TWO MEN GO OUT

Two interesting men died in New York recently, not far apart. One was Capt. Eli Bowen, who for sixty years was known in the circus world as the highest freak. His feet were joined directly to his body, and he could use them like hands. The other man was Dr. Dudley Tenney, the oldest practicing dentist in the city. He took care of the teeth of New York's really fashionable and aristocratic people, and has done that since the 60's, not the big horde of merely rich people who try to pass as Society with a big "S".

Aside from the fact that their passing got about the same space in the papers, there can be little comparison. Both were famous, both were beloved and respected, and both received big incomes. They got their money, of course, in far different ways. Capt. Bowen's parents doubtless mourned his deformity until Mr. Barnum discovered him; perhaps always afterward. Without doubt he himself deplored his lot and longed to be a poor laborer with good legs. Dr. Tenney had an easy time, was physically whole and worked much harder than Capt. Bowen. For what end? What did either get out of life? One wonders about such things. If living means making money, both were equal. If it is work, they were equally industrious. Both had friends, excitement, travel, amusement, vital interests, and ideals. Yet none would hesitate a moment about choosing between their lots.

Capt. Bowen did not rise despite his handicaps but because of them. Yet plenty of men, especially war veterans, somehow become capable and self-sustaining citizens and do great good in the world in spite of physical infirmities. Also, there are plenty of young dentists who, despite the constant demand for good dentistry and the big libraries full of knowledge awaiting their perusal, will never be more than half rate. New York's aristocracy almost as a unit mourns Dr. Tenney, because he was capable, a gentleman, and all that a good dentist must be. Capt. Bowen is also mourned, but not because of the man himself or what he did, but because he had no legs. There's a difference—a big difference.

THESE PRODIGES

Matha Crane, of Brooklyn, is just ten years old, but publishers have issued a book of her poems which are said to be good. Now that Matha is an authoress, her parents will probably keep her from mingling with ordinary children and help her add a tick to her nose—which is exactly the way to spoil a nice girl on the chance of making a fair poetess. It is just what should not be done. If there is one time when a person should be normal it is in childhood. To force maturity, wisdom, dignity, and achievements on a child is a grave mistake. The brilliant child should be encouraged, of course, but every hour of childhood sacrificed for imitating adults will be mourned later by child and parents. It is not good for children to grow up or grow wise too fast. A person needs childhood as a basis a background for future understanding.

Look what happened in Chicago. Two prodigies, wise, clever and brilliant geniuses, not out of their teens, killed a boy just for the thrill. They had suddenly become grown up and had not enough background to keep it from mastering them. Instead of their dawning physical manhood blessing them, it bored them. Had they been brought up to play marbles instead of tapping dad's gin, and made kites instead of driving around in big autos, they could be doing the latter now.

THE CHALLENGE

Nobody was surprised when Calvin Coolidge was nominated at Cleveland. Not many when General Dawes was nominated to run with him. Both are universally liked and admired; in both the nation has trust. They have been unchallenged personally, and in only a few items officially. But isn't it interesting that out of a hundred and ten million people, only one man was considered big enough by the Republicans; and only three by the Democrats. Both Coolidge and Dawes are a big challenge to their own party and to the Democrats. The Old Guard has all admitted, noted foolishly. But unless insurgents break up the party, the Coolidge-Dawes ticket will be a firm challenge to the Democrats, too. Issues in the coming campaign won't be as clear-cut as we had hoped, but there will be a few minor ones. The Democrats are preparing to send their best man against Coolidge. Whoever he is, he will be strong. It will be a fight worth living for.

Incidentally, the people are challenged, as they are in any contest of our interesting, oft-unsettled democracy. All are urged to take most active, active, active part in the universal

METHOD

STANDARD

Justly anyone of course will surely appeal to a bill. The challenge of these newly named members is worth standing in the country for which they stand, and for which the Democratic candidates (whether they shall be) also stand, and for its perennial, appealing, growing challenge for everybody to take part. What is one called who ignores this or any other duty?

FOR THE GOOD OF ALL

Detroit put a squad of policemen around fifteen city blacks last week and kept everybody in and allowed no one else to enter. Nobody yelled anything about "our rights" or protested strenuously. For there was smallpox all through that section, and until fifteen thousand people had submitted to vaccination, the quarantine stood.

Nobody is surprised at that. We're getting used to the new theory that nobody has any "rights" insofar as individuals are concerned. There are no individuals; all are a part of a great body we call society. Yet a hundred years ago that theory was just gaining converts and those who made such a stand against prohibition went back many moons to the old and fallacious idea that the progressing world had discarded.

We insist on looking up, sometimes hanging, men who offend society and seem likely to confuse unless cured. That has been done for centuries, of course, but for largely for revenge until recently. Society does not act from a vengeful purpose, but for curative and preventive reasons. These fifteen thousand people who were vaccinated surely realize that it was done for the good of all.

Incidentally, that's the big idea of getting along in the world. It is altruism generalized, compulsory and practical. Thinking of others is not only unselfish; it is wisest and best. Nobody who regards only his own welfare has an easy time, and always runs contrary to the great tide of living. Perhaps Christianity was responsible for the reception of this great doctrine of social welfare. Other things helped too, doubtless. At any rate, it is only by accepting and living on this basis that man can be happiest and fulfill his rightful destiny.

Satisfactory

"So you want to marry my daughter? What is your financial standing?" "Well, sir, I've figured out every expenditure possible. I've had the best legal advice that money would secure; I've done everything I could do to dodge it—and I still find that I cannot escape paying an income tax." "Take her. She's yours."—Boston Transcript.

He Thought So Too

A man who was new to golf turned to his caddy and said: "I say, why couldn't that fellow get his ball into the hole?"

"He was stymied, sir," was the reply.

"He was stymied, sir?"

"Oh, was he?" replied the other; "I thought he looked rather funny at lunch."

NOTES.

Arrangements for a celebration in July 4.

The dates for the celebration will be on July 21, inclusive.

Powerville—George L. Adams, editor of the Powerville Review, will celebrate on July 17th the fiftieth anniversary of his taking the helm of that paper.

Ann Arbor—Ann Arbor continues to be free from smallpox, according to Dr. J. A. Wessinger, city health officer, who says that not a single case has been reported in several weeks. One case was reported in April.

Dexter—We are told that just now in the hay fields is a weed with a yellow bloom, which every farmer should eradicate at once, else its seed will be ripe in buying time, and soon it will be all over the farm, making the hay unmarketable.—Leader.

South Lyon—L. E. Smith of the Pinckney Dispatch, has purchased the Herald here of L. E. Lucas, who has published the paper for the last two years and a half. Mr. Smith will publish both papers. Mr. Lucas has purchased the Flushing Observer and will move to that place at once.

Saline—This is the season when the small boy with his air rifle raises havoc with some species of song birds as well as sparrows. Parents who allow their children air rifles should spend a few hours drilling the youngsters on the difference between wrens, chipmunks and sparrows, so that they will not molest the former.—Observer.

Clinton—Dogs in a flock of sheep belonging to Frank Bailey Saturday and Sunday nights did about $300 damage. Henry Bailey shot one of the dogs when they visited the flock Monday evening, and will receive the reward of $10 which the county board of supervisors offered to any one who killed dogs found in a flock of sheep.—Local.

Brighton—Livingston County starts a new phase of soil extension work when on Thursday, July 10, a mari excavating demonstration will be launched at Hartland by the Michigan Agricultural College Farm. Mechanics Department will be headed by L. R. Livingston, who also has charge of the land clearing work of the state.—Argus.

Clinton—County deputies arrested two boys 10 and 11 years of age and a Negro, who gave their home as Detroit, about two miles west of town Monday evening. The boys confessed to having stolen the Ford touring car which they were driving and exonerated the man of any part in the theft. They were taken to Adrian by the officers and later sent to Detroit.—Local.

Jackson—Carl Casey, about thirty-five years, whose home is said to be somewhere in Oklahoma, died about 2:30 Thursday afternoon on the way to the W. A. Foote Memorial hospital after he was run over by a freight train at the Michigan avenue crossing of the Michigan Central railroad. Both legs were severed and his skull fractured. He was taken to the hospital in the city ambulance.—News.

Manchester—A gang of men assailed the old wooden building on the corner of Jefferson and Water street, lately known as the Decker building, and in a few days it will be taken down even to the ground. Immediately the cellar will be filled with earth, at least part of it, and the erection of an up-to-date filling station by the American Oil Corporation will take place. It is an ideal location for the purpose, being at the intersection of the Manchester-Chelsea road with the road from Saline to Jackson.—Enterprise.

Ann Arbor—Harvey Ellis Warren, 19, 1035 South Main street, was drowned late Friday afternoon while swimming in the Huron river near Foster's landing, Sec. township. It is believed that he entered the water while overheated, and was seized with cramps.

Howell—There are forty cases of smallpox in Livingston county, twenty of them in one township, said Dr. R. M. Oak of the state health department at Lansing in a talk to the business men of Howell at the county rooms Monday evening. While your city has so far escaped it, is none too early for you business men, he continued, to take precaution to keep the dread disease away.—Republican.

Mason—June has long been established as the month of brides and roses and one Lansing man evidently has an eye for each. At any rate, a certain damsel has found herself a husband, a poet garden and a flowery name too. Rose was the lady's name and last Friday evening she called at the residence of Rev. F. G. Elliot wishing to be married to George E. Tulp, who, in addition to having a blossomy name, is by business a landscape gardener. After Rev. Elliot made them man and wife, George went away with his smiling bride, Rose Tulp.—News.

Grass Lake—During the electrical storm Sunday morning the Monroe candy factory in Grass Lake was struck by lightning. The bolt either struck the radio wire or the chimney, for the radio was destroyed and the chimney was wrecked. Shingles were torn off both gables, floors torn up, plaster and lath torn off, joists sprung, stove blown to smithereens and furniture wrecked. Our fire chief John Rohrer, is sitting up and taking notice for the lightning bolt blew a part of a large transformer, which was on the electric light pole in front of the candy factory, clear across the street and through his large front window.—News.

Ypsilanti—During the summer ing made by the local Board of Commerce at the Normal school a health meter for a home coming to a health school is to be conducted under the direction of a doctor, nurse and a tradition teacher. Children are to attend twice a week and receive instruction in hygiene and proper foods.

South Lyon—Arrangements are being made by the local Board of Commerce at the Normal school a health meter for a home coming to a health school is to be conducted under the direction of a doctor, nurse and a tradition teacher. Children are to attend twice a week and receive instruction in hygiene and proper foods.

What does your money buy?

Many an unthinking motorist has driven up to a Gasoline Station with the careless order, "Five gallons, please," taking the service for granted. There is a better way to buy gasoline. Buy it where you know you'll get real gasoline service. How are you to know? Anywhere you see the sign—

AMERICAN Certified Quality GASOLINE

The Power Behind Your Motor

That's your guarantee of real gasoline service. American Gasoline is, in itself, giving the maximum in power, mileage and economy. The purchaser also receives that extra bit of personal service that always accompanies every sale of American Gasoline. This quality and service has created a preference for American Gasoline. Go where you get it—to your local American dealer.

"No single institution which employs the method of monthly repayment of principal and interest has done so much to make the working man a home owner as the Building and Loan association. Last year these associations added $400,000,000 to their assets, and nearly 700,000 new subscribers."

STANDARD OIL PRESENTS INSURANCE TO EMPLOYEES

Benefits of $500 to $2,000 Will Be Paid Beneficiaries in Case of Death of Insured.

Dependents of 25,000 employees of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) become beneficiaries of an employee's insurance plan adopted by the board of directors of that company and presented to the employees. Every employee is to be presented with a life insurance policy which will be maintained by the company with no cost to the employee. All of the company's employees in the twelve states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, So. Dakota, North Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Wyoming and Oklahoma are affected, except those of the coal mining department at Carlinville, Ill.

One year of service with the company is the one requirement for participation. The minimum death benefit paid to dependents will be $500, based upon a single year of service. All payments are based upon length of service, reaching a maximum of $2,000 after ten years' employment. For those who have no actual dependents, a death benefit of $200 is provided to pay funeral expenses.

"We have been considering an employee insurance plan for several years," said Col. E. W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) at 910 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, today. "Its promulgation in our company is in line with our policy of showing every appreciation to our employees for loyal service. Five years ago we inaugurated in our manufacturing department an Industrial Relations plan, whereby employee-councils pass upon wages, hours, working conditions and all other matters intimately relating to their employment. Recently this plan was extended to affect the 1,000 employees in our general offices at Chicago. We also have an annuity plan whereby every employee is assured of a comfortable pension when he becomes too old, or for other reasons is incapacitated for work. This also is provided at no cost to the employee. Through our Employees' Stock Purchasing Plan we are making partners of the employees, 12, 138 of whom are now stockholders in the company, having purchased their stock through an arrangement whereby the company pays fifty cents for each dollar paid by the employee. All of these plans are part of the general scheme of industrial relations which in our company is bringing about 100 per cent cooperation between employees and management."

It was also announced yesterday at the company's general offices that full time commission employees of the sales department have been made eligible to participation in the Employees' Stock Purchasing Plan, the Annuity Plan and the Insurance Plan. They have hitherto been ineligible.

MORE ABOUT FORDS
With Ford car No. 10,000,000 now in service and making a trans-continental trip from New York to Chicago over the Lincoln highway, the man who enjoys figuring can have a world of practice.

The other day one gifted gentleman worked out the tire problem. He figured that the 40 million tires used on the 10 million Fords, if stacked up would make a rubber column, 2,000 miles high.

Then, looking for road trouble, he punctured each of the tires, and then figured that one man working eight hours a day except Sundays and holidays and repairing a tire every five minutes would finally finish the job in 400 years.
