CHRISTMAS

Crowds parade the downtown shopping district. Stores are filled with eager customers. Christmas is upon us once again, another milestone in the varied journey that we take as we press on to varied goals.

The years no longer loaf in their passing as they did when we were children. They speed by now and leave their marks upon us. So busy are our hands and heads in the eternal task of finding means to provide food and warmth and shelter, that time has become a mill-race that sweeps us on to the end of our course.

There are many stations along the way. And the most hopeful of all of them is Christmas, for it is the Christmas spirit that descends upon us and saves us from ourselves.

The grind of business wears our brains. The disappointments make heavy our hearts. The greed we nurture within us makes us selfish. Our ego, prompted by our yearnings, destroys our concern for others. And then comes Christmas and purges us of our hates and our lack of faith in our kind. Without this season of good will we would become sordid indeed.

The most hopeless, hapless, helpless individual in all the world is the unbeliever—the unbeliever in everything that is worth while—the individual who does not believe in man; who does not believe in woman; who frowns on ideals who mock his faith; who scorns love as a weakness and who worships at the shrine of Self. He goes his lonely, unlighted way, snatching at gems and discovering that they are only dross when he finds them in his hand. For happiness does not depend on what we wrest from the world. Happiness depends upon ability to enjoy. And we can enjoy the things we have only to the degree in which we are permitted to share them with others.

Study those faces in this Christmas shopping season.

See that white-haired old man, whose step is slow, whose hands are palsied, but whose eyes are bright with a light that is but a reflection of the spark of gladness that nestles in his soul and warms him and makes him content. A grandfather, perhaps! Some place a child is standing at a window, dreaming of the generous-hearted Santa Claus—conceiving whom Grandpa has told wonderful stories. How slowly the days creep by for this child! It jumps from its warm bed in the morning and rushes to its mother, with the oft-repeated question:

"Is this Christmas, mama?"

"Why, no," says mother, "not yet, but pretty soon."

"Tomorrow?" Will tomorrow be Christmas, mama?

You know how it is. You know if you ever had a child in your house at Christmas time.

The old man in the department store is dreaming of that child as he inspects a doll or a woolly little horse or this or that. Before so very long, perhaps, a shadowy figure—the figure of death—will stand at his bedside, and touch his forehead and say, "Come—come with me." But today he lives. No king in all his glory has ever wrung from life a joy that was deeper than his joy now, as he stands in a tiny city of toys and chuckles at a vision of a Christmas morning now near at hand. What if the road he has traveled has been hard? Has he not found his reward in a child who runs her fingers thru his soft, white hair as she snuggles in his arms when story-telling time has come? Perhaps there have been days when his tongue was sharp, when his heart was hard, but what ever venom there may have been on his tongue is dissolved now, and a song stirs in his heart. For Christmas means peace. "Good Will Toward Men," and good will toward boys and good will toward little girls who stand at windows and dream of Santa Claus.

Thus are we reclaimed at Christmas time—reclaimed from ourselves, our worst enemies. Thus is the course of our sordid selfishness interrupted, so that we emerge from the Christmas season better equipped morally to go our way.

It isn't the gift that we give that counts. It's the gift that we receive thru giving that makes of Christmas a Christmas season of joy.

Gratitude

Misadventures are accustomed to receive some strange letters from natives. Here is a letter of gratitude which arrived a short time ago at a well-known medical mission hospital in India:

Dear and Fair Madam—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearly unfortunate wife will no longer be under your care, she having left this world for the next on the night of the 21st ult. For your help in this matter I shall ever remain grateful.—Yours reverently."

Birthplace of Conqueror

Normandy is now a department of France bordering on the English channel. It took its name from the Norsemen who settled there in the Ninth century. For many years it was a duchy and its ruler, William, conquered England in 1066 and established a Norman dynasty.

"Roll your own" is a fine slogan, when it comes to bank rolls.

The wife doesn't hold his arm because she loves him, but because that is the easiest way to stop him when she sees a shop window worth while.

READ NEWSPAPERS

The woman who knows her paper from the date line to the want ads can pick an argument with her husband about blondes becoming extinct, or a candidate's chances, and the result is that she gets all the argument she wants without interfering in the least with her domestic happiness.

Instead of panning one of her husband's associates' wives she can lamb the harpoon into some dame who is dragging her husband through the divorce courts, or she can grill the dramatic critic who doesn't like a certain show as much as she does. She can voice an opinion about a bit of news and throw more of a scare into her husband than if she tried to crown him with the goldfish.

Women read the papers more carefully than men do. At least this is the consensus of opinion in newspaper circles, where a close tab is kept on the tastes of people and the things that interest people.

The women who married a man to reform him find solace in the thought that, even legislation cannot do it.

Hoped He Was an

A young golfer on the local course was introduced by the master to Doctor Jones, a player who had no partner. Jones was a quiet, serious-looking man, and the young golfer played an unemotional game until the third hole, when the younger player found that a perfectly good drive had ended unexpectedly in a shockingly difficult bunker. He glared at the ball, his face becoming more and more red. Then he turned to his opponent and said, "Excuse me, sir," he said, "but before I play this accursed shot, do you mind telling me whether you are a D. D. or an M. D.?"

Early Taverns Primitive

In some taverns in early Colonial days there were several beds in a room and, if all were occupied, the traveler would, without ceremony, lie down by the side of its occupant and share the bed with him without care or curiosity as to the identity of his casual bed fellow.

If he should be so fortunate as to find an empty bed, and should ask for clean sheets, he would be looked upon as an aristocrat or otherwise abnormal person, for sheets were changed only at regular periods, more or less distant from each other, the almpace being the only guide.

SCHOOL NEWS
Chapel exercises were held Thursday morning at the Chelsea high school with a very interesting musical program. Mrs. J. V. Burg sang "I'll Forget You" and "My Little House" which were very beautifully rendered and greatly enjoyed by the student body. The orchestra appeared in two numbers "Flag of Truce" and "The Merry Peasant." Miss Lucia Hueston favored with a solo and Paul Barbour with a violin solo. In keeping with the season Christmas carols were sung by pupils who were selected from the intermediate and grammar grades.

School will close Thursday night for the holiday vacation. Tests for the fourth month of school have been given during the past week. School will re-open the 3rd of January.

An all-high Christmas party was given at the gymnasium Wednesday evening. A program consisting of numbers by the ukelele club and the girls' glee club, a piano solo by Ruth Freeman, and a reading by Marian Crafts was given during the earlier part of the evening. This was followed by the distribution of gifts by Santa Claus, after which refreshments were served. Dancing furnished the pastime for the remainder of the evening.

Have Different Meanings

The words "practicable" and "practical" are sometimes confused in usage. "Practicable" is that which is capable of being accomplished, while "practical" refers to that which can actually be turned to account. For instance, aerial navigation is "practicable" on a small scale; it is not yet a "practical" means of ordinary communication.

The Winning of BARBARA WORTH

From the famous novel by HAROLD BELL WRIGHT
With Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky
Great as a novel! Greater as a motion picture! A tremendous spectacle! A glorious achievement! Faithfully depicts the struggle of a courageous group who fought and suffered that the vast desert wastes might be turned into a fertile kingdom.
Its bigness of theme. Its romance. The thrill of titanic human combat. The gigantic flood episode. Stupendous drama. The world will say: "The Winning of Barbara Worth" is one of the greatest pictures of all time.

MANCHESTER—About 10:30 Sunday night, while retiring with her young son Bobbie in an upstairs bedroom, the attention of Mrs. Alvin Clark was attracted by a slight noise beside the window and looking up she saw the face of a man close to the glass. To be sure, she was frightened and gave vent to a scream without taking a second look, and consequently was unable to recognize the features. When Mr. Clark arrived home tail young philosopher, who, followed by a heterogenous dog, strolled homeward. The exulting gaiety of Christmas Eve laughter and brightly lighted houses intensified Martin's loneliness. He passed the house where she lived and strained his eyes for a glimpse of her. In fancy, he told her about Spud, the market, and even hinted of his love for her.

From down the street a group of children, carolled "Silent Night." Martin smiled bitterly. He too had believed that story of the birth of a Christ child, once. A "prof" at college had refuted it. Too bad. Pretty story.

She had come to the window now to listen. How lovely she—D-n!

The carol had broken off into terrified screams. A car sped away. Martin found frightened children shivering over the writhing form of a boy.
 Martin carried him to the light. It was the fellow who bought bits of liver and now and then a scrawny soup bone.

The girl must have seen the accident for she had come out and was saying that she had called an ambulance. They both rode through the crunching snow to the hospital and waited silently.

"Not as bad as we had feared," the doctor finally announced. "Sad case, though. Little fellow is moaning now about who'll take care of his mother.
 Rent not paid, he says. Seems he's been earning all they've had." When I told him he might be here three months—well, I never saw a kid so down-hearted.

Martin hesitated. "I've got two hundred dollars," he heard himself saying. "If that would do the kid and his mother." He had a fleeting desperate picture of another ten months of saving and stalling off the second mortgage.

He walked home with the girl. Her name was Mary. A regular Christmas name, he said. Shantail thing to do.
 "That was a beautiful thing," said Mr. Bowman, she told him. "Did you notice the peace and happiness in that little fellow's face after the doctor had told him? Mr. Bowman, I—"

she hesitated. "I don't suppose you'd care to, but I—would like to have you eat Christmas dinner with us. I went up this afternoon to ask you, but you were entirely too busy to notice me and—"

"Too busy to notice you?" Martin gasped. "I thought you'd never noticed me!"

Spud had been waiting. His sleepy accusation as he arose from the doorstep was scarcely noticed. The song of the little injured caroler was running through Martin's mind and replacing a cynical philosophy.

"It was a silent night like this," he said. "Thoughtfully, he looked up. In the east, one star seemed larger than the others."

Ernest Wilson of the Wilson Creamery Co., Detroit, visited at the farm of Chris Klingler and Son, Monday, and congratulated them for owning the best producing herd of cattle from which products are shipped to their creamery. There are twenty head of cattle in the herd.

A considerable number of upholstered seats recently purchased of the Heywood-Wakefield company of Chicago, have been installed in the Princess Theatre. The seats are heavily padded, covered in brown leather with mahogany backs and will greatly assist in promoting the comfort of the theatre's patrons.

Mrs. Mary Harper, aged 77 years, a former resident of Chelsea, died on Wednesday, December 14, at the home of her sister in Jackson. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Della Raven of Jackson, and Mrs. Bush of North Lake. The funeral was held in Jackson Saturday and the remains were brought here and burial was in Oak Grove cemetery.

The most beautiful municipal Xmas tree that has ever been placed at the flag pole was put in place the first of this week. The colored electric lights are very effective and are visible for considerable distance. The tree was placed in position and wired by Supt. Peter Boehm and his assistants, W. E. Riemenschneider and Grant McKune. Keusch & Fahrner furnished the tree from their stock.

Business people are reporting the heaviest Christmas shopping experience in years, and every evidence is that Santa's pack will be laden with good things for everyone. In spite of the heavy buying there is yet a good assortment of fine gifts to be found on display in most all the stores but it is expected Saturday night will find these sadly depleted. Therefore—do your shopping as early as possible, even though late.

The Chelsea Kiwanis club held its annual Christmas party Monday evening, each member bringing a gift. In addition the entertainment committee composed of W. R. Daniels, Bert Turnbull and Fred Klingler, presented each member with a gift—a toy.

Christmas gifts were turned over to a Christmas committee, who will see that they are distributed among children who might not otherwise receive anything from Santa. Music for the evening was furnished by a three-piece orchestra composed of G. H. Barbour, banjo, Paul Barbour, violin,

Silence Seldom Hurts
It takes days to get over the worry that results from having talked too much. Only rarely does one regret keeping still.

College-Grad Winners
Several compilations have been made as to how many of the people who are included in Who's Who in America are college-bred, based on various editions. The results have been about the same. In round numbers, 77 out of every 100 persons giving educational data, whose names appear in the 1922-1923 edition, attended college; 84 out of every 100 were college graduates.

Decline of the Apron
The apron is worn today by women who are not ashamed to be in earlier centuries it was a piece of clothing assumed by the rarer and even royalty. The apron was originally a napron, but became affixed to the word "apron" which was eventually formed into "a nickname"

Bad News

Jenkins married, and in due course he presented his wife to his mother. His friends flocked round to render their congratulations and, incidentally, smoke Bill's cigars.

Jones was on his way to the house when he met Brown returning.

"Where are you going?" asked the latter.

"Oh, I'm just going round to see Bill and wish him luck with that youngster of his."

"Then you're too late."

"What? Surely it hasn't died?"

"No, the youngster's all right, but the cigar box is empty."

Tchekov's Comfort

Tchekov, the famous Russian writer, has been called the most generous of admirers and the most helpful of critics. In the fact that not all men of talent can hope to be generous he saw nothing to discourage the man of lesser power. His close friend Bunin quotes Tchekov as saying:

"There are big dogs and little dogs, but the little dogs should not be disheartened by the existence of the big dogs. All must bark—and bark with the voice God gave them."

METHODIST EPISCOPAL

Fred I. Walker, Pastor

The season's greetings are extended to the public in a cordial invitation to share with us the Christmas spirit in the following program of services for next Sunday, December 25th—

Morning worship and praise, 10:00 o'clock. Sermon topic, "His Name."

Bible school, 11:15.

Epworth and Junior Leagues, 6:30.

Evening worship, 7:30.

CONGREGATIONAL

Rev. A. E. Potts, Pastor

Morning worship, 10 o'clock. Sermon subject: "Christmas: the Prophetic Day."

Sunday school, 11:15. Frank E. Storms, Supt.

No evening service.

Not for many years has Christmas fallen on Sunday. I am sure not many of our constituency will fail to take advantage of this rare opportunity. Your pastor sincerely hopes not anyway. I suggest we all attend church—Christmas morning. WHAT DO YOU SAY?

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

P. H. Grabowski, Pastor.

Friday, December 23rd—

Christmas celebration by the smaller members of the Sunday school, 7:30 p. m. Our entire congregation is invited to this happy event. Let us feel young again and rejoice with our children in the coming of our Lord and Saviour as a babe in Bethlehem.

Sunday, December 25th—

Christmas service at 7:00 a. m. This is to be in the form of a candle-light service. The sight of the burning candles in the sanctuary early in the morning of our Saviour's birthday will lend a special beauty, solemnity and impressiveness to the service. Don't miss it!

Because of the early service there will be no Sunday school on this day.

Christmas

[1927]

Let us, for the day at least, forget the things that worry us. In their places let us substitute thoughts of the many things for which we may be thankful. Let us forgive our enemies and lean more heavily upon the staff of friendship. Thus each of us will become a center of happiness and able to spread that cheer which is at the heart of Christmas observance.

No season of the year so delightfully excites one's imagination or calls more sympathetically to one's tenderest emotions. We do not need to be reminded that the festive occasion commemorates the announcement of the religion of peace and love, for the feeling is all around us. It expresses itself in tranquility for the old and in joyous promptings for the young.

Happiness is in the air.

The penetration of the Christmas spirit encourages us in the faith that the world is growing better, for it cannot be otherwise than that the recurrent planting of such seeds year by year tends more and more toward the fruition of universal love and brotherhood.

Our greeting to you is for a merry Christmas and the wish that all of us may carry much of the spirit and blessings of the day into every other day of the year. Thus shall we draw nearer to the fulfillment of the ideal typified by Christmas.
