.
