Charming Young "Dandelion Jim"
By CLARISSA MACKIE
(Copyright)

It was a decided shock for Cornelia Meade, when she arrived at the little red prairie station where she had expected her uncle or one of the family to meet her, to find a perfectly strange young man in cowboy clothing and a broad hat in his hand, bowing to her.

"Miss Meade?" he asked pleasantly, and when she bowed he added, "Mr. Fisher was very sorry that he could not come himself, but his bad knee has bothered him today and he thought it best to keep it very quiet. Excuse me, please, but I must see to your baggage—if you will give me your checks—thank you."

"Who does he remind me of?" asked Cornelia, and, finding no answer, flushed a little at her odd interest in this cowboy attached to her uncle's ranch. Cornelia Meade rather prided herself on her aloof attitude toward young men—she was simply indifferent to every one of them. Sometimes her thoughts did steal away from her stern keeping and she would remember one summer when they stayed at a farm and she had met a boy—a farmer's lad several years older than herself, who had been the most charming playmate a small girl could have. There were other children, but none of them had the charm that young "Dandelion Jim" possessed.

Cornelia had never seen him or heard of him again.

"Ready, Miss Meade?" asked the young man's cheery voice, and she turned to find a large motor car in the back of which was her luggage.

"He knew how to drive and it was only a half-hour's stiff ride, feeling like the wind itself, with no fear of traffic officer, before they entered the wide gates of a comfortable ranch house, with a main hall and Aunt Kathie waiting from the broad veranda. She was warmly greeted and then they explained that both the "children" happened to be away from home for a few days.

"They did not expect you so soon, done, and they will be so disappointed," said Aunt Kathie, "but they will be home at once. As soon as we received your telegram, I telephoned to Kathie and she will be here this evening. Dick and a friend will arrive on the morning train. But, did you introduce Jim to Cornelia?" Jim called to Cornelia's driver.

"Yes, Mrs. Meade," he said, smiling, and Aunt Kathie, said, "Cornelia, this is one of our best friends, Jimmy Lyon, foreman of the ranch."

As Cornelia dressed after her bath a week later she thought of the week at the ranch, and her thorough enjoyment of all the sports of that outdoor land. She had written her mother that she would forego the trip to Europe this year, that her sister and parents were taking, if she might remain out here with her uncle and aunt.

"They were a merry crowd with Dick and Kathie, home and Dick's classmate, Jack Hunt. There was to be a dance that evening at a nearby ranch, and they were all going—even Jim. Jim confessed that he had considered it to tell the truth, this announcement made Cornelia very happy, for she was growing to like Jim Lyon more than she would have cared to confess. Little by little she had extracted information from the family—Jim Lyon was really from the East—this extremely good-looking young man, whom all the cowboys called "Dandy" and whom Cornelia had found looking at her from wistful blue eyes when he thought she was not glancing in his direction.

"When they came home together after the dance, Mr. Meade winked at his wife and murmured: 'Wonder what Cornelia's mother would think if the girl married our ranch foreman?'" Aunt Kathie laughed comfortably.

"If she knew what we know, Aunt, she wouldn't say a word," she could see. Here's Jim—my rich and well educated man because he likes the life—I suppose, though, if he should marry Cornelia, if she would have him, I mean, he would not come back here often."

"Perhaps they would both come back," said her husband sagely.

And the very next day it happened. Cornelia and Jim, riding toward Sweet Springs, dismounted there and rested in the shady spot.

"Please tell me your whole name," Jim said suddenly.

Jim Lyon looked at her with eager blue eyes. "My name is Daniel Donald Lyon, named for two uncles—my nickname has always been Dan D. Lyon."

"I wish it was Dandelion Jim," smiled Cornelia.

"Why? Why? Who told you that?" he used to be that out on Summit farm in New Hampshire? And you are the little Cornflower Girl—remember? I used to call you that!"

"I remember—I remember—" "And do you remember the old yellow horse with the white nose?"

"Old Sorrel? And how I tried to ride him and slipped off of his drooping back? And you caught me—and saved me!" Cornelia's eyes were shining with happy tears.

"And you wore a little blue gingham dress—like an apron."

"You remember that?" "I remember everything—down all the years—" and then Cornelia was in Dandelion Jim's arms, and it was a long while afterward before he confessed that he was a very rich man, his two uncles for whom he was named having died rich bachelors, and made him sole heir.

EMIL ZINCKE PASSED AWAY—TUESDAY FORENOON

Emil Zinke died at his farm home in Freedom, Tuesday forenoon, May 20, 1928, following an illness of three weeks.

He was born in Lillenthal, Hanover Province, Germany, July 2, 1849, and at the age of 23 he came to the United States and for the last 40 years he had resided on the farm where he died. He was united in marriage with Miss Ann Frances Jenks, March 23, 1871. Mrs. Zinke died in July, 1927.

He is survived by four sons, Dr. Eric Zinke, of Bucyrus, Ohio; Dr. J. O. and William Zinke, of Cleveland, Ohio; and Edward, of Freedom; one daughter, Mrs. Eliza Kuntleher, of Chelsea, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. Zinke was a remarkable man in many ways and but few men in this community were better informed upon the current topics of the day, being a constant reader of many of the leading newspapers and magazines. He was a good citizen, a kind husband and a devoted father and his passing is sincerely mourned by his family and friends.

The funeral was held at two o'clock this afternoon, Rev. Peter Scheurer of Manchester, conducting the services. Burial at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

THE HEART OF A GREAT CITY

The heart of a great city found expression in the little village of Brooklyn Monday afternoon when a few men journeyed from Detroit to the little home of Mrs. Doris Loomis and passed the day with her.

It was the children of the late Dr. Frank R. Loomis, who are being cared for by this kindly and sad woman, who could only say "I do not know how to express myself for the kindness done me."

Walter N. Ford, editor of the Brooklyn Express, accompanied the Detroit party, which was composed of Joseph Beatty, Wilson Whitney, James McQueen, B. Butler and F. S. Gopfert. Mr. Ford's presentation remarks were a beautiful expression of the sympathy shared by everyone for the brave mother and children of Dr. Loomis whose life, up to last year, held so many possibilities, says the Jackson Tribune.

Trusting to abate the sorrow of little Frank, Jr., the men asked him what he wanted to do most. Characteristic of a boy, Frank expressed a wish to go fishing. He was taken to a hardware store and given a fishing rod and tackle.

Janet, who has borne up admirably under the terrible sorrow and the mother's mysterious death last year and her father's recent suicide, also was made a bit more happy when the group returned to the Loomis home laden with gifts for girls.

The Detroit fund has not yet been closed.

Distribution of the literature was general throughout the state, although infestation is greatest in southern Michigan. State officials are alarmed over the spread of rabies infestation from a few counties in the south to twenty now in the quarantine area. The disease rapidly is spreading to counties in the north.

The golf clubs in this section were well patronized Wednesday.

Rondeau of Faith

THEY are not gone who seeming died that year
When Spring that preface death came cold-austere, Heralded by the snarling guns which spake
The roster of the toll they yet would take
Of youth come forth beneath them pure of fear.

THEY felt that lethal messenger draw near
And strode to meet him, daunted not to hear
His tidings, and till love their names forsake
They are not gone.

FOR light as little winds that smooth dawn clear
They come again, in memory grown more dear,
With every Spring, and though they never wake,
They know the vow that never comrades brake;
They are not gone.

Would You Drive a Car Without a Starter? No!

If you insist on efficiency in a car, why not in the kitchen where you spend most of your time?

A Regulator is to a Gas Stove what a starter is to a car—a gas saver, a worry saver and most of all—a disposition saver. Besides it insures uniform successful baking.

Until June 1st we will allow $5.00 on your old stove and your transportation to Ann Arbor.

Every 40 seconds— of every working day somebody buys a Buick - Year after year it wins twice as many buyers as any other fine car

Buy your Buick with the knowledge that the overwhelming majority of America's fine car buyers are making the same wise selection and enjoying the same wonderful satisfaction.

This most brilliant of fine cars enjoys two-to-one leadership in its field, and has maintained its leadership, not for a week or a month, but year in and year out since the early days of the industry.

The minute you see Buick you'll know one reason for its popularity—it excels in beauty. The minute you drive it you'll discover a further reason—it excels in vibrationless performance. And when you compare values, you'll have the full story—for nowhere is there a car so fine and dependable at a price so remarkably low.

The judgment of America is mighty good judgment to bank on. And America, by a two-to-one vote tells you to buy a Buick.

MASONRY OF MICHIGAN ELECT NEW WORSHIPFUL MASTER

Francis Homer Newton of Pontiac
Honored By Grand Lodge Native
Of Oakland County

At the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., of Michigan, at Detroit last week it was voted to purchase a new site for a new Masonic home at Alma and a committee was named to prepare plans and to erect suitable buildings on the 80 acres of land secured. The land selected is an ideal location, within three or four blocks from the present home.

Francis Homer Newton of Pontiac, was elevated to the honorable position of Most Worshipful Grand Master, a position he has richly earned. Mr. Newton, the youngest of three sons and one daughter of Joseph and Sarah A. Newton, spent his early youth on the farm. He attended the Pontiac public schools and although denied his keen ambition to obtain a higher education, he prepared himself for a business career, first at business college and later by diligent study and effort. A studiousness which is characteristic to this day, as he passes no opportunity to increase the capacity of his ability by study.

Early in life he displayed a tendency toward friendliness, at sixteen he became a clerk in a general store. This was to his liking as it afforded him a wealth of experience and he garnered much from his contact with the public.

In 1900 he entered the government employ at the Pontiac post office. During the ensuing ten years he advanced through every department, holding every position excepting only that of postmaster.

With opportunities thrust at him for public life, he shunned them favoring rather the quiet association of his family and his friends. Finding Masonry a finer service to his fellow man and seemingly guided by some inward philosophy which gave him happiness in his friendships, he advanced in Masonry.

On May 3, 1901, he received his entered apprentice degree in Pontiac Lodge No. 21, one of the five oldest lodges in this grand jurisdiction, also one of its largest. On June 21 of that same year he received the fellow craft degree, being raised October 18, that year.

Since that time his advancement up the ladder of Masonry has been steady and rapid, having been elected to the various offices in his local lodge, chapter and council and finally he was honored by the Grand Lodge and he has advanced each year until now he is at the head of Masonry in Michigan.

Nothing but Whisky Could Satisfy Indians

That the Indians of a century ago had a strong distaste for prohibition is indicated by an article that appeared in the North American Review in April, 1827, credited to Gen. Davis Cass, senator and secretary of state.

At the treaty of Chicago, in 1821, the commissioners ordered that no spirits should be issued to the Indians, and informed them, in their own manner, that the things were driven into the barrels. A deputation of the chiefs was sent to remonstrate against this precautionary measure, and at its head was Tappan, the principal chief of the Potawatomi tribe, an Indian upwards of eighty years of age.

Every argument was used to convince them that the measure was indispensable; that they were exposed to daily murders, and that while in a state of intoxication they were unable to attend to the business for which they were convened.

All this was useless and the discussion was only terminated by the peremptory refusal of the commissioners to accede to their request. "Father," said the hoary-headed chief when he was urged to remain sober and make a good bargain for his people, "Father, we care not for the money, nor the land, nor the goods. We want the whisky. Give us the whisky!"—Detroit News.

Youngster's Odd Idea of Penalty for Lie

A small boy was taken by his mother to an East-end infirmary. She had sent him on a message to a shop with a halfpenny, and on the way he had contrived to swallow it.

The X-ray was turned on, but a prolonged search of Johnnie's anatomy disclosed no trace of the missing coin. He was detained for 24 hours to be kept under the nurse's observation.

A few hours afterward, the tactful nurse, finding her patient subdued and sad, said to him: "Well, Johnnie, tell me truly, did you swallow the halfpenny?"

Johnnie (crying): "No, I spent it. I was frightened I could not get a better." "Oh, Johnnie! Do you know where little boys go to who tell lies?" "Yes, to the infirmary."—London Answers.

Breed's Origin in Doubt

A number of theories have been advanced, and considerable controversy has at times arisen, regarding the name and method of origin of the Great Dane. The name indicates that this dog is native to Denmark, yet it is common knowledge that the breed's more recent development is directly traceable to the efforts of German fanciers. Great Danes have been bred for centuries abroad and records as far back as the Egyptian period prove that a dog of this type was then in existence. It is presumed that the breed descended from such dogs and that possibly the ancestral Great Dane stock spread to Germany, where it crossed with the blood of the Ulmer Dogge, Rottweiler Metzgerhund, etc. The name "Deutsche Dogge" was adopted as the official title for the breed in Germany late in the Nineteenth century and as such it is now known in that country.

Fifty-Fifty

"When girls talk of going 50-50 with their boy friends, it makes me laugh," said the cynical commuter on the midnight local one night this week.

"What they mean is, that once in a while they'll pay their half of the dinner check—but, of course, let the man do the tipping. And they never think of paying the whole check."

"Women have asserted their independence in many ways—but they still like to be dependent on men when it comes to paying the bills."

All of the other commuters in the smoker at the midnight local, where no women are allowed, nodded in agreement.—Philadelphia Record.

Wyatt and His Cat

It is said that Sir Henry Wyatt, who was a privy councillor under King Henry VII of England, always had his picture painted with a cat beside him, because when he was confined by Richard III in a cold and dark tower, where he had neither food to eat nor fire to keep him warm, a cat brought him regularly every day a pigeon for his dinner and kept the warmth in his body by permitting Sir Henry to caress her. He was an ancestor of Sir Francis Wyatt, one of the early governors of the colony of Jamestown.—Pittsburgh Courier.

Has Trouble

The proprietor stood on the front veranda of his hotel.

"Help! Help!" a drowning man was shouting from the lake.

The proprietor stood unmoved.

"Help! Help!" again pitifully came the cry over the placid lake.

"Aw, shut up!" growled the hotel owner. "I'm struggling with the help problem, too, but you don't hear me yelling about it!"

An English tourist was sighted in Ireland and the guide had pointed out the Devil's Gap, the Devil's Peak, and the Devil's Leap to him.

Years of Service in Model T Fords

Expenditure of few dollars may enable you to get thousands of miles from your old car

THE Model T Ford is still a great car. It led the motor industry for twenty years and it is used today by more people than any other automobile. More than eight million Model T Fords are in active service in city, town and country, and many of them can be driven for two, three and five years and even longer at very small up-keep expense.

The cost of Model T parts and of necessary labor is unusually low because of established Ford policies.

New fenders, for instance, cost from $3.50 to $5 each, with a labor charge of $1 to $2.50. Tuning up the motor and replacing commutator case, brush and vibrator points costs only $1, with a small charge for material. Brake shoes can be installed and emergency brakes equalized for a labor charge of only $1.25. A labor charge of $4 to $5 will cover the overhauling of the front axle, rebushing springs and spring perches, and straightening, aligning and adjusting wheels.

The labor charge for overhauling the average rear axle runs from $5.75 to $7. Grinding valves and cleaning carbon can be done for $3 to $4.

A set of four new pistons costs only $7. For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. Parts are extra.

All of these prices are approximate, of course, because the cost of materials needed will depend on the condition of each car. They show, however, the low cost of putting the Model T Ford in shape for thousands of miles of additional service.

See the nearest Ford dealer, therefore, and have him estimate on the cost of re-conditioning your Model T Ford. He will tell you, in advance, exactly how much the complete job will cost.

ARE YOU GOING FISHING? THEN SEE BURG'S DISPLAY

Anglers, with fishing fever already coursing in their veins, will find their feet irresistibly turning this week toward J. V. Burg's store, the occasion being a special display of fine fishing tackle items advertised as "Shake-a-Week." This is a sort of at-home week to anglers, who are cordially invited to walk in and look around and reminisce to their hearts' content.

There's something in the air these days that makes the invitation to browse among fishing tackle particularly appealing. It's the urge to hark back to the customs of our fathers, to lead a healthier, simpler existence. The mere mention of fishing tackle sends our thoughts soaring away—oh, yes, you'll feel it too! Somewhere there is a curling rifle on a well loved stream, fishing the trout that goes away last year; somewhere the water is gently lapping against a shore that you know well, calling, calling, calling for you to come and heed. And you take down your tackle, and look it over, and dream of days that were and days that are to be.

FORMER WASHENAW SHERIFF DIED IN DETROIT

Charles Dwyer, a former resident of Dexter township, died at his home in Detroit at the age of eighty years, on May 18th. He lived in Dexter township until he was elected sheriff of Washtenaw county when he moved to Ann Arbor. He served two terms, 1888 to 1892. He lived in Ann Arbor until a few years ago, when he moved to Detroit. He is survived by his widow, whom he married in 1874, and three children, Edward L., William H. and Mrs. A. Willits and nine grandchildren. Services were held in St. Bridget's church, Detroit, and burial at Dexter—Dexter Leader.

CONSERVATION OFFICERS TO HAVE NEW BADGES

New badges of authority are being issued to all officers of the state conservation department. On and after June 1, all authorized employees of the department will have their new symbols of authority. The department is anxious to have all sportsmen in the state know this fact. If approached by a self-admitted conservation department officer, the fisherman or hunter would do well to request permission to see the officer's badge. After June 1, if the badge does not have the figures 1928 stamped upon it, the officer is an impostor.

For several years the department has issued the same style of badge. Now and then an officer leaves the employ of the state or inadvertently loses his badge. It is easily seen how these badges may fall into improper hands. They may then be used illegally, even for the purpose of extorting money from a sportsman. There has been evidence that this has occurred in the past. The department is asking sportsmen to report the name of any person who tries to assert his authority while wearing one of the out-of-date badges. The principal distinguishing mark between the old and the new is the figures "1928" stamped on the recent issue.

LIVESTOCK MEN MEET AT COLLEGE JUNE 15

Due to the high prices of farm feeds the annual Feeders Day at Michigan State College, June 15, has a special significance for livestock men as the experiments, to be explained, show important results in the study of the comparative costs of gains produced by different rations.

Some of the feeding tests at the College include three years of work on fattening and growing rations. Feeding trials for sheep, beef cattle, and hogs will be reported upon at the meeting.

Visitors will meet at 10:00 a. m. in the dairy barn to inspect dairy cattle that are being used to test the amounts and kinds of minerals needed in the ration of growing and mature animals.

The remainder of the forenoon will be devoted to a discussion of the feeding trials that have been made with hogs and beef cattle, and the superintendent of the College farm will give some pointers on the economic care and feeding of the work horse.

Luncheon will be held in the Union Building. Lamb feeding, studies in farm organization, the outlook for feeder steers, and problems of the livestock producers will be topics on the program at the conclusion of the luncheon.

CHELSEA'S SEWER PROJECT STILL A LIVE ISSUE

Council Has Appointed A Committee To Investigate The Proposed Plan For Further Consideration

At a recent meeting of the village council a committee consisting of President J. W. Haselwerdt, L. B. Lawrence and Edward Koebe was appointed to give further consideration to the proposed sewer system for Chelsea, to make inquiries and investigations and to report its findings to the council.

At the time of the recent special election the fact became known that the proposed system could be constructed by the use of a sanitary sewer system, and in a spirit of fairness to all the matter is being investigated with the purpose of arriving at a conclusion that will provide the village with an adequate system—something. It is only a matter of time before Chelsea will be forced to construct a sanitary sewer system, and whether action will be taken in the matter at the present time or deferred until some future date, the investigation to be made will provide facts and data that can be used when they are needed.

FRANCISCO

The third annual reunion of school district No. 2, Sylvan township, was held Saturday at the school grounds, attended by about 100 people.

Shortly after noon a picnic dinner was served. After a time spent in visiting and acquaintanceship, the meeting was called to order by the president, Charles Riemenschneider, who, after welcoming all present, turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Mrs. Nina Lehman.

Little Miss Virginia Lehman, youngest pupil in the school, recited a "Welcome" poem. A feature of considerable interest was the fact that not only the youngest pupil was present, but also the oldest living pupil, Mrs.
Martha Keeler.

An excellent paper was given by Mrs. Lena Kruse McKenzie, of Stockbridge. The oldest teacher representing the school, Nicholas Schumacher, of Jackson, gave an address as did
Mrs. Kate Gieske, next oldest teacher.
Other teachers who spoke were Miss Josephine Hoppe, Mrs. Clarence Lemman and Mrs. William Schatz, of Chelsea. Several humorous readings were enjoyed and Rev. Fred Rosa, a resident of the district, gave a talk.
Following the program, a short business session was held. The office of president was bestowed upon Mr.
Schumacher. P. H. Riemenschneider was appointed secretary and treasurer.
The program and table committees were re-elected.

After remarks relative to a change of meeting place from Saturday to Sunday, a vote was carried to hold the 1929 reunion on the third Sunday in May.
Announcement was made that the manager of Jewish Center had extended an invitation for the guests to visit their buildings under construction, and many accepted the invitation.

Visitors were present from Detroit,

CHELSEA HAS PRODUCTIVE ASPARAGUS GARDENS

G. C. Ravlier Harvested His Crop This Season And Is Putting Out A Lot More Roots

G. C. Ravlier of Wayside Gardens on U. S. 12, just outside of the village has about completed his asparagus harvest for this season and he has two very thrifty looking fields which will be right for cutting next year.
He has the celebrated Washington variety of asparagus and it is very tender and grows a long, thrifty stalk.

Before coming to this section Mr.
Ravlier had extensively engaged in tomato culture at Plymouth, one season having 80 acres of vines. He also conducted a canning establishment there and it is more than likely he will have one here in a year or so.
He believes that this section is especially adapted to successful growing of asparagus and tomatoes and that the soil hereabouts will produce immense crops of both.

If his asparagus gardens produce as well as he has given every evidence of doing, he may be compelled to establish a cannery for his own use. In that case others will, doubtless, become interested in the growing of this appealing spring vegetable. The spring canning season could easily be followed in the fall with tomatoes.

A representative of The Standard called at Wayside Gardens on Friday afternoon and spent an enjoyable hour looking over the place. Mr. Ravlier is a very agreeable gentleman and Chelsea is fortunate when men of his ability locate here.

HOOVER PRAISES THE YOUTH OF TO-DAY

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, gave an address Saturday night before an immense audience in Washington which had gathered to attend the national oratorical contest.
He praised the youth of to-day and repudiated the often-heard charge that the young people of America are "irresponsible" or "light-headed." "On the other hand," he said, "they were surer of themselves than at any other time in the history of the world—with a sureness that carries with a determination to justify itself."

In the national contest itself, and its growth within a few years from 5,000 to more than 2,000,000 participants, Mr. Hoover saw many circumstances unholing his contention, "I doubt very seriously," he said, "that it could have flourished at all some 30 or 40 years ago when the present day critics of youth themselves were young."

Turning to the international aspects of the contest, Mr. Hoover declared that it was built upon "the solid principle that the best foundation of international understanding is not in the levelling of national ideals and characteristics, but, on the contrary, in a healthy, enthusiastic nationalism, willing and eager to extend the hand of friendship to other nations; but never willing to surrender its essentially American character."

"Devotion to our home, our town, our state, to our country and to our national ideals," he said, "are the spring of patriotism. This is the most inspiring of all human emotions, is the imponderable, cohesive force of determined action. Government was designed of strong national power for defense against an enemy within and without, yet with an intense decentralization into states' rights and responsibilities."

"America has a great opportunity for service to its own people and to the world. But to render it greater service at home and abroad, America must remain American—which is to say unfettered, youthful, eager, with a vision searching beyond narrow horizons—with an open mind."

MICHIGAN ELECTRIC RAILWAY SEEKS TO ABANDON TROLLEYS

A Detroit dispatch of Saturday stated that the hearing on the petition of the Michigan Electric Railway company to abandon service in central and western Michigan was postponed Saturday in federal court until June 23rd.
The postponement was by agreement of district attorneys of the eastern and western district of Michigan.

If abandonment is permitted, it would remove from the tax rolls property valued at $25,000,000, causing a loss of nearly $750,000 annually to the primary school fund.

The lines operate between Owosso, Lansing and Jackson, and between Jackson, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids. The railroad claims that the lines are not making operating expenses under a receivership, and it generally was suspected the court would permit the suspension of service.

In 1921 the state spent approximately $750,000 appraising the lines for the purpose of rate making.

The M. E. R. has been operating motor bus service along its lines for the past three years. It claims that the bus lines pay, but the interurbans
do not.

THE WHIPPET HELPED
FIRST AIR MAIL.

A dispatch from Galveston, Texas, states that a Whippet played a prominent part in helping the first air-mail receive its first Tex. mail from Chicago, be distributed on time.

Charles Nowling, the Willies-Overland merchant at Galveston, learning of the plans for receiving the first load of air mail, was successful in having the Whippet named as the car to transport the mail from the plane to the post office and from the post office to the plane.

As there were several thousand persons on the field to watch the plane land and as many more to see it take off, the Whippet came in for a good amount of publicity.

noon. Goodwin's wife, Mrs. Carrie

10,000 spectators.

Goodwin was regarded as a capable and daring driver and was booked for a number of racing events this summer.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Death from accidents has been increasing by leaps and bounds throughout the United States. Leading in this has been the automobile. This has been true because of two factors—Happenings and increasing speed. The human mind can operate but so fast. If the machine is imperfect the mind cannot prevent an accident. If the human element is not right, the best mechanical devices in the world will not prevent accidents.

Michigan leads the world in the production of autos. It is only fitting that Michigan should take leadership in preventing auto accidents. Just this purpose that there recently was formed a Michigan Safety Council, headed by Governor Fred W. Green and including in its membership, leading men from all parts of the state. The best brains in the manufacturing and engineering fields, safety experts, doctors, lawyers, and mechanics.

All are working without pay to promote a state-wide safety campaign for safety. They will prepare and promote a program of public education—moral and technical—automobile equipment inspection; driver certificate inspection; tests of mechanical devices such as brakes, horns, headlights and steering gears.

They will, in short, try to make certain that no unsafe auto is driven and that no unsafe driver sits back of a steering wheel.

It is a work worthy the hearty and complete support of every citizen in the state and worthy the splendid personnel and leadership it has been given.

UPHOLDS PADLOCK LAW

A decision which is expected to have far-reaching effect in the enforcement of national prohibition, has been handed down by the United States Supreme Court, that tribunal sustaining the right of government agents to padlock premises where it has been shown for the storage or sale of intoxicating liquors.

The case reached the higher court on appeal from a Michigan decision, which had upheld the law, and is now considered final in all such cases. The padlock provision was placed in the Volstead law by government officials who believed the best way to prevent the use of a building for such purposes was to close it for a period sufficiently long to discourage its further use for the unlawful traffic in rum.

Since the recent decision touches the self-interest of the property owner it is expected he will be more careful in ascertaining in advance the exact purposes for which his rented property is being put. In larger cities it was no uncommon practice for a raided place to be opened the next day following the raid with a new proprietor, rendering the work of the enforcement officers practically useless.

avalanche of raids, especially in the larger cities, is expected to follow immediately upon the heels of the decision.

TRIBUTE TO COUNTRY PRESS

"The smaller newspapers of the country are the most important news sources, and incidentally in proportion to their circulation, their advertising results are the biggest, and their advertising rates are the smallest in the country. They are read through from end to end. Every copy of circulation means an entire family, not a family that lives in one room with a gas pump, but a family that owns its own house, and land around it, at least ninety times out of a hundred; a family that buys everything, from the loaf of bread to the car, from the corner grocery store, from the neighborhood hardware store, from the shoe store, from the boy's feet. The service that their publishers render the public is, in my opinion, the most important service rendered by any class of citizens in the United States. The country editors are distributors of information; they reach the minds of the boys that leave the farms, and they are the nation's mental police force," says Arthur Brisbane.

WONDERFUL ACCOMPLISHMENT

In the United States a system of telephone management has been established that gives almost every user the advantage of a great national organization, with all the inventive genius, the financial strength, and the service that can result only from combination of genius, and responsible communication. In the old world the telephone service is divided among numerous companies, none of them being able to afford the centralization and cooperation of facilities that is necessary for rapid, efficient and reasonably priced service.

We can be proud of the initiative, ambition, industrial acumen and intelligence that has made such growth possible. Our telephone supremacy is remarkable and unchallenged, as our 11,000,000 population enjoys the use of 60 per cent of the world's telephones.

BEWARE OF THE PEDDLER

Informer articles of many kinds are peddled about town and you during the summer months. The automobile has been a great aid to this kind of peddling, for after he has landed a few gullible prospects a day's journey will take him far away and beyond the reach of the buyer who discovers that he has been victimized.

Better buy from your home town merchant who is here to make good on every article that does not prove to be satisfactory.

William Speed a colored preacher, was shot and instantly killed in Ypsilanti Wednesday afternoon by Carrie Lanti Williams who claims Speed attacked her.

Clifford Haynor of Ypsilanti, was so seriously injured in an auto accident near Pontiac one day last week that he died in the hospital in that city.

THOSE STIRRING WAR MEETINGS OF FORMER DAYS

Veteran Relates His Experiences And Tells How He Came To Join The Union Army

From The Standard of May 28, 1908, we take the following as related by a veteran of those days: "Right, perhaps, have gone before but wasn't old enough. Was only 17 when I did go. Now these war meetings I was going to mention. They were something like a political meeting but none that you ever saw or ever will be a match for those meetings back in the days. I was living on a farm just outside a little village, in those days, and when there was to be a war meeting the folks would come driving into town fore I had the milking done. The night I enlisted the meeting was to be held in the little Presbyterian church. There was a lot of big guns present and the colonel who was organizing the regiment was there, too. 'Gosh! I wish you could have looked down on that little bug that night. Everyone had flags out, a fire and drum corps, and the Home Guards were throwing out their chests and stepping high. 'And then there in the church. All the best singers in town were banded in a mass back of the speakers and how they did sing. O can hear those tunes yet: 'Bye-bye boys, go and fight for your country,' 'Rebels at home go home go hide your faces,' 'John Brown's body' and 'Star-Spangled Banner' and all those old times. There were a lot more such songs in those days.

"And by mustard! when the singing and speech-making was over that night, then came the climax. The colonel called for volunteers. First one fellow and then another would stand up and go forward and sign. Every time a new one would put his name down the crowd would cheer and when it would die away one could hear in every part of the house the women crying and taking on. Say, if anything in this world would get on a fellow's nerves those meetings would. I remember distinctly when the meeting was most out, the colonel shouted that if there were any present who wanted to enlist but hadn't, to come to the depot, that they would be given a chance there. It was then I made up my mind to go.

"Down there at the station you can bet the excitement didn't lag any. There was whooping and hurrahing and with a hand that would hardly write, I was so excited, I put my name down.

"Being mustered in, life in camp and off for the front are all phases of that time mentioned in books, but it seems to me that the story of the war-meetings has never been told as it deserves."

THE SALEM METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

One and one-half miles north of Francisco, announces their seventy-fifth anniversary festival to be held on July 1, 1928.

Under the ministry of Rev. John Schweinfurth, first local pastor, this society was organized in 1853.

Among the charter members were the following families: William Riemschneider, Ehler Notten, sr. Christopher Kaiser and Phillip Riemschneider, all of whom have finished their course.

Early services were held in the old log houses and the early pastorates were of short terms. Rev. Schweinfurth served a second term, during which the first church building was erected.

The present edifice was built in 1888, under the administration of Rev. George Mitter of Detroit.

Plans are under way for an appropriate program. The program will be in print some time later.

Money Cannot Buy Better Refrigeration Than You Get From ICE

In a Good Refrigerator

Meat, milk and other perishable food products are kept their best with ice. There is nothing cheaper nor better than this method of refrigeration.

Ice keeps the air cold enough, without being too cold; dry enough, without being too dry; just moist enough to keep food and food flavors at their best.

Twelve million families in this country have found that ice, intelligently used, in a good refrigerator, renders a superior service at very low cost.

MAY HAVE A BARGE CANAL ACROSS MICHIGAN

At Washington last Saturday the house committee reported a bill carrying very liberal appropriations for a number of Michigan's harbors and rivers. The bill as presented also proposed a plan for a barge canal from Lake Michigan to Lake Erie, on this suggestion of W. W. Chambers of Toledo, Ohio, congressman.

The Chamberlain section calls for a survey of the Maumee river from Toledo to Fort Wayne, Ind., with the view of providing a barge canal 160 feet wide and nine feet deep. From Fort Wayne a connecting link would be built to the St. Joseph river, which enters Lake Michigan at Benton Harbor. A survey of the St. Joseph river was not included in the bill, but this is to be ordered if the survey of the Maumee shows it can be adapted to such a project.

Advocates of the plan say it would greatly facilitate bulk movements of freight from western Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois east.

St. Mary's parish of Milford has begun the construction of a new parish home of cut field stone. It will be 40x60 feet and cost $18,000.

A FORMER SYLVAN RESIDENT FOUND DEAD IN DETROIT

Peter Easterle, 88 years old, 2925 Harrison avenue, Detroit, an engineer, was found dead in an alley at the rear of 986 Catherine street, late Monday. An autopsy held at the county morgue disclosed that death had been caused by a heart attack.
Mr. Easterle was a former resident of Sylvan and resided for many years on the farm at present owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boone, located on U. S. 12, west of Chelsea.
He is survived by the widow, three sons, A. R. of Rochester, Austin, of Chelsea and Edward of California. The remains were taken to the home of his son, A. R., in Rochester, where the funeral and burial will take place on Saturday.

CRIME DECREASE NOTED IN THIS COUNTY

Crime has decreased 30 to 50 per cent in Washtenaw county because of the mandatory sentence for a fourth conviction of felony Judge George W. Sample of circuit court told members of the Ann Arbor Exchange club at their weekly meeting Monday evening.
The judge reported that there were no contested criminal cases for the May term of court.
He also said that 90 per cent of probationers and 75 per cent of men sent to prison from this county reform. The important thing is to furnish jobs for the men when they return from prison, he declared.—Daily News.

HAPHAZARD DRIVING

THIS is not the story of a man who got drunk and drove his car thru a safety zone filled with people. It concerns a certain other man, of whom folks who know him best speak in highest terms of his conservative judgment and moral uprightness.

Not reckless, but haphazard, this man. So sure is he of his ability to drive safely at all times that he dispenses entirely with car insurance.

Recklessness of other drivers; mental lapses, heedlessness of pedestrians, snow, sleet, rain, fog, icy and oily pavements, dust, poor or glaring headlights, mechanical defects,—really, it's too much to ask this man, or any other person, to combat all these things single handed.

Ask the Auto-Owners Insurance Company to carry the load. They'll do it cheerfully, and at reasonable rates.
