TRUSTWORTHY TRUSSES

Combine the Vital
Values of Highest Quality and Perfect Fit

Experience is an important factor in handling trusses. It counts both in the selection of stock and in the fitting. This experience we have had. While it adds much to the value of a truss, it adds nothing to the cost. We solicit inspection of our stock at any time by those in need of trusses.

Whenever one of these modern appliances is required, we guarantee a perfect fit, and satisfaction in every way.

ELABORATE PROGRAM MARKS KIWANIS LADIES' NIGHT

WGHP Artists and Dr. Chester B. Emerson, Detroit, Principal Features; Dancing Last Event of Evening

Opening with a splendid banquet served by members of the school faculty and high school, under the supervision of Supt. E. L. Clark, and closing with a dancing program at the midnight hour, Chelsea Kiwanians entertained at an inter-city Ladies Night affair at the public school auditorium on Monday evening. Kiwanians and their ladies were present from Jackson, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti.

With decorations said to be the most elaborate ever attempted by a local organization, guests were seated amid a colorful scheme of green and white appropriate to the St. Patrick's day just passed. Streamers of green and white were draped from a light in the center of the ceiling to balcony, and each of the powerful lights at the ceiling were beautifully draped with similar effect. Suspended from the center light was a green silk umbrella, arranged to represent a parachute with basket attached, in which two negro dolls rested, holding from the side of the basket a card on which was inscribed "Welcome to Chelsea." Cut flowers of roses and carnations graced the tables, and together with glass favors of green paper flowers, green bottles and green balloons, all containing whistles, added a touch of beauty to the hilarity of the evening. Green balloons were also suspended from the balcony railings.

On the entertainment program were "Puddin' and Peedie," who played and sang old time melodies, both comic and sentimental, in costume; during the first part of their appearance and during the latter part more modern selections, many of them familiar to listeners in WGHP, Detroit, were given. This is the second appearance of these artists in Chelsea, and both times they have met with hearty reception and widespread approval. Dr. Chester B. Emerson, pastor of North Woodward Congregational church, Detroit, delivered the address of the evening, and for more than thirty minutes entertained his audience with an instructive discourse on the happiness of mankind and how to acquire it. Interspersed with the more serious side of the talk were humorous incidents which furnished the necessary spice. Dr. Emerson is one of Detroit's foremost ministers and the local club felt fortunate in being able to secure him for Monday evening.

Officers of the state organization of Kiwanis were present in the persons of Lewis C. Roimann, Ann Arbor, governor of the Michigan district; H. Merton Clarke, Lansing, secretary-treasurer of the state; and Archie N. Case, Jackson, lieutenant governor of the fifth district of Kiwanis.

Following the program guests danced until midnight, Shadford's orchestra of Ann Arbor, furnishing the music.

R. E. KALMBACH TAKES
LANSING BEAUTY AS BRIDE

Dr. R. E. Kalmbach, of Lansing, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kalmbach of Chelsea, on Saturday was united in matrimony to Josephine Vriesenga, of Lansing. Miss Vriesenga represented Lansing at the Atlantic City beauty pageant last summer. In a story of the wedding published Saturday, March 19, the Lansing Capital News says:

Wedding bells rang out Saturday for Miss Lansing. Josephine Vriesenga, who last summer under the name of "Joyce Jean Hurd," won the honor of representing Lansing in the Atlantic City beauty pageant, and was among the five finalists for the "Miss America" laurels, became the bride of Dr. R. E. Kalmbach at 11 a. m.

The ceremony was performed at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Vriesenga, in Grand Rapids. The bride is 20 years old. Her husband was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1925. He is a physician with offices in the American State Savings bank building. Their romance began shortly after Miss Vriesenga was awarded Lansing's beauty crown and returned with high honors from the Atlantic City boardwalk in September.

The marriage vows were spoken before an improvised altar flanked on either side with palms and ferns in the living room of her parents' home.

The bride was attired in a gown of Queen Blue crepe, of which the only trimming was a silver ornament at the belt. She wore a small hat of Queen Blue crepe to match, with a rhinestone buckle and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids, tied in lover's knots of silver ribbon.

Miss Vriesenga chose as her bridesmaid, Miss Lucille Sheets, who wore a frock of bisque georgette and a large hat to match. Her corsage was of violets and butterfly roses.

Dr. Kalmbach was attended by his brother, L. J. Kalmbach of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Following the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Herman Koelsma of Grand Rapids, Miss Helen Brown sang "I Love You Truly." A wedding breakfast was served in the Hotel Pontilind, after which Dr. and Mrs. Kalmbach left for a short wedding trip. They will be at home in Lansing at 214 Pine street.

DR. JAMES THOMAS, DETROIT, DELIVERED INSPIRING TALK

Before the Methodist Fellowship club, members and friends of the church, meeting at the church on last Thursday evening, Dr. James Thomas, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist church, Detroit, delivered an inspiring address, speaking mainly in the interest of the young folks of the church. More than two hundred persons were present at the meeting, which opened with a scrub lunch supper at 7 o'clock followed by a program of music and speaking.

Musical comedy was furnished by members of the high school ukelele club, assisted by Austin Falk and Jack Weber, who appeared in a number of character sketches. Mrs. A. A. Palmer sang two solo numbers after which followed the address of Dr. Thomas.

REV. AND MRS. SUTHERLAND WILL MOVE TO DURAND

Rev. E. L. Sutherland on Sunday preached his opening sermons on a new charge which he has accepted in the Congregational churches of Durand and Vernon, Mich. Rev. Sutherland is a former pastor of the Congregational church. During the past year since his resignation from the local pulpit he has continued his residence in Chelsea, and has successfully carried on extension work for the Clear Business College, Ypsilanti, has filled numerous Congregational pulpits in Detroit and elsewhere. Selection of the Durand and Vernon charge comes only after mature deliberation and consideration of several openings about the state, one being a call to Port Huron.

Present plans of the minister and wife include removal to Durand some time in April after roads are settled. Their many friends regret to lose them as neighbors but extend their best wishes for success in the new field of endeavor.

CORN BORER MEETING WILL BE HELD HERE MARCH 31

A public meeting at which time definite information with regard to clean-up methods and the quarantine regulations, their enforcement, penalties, etc., will be discussed, will be held at the Sylvan town hall on Thursday evening, March 31, at 7:30. Moving pictures will be shown giving the life history and control methods recommended for eradicating this menace.

The meeting will be attended by Mr. Marston of the Corn Borer Experiment Station, Monroe.

WILL GIVE PRIZE FOR BEST FAIR BOOK COVER

Washtenaw County Fair officials are offering a prize of ten dollars in gold to the public or high school student in Washtenaw county who designs the most appropriate cover for the 1927 fair premium book and program.

Regulations which will be forwarded to all county schools about March 21st, briefly are:

The designs shall be the original work of the student submitting it. Not more than two colors of ink used with no blending. Copy must reach Washtenaw county fair office not later than April 20th.

It is suggested that the design represent as far as possible the agricultural and industrial activities of Washtenaw county.

COUNTY ROAD COMMISSION STARTS CONDEMNATION SUIT

Condemnation proceedings by which the county road commission desires to obtain three-tenths of an acre of land for use in the construction of the new Pleasant Lake road have been started by this county body against George Klager, Lodi township, through its attorneys, Cavanaugh & Burke.

Judge George W. Sample has signed an order for hearing in the matter April 11 at which time the court will appoint three disinterested persons as commissioners to determine the necessity of improving the highway and appraise the damage.

In their bill against the defendant, the commissioners state that this parcel of land is needed in the construction of the new road which will run between the Saline and Manchester roads. The parcel is desired to round off a sharp curve in the highway where it intersects the Saline road.

The commissioners, the bill states, have been unable to agree with Mr. Klager on the price for the property. The parcel of land, according to the commission, is the only one among several purchased for the road that it has had difficulty in obtaining.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL CARRIES LARGE CANDY SHIPMENT

Largest shipment of confectionery ever consigned to any city in the world left Chicago March 16, via the Michigan Central railroad for New York city. This special train, consisting of 2,121,600 "Baby Ruth" candy bars, weighing approximately 400,000 pounds, is the second trainload shipped by the Curtiss Candy Company of Chicago to New York city, and the sixth to various sections of the United States during the past several weeks. Three of these shipments went to the Pacific Coast and one to points in the South.

These record movements are a part of thirty-two trainload shipments to be moved by the company to all parts of the country within a period of sixty days, according to J. Y. Schuering,

MEMBERS OF POTATO CLUB WILL BE GIVEN BANQUET

Boys and Dads Will Attend Banquet at Congregational Church Monday Evening; E. Lansing Man Will Speak.

Dean John Phelan, of the Michigan State College, will be the principal speaker at the joint meeting of the Chelsea Kiwanis club with their 4-H Potato club members, Monday evening, March 28, at the Congregational church. It will be the formal inauguration of the plan whereby each Kiwanian will join a farm boy, or girl, as a partner in the potato club. The senior partner, as the Kiwanian will be called, will pledge himself to sign the Junior partner's, namely the boy's or girl's note, at the bank, for his, or her, certified seed potatoes. He will also agree to visit the potato plot at least once each month, will attend an occasional meeting of the potato club that the junior partner is a member of, and will sponsor a potato show and banquet for his junior partner in the fall. Forty young farmers, and one of their parents, will be invited to attend the rally next Monday night. The Kiwanis club members, and County Club Agent Hagen have called at all of the schools in the Chelsea trading area where the plan has been discussed, and application for membership blanks have been left. The Agricultural committee of the Kiwanis club, composed of Paul G. Schaible, J. N. Strieter, and Carl Mayer, met Monday morning to pass on the applications. Forty of the applicants have been sent invitations to attend the banquet next Monday night with one of their parents.

Dean Phelan's address will be the feature number on the program. Other numbers will be remarks and final plans by Kiwanians, Community singing, and the showing of a 4-H club motion picture called "A Crop Worth Saving."

Messrs. Boyd, Strieter, Schaible, L. P. Vogel, Staffan, and Lehman, of the Chelsea Kiwanis club, have called on a total of 24 schools in the Chelsea trading area in the interest of their potato club work.

ST. MARY'S RESERVES PLAY 102 GAMES IN SEVEN YEARS

With some of the old-time passing game in evidence—passing which left their opponents bewildered and helpless—St. Mary's Reserves on Sunday afternoon won a fast game from the Detroit Heraults at St. Mary's gym. The Reserves, composed of players who have played together for the past seven years, have played 102 games during the seven years, losing only seven games—four in Detroit, two in Jackson, and one in Hillsdale. During the past two years the Reserves have played only one game each year. Two state championships have been won in their class, two Catholic high school championships have also been won.

The game Sunday afternoon ended 34 to 45 in favor of the local team. The line-up was: Madden, rf; Paul Hoffman, lf; Phil Hoffman, c; E. Eder, rg; J. Eder, lg. Substitutions: M. Hoffman for Paul Hoffman, Paul Hoffman for J. Eder. Points were made as follows: Field goals: Madden 6, Paul Hoffman 4, M. Hoffman 4, Phil Hoffman 4, E. Eder 1, J. Eder 1. Fouls: M. Hoffman 1, Phil Hoffman 2, E. Eder 2.

WGHP BROADCASTING LENTEN SERVICES FROM DETROIT

Many people in Chelsea and vicinity are taking advantage of the broadcasting of Lenten services by WGHP, Detroit, during the noon hour. The services, which are being held at Keith's Temple Theatre under auspices of the Detroit Council of Churches, are being broadcast daily except Saturday and Sunday, up to and including Good Friday, starting at 12 o'clock, noon, and dismissing at 1 o'clock.

Many of the country's most prominent clergy are appearing on these daily programs, such ministers as Bishop Edwin O. Hughes, of the Chicago area of the Methodist church, S. Parkes Cadman, of the Central Park Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., having already preached to large crowds at the theatre and still larger unseen audiences. During two days of Dr. Cadman's schedule there, Dr. Chester B. Emerson of Detroit, filled the theatre pulpit because of illness of the Brooklyn minister.

This week George Sherwood Eddy, world leader in Y. M. C. A. and religious work, is the speaker at these services, and many folks who have never before had the pleasure of listening to Mr. Eddy are enjoying his messages over the radio.

Holding of Lenten services in Detroit theatres is not a new idea, but broadcasting of these services is a new and expensive venture for the council of churches there, and one that is being thoroughly appreciated by the radio audience.

president. The two shipments to New York City totaled 4,121,600 candy bars, enough to give every man, woman and child in the Eastern metropolis two-thirds of a bar each.

YOUTHFUL BABE RUTHS

Where two or three boys are gathered together there is the start of a ball game. It matters not that an alley, a street, backyard, is all that is available. The rules are adjusted to suit the conditions. The American boy holds a master's degree in accommodating himself to circumstances.

Observation is convincing that there is as much fun to be had in playing an alley game interrupted frequently by passing trucks and with improvised equipment as under conditions where there is more room and nothing to interfere with the progress of the game. If a mitt salvaged from a rubbish heap is not the prized possession of some boy something else can be made to supply the deficiency for no self-respecting boy would try to play ball without giving at least an imitation of possessing a mitt. And games of this character are thoroughly democratic. There is no shabbiness, no race prejudice. Boys of a half-dozen shades of color may participate but all are Americans because they are devoted to the national game.

One who observes the efforts of small boys in playing ball amid such restricted surroundings cannot repress a regret that better facilities for play are not afforded. Yet those who make the best of what they have are learning a valuable lesson, though they may not be aware of it. The small boy who is able to play in the confines of an alley and get a lot of fun out of it is imbibing instruction in the philosophy of getting something out of life wherever life finds him. He should have a better place to play but wider space might make less demand on his ingenuity. Thus there are lessons to be learned in cramped quarters for the boy who is alert.

And the right kind of a boy who learns to make the best of an alley will be the kind who will make the most of his circumstances in later life and he is not likely to be satisfied with an alley when he gets old enough to work for himself in the more serious game of life.

DO YOUR SHOPPING NOW!

There are many things which December and April do not have in common, weather being the first point on which they differ, but there is one bit of good advice which can be accepted without question either in December or April. This message of pure wisdom is: "Do your shopping early."

The buying public has learned from sad experience that Chelsea stores do not emulate the traditional "general store" in buying stocks in the lump for the next five years. Parodying that bromide, "The early bird catches the worm," it can be said with truthfulness that "The early shopper catches the prize of the shops." If you don't buy early you take what the other shoppers have refused.

Spring and summer buying is limited chiefly to wearing apparel, household needs and the implements of out of doors life. At this time of the year the mind of every man, woman and child turns to the thought of light and colorful raiment, to furnishings which will lend a cool summery atmosphere to the city home and to the multitude of accessories to summer play. Our merchants recognize this seasonal demand and provide amply for it, but it is manifest that the wide choice of the new stocks can not be maintained to the end of the season.

Many people defer their summer buying until the passing of spring. Others advance their seasonal buying a few weeks and give themselves the privilege of leisurely shopping and wide choice. The late shopper saves no money and loses that enviable satisfaction given only to the early shopper.

The summer stocks are fresh on the counters. The very first choices are already being made. He and she who hesitate will lose. Shop early for summer as well as for Christmas.

An open mind is all right if you know when to close your mouth.

There are many persons who have schemes for helping themselves any other way than by working.

Looking down on others doesn't place you above them.

You can do it better in the Gas Oven

Much has been said in the last few years about oven-cooking, its convenience and economy. Here are the real reasons why you should let a good gas oven shoulder more of your kitchen work.

The heat of the gas oven can be perfectly regulated for any type of cooking.

The cheaper cuts of meat can be made tender and delicious by oven cooking.

An entire meal may be cooked at one time—a real economy in the gas bills.

Oven-cooking is the most satisfactory means of using up left-overs preparing them in a palatable, appetizing way.

The gas oven with heat regulator relieves the housewife of "pot-watching"—saves her time and energy.

Oven-cooking with the regulator is not only saving of gas but is also saving of food; rarely is anything overcooked.

Sunday school at 11:15.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL. Walter Firth, Pastor.

We shall continue our Lenten meditations next Sunday by an Lenten message appropriate to the season. Let everyone be in their place in a spirit of prayer.

Chapter six of "Young Islam on Trek" will be discussed in the League next Sunday evening by Miss Dorothea Steiner. Let every Leaguer be present.

Instead of the usual preaching service next Sunday evening, we shall unite in the union service at the Congregational church in the interests of the prohibition cause. A five-reel motion picture entitled "Lest We Forget" is to be presented by Dr. G. W. Morrow, representative of the Anti-Saloon League. This wonderful picture is based upon a story of real life, and sets forth the evils of the liquor traffic in a very impressive way. It has wherever it has been presented, and everybody should see it, especially the young people. Dr. Morrow is one of the best-posted men of the prohibition movement, and he should be heard in his lecture in connection with the above picture. We look for a full house. Commence promptly at 7:30.

Tangle Party. Shake out all the kinks, untangle your feet, and come to our tangle party. Don't get all tangled up about the date. It's to happen next Tuesday evening, March 29th. M. E. parsonage. Scrub lunch at 7 p.m. Bring dishes. We look for every Leaguer present.

NIECE OF CHELSEA RESIDENTS DECLARED MUSICAL PRODIGY

Miss Elizabeth Gerard, of Dallas, Texas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Gerard, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Jabez Bacon of Chelsea, has been declared a vocal prodigy by the director of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, according to a clipping received by Mr. and Mrs. Bacon, from the Dallas News of Sunday, March 13. The paper says:

A 17-year-old Dallas girl was granted an audition by Giorgio Polacco, general musical director of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and emerged from the ordeal with a statement from the noted maestro that her voice is "one in a thousand, the most promising" he has heard in ten years, and the first that he has indorsed in three years.

The local singer was Miss Elizabeth Gerard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Gerard of 4104 Cole avenue, a mezzo-soprano and a voice pupil of J. Wesley Hubbell. She graduated last year from North Dallas high school and sang at the graduation exercises.

Signor Polacco spoke freely of the audition to the newspaper men. "Dallas should get behind Miss Gerard," he said, "like Kansas City did for Marion Talley. This local girl shows amazing possibilities. She is only 17 years old and with three years more study always under competent tutelage she should be ready to begin her career—that is if she works hard and seriously."

"I was thrilled and astonished at the voice this girl has. For all I know I may have been listening to the next Schumann-Heink. It is not impossible that I was. She deserves the encouragement of the whole city of Dallas, for she will bring great honor to it. Miss Gerard and her parents have now a solemn responsibility to develop this talent to its utmost."

The audition was held at 5 o'clock at the Baker Hotel. Miss Gerard, disclosed an ability to sing three octaves, from F below middle C to high G.

Miss Gerard and her parents were elated over the results of this audition and expressed a determination to finish study locally and later to train with the specialists in the various phases of musical art.

Several other local musicians were heard by Mr. Polacco. "I told them the truth," he said. "I may have hurt some feelings, but it is better that they should know."

"In the last ten years," he added, "I have heard only two other female voices that could be compared with Miss Gerard's. One singer was 35 years old, and hence too far along in life to begin on the study she needed. The other had further handicaps. But Miss Gerard, with her youth, has nothing but the future to consider."

BIENNIAL SPRING ELECTION AND ANNUAL TOWNSHIP ELECTION. The qualified electors of the township of Sylvan (Precinct Nos. 1 and 3) County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan. Notice is hereby given. That the next ensuing Biennial Spring Election and Annual Township Election will be held at Sylvan Town Hall, Chelsea, within said Township, on Monday, April 4, A. D. 1927, for the purpose of voting for the election of the following officers:

STATE—Two Justices of the Supreme Court, full term; two Justices of the University; one Superintendent of Public Instruction; one Member State Board of Education; two Members of State Board of Agriculture; one County Commissioner of Schools.

TOWNSHIP—One Supervisor; one Township Treasurer; one Township Assessor; one Highway Commissioner; one Justice of the Peace, full term; one Member Board of Review, full term; one Overseer of Highways; four Constables.

PROPOSITION. Also for the purpose of voting upon the following proposition, viz:

Shall a board of county auditors and the Chairman thereof for Washtenaw county be elected by the Board of Supervisors?

Act 351—Part IV—Chapter VIII, Public Acts of 1925.

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall be continued open until five o'clock in the afternoon and no longer. PROVIDED, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution adopted fifteen days prior to the election and published with the notice of the election, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon, and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

THE POLLS of said election will be open as of o'clock a. m. and will remain open until o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon, for one hour.

GEO. S. DAVIS, Clerk of said Township.

Dated March 1, 1927.

"LADDIE" Millions of readers of the late Gene Stratton Porter's works have been anxiously awaiting the film version of her greatest novel, "Laddie." Under the direction of Leo Mesnan, Mrs.

Porter's son-in-law, F. B. O. has produced a magnificent picture from the story, which will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday, March 30 and 31 at the Princess Theatre. John Bowers as Laddie and Bess Flowers as Pamela give superb interpretations of the leading roles, and such screen favorites as David Torrence, Fanny Midgley, Eugenia Gilbert, Nell Neeley, Arthur Clayton, John Fox, Jr., and the novelist's granddaughter, little Gene Stratton, compose the balance of the cast.

Broad in understanding and deep in human sympathy, "Laddie" is one of the best-loved and most widely circulated novels of all time. It has ranked for years among the twelve best sellers in America, and even today has a steady sale that overtakes many of the supposedly popular books. Mrs. Mesnan, the novelist's daughter, made the adaptation for screen purposes, and collaborated with her director, husband in the final script, which is remarkable for its close fidelity to the original. Great as the story is, the screen play is even more noteworthy for its lifelike characterizations and delightfully vivid atmosphere. Eminent Hollywood critics have acclaimed the picture as a truly marvelous piece of work, and few will disagree with this verdict.

SENIORS WILL PRESENT PLAY, "HIS UNCLE'S NIECE"

Seniors of the Chelsea High School on Friday evening, April 1, will present their annual play at the school auditorium, when "His Uncle's Niece" will be played.

With added facilities for presenting affairs of this character, such as the auditorium and stage equipment, effectiveness of the dramatic art as given by the local school should be greatly increased. It is the hope of seniors that the auditorium be filled for this April First performance, which will be the first play to be given in the new building. Seating capacity for more than six hundred can be provided, eliminating the necessity heretofore to give plays two nights in order to accommodate the crowds.

NETTIE J. WILKINSON
PASSED AWAY WEDNESDAY

Miss Nettie J. Wilkinson, aged 68 years, passed away Wednesday, Mar. 23, 1927, in St. Joseph's hospital at Dearborn, following an illness of considerable duration.

Miss Wilkinson was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson, who were pioneer settlers of this community. The deceased has spent her entire life in this vicinity, and had a host of friends who will miss her.

She is survived by two brothers, Archie W. and Tommie Wilkinson, one nephew and one niece.

The funeral service will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wilkinson, Rev. Walter Firth officiating. Burial in Oak Grove cemetery.

INFORMATION FROM THE PRIMARY ELECTION

Many voters felt somewhat uncertain as to how well satisfied the rural people are with the manner in which Miss Essery has filled the position of County School Commissioner, to which position she was appointed after the death of her father. All uncertainty, however, was cleared away by the results of the primary election. As the Times-News reported, "Miss Essery was beaten badly in the township, winning only four of twenty."

Two rural precincts, the 10th and 11th ward in Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti by heavy majorities. She came into the cities trailing her opponent by 643 votes.

Among other things the votes at the primary forcefully indicate:

(1) That Miss Essery has not given satisfactory service to those whom she is supposed to serve;

(2) That a sympathetic relation does not exist between Miss Essery and the people she is supposed to work with and for;

(3) That the rural people want some other person for School Commissioner;

(4) That the people of the cities of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti worked (probably unintentionally and because of a lack of knowledge of the situation) a grave injustice at the primary upon their rural neighbors;

(5) That if Miss Essery is elected next month it will be because she is forced upon the rural people against their will by their city neighbors.

From a fairly intimate contact with the rural people of the County during the past year and a half, I have become convinced that the above statements represent the attitude of a large majority of the rural people concerning the question of a County School Commissioner.

When it comes to the election of a School Commissioner, party politics should be forgotten.

DOUBLE FUNERAL
HELD FOR COUPLE

Surviving her husband by only three days, Mrs. Hattie M. Fischer, 54, of 623 Third street, Ann Arbor, a life-long resident of Washtenaw county, passed away Sunday at a hospital, after a brief illness.

Her husband, William G. Fischer, for the past four years in charge of janitor service at University of Michigan library, died Thursday night at a hospital in Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Fischer was born April 4, 1872, in Dexter township, attending the district schools there, and residing in that vicinity until 13 years ago, when she and Mr. Fischer moved to Ann Arbor. They had made their home there since that time.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schmidt, natives of Ohio, who settled in Dexter township, taking up a farm from the government.

Mr. Fischer was born December 15, 1867, in Germany, coming to this country with his mother, Mrs. Agatha Fischer, when 13 years old. They settled on a farm in Dexter township, next to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt.

Mr. and Mrs. Fischer were married in November, 1881, and both were members of the Methodist church. Mr. Fischer also was a member of the Modern-Woodmen of America.

They are survived by two sons, Roy and William of Ann Arbor, and two grandsons, Billy and Roy, also of this city. Mrs. Fischer also is survived her mother, Mrs. John Schmidt of Dexter village, seven nephews and nieces and Mr. Fischer leaves a brother, John of Dexter township, four nieces and nephews.

Double funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the residence. Dr. A. W. Stalker officiated. Short services also were held at Forest Lawn cemetery, Dexter, where interment took place. Rev. A. E. Kurth officiated at the cemetery.

EXTENSION WORK BRIEFS

Local leaders of the Home Management project will meet Thursday and Friday of this week.

At the meeting of the corn borer council last week the following committee was selected to attend the meeting of State and Federal corn borer officials at Lansing last Tuesday: Percy Graig, Milan; Wm. Pritchard, Chelsea, and E. P. Hellner, Northfield.

O. J. Gregg, landscape specialist from Michigan State College, was in the county last week and completed the plans for all the landscape demonstrations which will be carried out this spring, in Washtenaw county. Planting dates have been set for May 19 and 21. These demonstrations are located at the A. J. Easton farm, Lima township, Dan Hertler, Pittsfield township, Carl W. Braun, Ann Arbor township, and the Roberts school, Pittsfield township.

"And luck. And look at the good luck we've had since we found Drab! Drab! Drab!"

"I can tell ye, mates, I'm a-going to hang on to my luck."

Bones groined assent, and Surber added—

"Aye, aye, cap'n; and it will be ruled by me ye'll lose no time in puttin' Murray underground."

They all exchanged superstitious glances, and Bones said homely—

"He were close to beln, more'n his man, weren't he?"

"They do say as how ye can't chase down a hant by drivin' a stake through the body," suggested Black Dog—and he shook so that his torch scattered sparks.

There was an interval of silence after he was gone.

"He's had luck to touch the deevil," remarked Flint. "No, no, the thing is to be to bury him quick. You take half a dozen men, Bill, and plant him anywhere—so's he's deep enough."

"And what about the treasure?"

"I'll call one o' the men by the door."

"Ay, ay," chimed in a second.

"When do we shift it aboard and stave up?"

Flint stroked his chin, considering.

"Why, there's no hurry about the treasure, mates," he answered finally, "Tis safe here. What we all need is a dram o' rum and two watches below."

There was a general murmur of assent with this sentiment, and as Silver motioned us to precede him to the night, and as we passed out he gathered together a party of men who hovered loosely around us.

"If so be as ye'll give me your word to become peaceable, Master Ormored, I can make things easier for ye," he muttered when we were clear of the hut.

"What do you say, Peter?" I asked the Dutchman.

"Ja."

"That's enough for me," announced Silver cheerfully, "and very sensible." "Ye, too, gentlemen. Not quite so sure. I'm only a crippled salt-mariner and ha'-labored hard this night. SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER VI.—The Royal James and the Walrus; the latter commanded by Flint, Murray's partner in piracy. —Murray offers Flint a share in the loot of a Spanish treasure ship, which he will cooperate with him to seize. Robert is left with him as a hostage, while Murray, in the Royal James, takes the treasure ship, Flint to await him at the " Rendezvous."

CHAPTER VII.—O'Donnell, Jacobite —the Spanish deserter, with the draughtsman, are on the treasure ship. He has given Murray particulars of her sail. Robert and Robert agree to remain with Flint.

CHAPTER VIII.—Reaching Skeleton Island, in the West Indies, Flint men, on Murray's suggestion, beat the sound of a fort and stockade. The Royal James is made ready for the encounter with the treasure ship. Robert and Peter go aboard the Walrus.

CHAPTER IX.—Flint confines the two men, but catches the draughtsman, through which he escapes. They reach the Royal James and hide until the vessel sails.

CHAPTER X.—The treasure ship is an easy prey. Murray makes a bargain of selling O'Donnell and his daughter, Moira, as prisoners.

CHAPTER XI.—Moira O'Donnell comes to accept Robert and Peter as Murray leaves O'Donnell, Moira, Robert and Peter to the half of the treasure on the Dead Man's chest. Greaves, indeed, while he waits on a five-day voyage. Thus the pirates are ignorant of the whereabouts of the treasure.

CHAPTER XIII.—Pleading treachery Flint, Robert and Peter swim to the Walrus and learn of a plot to seize the Royal James. They return with the Walrus and attempt a surprise, but are beaten off by the Walrus. A running battle ensues between the two ships.
The battle. Both vessels encounter a violent hurricane. The Royal James is wrecked. The Walrus Chest a wreck, and is beached.

CHAPTER XIV.—Murray at once becomes determined to make the Walrus his headquarters. He orders the Royal James beached. Murray abandons the ship and goes to the Walrus. The pirates, insane at thought of the treasure, forget discipline and begin a fight among themselves. The pirates are then to be given 150 lashes apiece.

CHAPTER XV.—Flint lands a force of 50 men on the beach and the Albatross being admitted into the Albatross by one of the five negroes the Walrus. The Walrus is then made the Walrus retreat. Silver and Pew are unable to escape. Summoned to the Walrus, Pew stabs Murray with a broadsword knife, inflicting a wound from which he dies in a few hours.

"You Have Heard My Terms," I said.
be me should dwell with pirates," I answered.
"There's Rule Four of our Articles," he sneered. "Ye will ha' heard it before. It should be assurance for any maid."
"You have heard my terms," I said.
"Take them or leave them. There's eight-hundred thousand pounds to be gained from treating us kindly. If you do not so, as sure as I am here we will die, the three of us, before we yield you the secret—and you should know the years 'twill require to dig over the Dead Man's Chest!"
"Well take you," he replied intenuatedly. "And such a argutiny swash I never listened to, or will again,
—in my days. Are ye fixed in your mind,
Buckskin?"
"Yes."

Prisoners
 "A'ho, the blockhouse!"
 "Dot's Flint," whispered Peter, "You talk to him, Bob, ja."
 "What is it?" I shouted back.
 "Is Murray with ye?"
 "He's dead," I answered after a moment of reflection.
 "And that's — — lucky for him!" Peter's Tom Morphey ready to give me a taste of the cat.
 "A shill, how!" echoed the words.
 "Don't ye believe mun, Cap'n Flint! He all a lie. And I've promised I could ha' his heart's a mun."
 "Is that true?" I said wearily. "Afterprise you can send in a man to see it himself."
 "Ah!" Jeered Flint. "But ye see I'm not waiting for sunup or moonset or light else, my Buckskin. We know w many of ye there are; and if ye Torches flickered around the circuit of the stockade, and as they drew nearer Peter and I tore down the barricade of treasure I had built across the doorway. Figures appeared in the way — light, baked to the waist, scratched by the jungle growth; uncouth, grizzled faces lowered at us.

 "Keep back," I warned them. "We'll let no man in until Captain Flint is here."
 "Careful, ain't ye, Buckskin!" he mocked me, from behind a clump of pines. "Make way, shipmates. Ye'll not ha' a chance to see the treasure before — late, and we'll share in it equal and regular, accordin' to the Articles."
 The group split to make way for him, and I stepped up to the door. Bones was with him, and Silver, and the man they called Black Dog, who carried a torch, as they came.

"You won't hurt gold and silver, but I don't friendly to live mean."

"'Twill cost you something first," I sorted.

"Not so much as ye might think. 'No!"'s right," squeaked Peter beside me. "In, you better make a bargain him, Bob."

"A bargain," I repeated. "What on earth can we bargain with?"

"Der treasure on der Dead Man's chest."

"But that is—"

"Turned to Moira.

"In a manner of speaking, that treasure is yours. 'Twas in your father's name; to be held in trust for me. Are you willing—"

"My faith, any cause will be the better without it," she interrupted. "What it I done but bring bloodshed and suffering upon all who trafficked in it? It will just win us our lives, Bob."

"You had a pack and flanks were crisscrossed with festerin' welts. In one hand he held a cat-o'-nine-tails, the pendent rope lashes with their tagged knots stained a dark claret hue."

"Bones flourished his torch as they entered the low door, and the light shone into every corner of the big hut."

"Is that Murray?"

He pointed to the body that lay beneath the hacked remnants of the plumed satin coat which served as a shroud.

"Yes," I said, and Moira shrunk back, twisting Peter and me as they crowded forward, staring open-mouthed at the cold clink of metal represented the man they had so feared and hated."

"Gut me," swore Flint. "I never thought to see Andrew Murray lyin' stark."

Silver's eyes glinted from his slab of a face.

"Time's finkin' short," shouted Flint. "We won't surrender we'll start the fight."

"Sult yourself," I replied with as much confidence as I could muster. "I know where the treasure lies, on the old Man's Chest. If you won't even promise our lives we'll make the biggest fight we can and carry the secret."

"Let's—have a look at him," spoke up Bones abruptly. "Here, black dog, bring up your light, too."

The man with the soft back limped after them, drawing the tails of his coat around the fingers of one hand with a kind of lingering caress.

"Let me at him," he muttered. "I'll lay him out, I will! I'll learn him a proper lesson. Five of us, and—" out of my way, and when we divide the treasure there'll be an extra allowance for ye. How'd ye like to have her, eh?"

"She'll be better worth the havin' than all the treasure there is," flashed Darby. "And do ye be mindin' what I'm arther tellin' ye, Cap'n Flint. If harm comes to her or sorrow into the heart of her, 'twill be the end of your luck—aye, lucky ye'll be do ye come off w' a neck ye can breathe through."

Flint went pale.

"Now, now, Darby," he wheedled. "Don't ye talk that reckless way. 'Tain't good for our luck. And I ha' been main kind to ye, and—"

"Ye would be the ruin of our luck," said Darby. "All I'm for tellin' ye is to be gentle in handlin' an' an' elegant young maid as ye ought to be on your two knees before this moment for the trouble and sore dismay ye ha' wrought w' her."

"She's safe enough, Darby," Flint answered. "I'd never harm her. We'll keep her until we ha' lifted what's buried on the Dead Man's Chest, and then she and her two buxoms can take a small boat and fare how they please."

"And I'll be with 'em," added Darby. "Oh, no, not ye, Darby! Think o' all the red gold ye'll have aboard the Walrus. And there's your luck well still need."

"Me luck!" fumed Darby. "May the— curse me luck! 'Tis more of a nuisance than a help."

Flint was nigh frantic.

"Lad, would ye lose all your red head has brought us? And look ye, too, if the maid's to be safe, 'tis I alone can keep her so, for w'out me there'll be— to pay, and none to stall the reckoning."

"And that before this glass is out," affirmed Bones with saturnine emphasis.

The mate knocked the neck of a flask of rum with his cutlass-hilt and poured the equivalent of a water-glass down his throat, gurgling it lustily that he might secure the full savor of the fiery liquor.

"'Tis take the rest o' that!" exclaimed Flint eagerly. "Aaa-aah! There's naught like good rum to put heart in a man!—Bones!—Darby!—don't talk me more about 'losin' your luck! We're goin' to need that luck mighty bad these next few days. Aye, this very day, as Bill says. For here's Tom Allardye and a batch o' chickens hearted— w'— a cryin' we should be satisfied w' what we got, disband and save our necks. And I don't know what more blige-slush."

"'Tain't Allardye I'm feared of," said Bones wisely, "but Silver. He's got a head on his shoulders, Long John has, and all the men'll listen to him after the way he carried the stockade."

Flint nodded.

"True for ye; but what ye're amies on is that John feels same as I do about disbandin'. After the treasure's all lifted, look out for squalls. But right now, Bill, Silver's as strong for pullin' together as ye and me."

"Maybe," said Bones with more of doubt than conviction.

"Maybe? Gut me for a tubber if I'm not right!"

Flint rose from the seat he had assumed.

"Ye come along on deck, and I'll show ye. Ye, too, Darby. No, no, lad"—when Darby would have hunc back—"I want ye by me. I tell ye that red head o' yours is the best beacon I ever steered by."

At the exit to the companionway he halted and spoke to us over his shoulder:

"Ye mind what I said about the girl. Keep her under cover."

"Must we all remain below decks?" I demanded with some heat.

"That's as ye may happen to feel," he replied carelessly. "So long as ye don't try to suck up to any o' my men and make trouble ye can go, and come around the ship, but for me that ye up to mischief, and treasure or no treasure, I'll keelhaul ye."

His green eyes twinkled evilly.

"Maybe Murray told ye what that might mean."

He gave Darby a push before him.

"Run out and call the men aft," he commanded. "That's the boy! Bill, ye for a low-hearted—" plaster a grin on that mug o' yours and pipe us a song. We musn't let them swabs for'ard figure us to be worried none, eh?"

And his voice boomed hollow between the confined walls of the companionway:

"Oh, a fine, tall ship was the Elephant as a vessel sailed the seas. She came down Channel Apat Usant Bound for the East Indies."

"And Dicky Lamb, he says to the crew— He was the boatin' mate— pluck me out! Will ye do what I do? Be game, says I; tempt fate."

Bones joined valiantly in the sweep of the tune.

"They were out on deck now and Flint stayed the song long enough to roar:

"Lay aft, ye swabs! Ye asked for a to'esse counsell, and ye shall have it. me, Bill, can't ye sing louder?"

There was no answer to this, only the slapping of bare feet on the deck and the rustle of men crowded close together.

"Well, speak up, to'esse," he went on with a note of satire. "What d'ye seek? I've heard tell as how there was talk of givin' me the Black Spot— whatever that may be— and suttin' home by your lones and dead reck' onin'. What's the argument, I say?"

The scene was almost identical with that which I had witnessed a few nights previously when I spied Murray Flint's preparations to surprise Mary. Flint sat, as he had then, upon an upturned barrel, with more. The ver, Pew and two or three more. The reminder of the crew were squatted on the deck, a semicircular pattern of coppery faces and fattened chests. The weather had turned warm after the storm, and, as for the men, they wore Darby's costume, a pair of trousers or breeches, usually plashed off above the knees.

Foremost in the ring of women was a tall, lanky fellow with rather long, yellow hair and a belligerent expression. Yawn, he who sustained the burden of the debate with Flint, supported to some extent by a group of a score or so, who sat behind him.

CHAPTER XVII

Flint's Way

Bones swaggered into the cabin whilst we were at breakfast, and his hairy face crinkled in what he intended for an ominous grimace as his eye fell upon Murray.

"This is what I call proper home-coming," he declared. "Ye come and all ye Billy's knee, my pretty, and cut up this here goat for me."

"I started to rise, but Darby was ahead of me."

"Do ye so much as put a finger on her, and I'll send a bullet into the black heart of ye," he challenged in his old boy's voice.

"CONGRATULATE the ship's luck," boasted Darby. "The less ye say on that score, the better for ye."

"We'll see to that!" snarled Bones. "Ye're the cabin boy, my lad, and no more, and I—"

He tugged at the cutlass-hilt, and Darby, in no wise daunted, bawled forth a pistol as long as his arm. But before one could assail the other Flint stood in front of the companionway and caught Bones by the shoulder.

"What now, Bill?" he demanded. "Ain't we got enough to face w'out ye fightin' in the cabin?"

"And would ye ha' me take impudence and worse from this red-headed ass as Long John picked up in New York?" shouted Bones.

"Ye not," returned Flint. "Darby, ye may be my good luck and a lad o' promise, but I'll lay the cat to your shoulders if ye go for to make trouble."

"'Twas him was after makin' the trouble," answered Darby sturdily. "Ain't he botherin' Mistress O'Donnell? Sure, I'm Irish, the same as he, and I'll tell the rogue that does be gin to cause for to weep a tear, that I will. And I care not who he may be."

"Easy, all," admonished Flint. "Blow me for a dock-swab if I can see as how she'd oughter be set apart," muttered Bones. "I'm mate, I am, and I—"

Flint's bloodshot eyes focused upon us with something of the silent force that I had seen Murray employ against his wild crew.

"Ye know better nor that, Bill," he said quietly. "Here Long John's just been to tell me the crew ha' demanded a to'esse counsell, and God knows what Allardye and his gang will be up to. And ye want to bust into the middle of Rule Four. Gut me! There's many things I held against Andrew Murray, but one thing he did as was the wisest any gentleman adventurer ever done—and it's to his credit no more because Bart Roberts done it before him—and that was Rule Four."

"A woman's a prize, same as treasure," rumbled Bones.

"Oh, no, she ain't! A woman's trouble—she's no prize. Ye know what happens when there is women aboard a buccaneer. 'I'd throw the wench overboard if it weren't that she's my best chance to find the stuff Murray hid."

"If harm comes to her ye'll get no more knowledge from any of us," I interposed.

"Oh, belay that!" he rasped. "Ye're lucky to be alive, and the one reason is that ye know what ye know." He turned to Bones again.

"Now, mark me, Bill, lay off her. When we get this treasure cleaned up I can take all the time ye fancy for vases or night also."

"Aye, when we do!"

"And that'll be sooner than ye think," retorted Flint.

"Well, the crew all shoutin' for disbandment! Allardye talkin' of goin' home tomorrow? I ha' seen ye handle some bad times, John Flint, but ye're as Andrew Murray!"

The ribe annoyed Flint. His face turned blue as it did when his temper was fanned or he was in liquor.

"I'll tell ye some things yet, No Andrew Murray! Maybe not. But I ha' my own way, Bill. Aye, Flint's way! And ye so bad."

He suddenly remembered us.

"Keep your mouths shut, d'ye hear? No need to up to John Silver or any more. And as for you, my wench—be trowed at Moira—keep under cover, for your own sake as well as mine. This is a rough ship, a pirate ship, and—"

"Don't ye worry about Mistress O'Donnell," said Darby loyally. "I'll be to her."

"Oh, ye will?"

Flint laughed.

"Ye're bargainin' young, Darby. But me, what a hind! Well, you know

ESSEX CAR TRAVELER

For the third time in a few weeks, a new Essex Super-Six motor car has made a remarkable record for speed and endurance, according to word received by the Hudson Motor Car Co., and transmitted to the Jones Garage, Hudson-Essex dealer in the Chelsea area.

Timed by the Western Union and officially observed by newspapermen, an Essex ran for 24 consecutive hours on the speedway at San Antonio, turning up a total of 1218 miles for an average of 50 3-4 miles an hour. The test was made with a stock car by the Sanderson Motors Co., San Antonio distributors.

In recording the run, the San Antonio newspapers say that the fastest miles of the whole test were at the finish when about 4 1-2 miles were made in the final 4 minutes. They tell also that the track was slowed up by about two hours of showery weather.

"This Essex Super-Six," said Mr. Jones, "had been run about 1500 miles when the trial began. In the southwest, the motorists are more interested in speed than in districts where population is more congested. They like a car that can go across country at sustained high speed. Of course, the outstanding feature of the Essex Super-Six is its ability to run an average of 50 miles an hour all day long. The San Antonio distributor decided to prove this claim beyond any shadow of doubt."

The run began at 2 p. m. on a Saturday afternoon, and continued just 24 hours, or until the track was made ready for automobile races on Sunday afternoon. For the afternoon of Saturday, all night long, and until Sunday afternoon the Essex kept rolling up its miles. A great factor in the success of the run was the ability of the Essex to take turns at high speed. The low center of gravity, and the perfect balance of Essex construction enabled the drivers to take the turns even at night with scarcely a slowdown.

"The dependability of Essex construction, and the performance made possible by the use of its Super-Six principle, are everywhere meeting with a response which proves the car's outstanding popularity."

UNDER-INFLATION CAUSES WOBBLING
If you are a driver of balloon tires and frequently experience "cupping" of the front wheels while on the road, test the inflation of your front tires," says L. G. Palmer, Goodyear tire dealer at Chelsea.
"Our factory at Akron has conducted exhaustive tests during the past year along these lines and determined that a great percentage of this unpleasant driving difficulty is due to the front tires being under inflated.
"In some cases a slight adjustment of the wheels may be advisable, but almost always it is only necessary to add a few pounds of air to the tires to remove the cause of 'shimmying'.
"On most cars we have found that it is a good practice to have as much pressure in the front tires as in the rear, though many drivers object to this. However, if they have any trouble with their front wheels wobbling, listen to advice and build the front tire pressure up; they are quickly educated.
"You can notice the difference as soon as you put the car on the road, and we advise every driver to try it if he is experiencing any difficulty.
"In fact, most of the trouble today is caused as a result of under-inflation. Keep your tire pressures up if you want maximum mileage and satisfaction."

UNADDED
Ralph Teachout and son Donald spent Sunday in Brighton, Mrs. Teachout returning home with them. She spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. Marsh, who is very sick.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rose were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hadley, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hadley and family, who have been residents of this community for the past two years, have moved onto a farm near Ann Arbor. During their residence here they have made many friends who regret their removal.
Due to the bad roads both the social appointed for last Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hadley and the church services on Sunday were given up.
Master of Arts
Why the scholastic degree of "Master of Arts" is sometimes written "M. A." and other times "A. M." arose from the fact that the degree was originally indicated in Latin and in that language the position of words is not so essential to the sense as it is in English. In Latin it was either "Artium Magister" or "Magister Artium" meaning "master of arts."

Portraits for Mother's Day—Sunday, May 8th

All of us owe a debt of gratitude to the man who first thought of Mother's Day—a day that reminds us of a few of the special things we want to do to please the greatest woman in the world. There's one thing that every mother wants of her children—and often hasn't—a good portrait. Whether you're at home or far away, a new photograph of you is sure to please her as much as anything you can do. It shows a degree of thoughtfulness that a mother always appreciates.
This year Mother's Day falls on Sunday, May 8. It will give us enough time—but not too much—to make an artistic yet truthful portrait of you—the kind that will carry your personality to Mother a few weeks hence. Now—while you're thinking of it—arrange to let us help you do the thoughtful thing on a day that comes only too seldom.
