BARNUM WAS RIGHT
Barnum's most emphatic point—one which no one could accuse him of not following—was to advertise. Persistence was important. He said that when an advertisement first appears "a man does not see it, the second time he notices it, the third time he reads it, the fourth time he thinks about it, the fifth he speaks to his wife about it, and the sixth or seventh he is ready to purchase."

Advertising men today would probably agree with him. At any rate he made money by taking his own advice. —New York Times.

CHEVROLET SALES KEEP CLIMBING
Production for the month just ended in its history, and with its factory and sales organizations operating at peak efficiency, the Chevrolet Motor Company in February set a new high monthly production record, while retail domestic deliveries were more than 20,000 units above February 1927.

Responding to a demand unprecedented was 116,943 cars and trucks. Domestic retail deliveries for this period are estimated at 80,000 units as against 58,233 in February 1927. Standard liners pay well.

We Have Our Own Ideas

as to what constitutes desirable service on the part of a funeral director. There are ideas that we have formulated during the years that we have been serving; ideas that are time-tried and proved worthy.

One of them is that the funeral director should render personal service. We have found it an assurance of satisfaction to make this idea a policy in our work.

JUST AMONG OURSELVES

With the retirement of the Messrs. McClure from active connection with The Standard it has been necessary for the new publisher to secure employees to take their places. No matter how efficient these new men may be it will naturally require a long time for them to become familiar with all the details of the office, and to become acquainted with the patrons of the office, and we trust all will be patient until the new publisher and the new employees become settled in their new connection.

The general public can help a lot to assist in making the office force efficient if all will strive to get copy to the office as early in the week as possible. It will be utterly impossible to handle all the news and advertising matter if all wait until late in the week, and really the plan of being late with notices and advertising copy is only a matter of habit. We have but four days to do the job well, we must distribute work over these four days in such a manner that we will not "be buried" on Wednesday and Thursday. Advertisers desire, of course, that the paper appear on time, friends who contribute local items also desire to have their stories appear the current week, and these conditions can only be realized when all cooperate with us in an effort to produce an attractive, readable newspaper.

Of course George Davis, who has been employed on local newspapers for many years, will remain under the new management as will also Freeman A. Huston, who came in the office a few years ago as "a devil" and who has become most efficient.

G. F. Adams comes from Burr Oak to take the position as foreman of the office. He has had many years experience and comes to us well recommended as a competent workman and a good citizen. He will soon move his family here and become permanently located.

With the cooperation of all friends and patrons of The Standard we shall be able to keep the newspaper up to its present high standard, but without that assistance the task will be difficult and practically impossible of accomplishment.

We are especially proud of our very large and efficient corps of correspondents and we trust they will continue to send in their news letters every week. These neighborhood items are the spice of a weekly newspaper and we desire to fill our columns each week with the local happenings of this entire section, because The Standard is a community newspaper in its broadest sense. If there are any sections not already covered we shall be glad to have someone take up the work which they will find very interesting when once started.

HONESTY OF THE YOUNG

Scientific investigators are learning many facts about children which it is suspected parents have long known. After the experts have learned all there is to learn from their three years' study of "honesty" among school children, they will probably know no more than every parent of a normal child already knows.

Tests have been devised to discover tendencies to lie, cheat or steal. At the same time ordinary intelligence tests were given in order to show the relation between good sense and good character. The results indicate that the most intelligent child is likely to be the most honest.

A number of questions designed to probe the religious and filial feelings were answered as might have been expected, and the children were convicted of "over-statement." Apparently they all thought it desirable that they should seem pious and dutiful, and they said that they thought it their duty to read the Bible every day, to pick up broken glass in the street, to speak kindly to their parents and instructors, and to try to get the license number of a motor vehicle if they suspected the driver of speeding.

Many children have an uncanny knack of reading the mind of a questioner. They are as shrewdly observant as monkeys, and a really intelligent inquirer often has to resort to trickery to get to the bottom of their busy little minds.

NO PITY WANTED

A Montclair county farmer makes a righteous complaint that entirely too much adverse advertising is being done about farm difficulties. He declares that the farmer who has the determination to make good at farming and that he wants no pity.

That is the right philosophy. We felt that the public speaker who talked about farmy papers at the country life conference at Lansing should have been booted from the platform.

Here is a little inside secret of the newspaper business that has a bearing on the point at issue. A generation ago it was quite the fashion for the editors to crack jokes in their papers about their financial straits and the consequent need of help from subscribers. At present any newspaper which humorously or seriously prints any hints of poverty is hoisted.

We admire the farmer who resents hotly having any one pity him. He has the stuff in him to make good. —Greenville Daily News.

THE ANCIENT HIGHWAY

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

All that an old road can suggest—a road blazed by explorers, worn by adventurers, homeseekers, strolling lovers, a road beaten by fugitives and pursuers—is dramatized in this novel.

The first who trudges the ancient highway to Quebec is Clifton Brant, exile of many years, returning to his ruined home. He is but one of a goodly company who troop into the tale—mighty men of valor and fair descendants of the old seigniors.

Modern love and gallantry are the book's theme, but the ghosts of a historic past haunt its pages.

The Ancient Highway takes you down the world-wide highway of Romance; while woodland beauty brings Nature near, in that communion which gentle lovers find a healing and tonic force.

At the annual meeting of the Maple Grove cemetery association, held in the Sylvan Center school house last Saturday, the following officers were chosen: President, N. W. Laird; secretary, Samuel Guthrie, treasurer, Emerson Lessor.

Miss Lavinia's Goblets

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

"THINK he goes again!" whispered Julia Bradley to her sister, Martha, as she peeked through the tightly drawn lace curtains of the little-used parlor. "Third time this week. Now what do you make of it?"

"Come out of this ice box," came Martha's friendly reply. "and I'll tell you. There's nothing more to see now has gone in."

The two shawled old ladies, both such victims of rheumatism that such victims of rheumatism that watching their neighbors and gossiping over them was the only such thing they could do, slipped out to the front cheerful sitting room.

"I think," said Martha, "that Lavinia has given up expecting that Cooper will get over his ten-year grudge and setting her cap at this new old fellow from the city. Seems he's terrible well-to-do."

"You're right," said Julia emphatically. "she settled down to her knitting. 'I don't blame Lavinia, but what a city man can see in an old maid like that when with his money and smart looks he could get most anyone in his own town, for all his age—that's what gets me.'"

"Did anyone ever really know," queried Martha, "just what it was between the two of them that broke up the match and kept them apart for ten years this spring?"

"Well, they say," said Julia. "it was something to do with those goblets of her grandmother's that Lavinia set such store by. She had the even dozen, until Ben up and broke one. They quarreled over it and one thing led to another—silly young things they were then—and well, you know as much as I do."

It was really unfortunate that the cold had driven the two old women from their post at the window quite so soon. Hardly had they scuttled out to the stove when Ben Cooper walked slowly down the street, paused a moment at Miss Lavinia's gate, then continued on his way.

"Is it possible?" Ben was thinking. "that I am going to see the only woman I ever loved, a fool for walked out with by an old duffer from town? He's called there now half a dozen times. If what everybody tells me is true, and that means business. What a fool I have been not to have pocketed my pride years ago!"

A few minutes later, the Bradley sisters were rewarded by repeated trips into the parlor by seeing the courtly figure of Mr. Thomas Wendell emerge from their neighbor's house across the street. They would have given much to have heard what he said as he lifted his hat to "Lavinia."

"I can count on your answer, Wednesday without fail?" I thank you."

That evening, well after dark, when Julia and her sister were peacefully knitting together, Ben Cooper made his way to Lavinia's. They knew nothing of his visit. Lavinia herself, when she saw his once familiar figure at her door, drew back with her hand still white and shivering, against her throat. "Why, Ben—?" she breathed.

"Is me, Lavinia," he said hoarsely. "I—I—that is, I just had to see you. May I come in?"

A moment later and he was seated stiffly on the edge of the long, horse-hair sofa.

"Sit me, Lavinia," he demanded stonily. "Is it true that you are going to marry that old fossil from the city?"

Lavinia gave an amused, throaty chuckle. "I don't know what business it is of yours," she said, "but I'm perfectly willing to tell you he's coming for my answer Wednesday."

"Wednesday?" repeated Ben helplessly. "Wednesday?" Then, with one single stride, he came over to her and picked her up in his strong arms. "When he comes," he said hoarsely, "you tell him you're going to be married Thursday to me. What fools we have been, Lavinia! What fools we have been!" his voice broke and he pressed his head against Lavinia's hair as Lavinia's two arms crept slowly around his neck.

Wednesday, Mr. Thomas Wendell came for his answer, not old it, apparently displease him.

"I've decided to sell them, Mr. Thomas, for they were my mother's and her mother's before her. There were the twelve of them, but my chance accidentally broke one of them. I'm sorry to have kept you dangling for a price, but at last, seeing I'm going to be married, I guess I can give the money for my trousseau."

"Is that so?" said Mr. Thomas Wendell politely. "My congratulations, and I'm grateful to get the goblets."

"Funny," said Martha Bradley crossly. "how some people have all the luck. Not enough men to go round and Lavinia with two of 'em on her hands at once, now that Ben's come pouring again, and some say they're going to be married tomorrow."

"Lavinia to me, sister," said Julia, "I wouldn't put it beyond Lavinia to have kept this city man on tenterhooks just to make him jealous. In a small town, he was bound to hear that some one was calling on his old girl. I think she did it on purpose."

Martha laid down her knitting. "Julia," she said slowly, "you said a month ago!"

COUNTY P. T. A. TO MEET IN ANN ARBOR, MARCH 13TH

Seasons To Be Held at The Perry School, Packard Street, Forenoon and Afternoon.
The Perry school auditorium on Packard Street, Ann Arbor, is the place selected for the spring meeting on Tuesday, Mar. 13, of the Washtenaw County Council of P. T. A. This meeting has also been declared a teachers' institute by Supt. Webster.

The morning session from ten o'clock to twelve noon will be opened by a moving picture show entitled, "Golden School Days," occupying about one-half hour. It will be given by our county agricultural agent, H. C. Osler, and will be shown thru the courtesy of the Farmer's Wife Magazine. After the picture show will come a short business meeting and election of officers and an hour given over to hearing the expression of many members on important P. T. A. questions, among which is, "Shall we take a vote of approval of the new education bill which is now before Congress?"

For the afternoon session, from 1:00 o'clock to 3:30 o'clock, a very fine program has been arranged, opened with community singing and a solo by Rudolph Jedele of Ann Arbor. Three speakers have been secured for the afternoon. Dr. William Davis, director of bureau of mouth hygiene, Lansing, will speak on children's dentistry; Professor Whitmore of the department of landscape design of the University of Michigan will give a talk on "Shrubbery for the School Yard" with lantern slides showing some "before and after" pictures. The last speaker will be Miss Isabelle Becker of the rural division of our State Department of Public Instruction at Lansing. Miss Becker will talk on "Changes in Teaching Theory and Practice" since our average school of Washtenaw county was built 56 years ago.

A set of interesting posters will also be on exhibit showing improvements that have come into the average rural home in our country since the average rural school was built 56 years ago. These posters are the contribution of Mrs. Grant Currie with the cooperation of several members. It is hoped that a large crowd will be at this all-day meeting.

MANY CHANGES IN MICHIGAN ELECTION LAWS

Secretary of State Points Out The Changes Enacted By Last Legislative Session

John S. Haggerty, secretary of state, points out the changes in the new general election law, created by the 1927 legislature, which became effective this year.

The date of the general primary election has been changed from the second Tuesday in September to the Tuesday following the first Monday in September; that is, Sept. 4, this year.

Nominating petitions for candidates to be elected at the November election must be filed with the secretary of state, county and city clerks on or before the seventh Tuesday preceding the September primary, July 17, this year.

One section of the new general election laws, that respecting county conventions, is subject to a referendum and does not become effective until voted upon and ratified by a majority of the electors of the county in which it is submitted. This section pertains to organization of the convention, selection of delegates and other details.

Calls for county conventions, in the even numbered years, must be issued not less than 15 days before such county convention.

The state central committees of all political parties must have three members for each congressional district, one of whom must be a woman. Herebefore, there were only two members for each congressional district.

Members of boards of review of townships, are to be elected this year.

The presidential preference primaries are to be held the first Monday in April, which, this year, is April 2.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW TO BE HELD IN DETROIT

Space Already Allotted to Exhibitors From All Sections Of The Country
Mrs. Ford To Have Display

The North American Flower show will be held in Convention hall, March 17th to 25th. This event in Detroit has created much interest in Michigan, and will be of special interest to local people.

The chairman of the retail florists' exhibits reports twenty exhibits of 200 square feet each already booked. This becomes more interesting when one recalls that the national flower show recently reported only eighteen retail exhibits booked. There are no less than sixty-one commercial exhibitors with contracts calling for over $15,000. There is not much space left and it is now certain that all the space will be taken.

Mrs. Henry Ford will have a replica of her rose gardens in Dearborn, which will occupy 17,500 square feet.

Henry Stockmans, who planned the layout of the national flower show held in the same building last year, will also supervise the plans this year for the North American flower show.

INTENSIVE FARMING

FLORIDA PAID FLORAL TRIBUTE TO HARRY BROOKS' MEMORY

With as an elaborate ritual as the little town nestled by the sea could give, the people of Melbourne, Florida, paid a hero's homage to the memory of Harry Brooks, Ford chief pilot, whose plane crashed into the ocean a mile from shore.

A press dispatch stated that nearly 8,000 persons crowded the beach not far from where the youthful flyer went down with his plane. They lifted their voices in prayer and song, after which the military tributes of three volleys and "taps" were offered.

The waves, which have failed to give up the body after nearly a week of constant vigil by searchers, literally were covered with flowers and wreaths by 400 school children, led by reserve army of fliers.

"His immortal life began here," said the Rev. Alfred Evenden, Jr., delivering the memorial sermon. "Harry Brooks was a hero. Life today is keyed to the heroic. Not to seek an exalted plane of living in a world full to the skies of heroism is to be out of tune."

Taking as his text the eighth verse of the 25th chapter of Isaiah, the minister recited above the roar of the pounding surf "He will swallow death in victory."

"Consequently we do not mourn as those without hope, for death to the believer is but the stepping stone to greater life. Harry Brooks had no fear of death. He was brave and true."

"Our hearts go out in sympathy to the parents and all those in sorrow at this time, but for Harry Brooks the fearless flyer, he needs not our sympathy. God has kept his promise. Death has been swallowed up in victory. America has lost a hero but he has gained a crown."

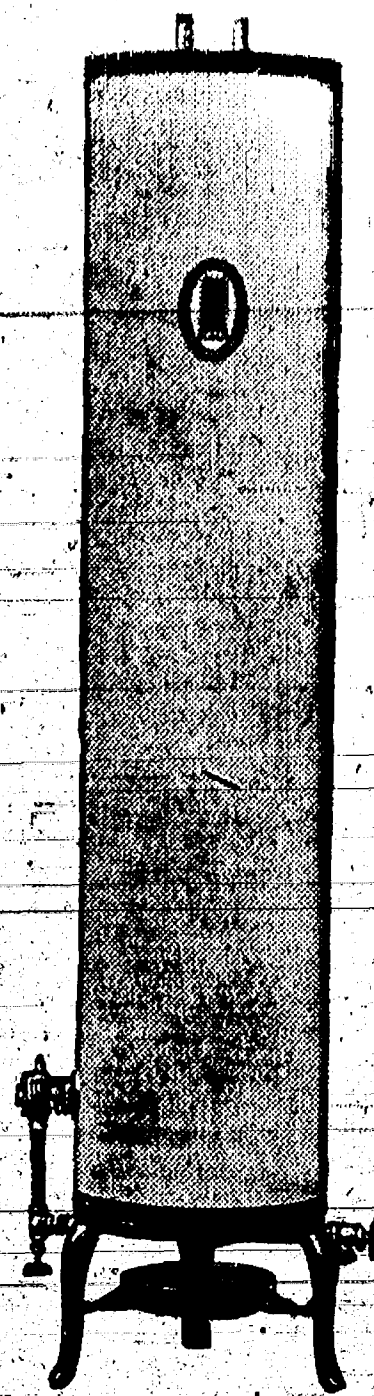

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

Some good main dishes for Lenten menus are: Omelets of all kinds; cheese soufflé and cheese toast; macaroni and cheese; goldenrod eggs; bean loaf; corn pudding; vegetable hash; corn fritters; fish, fresh, smoked, or canned; baked, fried, scalloped, in chowder; crab, shrimp, scallops, clams, and oysters in many dishes.

Here's a good menu made from materials nearly everyone can get: roast stuffed shoulder of lamb; baked cabbage with apples; string beans (canned or fresh); currant jelly; canned pear salad; chocolate pie. With bread stuffing and pie for dessert no potatoes are needed, but if you are accustomed to having them, they can be boiled whole and browned with the meat.

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

JOHN GATEBY realized too late that he had gone a bit further than he should in his dictatorial attitude toward Netta. Her lovely mouth was set in the lines that spelled defiance to his wishes.

"You have no right whatever to be suspicious of my actions or to question the truth of my statements. I have told you I spent the week-end with my aunt, and if you choose to doubt it you can have your ring. Here it is," And Netta withdrew the little engagement ring from her finger and returned it to John.

"Netta, please—I'm frightfully sorry—I can't help being jealous—it's my nature."

"Jealous if you like, but you need not be suspicious. And besides, you can change your nature if you want to badly enough or if you want to hold my attention."

"I'll try, if you'll take this ring again."

Netta relented as she laid on one or two previous occasions, and John put the ring back on her finger.

"I can't see why you won't tell me where you and your aunt went—just the same," put in John.

"This is aunt's and my secret," laughed Netta, "and if Aunt Jane approves you may be quite certain that everything is quite above your suspicion."

No John had to be content. He had not as yet made sufficient success to give Netta the kind of home she wanted and they were both working hard toward that happy ending to their engagement—the marriage and a charming home.

There was always a crowd of young people at the Lester's big hotel, and the most prominent among them was Alicia Boyd, who was usually the center of any gathering.

Jack Forester was never very far away from Alicia. When Jack could not get Alicia to dance with him—he to play tennis or golf—he might occupy himself with Della Berry, who while not as rich as Miss Boyd was much more beautiful.

Their gay companions began to speak of Della Berry as Jack's "second-best girl." And this remark had just been repeated to Della Berry, when their story opens.

Della had turned her beautiful head and stared very hard at Belle Cannon. "Just what—did you say, Belle?" she asked.

"Only," repeated Belle in a provoked tone, "only that some one has said that you, and Jack Forester's second-best girl! It is, of course, just a joke, my dear! Please do not be angry, Della!"

Della smiled at her. "It is so silly that I should not be offended. I suppose, Belle, but it is also a lie, and that, of course, I abominate." She bowed gayly and left her companion to come face to face with Alicia Boyd and Jack Forester who were coming up the veranda steps.

"Oh, Della," came Alicia's languid voice, "do have pity on me and go to the football game with Jack! I have already made an engagement—and Jack is furious!"

"So sorry, Alicia," came Della's prompt answer, "but I have another

There are 18 breeds of domestic rabbits recognized by the National Rabbit Federation as being distinctive in color. In some instances there are several varieties of a breed, alike in color and type, but with a wide range of color variation. These breeds and varieties are divided into two separate classes, or groups, known as "utility" and "fancy."

The coffee is made much than in the United States, a large cupful of coffee to a cupful of water being the formula. Coffee is placed directly in water and the whole brought to a boil. It is then sweetened to the taste of sugar, but no cream is added.

To the Voters of Chelsea:

Having been urged to accept the nomination for the office of Village President on the People's Party ticket I will appreciate the support of the electors of the village, at the election to be held next Monday.

SILVER CUP AWARDED

IN EGG RACE

The silver cup awarded for high winter egg production in the International Egg Laying Contest at Michigan State College goes to W. C. Eckard, Paw Paw, whose pen of White Leghorns produced 840 eggs from November 1 to March 1.

Another pen of White Leghorns owned by W. A. Downs, Washington, ran the winners a close race and finished second only 4.6 points behind the winners.

The contest winners this year were on a point system that considers the number of eggs and their weight. Also their weight than those that were expected.

POWER COMPANIES UNITE FOR IMPROVED SERVICE

The Detroit Edison Co. And The Consumers Power Company Connect Lines for Emergencies

By connecting the lines of the Detroit Edison Company and the Consumers Power Company there is now available fifty thousand horse power in electric energy interchangeable in case of emergencies. Engineers and mechanics of the two companies have worked months on the proposition and the hook-up entailed the erection of three, special sub-stations and sixty miles of transmission lines.

The connection gives both companies increased insurance against loss of time for any of the manufacturing plants, homes or cities they serve. It makes the 50,000 horse power available to either system from the other in times of emergency.

According to officials, the lines will be "energized" at all times, enabling one system to borrow from the other without delay and for any reason. The arrangement will be of special importance in helping either company handle peak-loads, engineers said.

The connection is physical as far as electrical power is concerned, but does not affect the financial or managerial organization of either company concerned, it was announced.

The Detroit Edison Co. has an electric generating capacity of 359,547 horse-power and serves more than 510,000 customers. It generates most of its power at steam plants at Trenton Channel, Connors Creek, Delray and Marysville.

The Consumers Power Co.'s lines form a gigantic horseshoe from Three Rivers on the west eastward through Southern Michigan and north to the AuSable River where power is generated. It serves 263,033 customers and has a generative capacity of 377,020 horse-power.

It was necessary, because of different voltages of the two systems to construct special transformers at each end of the connection. The Consumers Power Co. has erected a large sub-station on the north side of Jackson from which its lines wind over the hills to Cement City south of Jackson where they connect with the lines of Inter-Connections, Ltd., a company composed of officials of the interested corporations.

Inter-Connections Ltd. maintains the power line from Cement City east to Saline where it joins the Detroit Edison Co. line running west from Ypsilanti.

Jackson—Four house fires and three grass blazes kept the city fire department "hot" on the trail last Thursday.

Unadilla—Eugene Gallup has been drawn to serve as a juror at the March term of the Livingston county circuit court.

Saline—Melvin Thomas, of Pittsfield township was seriously injured Tuesday when a young bull which he was leading attacked him. When his brother returned home he found him unconscious in the yard. The animal attacked the brother, but was conquered after some trouble—Observer.

Howell—The Howell school has become so crowded that the school board are contemplating opening the West ward school building. When the new school was built in 1920 the West ward building was stripped of everything which could be used in the new school—Republican.

Howell—Frank Kelley, of Pinckney, was arrested by the Howell sheriff's department last week Sunday on a charge of violation of liquor law. Arraigned in city court, Monday, he waived examination and Judge Yelland bound him over to circuit court under bail bonds of $2000.—Democrat.

Northville—Postmaster Neal has received word of the shipment of the new routing casing for the city carries service for Northville and the equipment is daily expected. Soon as it arrives the service will be put in effect which now seems likely to be before March 15. Of the exact time the public will be duly notified.—Record.

Manchester—Rev. Peter Schaefer went to the hospital at Ann Arbor Wednesday to undergo another operation for bladder trouble, which has afflicted him a long time. The operations are only temporary relief, there being no cure, it is claimed.—Enterprise.

Mr. Schaefer is the father of Mrs. Adam Houck of Chelsea.

Grass Lake—Burglars entered the Palmer Rowe garage last Wednesday night, entrance being gained by prying open a rear window: A gun, 20 packages of cigarettes and a watch were stolen. No clue has been found of the thieves.—News.

L. G. Palmer of Chelsea, is the senior member of the Palmer-Rowe firm.

Bridgewater—When parties from Ann Arbor, with Mr. Blanchard of Brooklyn as buyer, purchased all the farms in Sharon Hollow with the exception of two, that of Lewis Grossman and one other, Bridgewater property also took a boom, as these farmers always naturally wanted to stay on farms and purchased elsewhere.

See Brittenwiche purchased the Soley farm, Floyd Pardee the Weldman farm, Mrs. Mary Widdiman, it is reported has purchased the Ben Feldkamp residence in Manchester.

HOURS THE FARMER WORKS VARIES WITH KIND OF CROP

The amount of labor required in operating a farm varies widely with the nature of the crops produced and with the diversification of the activities. Twenty acres of truck crops may require as much labor and return as large an income as 200 acres of grain, hay and general livestock. The United States Department of Agriculture has studied some of the farm enterprises and has compiled a table indicating the approximate number of days work required for various crops and in caring for livestock.

A day's work is counted as 10 hours for a man or horse, and on this basis it is computed that an acre of timothy, alfalfa, or clover hay requires a day's work by a man and a horse for cutting, oats, wheat, barley, rye, buckwheat, and millet demand 2 man-days and 3 horse-days per acre. Potatoes vary according to locality. In the North 11 days for a man and 10 days for a horse are required, and in the South 18 days for a man and 7 days for a horse.

An acre of tobacco in Kentucky requires 35 days of work by a man and 8 days by a horse. One of the crops with the heaviest demand for labor is onion growing in Ohio. If grown from seed and sold in bunches an acre of onions these demands 140 man-days and 10 horse-days, but if grown from sets and sold in bunches this saves 56 man-days. Texas onions, sold by the crate, are more economical of labor, with 68 man-days and 14 horse-days an acre.

Winning story each week will be printed here the following week.

Frank Manikas, owner of two of Ann Arbor's newer restaurants, was born in Greece, in 1897, but came to this country in 1914 when he was only 17 years old. He completed his education in his native land, and then emigrated to the United States, beginning his experience in the restaurant trade in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. It was while there that he married, in 1920. He continued his work in that city for three more years, following which he came north to Ann Arbor, and again took up restaurant work. After only two years in Ann Arbor, he opened his own restaurant, The Lincoln, at 212 East Huron street. That was in 1925. In the succeeding years his industry, executive ability, and pleasant personality won him a strong clientele among Ann Arbor folk, and when the Butterfield Building was erected on South State street, he determined to open a second restaurant. The second Lincoln Restaurant, 233 South State street, has been open only since January 1, 1928, but even in that short time it has proved as popular among campus people as the first is with other residents. Mr. Manikas is a naturalized citizen of his adopted country. Coming here while still young, he grasped American customs quickly and easily, and is another boy from across the sea to make a good citizen and successful business man of himself in the United States. He is a member of the Fraternity Lodge No. 262, F. and A. M., and holds a membership in the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce.

FREIGHT TRUCK LINES
PLANNED BY INTERURBANS

New Motor Routes Will Parallel All Interurban Tracks in Michigan—Applications Filed

A Lansing dispatch to the Detroit News of Thursday declared the decline of electric interurban service in Michigan is indicated by the application filed with the Michigan Public Utility Commission Wednesday by the Michigan Railroad Co. and the Michigan Electric Railway Co., twin concerns operating Michigan's only interurban electric lines except those of the Detroit United Lines, now in receivership.

The companies ask authority to parallel their service lines with freight carrying motor trucks. Passenger bus lines already are being operated by the Southern Michigan Transportation Co., a subsidiary of the two electric companies, along the routes on which it is now proposed to establish freight service. The companies supply service between Lansing and Owosso, Jackson and Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Grand Rapids, Jackson and Ann Arbor and Flint and Saginaw.

Reports the electric lines would give way to busses has been current for several months. The company has denied, however, having any immediate intention of terminating the electric service.

Wayne E. Taylor, operator of a bus line between Owosso and Flint, has placed on file at the commission office an application for authority to establish a line between Lansing and Owosso. Action on this application will be taken by the commission in the event the electric service between the two cities is discontinued.
