IMPORTANT NOTICE

At this time of the year an air presents itself which tends to draw us out-of-doors, and it must be the duty of someone to prepare a place where we may go to exercise our bodies, play the games we like to play, and this makes one think that we should have a public playground here in Chelsea. We have the ground, in an ideal location, but lack of funds has brought this proposition to a serious crisis, and it is just a simple question as to whether this field, the present Chelsea Golf Course, shall go back from whence it came, or shall it be kept by the village or some other organization. And here we wish to make an urgent request that all, not only golf club members, but especially the city council, and all who can possibly do so, attend this most important meeting. If you are interested in keeping this field you are urged to be at the meeting to be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at Firemen's hall.

COMMITTEE

SISTER OF CHELSEA MAN WEDDED FIFTY YEARS AGO

Former Waterloo Residents Are Entertained With Dinner and Program in Honor of Event.

Sunday marked a half century of wedded life for Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Siegrist, Jackson, and in celebration of the important event their children served an Easter dinner for the family, the observance being held in the castle hall of Rowena Lodge of Knights of Pythias in the Majestic Theater building, Jackson.

About a hundred attended the feast, most of them being relatives. After the elaborate dinner an impromptu program was given with music and other entertainment, visiting and a general good time following. Several gifts in honor of the golden wedding anniversary were presented the honor guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Siegrist were married in Waterloo April 17, 1877, living in that place for a time, but they have been residents of Jackson nearly 35 years, having occupied their present home about a third of a century.

Mrs. Siegrist is in good health, but her husband has been ill for about a year and his hearing has been affected, but he is on the gain. For 22 years he was in the employ of the L. H. Field Company.

Mr. Siegrist was born in Germany, coming to this country with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Siegrist, when he was quite young. They located in Waterloo after living in Philadelphia about a year, and it was in the Jackson county village where he met his bride of 50 years ago, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frymuth.

Two children were born to the couple, Arthur L. Siegrist and Mrs. Theodore Pendleton, both of Jackson. There is one grandchild, Gladys Irene Siegrist.

Mrs. Siegrist is a sister of John Frymuth of Chelsea. Mr. and Mrs. John Frymuth and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Frymuth and family attended the festivities in Jackson Sunday.

Ninety minutes in New York! A trip to the famous East Side! That's what is brought vividly to the audience in "Kosher Kitty Kelly"...

A cross-section of life, buoyant, bubbling, triumphant over the petty handicaps and irritations of tenement existence—a glorious, vibrant picture alive with the loves and hates of Kilmurney and Jerusalem...

MICHIGAN LEGISLATIVE LETTER

April 15, 1927.

By Ian W. Feighner.

The sons of Michigan are certainly not "soldiering" on the job these wonderful spring days. Whether they want to go farming or fishing, there is something in the air that makes them desirous of getting away from Lansing at the earliest possible moment, and they are grinding out bills from the legislative mill at a great rate.

Animosity between the two houses seems to have died down to a great extent and House bills are slipping through the Senate, and vice versa, with real expedition; so much so, in fact, that criticism has been openly voiced that in some cases not sufficient consideration has been given certain important measures.

The capital punishment measure, which has been a football for both houses all the session, and which is even yet being kicked around by the Judiciary committee of the Senate, was expected to be the big smoke of the week but while the bill will probably be reported out in some form and the Senate given an opportunity to tear it to bits or to vote on it, present indications are that it will be considerably changed from the form in which the House passed it by such a decisive vote early in the session.

Conservation bills are going thru both houses with a rush, and if they work as they should Michigan will suffer less from forest fires than she regularly has, because the cleaning up of slashings and other fire hazards will be compulsory.

And another thing—whether the capital punishment measure is enacted or not, criminals are not going to have as much of a snap as they have been accustomed to, for every measure looking toward more severe and more speedy punishment is meeting with unanimous support.

The proposed new criminal code, which passed the House last week with something over a hundred amendments, kicked up a row in the Senate Thursday when Senators Persons of Lansing and Woodruff of Wayne, insisted that it be read in full. This would take about a full day and Secretary Alward had just nicely got under headway when Senator Read moved that further consideration be postponed. The motion prevailed and before it comes up again next week it is hoped to find some way out of the monotony of hearing the bill read in full. Each Senator has been asked to read and study the bill in private.

Possibly some of them will. It is one of the most important measures of the session, and much credit is due Judge Harris of Charlevoix and his committee for the arduous and painstaking work they have put on the measure during the past two years.

The workmen's compensation bill, raising weekly minimum payments to $18, passed the Senate Thursday afternoon, with Senator Cummings of Centreville registering the only negative vote, and now goes to the Governor for his signature. This is the bill which has been so bitterly opposed by John Lovett, lobbyist for the Michigan Manufacturers' association, and its passage is a signal victory for Governor Green, who supported it at the public hearing, and who promised it his support during the primary campaign. It is claimed that it was principally against John Lovett that the Governor insisted on both houses barring lobbyists from the floor during sessions, and which was heartily supported by some of the legislators because it also automatically banished Roy Holsapple to the galleries.

The Cummings bill providing for the registration of music teachers was passed by the Senate Thursday afternoon and goes to the House.

One measure which was passed by the Senate Wednesday and now goes to the House will interest every town in the State. The measure provides that the owner of a drug store shall be a registered pharmacist, or if a stock company, that not less than 25 per cent of the stockholders shall be registered pharmacists. The bill is aimed particularly at "chain" drug stores which are making their appearance in many sections, and the act does not apply to present ownership of drug stores.

State Treasurer Frank D. McKay will have supervision of finance corporations under the Wood bill which passed the Senate Tuesday, if the House concurs. They are now under supervision of the state banking commissioner.

The Greene bill to have a commission appointed to codify the state banking laws has passed the Senate and goes to the House. It provides for a report at the next session.

The Farrand bill, providing more severe penalties for raising a false alarm of fire, which had already passed the House, was passed Tuesday by the Senate and will become law if signed by the Governor.

The Michigan Bell Telephone company is due for a $7,000,000 increase in its assessed valuation according to the report of the state tax commission. The Michigan Central also gets a stiff raise of $2,000,000, the Pere Marquette $750,000, the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Detroit $500,000, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironston and the Wabash each $250,000. The Detroit, Monroe and Toledo, the Michigan Railroad company and the G. R. & I. each get a decrease of half a million. These changes will mean a liberal increase in the primary school funds.

The McNitt bill, barring the killing of deer in the counties of Wexford, Missaukee and Manistee for five years was passed by the House Thursday.

While it has been thought that the Leland bill, supposedly a compromise measure which sets the gas tax at 3 cents and leaves the weight tax ride as it is, would proceed regularly thru both houses with the skids greased, there is apparent a movement to stir things up again. A four cent tax is now proposed by Representative Town of Parma, and various members talk of still other things, among them a much higher weight tax for commercial trucks and highway buses, and there is no telling what the outcome of this mix-up may be. Even the permanent license plate proposition has its head up again, and has quite a few supporters.

The House Thursday passed a bill providing that action for libel and slander must be commenced within one year. Representative Chas. Culver claims it is a Detroit Times measure, but he voted for the bill, although he explained his vote by saying that he was now preparing to sue the Times for libel and wanted to show that he is a good sport, anyway.

The House of Wednesday defeated the Ming joint resolution advocating a constitutional amendment to apportion legislative districts according to voting strength, rather than on population. Mr. Ming says the proposition would take four representatives away from Wayne county, but admits that it would give Wayne two more senators. The vote against the proposition was 50 to 31. However, on Thursday the vote was reconsidered on motion of Representative Wm. R. Farrand, and was also on his motion, laid on the table, so that it may be brought up again later if desired. Mr. Ming frankly states that his proposition is aimed at preventing Wayne county, as its population increases, from gaining complete control of the legislature.

If you have any chicken-stealing to do, better do it right away, because the Senate Friday morning passed a couple of House bills providing much more severe penalties for poultry thieves, and these bills are given immediate effect. As they will probably be signed by the Governor as soon as he gets them, it is well to lay in your supply at once.

Aside from these poultry bills, the Senate passed a number of routine measures and some minor bills Friday morning, and adjournment was then taken until 8 o'clock Monday evening.

In the House a number of bills awaiting passage on third reading were passed for the day because of the light attendance, a number of members having been excused for the day and some others absent without BREVITIES.

HOWELL—The class graduating from the high school in June will consist of sixty-four members. Two young ladies of the class, who have the highest marks will each deliver a valedictory address.

BROOKLYN—Dell Taylor, who has been appointed one of the federal and state corn borer inspectors commenced work Monday morning in Norvell township. He is devoting all his time to the work.—Exponent.

SOUTH LYON—On the main corner of the village, in front of the State Savings Bank, a new drinking fountain has been placed. It will probably see much use in the next few months, when the hot weather comes.—Herald.

EATON RAPIDS—F. C. Sullivan, of Detroit, is making a commercial survey for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. in Eaton Rapids, as a basis for estimating adequate equipment for this city covering a period for 20 years hence. He expects to be on the job here for two weeks.—Review.

DEXTER—The Detroit Edison Co. has equipped the boulevard lights with a new set of bulbs and shades, differing from the old in the effect that the arrangement is such that the property side is dark while a reflector throws the strongest part of the light on the street.—Leader.

MANCHESTER—In taking down a barn for Frank Leeson on what was the Blake place on Macomb street, the men found stored in the loft a large sign, "Sawville, Leves and Tinware." None of the workmen could recollect ever seeing the sign before or hearing the name of the man, who had a hardware store here, say 50 years ago, but did not stay long.—Enterprise.

SALINE—A number of years ago there was an alumni association of the Saline high school, which met each year at a banquet and Homecoming. Old friendships were renewed and new contacts were made at these gatherings. After the banquet a program was usually arranged including toasts and other entertainment. The class of '27 is making plans to revive the former custom. They plan to hold the banquet Friday evening, June 10.—Observer.

PINCKNEY—The highway and road work is being pushed rapidly in this section in order to get the roads in shape for the heavy summer traffic. Highway Commissioner Clinton has a gang of men, a number of trucks traveling the road leading past the Bernard Lavey farm. James Smith is at work with another gang on the Brighton road where he is cutting down the long winding hill just the other side of Chilson. Rex Smith has been working on roads in Hartland for some time where he is in charge of a gang.—Dispatch.

PLYMOUTH—William Weltner, Plymouth's new village manager, has taken up his new duties, and is now familiarizing himself with the various departments of village affairs. Mr. Weltner graduated from the University of Michigan in 1916, and holds a degree of Bachelor of Civil Engineering. He specialized in sanitary and highway work, which he has since followed. For two years he was employed by the State Highway Department as resident engineer, and for the past seven years has been connected with the engineering department of the city of Detroit.—Mail.

BRIGHTON—The new lake that is to be made along the Ore Creek valley in the southwest part of this village, extending into Genoa and Hamburg townships, has started to grow. The dam by the old Hugh McCabe place, was closed Saturday last and it was not long before the water began to back up to a noticeable degree. Indeed, Niregr lake is out of its banks and another foot will find the old townline road, now closed. It is the plan to raise the water only eight feet at present and this will probably require only a few weeks, according to the belief of the promoters. Later it will be raised another four feet, which will bring the edge of the lake up to the Seger bridge.—Argus.

Samoans Still Fear Old Spirits of Evil

The Samoans' love for ceremony, especially dignified ceremony, and for singing, has helped much in making him a church member and regular service attendant. But even with his acceptance of Christianity he still, in many cases, keeps a weather eye open for the ancient aiti (devil) that had the fear and respect of his ancestors. The aiti may be a back number, but you never can tell—says the Federated Independent.

There was the young fellow, for instance, who showed his irreverence a couple of years ago by walking across an old chief's grave. His family and every one else warned him about the aiti, did they not? Still he walked on the grave. A few days later he had a bad cold. Shortly after he was dead. Quick tuberculosis.

How much better it is for a Christian or any one, to respect ancient things and thus not arouse the wrath of the aiti—on guard! So the Samoan gives the aiti a wide berth, hoping his sinners among the holy places—the grounds will be undisturbed so long that they will become permanent.

Women Not Burned

Records of witchcraft do not indicate that women were actually burned at the stake in any of the states.

Adjournment was taken until 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Those members who had hoped for winding up the business of the session on May 5 or 6 are probably doomed to disappointment. The general sentiment seems to be for adjournment on May 13, although others freely predict that the work cannot possibly be wound up before the 20th.

Long Distance keeps costs down for Paper Salesman and Printer

Michigan Bell Telephone Co., 1350 East Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

What would we do without long distance? Business would drop 100% in 10 days!

There are thousands of such orders in the wholesale paper business. Merchandise not in stock needed tomorrow is ordered by long distance phone today. Printers cannot afford to keep their presses waiting for paper. Late presses, like other manufacturing machines, are expensive. To secure paper, therefore, on time, we use long distance and thus the telephone costs the city in keeping down the production cost of printed matter.

Again, the long distance phone saves in many ways—several examples of correspondence business in expedited detail were received, and serious delays eliminated.

Telephone selling has become a necessity. Hours are saved in this way. Selling cost reduced.

In a preliminary practice game between the Kiwanis and Odd Fellows baseball teams, played Tuesday evening, a tie score of 4-4 resulted and the game was called on account of storm. Most of the teams which are entering the league race this season are getting in a little advance practice in the hope of limbering up before time for the opener on May 2, when the Methodists and Catholics will scrap it out for first place in the league standing.

Rain and wind which, combined, caused the season's first severe storm, prevented many folks attending the final number on the lyceum course given at the public school auditorium on Tuesday evening. The Randall Ensemble Players gave the closing number which was considered by many as the best of the season's performances. The course was staged under auspices of the school and, although profits were not as expected, there is a fair amount left in the school treasury after payment of all obligations.

Mrs. Mary Scripser, aged 67 years, died Monday afternoon, April 17, in the U. of M. hospital at Ann Arbor. George and William Scripser of Chelsea, are stepsons of the deceased. The funeral will be held this (Thursday) afternoon from Unadilla Presbyterian church, Rev. Harburt officiating. Burial in Unadilla cemetery.

The S. P. L. club was pleasantly entertained Monday evening at an Easter party at the home of Miss Lillie Wacknagut. A program was given, including Easter Greetings, poems and stories, a piano duet by Mrs. Olga Scripser and Mrs. Katherine Kusterer, and several appropriate games, for which prizes were awarded. Each member brought an Easter basket containing little gifts for each one which were then distributed. The hostess served a dainty luncheon using a color scheme of pink and white. Covers were laid for ten and were in the form of nests marked by rabbit place cards; the centerpiece was a large rabbit in a nest surrounded by tiny chickens and Easter eggs. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Faye Palmer on Monday evening, April 25.

London Call Sells Buick

WHAT is believed to be the first retail automobile sale ever made by international telephone was closed recently by the Garber Buick Company when A. F. Penoyer, salesmen, sold a car to a prospect in London by telephone from Saginaw, Michigan. The purchaser of the car is R. G. Morley of Morley Brothers Wholesale Hardware Company, who was in England on a business trip at the time. Penoyer, in a telephone conversation, described the features of the Buick and the Morley concern was to talk from London to the director of the company at a certain hour, and he made arrangements to be on hand. "Hello, Mr. Morley," said Penoyer. "It seems good to hear your voice, even though you are a long way from home. I understand you are going to sail tomorrow. Before you left we tried to get your approval on one of our new Buick Country Club coupes. I would like to have one of these cars trimmed and equipped for you when you arrive home." After a short discussion of terms, Morley gave the order for the car. He then talked for a moment with Guy Garber, Buick distributor in Saginaw.

Buick is in a Value Class

Buick's position of leadership is founded on value. Its constant aim is to build each Buick better than the last. And today, despite that leadership well won and firmly held, Buick is constantly seeking to improve its design—constantly searching for the new and better thing—constantly striving still further to increase the value on which Buick's leadership is based.

City's Glory Departed

No longer "Antioch the Beautifully situated though it is in the thirteenth century it was still a notable city of 120,000 inhabitants. Today it is known as Antakia and its population is about 12,000. It was recovered from its spoils by the Sultan of Egypt, nor has much effort to repair the damage done by a severe earthquake. But it will always be a place of interest to Christians for its many monuments with the earliest periods of its history.

Not Worth Saving

A Scottish gillie who had accompanied a middle-aged and corpulent Englishman on a fishing expedition returned alone and announced that the visitor had fallen into the river and been drowned. "The first time he came up I gripped him by the hair, but it was a wig and sank. He came up again and I gripped him by the collar, and it was a dickie and sank. A third time he came up and I gripped him by the leg. Loosh, it was cork, and sank. So I said to myself, 'Well, ma chappie, I'll let you drown. You're naething but a bag o' remnants.'"

SPRING OVERHAULLING BRINGS CARBON MONOXIDE DANGER

Proper and sufficient ventilation of the air in garages is the one thing which will eliminate entirely all danger from carbon monoxide gas, according to W. R. Daniels, local Dodge Brothers dealer. This danger has always been placed upon the greater danger from carbon monoxide poisoning in the winter months, says Mr. Daniels. "While it is undoubtedly true that more lives are lost from carbon monoxide poisoning in the winter than at other seasons, the danger is just as great at all times if automobile engines are permitted to run in small garages without proper ventilation. "With coming of spring many automobile owners will tune up their own cars for the summer. Much of this work will be done out-of-doors but in many instances it will be done in the owners' garage. Because of the danger from motors running inside of buildings it is timely to again point out the precautions which should be taken. "Automobile manufacturers realize fully what this gas might do to their workmen if it were permitted to contaminate the air in the factories. At most plants the air is kept free of the deadly gas by a system of fans or blowers which carry all exhaust fumes from the motors outside of the buildings. "Probably the worst spot in automobile factories is at the ends of the final assembly lines. Here the motors are started preparatory to driving away the assembled cars under their own power. Because of this much more carbon monoxide is generated than is the case after the motors have been tuned up and operated for some time. "Where only one motor running at a time the fatal gas would not be liberated in dangerous quantities. In large plants such as Dodge Brothers, however, the gas would soon make work at the end of the lines impossible if it was permitted to contaminate the air. "Dodge Brothers main plant has three parallel assembly lines, each separated from the others by only a few feet. The motors of cars at the end of each line are running simultaneously and each motor is throwing off the poisonous gas. "A very simple device is used at this spot to protect the workmen. One end of a 30-inch rubber hose is attached to the motor exhaust pipe and the other end drags in a narrow trough in the assembly line. The trough is about fifty feet long and is connected with a suction blower. The exhaust gases from the running motors are liberated in the trough through the loose end of the hose. The suction from the blower draws all the exhaust gases from the trough, discharging them into a system of pipes leading to the roof of the factory. "Another feature of the system is interesting in that it illustrates how simple devices are used in the Dodge Brothers factories to save time and labor. The end of the hose which drags in the trough is fitted with a long bolt which projects about four inches. At the end of the trough is a slotted piece of steel. As the car is driven away from the line the bolt catches in the slotted piece of steel and the resulting pull frees the other end of the hose from the motor exhaust pipe."

APPOINT LOCAL MEN IN BORER CAMPAIGN

The appointments of county corn borer supervisors and their crops of inspectors have been confirmed by L. H. Worthley, federal administrator of corn borer control work, Toledo, O., according to advices received by the state department of agriculture. For Washtenaw county, R. J. Bird of Ann Arbor has been named corn borer supervisor. The inspectors are R. C. Campbell, Ann Arbor; Emmett Farrell, Dexter; E. W. Quackenbush, Ann Arbor; Ernest Mann, Saline; William Schumacher, Saline; Robert Dempster, Ypsilanti. These men are in charge of the regulatory work in the county and any questions concerning the clean-up work should be referred to them for action. Application should be made to the supervisor for the use of special government machinery which is now available in the county. During April, a survey of the county will be made and advice given as to what a satisfactory clean-up means. After May 1, Mr. Bird and his staff will inspect all farms to determine who is eligible for the compensation provided in the federal corn borer act. Worthley says that in each township special inspectors from outside the county which will be used as a check in determining what constitutes a clean field and which will serve as a guide for the local inspectors.

How Nice

"Have you any nice young grocers?" inquired a flustered young bride, who had intended to ask for chickens. "Why—why, yes," was the astonished reply at the other end of the wire. "Well, send me two dressed." "Dressed?" said the grocer, more astonished than ever. "Well, no," was the reply, after a moment's reflection. "I believe you may send them undressed. My husband's coming home early, and he can wash their necks and the cook and I will dress them."—The Progressive Grocer.

FARMERS TO CASH IN ON CORN BORER WORK

Nearly $1,500,000 will be paid by the Federal government to Michigan farmers in the infested area for their efforts and extra labor in controlling the European corn borer, according to an estimate made by H. C. Rafter, assistant director of extension, Michigan State College, who is in charge of the educational campaign now being waged against the borer. This total is provisional upon every acre in the infested area being cleaned and meeting the conditions of the regulatory acts governing the suppression of the borer and is based on figures obtained from the crop report for the year 1926. The Federal Corn Borer Act provides that farmers shall be reimbursed for their extra labor and expense incident to the clean-up in an amount not to exceed $2.00 per acre. In order to qualify for this compensation, however, it is necessary that the work be accomplished prior to May 1 and that it pass inspection.

If corn fields or premises in the area are not cleaned up by May 1, the regulatory forces have the authority to make the clean-up themselves and assess the charges against the owner. L. H. Worthley, federal administrator of borer control work with headquarters at Toledo, Ohio, states that all payments for compensation will be made directly from Washington.

Application for payment should be made to the county corn borer supervisor. No payments will be made until after May 1.

SIX IN STATE AWARDED VAIL MEDAL FOR 1926

TWO WOMEN AMONG TELEPHONE WORKERS RECEIVING RECOGNITION FOR SERVICE

OUTSTANDING ACTS NOTED

Hadley Manager and Operator Help Capture Armed Robbers—Three Others Commended

Six Michigan telephone people have been awarded the Theodore N. Vail medal for 1926 for outstanding acts of noteworthy public service performed in the line of duty...

In the seven years since the establishment of the Vail Memorial fund, Michigan Bell telephone people have been awarded the Vail medal of bronze and one has received the national award of a silver medal.

That the things were captured were largely due to the courage, resourcefulness and prompt action of the manager and operator of the Hadley telephone exchange, Benjamin F. Hadley and his wife, Edna Ann Hadley.

When the carload of armed thugs tore into the village, Mr. Hadley, who was outside the telephone office, was attracted because of the foreign license plates on the machine.

The car parked, motor running, a block from the bank, three of its occupants going into the bank, he became more interested. Then noting that the curtains of the bank were pulled down, he rushed to the telephone office and called the deputy sheriff telephoned a hardware dealer and ordered arms and ammunition to be made ready, and then endeavored to reach the sheriff's office.

Then, armed with a rifle and shotgun, Hadley helped organize the posse that attacked and captured the bandits. As the thugs fled from the bank, they were faced by a growing crowd of men with springlike look.

On a previous occasion, when the bank at Baraga was held up by armed bandits, Mrs. Nelson, advised of the robbery by the Benton Harbor chief operator, ran into the street and notified a deputy, who hastily organized a posse that turned the thugs back on their trail so they were captured by their pursuers.

Many such incidents occur in the lives of telephone people, Mr. Foraker declares, adding that telephone men and women invariably rise to the emergency, forgetting self and not recognizing personal danger.

They had saved the life of the workman. They had put to practical purpose principles they had learned in the first aid classes conducted for the plant employees of the Michigan Bell company.

While supervising the work of a tree trimming crew near Washington, Mich., September, William T. Frumreller was directed by the cries of a woman, to the body of a boy high up in a tree.

The story of the act of Miss Reeta Howe, Grand Rapids night operator, is one of a woman's quick thinking, insistence and resourcefulness. Answering a switchboard signal from a country line, March 5, 1926, Miss Howe heard a faint whisper, "a doctor."

Then she heard the receiver drop and not a farther sound. She did not know whose telephone it was that she had answered.

Quickly searching the records, the operator found that it was a two-party line, with one telephone in a way-side gasoline station, ten miles southwest of Grand Rapids, and the other in a residence. She aroused the people in the residence and told what she had heard, requesting that someone go to the gasoline station as she believed a man was in trouble or ill there.

Finally the girl's persistence prevailed, and someone was sent to the filling station. She located a physician, told him the situation and asked him to hurry to the oil station.

Three other Michigan Bell employees, William Schmidt, senior line man, R. Hellinger, line installer, both of Battle Creek, and Mrs. Nelson, operating agent at Gallien, have been recommended by the Vail medal committee for letters of especial commendation for outstanding acts of service.

Schmidt and Hellinger, while at work, saw an elderly woman fall and break a bone of her leg. They carefully carried her to a nearby residence. Applying their first aid knowledge, they restored her to consciousness, and called a physician, who praised the two for their efforts and the excellence of their treatment.

Knew the Signs The old adage that "straws show which way the wind blows" was never better illustrated than in the career of the late Valentino. He had been playing minor parts with equally minor success but one morning he rushed on to the stage wreathed with smiles.

"So happy this morning?" asked Douglas Conrad, his director. "My dressing-room was broken into last night," exclaimed the beaming Valentino.

"You are happy because you were robbed?" gaped Conrad. "You haven't gone crazy or anything, have you?" "No, no," cried Valentino. "The thief stole eight of my pictures! Success is at hand!"

Get it at Burg's DRUGS GROCERIES

Becky—the Little Darling By ROSE BELDEN (Copyright.) "BECKY," said Maude Frame languidly, "just take this book into the house and bring me the other one, will you?" She looked very fragile and fair, leaning back among the gay cushions piled on the sofa.

"The girl, Becky, a slim, plainly attired girl, came from under the garbly striped beach umbrella and sped toward the row of cottages that faced the sea.

"What did I tell you?" inquired George Graydon. "My surmise is quite correct, Ned. The little girl is either a maid or a companion."

"Ned indignantly flung his paper aside and arose to his tall height. "Of all the old idiots, George! I for one refuse to sit here like a pair of old summer boarding-house tabbies, speculating upon the social standing of new arrivals! I came here for the fishing, and I'm off in the dory—want to come?"

George Graydon hesitated, and then, ashamed to refuse, he reluctantly followed his friend. While he would never have stooped to a vulgar flirtation, George's imagination had clothed the lovely Maud with romance. Someone at the hotel had mentioned that Miss Frame had heaps of money—and George was poor and heart-free, and selfish!

The two young men fished all day, not once had Ned permitted his romantic companion to mention the subject of the newcomers—the two girls and the severe elderly gentleman who lived with them.

"Ned sighed as they headed for the shore. It had been a perfect day for fishing, rather cloudy but not too cold, but now in the southwest a big black cloud foretold a squall.

"For the luvva—" began Ned, and then stopped short. "Hand me the glass," he ordered. Putting them to his keen blue eyes he focused his vision on the place called "Sand Point"—a jutting sand spit, where there was a deep rock pool at high tide. There was a flicker of red and white that might be a beach umbrella.

"It was," he declared, and headed the boat in that direction. "It is Miss Frame," cried George excitedly, "and companion—the girl she calls 'Becky.' They have planted themselves down at the point, and any moment the tide will cover the point. Can you make it, Ned?"

"Got to," snapped the other, peeling off his outer garments and revealing bathing trunks. "Get ready to take me aboard, George, when I make a dash for 'em."

Even the lethargic George was tensed for action as the dory dashed for the point. They could see the forms of the two girls covering before the wind, in terror of the rising tide. Suddenly the girls saw them and ran to the edge of the water, holding up swathed her head, the dory turned and Ned heaving low caught Maud Frame and brought her to safety. He gave her to Graydon's willing arms and turned to rescue Becky, but the sands were empty.

"Framie with fear, Ned brought the boat about, when something small and wet and dark appeared above the rail. "Here I am," she said quickly. "Why did you do that?" scolded Ned in a shaking voice.

"I was afraid you couldn't get back in time, so I went to meet you." "Becky!" squealed Miss Frame. "See here, my good girl," rebuked George sternly. "You have frightened your mistress—she seems quite faint." "I am sorry, sir," she said penitently, and going at once to Maud Frame, fanned her vigorously with a newspaper.

The point was hidden under a smother of spray as the waves dashed up to the foot of the bluff. "Becky looked seriously at Ned. "That was a brave thing you did under the circumstances. We might have been lost if it hadn't been for you."

Ned reddened fiercely. How ridiculously she drew out the "it," and as they approached the pier a group among them the stern elderly man in a military cap—Major Frame. The girls were silent as they mounted the slippery steps to the pier. Ned up the rear. The major folded Becky Maud followed with an elderly maid, and clean after the exciting day, sat on the veranda looking at the evging papers. The prim maid came with message. "Major Frame's compliments, and he would be pleased if Mr. Bjorn and Mr. Graydon will come over this evening and meet his daughter and niece." "Niece," said George thoughtfully, as he prepared for bed that night. "Maud may be only the niece, but poor at that, but she's the girl I like!"

"Becky—the little darling," Abigail Ned, and to this day Becky Bjorn when she wants to tease her husband, draws slurringly. "Yes—she's First Ocean 'Wireless' On October 22, 1915, the first message by wireless telephone was sent across the Atlantic ocean. The message was sent from the American Telephone and Telegraph company's tower, located at Arlington, Va., to a Birtel tower at Paris. Bohemian May Claim His Place in World When one doesn't know where the next dollar is coming from he may come a bohemian or a hand-it depends on his type of mind. The bohemian spirit is that of the unmeritedly so, the latter of the staid, usually malevolent one. If he hasn't drifted into predatory habits, he is always ready to entertain you with his mind and is content to your own efforts toward getting. He is not too severe on your eccentricities, but his laugh is a cruelly. We ought to value and cherish him more than we do, though he may never do well. Everybody can't make money, but it takes so little to make his high spirit happy. Usually he is talented, but if he isn't he is soiling to be frequently laconic—souls-of-the-who are talented. Isn't the nature that "just rests you" a blessed one meant to gladden a tiresome day? If his disposition is to lean some what on his friend, the man of our well, the one can stand it. It is a fact, what the one is looking for is welcomes.—F. H. Collier in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Classified Under the Head of "Information" Last summer Miss Moody, an artist in search of perfect quiet and rest, went as beautiful scenery, pitched her tent in one of the remotest and wildest corners of the great Northwest where she rejoiced in the absence of all modern conveniences. One day, as she rode her horse over a corduroy road in a swartly forest, she was amazed to hear the sound of a motor-car horn. Suddenly a beam in the road brought her face to face with a small motor car. Her bronco fiercely reared to the sight, and absolutely refused to touch the car, which, owing to the great roughness of the road, was traveling at a very low speed. Seeing with what difficulty the ride was continuing her seat as the horse reared, plunged and backed, and realizing that he could not get by the frightened animal on so extremely narrow a highway, the motorist stopped his car, jumped out, caught the bride and led the horse past with-nothing words. After expressing her thanks, Miss Moody, wishing to show an appreciative interest, inquired what machine it was. "It's an automobile, lady," was the indignant reply.—Kansas City Star. Instinct in Birds There seems to be no doubt that birds possess a sense of which we know nothing. They perform feats that would be impossible to human beings. They are able to find their way enormous distances across seas and continents with no compass to guide them. The swallows will fly south for thousands miles and return the same distance the following spring. It is more wonderful, they will go down to the farthest end of the earth used for nesting in the previous year. We might think they have wonderful memories, but memory cannot explain it when we find that the year before our summer visitors from the distant countries to which the older birds will go later on.—Lodge's Tit-Bits. American Foreign Ruler The only American to rule a foreign country was William Walker, an " filibuster" President of Nicaragua from 1855 to 1860.—Liberty.
