TO STANDARDIZE ALL HYDRANTS AND HOSE

Chelsea's Fire Apparatus To Be Brought Up-to-date And Made Interchangeable—Maine to Be Extended

The Chelsea common council at their meeting last Monday evening passed a resolution to have all old equipment of the fire department standardized. Most of the fire hydrants which were installed when the water system was established here, have a different thread for the hose couplings than is used today.

Five Chief Brooks informed the board that the present hydrants could have threads cut that would conform with the present day standards. He also informed the board of trustees that he could secure the necessary tools in Ann Arbor to have the changes made. He was instructed to have the work done.

The hose on the old fire apparatus and the new pumper have entirely different threads and are not interchangeable, but when the work is completed the hose of either outfit can be used without any difficulty. Not all of the hydrants will have to be recut, as some that have been installed recently have the proper threads.

When this work is completed, and if necessary to call outside equipment to fight a fire, there will be no cause for a delay on account of having to place a coupling to the fire hydrant to fit their hose.

A petition was also presented to the council to have the water main on Wilkinson street extended from Chandler street to the south village limits. At present there are several residents in that part of the village that are without fire protection of any kind. The trustees were favorable to the extension and the petition was granted.

W. C. PITCHARD REPORTS GOOD WHEAT YIELD

W. C. Pitchard threshed his wheat crop on his farm in Sylvan last Saturday. From an experiment field of four acres he secured a very satisfactory yield. Two acres of the ground were sown to new red wheat known as Perkoft, that went 36 bushels per acre. The other two acres were sown to the red wheat commonly sown in this vicinity and the yield was 20 bushels per acre. The seed for the Perkoft wheat was from the Plelemer farm in Sylvan.

H. I. Davis who resides on the Plelemer farm reports that the Perkoft wheat on the farm this year yielded 38 bushels per acre. The seed of this new variety of wheat was developed by a college in Indiana, and was introduced in this section by Messrs. Plelemer and the results have been very satisfactory to all who have sown the Perkoft wheat.

SEWER PROPOSITION EXPLAINED TO COUNCIL

Drain Commissioner Deake And Representatives Of The State Attend Council Meeting Monday Night

The common council held their regular monthly meeting Monday and quite a number of the residents of Chelsea were present. After the close of the business session an open meeting was held, with county Drain Commissioner Deake, Prof. Menefee and Mr. Dodge of Ann Arbor and three gentlemen from Lansing present.

President Haselwerts called upon Mr. Deake, who explained that he was there in response to a petition from residents in the south portion of the village which had been filed in his office asking for the establishment of a sewer system. He explained that under the law he would have to go ahead and make a survey of the grounds through which the proposed system would go. The expense of the preliminary survey would be paid from the county revolving drain fund.

After the survey a second petition would have to be filed with him that would have to be signed by a majority of the property owners. He further stated that a small per cent of the cost would be spread at large over Sylvan and Lima townships, the state highway department, the county and some of the property adjacent to the village. He also stated that the cost of construction could be spread over a period of twenty years, at a low rate of interest. If the proposed system, as laid out by the engineers that he employed, were adopted the cost of the survey would be spread on the general assessment roll and returned to the county revolving drain fund.

Deake stated that he did not feel like spending the county funds for the survey unless he had the cooperation of the village authorities.

Mr. Murphy of the state conservation department at Lansing was next called upon. He stated that he had gone over the grounds where the present drainage system empties in Mill creek and found the water of the creek was in a rather deplorable condition. He stated that in several cities and villages the state had forced them to desist from using the streams as a direct deposit of sewers and that disposal plants had been installed. He gave four ways in which a sewer system could be built—either by bonding, direct assessment on all property, mortgaging the plant or construction under the drain acts of the state.

Mr. Hepler, engineer of the state health department, was next called upon and after answering a number of questions, he also covered some of the statements that had previously been gone over by the gentlemen who preceded him and he further stated that unless some action was taken, the state might be called upon to take steps toward clearing up the present situation in Chelsea.

Mr. Hunter, of the state drain department, explained that under the present drain laws County Drain Commissioner Deake would have to go ahead whether he wanted to or not. All three of the state officers stated that the system could be constructed for less expense by the drain commissioner than by general contractors and one of the savings would be the engineers per cent of the cost of construction.

The entire board of the council stated that they favored giving the public the relief that they sought and asked Mr. Deake to wait a few days before going ahead, until they could get a report from George Champe, of Toledo, who made a survey several months ago.

HE BROUGHT HOME THE FISH

We hear a good many stories about large fish being caught by Chelsea fishermen who go afar for the sport of fishing, but seldom are we "shown" the large one that nearly all anglers claim to have landed. Henry Ahnemann, who went over to Grand Rapids to spend the week-end with relatives, enjoyed a day's fishing on Long Lake near Nawaygo and he was fortunate enough to land a great northern trout that measured 49 inches and tipped the scales at 19 pounds, and best of all he was able to bring home the big fish to prove the story. He surely must have caught the big fellow for no sportsman would ever have sold a fish of that size. It was a beauty and attracted a great deal of attention. He was able to catch a few bass also.

There is great rivalry over at Grand Rapids between the local fishermen and all are striving to capture the largest fish. Thus far Mr. Ahnemann's catch is the largest reported in that section.

A great many deaths occurred about the state over last week-end owing to auto accidents. Careless driving was the cause of many of them.

IT'S OUR BIRTHDAY

The Standard is 58 years old to-day, and we enter upon volume 59 under very happy conditions. There are very few, if any, business firms here now that were doing business in Chelsea when the paper made its first appearance. Week after week, month after month and year after year for more than a half century the home paper has made its weekly appearance and it has always been a welcome guest in the homes of this community. It has recorded the happenings of the community with all its shadows and bright spots from week to week, announcing the advent of many of our citizens into the world and telling of the passing to the great beyond of many others.

There are homes in this section into which the paper has gone every week since its establishment and it is still a welcome visitor. The office is splendidly equipped with for newspaper and job printing and very few towns of this size can boast of so complete and well arranged newspaper office. The loyal support given the paper by the people of this section whom it has always sought to serve have made these improvements possible from year to year and The Standard enters upon the new year with confidence in the future of Chelsea and with the kindest feeling for all the people of this section. We are striving to serve all interests faithfully and impartially and are playing no favorites. For the many expressions of good will and kindly interest manifested in the home paper every week we are very grateful and we promise to keep the paper clean and new in the future as it has been during all the years of its honorable career. Yes, this is our birthday and we are stepping off lively without an ache or a pain. We ask you to come along with us for another year.

MEN AND THE CHURCH

Some weeks ago Editor Muri H. DeFoe of the Charlotte Republican, had an editorial in his excellent newspaper to the effect that there were more men out at the local golf course on Sunday morning than there were at the church he attended. The item has attracted a great deal of comment about the state and is arousing considerable interest. Editor Berkeley of the Cassopolis Vigilant, and who is president of the Michigan Press Association, in commenting on the subject, stated that there were more men present at the men's Bible class of the United church in that city than there were out at the golf course. "We record the fact, not as a boast," he writes, "for once Cassopolis confessed to a church attendance record on the part of its men that was even less than Charlotte, but rather to create an interest in the way of the change. Back of the man question is the boy question, and many Cassopolis men have come to realize that the church will influence youth only as its responsibilities are accepted, its offices administered and its services attended by age, and this applies especially to men. Under the leadership of Rev. Lindsay and the men of United Church a program has been built for men in this community which appeals to and interests them, and to which men are giving their time and attention, and which the men are finding very much worth while. The movement has grown steadily for two years, with good reason to believe that growth will be continuous as the community horizon widens. There is much in the movement here that is worthy of the consideration of men anywhere if they are interested in better things for their community."

WALKING ON THE ROADS

Not infrequently we read of some person being killed while walking along our highways as autos go flying back and forth along our roads. This deplorable tragedy can be used as an object lesson to people, and as a warning to them of the danger that accompanies everyone who walks on a road over which autos are operated. The general rule of the road is, of course, to stay on the right. But this has been found to be more unsafe than walking on the left-hand side. When one walks on the right-hand side of the road he is directly in the path of a machine coming up from the rear which cannot be seen. This puts the burden of watchfulness on the motorist and if anything occurs to obscure vision, such as the headlight of an approaching machine, it is almost impossible to see unlighted objects ahead. Many accidents occur from this cause. It is safer to walk on the left-hand side of the road, facing traffic coming in the opposite direction, so that in case of an emergency one can step into the untraveled part of the highway, or even leap into the ditch if necessary to achieve full safety. But the principal thing is to be safe, and to realize that with auto traffic growing heavier every month every road is a dangerous road. Teach the children the advantage of using the left-hand side of the road or to avoid the road altogether if there is a convenient path that will serve their walking purposes and keep them off the main part of the road altogether.

BY PRECEPT AND EXAMPLE

Realization of the responsibility of the Sunday school teacher in exerting a good influence whenever opportunity offers itself was urged by Dr. M. S. Rice, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist church, Detroit, in an address Wednesday afternoon at the Washtenaw-county Sunday school picnic held at the fairgrounds under the auspices of the county council of religious education.

Citing the examples of Aaron Burr, Leon Trotsky and others where had the right influence been exerted, a marked change in the history of the world would have occurred, Dr. Rice appealed to teachers and those in position to hold the youth of today, never to fail in the encouragement of the right.

"There is no greater responsibility on anybody in the world than the Sunday school teacher who is unable to realize the vast effect his influence may have on the world. The pupil of today may carry the banner of success across the world tomorrow," Dr. Rice asserted.

Christianity, as a perpetual and underlying factor in the lives of all and its appeal to the young as well as the old, also was stressed by Dr. Rice. —Daily News.

SERVANT OF AGRICULTURE

A short time ago a fifty-car trainload of tractors, to be used in the cultivation of cotton, was shipped into Mississippi. It was stated that these machines will do the work of 1,300 men and 5,200 mules in drawing multiple row cultivators.

The Florence, Alabama, Times-News, in commenting on this, says that "there will probably be no more significant development in Southern agriculture during 1928."

The tractor has given the farmer new standards of speed, efficiency and labor saving. It will be interesting to observe the progress in cotton cultivation in the Mississippi delta that will be effected by the utilization of these tractors.

Agricultural reports indicate the number of hogs in the state are increasing. Road or just the common rootin' kind?

Farmington—Detroit Edison Company plans construction of new power station at Orchard Lake and Shiawassee roads.

STANDARD COUPLINGS NEEDED

A large proportion of the fire departments of this country are unable to aid neighboring cities if a need arises because of the lack of uniformity of hydrant couplings. The National Board of Fire Underwriters is carrying on a campaign for the adoption of uniform standards for fire hose and connections.

It is said that in a number of the greatest and most destructive conflagrations the loss would have been appreciably less had standardization of equipment been effected. As it was, fire fighting apparatus that came from communities ready to aid, was practically useless and could not be utilized.

Our fire menace must be curbed and this standardization movement will do much to help. Every city and town should co-operate to the fullest extent in remedying present conditions as rapidly as possible. When we have conquered fire it will make the dawn of still greater progress and prosperity.

CURIOSITY'S BLAZE

The city of New York is seeking an alienist's opinion as to why people tamper with fire alarm boxes. That's easy, they're burning with curiosity. —Farm & Fireside.

GUARD FOOD As You Guard Life

The most substantial part of the daily menu is usually the meat dish—and meat is an important food, rich in strength-giving nutriment. No food, however, requires more scrupulous care. From the moment it arrives in the kitchen its wholesomeness is challenged. Dry cold is the safest, most appetizing preservative, both before and after the meat is cooked.

Wires and Lightning

The Bureau of standards says that the presence of overhead wires at the usual heights from the ground are not known to affect the severity of a lightning storm or to alter the point at which a stroke takes place, but such wires may receive a discharge which in their absence would strike some other object in the vicinity.

SHEEP BRISK DEMAND FOR STATE'S WHEAT

Scarcity of soft-winter wheat is apt to cause a brisk demand for this cereal for milling and seed purposes this fall, according to H. C. Rafter, professor of farm crops at Michigan State College.

Soft-winter wheat, Professor Rafter explains, is necessary in the manufacture of quality pastry flour and is the variety which is grown almost exclusively in Michigan. Large crops are also raised in other states, in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, however, the crop has been a failure in large areas the past season.

The Ohio wheat crop is only 30 per cent or less of the normal crop, according to J. B. Park, crops specialist at Ohio State University. Reports from Indiana state that the crop there is equally poor. Indications are that a large part of the soft-winter wheat area will have but little more than enough wheat for seedling this fall.

Snake Belief a Myth

There is a small, harmless reptile at the more southern United States which is called a hoop snake. And it takes its name from the notion that it travels itself in a hoop and thus travels along at a great rate of speed. But the idea is without the least foundation, and the tales of rolling hoop snakes are purely mythical.

Solid Stone No Bar to Tribe of Algae

It is difficult enough to imagine how animals like moles succeed in burrowing their way through hard-packed earth under the soil, but it seems even more incredible that living creatures can burrow through solid stone.

This is so, however, and the creatures that do it are not sturdy animals, but minute living plants, so small that they cannot be seen without a microscope.

These amazing "tunnel-makers" belong to the tribe of Algae, like those that form the green foam on stagnant water. They possess the extraordinary power of dissolving the rock on which they grow, provided the rocks contain lime. Billings of them, growing along the seashore, are known to have eaten away huge lime-stone cliffs.

Spotting the Spotter

By AD SCHUSTER
(Copyright)

THE job of "spotter" on a railroad was not to the liking of Ed Wylie who, despite his ambitions to be a detective, felt that this was more like spying. It was comfortable, though, to ride on the cushions from one end of this railroad to the other, to be served in style and at the company's expense in the diner and, seemingly, to have nothing whatever to do.

At Puncyville, a division point, the train made a long stop and Ed noticed casually it was taking on a new crew. The stout, gray-haired conductor with whom the young man had become friendly, had discarded his blue coat for a gray one, and with his head topped in an almost juvenile way, he was walking away from the platform and toward the street.

Ed leaned forward when he saw the conductor stop into a large limousine, and gasped when he saw that the woman who waited in the car was dressed in finery.

"I guess," the spotter decided, "this is where I get off. If any conductor on this jerkwater line can afford a car and a wife like that, he must be making more than tickets from the passengers. And he seemed a good sort, too."

The limousine pulled away, the transformed conductor waving magnificently at friends on the walk. Up the street it went, for no more than three blocks, to turn into a massive iron gate. Ed followed, determined to see what sort of establishment was maintained by this man who, on the train, had seemed so humble.

The house was in keeping with the car, the wife and the iron gates. It suggested wealth in every stone and window. In his book Ed had the railroad salary list, which it was impossible to remember the name of the conductor with the manner of his life. Wondering what to do, he had stood staring at the residence and then the conductor came out.

"I heard there was a spotter on the line," he said, without any appearance of disturbance, "and wasn't surprised when I saw you hanging around outside. Your ticket, you know, and straight through. Now, come across, tell me what you think and what you are going to report."

"Things were not going as he had expected," but Ed braved it out. He pointed to the house, mentioned the car, and shrugged his shoulders as if to say the expansion was obvious.

"Come in, young fellow, and sit down," the conductor spoke easily.

"I want to ship you a little yarn, to show you that appearances do not always count."

"When you were a boy," he said, "did you go down to the tracks to see the trains go by? Did you know them by numbers, the passengers and the freights, and did you know the names of the engineers, conductors and the firemen?"

Ed nodded. "Then you understand. A train to me has always been something mystical. It has spelled adventure and romance, and those things that passed my father's house when I was a kid gave me ambition and sent me to school. I knew that a conductor must be smart, the smartest man in the world, and so I studied. I felt that he was brave and noble, and so I behaved. I would be a conductor or an engineer who would get his train through on time, who would be trusted above all others. That's what I worked for, and I have been with this road since I left school."

He paused, looking for an understanding.

"But," Ed asked, "how could you afford it?"

"There is no law against conductors marrying rich girls. Mamie, my wife, feels much the same about railroads, and we became acquainted on the train. After we were married she wanted me to quit but I couldn't be happy away from the old job, and you couldn't, either, now could you?"

The big conductor was stammering and his hand was outstretched. Ed, assumed, stammered an apology.

"I'll go now, I don't like this job, anyway."

The conductor waved to him from the porch and then entered the house where an anxious wife was waiting.

"I guess," he said, "I'll have to quit. Some day they will send out a real smart spotter and the game will be up."

WAYSIDE SHRINE PLANNED FOR THE IRISH HILLS

Remodeled Church was Dedicated Sunday in The Presence Of A Large Crowd

After nearly three-quarters of a century of service to the Catholics of the district the little stone St. Joseph's church in the heart of the Irish Hills, has been remodeled and enlarged to more than three times its former capacity. The new building was dedicated Sunday, in the presence of a big crowd.

St. Joseph's stands on the old Chicago Turnpike, U. S. Highway No. 112. It crowns one of the famous Irish Hills, with the stones of its tiny graveyard clustered about its feet and overlooking Iron Lake in the immediate foreground and half a dozen other lakes in the vicinity. The location is nearly midway between Clinton and Cambridge Junction, in a beautiful and historic section of southern Michigan.

The Irish Hills take their name from the half-dozen Irish families that came there from the "old sod" in 1854 and whose descendants still live in the neighborhood. There were the Kellys, Brightons, Egans, Marrs, Monaghans and the Nicholls in that little band of immigrants. When they reached the heavily wooded hills and valleys, with a dozen or more lakes spread out over the landscape they would travel no further. It was too much like the "lakes and dells" of their native land. Here they settled and heaved the forests, planted the clearings, built their church, their schools and their houses, principally from the old field stones of the neighborhood, and raised their families. Today there are few more productive sections of the state of Michigan and none surpassing the Irish Hills district in natural beauty.

A few years ago when Father Pfeffer was sent to take charge of the mission, he found that one Mass on summer Sundays was not enough to accommodate the crowds that came from Detroit and Toledo and Jackson, and from almost every point of the compass. For about two years there have been services at 8:30 and 10:30 o'clock each Sunday and early this spring Father Pfeffer decided to enlarge the church. The new edifice has a seating capacity of 350.

While the general plan of the old church has been preserved, the remodeled edifice is in the Spanish type of architecture used so extensively by the Franciscan Fathers in California. One of the features is the tower, which rises majestically above the surrounding trees and will become one of the landmarks of the whole region.

Father Pfeffer plans the erection of a wayside shrine which will add to the interest of the passerby. This shrine will be similar to that in the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, in France.

DEATH OF 'CHUTE JUMPER' WITNESSED BY MANY

Orville Heppenstall, 27, Flint, was instantly killed when his parachute failed to open 3,000 feet in the air over Pine Lake near Lansing Sunday. Heppenstall had cut himself loose from one parachute, but in so doing apparently had damaged the second chute. He fell into a roadway 1,000 yards from the huge crowd that had gathered to watch the feat. Heppenstall had planned the jump as his last. His sweetheart who had come to watch him make his last leap saw his body catapulting through space. His body was taken to Flint.

PETTYSVILLE CHIN.

With fur-bearing and all the other advantages of a fur dealer, the fur dealer has been found in the Chinichilla rabbit which is imported from England. The fur of this animal proved to be of fine quality and in big demand. In the last few years many people have gone into this industry and in a large part have been successful.

Frank Brenningstall of Pettysville is one of those who have gone into this business and he now has about one hundred of these fine fur animals at his home four miles east of town. A Chinichilla buck and two does sell for about $100 and their fur is worth from $4 to $5, depending on the size of the pet. Mr. Brenningstall has his pens arranged in a square and elevated on posts as it is necessary that the rabbits have ventilation in order to keep them healthy. They multiply about once every thirty days and grow rapidly. Their bill of fare consists of alfalfa hay and oat meal. The pens are kept clean and airy and the rabbits appear to be thriving nicely.

Mr. Brenningstall also has some other varieties of rabbits such as New Zealand White, Giant Flemish Hares and a few Belgians. These are sold as pet rabbits for game food.

He has also taken a whirl at the muskrat farming game, having seventeen acres fenced in on the Gilbert farm in Hamburg. The fence must go a considerable distance below the ground and be finely meshed to prevent the rodents from escaping. It is also necessary to obtain a state license to operate one of these farms and then the animals may be caught at any time. There were over a hundred rats there last spring when the farm was started but as they multiply rapidly it is hard to estimate the exact number now. In this enterprise Mr. Gilbert, the farm owner is associated with Mr. Brenningstall. The rabbits and rats are well worth seeing and anyone who visits this place will feel well paid for their time. —Pinekey Dispatch.

PINCKNEY'S OLD HORSEMAN STILL GAME

James Roche, Pinckney's veteran horseman, has been at the Jackson fair grounds for some time working with his horses, Morgan Devey and Diamond Devey at the race track there. He expects to start his season's campaign at the Oakland county fair at Milford this week. Last year he won six first money prizes and two second which is not half bad for a man who is past seventy years old. This year he expects to do even better than that.

Jim is about the oldest reinsman in these parts. Teachout, Lewis, McNamara, Erwin, Gregory, Stuhberg, Green, Diamond, McCoy and other old timers have either retired or gone west. —Pinekey Dispatch.

GROWERS ARE URGED TO SPRAY POTATOES

Weather conditions during the past few weeks have been extremely favorable for the development of potato blight and Michigan producers are advised by the farm crops department of Michigan State College to protect potatoes by proper spraying methods. Several of the important insect pests which work on potatoes can be controlled by the same spray that is used for the blight.

Bordeaux mixture is still recommended as the most effective spray for blight, leaf hoppers and flea beetles. The spray solution can be made at low cost; it does not injure the foliage, and when properly made, remains on the vines fairly well.

THE JULY 1928

HOG OUTLOOK GOOD

A favorable outlook for the swine industry during the next two years is indicated by a report prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture and issued by Herbert E. Powell, commissioner of the Michigan State Department of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician for Michigan. Although the report considers the United States situation, it is applicable to the Michigan situation also, since Michigan prices and production of hogs follow the United States' trend. The supply of hogs that will be available for market during the next twelve months is expected to be considerably less than during the past year, and the indications are that both the domestic and foreign demand for pork products will show some improvement. With better prospects for the corn crop that prevailed a year ago and the upward movement of a new hog price cycle underway, the corn-hog price ratio is expected to become more favorable for hog production.

DROWNING AT WAMPLER'S LAKE SUNDAY

Esther, aged 10 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland of Pinedale, was drowned at Wampler's Lake Sunday afternoon. She was in the lake wading with her two brothers, aged 12 and 14, and waded beyond her depth. The body was recovered but all efforts to revive the child proved of no avail. The family had gone to the lake to spend the day.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

We cannot hope that life will be all happiness; we may at least secure a heavy balance on the right side; and even events which look like misfortune, if boldly faced, may be turned to good. —Lubbock

CHERRY PIES

Is there ever any pie better than cherry pie, the kind that mother used to make—juicy, rich and sweet? A deep pie full of the luscious cherries and baked with not a drop of its lusciousness lost by boiling over? Cherry pies tend themselves to many delightful dishes. Here is one which is very good:

Cherry Souffle.—Put four tablespoons of flour, two tablespoons of butter into a saucepan and when the butter bubbles stir in the flour, mix well and add one-half cupful of milk; stir and cook until smooth and thick; cool, add four tablespoons of sugar and the yolks of three eggs, one by one, stirring each thoroughly; now add the stiffly beaten whites and four tablespoons of finely minced preserved cherries. Pour into a mold well buttered, set into a pan of hot water and bake three-fourths of an hour. Turn out and serve with cherry sauce, the juice of canned or fresh cherries, slightly thickened and sweetened to taste.

Steamed Cherry Pudding.—Take two tablespoons of butter, cream and add one cupful of sugar, three beaten eggs, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, three cupfuls of flour, three tablespoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix all the ingredients and add one quart of stoned cherries. Pour into a large mold and steam two and one-half hours.

Sauce: One cupful of sugar, one cupful of cream, one beaten egg and one cupful of stoned cherries. Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter and sugar in a saucepan; add the cream and egg and then the cherries.

iced Cherry Souffle.—Take the yolks of six eggs, the whites of four, one cupful of cherry juice; cook over hot water, whipping all the time until thick. Then beat until cold. Add four tablespoons of whipped cream and one cupful of cherries, dusted with sugar. Chill and freeze, or serve in sherbet glasses unfrozen.

FAILS IN BUSINESS, STARS IN KITCHEN

Husband Is Forced to Work Under Eye of Wife.

Los Angeles.—If a husband is a failure in business life, try him out as the family cook; fire the maid and chauffeur and let him do their work; dispense with the laundry man and, in general, turn the errand spouse loose to make himself useful about the place.

Some such program is doubtless being advocated in many real homes following the divorce case testimony adduced recently from Kenneth Glick McClurg, former New Yorker, before Judge Raymond I. Turney.

McClurg's wife, the former Lillian Stanford, is attempting to divorce him on grounds of infidelity and cruelty. McClurg denies everything and is fighting the charges. When he took the stand to testify in his own behalf, courtroom spectators were treated to a story as pathetically humorous as anything in divorce court history.

Says Wife Dominates Him.

Originally well-to-do, McClurg asserts that he was dominated by his wife. They spent almost all his fortune under her direction, he says. Then he set about to look for work. First he started a garage but it was a failure. Then he looked for work in a department store, but failed to make the proper connections.

"When my wife learned of this failure, she was furious," McClurg told Judge Turney. She discharged the servants. Some one had to do the work and she told me that I was to be the one.

"From then on I was a servant to her. I rather liked the work itself, but her attitude was intolerable. For two years, from 1925 to 1927, I submitted to it. At first I didn't resist because I loved her. When I did begin to resist it was too late."

During those two years, the testimony shows, McClurg lived an amazing life. Every meal that was cooked in the household was produced by the docile husband, and he was a good cook, even Mrs. McClurg admitted that. Dainty omelets in the morning, roast squabs for luncheon and juicy steaks cooked to a turn at night.

Between meals McClurg was an idle. When the dishes were washed and put away, he straightened the house, then washed and mended his clothes. On the frequent occasions when Mrs. McClurg and her mother wished to go out, he doffed his gingham apron, assumed the role of chauffeur and patiently drove them about. In fact, as one of the neighbors observed, he would have made a model wife for some girl who appreciated his ability.

Shy and Sensitive.

The whole trouble, McClurg confided to the judge, was his extreme reticence. From childhood, he had been shy and sensitive. The other boys didn't understand him. He hated meeting people. As he grew older he tried to conquer himself.

But whenever he went in business his diffidence was his undoing. He would be unable to meet people and, successfully put over business deals. And whatever he tried was a failure.

In rebuttal, Mrs. McClurg charged that this seemingly model husband was unfaithful and cruel. She also asserted that she had furnished $25,000 of her own money for the garage venture and that all but $500 of it was lost.

Such a problem, Judge Turney decided, is not one to be decided lightly. In the summer of the average divorcee so he took the case under advisement and that is where it now stands. Meanwhile Mrs. McClurg has gone back to her home in Santa Monica and her estranged husband is endeavoring to avoid the threats of other husbands whose wives have pointed him out as an example of what a husband might do around the house.

Turks Must Sit in Pews.

Wear Shoes in Mosques.

Constantinople.—Turks hereafter must wear shoes in their mosques and sit in pews. A government commission on religious reform has decided that squatting on rugs by barefoot worshippers is not compatible with modern civilization.

Altars as well as pews will be installed in the mosques which now are unfurnished except with rugs. Organs and choirs will replace the dropping of the korn by the priest, the only sound which has disturbed the spacious quietness hitherto.

This change is considered to be the boldest westernizing stroke of Mustafa Kemal's government since the fez was abolished, as a head-covering. The commission alters a ritual which has been followed for centuries.

Locate Caracas Houses

by Blocks, Not Streets

Washington.—Street corners, not streets, are used for addresses in Caracas, capital of Venezuela, according to Frederic D. Grab, assistant trade commissioner, in a report to the Department of Commerce.

Houses in Caracas are always located by the corners of the block in which they are situated. If an address is given as a certain number followed by two names it means the place is located between those two corners.

For example, "12 San Francisco A. Pujarito" means the house is No. 12 between the corners of "San Francisco" and "Little Birds" (translated).

It is about 17 miles long. It is a coral reef only about 10 feet above the water. It is said that the whole island is alive with rats which were brought over by an old ship years and years ago. The only visible sign of life on the island is one palm tree. It marks the half place between Sydney and Vancouver. About 3:30 p. m. we passed the Niagara on its way to Vancouver. It is the sister ship to ours. It's the only boat we passed going over. It is a thrilling sight to see the tiny speck on the horizon grow into a big ship like ours and to see the flag lowered in salute."

THE CULPRIT OUGHT TO BE PUNISHED

Some one with an evil and malicious mind did considerable damage to E. E. Tompkins' spray painting outfit some time Monday night. He had been engaged during the day spraying the buildings for Chelsea Lumber, Grain & Coal Co., and when he shut down for the night everything was left in good condition Tuesday morning he found his outfit had been tampered with, the pipes being plugged, water poured in the gasoline tank and then if that was not enough, a fire was started under the engine. Fortunately the fire did not do any damage.

Any person who will do a trick of this ought to be punished and it is to be hoped the guilty party may be apprehended.

TOURISTS LOSE RINGS BUT FIND THEM AGAIN

Something very unusual happened at the junction of U. S. 12 and M-92 the first of the week, so unusual in fact that it seems almost incredible.

A Chicago man and his wife were motoring from their home city to Detroit and as they were approaching the junction a bee flew into the auto. In her effort to drive the intruder out the lady made a bold strike and as she did so two diamond rings slipped off her finger. One of the rings, a handsome solitaire was valued at $2,500.00 and the other at $150.00. Naturally they stopped their car as quickly as possible and began a search for the missing rings, but they were not successful. Soon some fellows came along and being told what had happened joined in the search and after some hunting about in the grass they found the smaller of the two rings, but refused to turn it over to the local officer, Frank Leach, who had been notified of the loss. He gathered the fellows in and brought them to the village jail where he kept them over night.

It was agreed by the Chicago man that he would return the next day to continue the search but he assured Mr. Leach he would pay a liberal reward for the recovery of the rings. The next morning Mr. Leach accompanied his "guests" to the place where the loss occurred and they continued their search in great earnest, but while they were looking by the side of the pavement, the man from Chicago walked over near the fence and to his great surprise there lay the big "sparkler" in plain view. True to his word, however, he paid the fellows who found the cheaper ring with for their efforts and departed for his home.

And the "travelers" proceeded on their way.

After a Fire?

Insurance, of course. If the owner's coverage was complete his worry is not nearly so great as if he were only partially insured.

Being fully protected is a matter only of looking forward and making sure now that you have all the insurance you need in the event of any emergency.

We will gladly estimate your needs.

Norway's Idle Ships

May Get an Indemnity

Copenhagen—One of the greatest problems in the Scandinavian countries is the ever-increasing number of idle ships.

Admittedly, says the Scandinavian Shipping Gazette, is Norway worse off in this respect. Progressively she has more ships laid up than any other nation in the world. Denmark and Sweden also are hard hit and every week brings sad tidings of further laying up of tonnage.

The latest relief theory is an organized laying up scheme in connection with a mutual insurance system paying indemnity on a fixed scale to owners of idle ships. It is of Norwegian origin and has won recognition among Norwegian owners, but must have international cooperation.

Scandinavian point of view all such theoretical projects, even if carried through, are mere makeshifts providing no sound basis for existence or growth of a national merchant marine.

Shipping men say world tonnage is much bigger than the demand, and that it is idle to dream of better conditions for a long time.

Phonographs Taken From

Caves to Enrich Farms

Vienna—Phosphate deposits in mountain caves, the product of long centuries of accumulation by swallows, bats and other animals, have been opened to exploitation for use in Europe's grain fields. Three notable caves have lately been explored, according to Franz Kleinbauer, an engineer resident in Rumina. These are the Pongos cave and the Cerkovnikova cave in Austria, and Minerva cave in France.

The first two have already yielded 25,000 tons of phosphate earth. The latter, estimated to contain 120,000 tons, has not yet been exploited.

His Little Gray Roadster

By CHARLES TILTON

(Copyright.)

OLIVE swung the bag carelessly as she walked; it was a beautiful thing, of oriental brocade in peacock shades. Larry Deane had given it to her on her birthday, shortly after their engagement, and she cherished it above all her treasures. The beautiful cluster of diamonds on her finger, because she was quarreling with Larry, she had wilfully included the bag in her wrath and twisted it mercilessly on the end of its golden cords.

"The cord will break and you will lose the bag," cautioned Larry.

Olive pondered provokingly. "There are some really precious things in it—my vanity case, my gold purse, the philoppan gift Joe Watterson gave me, one of his letters, and—"

"Isn't that enough?" glared Larry, for they had been disagreeing about Joe's attentions to Olive.

"Enough letters from Joe? Well, he is interesting, Larry—so good tempered. One enjoys him, you know."

"I know one who doesn't enjoy him—although he's a cheerful sort of an idiot."

"The cheerful ones are the nicest. Just the same," tossed Olive over her shoulder as his little gray roadster turned into the driveway of her father's house.

"Hummum!" remarked Larry disagreeably.

As he helped her out and she tensed her hand, he discovered that she had left the cluster of diamonds in the bag.

"You mean that, Olive?"

"Of course."

"Why?"

"You do not trust me—you are jealous."

"I am sorry you believe that—I said nothing until you criticized my dancing with Ella—well, what does it matter? If you really cared, you could not play with happiness in this way."

"Good-by," he said and jumping into the little gray car, which had been their companion on so many joyful occasions, and which had been the scene of their betrothal, Larry drove madly down the driveway.

On the veranda Olive was crying. When her mother inquired why she wept, Olive confessed that she had lost her beautiful brocade bag.

"How careless!" chided Mrs. Dare.

"Perhaps it is in the car, dear. Shall I telephone to Larry?"

"No—no—please do not! I have given Larry back his ring—and I never want any of them bags again," announced Mrs. Dare in a wavering voice.

"You have lost something very precious," remarked her mother sadly.

"The bag didn't have much in it—just a bread-and-butter note from Joe Watterson and a few other things."

"I did not mean the bag—I meant Larry," was Mrs. Dare's quiet reply.

"Some bird!" ejaculated Larry, as the little gray car poked along through a pleasant byway on the road home.

His gaze was fixed on a bit of brilliant blue-green perched in a shade just beside the road. The sun caught the sheen of gold and tossed back the brilliance of a peacock's plumage.

"Olive's bag!" he ejaculated, recognizing it with a pang, and the little gray car stopped abruptly.

Larry took the bag from its perch and studied the gorgeous peacock's woven into the fabric. The golden cord that served as a handle was broken. Olive had unwittlingly swung the bag, once too often and lost it. Perhaps she had done it intentionally, but he dashed suspicion aside.

Jealousy came to take its place. She had said Joe Watterson's letter was there—ruthlessly he pulled the bag open and looked; the golden purse the foolish pencil box and given her.

It looked like a stick of dynamite, said some letters which he recognized as his own—and one penciled scrawl which might be Joe's. Suddenly he did not care about Joe.

His own letters made the bag precious to her—naughty little thing. He must have with her! He had not touched the contents of the bag, and how he dropped the engagement ring inside.

Just then he heard footsteps, hurrying Larry lunged the bag into the shade and forced the little car to a stand-in-the-road—and peered through the underbrush.

It was Olive.

She was hatless and quite apologetic with running. There were traces of tears on her soft cheeks and her lips were very pathetic.

When she saw the brocade bag she uttered a soft cry of pleasure, and snatching it from the bush, hugged it to her bosom.

"You dear, dear thing!" she sobbed. "You are all that I have left!"

"That is what she really said," for Larry had stolen upon her and heard her just in time to hold her very tight in his strong arms.

"Is it too late for happiness, dear?" he asked the repentant girl.

"Not if you can forgive my folly," she whispered.

"Then—let us say it will never happen again—and the ring is in the bag."

At last when they were seated in the car and Larry had started it, Olive turned swiftly.

"What was that sound?"

Larry said he didn't know, but he thought he suspected it was a quiet chuckle from the sympathetic little gray car.

GRAHAM-PAIGE PLANT INCREASES CAPACITY

Extensive additions to a total cost of $1,600,000, have been begun by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation at its main plant in Detroit and at its body plants at Wayne, Mich., and Evansville, Ind. The new buildings and equipment, designed to increase production facilities from 400 cars to 600 a day, have been made necessary to meet the demand for the new line of cars introduced by the three Graham brothers, the last six months' sales having exceeded any previous entire year and doubled the 1927 total.

Williamston have plans well advanced for a community picnic to be held on Thursday afternoon, August 16. Mason—John Fingerle had an auction sale about two weeks ago and one of the best bidders was Bob Remus of the Consumers Power Co. It seems that Bob has a Ford of rather ancient vintage which true to form has developed several rattles in its decade of existence. One of the articles offered at the sale was a set of anti-rattles. Bob was interested and astounded the auctioneer and bystanders by his high bids. Since the sale Bob has been trying to fit the anti-rattles to his Ford. Last week he sought the advice of a blacksmith and was told that his rare bargain was not made for a Ford but was designed to stop the rattles of the thills on buggies of 1890. Bob is now negotiating with Henry Ford for the sale of the antiquities. News. Munith—A resident of Jackson county 74 years Mrs. Sarah Ann Leece died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. P. Manchester—The Automatic Bar Products Co. shop in this village was broken into Wednesday night of last week and $300 worth of tools were stolen. Pinckney—The paving gang are making good progress on the work of grading for the pavement in this village. The grade at the Teeple hill is about completed. It is about eight feet high at this point and 100 feet wide. They have a new method of grading. The dirt used for the filling in, is obtained by digging a trench in the center of the road about five feet deep and eight feet wide. This is then refilled by scooping in the dirt from the sides and in this way the required grade is secured. Another gang of men are at work putting in tile for the drainage. The men expect to have little difficulty in completing the grading by August 15th.—Dispatch. Saline—State corn borer inspectors are in the vicinity going through fields and gardens and are finding some of the pests. They are also finding what are called stalk borers. This worm works much like the corn borer except that when it reaches the bottom of the stalk it bores itself out and seeks shelter among weeds and grass, while the corn borer remains in the stalk. The stalk borer is larger than the corn borer, marked differently and appears much earlier.—Observer. Brooklyn—The annual picnic of the Business Men's Association of this village will be held at Eagle Point on Tuesday, August 15. The State Administrative Board has authorized the paving of the Milan to Ann Arbor highway next year.

STATE VALUES SHOW A GREAT INCREASE
Total Valuation Now Placed At More Than Eight Billion Dollars
Assessed valuation of Michigan property will be approximately $8,400,000,000, an increase of around $365,000,000, it appears on the face of tentative valuations made by field men for the state tax commission. Last year the board fixed an assessment ratio which placed 51 per cent of the burden on Wayne county, principally the city of Detroit, but later reduced this to 49 per cent. This year it will face a stiff fight from the farm interests in the upper part of the state for a reduction in their tax quota, and at the same time will go through the usual opposition to a heavy assessment in Wayne county. The state tax commission is composed of J. H. Morgan, of Detroit chairman; M. B. McPherson, of Lowell; and Alvin E. Richards, of Marquette, and the state board of equalization includes these, with the addition of Auditor General O. B. Fuller, and Commissioner of Agriculture Herbert E. Powell. Sports and inspection of the school will be from 9 a. m. to 12 a. m. The sports will include horse racing, boxing matches, races for the children. Good eats will be available at any time during the day and at four o'clock there will be a ball game between the Consumers Power and Swift Packing Co. teams. In the evening a home talent play will be given in the auditorium of the school with the sixteen piece band from Perry to furnish the music. Mrs. J. H. Dye, who with her husband conducted Dye's restaurant, a popular eating place at Plymouth for many years, died July 26th. Burial took place at Plymouth.

INGHAM'S FARMERS MUTUAL FORCED TO RAISE RISK RATES
At a meeting of the Board of directors of the Ingham County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company held at Mason last Friday an assessment of three and a half mills on the policies in force was decided upon. While this is slightly larger than the rate for last year it is disclosed that a total of 180 fires have been adjusted during the year just closed aggregating $61,886.23, as compared with a total of 101 losses sustained last year with an aggregate of losses amounting to $46,686.23. The assessment decided upon is estimated to yield the company a total of approximately $64,000. January 1 last a total of $18,504,782 was written upon the books of the company.—Williamston Enterprise. AMERICAN LEGION TO MEET AT MONROE

Back she came... A millionaire's wife —and BROKEN-HEARTED

As far back as Cherry could remember, poverty and squalor were the only life she had ever known. Many a lonely, aching night, through hot tears of self-pity, she had gazed with wistful, longing eyes into a dream-world of love, tenderness, compassion, beauty—a world that seemed forever beyond her reach.

But as Cherry blossomed into womanhood, her determination to conquer life brought freedom, friends, success.

Then romance came. As the wife of Dick Berringer—young, rich, boyishly handsome—Cherry's measure of happiness seemed complete. Then—catastrophe! A merciless fate decreed that she go back to the gutter whence she came.

With bleeding heart she saw snatched from her all the love, comfort and happiness she had fought for so bravely and so long.

What strange circumstances conspired to crush her under this frightful load of misery? Why must she exchange an honored name for the bitterness of shame and degradation? You will want to read the whole heart-breaking story, exactly as Cherry tells it. It is entitled "Shattered Dreams," and appears complete in the September issue of True Story Magazine.

Don't Let the Grass Grow

By H. OXLEY STENGEL

"BETTER and better!" Ralph Wilcox exclaimed delightedly. "Why, I didn't believe you had it in you, Max!"

Ralph knocked the ashes of his cigarette on the green grass—a few inches below the plaza on which the two young men sat. He drew a deep breath of the soft, flower-laden air of a rare June night.

Max Crawford grinned aloud. "I say! Have a heart, can't you? Just because I told you I spilled a cupful of tea—like the clumsy ass that I was—spilling a dress and an afternoon for a pretty girl and generally making a fool of myself—you think it a huge joke. I always did abominate tea anyway. That was what happened when I was weak enough to drop in on one."

"Drop a cupful of it," Ralph corrected solemnly. "His brown eyes twinkled. 'Nevertheless, my eyes couldn't have kept him away!' he explained in an aside to the moon. 'You see, she's the One-and-Only Girl-in-all-the-World, Lady Moon, asked him to go. There is the answer.'"

"What of it?" Max demanded fiercely. "She's asked others too!"

"What of it? That's what I'm asking you, surely head," Ralph returned. "Why, man, I didn't think you were so clever!"

"Clever in getting myself in messes, yes. Say, Ralph, can't you let me alone?"

"Certainly I can. But is it fair, I ask you, to begin a good love story and not finish it? I want to know how it is going to end?"

Max did not follow his friend upstairs until the clock struck one. Even then he did not sleep. And Mary really forgave his clumsiness of the afternoon before? She had said so, of course. Why hadn't he invited her to go to dinner with him and at least shown her he was interested in her? Instead he had taken the 6:10 train for Tower Hill—knowing that Ralph and his mother would welcome him.

On the 8:10 bound for the city the next morning Ralph made no mention of the tea and Max's part in it. For which Max was duly grateful. He did not know that his pateness was the real reason. But as they were parting at the Grand Central station Ralph reminded him that he could finish "that story" on Sunday. "Don't let the grass grow under your feet," he warned. "Dinner at two as usual. There may be company."

Acting on Ralph's advice, Max decided to call Mary up. He waited until evening however. Miss Davis was out for dinner, he was informed to his dismay. Another man, no doubt. He spent a miserable evening at the club. Where was Mary? That was Thursday.

On Friday morning Max was called out of town on business. He reached home late Saturday night. Too late to call Mary Davis! He tried at ten on Sunday morning. He would stay in town and see her. "Miss Davis was out of town for the week-end."

Max started out and walked miles before catching the 12:32 for Tower Hill. What was the use of staying in town if Mary Davis was away?

Max arrived at the Rookery just in time for dinner. Mrs. Wilcox greeted him cordially and ignored his silence. "Ralph is late, I'm sorry," she told him. "He drove down to the city early. He only said he would bring a girl home to dinner. I don't understand it at all, Max. I thought—"

"I thought so, too, Mrs. Wilcox!" Max volunteered. "Then I answered to her questioning look: 'I thought Ralph was in love with Elizabeth Darrow—and she with him,' he added."

Just then they both saw Ralph's car coming up the drive. It stopped in front of the piazza and Ralph jumped out. He was followed by a girl, Mary Davis! Then Max realized another girl was being assisted out of the car also. Elizabeth Darrow.

Dinner was a wonderful feast. Max was seated next to Mary Davis, and somehow he managed to talk to her.

After dinner what was more natural than to wander over the hills of the Rookery with Mary? Mrs. Wilcox had excused herself for a siesta. Ralph and Elizabeth had just disappeared.

Max and Mary had been watching a sailboat on the sound. Mary looked down at the carpet of green at their feet.

"Why, you can almost see the grass grow!" she laughed.

"Oh, it mustn't!" Max exclaimed. "Stand on that rock, please, Mary!"

"What do you mean?" The girl was puzzled.

"I mean—I don't want to let the grass grow under our feet—I don't want to lose you, Mary."

Then he held out his arms and Mary's dear head was on his shoulder. He drew her close. It was their hour. "Now—will you finish that story?" Ralph demanded when the two girls had gone upstairs with Mrs. Wilcox.

"Yes. And they lived happily ever after—thanks only to you! But how in the world, Ralph?"

"How did I find out about Mary? Easy. She and Elizabeth are friends, you remember. But even with your good start you surely needed help, old man."

"I surely did!" Max grinned. "Thanks, oh! But congratulations are due you, too. All the happiness in the world!"

"Well, I go after mine! Here are the girls now."

COMMANDING GENERAL PRAISED CAMP CUSTER

Camp Custer was praised by Major General Paul B. Malone, commanding general of the Sixth corps area, of which Michigan is a part, as one of the finest camp sites in America, at the time of his official inspection last week. The general administered the oath of allegiance to the trainees, and complimented Colonel Gilman, the camp commander, and his staff on the excellent manner in which the camp has been organized. Big days of the future in Camp Custer are "editors day," on Friday, August 10, and "visitors day," on Friday, August 17. Newspaper men from all over Michigan are invited and are expected to come to the camp on "editors day," that they may see for themselves just what is being taught the citizens of tomorrow.

Parents and relatives of the trainees are welcome to visit camp any time, but the big "visitors day" is Friday, August 17.

OLD SAWMILL IS ADDED TO HENRY FORD'S ANTIQUES

Among other antiquities Henry Ford has purchased an old Buckley, Mich., sawmill and its machinery as a gentle reminder of pioneer days of northern Michigan, according to an announcement recently.

Machinery from the mill, which was removed to the Edwards Corbin mill at Wellston, Munster county, some 35 years ago, is being taken to its original building at Dearborn. The old engine was manufactured many years ago in Detroit when the automobile king was a young machinist. The engine was made at the shop where he worked at a lathe and it is said Ford himself did some of the work on it.

Road representatives were in Marquette last week seeking huge logging wheels which were in evidence many years ago to haul logs from the camps of northern Michigan. They were made by a local concern but now few of them are in existence.

CAST OF WAR BIRDS

There have been many aviation pictures set to the screen since the armistice was signed, but never until now has there been an aviation picture in which such an imposing cast of "War Birds" appear, as in the "Legion of the Condemned" coming to the Princess Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, August 15-16. Not only does this picture of the air boast of its authentic cast, but the production itself was directed by a former member of the Lafayette Flying Corps, William Wellman.

Heading the list of aviators who fought in the air during the war is Captain Sterling Campbell, one of the five-ranking aces of the Royal War Force, who has many planes to his credit. On the enemy side is Lieutenant Rudolph Schad, a member of the famous Richthofen's Circus No. 15, who has twelve allied planes to his credit. Others who saw service, and who have more than five planes each to their credit are: Ted Parsons, of Detroit, who flew for five years with the French; Ross Cook, Robert de Couedic, Tom Watton and Al Johnston.

Director William Wellman, who also directed "Wings" for Paramount, was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille during the war. J. Monk Saunders, the author of the story, and who also wrote "Wings" was an instructor in aviation.

ANN ARBOR CONNECTS NEW WELL

The ambition of a decade was realized by Ann Arbor when the new Montgomery-avenue well was connected with the water mains, assuring the city of a complete supply of artesian water. The average flow of water available from the wells is now 10,500,000 gallons, engineers estimated, which is about 2,500,000 more than the normal consumption. By taking all of its water from wells the city will not have to construct a filtration plant for using river water for several years.

William P. James, former alderman of Ann Arbor, died last week Tuesday at the Masonic home at Alma. Burial took place in Ann Arbor.
