JAS. MCCARTHY TAKES BRIDE AT PETERBOROUGH, CANADA

Young Couple Return to Chelsea After Short Engagement at Eastern Pointe.

A pretty wedding of much interest locally took place at eight o'clock in the morning of Tuesday, February 10, at St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, Ontario, when Miss Hazel, daughter of Mrs. Mary Sweeney, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. James P. McCarthy, of Chelsea. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Costello.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Dr. Jas. Gallivan, of Peterborough, wore a lovely frock of white headed georgette, with a French hat. She carried a bouquet of opella roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Florence Scott, wore a poudre-blue canton crepe, with black taffeta hat and columbia roses.

Mr. Walter Hummel of Chelsea, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast for the bridal party and their friends was served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Gallivan. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy left on the noon train for a honeymoon in eastern points, returning to Chelsea the latter part of the week, where they will reside in the Jackson Knapp residence on Summit street.

The bride of last week is a popular young lady of her home town, a graduate of St. Joseph hospital at Far Rockaway, New York. The groom is widely known and claims a large circle of friends in and about Chelsea, all of whom extend sincere good wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

VALENTINE PARTY ENJOYED BY CHAT'N NEAL TUESDAY

Ladies of the Chat'N Neale club enjoyed a beautifully appointed Valentine party at the home of Mrs. E. L. Sutherland on Tuesday evening. Amid elaborate decorations of red and white a dainty supper was served early in the evening, with place favors of nut cups of red roses and red candles in crystal candlesticks as a part of the table decorations.

Following supper Mrs. H. W. Schmidt assumed the role of toast-mistress and the following toasts given:

"Cupid"—Evelyn Smith.
"Symptoms"—Mildred Hinderger.
"Hard Hit"—Bertha Freeman.
"Sentiments"—Nina Belle Wurster.

These were followed by a mock wedding which was carried out in a most complete manner. The several parts were taken as follows:

Bride, Jennie Walker; groom, Virginia Brock; bridesmaid, Jane Harris; best man, Helen Lindeman; minister, Florence Ward; ring bearer, Ella Barber; bride's father, Helen Baxter; bride's mother, Evelyn Sutherland; vamp, Edith Weber.

The wedding march was played by Nina Belle Wurster.

Games were played, fortunes told and Valentines exchanged by members of the club present, while musical numbers were given by the Chat'N Neale quartet.

DR. AND MRS. PALMER ENJOY LOS ANGELES SCENERY

In a letter to the Standard Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Palmer send greetings to friends hereabouts and recount some of the beauties of southern California where they are visiting at the present time.

Their letter says:

"Our friends may be glad to hear that we are enjoying the warm sunshine and beauties of California. After leaving Riverside we went to San Diego, the most southern city of California, a city of marvelous growth the last ten years. Tourists cannot afford to miss this while visiting the west. Climate, business, beauty—all there. A trip to Coronado Beach then down to La Jolla, Old Mexico, gave a comparison of the United States and our border countries very evident.

Los Angeles is our home for the present and we are enjoying its greatness. Since our visit here four years ago we see wonderful growth. Subdivisions that were out ten miles are all built up and connected with city solidly.

Wishing all our friends health and happiness, we are, as ever,
Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Palmer.

INTEREST WILL BE CHARGED ON SPECIAL ASSESSMENT TAX

At the regular meeting of council on Monday evening the tax roll for the special assessment on South Main street paving as made by three special assessors was accepted and, in view of the fact that the village has advanced funds to pay for the job, interest at the rate of six per cent will be charged taxpayers from Monday, February 16 until the tax is paid. In view of the fact that five years has been allowed in which to pay the tax interest charges would be costly to the village as a whole on the advanced money. Therefore it was deemed advisable to pass the interest charge on to the persons receiving benefit from the pavement. Taxes on this special assessment may be paid in part or whole at any time during the five years.

UNIVERSITY HEAD DIES EARLY WEDNESDAY MORNING

Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, president of the University of Michigan since July, 1920, passed from earthly sleep into that of the eternal at 8:30 a. m. Wednesday, at which time his physicians announced that he had quietly slipped away.

Born in Brooklyn, Iowa, August 30, 1874, Mr. Burton traversed fifty years of eventful life during which his rise to fame was unusually rapid, attaining the distinction of being a college president at 34. Starting his career as a newsboy on the streets of Minneapolis, he graduated from Carleton university and from Yale, was pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn, N. Y., and from there was called to the presidency of Smith college. Before coming to the University of Michigan he was president of the University of Minnesota since 1917.

The body of the late university president will lie in state Friday from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. in Alumni Memorial hall. Private funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at the residence, conducted by Rev. Lloyd C. Douglas, of Akron, Ohio, former pastor of First Congregational church, Ann Arbor, in collaboration with Rev. Herbert A. Jupp, the present pastor. Interment will be in Forest Hills cemetery, Ann Arbor.

POOR FATHER PLAYS TO TWO CROWDED HOUSES

Playing before full houses on both Monday and Tuesday evenings, "Poor Father," being presented by St. Paul's Evangelical League, met with satisfaction on every hand. Aided by the "Orchard Terrace Garden" orchestra, and the Moonlight male quartet, the company of young folks entertained with a two hour program which furnished fun for the "whole family."

Starring especially was P. F. Niehaus, as George Washington Brown, a colored butler in a wealthy home, who handled the truth rather recklessly and permitted his imagination to get the best of his better judgment throughout the play. That his antics and the predicaments in which he found himself created a happy atmosphere was evidenced by the laughter and applause which greeted his appearance on the stage. Others of the company did equally well although their roles were not as outstanding as the colored butler.

This is the second play to be presented by St. Paul's Evangelical League in as many years. Last winter they presented "Always in Trouble" to the great enjoyment of three well filled houses.

NOTICE

To those who are interested in the euchre tournament we announce that our fifth party will be held in the K. of P. hall tonight at 7:30 p. m. NEITHER PARTY SUCCEEDS IN NOMINATING TICKET

Candidates for Village Presidency Hard to Find When Time Comes For Selecting Prospects.

After much persuading and "talk" among members of both the Independent and People's parties in Chelsea, both are without a head as the Standard goes to press today. Immediately after the caucus Monday evening it was announced the Independent party had filled its ticket but this morning the Standard was advised the nominee at the head of the ticket had refused to run, hence the party is apparently no further along than before the caucus.

Committeemen of the People's party were working diligently this morning in an effort to complete their ticket and get a candidate for president of the village. At the time of going to press they had met with little success although the likelihood of a candidate was more promising than it had been at any time previous.

It is expected announcement of candidates for both tickets will be made next week, according to committee.

CHELSEA ST. MARY'S GIVE JACKSON RUN FOR MONEY

Over-confidence nearly cost St. Mary's high of Jackson a game with St. Mary's of Chelsea at the West Intermediate gymnasium, Jackson, Friday evening, when the Chelsea team presented a belated rally, but fell short of tying the count by three points. The final score was 15-12.

The "lighter" Chelsea team seemed to "run circles" around the Jackson quint, and only the fact that they missed many easy shots in the early part of the game probably saved Jackson from defeat. However, in the final quarter they made up for lost time and outscored the Blue Devils 9-3 and nearly won the game. In the first quarter the Chelsea team held St. Mary's on almost even terms, the score being 4-2 at the end of the first period. In the second quarter the teams again fought on almost even terms, but Jackson scored two points and held Chelsea scoreless.

It was the third period that spelled defeat for the locals, when they were outscored by Jackson 7-1. In the final quarter they came close to making up for this by romping over Jackson 8-3.

The Chelsea team was much lighter but put up a good fight at all times of the game.

WORKMEN FIND RAILROAD BRIDGE DESTROYED BY FIRE

A Grand Trunk Railway section crew found the 30-foot railway bridge one mile southwest of Root's station, six miles northeast of Jackson, entirely burned out when they made their truck inspection Monday morning. The ties and stringers were burned away leaving only the rails. No trains had crossed the bridge since Saturday evening, and no cause for the blaze could be ascertained.

The morning passenger train from Jackson to Pontiac was flagged by the crew and sent back to Jackson. It was held until 2 p. m. and sent out to the "break" where passengers, mail and express packages were transferred to the west bound train from Pontiac over a plank bridge. A temporary structure had been completed by Monday evening and a freight train passed over it during the night.

The bridge is located in an isolated spot with no farm houses near. Employees of the railroad had no knowledge of the fire until the ruins were discovered by the section crew.

Manchester—County School Commissioner Florence Essery of Ann Arbor was in town Saturday conferring with citizens concerning a meeting to village and country residents to consider school consolidation, a subject which is calling for attention especially as it is said rural districts which need new schoolhouses and enlarged facilities do not want to go ahead and build and improve if there is a prospect of consolidation in the near future. No date for such a meeting has been announced.—Enterprise.

Ypsilanti—Several dogs in the vicinity of Normal street and in other parts of the city have been poisoned by some miscreant. Some of the dogs have been killed and others are deadly ill from the effects of the poison. A person who will depend to the level of a dog poisoner hardly fit to live in a civilized community and if it could be fastened upon the culprit it would go hard with that particular specimen of low-down humanity. Officers and owners of canine pets are on the watch and hope to catch the offender.—Record.

Howell—The Republican has told the story of two or three meetings which have been held in this county to discuss the project of getting the Better Homes movement under way in this section, with the aid of the Home Economics department of the M. A. C. An organization has been effected with Mrs. Heber Wilkinson of Fowlerville, as the county chairman. A meeting will be held in Howell on March 3, 4, 5 and 6 to train the teachers of the various groups throughout the county so that the work can go forward smoothly from that time forward.—Republican.

The men arrested are Charles Ray, who gives his address as Detroit, Elton "Chic" Day, Harry "Gus" Markey, and Russell Mankin of Plymouth. These men have been making their headquarters for some time at the home of Al Bohaw, in Howell, and have been under surveillance by the officers in connection with their moonshining activities. Monday morning Sheriff Teagle received information that an Olds touring car with winter top was parked and apparently hidden just inside the fair grounds from the Bohaw residence. After looking the car over in the morning the sheriff found upon returning later in the day that it had been removed.—Review.

Pinekey—After reading in last week's Dispatch about how nicely a flock of quails were entertained at the Miller home a raccoon thought he would try some of Pinekey's hospitality. But, sad to relate, he was met just outside of the village by Wm. Kennedy's dog who entertained Mr. Coon in an unexpected manner. After the battle Mr. Coon was carried into town for funeral services. A buck deer is now getting better service. For some time Mr. Deer has been seen north of town and for two or three weeks past he has been cultivating the acquaintance of John Martin's flock of sheep. He seemed to enjoy the friendship of the Martin family who have left grain so that he could find it and now he is a regular visitor at the Martin barn yard. Dispatch.

Fish's Change of Color

As a quick-change artist the parrot fish has few equals. Swimming about in the tropical waters, the parrot fish is a clear turquoise green during the daytime. Finding a quiet nook among the stones and weeds, its color fades to a dull olive. Further changes go on whilst it sleeps. Numerous reddish brown spots appear on its body.

Placed in an aquarium having a plain green bottom, the parrot fish retains its coat of green and does not put on night clothes. But if a few large stones are dropped into the aquarium, corresponding blotches appear on the sleeping fish.

The Glove in History

The use of gloves dates back to remote times. Xenophon sneered at the Persians for wearing gloves to keep their hands warm. The Greeks and Romans also scorned the use of gloves. The glove appears to have become a well-known article of dress in England about the fourteenth century. The materials used for making leather gloves are principally the skin of deer, sheep and lambs, goats and kids, the latter being the most important, though far more kid gloves are made of sheep than of kid leather.

Natural Steam Harnessed

At Healdsburg, Cal., 75 miles from San Francisco, is a power-generating plant operated by natural steam from underground. The steam comes from a depth of 800 feet and engineers say that there is enough of it beneath some 4,000 acres of volcanic land to light and heat San Francisco and run all nearby factories once it had been completely harnessed.

Doubtful Compliment

Bobby, aged six, was playing with a little girl. One of his schoolmates passed by and began to sing: "Bobby's got a girl, Bobby's got a girl!" "Aw, go on!" retorted Bobby. "You've got one yourself, and she's worse'n mine!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Bad People Not So Plenty

I have heard all my days warning of bad men and women, but known few; and I have reached three-score and ten. I have traveled far, and haven't much farther to go, but upon my honor the rarest thing I know is a completely bad man or woman.—E. W. Howe, the Atchison Globe Man, in Collier's.

Principle of Memory

Memory is the power to revive again in our minds those ideas which after imprinting have disappeared, or have been laid aside out of sight.

Christian Science Temple

The original cost of the land on which the mother church of Boston, Christian Science, was built (gift of Mrs. Fanny) was $20,000. The cost of the original edifice was $200,000, including the organ, which cost $10,000. The estimated present value of the lot with its extension is $1,500,000, and the cost of the temple extension $3,000,000. Its seating capacity is 5,000 and it was dedicated in 1900.

NATIONAL ORATORICAL CONTEST CREATING INTEREST

With enrollment still continuing, and the number still growing, students in two hundred high schools of Michigan, located in more than 50 different counties, are engaged in an earnest study of Constitutional Government. They are preparing to write essays which will be the basis of the first eliminations in the greatest forensic struggle the schools of the Nation have ever known: The National Oratorical Contest. The stake is at once high honor and great material rewards, for the national champion will receive a small fortune in state awards and $2,000 of the $5,000 in capital prizes to be bestowed upon seven boys and girls at Washington, D. C., May 8.

The subjects upon one of which each student will write an essay, later to be declaimed in the oratorical contests, are Constitutional Government, the Constitution, and the relation of Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Marshall, Madison, Webster or Lincoln to the Constitution. The only restrictions are that the essays shall be original, shall not require more than 10 minutes for declamation and shall be of such a character as to increase interest in and respect for the Constitution. In all competing high schools, these subjects will be made the theme of assignments in English, history or civics classes. Teacher-judges will select the four best for declamation before the students of the school, and will decide the school champion, following which the interschool, zone, state and national contests will occur.

In Michigan, a diploma will be given to every class final winner in a school, and a bronze medal will go to the school champion. The winners of district contests will receive silver medals, and zone champions will receive gold medals. Ten zone champions will meet in the state finals, competing for a first prize of $500, a second prize of $250, and a third prize of a set of the rate and very valuable author's edition of The World's Best Orations. The remaining seven will receive sets of the 28-volume classic, "The American Nation: A History." The schools represented at district and zone contests will receive diplomas, giving the record of their representatives, and the school producing the state champion will receive a plaque bearing a replica of the medals won.

May 8, the seven winners of the National semi-finals will meet in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, before distinguished statesmen, diplomats, jurists and citizens. President Coolidge will speak and Justice of the United States Supreme Court will act as judges of orations. Prizes will be distributed as follows: First, $2,000; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $450; fifth, $400; sixth, $350; seventh, $300.

Students and competing schools in Michigan will at no time meet any expense whatever, even the traveling expenses of every contestant and of

Bees That Lay Eggs

in Bricks and Wood

Sometimes as you are looking at an old wall you will notice that the mortar between the bricks contains a number of deep pits. If you probe into various holes you will be startled eventually by the exit from one of them of a small, but very angry, bee.
You have, in fact, disturbed the masson bee in his home. The hole in which he was lurking was made by his powerful jaws.

The female lays eggs in little receptacles at the bottom of the hole and places a store of food beside each egg. The hole is then sealed up with a mixture of clay and mortar, softened with the bee's saliva. The eggs are left to themselves, and when hatched the young bees eventually eat their way out into the open.

The cousin of the mason bee is called the carpenter bee. He burrows into woodwork, choosing generally the underside of the beam, to protect the hole from rain.

At the bottom of the hole an egg is laid. Then comes a partition of mud and wood chips; then another egg, and so on till the hole is filled.
The carpenter then seals it securely and leaves the eggs to look after themselves, and when hatched the bees eat through each partition till they get out.

Artist's Fee Too High Even for Profiteer

One of the good stories about the famous painter, Melissander, is in regard to his experience with a new friend who had erected a private theater at his chateau. Melissander was just then at the height of his fame and was spending months painting pictures and selling them for about $200 a square inch.
The rich man conceived the idea that what his theater most needed was a drop curtain painted by the famous artist, so he went to the studio and proposed the matter to him.
"How large is the curtain to be?" asked the painter.
"It will be 60 feet high and 95 feet wide," was the reply.
"My friend," said Melissander blandly, "it would take me 50 years to paint such a curtain, and it would cost you $4,000,000."

Counting the Cost

"Don't forget!" snapped mother. Little Bertha stopped toying with the lid of her chocolate box and endeavored to concentrate upon the novel. But it was a very dull affair, and her mind soon came wandering back to the box.
In two minutes her small fingers were busy again.
"Bertha, don't forget!" repeated her mother.
Once again the child obeyed, but once more the production failed to hold her fingers away from the lid of the chocolate box.
"Now, Bertha," exclaimed her mother, "I warn you."
Bertha opened her eyes wide. When her mother spoke like that she was not to be disregarded. Glancing doubtfully at the dull screen and then at the tempting lid, she whispered: "Would it be a hindrance, mummy, or just your hands?"

SCHOOL NEWS

Playing its best game of the year, the local high school quintet defeated Saline 20-8 last Friday evening before a crowd that filled the Welfare building to capacity. Chelsea took an early lead with 3 field goals and the quarter ended 6-5 which was the closest Saline came to tying the score. Chelsea came back with a bang in the 2nd quarter, scoring 4 field goals while Saline was content with a lone field goal. A good defensive play with a quick break into a 3rd quarter game was what set Saline down. Four field goals by White and three by Kinner put the game on ice making the score 14-6 at the end of the first half.
Playing a defensive game the second half Chelsea forced Saline to long shots where the losses failed entirely. Saline did not score the second half, even though presented with three chances from the foul line. The guarding by Beach broke up Saline's offensive time and again. At center Fox outjumped his opponent on every tip off and his floor work gave Chelsea numerous scoring chances which Kinner, White and Steger took advantage of. One basket by Steger and two by Kinner on the second half swelled the final score to 20-8.
Chelsea plays at Manchester this Friday evening where a hard game is expected.
Line-up: R. F. Kinner (Capt); L. F. Steger; C. Fox; R. G. Beach; L. G. White. Substitutions: Broomfield for Fox, Weinberg for White. Field goals: Kinner 4, White 4, Steger 1. Fouls: Fox 0 in 4, Beach 0 in 1. Referee: Cooper, Ann Arbor.

Practicing the boys' game the Chelsea high school girls were defeated by the Saline girls 11-2. It was a hard fought game from start to finish. Saline was allowed but one field basket the second half. Line-up: R. F. Anna Mayer; L. F. Dorothy Weinman; C. Norma Pittsley; Ruth Brooks; R. G. Agnes Dancer; L. G. LaRein McLaughlin.
Members of the high school, under the direction of Mrs. Etzler, are preparing an operetta, "The Wild Rose." The date has not been set.
Wednesday evening a Fun-Post was given the winning team of the "Country Gentlemen" contest. Games were played and light refreshments served.

Astecs Grew Corn

The only related plant with which corn will cross-fertilize is teosinte, a large, semi-tropical grass growing wild in the tropics of Central America and adjoining regions, says Nature Magazine. It is in this corn of the ancient Mayas, Aztecs and Incas that the most abundant evidence has been found of early cultivation.

Test for Building Metals

An interesting discovery of the United States bureau of standards is that portions of metal exposed to ultraviolet light may become furnished while the other portions remain bright. It is suggested that this increased atmospheric action may give a method of indicating the liability of metals to corrode.

Preserving Book Bindings

The bureau of standards advises that the application of a thin coating of egg albumen to the leather binding of the books will prevent decay. The use of ammonia for diluting and preserving the solution should be avoided, but the use of a thorough beating, made antiseptic by the addition of a small quantity of camphor, thymol or some essential oil. Vinegar is also satisfactory in some cases as preservative for leather book binding.

Sea Nettles

The Smithsonian Institution says that all species of sea nettles sting by night as well as by day. However, there is a marine vertebrate known as the sea nettle in appearance and is characterized by the absence of nettle cells and therefore does not sting. This particular species is common in Chesapeake bay.

Highly Imaginary

The "Land of Cockaigne" was an imaginary land of idleness and plenty in which the houses were roofed with cake, the rivers ran with wine and roasted fowl offered themselves to be eaten. The name was applied in derision to both London and Paris following the writing of a satire entitled "The Land of Cockaigne" about 1600.

Real "Dogs of War"
The saying, "Let loose the dogs of war," once had a meaning. In the middle ages dogs were sent out toward the enemy of the enemy with kettles of burning resin on their backs, the odor, smoke and flame of which naturally excited the horses. A stout jacket of leather underneath the kettle protected the dogs in case the hot resin was spilled.

A Gratified Ambition

By G. P. WILSON

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

EVER since I was a child I have always wanted some man to arrest my hand and say, "Foolish boy, that would be a good idea, and I have always wanted to be the center of attraction, the most talked of woman in the universe.

At first I dreamed of a big, curly-haired lover as handsome as a Greek god; but later years I haven't been so particular. Anything masculine will do. And I have given up the idea of being the most talked of woman in the world.

A month ago or so, I inherited an estate in Texas. An uncle of mine departed this life and left me all his worldly possessions, and my first impulse was to tell the glad news to every one. But that would be a commonplace way to announce my good fortune and I wanted to avoid the commonplace above all else.

So the next morning, when Sally Hults stopped at my millinery shop on her way to get the mail, I had a confidential chat with her.

"You and I have been friends for a long time, Sally," I began, "and I know you won't betray a confidence. I'm going to tell you something, but you must promise not to tell a soul."

"I'll never breathe a word of it," promised Sally, all excited.

"I've inherited an estate in Texas," I announced, dramatically. "Uncle Jasper left it to me."

"Huh," grunted Sally, plainly disappointed. "Thought you'd heard some good news."

Ten minutes after she'd gone, Hank Hawkins came in and tried to sell me an automobile on credit. After Hank came the deluge. Almost every one in town dropped in.

That night, while I was sitting on the porch of my modest little cottage, Judge Henderson stopped to see me. Naturally, I was thrilled.

"I am a man of few words, Miss Hults," he said. "I believe in coming to the point at once. You have reached the age when you should have the care and protection of a man, and I have come to the conclusion that I am the man to look after you."

"Oh, judge," I murmured breathlessly. "Wouldn't you like to come over to my house and be my wife?" he went on, putting his arm around me.

"I—I think I would," I stammered. "But I want to be made love to first. I've never been courted like all girls want to be. If you really want to win me, write love letters to me and every thing."

"That's all foolishness," he laughed, drawing me closer to him. "Is there any doubt about your uncle's estate going to you?" Inquired the judge, a note of apprehension in his voice.

"I'm the only living heir," I informed him and he brightened up perceptibly.

The next morning I received a letter from the judge; a regular love letter that thrilled me to the very bottom of my soul; I was a happy woman. The judge wrote me every night, gave me a diamond ring, more or less genuine, and acted the part of an infatuated swain.

For two weeks I lived an ideal existence, basking in the sunlight of the judge's affections, and then my circumstances changed. When the judge came to see me the next day I knew something was wrong. He greeted me with a chilly courtesy and remained standing instead of sitting in the porch, smiling with me.

"I didn't think a woman of your age would try to mislead an old man like me," he began, without even saying good evening. "I'm surprised."

"What do you mean?" I asked, feeling some surprised myself.

"You told me you were a rich woman," he growled. "Led me to believe that you had inherited a vast estate in Texas, knowing all the time that all you had was ten acres of Texas sand that's not worth a dime. I investigated and found out."

"I didn't tell you that I was wealthy," I remonstrated, about ready to cry. "You made love to me, won't you heart, and now you want to crush it because I'm not a rich woman. You were after dollars, not the love of a good woman. You're a loathsome cad and I hate you!"

"I'm sorry you feel that way about it," he declared. "It's all been a mistake. If you will give me back my ring it will be my first wife's and has been the engagement ring of all my other wives—I'll be going."

"I won't give anything back to you," I cried, as mad as I have ever been in my life. "And if you don't leave at once, I'll scratch your old eyes out."

He took me at my word and left hurriedly. As he left, romance passed out of my life and I realized that one of my ambitions would never be gratified. But I'm going to be the most talked of woman in my town. I'll say I am. My breach of promise suit against Judge Henderson will certainly do that for me.

Draws Sordid Sketch of London Slum Life

About nine o'clock the miserable little fish shops of London, which punctuate the obscure facades of the long tenement rows like big lamps, are crowded with women and children carrying dishes and baskets, writes Alfonso Paquet in the Frankfurter Zeitung.

Even as late as ten o'clock children play on the pavements and weary, dowdy women sit on the steps of their tiny, unlighted houses, whose windows glint vacant and dusty into the darkness. Women also gather in clusters on the street corners. Silhouettes of men stand out in front of brightly lighted soup and baked potato caravans. Candy stores and fruit shops, still open.

In the middle of a row of darkened windows electric lights shine brightly on the sordid, squalid, and unattractive interior. All these little details stand out sharp and ruthless, as they do in China.

Until eleven o'clock the corner pubs are packed with humanity. Each has three or more entrances leading to a little narrow room separated from the private bar by a light partition extending from the wall to the counter. The bartender with his barmaid's pretenses in the middle of this horseshoe counter, directing things in a fog of tobacco smoke and whiskey fumes.

Men stand as closely together on the slatted-covered floor as their half-drunken glasses on the wet, narrow ledge in front of them. Dirty hands empty again and again the pot of highly salted shrimps beside the door.

Yard Distance From Royal Nose to Thumb
More than eight hundred years ago there lived a king—an English king, one Henry, surnamed Beaucourt, Alexander Macleod relates in the Atlantic Monthly. Early in his reign grumpy-looking councilors declared that in their opinion it would be nice to have a measure of length called a yard; and this should be the distance between the tip of royal Henry's nose and the end of his royal thumb.

The king's nose, may have been large or small or tilted upward. Moreover, the distance may have been measured when the king's nose was swollen, for royal noses can hit a doorpost in the dark just like common noses. And the royal thumb may have been stubby or spatulate. Henry, too, might have playfully extended his fingers and wiggled them with his thumb not quite at, but very near, the end of his royal nose; or he might have wiggled eight fingers with the thumb of one hand touching the little finger of the other. Twirling his fingers thus he could delightfully convey to the court scientists who were conducting the royal triangulation just what he thought of them. But all this costs the dead was done and the Englishmen of the Twelfth century achieved a yard.

Dog Carried Danger Signal
A motorist who was driving through a small town in Canada one night was astonished to see a little red light dancing about close to the ground on the road ahead. As he drew nearer he saw that it was an electric bulb from a dry-cell battery fastened on the back of a little dog. The owner, a woman who was walking nearby, explained that the dog refused to stay off the streets at night, and that to keep him from being run over she had contrived the electric light, so to speak. No doubt the dog will soon become familiar with the rules of the road—will slow down and bark at all crossings, keep always on the proper side of the highway and never go more than 40 miles an hour except when he sees a cat ahead. Youth's Companion.

Stars in Southern Cross
The Southern cross is not a phenomenon. It is the popular name for a Southern constellation situated near the Antarctic circle, and therefore never visible in northern latitudes. It consists of four bright stars, to which fancy, aided by Christian associations, gives the cruciform shape. Two brilliant stars, which mark the summit and foot of the Southern cross, have nearly the same right ascension, the constellation, therefore, is almost vertical when passing the meridian, and these two stars act as pointers to the Antarctic pole.

Early Monopoly
Monopoly in America began in 1823, declares Edward MacMahon, an associate professor of history in the University of Washington. A cow was brought to a Pilgrim colony from England, Professor MacMahon said, and allotted to several families, including Capt. Miles Standish, a bachelor. Capt. Standish soon took control of the cow, share by share, and he and his relatives enjoyed an abundant supply of milk while neighbors went without, related the historian.

Peet Imported in 1855
The cotton boll weevil was originally Mexican, having been found around Monclova, state of Coahuila, Mex., where as early as 1856 to 1862 it did such damage to cotton that cotton growing there was abandoned. In 1885 the boll weevil crossed the Texas border into the United States. It encroached steadily from year to year until, in 1922, it infested practically the entire cotton-growing region of the United States. The only extensive uninfested territory lies in west and northwest Texas.

Unknown Plague

Authorities do not know definitely just what disease was referred to as the plague in Athens. According to the description by Thucydides, the plague ravaged Athens in the second year of the Peloponnesian war, 430 B. C. A large percentage of the population had taken refuge in the city and subsequently the number of deaths was great. The epidemic does not seem to have been the real oriental plague.

Keep Out the Sun

West windows are to be avoided for the afternoon sun is too strong for plants, and it does not seem to act favorably on even the most sun-loving plants, says Nature Magazine. If protection should be given the plants to reduce the amount of light and heat.

TO START NEW FARM

SCHOOL OF THE AIR

A new "school of the air" will offer a course of study to citizens of Michigan, as well as all other states of the middle west, when WKAR, the powerful Michigan Agricultural College station, goes on with regular farm courses after March 1.

The first of these courses will deal with agricultural engineering, covering everything from gas engines to household convenience equipment. It will start on Monday, March 2, and run for two weeks. The lectures, two of which are booked for each evening, will run from 7:15 until 8:00 o'clock, eastern time, from Monday through Friday, inclusive, of each week.

Following the agricultural engineering course, other special phases of agriculture will be covered in courses of similar length. The school will be kept up through the spring and early summer months, it is understood, with crops, dairying, gardening, and other subjects included. The radio farm school, the first of its kind ever attempted in this part of the country, is expected to prove of interest and value to the thousands of Michigan farmers who now own radio receiving sets. Additional thousands of city folk will also be interested in the gardening courses, and other general material to be sent in the school.

Registration for any of the courses can be made by any radio listener in the state. Those who register and complete the work of the course will be given official certificates, copies of the lectures, and other material to round out the courses of the school. The Director of Short Courses, M. A. C., East Lansing, will serve as registration officer for the radio courses.

Former Flapper Has New Role in Her Latest Picture, "So Big."

Colleen Moore has outgrown the sweetheart of her flapper days. She is playing mother to Ben Lyon, First National's youngest leading man in "So Big," playing at the Princess Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, February 25 and 26.

In "Painted Youth," young Ben was one of many in the love-life of the star, and in "Painted People" he was "the" one. But now that Colleen has emerged from flapper portrayals and has a role which ranges from young girlhood to motherhood, her screen affections for him become those of a mother for her son.

"So Big" is the most comprehensive dramatic effort Miss Moore has attempted to date. She is supported by a cast of celebrities which includes, besides Lyon, John Bowser, Sam De Grasse, Gladys Brockwell, Jean Hersholt, Ford Sterling, Dot Farley and Charlotte Marland.

Weather Experts to

Make Study of Ocean

The influence which the ocean has upon the weather is very great. The study of the waters of the oceans, declares Lieutenant Commander George E. Brandt of the United States navy, "will yield results worth millions of dollars to the agriculture and industry of the nation, because from this study we can get a better understanding of the weather, or, and will probably be able to predict the weather a year in advance, especially the periods of rainfall and drought and their duration."

Commander Brandt says that the waters of the ocean are a great reservoir for storing and distributing the heat which comes from solar radiation. During each hour of sunshine, more heat is being added to this great reservoir. This heat in turn is given off again by the ocean, influencing very materially the weather over land and sea. Observations made by the Smithsonian institution show that the radiation of the sun varies considerably from time to time. It is this variation, says Commander Brandt, which makes the study of weather so complicated. "Since the waters of the ocean act as an intermediate reservoir," he says, "the full effect of a change in solar radiation is not felt until some years after the change takes place."

Porcelain Has Long

Been Known to World

Porcelain factories and stores are mentioned in Arabian writing of the period of 800 A. D. The Arabian geographer, Mohammed-el-Idrisi, who lived in Sicily at the court of Roger II, published about 1154, a geographic work in which he told of the town of Djankou, where "Chinese glass" was made. He added that there was "no finer trade than that of a potmaker or a pot designer," according to the Detroit News. Toward the middle of the fourteenth century, the Italian, the Arabian traveler, described Chinese ceramic as the most beautiful in the world. The Chinese manufactured dishes and porcelain ware for a very long time.

Historical Record of

Use of "Poison Rings"

Throughout history the "ring of death" has played a dramatic part. At first it was designed as a means of quick and easy escape from a terrible fate, the horrors of the torture chamber or the disgrace of slavery to a hated enemy. Hannibal the Carthaginian general, turned to the poison contained in his ring when he was on the point of being given up to his enemies. The Athenian orator, Demosthenes, is said to have carried a similar ring, relates the Mentor Magazine.

Time brought about the invention of a new kind of ring of death, the poison ring, designed for the purpose of premeditated murder. The poison rings of the Borgias are famous in history. Some of them still exist, one bearing the date 1503 and the motto of Cesare Borgia. Beneath the bezel of this ring there is a sliding panel, and when this is displaced there appears a small suture where the poison was kept. Such rings simply afforded a ready supply of poison at need, but another type constituted a death-dealing weapon. The bezel was wrought in the shape of a lion, the hollow claws of the animal admitted the passage of a subtle poison through them, and it is conjectured that the death wound could have been inflicted by turning the bezel of the ring inward, so that a hearty grasp would produce a slight puncture in the victim's hand.

Siege Gun That Bored

The "Swamp Angel" was a turret gun, which was mounted on a platform, driven into a swampy, outside Charles, S. C., during the siege of that city by Federal troops. It blew up an Angel.
