J. D. McMANUS BRINGS SILVER BLACK FOXES HERE

Six-Acre Ranch—West of Town Will Be Scene of New Industry Locally; Rabbits Will Also Be Raised.

Among the latest industries to make its appearance in or near Chelsea, is the fox ranch recently acquired by J. D. McManus, local photographer, who, after more than a year's experience in the silver fox raising business, decided upon the purchase of six acres west of town on M-17 from W. E. Boone, and late Friday night returned from a trip north bringing four pair of fine foxes with him.

Sparing nothing in his determination to have the latest word in fox ranch construction, Mr. McManus has attained his ideal. Six pens, all of steel and wire construction, covered and measuring 12 by 24 feet will be found at the ranch which is an ideal spot of timber land. Inside these pens will be found specially built kennels and nests which are expected to provide the warmth necessary for the arrival of puppies. In fact, the new pens and kennels are unlike anything in the state and Mr. McManus expects it will mean considerable improvement in the efforts necessary to fox raising.

In charge of the ranch will be James Bain, a man of long experience in the silver fox raising game who is thoroughly acquainted with the task before him. A ranch house has been built and he will reside on the premises.

As a side issue with the fox industry Mr. McManus has purchased several thoroughbred Ghinella rabbits from Saskatchewan, Canada, and these are expected to arrive any day to be added to the live stock on the farm.

The foxes were brought here from the Howard City Stock Farm, Howard City, and the Moon ranch, of Fremont, Mich.

Editorial

GET OUT THE VOTE

There is a tremendous effort being put forth all over the country to get out the vote this year. It is having a good effect. Registration all over shows increase. If interest is sustained until after November fourth, we shall see a much larger vote than in 1920, and we may witness some surprises.

Women appear to be registering more freely this year than formerly with an evident purpose of taking part in the balloting for a president. The straw ballots have not taken this increase of women's voting power into consideration, and, in fact, have paid little attention to what women will do in this election.

With three presidential tickets in the field that will assuredly attract more than the usual interest of voting in a presidential year, it is quite natural that there would be increased registration, and an increased number of voters. Add to this increased interest of women in registration and balloting, and we may look forward to a vote this year very much larger than in 1920, with a possible upset of calculations all along the line.

The citizen owes a duty to himself and to his country to vote. He owes a duty to his country to vote right. He owes a duty to vote for the candidate who gives promise of giving the best government of all years. 1924 is one of the most important years in the history of the country, and the ballot grows more in importance for much of the future of America depends on the way the election goes this year.

Our government is our biggest business enterprise. We ought to see that the men best fitted to manage it are placed in charge.

JUST A SYMBOL

The Indiana University deploras the fact that few college graduates keep their diplomas and not many who do frame them for daily inspiration. Yet, without doubt, the University emphasizes the truth that a diploma and an education are quite different and we see folks, daily, who have one without the other.

Schools insist that education itself should be framed, that is, it should be obvious. The world naturally doubts the existence of education, culture, religion, or brains unless they make themselves felt. Hasn't it a right to?

College makes much over the beneficial effect of a degree in getting a job or changing a profession. But anyone who knows anything at all about employment knows that a diploma means nothing unless it is backed by superior ability. Plenty of employers are cynical about the practical value of higher education, and are sarcastic and antagonistic to college men.

A framed diploma may daily recall pleasant memories and spur to further effort, but a framed education, more permanent, substantial and useful than yells and fraternity pins and mannerisms, will come nearer fulfilling its purpose and justifying itself.

HIGH-DEATH RATE

The United States Census Bureau estimates that 16,452 people were killed by automobile accidents in 1923. In a report just published, this is an estimated increase over 1922, of 2,776.

Nearly every state now has regulatory laws, applying to the operation of automobiles, looking to reduce the number of accidents. It is highly important that there should be a reduction. The motorist and the economic cost is approaching the ruinous mark.

There should be a strict enforcement of all laws regulating the operation of automobiles, and one of the best things that has yet been tried is to take away the license of the reckless driver. This has been done in some states and has proved successful. It is the reckless driver who endangers the passengers in cars driven by careful drivers, and the pedestrians. Every state should have a stringent licensing law, and no known reckless driver should be granted a license to drive a car. That would be the quickest way to a solution of the problem created by the constantly growing death list from automobile accidents.

Everybody knows that children's eyes get far less attention than they should have, and that poor school work, petty illness and nervous temperament can often be laid to need of glasses. Yet neither figures nor facts seem to get home to some people.

Accidents are frequently caused by poor eyesight, of course, just as they bring injury to the eyes. Incidentally, such is about the most terrible hurt which could come to one.

Most people would spare a leg more quickly than an eye. They are valuable. But so long as they do their work they get little attention; just like an old car one hates to junk.

HONESTY AND FEAR

The New Jersey Hotelmen's Association was told the other day that women are more honest than men, but only because of their greater fear. The speaker, member of a big bond house, didn't mention what women were afraid of, but probably it was getting caught with its attendant publicity and shock, rather than punishment.

At any rate, fear keeps a lot of us honest, and we ought to thank our stars that there is such a deterrent. Fear, itself is honest, and if conscience were man's sole guide we would have to go through many a century of development of morals before it alone would keep us in the narrow path.

The success of law hinges on fear. Fear keeps us thinking along honest lines; fear controls our neighbors as well as ourselves. We think we fear punishment, but criminals have often said that they feared getting caught more than what they got afterward.

Why women are more fearful of notoriety and humiliation is easy to see. But they won't relish this aspersions on their motives for dishonesty. They rightly claim to be cleaner of mind and purpose, and normally superior to men, hence more honest as a matter of principle.

THE OLD COUNTRY DOCTOR

Very much has been recently written, and much concern has been aroused over what is termed "the passing of the old-fashioned country doctor."

Complaint is made, particularly in the eastern half of the country, that it is very different to get a doctor in the country, and that in cases of serious sickness, often the patient must be carried some distance to the nearest city or town, and that in some cases such strenuous handling of the patient results in death before medical aid can be had.

The young men who are coming out of the medical colleges show more reluctance to go into the country and set up for a practice. The hours are too long, distances are too great, facilities for treatment are too few and too crude, and the pay is too small as compared with these things in the cities and towns.

This condition is moving to an increasing degree, as to what is to be done about it, and so far, there is no answer to the question.

That in some sections of the country, particularly the eastern states, this is already having an influence on rural life, cannot be denied. Owners of farms are moving to the towns and cities so that their families may have better and more certain medical attention. Then there are added attractions in the way of proximity to schools, more amusement and the like. The farm is being left more and more to tenants, most of whom have more interest in getting what is to be gotten out of the soil from year to year, than in any scientific method of farming which would take a toll of produce every year, and put back in fertilizer enough to enrich the land and prevent its impoverishment, or to actually build up the soil and make it more productive.

In the state of New York where a study is made of conditions that cause land owners to leave their farms, it is said that the lack of access to prompt medical aid in cases of sickness and accident, more than anything else, is causing the exodus from the farms.

For twenty years scholars who have studied abroad have come home urging America to adopt the metric system of weights and measures. It is admittedly a superior system in every way to ours, with its varying and unrelated relationships of quarts and pounds and yards. To inaugurate the system here would be one of the best things we ever did. And it will come, but slowly. Customs are not to be smashed so quickly. We had to learn about gills and pints and quarts and barrels and calculate that our children can too. But in another generation public schools will teach nothing but the metric system. This is one new idea we are absorbing.

Another is the thirteen-month year worked out and urged by U. S. Weather Bureau officials. The calendar has always been behind the sun, and many schemes have been offered to reform our time-recording system. Leap year and short February we take as a matter of course, and our little rhyme, "Thirty days hath September, April, June and November" serves us admirably.

But we face new ideas like these, daily, admittedly better than these, we are accustomed to. We will be both blind and foolish if we turn down vital and important and needed things because we're used to some thing else.

WILL EMPHASIZE WEEK DAY RELIGIOUS TRAINING

The Michigan Sunday School Association, which is to hold its state convention in Ann Arbor the last three days in this month, will especially emphasize in its program Week Day Religious Training of public school pupils. This plan is being tried out this year in Ann Arbor. Fully five hundred public school pupils in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades are now regularly receiving thorough religious instruction from qualified teachers.

The Board of Education has consented to allow pupils in these grades, if their parents wish, to leave the school building one hour each Wednesday and take a course in religious training in the church selected by the parents. The courses selected by each church must be approved by the Superintendent of the City Schools and be of a grade fully equal to the courses which the pupils are taking in their regular public school work. The attendance at these classes is under the same restrictions as attendance in the public schools where the pupils are regularly enrolled. The parents in every instance must indicate that they desire their children to take religious instruction. If the parents do not wish their children to take advantage of the training offered, the children are not obliged to attend such classes.

Twelve churches in Ann Arbor are cooperating in this new undertaking. If it works out successfully, as its supporters believe it will, the school authorities will, it is understood, extend the privilege to pupils in the other eight grades in the city schools next year. This would probably result in the enrollment of fully three thousand or more public school pupils for this work.

The State Sunday School Convention will especially feature this line of work in its program in Ann Arbor on October 29, 30 and 31. While week day religious instruction is new to Ann Arbor it is not an entirely new idea as it is being carried on successfully in many cities both large and small and in some country districts in a number of different states. The hundreds of families in Ann Arbor who have indicated their approval of this plan by sending their children to these classes will, by attending the Sunday School Convention, have an opportunity to hear how this new idea has been developed and how it is being successfully worked out in other places.

The convention fee is only $1.00, the payment of which will entitle one to attend any or all of the lectures and discussions, as well as the special drama to be given under the direction of Mrs. Ada Stair who has charge of this part of the program. Mrs. Stair has made all arrangements for a fine dramatic performance during the convention. Parents in every school district in Washtenaw County should be sufficiently interested in this important work to attend this convention and learn as much as possible about week day religious instruction as it is believed that such schools will be so successful that every school district in both city and country will sooner or later decide to have all children given religious instruction.

The Spirit of Protestantism

THE spirit of Protestantism exhibits itself in Love and Tolerance.

A true Protestant grants his fellow-citizen the right to differ as he himself claims that right.

Protestantism stands for certain definite principles, but it does not display intolerance towards those of opposite views.

A Protestant hopes that others may see as he does, but if they do not he still remains neighborly and fair. He does not resort to legislation to force his convictions upon others.

Protestantism is opposed to every type of tyranny over the minds and souls of men. It stands for freedom of conscience and religion. It stands for freedom of thought and speech. It stands for freedom to learn and teach.

It cannot agree to a dictatorship of religion or education without violating its traditional spirit.

It does not believe that the state should establish a monopoly in education.

All who believe in the true spirit of Protestantism will work and vote against the School Amendment, which seeks to give the state a monopoly in education.

Passion must not be permitted to destroy educational liberty, which is one of the best fruits of the Protestant Reformation.

ELECTION:—Tuesday, November 4, 1924

At this time of year, more than ever, you'll appreciate the extra quality that's in Staebler Gasoline. Its ready vaporization means easy starting. None of it gets into the crankcase. Every bit of it goes to make power. Costs no more.

Station at corner of Main and Jackson Road. Also sold by Jones Garage.

Give Credit where Credit is Due!

THREE per cent of Michigan's population of ten years and over cannot read or write. The nation's average is twice as high—six per cent.

Thirty states have more illiterates than Michigan.

There are 2,203 negro and 14,172 native white illiterates in Michigan.

These are United States Census Bureau figures. They disprove the claims of propagandists that there are more than one-half million people in Michigan who cannot read or write.

Michigan people are broadminded, tolerant, and educated. They are products of schools that are second to none in America.

Public, Private, and Church Schools have worked together in a program of state-wide education. Each deserves credit for the part it has played.

If Michigan were to adopt the School Amendment, private and church schools would have to be closed in less than nine months! Nearly 125,000 pupils would be thrown into an already overcrowded public school system. Chaos would prevail. Work would be disorganized. System would be destroyed. Taxes would go up.

Many children would be put on a part time basis.

Michigan's splendid record for literacy would be threatened.

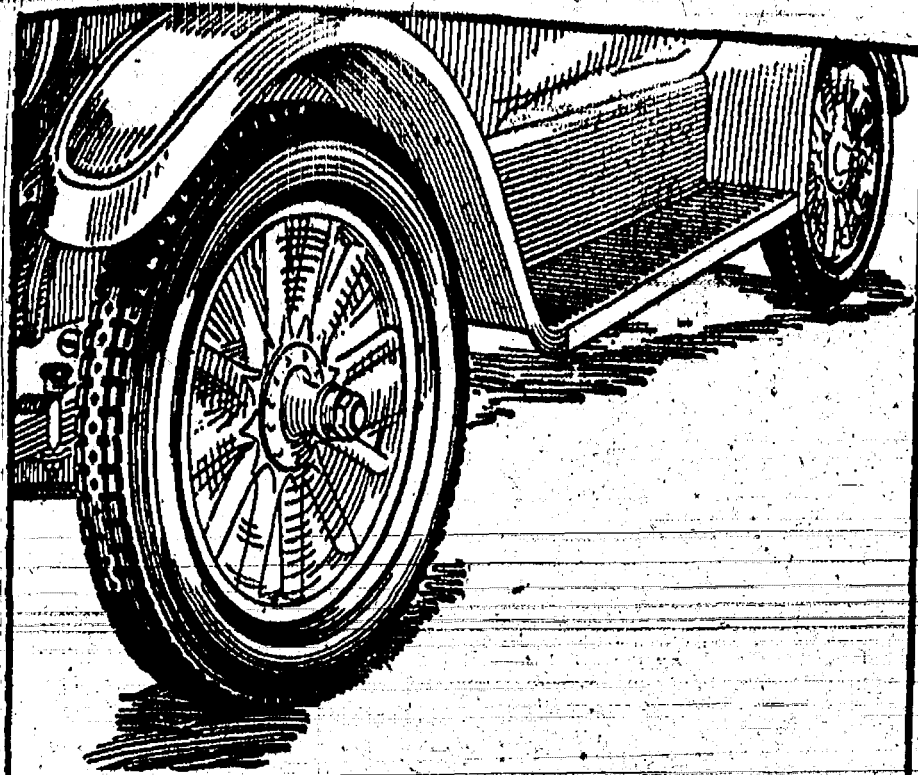

Preserve our high standard of education by voting "NO"

COLLEEN MOORE BOB

POPULAR IN MOVIES

Is the marcel wave going the way of the lightning rod? The wire bustles? And the hansom cab? Hairdressers, versed in the intricacies of the marcel, find themselves losing out because of the sudden vogue of the Colleen Moore Bob as exemplified by that insouciant little lady in "Flaming Youth."

For you see, the Colleen Moore Bob is a perfectly plain haircut, somewhere in the region of the ears. It needs no falling or waving, and, moreover, looks quite saucy and flapperish. Which accounts for its sweeping popularity, and the wall of the hairdressers; also the rush on barber shops.

Colleen Moore

"The Perfect Flapper"

And to make matters worse Colleen Moore decided to wear the selfsame bob in her new First National picture, "The Perfect Flapper," which may not affect the hairdressing business.

But then again—it may.

"The Perfect Flapper" will be shown Wednesday and Thursday, October 29 and 30, at the Princess Theatre. It boasts an unusual all-star cast with Sydney Chaplin, Frank Mayo, Phyllis Haver, Lydia Knott, Charles Wellesley and others. John Francis Dillon, who was also responsible for "Flaming Youth" and "Lilies of the Field," directed the picture.

Make Each R.R. Crossing A Stop Street

Most Michigan cities compel motorists to bring their cars to a full stop before crossing any heavy-traffic street.

This law is universally approved. It saves time and averts accident. It is wise and fair.

Yet heavy motor vehicle traffic is far less dangerous to you than a railroad train. Speed is the very essence of Railroad service. A train cannot stop quickly. Nor can it turn out to avoid hitting you.

Six states have already passed laws, making stop streets out of Railroad intersections. The time may come when the State of Michigan will compel you by law to thus protect yourself.

But, why wait for law, when you have common sense?

Determine today that, from this time on, you will always bring your car to a full stop before crossing a Railroad track, anywhere—any time.

Everybody will approve your good judgment. Many will follow your example. And you will be relieved forever from the possibility of this, the most serious of common accidents.
