MURRAY-STEINBACH WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Violet G.
Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
William Murray, of Ann Arbor, and Reuben A. Steinbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Steinbach, of Lima township, was solemnized at 10:30 Saturday morning, June 2nd, at Zion Luthern church, Ann Arbor, Rev. E. C.
Stellhorn officiating. The bride wore a handsome gown of georgette with hat
to match and carried a shower bouquet
of white sweet peas and roses, and while her attendant, Miss Katherine Fletcher, of Chelsea, cousin of the groom, was attired in yellow georgette, with hat to match and carried
white sweet peas and yellow rose buds.
Burton Murray, brother of the bride,
was best man.

Following the ceremony, a wedding
breakfast was served the bridal party in Ypsilanti. On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Steinbach will make their home with the groom's parents in Lima.

ST. MARY SCHOOL TO GRAD- UATE A CLASS OF FOUR

The annual graduating exercises of St. Mary school will be held at eight o'clock next Sunday evening in St.
Mary church. The class this year consists of two young ladies and two young men.

The address is to be delivered by Rev. Father Hackett of Kalamazoo, who is an able speaker, and who has delivered addresses in the church several times in the past few years.

A program of special musical numbers has been arranged for the occasion.

The diplomas will be presented to the graduates by their pastor, Rev.
Father VanDyke.

WILL ATTEND NATIONAL CONVENTION AT SEATTLE

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Vogel will leave Chelsea early next Tuesday morning
for Ann Arbor where they will board
the Kiwanis special train bearing Michigan delegates to the National Kiwanis convention to be held at Seattle, Wash., from June 18 to 21st.
It is expected the Kiwanis clubs of Michigan will be represented by a delegation of nearly two hundred. Mr.
Vogel will represent the Chelsea club.
At the conclusion of the convention,
Mr. and Mrs. Vogel will continue down
the coast to San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego and return by the southern route to Denver and Omaha.

WILL ELECT TWO TRUSTEES

At the annual school meeting of district No. 3, fr. Sylvan and Lima, to be held next Monday evening, two trustees are to be elected. One to succeed Kent Walworth, whose term
of office will expire at that time, and the other one to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Dr. G. W. Palmer.
Mr. Walworth has been secretary of the board of education for the past three years.

SEEK REMOVAL OF JONES' GAS STATION

Village Council Has Started Proceeding To Compel Its Removal
From Street Curb

When A. R. Jones erected his garage building on South Main street he asked the village council for permission to install a gas pump at the street curb, but his request was refused by the village authorities. He then placed the pump some distance
inside the walk, making it necessary
for his patrons to drive in to be served with gasoline. A few weeks ago Mr.
Jones placed a new pump at the curb,
just outside of his sidewalk line with-
out obtaining permission from anyone.
At the last meeting of the council the village attorney was instructed to request Mr. Jones to remove the pump.
The request was not complied with
and through the village attorney, John Kaimbach, proceedings were commenced in the circuit court to restrain Jones from maintaining and operating the station. A bill of complaint was filed and Judge George W. Sample issued a restraining order, citing the defendant to appear on June 30th to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

Jones has employed A. J. Sawyer of Ann Arbor, as his attorney and will fight the case.

SYLVAN TOWNSHIP BUYS PORTABLE GRAVEL SCREEN

Township Board Placed Order, With View Of Making Saving In Highway Expenses

At a recent meeting of the Sylvan Township Board, the supervisor and clerk were authorized to purchase for the use of the highway department, a portable gravel screening outfit.

This action was taken in compliance
with a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the electors several years ago. Until the present time the price has been much higher for the outfit
than the former boards have considered it was worth to the community.

The machine that was ordered by the supervisor and clerk last Saturday
is about one-half the former prices
that had been given to the former boards.

By the direction of the board, Highway Commissioner Fritchard went to Howell where he viewed a similar outfit in operation and its working seemed to be very satisfactory.

The screening machine is 20 feet
in length with a 14-foot conveyor, enclosed gasoline engine and can be readily conveyed from one place to another in the township. The saving of time at the pits in loading the vehicles
and also leaving the stone on the pit grounds will be of material benefit to the road throughout the township. The cost of the screening outfit laid down
in Chelsea is $536.25 and from present
indications it will be money well spent.

H. T. DENNIS, PRESIDENT OF METHODIST HOME, DIES

Horace T. Dennis, 86 years old,
president of the Methodist Old People's Home at Chelsea, died Friday at his home, 66 Moss avenue, Highland Park, after an illness of five weeks.

Welfare work occupied his entire time since his arrival in Detroit 36 years ago. Previous to that he had been engaged in business at Woodstock, Vermont, where he was born.
He is survived by Mrs. Dennis.

Dr. C. B. Allen and Dr. M. S. Rice,
of the Metropolitan M. E. church, conducted the funeral services at the church Monday at 2 p. m. Burial took place in the Woodlawn cemetery.

PASSED SUCCESSFUL EXAMINATION

Dwight E. Beach, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Beach, has passed the examinations for entrance to the United States Military Academy, West Point,
according to the announcement from
the war department at Washington, D. C., and his appointment as the cadet from this, the second congressional district. He has been ordered to report at West Point at midday, July 2.
The Young Man at present is a student in the University of Michigan and a graduate of the Chelsea High school.

George Naekel, of Detroit, was a
Chelsea visitor over the week-end.

SENIORS ARE HAVING A WONDERFUL PLEASURE TRIP

Reached Washington Sunday Afternoon After Two Delightful Days
Home Next Monday—A
Happy Crowd

There was a good sized crowd present at the school grounds last Friday morning to extend farewell greetings
to the Seniors of the Chelsea High school and chaperons as they took their departure at 3:15 in a large and commodious bus. The morning was a beautiful one and there were those in the crowd who had not seen the sunrise on a May morning for a long time, but they seemed to enjoy the songs of the birds and the merry laughter of the boys and girls who were starting out on their first great adventure. The morning hours passed rapidly with the merry company and we have been credibly informed that some members of the party, and among them Superintendent Clark, enjoyed their morning nap in spite of the heat.

The Standard's informant stated positively that the popular superintendent "enjoyed" Columbus was reached in time for lunch and all were given an opportunity to "stretch out," as travelers say when they are permitted to stop along the way. Wheeling, West Va., was reached at about seven o'clock at night and when the travelers wrote home that night all declared "everything is going fine." They were comfortably located at a good hotel, one of the girls
in describing her room wrote, "We have a bath room, telephone, clothes
closet, two beds, dresser, table and a spittoon in which we put our orange peels, so we make use of everything."
The boys are playing pranks on the girls and seem to be having much fun
in doing so.

Saturday night found the merry company at Cumberland, Md., and at a very pleasant hotel, after a delightful day spent among the hills and mountains. After a beautiful dinner
an evening was pleasantly spent about the hotel, and all were so tired that they retired early. It is evident the chaperons were "on the job" early and late," because one of the girls writes
"I talk about being chaperoned.
Kirstevers are next door and Clark and Dancers are across the hall. I just heard Waldo get in bed and the springs squeaked so we heard them
clear in here." Ruth Vogel discovered a "pad" under the sheet in her bed
and she came near having a fit, but soon recovered her usual calm and dignified bearing.

Sunday morning the travelers were
on their way from Cumberland to Washington early and they have enjoyed three wonderful days at the national capital. Rain interfered somewhat with their sightseeing. They had the pleasure of visiting the chambers of the United States Supreme Court when that distinguished body of jurists were in session.

Monday morning brought the first news of the travelers and it was good news, of course. They reached Wheeling about on time Friday night after a delightful trip through a most interesting section of country.

THEIR ITINERARY

Their first stop was at Wheeling,
W. Va., where they remained over Friday night. Saturday night they were at Cumberland, Md., and they arrived
in Washington about noon on Sunday.

They remained in Washington until today when they motored to Philadelphia, remaining over night until tomorrow, when they will make the journey over the Lancaster-Pike to Valley Forge and Lancaster where they spent Friday night. Saturday
they will motor on the Pike to Gettysburg and on to Williamsport, where they will stop for the night. On Sunday they will go to Erie and from Erie they will return home.

WAS PETER EASTERLE ATTACKED BY HIGHWAYMEN?

The facts regarding the death of Peter Easterle, which were published in The Standard last week, were taken from the Detroit News and we have been informed that an error was made in the statement that the unfortunate man was found in an alley. His body was found in a side-drive entrance,
and not in an alley.

He had spent the day collecting on contracts and when found his contracts, bank book and money were missing, and his family believes he was robbed where he was found, and that the attack caused heart disease.

Mr. Easterle was 74 years of age and not 53 as was stated.

The Standard is very glad to make this correction.

UNION MEMORIAL SERVICES WILL TAKE PLACE SUNDAY

Union memorial services will take place in Chelsea Sunday afternoon
when the Oddfellows, Knights of Pythias and Pythian Slater Lodges
will unite in paying a fitting tribute to the memory of their departed members. All members of these organizations are requested to meet in their respective halls at 1:30 and all are urged to bring flowers. At 2:00 a procession will form and march to Oak Grove cemetery, where exercises will be held.

A good attendance by the three organizations is urged.

Plenty of Applesauce

Want to have a lot of fun? Just start out in Chelsea to buy a tire. The dealers supply the entertainment.
Their stuff is great.
Cut prices—bargains—"deals"—rebates, introductions
—"at cost"—lots of other applesauce. But seriously, one simple fact is the most outstanding to-day in the tire business.

More People Ride on Goodyear Tires Than on Any Other Kind

Buying tires is unlike buying food, clothing, shelter.
Tires all look alike. They are built to do one thing.
But, keep that simple statement about Goodyear Tires
always in mind. More people, year after year, buy Goodyears. That's because year in and year out they've proved best.
Our fine, courteous service plus Goodyear Tires is the
sure-fire answer to all your tire problems.

Economy Sale On Tires

Goodrich engineers perfected the present tread design
of Goodrich Balloon Tires more than two years ago.
They did not make over an old tread, but designed a new one.

Since then, Goodrich principles of tread design have demonstrated over and over again—in millions of miles
on millions of motor cars—the tremendous mileage
which Goodrich Tires can deliver in actual use.

In Goodrich Tires, users get the combined result of thorough experiment, finest materials, and master craftsmanship.

All this week we are conducting an economy sale on these finest quality tires to give you an extra saving.

ANN ARBOR ROTARIANS
TO FEAST 4-H MEMBERS

Leaders Of Summer Clubs Will Be Tendered A Dinner Next Wednesday Noon

The Ann Arbor Rotary club will entertain all of the leaders of summer
club, the club presidents and the club newspaper reporters, Wednesday,
June 18, at the Chamber of Commerce
at a noon luncheon.

Program at noon will include special music by a 4-H club member, 4-H club group singing, a short talk by Raymond Girbach, 4-H club member and leader of Saline township, who has been selected as one of the two boys to represent the 4-H club boys
of the state of Michigan at the 4-H club camp at Washington, D. C., June 21 to June 28. A short talk by Miss Sylvia Wixson, assistant state club
leader, East Lansing, and a stunt by some 4-H club members.

Hackley Butler, chairman of the boys' work committee of the Rotary club, Ann Arbor, will welcome the 4-H club folks as a representative of the Rotary club.

The luncheon program is a part of a general 4-H club convention and conference which is being held at the county building in Ann Arbor on that day. The presidents and newspaper reporters of the various clubs from the county will act as official delegates
for their clubs at the convention,
which will be held at 10:00 o'clock in the supervisor's room at the county building.

The delegates will organize a county
organization of 4-H club members
with a board of directors of five members whose duties will be to plan county 4-H activities, and to assist in formulating plans for all of the 4-H club work in the county. Leaders are invited to attend the convention and will be allowed to speak in an advisory
way but will not be allowed to vote.
Each delegate will be given one vote
on any question brought before the convention.

The afternoon session will begin at 1:30 p. m. Miss Sylvia Wixson, Miss Gage, P. G. Lundin and Nevels Pearson, assistant club leaders will attend
the meeting. A conference will be held and newspaper reporters will be problems of a general nature will be discussed. At 2:30 the group will divide and all girls' club leaders will meet with Miss Wixson and Miss Gage for a special conference on girls work. Livestock leaders will meet with Nevels
Pearson for a conference on livestock
club work, and the crops and poultry
club leaders will meet with P. G. Lundin for a conference on poultry and crops club work. The club presidents will have a special session of their own where training will be given them in parliamentary law. The reporters will meet with a trained newspaper man, who will conduct a class
in newspaper writing.

CLUB NOTES

The 4-H Clubs of Scio and Webster townships met at the home of Leo and Edwina Ziegler, near Dexter, on Monday evening, May 23. They continued
the organization of their club. Robert Lyndon was elected assistant secretary, and Martin Farrell, newspaper reporter. They voted to name their club the Huron Valley 4-H Boys. The club will meet every second and fourth Wednesday of every month. Five cen-tues will be collected by the treasurer
at every meeting.

The club voted to make a special assessment of 15c per member for the fund that the Washtenaw county 4-H club members are raising to help defray the expenses of Raymond Girbach, Saline township, to the national 4-H club camp at Washington, D. C., this month.

The Lima 4-H club met at the home
of Gordon, Curtis and Paul Bradbury Thursday evening, May 31. A discussion arose as to whether or not the club should organize a baseball team.
They all agreed to come early to the next meeting, which will be held June 28, at the home of Loren Beutler,
when a baseball practice will be held
before the meeting.

The club voted a special assessment
of 20c per member to be added to the county fund which is being raised by 4-H club members to help defray the expenses of Raymond Girbach, Saline township, to the national 4-H club
camp, Washington, D. C.

The potato club members are planning special meetings for demonstrating spraying and dusting potatoes for the control of potato diseases. All of the crop club members of the Saline Junior Farmers' club are planning to meet at 9:30 Saturday, June 16, at the home of Alvin Buttermore for such a demonstration. The potato club members of the Lincoln 4-H club will meet at the home of Kenneth and Olney Outwater at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, June 16.

A special 4-H club program will be broadcast from the national 4-H club
camp, Washington, D. C., where Raymond Girbach, of Washtenaw county,
will attend as one of the two boy representatives from the state of Michigan, from 8 to 9 o'clock Saturday evening, June 23. This is the second national 4-H club camp. Four members from each state are selected to attend the camp as representatives from their state. Leona Gale, Washtenaw county, was one of the two girls
from the state of Michigan last year.
620,000 boys and girls will participate in the national meeting this year, by listening in on the radio and in joining in the 4-H and national songs as they are sung on the program. They will also participate in adjourning the meeting with the 4-H club pledge,
which is as follows:

I pledge my head to clearer thinking,
My heart to greater loyalty,
My hands to larger service, and

THE REFORMATION
OF MILLENT

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

MILLENT was very much up-to-date. Her father, Josiah P.
Young, and her mother, Maria Young,
were mid-Victorian in their ideas.
Consequently there was a little friction in the family. Bobbed hair, short skirts and cigarettes were anathema to Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Young—but not to Millicent. There was nothing wrong with Millicent, you understand
—she was just like other girls of the period—only a little more so, perhaps.

Josiah had a friend, a one-time college classmate, who was an evangelical clergyman of one of the strictest of the sects, and Rev. Talbert Battersey announced to his old college chum that he was coming on from the West to revisit New England and would make a stop of a few days with the Youngs.
With him would be his son, a divinity
student, a youth of whom he had great hopes. And he rather insinuated than suggested that it would be a pleasing thing if his son, Henry, and Josiah's daughter, Millicent, should find favor
in each other's eyes.

"I'd make a fine parson's wife,
wouldn't I?" cried Millicent when she heard the letter. "It's too funny for anything." And she laughed one of those holstered modern laughs such as the up-to-date girl indulges in.

"How nice it would be," said Maria to Josiah that night. "If Millicent
would marry young Battersey and settle down, I think I could die happy
if I could see her a clergyman's wife."

"Yes," replied Josiah, "it would be fine. But she won't and that's all about it. We must accept things as they are. She'll probably marry that Braxton Brown fellow. He's just one of her sort. They'll get along perfectly together—and he has got a heap of money, too. I hope she will marry Brown. They say he is worth five millions."

"Well, yes," mused Maria, "perhaps that would be best, after all. As you say, Josiah, we have got to adjust our views to the times we live in. And Millicent is not really cut out for a clergyman's wife."

From that time on Millicent heard
no more about the young divinity student. But she did hear a good deal about Braxton Brown. "I do not know what he is so wild," her mother said.
"What he needed was to marry some nice girl who would exert a good influence over him. Once happily married Braxton would turn out all right."
And Josiah was content for carefully
prepared "casual" remarks to his wife,
made in the hearing of his daughter,
regarding the amount of Braxton Brown's fortune and what a fine old family he came from.

All this suited Millicent to a T,
though she was a little puzzled at the sudden complaisance of her parents.
She had had her mind made up for some time to marry Braxton Brown.
He had been extremely attentive to her; he was evidently going to propose—but was an unconsciously long time in doing so. He belonged to the same gay set as she did and all the girls were after him. Her parents had formerly frowned upon the idea of Braxton as a suitor for their daughter's hand. What had changed them?

The answer to that conundrum is that Josiah had only recently learned of the extent of the young man's wealth
and had discovered, moreover, that while Braxton posed as a society butterfly he was really a shrewd business man.

Time passed and Rev. Battersey arrived from the West with his son Henry. Henry proved to be a well set up athletic young man; not a bit of a prig, but somewhat old-fashioned in his ideas with regard to women. Millicent thought. She gazed him to his face and made fun of him to her parents behind his back, and smoked cigarettes in his presence just to see his look of annoyed disapproval. But she went out for long walks with him,
nevertheless, and moping, and began to cut down in her cigarettes, finally dropping them altogether. The fact was that she had never liked cigarettes, but had smoked them because the other girls of her set smoked them. Her manner began to grow quieter, her happiness to disappear.

Josiah and Maria became alarmed.
The glamor of Braxton's wealth had disappeared their old desire that Millicent should marry and settle down
as a clergyman's wife. They heartily wished that Reverend Battersey would take himself and his son to other scenes.

"Did you ever see such a change?"
said Josiah to Maria. "It's all that club Battersey. She's going to marry him as sure as shooting. You speak to her, Maria."

"Millicent," said Maria to her daughter, "I see that you have given up cigarettes—and—er—generally quieted down. Has some one been talking to you?"

"Yes," replied Millicent, "some one
has. You see, I have realized Braxton. I would marry him, and he says that while he doesn't mind unmarried
girls being up-to-date, he prefers something a trifle mid-Victorian in the way of a wife. And I'm trying to qualify."

"Why," gasped Mrs. Young, "I thought it was Henry."

"Henry," cried Millicent, "why he has been engaged for two years to a girl out in Wisconsin."

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator

Wherever you go you hear
people praising the General Electric Refrigerator. Almost
overnight it has taken a prominent place in the thoughts of homemakers.

One hears of its remarkable simplicity. That it hasn't a single belt, fan or drain-pipe.
That it hasn't a bit of machinery
under the cabinet—or in the basement. That it never needs oiling. There are many, many comments on the quietness
with which it operates. There is much enthusiasm for the extreme roominess and the splendid strength of its gleaming,
up-on-legs cabinet.

Overnight, it seems . . . but
for more than fifteen years the vast laboratories of General Electric have been busy with the development of this truly revolutionary refrigerator. Will you not come in and see the various models? Time payments can be arranged, if you prefer.

The wise housewife saves many a penny reading the newspapers.

She reads the advertisements, too. In buying the family's daily requirements, she studies and compares before she buys.

Those with observation readily testify that had it not been for the resourcefulness and economizing ability of the American housewife, numberless homes would not have survived the first stroke of ill fortune after the honeymoon.

Advertising IS real. How else do foods and fabrics attain to such sudden and wide preference? They don't except through publicity.

Dr. Whittaker's Burglar

By AD SCHUSTER

IT WAS after the hour when an old man like Doctor Whittaker should be asleep, but he lay quiet in bed with his eyes open and his ears strained at a persistent sound which came from an adjoining room.

"I suppose," he thought, "I ought to be afraid and yet there is something approaching the humorous in the idea of a burglar visiting the house of a country doctor. I wonder if it would be safe for me to speak to the man."

Then he remembered the unloaded revolver in his dresser. He could step across the room quietly, seize the weapon, and the advantage would be his. The bed creaked as he got out, the doctor all but leaped to the dresser. In a moment a startled burglar blinked as the lights went on and blinked again as he discovered a gray-haired and night-robed man menacing him with a weapon.

"I'm not going to shoot, young fellow, unless you make me," Doctor Whittaker's voice quavered and he felt shame for the weakness. "What I would like to do is discover just why you thought it would be to your profit to enter my house? Sit down."

The burglar sat down. His hands fumbled nervously in his lap and he let his head fall. It occurred to the doctor that this man was like a small boy caught in mischief; that he was sitting there awaiting punishment. If he had a shave, now, and a new suit of clothes, he would not be a bad looking youth.

"It is a pity," said the physician, "that you should be a burglar."

"What else?" The young fellow lifted his head. "It's all right to talk about pity, but suppose you were brought up to the job? Suppose reform school or jail? He subsided suddenly. "Well, are you going to call a cop?"

"Not yet," was the answer. "Tell me, couldn't you find an honest job?"

"I won't say I can't because I have found lots of them. But with no trade I didn't make much and, well, there is a lot of talk of easy money and—I guess something is the matter with me. I just keep going back to this. You won't believe me but I'm not sorry I'm caught. Maybe they can make me straight. I've heard about doctors who did that."

"You mean?"

"I mean there must be something the matter with me or I wouldn't be swiping things." His eyes took in an instrument case, charts, and books. "Say, are you a doc?"

The physician smiled. "If you will let me take that gun out of your hip pocket, I'll give your head an examination."

Hopefully the burglar submitted, the physician sensing in the strained attitude and eager expression an intense desire for a discovery that would relieve a conscience of burden and work a cure.

"Perhaps, when you were a boy, you had a severe blow on the head?"

"Not, perhaps, but certainly. I had a lot of them. You couldn't live in our neighborhood without."

"Now listen, young man, I can send you to jail and prison, or I can send you out of this house cured of your desire to steal. It will mean an operation, a short time of unconsciousness, and a sore head, but you won't want to steal. You'll go straight! What do you say?"

"You mean you're going to cut a hunk of the bad out of my head? That's what I read about, what I meant about the prison, doctors. Well, you can't go ahead any too soon."

In the operating room and without an assistant or nurse, Doctor Whittaker prepared and, in a surprisingly short time, he was through. In the morning the young man with a bandage on his head, was out again to the world to steal or go straight and the physician had subject for speculation.

It was all of five years before the burglar returned, this time to thank his benefactor and to give assurance in word and manner that the experiment had been successful.

"I'm married," he said, "and am making good. I wanted to thank you."

"No need to tell him," Doctor Whittaker mused when the young man had gone, "that all I did was scratch his scalp to make him think that the thing which caused him to steal was gone. The older I get the more I believe in the power of suggestion."

No Injury

"Did the flood damage you folks much?" asked a stranger in the Ramapo Ridge region.

"The flood?" returned Gap Johnson, a prominent resident. "We wasn't yur in Bible times."

"I mean the flood of the recent spring."

"Aw, not as I know of. We're too high up to be bothered by rising waters. I believe, though, that a pisset of my children did get to fighting on the edge of the boiler down gander and tumble in and get wet all over for the first time this season. But I don't reckon it injured 'em none; least ways all of 'em—on the most of 'em, anyway—came straggling back after a while."—Kansas City Star.

PLEASANT LAKE ROAD HAS BEEN FINISHED

Good Progress Being Made On County Highway Projects In Spite Of Rain

One new road is completed and has been turned over to the maintenance department of the county road commission while work is continuing on nine other construction projects being carried on under the direction of the commissioners, according to their weekly report, says the Ann Arbor Daily News.

The contractor on the Pleasant Lake road has completed work and the highway from now on will be maintained by the commission. The shovel working on the lower section of Huron River drive has finished work west of Foster's crossing and has been placed east of this point.

All but a half mile of base course gravel has been placed on the new Fletcher road and the entire length of the Willow road has been rough graded. Good progress is reported in grading work on the Cavanaugh Lake road and all cross road culverts for the new Grass Lake highway have been placed.

About three-quarters of a mile of the Goffredson road has been rough graded and similar progress has been made on the Seven Mile road.

The contractor is building forms for the west abutment of the grade separation over the railroad tracks on the Belt Line highway. It is expected that work on the bridge over the tracks and State street will be started this week. Additional equipment is expected on the Whitmore Lake passing project and this, the commissioners believe, will speed up the work.

MICHIGAN'S FIRST RURAL SCHOOL TO CELEBRATE

One Hundredth Anniversary To Be Observed in Monroe County June 23

One hundred years ago, in the heavy forest, eight miles west of Monroe, a group of 34 farmers, hunters and trappers built Michigan's first school house. A monument commemorating this fact will be unveiled June 23.

The first building was of logs. In it met one teacher and a mere handful of pupils. Next came a plank structure of one room, put up in 1834, six years after the one of logs.

In 1850, a third and slightly larger building was erected because of the increased enrollment. In this, brick was the material used.

The building which now stands on the site of Michigan's first school, was constructed in 1901. It is modern and compact and can accommodate about 100 pupils.

The tablet to mark the spot will be unveiled by the oldest living graduates, Frank Knagge, of Maybee, and Tipheba Thompson, of Monroe, who attended more than 80 years ago.

On the face of the tablet is the simple inscription "1828-1928" "Erected by the Students"

charge of the program committee, Mrs. William Cline, of Monroe, secretary, and William Corns, president of the school association, have arranged a memorial service to follow the unveiling. Later there will be motor boat races, an auto show, an old-time fiddling contest and other features.

Many former students have written that they are returning for the event, some from as far away as Los Angeles.

SOME JACKSON YOUTHS PLAY COWBOY AND GET CAUGHT

A group of five boys, ranging in age from 8 to 12, accomplished more deviltry late Monday night than has been brought to the attention of sheriff's officers for some time. The youngsters were located early Tuesday afternoon by the proprietor of Bryant's filling station at Ferguson's Corners, shortly after he had notified the sheriff's department that his place was entered during the night.

Not only did the boys admit breaking into the filling station and filling the automobile which they drove on this pirate's expedition with cigarettes, candy and gum, but they are said to have related a series of jarring accomplishments.

About ten o'clock Monday night the gang made an attack on a barn in the vicinity of the gas station, where they procured a long rope and proceeded to play cowboy with some of the farmer's calves. Tiring of this sport, the boys set to work on the farmer's onion patch, pulling up a great heap of onions with which they made nests for some setting hens in the barn.—Jackson Tribune.

GOOD ROADS MAKE THE WORLD KIND

Paved city streets and improved highways leading to the city, affect the growth and prosperity of the community in many ways.

In the first place, cost of upkeep of an unpaved street or highway is much greater than if the thoroughfare were paved.

The entire surface of a paved street is usable; that is, there are not two lines or ruts which the traffic follows, as on dirt or gravel road. Therefore, paving increases the capacity of streets and highways.

Paving enhances the appearance of cities and acts as an inducement for owners to improve their grounds and houses, making a street a more pleasant place to live on.

Paved streets make a city more desirable from an industrial standpoint for a factory or any business while quick hauling will naturally pull town where hauling can be done most speedily and economically.

We are no longer living in the days of the old walled cities. Good roads, good streets, and rapid locomotion have annihilated time and distance and virtually made the whole world kin.

Summer White House

The Summer White House will be approximately 35 hours by train from Washington and two days and nights from Northampton. The nearest station stop is the small lumber town of Brule, Wisconsin, six miles away. Executive offices probably will be established in Superior, under present plans.

The estate is owned by the heirs of late Henry Clay Pierce, former multi-millionaire head of the Pierce Oil company.

Trout are plentiful in the river which runs through the estate. A fish hatchery is maintained nearby to keep the stream constantly restocked.

Although no definite date has been set for the president's departure from Washington, it is expected he will leave for the Summer White House a

Bronze and Brass

The composition of the bronze used by primitive people during the so-called Bronze age was an alloy of copper and tin. Bronze has continued in very extensive and general use down to the present day. It resembles closely brass, which is an alloy consisting mainly, if not exclusively, of copper and zinc.

Most Daring Hawk

The American goshawk is the fiercest, most destructive and most daring of all the hawks. Because its breeding range is far north and it is fewer in number than the Cooper, the aggregate damage to poultry is less, though grouse and other game birds suffer greatly. Mammals and livestock

MICHIGAN WILD LIFE

At the speeding automobile guideless or cruel hands is one of the important enemies of the wild life in Michigan. The charge preferred by many observing motorists. Recently one of the department heads of the conservation department made a trip by automobile from Saginaw to Lansing, a distance of 80 miles. Strewed along the route he found a partridge, a fox squirrel, a muskrat and four cotton tail rabbits. It was concrete evidence that game was being killed by automobiles.

Any sportsman would have been proud of such a bag, could he have taken it legally but here it was murdered on the highway, a distinct economic loss to a state that is making a tremendous effort to preserve its wild life. A large mental arithmetic shows that one bird or animal was killed for every 11 1/2 miles of highway traversed. Multiply this by the number of miles of improved roads in Michigan and a stupendous loss follows.

one day is the result.

It is not an uncommon thing to see in the early morning the dead body of a rabbit, cat or a skunk along the paved highways and the state department is making a plea to drivers of automobiles on the highways to use care when wild or domestic life strays out on the beaten track. Losses are suffered that may take many years to replace, if ever.

ALMA BEAUTIFIES INTER-CITY HIGHWAY

The city of Alma has planted one hundred and fifty elm trees on both sides of the paved road between Alma and St. Louis as far as the corporation line. The planting was done to make of the highway a lovely shaded avenue that would add dignity and beauty to the drive and properly introduce tourists and visitors. Alma's civic consciousness in this regard has been highly applauded by other communities and it is probable that its initiative in this regard will be followed by other communities.

Thirty-five Years Ago.

June 7, 1894

Waterloo—Mrs. Lucy Cronan met with an accident which resulted in her death Monday night. About 10 o'clock she pulled down a hanging lamp to blow it out when it fell, striking the table and bursting, covering her with oil. Her clothing caught fire, and though her son, Fred, extinguished the flames with a blanket, her face and limbs were terribly burned. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon.

Frank Shaver has moved his barber shop to the new Babcock store. He intends to have his bath room in running order soon.

Last Wednesday evening a brilliant wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gates, on South street. The contracting parties were Mr. Edward Vogel and Miss Margaret Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gates. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. F. E. Arnold, of Ypsilanti, assisted by Rev. W. W. Whitcomb of this place. The scene was very impressive and was witnessed by a large assemblage of friends. Following the wedding repast, Mr. and Mrs. Vogel were driven to Dexter where they took a train for Buffalo and other eastern cities.

The wedding of J. A. Maroney and Miss Minnie Finkbeiner occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Finkbeiner, of Lima, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Ude, of Freedom. Following the wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Maroney drove to their new home in Chelsea. Max L. Moon went down to visit Neptune and the mermaids in Cavanaugh lake. He was out in a canoe and was carrying too much sail when a strong wind struck him. He was rescued by Charles Davis.

George S. Laird's (upon the recommendation of Congressman Gorman) name was sent to the senate on Tuesday by President Cleveland, as postmaster of the Chelsea postoffice. Some of the democratic party leaders in the community were dissatisfied with the nomination of Mr. Laird and issued a call for a meeting to be held in the town hall Saturday afternoon.

The new warehouse on the south side of the M. C. railway is completed and the building is now housing the egg shipping business conducted by C. J. Chandler & Co. The building was constructed by the firm and is 86 feet long and an enclosed dock along the railway track runs the entire length of the warehouse.

Sylvan received $2140 library money from the county treasury to be distributed among the several schools in the township.

Chandler dogs made bad work in the flock of sheep of George Marshall, last Thursday. Killing five and biting twenty-five. Mr. Marshall followed them to near the owner. The dogs left the owner's place at four o'clock in the afternoon and returned at eight o'clock in the morning.

Lima—A Sunday school has been organized here with Jay Easton as superintendent, Mrs. F. Ward, assistant superintendent and Mrs. Alice, secretary.

Sharon—The scramble for the Sharon postoffice has not begun yet. The recent trouble in Chelsea, Ann Arbor and other small towns has dampened the ardor of the aspirants for office who have not had a clean record.

Sylvan—Revival meetings are being held at this place.

PROFITS INCREASE FOR TESTED HERDS

An increased production of butterfat and a consequent larger profit from the dairy herds of members of herd improvement associations are shown by the reports of these organizations.

The improved results are the result of better feeding methods, the culling out of unprofitable cows, and the selection of heifers from cows which have had a good record.

The West Allegan Association which recently completed its third year of testing had eleven herds which produced an average of more than 400 pounds of butterfat per cow. Every herd in the association averaged over 300 pounds of butterfat per cow.

Members of state associations find that there is a ready sale for cows with good production records. Henry Mayers, an Oceana county member, sold a three year old cow with a 538 pound record for $300.00. A yearling heifer calf from this cow sold for $125.00.

NEW TYPE AIR CLEANER ON GRAHAM-PAIGE CARS

An entirely new type of air cleaner, depending on the adhesiveness of "oil-soaked" woven metal sponge for its effectiveness, is one of the advanced features of the new Graham-Paige cars. The cleaner is said to be of unusually high efficiency, removing virtually all solid particles from the air.

In the Graham-Paige installation, the new type filter is mounted above the carburetor. The housing is of sheet metal, having openings top and bottom that are several times the area of the carburetor intake. Loosely packed in the housing are many yards of flat copper ribbon, matted into a spongy mass. A large surface is thus exposed to the air and over the entire surface is a film of heavy oil.

L-H PIG CLUB OUGHT TO HAVE THIS ONE

The heaviest litter of pigs in the United States last year included 12 pure bred Chester Whites, weighing 3,598 pounds at the age of 6 months. The litter was owned by August Speerschnelder, Brown county, Wisconsin.

The Fascinating "Mr. Sunday"

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"HENRY'S blood was real blue—you can't deny that," Squire Crane said defensively to his wife, who retorted instantly: "Blue as skin milk—and as poor. So poor I can't see why they're so set up over it."

"Why, they don't put on airs over it—it's the rest of us sorer look up to 'em for what they are. Been for of the pot ever since way back in Revolutionary times—yet there ain't no friendlier folks in the county."

"Not strange—considering the county keeps them, voting the colonel in office time on time, regular as election comes round. And that's how he's managed to get his two boys in West Point and Annapolis."

"Well! They've got to live some how—and that farm so poor is worn sprout black-eyed peas unless you move 'em," the squire chuckled. His wife snorted: "That maybe saves the county at large something—but it's a bit rough on the neighbors—when the Henrys have company. They've got it now, you tell me—staying company. That means I'll have to lend a hand and a coop of broilers, and eggs, butter, and preserves, to say nothing of being asked to bake a cake and plex. And poor Miss Rachel will part with furs and jars of things—Honey! or der them—with never a notion of how the bill can be paid. Seems to me they might make such truck themselves—five girls in the family, all big enough and old enough and anxious enough to be married. Betsy's twenty-seven—I know her age by my John's—she might have been married and got a good start on a family if she hadn't turned her nose up so rough when my nephew, Sundry Allen, tried to court her. And she'll never have a better chance. See how he's got on—ain't a better catch in the county. But Ma Henry couldn't see him in her family because he worked at the lumber yard with his own hands—as well he might—knowing Uncle Ben was going to will it to him. Betty's fine looking—I ain't denyin' that—but she's gettin' on—with four younger ones crowdin' her."

"The Lord will provide—maybe," Squire Crane chuckled. "Looks like he had begun this very week. The Mr. Sunday Pat Henry has fetched home—with him, I hear, is the real thing—northern man with money in both pockets, out to see what he can find to spend it for down here in the South."

"H-I-I wonder how come Pat to find him?" Mrs. Crane sniffed.

"That's no mystery," from the squire. "They met in a hotel, just as Pat was planning his start—got talking together—Sunday told how he had a brand new car and was keen to come South in it—so they hitched horses and agreed to come together. First Sunday asked—after a while—'Pat wouldn't hear to that—telegraphed the colonel to get ready for company—said now all hands are as tight as beeswax that things have fallen our way.'"

Mr. Sunday, it appeared, was a rapid worker. Three days later he proposed to Betty.

Later sensation-crowded sensation—he had given Betty out of hand a solitary almost too big and brilliant, a diamond bracelet, a rope of pearls, a set of summer furs, and a mesh bag of jewelry—trifles all, he declared, but there was time enough ahead for better things.

Ten days was the time limit for the wedding—he was due many miles away on important business. Not quite so important, of course, as making sure of Betty, but something it would be costly to neglect.

Fast June. It appears, a sense of cosmic justice. Else why should Sundry Allen, glancing idly through a chance newspaper, have lighted upon accounts of a smooth embezzler who had bought a new car and said he was getting a woman, but more than suspected of heading another way? No picture. But somehow the description fitted the fascinating Mr. Sunday—enough to set Sundry investigating—there was a reward—five thousand dollars—but that was nothing compared to what might develop. Sundry went half way to meet the sleuths—brought them home with him—cunningly nobody suspected anything.

So at eight o'clock that night, instead of bonds matrimonial, Mr. Sunday, alias Richard Green, the flashiest spender in the Night club circuit, found himself hampered with bonds of steel. Sundry managed affairs quite magnanimously—Betty should not be shamed before expectant guests. "The arrest was made on the dead quiet—it was not until the car bearing Mr. Sunday to receive his desserts was well away that Sundry showed his hand. And then only to Colonel Henry himself, to whom he said, 'Here's an open and shut proposition—Ever saved your daughter from marrying a thief—in reward will you give her to a fellow who is at least reasonably honest? She don't exactly hate me—I love her enough for two. Don't cheat the neighbors of a wedding after all the trouble they've taken to have a proper one. I'm hooked—not a new license back in town—the preacher's waiting all wised up to us to what's wanted—now what'll you say?'"

"The only thing possible to a man of sense. A double-barreled 'Yes!'—both the colonel. Whereafter it all did not go merry as a marriage bell. Mrs. Henry somehow managed to escape hysterics."

THOSE FINGERPRINTS

"My good man," said the kindly old lady visiting the jail, "I hope that since you have come here you have had time for meditation and have decided to correct your faults."

"That I have, mum," replied the prisoner in heartfelt tones, "Believe me, the next job I pull this baby wears gloves."—The Pathfinder.

LIMA 4-H CLUB MET

The Lima 4-H club met at the home of J. M. Bradbury on May 31, about 28 members being present. After the business session, games were played. An enjoyable evening was spent.

The republican national convention will convene at Kansas City next Tuesday at noon. From present indications none of the candidates whose names have thus far been mentioned for the presidential nomination has enough delegates pledged to nominate on the first ballot. There will likely be some lively skirmishing there next week.

Famous Conspiracy

In British history the Cato street conspiracy was a conspiracy under the lead of Arthur Christywood, which aimed to assassinate "Castlereagh and other ministers. The plot was discovered February 28, 1820, at the rendezvous, Cato street, near Edgeware road, London. It is also called the Christywood conspiracy.

Elimination of Pullman Surcharge Will Involve Loss of $40,000,000 to Railroads and Will Shift the Burden Upon Those Who Do Not Enjoy the Service

THE Senate Committee has reported out favorably the Robinson bill eliminating the Pullman surcharge. This action, while apparently a popular one, is class legislation and as such is bound to involve losses not only to the railroads, but to the traveling public who ride in the day coaches and to a number of communities that now enjoy sleeping car service.

TO the Railroads, it involves immediately a loss of $40,000,000 in revenue annually, which will have to be made up somehow. The surcharge is the only revenue that the railroads get for the hauling of the heavier equipment and the incidental special service of parking this equipment at the stations and in coach yards. In fact, the railroads have always had to pay to the Pullman Company a certain small charge for the mileage of each Pullman car and besides a guarantee of a certain minimum of return covering a period of years. All of the returns for berths, etc., go to the Pullman Company excepting the surcharge.

THE surcharge was found necessary by the United States Railroad Administration. Its continuance has been recommended by the Interstate Commerce Commission after an exhaustive study of the entire question of passenger travel returns.

THE Pullman sleeping car after all is a hotel on wheels. It provides an unusual service. It represents a heavy investment per passenger. The berth charge from this high class service together, are not out of line with the charge for a room in a modern high class hotel.

SINCE the Pullman sleeping car passenger enjoys greater comfort than does the passenger in the day coach, he should expect to pay for the added comfort. The Pullman passenger is allotted two and one half times as much space as the person riding in the day coach. The car weight per passenger of the average day coach—assuming that it is filled—is about 6,800 pounds. The car weight per passenger of the average Pullman sleeping car—assuming that sleeper is filled—is about 12,260 pounds. The cost to the railroad of hauling a sleeping car passenger is, therefore, approximately twice as much. Should not the sleeping car passenger pay for these additional privileges to the passenger and the obligations devolving upon the railroads?

ANOTHER illustration: The sleeping car lines to Michigan resorts in summer and to Florida or California resorts in the winter, are seasonal movements. The travel is all in one direction, which means that the return movement is an empty one. RAILROADS have only two main sources of income—passenger revenues and freight revenues.

THE wiping out of $40,000,000 annually in passenger revenues involved in the abolition of the surcharge on Pullman fares must inevitably do one of three things—

1. Result in cutting down of passenger train service now provided by American Railroads;
2. Restricting sleeping car service on the less prosperous lines;
3. Or, shifting the burden of the loss upon the shippers of freight.

ANY one of these expedients is unfair to the general public, that section who ride in the day coaches.

IT is a good principle of business at all times to require the person who employs a special service to pay for that special service.

THE Pullman surcharge requires just that.

THE abolition of the surcharge, therefore, constitutes class or sumptuary legislation, which is not desirable in this day and age.

THE railroads do not object to governmental regulation by the proper tribunal—the Interstate Commerce Commission—constituted to deal with the transportation industry exclusively.

WRITE your senator or congressman to-day protesting against this uneconomic and unfair measure.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING TO BE HELD NEXT MONDAY

Last Legislature Made Some Radical Changes In The School Laws Concerning Annual Meetings And Reports

The last legislature enacted a code of school law which contains much of the old law, some new provisions and some changes, the reasons for which are hard to find.

Some of the important changes and new provisions are as follows and are noted in a letter sent by the Department of Public Instruction to the Boards of Education and school superintendents. These provisions apply to all schools except those organized under special or local acts (parochial). First, the date of annual school meeting is changed from July to the second Monday in June. School officers and trustees elected at this time must qualify within ten days but do not assume office until July 1. This leaves the old school board in office up to July 1.

At the annual meeting on the second Monday in June, the law provides that the financial report of the preceding school year shall be read. As the current school year will not be finished the report to be read will be that of a school year which ended nearly a year before. For instance, at the annual meeting on June 11, 1928, the report to be read will be that of the year beginning July 12, 1926, and ending July 11, 1927. Any report of the current school year need not be read at the annual meeting. This leaves the district practically a year behind in getting its information as to district finances.

the year beginning July 12, 1926, and ending July 11, 1927. Any report of the current school year need not be read at the annual meeting. This leaves the district practically a year behind at the time of its annual meeting in getting its information as to district finances. The law further provides that in all graded school districts the board of education must publish after the close of the current school year an itemized financial statement covering the year. Thus, at the close of the school year, June 30, 1928, an itemized financial statement must be published and this report is the one to be read on the second Monday in June, 1929.

As under the old law, the school board has entire power as to making of the school budget and no budget is to be presented or voted on at the annual school meeting. The law apparently operates on the principle that what the taxpayers don't know will not cause them any uneasiness—until they find it out later.

By another change the fourth Monday in July will be the last date for making application for high school tuition instead of the fourth Monday in June. The new law also gives any school district, except primary districts, the power to form the district into one or more regular voting precincts, in which case it would provide for the registration of voters, the nomination of candidates for trustee by petition, voting by printed ballot, etc. This provision, however, is not obligatory.

MONROE TO HAVE A HOSPITAL

Through the efforts of the business men of Monroe a fund is being raised for the erection of a hospital in that city, to cost $225,000. The new institution will have 100 beds and will be conducted by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Kalamazoo, which will insure its successful operation.

The annual commencement of the Ann Arbor High school will take place at Hill auditorium on June 18th, with Dr. Gordon James Laing of Chicago, as speaker.

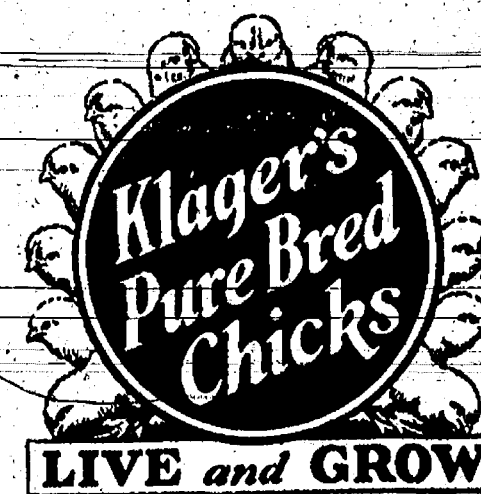

THROWING STONES WILL NOT HELP

Jackson business men, judging from reports, do not like the idea of having a great mail order concern establish a retail store in that city and have already held two meetings at which protests were made. This procedure will not keep the new concern away, nor will it strengthen the local merchants to "set their houses in order," to arrange their stores and stocks to make them just as attractive as possible and thus invite the public to share their patronage with them. People attracted to the city by the proposed new store will not all buy there and as they shop about town other stores will be able to offer them special inducements which may prove just as good bargains.

These chain stores are coming to all cities of 5,000 and over, it is said, just as the chain grocery stores have come to nearly all smaller towns, and the merchants who make an effort to meet this competition can do so and they will be able to hold their trade if they seek the proper methods. This cannot be done, however, by sitting down and "throwing stones" at the chain stores. If local merchants will advertise and make an effort to serve the public they will find they will secure their share of the trade. In many Michigan towns these facts have been proven repeatedly.

MEANS CONSIDERABLE SAVING

It is estimated that purchasers of new automobiles will be saved the sum of $85,000,000 as a result of favorable legislation by congress during the closing days of the session. The new revenue bill eliminated the war excise tax on passenger cars. This saving will be passed on to the public, so declare all auto manufacturers.

OUR NEWBORN

Brighton—The Brighton schools will graduate a class of 16 this year, the last class to finish from old Brighton High. The class of 1929 will in all probability enjoy the privileges of the new school building now in process of construction.—Argus.

Brighton—The citizens of this village had two propositions offered them for installing a water works system, neither of which has been accepted. The last class to finish from the old Grass Lake—William Giltner, a former resident of Grass Lake, died at Detroit, May 27th, and was buried in West Cemetery, this village, Monday.

Gregory—Rev. W. W. Dressel preached his farewell sermon in the Gregory Community Baptist church on Sunday, May 27th. Rev. Dressel has been pastor of the church for more than three years.

Brooklyn—For the first time in a number of years no Decoration Day exercises were held here. The graves in Highland cemetery were decorated as usual.

Howell—The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has let the contract for a new building to house their telephone exchange in this city. The new building is to be two stories high and is to be a brick veneer. The building is to be erected during this summer.

Manchester—Wm. J. Hoffer has received word from Lansing to put gates in his mill flume so the water can be lowered in the upper pond to allow work of laying abutments for the new steel and concrete bridge on M-11 on Exchange Place.—Enterprise.

Manchester—Married at the Methodist parsonage in this village, Saturday afternoon, May 27th, 1929, by Rev. R. D. Harper, Mr. Archie E. Bruce of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Miss Musa P. McKay of Sharon.

Powerville—Sited just north of the city of Brighton on U. S. 16, one of the greatest trunk lines of the state, is a tract of land, recently owned by various farmers, now the property of the Capitol Land Co. of Detroit. When the company began the development of what is known as the Benjamin farm last year, no one knew the extent of their plans and even when the Brighton Mill property passed into their hands early this spring, it was but a conjecture just what use was to be made of the same together with the attendant water wheel. Now with 1,283 acres of land at their command it has been made known that a new artificial lake is in process of construction, the lake to be situated on the east side of Grand River avenue to the south of what is known as the Ernest Crippen farm.—Review.

Milan—The Washtenaw County Federation of Women's clubs held their annual meeting in this village on Friday, June 1st, in the Methodist church. Two sessions were held, one in the forenoon and the other in the afternoon. A good program and playlets were carried out. Officers for the coming year were chosen during the afternoon session.

Mason—The annual meeting of the Mason County Pioneer and Historical Society is announced to be held at the Presbyterian church of Mason on June 12 next. Members will meet at the church for registry and the annual business session at ten o'clock in the forenoon; a dinner being served free to all who have registered at noon.

Northville—Contracts have been let for the construction of the new steel and concrete grandstand at the fair grounds of the Northville Wayne County Fair association. Workmen during the past few days have removed the old structure, and by August first it is believed that the new grandstand will have been entirely completed.—Record.

Dexter—The commencement exercises of the Dexter High school will be held in the M. E. church, Friday evening, June 8th.

Saline—A few days since the Sheriff's force from Ann Arbor discovered about 20 pounds of dynamite under a stove just out of town, which had been placed there, for what and by whom, is still a mystery.—Observer.

Plymouth—At a recent meeting of the common council, the bids for the $40,000 general obligation bonds were sold to a Chicago bond house at a premium of $613.00 with interest at 4 1/2 per cent.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ostrander, who recently left Stockbridge to make their home in Perndale, were tendered a delightful reception by the Masons and members of the O. E. S.

The annual commencement exercises of the Dexter High school will be held on the evening of June 8th. Class day exercises will be held on the previous evening and the baccalaureate sermon was delivered at the M. E. church on Sunday evening by Rev. J. V. Fradenburg.

Nine boys and seven girls will graduate in the class of '30 at the St. Thomas High school at Ann Arbor next month and the commencement has been set for Sunday night, June 17, at St. Thomas church at 8 o'clock. Rev. Fr. Francis Hurdy, S. T. B. M. A. Hillsdale, will deliver the address.

Sunday was observed as Michigan Memorial Day at the Oddfellows' Home at Jackson. Rev. Karl J. Koester of Hastings, gave the address, and the Jackson male chorus of 100 voices, rendered a number of selections. One hundred and forty-five graves of departed Oddfellows were decorated.

Lansing—Consumers Power Company will engage force of 200 men to lay gas mains from here to Williams-ton.

His Home Work Didn't Take

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright)

STANLEY JONES was thinking of his sister Sally. He likened her to a duck. Sally, whose feathers were always as smooth and glossy and perfectly dry as those on a duck's back. Nice metaphor that, thought Stanley Jones, as he drove home from his office to what he had once considered his cozy, comfortable bachelor's apartment. It was no longer either cozy or comfortable—not even a bachelor's apartment since Sally, the duck, and her husband, Bill Ames, had sailed away to the south of France for the remainder of the winter, leaving eight-year-old, Stan, named after himself, to share the apartment with him. Water slipping off a duck's back—that was young Stan.

Having proceeded thus far with his meditation Stanley found himself in front of his apartment house. He found young Stanley joyously playing in the basement with the janitor's children.

Now it was five and there would be an hour and a half before they would go out for dinner—an hour and a half that had once meant peace and tranquility with pipe and book for Stanley. Now it meant home work with Stanley. Young Stanley had been rather slow with arithmetic, but Stanley left for France she had explained to Stan's teachers that the deficiency could be easily made up when Stan was staying with his uncle who was a good mathematician.

There was a neatly pinned note that first afternoon in Stan's school bag. It was from his teacher. "Dear Mr. Jones," it said. "Stanley still needs help with his tables. He understands the theory apparently but he has not had enough drilling. And Stanley is careless. Would you please see that he knows his tables better, and please drill him to accuracy." It was signed Matilda Hawkins.

"I'd like to see that teacher of yours," said Uncle Stanley, with a fine tone of sarcasm that was lost on his nephew. "How old is she?"

"Oh, she must be very old. I'm showing a woman if she was forty or maybe sixty. I don't know, though it's hard to tell when people get grown up."

"Is she going looking—at all?" said Uncle Stanley.

"Well, some of us fellows think so, but you wouldn't. She's got a kind of roundish face with a sort of a bump on the top of her head and a kind of a queer mouth."

"I don't sound like a beauty," observed Stanley, undoing the buckles of his mathematics school bag. Spelling came first, and then some written work in English, and after that, drill with the tables. Stanley found that since the day before his nephew had quite successfully forgotten all he had ever known of the seven times table. It didn't worry Stan very much.

"You ought to drill me again," he observed.

The next day Stanley's bag contained a note from his uncle for the teacher. He regretted his failure as a tutor, and asked if arrangements could be made for her to tutor the boy from five to six every evening.

Stan brought back word that teacher said that it would be against the rules of the school for the teacher to accept fees for tutoring, but teacher had said she would come around at five to six and would teach him things over with Uncle Stanley.

So at a little after five that afternoon teacher arrived. But when Stanley answered her ring at the door and saw the pretty young woman standing there in the hall, he didn't feel the faintest idea that she really was his nephew's teacher.

"Is Mr. Stanley Jones at home?" she asked, somewhat perplexed.

"Why, I am Stanley Jones—won't you come in?"

"You are—but little Stanley Brown's uncle, isn't he?"

"They don't regard each other with animosity," he said, you were quite an old man—probably sixty at least—with wrinkles."

"I've got the wrinkles teaching him," laughed Stanley. "It happens to be twenty-nine. No one would guess that you were somewhere around fifty yourself."

"Oh, twenty-three," protested the teacher, "the little written—" and then as they had made their way to the living room she added, "but I would never have come if I had known—that is, I thought you were, probably Stanley's great-uncle at least."

"I deserve any amount of pity you can spare," Stanley told her.

Together they worked with little Stanley—somewhat bewildered—over the mysteries of the multiplication tables. At six Matilda rose to go, but Stanley begged her to stay and big teacher suggested that they all dine together. Matilda had already said that she lived away from home in a boarding house.

After that three times a week Matilda came to help tutor little Stanley and when at the end of the spring the they had decided to stay on—and to lay Europe for the summer months—Stanley cabled back this surprising message:

"Will meet you in Paris in July. Coming on honeymoon. Will leave Stanley with you—Stanley Jones."

WILLY KRAKATOA

Last Eruption of Volcano Killed 30,000 People.

Washington—Is Krakatoa lighting the fuse for another explosion? The tiny island volcano in the strait between Java and Sumatra, ready has tossed out another land mass into the adjacent water. The Dutch government, recalling a terrific eruption of 1883, has sent radio warnings to both the Dutch and Japanese.

That volcano was the most violent in modern times, according to bulletin from the National Geographic society's headquarters at Washington. It has been said that it "made the biggest noise" ever heard by the ears of man. Men and women still live in the Americas who recall the eruption, for, while they did not hear its roar and detonation, they saw the volcanic sunsets which its dust, circulating in the upper atmosphere, helped create.

The sound of the eruption was heard on Rodriguez Island, 3,000 miles distant, four hours after the catastrophe. It shot volcanic dust 30 miles high and it was this dust that was caught up in a lofty wind whirled around the earth in 13 days. It raised a tide in South America, 6,000 miles away, and, nearer by, threw up a wall of water more than a hundred feet high which traveled 60 miles an hour.

Two months before it exploded in 1883 Krakatoa was regarded as an extinct volcano.

No person who saw the eruption lived to tell the story. It snuffed out 30,000 lives.

England's Richest Woman Has Her Home at Sea

London—Complete separation from the world at last has been achieved by England's wealthiest woman.

On her yacht Liberty, moored in the wide reach of the Solent not far from here, Lady Houston, widow of the late millionaire showman, Sir Robert Houston, rests in luxurious solitude. Even her friends can't reach her for that she is sorry. But, she says, she was driven to it.

Nearly two years ago her husband died, leaving her a fortune of $50,000,000. She herself undertook the administering of the huge estate. But so many investment brokers and financiers descended upon her that she fled in flight. From a cabin in her 1,000-ton yacht she directs her affairs. No one approaches her, and only the most important mail is delivered to her.

"The real reason," so friends say, for her strange seclusion is not her desire to escape from routine business affairs. Rather it is to get away from England, where, she suspects, her husband died of what she calls "slender influences."

What they are she will not divulge. Her times she tells enough, she said. On it she had inscribed: "To my husband, Sir Robert Houston, who died most mysteriously."

Mexico Adopts Modified Daylight-Saving System

Mexico City—A trivial matter which has caused much more interest in Mexico, because of the number of persons it affects, has been settled, definitely and officially, with the allotment of two official times—one for summer and the other for winter.

Corresponding to the daylight-saving system which is used in the United States.

Controversies continually were waged last year in various sections of the country, some using the astronomical time, the others, relying on the "official" time, with the result that much inconvenience was caused and business hampered. Government intervention was finally asked.

The National Chamber of Commerce, after writing to the secretariat of agriculture, finally provided and accepted the solution—a compromise which says there shall be two times, both officially and both nationally recognized. One is to be called "summer" and the other "winter" time, and by this conflicts and misunderstandings will be avoided.

Railroads and public utilities in general will observe the new system to avoid confusion.

Bicycles as Killers

Paris—Police statistics for a year show that bicycles are worse killers than the heavily loaded automobiles that weave their fast and ponderous way through Paris traffic jams.

MAKING A JOKE OF CRIME

An editorial in a leading Eastern newspaper, in discussing the crime record of the United States, claims that in order to check crime we must have a more drastic method of selecting immigration. To substantiate its argument it points out a number of foreign names among those indicted in Chicago's $5,000,000 liquor ring.

Without going into the immigration question of the same which an individual bears with the mere passage of more restrictive legislation of one kind and another which continually tends to enmesh upon the rights of law-abiding citizens, reform the criminal? The majority of remedies proposed for crime dodge the main issue, namely, quick and speedy capture, trial and conviction of the lawbreaker.

We have a mania for passing laws which offer loopholes for the escape of the criminal. As an example, an honest householder owns a revolver and a criminal owns a revolver. In order to prevent the criminal's using a gun, legislation would make it unlawful to own a gun. The peaceful citizen immediately has to become a lawbreaker or dispense with his gun. Will such a law in any way tend to disarm the criminal? Not that anybody has a record of.

If the criminal obeyed the law he wouldn't be a criminal. Then why not make our legislation applicable to him, and not a dragnet which takes in every person who has committed no crime? In other words, punish the guilty and not the innocent. Such a policy will do more to secure law enforcement than pussyfooting around the main issue.

ACTED WISELY

Representative Lawson of Oakland county has decided not to oppose Senator Charles Sink in the coming primary campaign. He has announced that he will seek re-election to the lower house. In his decision he has used good judgment. In the first place Representative Lawson has been a good representative and he has now reached a point where he has a little more than the average influence in the house. In the second place it is exceedingly doubtful if he could have made even a fair showing against Senator Sink in the primary, even though Oakland county has by far the largest voting population in the district.

There are hundreds, yes thousands, of voters in Oakland county who like the way Senator Sink of Ann Arbor does business and the prospects are that Representative Lawson's useful legislative career might have ended with the primary. As it is now, both Senator Sink and Representative Lawson will go back to Lansing, there isn't much question about that, and in two years there might be an opening whereby Representative Lawson can go over to the senate from his district if he should desire to do so at that time. Northville Record.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM

To be permanently successful, rural electric service must be able to provide the farmer with electricity at a reasonable rate, and must equally produce a fair return upon its investment to the electric utility company.

While rates must necessarily be high when only a small amount of current is used, due to high cost per consumer of constructing rural transmission lines in sparsely settled territory, they can be reduced as consumption of electricity increases.

Therefore, the solution of the problem of supplying farmers with electric power is to increase the number of users which it will perform for him. This can be accomplished by new types of farm machinery adapted to electric drive.

Farmers in Lima and Freedom townships, a good many of them at least, are being served with electric current by the Detroit Edison Company, and they are finding the service very convenient and most satisfactory. The Detroit Edison Company always gives good service.

HAVE YOU CO-OPERATED

The members of the village council and the village health department expressed the desire to have all alleys and unsightly places cleaned up before summer arrived and their requests have been granted by a majority of our people. But there are a few who have shown no spirit of co-operation in the clean-up campaign. Great piles of ashes and other accumulation are still unmoved in some of our alleys and behind some of our business places.

Everyone ought to co-operate with the village authorities in their efforts to make Chelsea clean and thus to protect the health of the whole community.

BEWARE OF STRANGE DOGS

If you discover a strange dog in your neighborhood beware. Rabies are spreading about the state at an alarming rate and it stands all citizens, especially children, in hand to be very careful about any dog, especially a strange one.

The Howell Democrat, which has been conducted by John Ryan for the past 30 years, has been sold to Herbert R. Gillette and William H. Canfield of Howell. Mr. Ryan will retire and it is hoped he may be spared to enjoy many years of rest as a reward for his faithful service to the community in which he has labored.

GOVERNOR GREEN SPEAKS REGARDING CEMENT PLANT

The citizens of Alpena tendered Governor Fred W. Green a banquet in that city last Thursday night after the governor and his party had made a trip over some highways in that section of the state. During his address he discussed the local cement plant situation as follows: "When I took office," he said, "I found I had a cement plant in my lap. The state had more than $1,000,000 invested in it. I never said I would sell it or that I would close it. I do not believe the getting permission from the Legislature or by a vote of the people. "At the end of two years, whether I am elected again or not, I am going to give the Legislature a true report of the operations of that plant. I will make a recommendation based on that report and the Legislature can then determine just what ought to be done. The report will tell the whole truth; there will be no half-way business involved."

CANADIAN AND AMERICAN BOOTLEGGERS ARE DISTURBED

Canadian and American bootleggers expressed some concern Friday about a movement started by Ontario provincial authorities to close all export docks across the Detroit river. Nearly $50,000,000 worth of liquor annually is shipped from these docks to "foreign ports" and most of it reaches the Detroit side. The provincial police ordered the docks closed, but the dock owners refused, on the ground that only the Dominion government had jurisdiction.

LET'S HAVE A CHELSEA FLOWER SHOW

What say you? Why can we not have a flower show in Chelsea, either in the fall or next spring. From our many attractive gardens it would be very easy to select flowers that will compare with any shown by our neighbors and it might be the means of creating renewed interest in floriculture and home improvement.

Think it over and let us know what you think of the idea.

The general Federation of Women's clubs, in session at San Antonio, deprecate the "bathing girl" beauty exhibitions. These annual displays of "feminine beauty" have become very unsavory affairs. Even the hotel proprietors at Atlantic City have frowned upon them.

The corner stone of the new St. Paul's Evangelical church at Ann Arbor was laid Sunday with appropriate ceremonies. Revs. E. F. Manske of Adrian, and William Bodamer of Scot, were the speakers. Stephanus Lutheran choir of Detroit, furnished music.

It is time now to plan for your exhibit at the county fair. Do not wait until fair time and then rush into the field or garden and select anything you may have. Now is the growing season during which you should "train" your exhibits.

Milan is soon to have a community fire truck also.

RETIRE AFTER TWENTY- FIVE YEARS OF SERVICE

A morning train from Chicago pulled into the Michigan Central station Saturday without Timothy J. Kennedy. It was the first time in a quarter of a century.

Mr. Kennedy sat at breakfast in his home at 4823 Edmonston avenue and reminisced.

"We never had an accident that hurt anybody. We never had a hold-up. I was never off a day and neither was the train."

The 70-year-old conductor, who has cuto-Detroit line for 25 years, began railroading in 1862 when the cars were lighted with gas pressure lamps and those who were hungry got off at the

Paramount Memorials

Comparison and analysis of the features of Paramount Memorials reveal a superiority which will be of assistance to you in your final decision.

Two-tone carving, alternating light and dark spaces, is a new feature that purchasers recognize as distinctive.

Paramount carving is a new and distinctive feature that makes Paramount Memorials exclusive. Faces with square-cut, straight lines add to the beauty of a Paramount Memorial.

All Paramount Memorials, whether elaborate or modest in type, reflect exclusiveness and individuality.

ORIENTAL RUGS

From the collection of K. S. Jamgotch

Rugs of rare charm

These rugs have come from the Eastern market where Mr. Jamgotch in person bought them. This group of rugs was selected from thousands and brought here for Ann Arbor and its vicinity. They are unusually distinctive and there are no others in the country like them. An exhibition of unusual beauty.

You are invited

Even though you are not planning to purchase an Oriental rug at this time we want you to come into this department to view the scene of Eastern luxuriousness which is created by the rich quality and mystic colors of these rugs. Included are such rugs as the following: Saruks, Bijars, Kurdistans, Shiraz, Lillihans, Bokharas, Beeloojistsans and Anatolians.

Moderate prices

The prices which have made our Oriental rug sales so popular with Ann Arbor prevail at this season. In fact this modest price range makes it possible for many to own beautiful rugs. Oriental mats are priced upward from $4.95, while rugs in many desirable sizes are priced $17.50, $24.50 and $35.00 up.

3,000,000 A WEEK

When the Saturday Evening Post tells us that its net paid circulation is more than 3,000,000 copies every week, we are properly thrilled.

Honest figures of magnitude and solid growth are always convincing, especially when the subject is Car Insurance. Such figures radiate a feeling of confidence and carry far more weight than airy promises and much talky-talk about insurance service unless that service has real financial backing to support the promises.

Now for some figures that tell the growth and stability of Auto-Owners Insurance Company:

Assets, $1,300,000.00
Legal Reserve, $950,000.00
Cash Surplus, $350,000.00

It took just 30 years to build the Saturday Evening Post's circulation up to the 3,000,000 mark.

In slightly more than 11 years, the Auto-Owners Insurance Company has increased its assets from the zero point to $1,300,000.00.

Auto-Owners has held for several years its earned position as an automobile insurance leader in Michigan. That it continues to grow at a rapid rate is ample proof of its usefulness to the car owners of this state.

THE FISHING SEASON

For Black Bass and Blue Gills will open

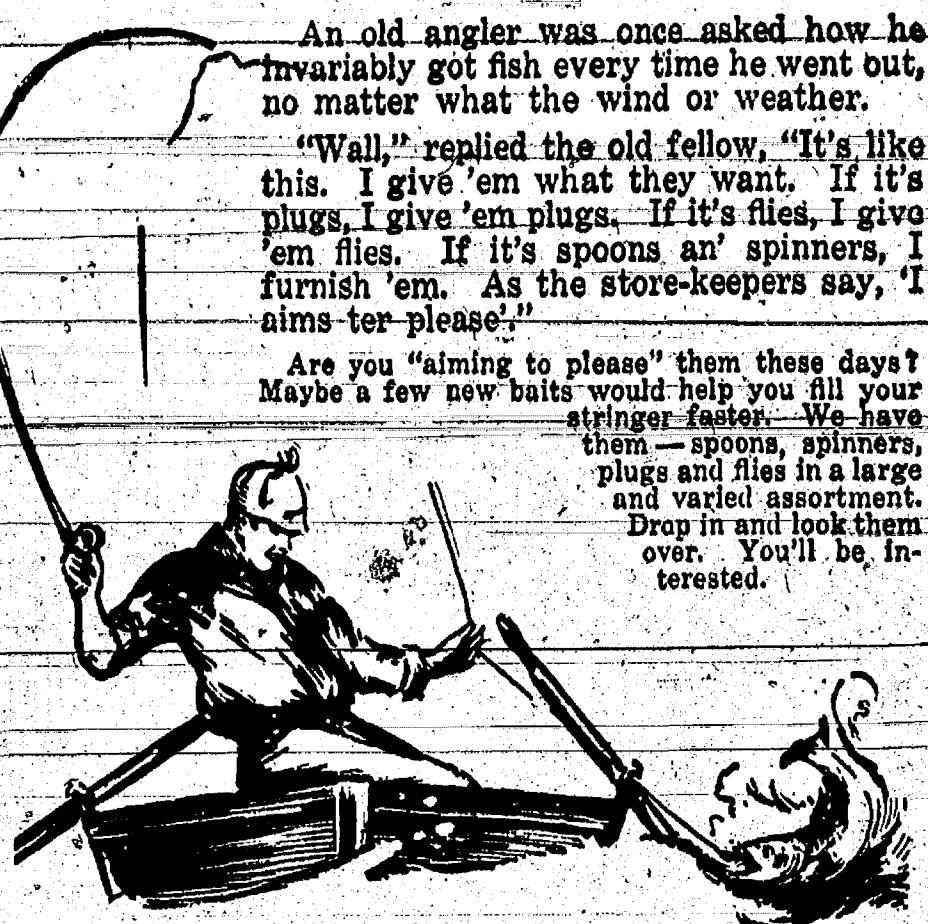

SATURDAY, JUNE 16

Fishermen!

An old angler was once asked how he invariably got fish every time he went out, no matter what the wind or weather.

"Well," replied the old fellow, "It's like this. I give 'em what they want. If it's plugs, I give 'em plugs. If it's flies, I give 'em flies. If it's spoons an' spinners, I furnish 'em. As the store-keepers say, 'I aims ter please'."

Are you "aiming to please" them these days? Maybe a few new baits would help you fill your stringer faster. We have them—spoons, spinners, plugs and flies in a large and varied assortment. Drop in and look them over. You'll be interested.

PROMINENT SHARON RESIDENT DIED LAST WEEK TUESDAY

Caspar Jacob was born in Germany, February 9, 1843, and departed this life at his home in Sharon township, Tuesday morning, May 29, 1928, at the age of 85 years. He came to this country in 1866 and for the last 46 years resided in Sharon. He was one of the founders of St. Paul church in Sharon and remained an active, faithful member until the end.

He leaves six sons, Simon, William and Christian at home, Henry of Norwell and Gottlieb of near Manchester, 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and two brothers, Theophilus and a daughter, Mrs. Emilie McCred, all in death.

The funeral was held Friday afternoon at St. Paul's church, Rev. Schoen well and Gottlieb of near Manchester, 12 grandchildren and two brothers, Theophilus and a daughter, Mrs. Emilie McCred, all in death.

The remains were laid to rest in St. Paul's cemetery.

MRS. HENRY HUDSON

The death of Mrs. Martha A. Hudson occurred at Pontiac, Saturday, at the age of 70 years. She was the widow of the late Henry Hudson, who died last November and formerly lived in this country.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Nettie Bland, of Pontiac, Mrs. Henry Johnson, of Chelsea, and Mrs. Ray Powers, of St. Johns, also one son, George Hudson, of Howell township. Funeral services were held at the Goodrich funeral chapel May 28th. Rev. W. C. Donald officiating and interment was made by the side of her husband, in Lakeview cemetery—Howell Democrat.

For many years Mr. and Mrs. Hudson were residents of Lyndon, and moved from that township to Howell.

INDUSTRIAL 3-IN-1 CLUB OF LYNDON HELD MEETING

The Industrial 3-in-1 potato club was called together for a special meeting at the home of Homer Stoffer on Friday, June 1st, for discussing methods of treating and planting potatoes. The evening was spent in playing games after which lunch was served by the hostess and the evening was greatly enjoyed.
