All men do not think alike. If they did there would be little progress in this world. But all can test the opinions of others fairly, weigh them justly, and give due credit. Then there will be progress in which all may participate.—Grit.

ELABORATE PLANS MARK SCREW COMPANY PROGRAM

Address by Detroit Speaker, Music and Dance Will Feature Evening's Entertainment.

Final arrangements are being made today for the community banquet and social affair which will be held in the newly-completed addition to the plant of the Chelsea Screw company on Monday evening. Almost three hundred persons will be seated at the banquet tables at seven o'clock when a sumptuous supper will be served by ladies of the Methodist church. Guests will include employees of the Screw company, their ladies and business men of Chelsea and their ladies.

Mr. O'Meara, in charge of industrial relations of the Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record, Detroit, will deliver the address of the evening. Mr. O'Meara has spoken in Chelsea on a previous occasion and proved himself a real entertainer as well as an instructor. His appearance before the banquet crowd will be eagerly awaited.

Vocal music will be furnished by a soloist from Detroit. A special number has also been secured in the form of a fancy dancing act which will be given by Geo. C. Payne and Miss Kathleen London of Ann Arbor, specialists in the terpsichorean art who will demonstrate their skill for the entertainment of guests Monday evening.

Following the banquet and entertainment an inspection tour of the plant will be made, during which time a portion of the machinery will be in operation, affording an opportunity to get an insight into activities of the factory every day of the week. Souvenirs will be given each one.

Immediately following the inspection tour the spacious factory floor will be cleared and, to the tunes of Wolcott's 5-piece orchestra, both old and modern dances will be enjoyed as long as anyone cares to participate. This feature is expected to prove quite popular in view of the fact that the floor will be in first class condition for dancing purposes.

Staging of the banquet and social affair, which promises to be one of the outstanding social affairs of the year, comes as a celebration and completion of a fine new annex to the factory of the company which greatly increases floor space of the concern and, upon arrival of machinery which has been purchased and is on the way to Chelsea, manufacturing facilities of the company will have been developed to much greater capacity than has been possible heretofore. The main building of the addition is 40x142 feet and it is in this spacious room the banquet and after affair will be held. In addition there are two connecting rooms which lead from the main plant to the one recently erected. These rooms are 36x38 and 36x40 respectively, while in between is the furnace room and coal supply bins, the whole being under roof, adequately heated and lighted so that ideal working conditions are made possible for an ever increasing pay roll.

Every department of both church and Sunday school is being organized in the new church. The official board will meet every Monday evening for transaction of business which, may arise.

Solicitation for funds with which to erect a church building will shortly be made. Five thousand dollars will be required and cards with various amounts have been distributed among church members. Of this amount, $200 will be contributed by the general church and it is hoped a favorable attitude will be encountered among local folks.

Following the meeting Friday evening, Bishop Hankins will leave for Bay City where further work of the church will have his attention.

Four of the respondents whose cases are included in the list were acquitted; two cases were nolle prossed, two defendants were discharged on examination and 26 cases came under the classification of "settlements, escapes and so forth."

RADIO ENTHUSIASTS HERE FAIL TO PICK UP EUROPE

Squeals and Squawks Greet Fans During Hour When European Stations Broadcast to America.

While none have been able to identify location of European stations, a number of radio enthusiasts in and about Chelsea have picked up music and voices from the air between the hours of eleven and twelve p. m. this week, according to reports made to the Standard. During this hour American stations have remained quiet so that listeners in might have an opportunity to try their luck or skill in locating the European broadcasts. For the most part shrieks and squeals have greeted fans and furnished a full hour of entertainment until American stations again came on the air at twelve, midnight.

One person has reported receiving a station from South America, Ezra Heipinger on Sunday night picked up a station broadcasting from Argentina and clearly understood the call letters of the station.

While no one has been able to offer a known solution to the failure of reception of European stations, it is accepted generally that the last few weeks have seen very few good "radio nights". However the latest "radio wreckers" to be advanced from scientific circles is made in a statement by R. C. Thierrien, an electrical engineer of Chicago, in which he declares moonlight to be an adverse circumstance when it comes to sending radio waves through the ether. The report covers a test extending over a period of eighteen months and is considered authentic since it comes from a man prominent in electrical engineering. He said it will be noted that there are moonlight nights, a fact which might account for some of the failure to properly receive the stations from across the Atlantic.

OBSERVE BIRTHDAYS OF SIX RELATIVES SUNDAY

To observe the birthdays of six relatives, which all occurred in January, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hilsinger, Ginnett street, Jackson, on Sunday entertained 20 relatives and friends at a dinner party.

The table decorations were in red and white. The centerpiece was a large birthday cake with many lighted candles. Flanking this were candles in the prevailing color note in crystal sticks. Nut baskets in red and valentine place cards marked each guest's place.

Following the serving of dinner an original program entitled, "Birthday Anniversaries" was read by Miss Lillie Wackenhut. She then presented each guest of honor with a small remembrance.

Guests from away besides the guests of honor were: Herman Pedewel, Ann Arbor; Mrs. Conrad Lehman, Miss Lillie Wackenhut and Mrs. Rose Kappler and family of Chelsea; Mrs. Irvin Steffe of Ypsilanti; Jackson Citizen-Patriot. Mrs. Hilsinger is a daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Wackenhut.

Derivation of Names of Parts of Church

When you enter a place of worship, you first pass through the porch, and then proceed to an aisle, or usually take a seat in the nave, or in the chancel.

Porch, aisle, chancel, and nave are all queer words. Some have been built up just anyhow; others are derived from the Latin, and twisted weirdly in the process.

"Porch," for instance, is the word, child, just recognizable, of the Latin "porta," a gate. Why "ch" pushed "ta" out of it, one cannot say.

"Aisle"—this schoolboy who called this word a "wicked speller" was quite right!—is what our Baxon forebears made of "ala," a wing. An aisle, of course, is a "wing" of a church.

"Chancel" is really the "canceled" or shut-off part of a church, and its word-parent is "cancelli," meaning "lattice work."

The connection—or the excuse for the word, "chancel"—lies in the fact that carved screens, or lattice work, generally divided the east end of a church from the other parts.

"Nave" is from the Latin "navis," a ship. A church in a religious sense is an ark. So—"nave!"

Found Famous Writer Had Been Before Him

The monument to Guy De Maupassant at Miremont, Norway, recalls a story illustrating how easily unconscious literary plagiarism may be committed.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle once told a friend that, traveling in Switzerland, he came upon an inn isolated in the mountains for four months in every year. By the time he had reached the plain below he had mapped out in his mind a story in which two enemies were to be shut up in the inn for four months of isolation. At the first railway bookstall he came to one of De Maupassant's books caught his eye. He bought it and, turning to the first page, "L'Assommoir" appeared as the heading of the story. The "Assommoir" was his identical inn, the story was of two enemies shut up there during the winter, and the denouement the same as he had imagined.

Exhume Theory of Death

The Exhume theory of death is peculiar to Christian eyes, and has resulted in many tragedies. It was believed that a man had two souls, one good, one evil. When he died the good soul expected to spend eternity in bliss and comfort in a warm place underground. His bad soul was supposed to ramble on the spot where the body died, a lasting, harmful influence over those who were luckless enough to encounter it. When a person became ill the medicine men were sent for. Almost always he pronounced the case hopeless. The invalid was then taken out of the house and placed on the snow to perish. It was a logical proceeding, for if he died indoors the ghost would have to be abandoned and sealed up forever.

Collecting Debts in 1647

Old residents of England had their own methods for enforcing payment where the customer was not interested in meeting the obligation. One old method in use in 1647 was a debtor's chair, that would be placed in the office of the man to whom the debt was due. The debtor was invited to enter and, when seated in the chair, a trigger was released that clamped iron hoops about the knees of the debtor and held him helpless while the other man negotiated a settlement, and the use of the chair in enforcing payment was entirely legal and in general use. Ohio State Journal.

First Use of Spectacles

Spectacles are of French origin. The proof of this, which is the kind that ought to be acceptable on the subject, lies in the fact that the oldest known portrait wherein spectacles appear is that of Cardinal Hugues de Provence, painted by one Thomas of Modena, which represents the prelate with the w. k. globes in front of his eyes. The fresco in the church of Saint Nicolas at Treviso, of which the portrait forms a part is dated 1362. There is, it appears, in the national library at Paris an illuminated manuscript dated 1380, which shows St. Paul wearing spectacles. One would like to know where St. Paul got the idea. He was a great traveler.

Not So Aristocratic

"How many people know that the goldfish, supposed to be the embodiment of everything placidly aristocratic, is nothing but a lowly member of the carp family?" asked the proprietor of a bird and animal store. "It's the truth. Some species of goldfish will grow to six or eight inches in length. These big goldfish betray their antecedents by their coarse scales. In other words, they look like carp."—Detroit News.

Little Known of Aesop

Aesop lived during the latter half of the sixth century. The exact date of birth is unknown. He was a Phrygian; not a negro. Phrygia was a country of Asia Minor. Under the Roman empire, it was bounded on the west by Mysia, Lydia and Caria, on the south by Lydia and Phrygia, on the north by Bithynia and were probably a branch of the Thracian family.

JAY G. PRAY, ...

"But, why, Miss-Suzzy?" asked the smaller boy.

"Well, you see, Jesus," she said, "when discovering David, came upon him, to serve him. Who took his order for lamb chops, creamed potatoes, a salad, and apricot tart with whipped cream and coffee, and the boys listened with huge eyes. When he disappeared behind a blue screen, the oldest boy, Fred, rushed to the front and spoke through the door. 'A group of half grown, indignant boys, dressed in blue suits and Nothing' but chrome wheels, said unceremoniously: 'I'm going to have a pound of it and eat all the Shucks!' He closed the door and tipped to his waiter."

"What's-up?" asked David pleasantly. "Why are you on the blacklist?"

Fred wriggled, but garrulous James pressed for an opportunity to inform you. You see we fellows all got to know each other in the old days. I don't see how we can let you eat here at Miss Wrenton's, we've always done it there, same as the fellows, big ones like Fred, and me, we stole Miss Suzzys's signboard away. It had a gay bandbox and that was the name of this place, see? 'N the fellows thought it would be funny to steal the sign and have it painted with the name of the place, the Cheesecake Shop. So they did it. So the fellows and she won't give us anything but 'cheese, Notin' else if we're starving,' says James woefully.
 "And our folks think it's a joke on us, baked Fred's deopor, voice David, drawing at Suzy Tryon with interest in her firm decisive standing against the outlaw boys, as he said

"I'm sure, Fred," he said to the boy who was greedily consuming a slice of cheese, with one eye on the door, "I'm sure that the proprietor has not yet been banished. 'Would you fellows like to please Miss Tryon and show her we're sorry you stole her sign?' 'We're sure would,' muttered Fred hopefully. 'We must eat at noon.' 'Why don't you save up your pocket money, all put it together, and buy the sign down and have a matter like a lovely handbox out of it?' 'I'll be back and come and see it,' said Miss Tryon, then she turned and looked at Fred. 'I'm sure it will be all right.' The boys rushed from the place and David followed slowly. The next time he came to Downing, David went straight to the Bandbox shoe shop, dainty and cool, and in a twinkling, Miss Tryon was alone there, and again she came to serve him. "The boys told me," she said with a lovely pink color in her cheeks, about what you advised them to do. And now we good friends again, and now we do some drafting hat-swings over my door again." "It is pretty," admitted David, and he saw through Suzy's eyes that he was like those frivolous little names. And that it all made for gaiety and good humor and good digestion. At that moment two words passed out of David's vocabulary forever. Afterward, he might have just mentioned them to Suzy, his wife.

"Chaff and Twister," he confessed.

"What a cunning name for a tea shop," laughed Suzy.

Banish Worry

Waterproofing Paper

The most important thing in the making of waterproof paper is the proper choice of the sheet. The highest papers are now made from wood and also of cotton. The process of pulping, process being used or the latter. The wood or other raw material must be long fibered and tough to start with. Waterproofing is accomplished by the use of sizing agents, such as resins, water glass or caseins and paraffin. One type of water- and grease-proof paper is made from gumming sheets of paper made from sulphite pulp in strong sulphuric acid. The action of the acids causes the fibers to harden and render them transparent as well as resistant to moisture and grease. The strength, however, is not increased by this process.

Smart

Freddie was sobbing bitterly in the road, and the kind-hearted old gentleman stopped to ascertain the cause of the trouble.

"What's the matter, my little man?" he asked.

"I've—I've lost my new ball," sobbed the youngster, "and I've no money to buy another."

"Never mind," said the old gentleman; "there's a shilling to go and buy me one." And out came a bright shilling which Freddie promptly pocketed.

"Where did you lose your ball, sonny?" he inquired, as an after-thought.

"I went through your dining-room window," said Freddie, as he disappeared round the corner.

Little Energy in Talking

The speech energy of the human voice amounts to very little in the way of power. It is only 125 ergs a second, or almost infinitesimally small amount of power. Consonant letters require the most amount of energy. The initial or frequency of a vowel sound is much higher for consonant sounds, than the vowels, however. An arg is the work done when a body moves one centimeter in the direction in which it is urged by a force of one dyne, and a dyne is a force which when acting for a mass of one gram for one second will change its velocity by one centimeter per second.

Age of Jesus

There is not sufficient evidence in the Bible to determine the exact age of Jesus at the time of his death. In Luke 3:23 it says: "And Jesus himself began to be about thirty years of age." This was when he began his ministry, after he had been baptized by the Jordan by John the Baptist. But the duration of the ministry of Jesus is not precisely stated in the Scripture. The Rabbis have estimated that about three years. This would make thirty-three years of age at the time of the crucifixion. There is no direct historical data on the subject.—

Whence Cocoa Comes

The cocoa plant is now grown in many of the tropics and subtropics of the world. It is one of the most important of the tropical belt, and another important one, because of its consumption, in one form or another, by all the peoples of the world. It is an evergreen, and is equal in value to a well-grown apple tree. The pods are about six inches long, grow out of the trunk, and are red, yellow, black and purple, according to the season. There are twenty or thirty pale red grooves inside each pod, embedded in soft white pulp. Cocoa groves, as they are called, are planted in rows. They are never ploughed solely with cocoa trees. Although it grows best in hot countries, it is delicate, and has to be protected from the sun, and from frost. It is not so hardy as the plants in the temperate zone. Some of them grow to a great height, and have a tufted head like stretches surround. These protective trees are called "Cocco madre," a "cocoa-mother."

Squirrel's "L"

A telephone wire might be termed a public highway, but rather a highway of speech than one for transportation.

However, this fact does not seem to be generally known, at least not among our ardent friends. From Wilmington, Del., comes the story of a squirrel that travels a mile every day by telephone wire for its meals, crawling all the distance along the wires from Williamstown, a grocer, some little time ago coaxed the squirrel down from a telephone pole by offering it nuts, and since then, the squirrel has made its appearance every day. On

O, Ye of Little Faith!
Science destroys old poetic ideas, but it implants them with a more imaginative view of new poetry. It has given us the globular world spinning on an axle and revolving about a sun which is rushing through space at more than a million a second. For a sky that was solid, it has given us a great sea of space extending to infinity, in which the stars are not lamps but great glowing bodies, some some of them a hundred million times the size of our sun. And our own little earth is shown by science to be full of magical chemical and biological processes. In truth the world we already made known to man was were quite as wonderful as eternal life.

When a Leaf Falls

I would like very much to find a word or sound which would bring to mind the fall of a leaf upon leaves. I know it perfectly—the generic timber—the composite echo etched into my mind by a thousand conscious listenings. But it will not get past my consciousness to my lips, and utterly refuses to descend my arm and pen.—William Beebe.

Testing Gold

The ordinary and simplest method of testing gold consists in touching the metal with a glass stopper wetted with nitric acid. This will leave gold untouched, while base alloys will take a blue color from the formation of nitrate of copper. It's a better idea, though, to take the piece to a jeweler and have him tell you whether it is pure.

Decidedly Risky

"Our family doctor is going to marry the woman physician in the next block."

"That's too bad. Doctors are often disagreeable."

City of Baltimore

to the north on the southeastern shore of Newfoundland is a little village called Ferryland, says a writer in the Baltimore Sun. This small, windswept town of some seven hundred inhabitants is in a way the mother of a buxom, prosperous daughter to the south, the city of Baltimore.

In 1639 George Calvert, Lord Baltimore, arrived in North America with a charter which gave him most of the island of Newfoundland, called the province of Avalon. He founded his first colony in the new country on the site of this village of Ferryland and settled there with his family.

But finding the climate more rigorous than he thought comfortable, he asked Charles I for a grant of land north of the Potomac river and planned to move to warmer regions. His request was granted, but before the final negotiations were completed he died.

His son, Cecilius Calvert, second baron of Baltimore, completed the transaction in 1632 and named his colony Maryland in compliment to the queen, Henrietta Maria.

And so it was that Ferryland was left to struggle with the bleak winds blowing off the rugged coast where it clung up on the hillside. But though small, it was wiry, and today it still is alive, not a great deal larger than it was in the days of its early youth several hundred years ago, but still sound and hearty.

English Trade-Marks Many Centuries Old

English legislation tending toward the authorization of trade-marks began in 1283. In that year parliament provided that "every baker shall have a mark of his own for every sort of bread." This was followed in 1383 by Edward III's provision that every master goldsmith have a mark.

Under Henry V appears an ordinance for marking barrels; and one of these early signs, dating back to 1420, is still used by the London Coopers company. By 1488—Renaissance times—writing of his investigations throughout the kingdom, reported Chester to be full of merchant marks. And shortly thereafter the practice became the institution.

Many of the present British companies hold devices dating back to the Seventeenth century.—Exchange.

FORD INCREASES

The Ford Motor company divisions, produced a total of 1,775,245 cars, trucks, and airplanes during 1923, according to figures just given out at the general offices of the Ford Motor company. Exclusive of airplanes, which is a new industry with the company, this is an increase of 20,033 automotive units over 1922.

In the production of Ford cars and trucks during the year, domestic plants in the United States assembled 1,775,245. Foreign plants of the company produced 139,401 cars and trucks and the output of the Ford Motor company of Canada, Ltd., totaled 79,289. Fordson tractor production was 104,108 and the Lincoln division of the company produced during the year a total of 8,416 Lincoln cars. In the newest division of the company, the airplane factory, the output was ton all-metal planes since the factory was acquired by the company on August 1, 1925.

The remarkable output of Ford cars and trucks was reached in spite of the fact that for a period of more than thirty days during August and September domestic production was almost negligible due to the introduction of the improved types. The same condition prevailed later on in the foreign assembly plants as the change to the improved cars were made in these places, some of which are just getting into appreciable production with the improved types.

False Alarm

In 1750 a fanatic predicted an earthquake in London, and thousands of people spent several nights in tents in Hyde park and other open spaces. Special prayers were said and a number of sermons were preached on the coming "disaster," but nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

Worth-While Evolution

"If a man his change, hisse't foun a loofer into a decent citizen," said Uncle Eben, "dat's all de evolution I axes to see."—Washington Star.
