LEGISLATIVE ACTION WILL BE ASKED BY MICHIGAN AVE. ASS'N

Representatives From Seven Counties
Meet in Kalamazoo and Launch
Wider U. S. 12 Movement.

A movement seeking the construction of a 40-foot pavement along the route of US-12 from Detroit to New Buffalo was launched in Kalamazoo Thursday, with the organization of the Michigan Avenue Highway Association.

The meeting was attended by more than a hundred good roads advocates from Wayne, Washtenaw, Jackson, Calhoun, Kalamazoo, Van Buren and Berrien counties.

Legislative action was forecast by the appointment of a committee to place the objects of the association before the legislature at the earliest possible moment. Continuation of the 40-foot pavement across northern Indiana, to link Detroit and Chicago by a super highway to be known as Michigan avenue is the ultimate objective of the association.

Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, head of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, was elected president of the association and John H. Burke, Sr., of Kalamazoo, author of the movement, was elected chairman of the board of directors. As such, he will be in charge of the legislative campaign for an appropriation to defray the cost of the pavement.

Village Dads Rescind Power Company Permit

At the regular meeting of the Chelsea common council two weeks ago Monday night, permission was granted the Consumers Power Company to construct an extension line along East street to the local electric light plant.

Monday evening of this week, in response to a petition signed by a number of taxpayers, the resolution granting the permit was rescinded. The taxpayers who signed the petition claimed that construction of the high tension line past their homes and the public school would be too hazardous.

The power company is contemplating the rebuilding of their present line furnishing power for Chelsea and the cement plant, and asked permission to use East street for this purpose. This would lessen the distance which would have to be traversed in reaching the municipal distributing point. However, with the rescinding of the permission they were granted by the council, in all probability the line will be constructed through the outskirts of the village.

Fire Damages House On McKinley Street

The, supposed to have been caused by sparks lodged on the roof, was discovered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Weatherwax and family of McKinley street about 2:15 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The blaze started in the roof where the kitchen joins the upright part of the residence. The fire department responded to the alarm and both of the fire fighting trucks were taken to the scene of the blaze.

Neighbors assisted in removing the household goods from the house. The entire roof of the kitchen will have to be replaced and the interior will have to be redecorated. The loss will amount to several hundred dollars and is partly covered by insurance.

Automobile Thieves Victimize Local Men

A Chevrolet coach, the property of Mr. Schrok, an employee at the cement plant, was stolen from the front of the Princess Theatre Sunday night. Mr. Schrok and family were attending the show. Officers were notified, and the car was found abandoned near Ionia Wednesday. Mr. Schrok left for Ionia this morning to bring the car home.

The Willys-Knight sedan belonging to Leonard Van Gieson was stolen in Ypsilanti Saturday night which Mr. Van Gieson was in attendance at a dance. Police were immediately notified and the car was found in Ypsilanti Sunday, minus two or three gallons of gasoline, but showing no damage as a result of the acquisition by the culprits.

Legion Men Again Emerge Victorious

Although the final score of Monday night's volley ball game between the Kiwanians and American Legion was not been divulged, it is understood that under protest the Kiwanians conceded the victory to the Legionnaires. Next Monday they will oppose the "so-called" victorious Legion men.

Highway Delegation Again Faces Green

Geo. W. Beckwith and L. P. Vogel accompanied a delegation of twenty men from Tecumseh, Clinton, Manchester, Stockbridge and other points along the route of the proposed federal highway traversing the M-92 route, to Lansing Monday, in an effort to get a satisfactory expression from the governor and administrative board as to their intentions concerning the appropriations for this much needed improvement.

Although no definite answer was given the delegation, Gov. Green stated that the matter would be given very careful consideration. However, information was received by the delegation which led them to believe that the portion of M-92 from Chelsea north to the county line would be improved this year, connecting with the portion of the trunk line which was graveled south from Stockbridge to the county line last year.

In the event that the proposed federal highway does materialize, Gov. Green stated, it would be impossible to name it the Roger's Memorial highway, as no state or federal highway could be designated other than by numbers.

JULIUS REULE INJURED IN INTERURBAN CRASH

Youth Severely Injured When East-bound Car Wrecks Auto At Wilkinson Street Crossing.

Julius Reule, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reule, was severely injured about six o'clock Monday evening when the automobile he was driving was struck by an eastbound interurban car at the Wilkinson street crossing.

Young Reule, who is an employee of the Federal Screw Works, was on his way home from work when the accident occurred. The interurban struck the car squarely and the only thing that saved Mr. Reule from instant death was the fact that the electric car was not traveling at a fast rate of speed.

Members of the young man's family and neighbors who heard the crash, rushed to the scene, extricated him from the wreckage and he was rushed to the Chelsea hospital where he was given medical attention. He suffered lacerations about the face, arms, and legs, and had two broken ribs. The injuries are not considered serious.

Two Farmers Will Move to Chelsea

Martin Eisele has sold his farm in Lyndon to Detroit parties, possession to be given March 15. Mr. Eisele is advertising an auction for February 19, and expects to purchase a home in Chelsea and move his family here the fore part of March.

Alvin D. Baldwin is announcing an auction sale for Thursday, March 14. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin have purchased the Wm. Moore home on McKinley street and expect to move there in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knickerbocker, who have lived on the Jos. Sibley farm northwest of town for the past few years, will move to the Baldwin farm, and Mr. and Mrs. Grove who are living in the Evans house on Harrison street, will move to the Sibley place on East street.

ARNOLD H. KUHL

Arnold H. Kuhl, aged 86, pioneer resident of Washtenaw county, died Sunday morning, February 3, at the home of his son, Louis Kuhl, in Sharon township.

Mr. Kuhl was born in West Prussia, January 28, 1843, the son of John and Adelheit Kuhl. In his native country he spent the days of his boyhood and acquired his education. In 1861 he sailed for America, joining his uncle, Gerhard Kuhl, in Freedom township, with whom he remained for two years. In 1863 he was joined by his mother, who purchased the farm in Sharon township, where he has since resided.

In 1897 Mr. Kuhl was united in marriage to Miss Rickie Hartbeck, who died in 1923.

Mr. Kuhl had for many years been director of the Union Savings Bank, Manchester. He was a member of St. John's Evangelical church, Rogers Corners. For the past few months he had made his home with his son, Louis.

Mr. Kuhl is survived by three sons and three daughters: August and Louis of Sharon township, Theodore Kuhl, Mrs. Edward Kuhl and Mrs. Ben Breitenwischer of Freedom township, and Mrs. John Huss of Ann Arbor, and 17 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at ten o'clock this forenoon from the residence and at 10:30 from St. John's church, Rogers Corners, Rev. G. Ronge officiating, with burial in Mt. Hope cemetery, Freedom.

CONSUMERS POWER ANNOUNCES REVISION OF ELECTRIC RATES

Farm Patrons on Rural Extension Lines Will Have Benefit of Same Rates as Cities.

Consumers Power Company has filed with the Michigan Public Utilities Commission at Lansing a new schedule of electric rates and revised rules and regulations governing services to farms and residents in rural territory, which gives rural customers the benefit of the same rates now in effect in cities.

This announcement was made by District Manager Howard Pett of Consumers Power Company following advice from the rate department of the company at Jackson, Michigan. Mr. Pett adds that not only will rural consumers be on the same basis as the residents in urban communities, but will be benefited by the application of a new rule with regard to line extensions, much more liberal than the present rural regulatory code. "This somewhat revolutionary concession is merely following out the company's fixed policy of uniform, standard rates, and has been worked out in conjunction with the State Utilities Commission and Michigan State College," said District Manager Howard Pett.

It is stated at the Jackson office of Consumers Power Company that the company's policy for several years has been to co-operate with the progressive efforts of Michigan State college in scientific investigation, research and experimentation supported by practical demonstrations on the farm, to determine how the farmer may make the best and most economical use of electrical energy for both lighting and power. The company has been convinced that, while there has been marked broadening of the scope of usefulness for electricity in the rural districts, there still exists a wide field for further development.

That a liberal rule with regard to rural rates and extensions is sound public policy from the standpoint of the state as a whole as well as the rural territory directly concerned and the company itself. This is the company's contribution to the splendid work being done by Prof. H. J. Gallagher and his department of the Michigan State college, to the general development of rural territory, and is designed to conform with the State Utilities Commission program for reduced rates when and where possible. "Consumers Power Company is looking into the future with entire confidence in rural residents now making use of the service and will be applied immediately, when approved by the State Utilities Commission."

"Plans are being made to conduct a number of public demonstrations throughout the territory served by the company, in co-operation with the Michigan State College, and in line with this program the company is developing and training men for specialized work in the development of rural business. A special course has been provided for these men by the Michigan State College with the idea of acquainting them with the practical requirements in the efficient and economical application of electric power to the farm."

Thieves Steal Local Man's Carpenter Tools

The carpenter tools of John Broesamle, of South Main street, who is employed by a building contractor in Ann Arbor, were stolen from the building that was being constructed, one night last week. When Mr. Broesamle quit work for the night, he locked his tools in his tool chest which was broken open and two hundred dollars worth of the tools were carried away. Three other workmen who were employed on the job also had their tools carried away by the thief.

Mr. Broesamle was in Detroit Monday where he recovered about one-half of his tools, which had been pledged to a pawn broker. He was accompanied by the other three men who had their tools stolen. Two of the men found a portion of their tools, but the other was unable to find any of his property.

BRIGHTER DAY IN CHICAGO

It is possible a better day has dawned in Chicago since some new judges and a new district attorney have taken office in the criminal court building. The new officials appear to be willing to give far greater consideration to the interests of the public than was in evidence in many cases in court there during recent years. It is a novel story to appear in a Chicago newspaper, telling how a court and a district attorney did not lose sight of public interests, when some high-grade crooks were in prison and sought release.

It has been an established custom in the criminal courts there to grant most applications for habeas corpus when some gunman was arrested by police and was held under investigation. At any hour, day or night, there has been a judge to hear the application and grant the writ. The courts leaned over a great distance to construe laws in favor of the wealthy gunmen and bootleggers. And that course of action came very near making police investigations impossible, helped many big crooks slip through the loops of the law and escape.

Not so now, it appears. Recently the police rounded up the gangsters, professional crooks and loafers, about 3000 being locked up. The police began checking up on them, identifying them, bringing out their records, to see if they were involved in recent murders and robberies or were wanted in other places. Promptly the applications for habeas corpus writs were made but the presiding judge withheld action, claiming justice demanded the police have a reasonable time in which to complete their work, then either place charges against the men or dismiss them. The district attorney was sought but he declared his office would co-operate with the police department in apprehending criminals and would urge the court to withhold the writs.

The refusal to grant the habeas corpus writs instantly will frighten the crooks, destroy their confidence in the protection their legal aids are able to provide and help make Chicago unattractive to them. And that is of large importance to the public.

COAL MARKET CHANGES

Only a few years ago there was a coal shortage each winter when there was extreme cold, and suffering because of the lack of fuel was reported most years. In most places there was real concern felt for the people when a mid-winter storm came. In those days coal dealers urged home owners to fill the coal bins during the summer, have their fuel on hand and be in position to escape the dangers of winter.

But those old time conditions are not in evidence now, we do not have the midwinter shortage of coal as in other days, we do not have the summer distribution of fuel for the homes, the world appears to have changed its habits and customs. Population has increased largely, there are more homes to be heated, more people to be kept warm, but the coal demand has not kept pace with the increase in population.

There has been an increase in the use of electricity and oil, in these lines the increase is far greater than the increase in population, but the latest report from the department of commerce shows only a slight increase in the use of coal. Scientists insist that a decrease in the demand for coal may be expected during the next decade, because electrical energy has been largely developed in industry and oil has become popular as a fuel in many plants.

Winter storms no longer have the old time market significance to the coal dealers and producers. There are observers who claim the winter weather is less intense than in the past, but weather officials insist the old world has about the same experience each winter, on the average, that it has been having through the ages, but there has been a considerable change in the coal market, we no longer hear of any communities being out of fuel and in danger even when the wildest winter storm has brought stern conditions.

SELECTING A CABINET

That well informed political correspondent, David Lawrence, declares that in the selection of his cabinet, Mr. Hoover is interested only in character, capacity and fitness, not at all in extraneous considerations. Geography and past political service do not interest him in this connection. He is looking for the men who he believes will do most to promote the success of his administration by their work, regardless of where they live or whose nomination for the presidency they favored.

Of course it is the only sensible plan in the selection of a cabinet, the only really patriotic plan. "A ruler who appoints any man to an office when there is in his country another man better qualified for that office sins against God and against his country," says the Koran. Not a few sins of that nature have been committed in this country as elsewhere, in the past, with unsatisfactory results, and it is heartening to know that Mr. Hoover will not willingly repeat them. The country doesn't care whether a cabinet officer comes from Maine or Mississippi or whether he was for Hoover or Lowden. It wants a man who measures up to the job.

Jersey Breeders Prosper According To Report

With a total of 73,909 Jersey registrations and 57,844 transfers recorded by the American Jersey Cattle Club in 1928, the year showed a gain of 15.3 per cent in registrations and 14.2 per cent in transfers over 1927, which was also a record year. Registrations and transfers are an accurate index of conditions and they reflect the splendid demand for cattle and dairy products throughout the country, for the Jersey is the second largest dairy breed in America. There are eleven million Jerseys in the United States of which some three hundred thousand are registered purebreds. The files of the American Jersey Cattle Club office in New York now contain the names of more than 85,000 owners and breeders of purebred Jerseys. During 1928 the number of Jersey breeders increased at the rate of 1,500 to 1,800 per month. The greatest increases were made in the states of Texas, Mississippi, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee, Michigan, Oregon, and Oklahoma.

Testing for production continued to increase during the past year. At present there are 3,400 cows on Register of Merit List; 2,569 records were completed and accepted by the American Jersey Cattle Club in 1928. The highest Jersey record ever made was completed last year by Abigail of Hillsdale, a Massachusetts cow. In 365 days she produced a total of 1,197.51 lbs. of butterfat and 23,677 lbs. of milk. The twenty-third Jersey record of over 1,000 lbs. of butterfat was finished by the California cow, Imperial Isabel. A world record was also broken by a Kentucky Calf Club boy who tested the first animal he ever owned.

One of the most successful showing seasons Jersey breeders have experienced, was another feature of the year just ended. Parish Shows, designed to encourage improvement in both type and production in dairy cattle were held in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio and breeders were enthusiastic in their efforts to make such showings lasting and pronounced success. From the standpoint of the number entered at the various state fairs and district contests, and the high quality of the entries, 1928 set a new standard. Important measures initiated by the American Jersey Cattle Club during 1928 include the requirement that all animals offered for registration after January 1, 1929, must be plainly tattooed in the ear with letters or numbers to be selected by the owner. This will give positive identification to each animal and will constitute a further protection for all breeders and owners. The tattoo marks will be stated on the Registration Certificate. The American Jersey Cattle Club is to be congratulated in taking the lead in this progressive move. Another important step was the adoption of the bi-monthly production test, which is a test every 60 days, and which will greatly lower the cost of Register of Merit testing.

Task of Democracy

(From Lincoln's Gettysburg address, delivered at the dedication of the National Cemetery November 19, 1863.)

The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this Nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Easily Settled

The snail further arrived to see the outer office occupied by seven men, each of whom wished him a very good morning.

"What's all that crowd doing out there?" he asked his junior in the private office a few seconds later.

"Well, you know we wanted an efficient and capable clerk? I advertised, and there they are."

"H'm," murmured the other. "How do you intend to pick your man out my boy?"

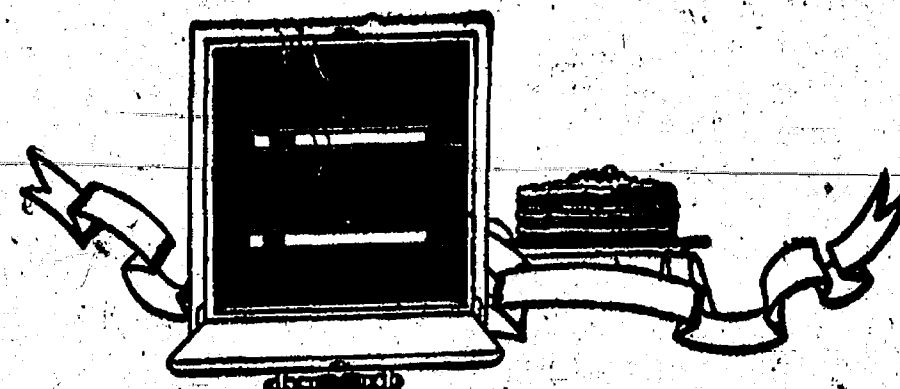

"Oh, easy. I imagine the brightest of that gang'll find some way of getting rid of the other six."

Brooklyn—Some miscreants entered the Brooklyn school building Saturday or Sunday night and raided the athletic storage locker. The equipment stolen included four-base ball suits, six-base balls, a new catcher's mit, a basket ball suit, an almost new basketball and several foot ball helmets. It looks like the work of boys with seriously mistaken ideas.—Exponent.

Fowlerville—People in and about Hartland have banded together and purchased a fire truck. Harley Kirk has been chosen as secretary of the organization which owns the truck. Members of the organization will be given free use of the truck at time of fire. Non-members in Hartland township will be charged $40 for every run made to their home. Non-members, living out of the township of Hartland, will be charged $75 and the expenses of the firemen. This applies to those living up to 9 miles from Hartland. Those living over 9 miles from Hartland will be charged $100 and firemen's expenses for every run made.—Review.

Howell—A U. S. flyer on his way from Chicago to Selfridge Field gave Cphoctah people a whole lot of a sight seeing time last Sunday. He had engine troubles and was compelled to light in Claud Burkhardt's alfalfa field. Before he got away the whole neighborhood was there to see the aeroplane at close range.—Press.

Brighton—Plans have recently been completed for a series of special meetings to be held at the W. M. church, beginning March 1. Mrs. Alice Durham who is to have charge of the meetings as evangelist, served in that capacity at the United Brethren camp meetings at Sunfield the past two years and is now conducting special meetings at Blissfield. She will be assisted by Mr. Regnier, as song leader. Mrs. Regnier acting as accompanist. Mrs. Durham has been engaged in evangelistic work for the past twenty years.—Argus.

Howell—At the January session of the Livingston county board of supervisors the bounty on sheep-killing dogs was reduced from $10.00 to $5.00 per dog. The reason for this was that certain unscrupulous persons were making a lucrative profit by shooting stray and unwanted dogs and selling them to the county as sheep-killers at $10 each.

Pineckey—Met Chalker and Dallas Cox were in Lansing Friday and visited the state conservation department where the former purchased a .38-cal. rifle or riot gun which was among the firearms confiscated by the department for illegal hunting. This gun is said to be a veritable young cannon warranted to kill at the range of two miles and capable of piercing a 12-inch stone wall. It throws a whole flock of projectiles like a machine gun. We understand that Mr. Chalker purchased it for personal protection and will obtain a permit to carry it about with him.—Dispatch.

Tecumseh—The oldest Episcopal church west of the Allegheny mountains was built nearly 100 years ago at Tecumseh and the society has decided to celebrate its anniversary in 1929.

Mason—Judge Leland W. Carr and Judge Charles B. Collingwood will preside over the thirtieth judicial circuit, composed of Ingham county, for the next six years. They are certain of nomination and equally certain reelection because no republican filed nomination petitions for either of the offices nor did democrats enter the field. The final day for the filing of petitions was Tuesday, January 29. The only petitions filed were those of Judges Collingwood and Carr.—News.

Dundee—Judge Jesse H. Root of Monroe, has filed a petition with the secretary of state asking for renomination for circuit judge of Monroe county, representing the 38th judicial circuit court. Judge Root is a Republican. So far as is known, no others have filed petitions seeking the nomination as circuit judge. Tuesday was the last day on which to file petitions for circuit judge. As the result there will be no spring primary in Monroe county. Monday, April 1st, is election day.—Reporter.

Howell—As the result of the two recent disastrous fires in Howell, the people of that city are considering the need of trained fire fighters. There seems to be a sentiment in favor of at least a trained chief to direct and lead the firemen in their battle with the flames. Some criticism has been made that at the Wingar and Nurses' Home fires, the department failed to get streams inside the buildings where they were the most needed. A movement is on foot to bring the matter to the attention of the city council.

The groundhog was able to see his shadow on Candlemas day, February 2, and the weather is about the same as it has been for the past week.

The common council held a lively session at their meeting Wednesday evening. All of the members of the council were present. The Marshal reported that seven new sidewalks had been built under special ordinance No. 7.

Frank Shaver has on exhibition in his barber shop an Easter lily that measures six feet in height. He has a geranium that rears its head one foot higher than the lily. "How is that for high?"

Edmund Bott, a farmer residing near Stockbridge, has just completed a well on his place that is 207 feet deep and the water comes within three feet of the top.

Hon. Reuben Kempf has introduced a congressional apportionment bill that will include Washtenaw with Hillsdale, Branch and Lenawee counties. Mr. Kempf is a member of the state legislature from this district.

The Postal Telegraph Co. has moved its office and is now located in the basement under Dr. R. S. Armstrong & Co.'s drug store.

R. J. West of Sylvan Center, is doing a thriving business this winter slaughtering superannuated horses for their hides and bones.

E. E. Shaver has placed a fine new show case at the foot of the stairs leading to his studio on the second floor.

J. P. Wood & Co. handle at their warehouse on an average 1,100 bushels of beans per week. They keep this branch of their business running fully nine months of the year.

PRaises KONJOLA

Suffered From Nervousness For Ten Years—Found First And Only Relief In New Medicine

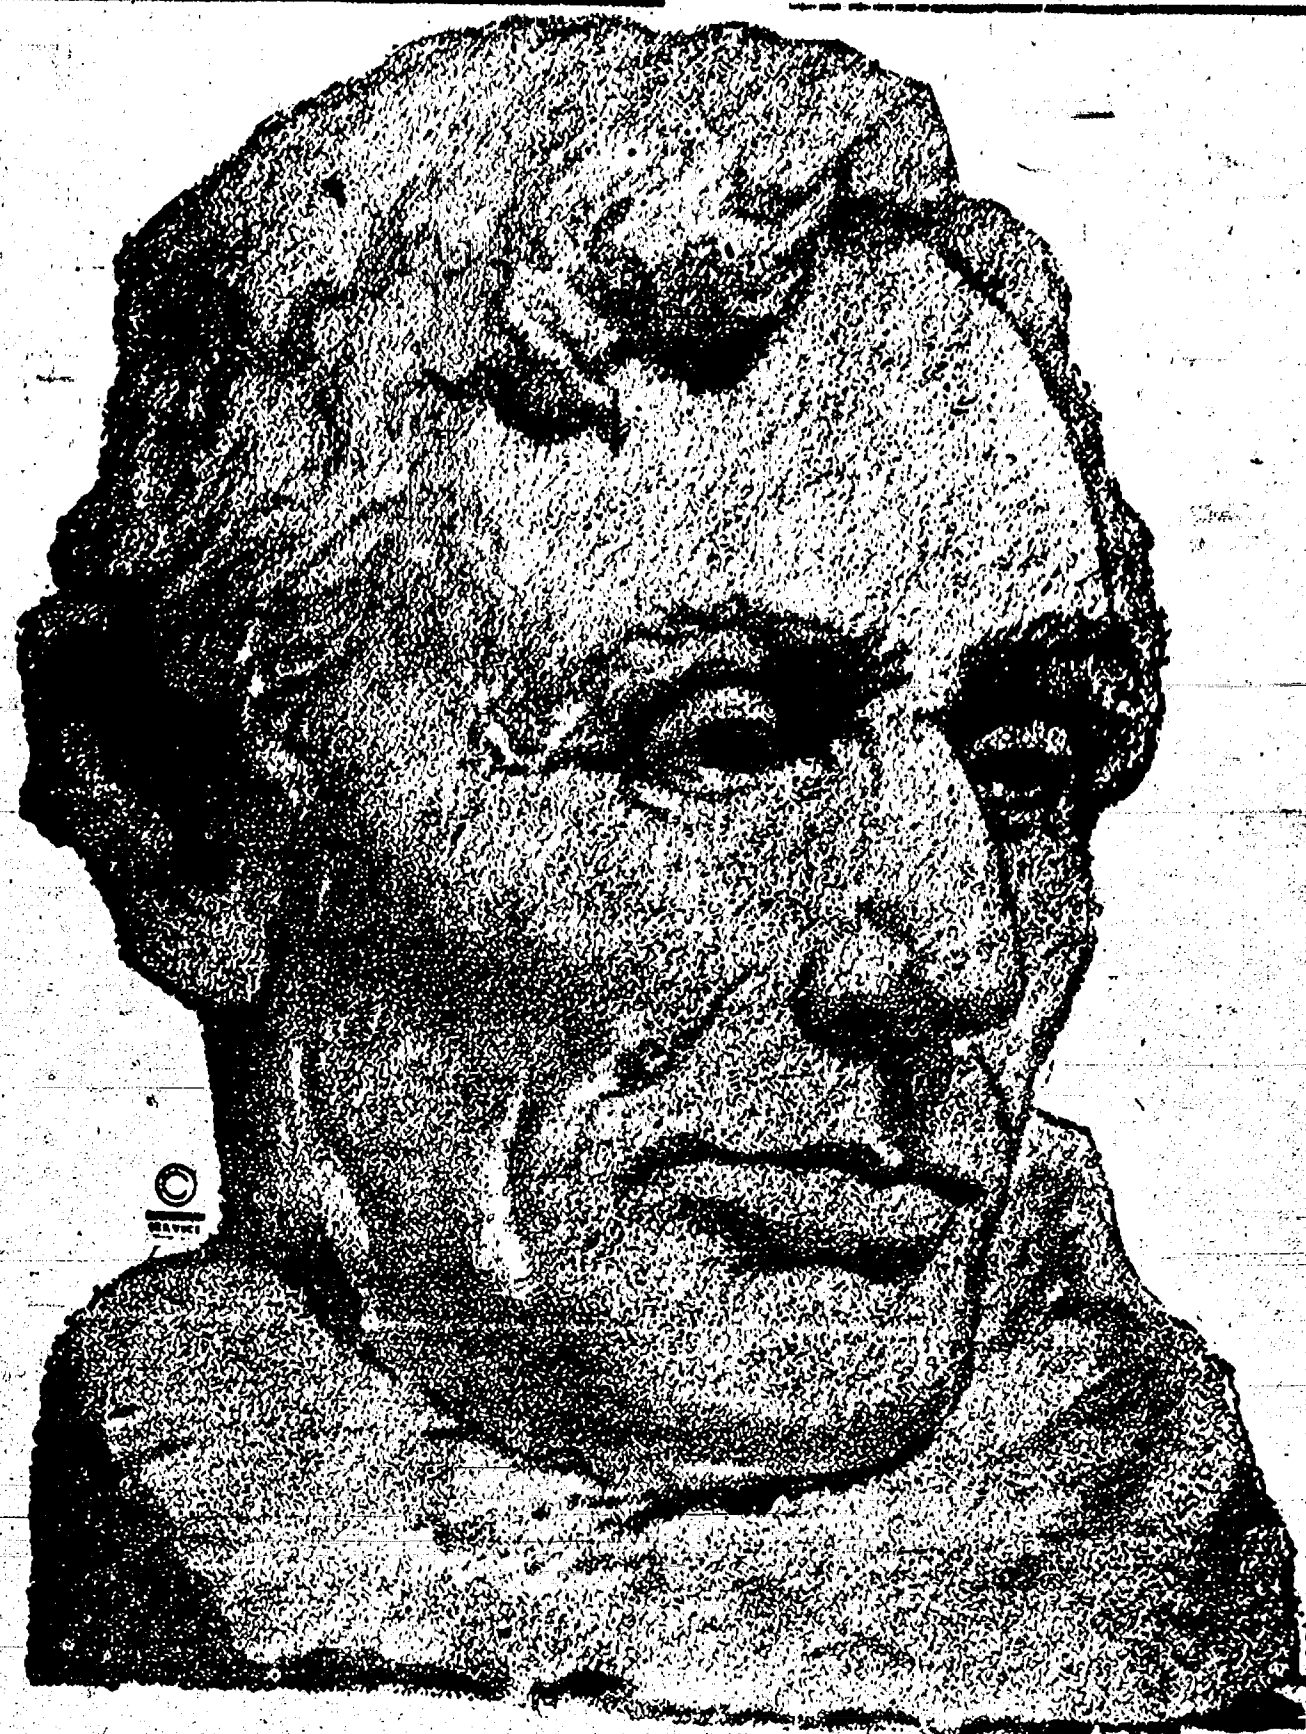

MRS. EZRA CLARK

A record of success that is the marvel of the drug and medical world has been achieved by Konjola, the new medicine, that triumphs when all else fails. Indeed, this super-compound seems to be at the very peak of its powers in the stubborn cases that have baffled every effort to find relief.

"Everything had failed me in a ten year search for health," says Mrs. Ezra Clark, 1650 Bridge street, Grand Rapids. "It seemed that I would never escape the curse of nervousness, stomach, and kidney troubles. Konjola was strongly recommended, but I thought it was just another medicine. But I read and heard so much about it that I concluded that, after all, it might prove to be the medicine I needed. Well, it proved to be that very thing. I gained four pounds in ten days after starting the treatment. Digestion improved and so did my appetite. My kidneys were quickly restored, and in three weeks, my nerves were calmed and I felt like I did years and years ago. I am gaining rapidly in strength, energy and spirits, and I owe this wonderful change to this master medicine. I wish that my voice could reach all who suffer as I did, so that I could urge them to let Konjola make them well again."

Konjola is sold in Chelsea at Burg's drug store and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

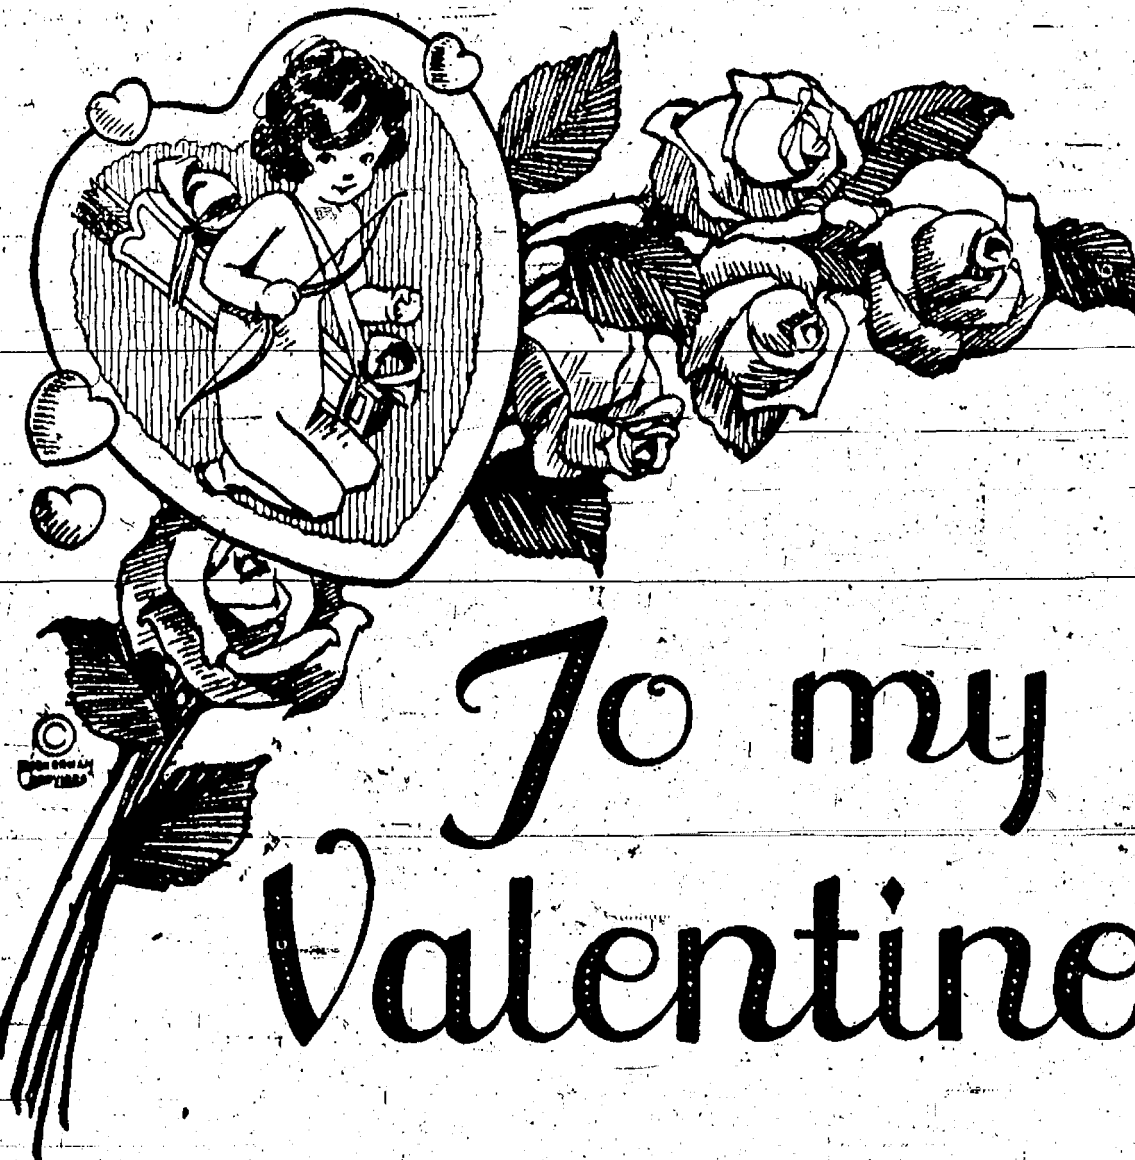

The Heart of America Lies In His Eyes

Abraham Lincoln's face is the composite face of the United States of Yesterday and of Today. Here we read compassion, fortitude, determination, and a mind that speaks softly of matters of Destiny. Lincoln's birthday gives us the occasion to deliberate once more upon the Great American, who grows greater the longer he has been dead. That is the test of Greatness.

There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford

THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by cuts of bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road so essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together. This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout, the new Ford steering mechanism is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubricated every 2000 miles.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Greatness of Lincoln Shown in Statecraft

Writing in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Nathaniel W. Stephenson, professor of history at the College of Charleston, S. C., thus reviews President Lincoln's great achievements.

The history of the North had virtually become, by April, 1861, the history of Lincoln himself—and during the remaining years of the President's life it is difficult to separate his personality from the trend of national history. Any attempt to understand the achievements and the omissions of the Northern people without understanding an intelligent estimate of their leader would be only to duplicate the story of Hamlet while Hamlet left out. According to the opinion of Lincoln military experts, "as a military genius of certain South-Atlantic type, Lincoln was the unlikeliest of men to be a successful leader of the Union, which he was, despite the great Northern President. As long as he lived and ruled the people of the North there could be no turning back."

He was neither a saint nor a villain. What he actually was is not, however, so easily stated. Prodigious men are never easy to sum up; and Lincoln was a prodigious man. The more one studies him the more individual he appears to be. By degrees one comes to understand how it was possible for contemporaries to hold contradictory views of him and for each to believe that his views were proved by the facts.

Lincoln's Friends and Enemies.
To measure Lincoln's achievement, two things must be remembered: On the one hand, his task was not as arduous as it might have been, because the most intellectual part of the North had definitely committed itself either irrevocably for, or irrevocably against, his policy. Lincoln, therefore, did not have to trouble himself with this portion of the population. On the other hand, that part which he had to master included such emotional theorists as Horace Greeley, such doctrinaires as Henry Winter Davis of Maryland, who made him profane indeed; and Benjamin Wade. Such military egoists as McClellan and Pope; such crafty double-dealers as his own secretary of the treasury; such astute grifters as Cameron; such miserable creatures as a certain powerful capitalist, who sacrificed his army to their own lust for profits and fled from army commitments.

The wonder of Lincoln's achievement is that he contrived at last to extend his hold over all these diverse elements; that he persuaded some, convinced others and overcame them all. The subtlety of this task would have ruined any statesman of the daring sort.

Great Creative Ability.
We are even today far from a definitive understanding of Lincoln's statecraft, but there is perhaps justification for venturing upon one prophesy. The farther from him we get and the more clearly we see him in perspective the more shall we realize his creative influence upon his party.

In the Lincoln of his ultimate biography there will be more of iron than of a less engaging metal in the figure of the Lincoln of the present tradition. Though none of his gentleness will disappear, there will be more emphasis placed upon his firmness and upon such episodes as that of December, 1860, when his single will turned the scale against compromise.

Upon the scene of the nation's history, his party in the polls in 1862. The Civil war was in truth Lincoln's war. "These modern pacifists who claim him as their own are beside the mark. They will never get over the illusions about Lincoln until they see that his career has universal significance because of its bearing upon the universal problem of democracy. It will not do, ever to forget that he was a man of the people, always playing the hand of the people, always playing the social sense of that word, though playing it with none of the heat usually met with in the statements of successful democracy from Cleon to Roosevelt. From Andrew Jackson to Lloyd George. His gentleness does not reduce Lincoln from that stern category. Throughout his life, besides his passion for the Union, besides his antipathy for slavery, there dwelt in his very heart love of and faith in the plain people. We shall never see him in true historic perspective until we recognize him as the instrument of a vast social idea, the determination to make a government based upon the plain people successful in war.

Intense Love for Mankind.
He did not scruple to seize power when he thought the cause of the people demanded it, and his enemies were prompt to accuse him of holding to the doctrine that the end justifies the means a hasty conclusion which will have to be reconsidered. What concerns us more closely is the delicate conviction that he felt no sacrifice too great if it advanced the happiness of the generally of mankind.

Five weeks after the second inauguration Lee surrendered and the war was virtually at an end. What was to come after was inevitably the overshadowing topic of the hour. Many anecdotes represent Lincoln in these last few days of his life as possessed by a high though melancholy mood of extreme energy. Therefore, much has been inferred from the following words in his last public address, made on the night of the eleventh of April: "In the present situation, as the phrase goes, it may be my duty to make some new announcement to the people of the South. I am considering and shall not fail to act when action shall be proper."

No Animosity in His Heart.
What was to be done for the South, what treatment should be accorded the Southern leaders engrossed the President and his cabinet at the meeting on April 14, which was destined to be their last. Secretary Welles has preserved the spirit of the meeting in a striking anecdote. Lincoln said no one need expect he would "take any part in hanging or killing those men, even the worst of them. Frighten them out of the country, open the gates, let down the bars, scare them off," he said, "throwing up his hands, as if sending sheep. Though lives have been sacrificed, we must extinguish our resentments. We expect harmony and union."

While Lincoln was thus arming himself with a valiant mercy, a band of conspirators at an obscure boarding house in Washington were planning his assassination.

The passage of 67 years has proved fully necessary to the placing of Lincoln in historic perspective. No President in his own time, with the possible exception of Washington, was so bitterly hated and so heroically reviled. On the other hand, none has been the object of such intense personal worship. However, the greatest in the land were, in the main, quick to see him in perspective and to recognize his historic significance. It is recorded of Davis that in after days he paid a beautiful tribute to Lincoln and said: "Next to the destruction of the Confederacy, the death of Abraham Lincoln was the darkest day the South has ever known."

Twenty-four Years Ago

Thursday, February 3, 1905
Deputy Sheriff Frank Leach on Saturday placed under arrest a man giving his name as Walter Wood, residence unknown. He was trying to sell a lap robe and blanket, which he had stolen from a day in Ann Arbor. He was taken to the county jail soon after his arrest.

A call has been issued for a republican county convention to be held in Ann Arbor on Monday, February 20, at which time a candidate for circuit court judge is to be nominated.

Burkhart & Freeman last Saturday received 19 general-purpose horses that Hon. M. J. Noyes says is the finest lot of horses that has ever been offered on the Chelsea market.

Prudden & Stanton have been in Ann Arbor this week putting down wells for a number of residents of that city.

Warren Boyd exhibited in The Standard office this week some artistic letter-head and business cards that he had designed for a number of Ann Arbor business houses.

John Baldwin of Waterloo, has rented the N. H. Cook farm in Sylvan and will take possession about March 1st.

Frank Brantenwischer of Freedom has sold to the Washtenaw Garden Co., of Columbus, Ohio, a tract of land in Freedom for $6000.

Janet Gaynor's Newest Triumph, 'Sunrise' Here

Admirers of winsome Janet Gaynor, the twenty-year-old Fox star who made an instantaneous hit as Diane in "7th Heaven," will have another opportunity to see her in a captivating role when "Sunrise," the first picture made in this country by the noted European director, F. W. Murnau, at the Princess Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, February 13 and 14.

"Sunrise" is the most important picture yet released by Fox Films and was produced with an especially selected cast headed by Miss Gaynor and George O'Brien. Great as was her triumph in "7th Heaven," her performance in "Sunrise" has been pronounced superior to anything she has previously done because it calls for a much wider range of historic ability and puts her to a test from which less competent stars would have withdrawn.

The acclaim which "Sunrise" received in such large measure in New York, Los Angeles, Berlin and Stockholm when it was first released, was not due entirely, however, to the work of its cast. The dramatic simplicity of the story and the phenomenal photography were equally responsible for the praise it received from the first critics who reviewed it. The theme of "Sunrise" is an original one from the pen of Herman Sudermann, the novelist, and the scenario was prepared by Carl Mayer, who collaborated with Mr. Murnau on "The Last Laugh." Mr. Murnau brought Charles Rosher and Karl Struss from Germany to execute the photography.

Hard Description
One of the toughest questions we ever heard of on an examination paper was that asked by an Eastern school. "For the benefit of a man from Mars who has never seen one, describe a cat."
Tattooing
Tattooing is very ancient. It had reached such a pitch once that the Jews were forbidden to tattoo. The order is in Lev. 19:28: "Ye shall not print any marks upon you."

Question And Answer Dept.

NOTICE—If your question does not appear below, it is because it is awaiting its turn, and will be published eventually.

Ques.—Who was the author of the following saying: "You can fool part of the people all of the time, all of the people part of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time?"
Ans.—This quotation is usually attributed to Abraham Lincoln, although the authorship is not known for certain.

Ques.—I would like to ask in your valuable paper to what race do the American Indians, the Eskimos and the Magyars of Europe belong?
Ans.—The American Indians form a separate race, of which the Eskimos comprise one of the Arctic groups. The Magyars of Europe, including Finns and Lapps, are of the Mongolian origin, believed to have come from the region around the Ural Mountains and the Caspian Sea. They have mixed largely with people of the Caucasian race in Europe.

Ques.—I am deeply in love with a young lady, but I haven't really got the "nerve" to let her know it. Please tell me what I should do. Please do not use my right name.
Ans.—If you are so devoid of nerve to find a girl with the right words on it and send it to her.

Ques.—Will you please be kind enough to answer in your question and answers if Albania is a republic, a kingdom or a dependency?
Ans.—At present Albania is a republic, although there is a revolution every year or two. Ahmed Zogu, who has been at the head of the Albanian state most of the time since 1921, was reported to be preparing to proclaim the country a monarchy, with himself as king; but when he called the parliament to act in the matter, that body decided it was "incompetent" to revise the constitution. Italy is suspected of favoring Zogu's move to make himself king, for it would be to her advantage to have a permanent government that is friendly.

Ques.—Will you please tell me, if you can, who holds the world's championship dancers for endurance? What kind of a dance was it?
Ans.—Robert Johns, an ex-Marine of Richmond, Va., and Serene Bergandi, of Chicago, danced 259 hours and 43 minutes continuously to the music of a fox trot. This was considered the world's record, and they were given $3,500, a vaudeville contract, and a round trip flight from Chicago to Hollywood, Calif. The couple became engaged to marry during the dance.

Ques.—To settle an argument will you please state which live the longest—married men or single men?
Ans.—According to a statement made to a convention of life insurance actuaries in London married men live four years longer in England than single men do. This is not to be taken as final, as the time may only seem longer.

Ques.—Several of us have had a friendly argument about the location of the widest bridge in the world. We have decided to leave the question with you, and hope that you will please answer it in an early issue.
Ans.—Bridges are usually compared by the length of the span, and not by the width or even the length with the approaches. Presuming that you refer to the longest bridge rather than the widest, this distinction goes to the Quebec, which has a span of 1,800 feet—the longest in the world. The Delaware River bridge at Philadelphia is second with a span of 1,750 feet, but is the widest in the world—125 feet. The Quebec bridge is 88 feet wide.

Ques.—In the case of a person born in this country of foreign parents and was taken back to the country of the parents when the person in question was a small child, and exercised the right of voting, is that person a citizen of this country?
Ans.—No. He lost his citizenship when he availed himself of the privilege of voting.

Ques.—I have been told by several persons that Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis were half-brothers. Will you please answer if this is correct?
Ans.—There is a popular belief in spite of authentic denials, that Abraham Lincoln was a half-brother to Jefferson Davis. This is no doubt a myth that originated during the Civil War. Repeated investigations have never revealed that the two men were closely related. It is thought probable that both being Kentuckians by birth there was a distinct relationship existing between them.

Ques.—They say when a man gives in when he is wrong in an argument, he is considered a generous, wise man. Now, what I want to know is this: What is a man that gives in when he knows he is right?
Ans.—Usually he is married.

Ques.—I would like to know if there is such a thing as a joint snake, that when struck with a stick it will fly to pieces? I have heard it said that there were, while others have scoffed the idea.
Ans.—No. This is a myth. The idea probably got its origin in the fact that there are certain lizards that are snake-like in form and are erroneously called joint snakes. While they do not break to pieces when struck, they have very brittle tails. When it is handled the thin square plates set like shingles over its body will crack, and without any shedding of blood.

From the Latin
The word "sincere" originated from two Latin words, "sine cera," meaning without wax. In the days of ancient Rome cracked and chipped vases were made as good as new by filling up the cracks with wax.

Pardon Is Urged For Convict Crippled Here

Joseph Beechiner, an inmate of Michigan State prison, will be granted a full pardon and will be given an opportunity to obtain an education, if plans of Arthur D. Wood, commissioner of pardons and paroles, and Warden Harry Jackson materialize.

Beechiner lost both legs when he was run over by a locomotive at the Chelsea cement plant recently. He is now a patient at University hospital, Ann Arbor, where artificial limbs have been given him.

Because of Beechiner's physical condition, Warden Jackson told Wood he believed the prisoner should be given special consideration respecting a pardon.

Wood acquiesced and proceeded to make plans whereby the state will appropriate funds for the furtherance of Beechiner's education along business lines.

Beechiner was sentenced from recorder's court, Detroit, to serve from seven and one-half to 15 years for robbery armed, the term being imposed November 2, 1925.

Vicious Habits

Vicious habits are so great a strain on human nature, and so odious in themselves, that every person actuated by right reason would avoid them, though he were sure they would be always concealed, both from God and man, and had no future punishment entailed upon them. — Cleop.

Or Enduring It

For all too many of us, middle age means that period of life when we spend a good share of our time antipating some new ache or pain. — Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Bible Thought and Prayer

GOD'S WORD EFFECTIVE—All the kings of the earth shall praise Thee, O Lord, when they hear the words of Thy mouth. — Ps. 138:4.

PRAYER—"All people that on earth do dwell, Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice."

Qualities of Balsam Fir
The wood of the balsam fir is very light in color, and, being odorless, is very suitable for boxes intended for packing food materials.

She Had the Proof
Asked in court if she had proof of her husband's means, Mrs. J. C. Corwin replied: "Yes, he's always playing poker and always losing."

St. Louis Standard in Use of American Tongue

New York.—The American language seems to be spoken in St. Louis more than in any other city.

Such was the conclusion of an audience at Columbia after listening to 20 records of us many varieties of speech in the country, from the Vermont twang to the Southern drawl.

Prof. William Cabell Greet of Harvard suggested that St. Louis was the standard and the audience, 100 graduates of Columbia, agreed.

Black Measles

"Editor the Chronicle," writes a San Francisco correspondent, "I hope the report that Atlanta City is cancelling its annual beauty contest is true. The Chronicle's great interest in these contests has been the one great blotch on its scutcheon."

Lima Farmer Growing Rhubarb In Basement

Development of what shows promise of shaping itself into a very profitable horticultural venture has been started in this community by Munson L. Burkhardt, Lima township, in the growth of rhubarb for the winter market. Last fall Mr. Burkhardt fitted up a "garden" in the basement of his home, secured a quantity of rhubarb roots, planting them in the late fall and is now enjoying a handsome profit from the sale of the product on the city market, buyers paying as high as 40 cents per pound in Detroit.

Mr. Burkhardt states that a stalk 15 to 20 inches in length will grow in about two weeks, which is almost equal to mushroom rapidly in growth. With this rapid growth, a good quantity is available each week. The best results, Mr. Burkhardt states, can be obtained only with very fertile soil and properly heated growing quarters.

It is planned by Mr. Burkhardt to erect a building next summer especially for growth of the rhubarb for which he predicts there will be a greater market each year.

British Titles

The title of knight is not hereditary. The title of baronet, which also carries the prefix "Sir," is in order of precedence the lowest hereditary title in Britain.

Cat's Long Walk

A black cat which accompanied a family from Annan to Stranraer, Scotland, disappeared the next morning, and eleven days later arrived at its old home. The distance is about a hundred miles.

Unbroken Vows

When in my arms I used to hold you,
Don't you remember, Love, I told you—
And swore it by the stars above you—
That I'd more dearly, truly love you
With every passing year—
Don't you remember, Dear?

Though bright or stormy be the weather,
That marked the days we spent together—
I said with you I'd gladly share it;
Whate'er the road, I'd gladly fare it,
If only you were near.
Don't you remember, Dear?

I said that Time could never chill me—
Your kisses sweet would always thrill me.
In much the same old happy fashion,
Though gone, perchance, my fevered passion—
My heart would never sere!
Don't you remember, Dear?

Well, Time has passed—and Youth's behind us—
But still in love, the world may find us.
And now as in my arms I press you,
And I with awkward hands caress you,
I'm sure that now you know
That all I said—was so!

EYESIGHT

Eye Diseases

Defective vision and diseases of the eye are two entirely distinct conditions. The former is usually due to certain weaknesses of the muscles or an error of refraction and can be overcome by wearing corrective lenses.

Diseases of the eye—and there are many of them—are more serious and require medical or surgical care.

The Optometrist is trained to recognize various eye and body diseases, as well as symptoms of certain systemic disorders, and will immediately refer the patient to a physician.

An occasional "check-up" on your eyes by a Registered Optometrist is the best possible safeguard against eye trouble. We are at your service.

Chelsea High School Wins Two, Loses Two

The Varsity lost to the Ypsi Central Varsity Friday night 23-17. The Purple and Gold boys played good, hard basket ball and came very close to winning. Ypsi scored only one more field goal than did Chelsea but secured 7 points from the foul line to Chelsea's 3. The score at the half was 12-9 Ypsi.

In the second half the boys fought hard and cut the lead down to 1 point but in the closing minutes of play Ypsi sunk a couple of baskets and again stepped into a lead which she maintained until the end.

Arnold Fabner was taken out on fouls in the third quarter and the offense was weakened. However the boys are still full of fight and intend to even things up with the Ypsi quintet when they come here to play.

Friday night the Reserves lost to the Ypsi Central Hi team 18 to 7. The time of the Reserves' game was cut to 14 minutes and consequently the boys didn't have time to get started. The size of the floor was undoubtedly had something to do with the defeat as it was considerably larger than any the boys have played on before.

The Reserves lost for a while but the Ypsi boys crept up on them and at the half the score was 5 and 3, Chelsea. In the second 7 minutes Ypsi got hot and rolled in 5 field goals to Chelsea's one. The final score was 18 to 7.

In a fast game on the local floor, the Purple and Gold warriors downed Howell for the second time.

The local boys outplayed the visitors and kept them on the defensive the whole game. Chelsea took an early lead and held it till the last quarter when Howell tied the score at 7-7. The home team broke away for five more points to the visitors' 2 and won by a margin of three points. The score at the half was 5-4 Chelsea and the final score was 12-9.

Next Tuesday the boys and girls play Michigan Center and we hope that they have two more victories.

The Reserves won easily from the "Tigers" Tuesday night in a grand scrimmage. The Reserves played a fast game and out-pointed the giants from the start. Myers, a former high school star, was the "big gun" of the Tigers' attack.

Kern was the Reserves' high point man, he scoring 8 points. The score at the half was 4-2, Chelsea.

In the second half Kern rolled in his 3 points and B. Foster added 2 more, while Van Gieson of the Tigers, sunk the second and last of their baskets. The final score was 14-4.

Hi School Scribe.

St. Mary School Wins Three Games

St. Mary school won three basket ball games from St. Alphonsus Catholic school of Fordson Sunday afternoon at the McKune Memorial hall here.

The girls' game was a run-away from the first whistle, the score at the end being 37-3 in St. Mary's favor. The high school boys' game, however, proved to be much more interesting, and more closely contested throughout. The seeming midges against the Fordson giants played a very fast game and emerged with a 12-8 victory.

The feature game of the afternoon was played between the alumni boys of the two schools. The first half of the game was exciting to say the least, neither side getting over two points ahead of the other at any time. At the half the local team was in the lead at a score of 8-6. The second half proved to be an entirely different proposition. As the St. Mary boys got under way for a scoring spasm, which lasted the rest of the game and grew more intense as the minutes flew by, the Fordson boys were evidently getting discouraged, and lost much of the fight that they had showed in the first half. The final score was: Chelsea 33, Fordson 13.

Tuttle, Keusch, Beissel, "Benice," and Hoffman composed the local team.

COMMUNITY CALENDAR

Friday, February 1, the St. Marys boys and girls basket ball teams played Dexter at Dexter and lost to the score of 38 to 18 and 27 to 6, respectively.

On Tuesday evening, February 5, the boys team lost to the Saline boys at a score of 18 to 14, while the girls lost at a score of 14 to 11.

FRANCISCO

Mrs. Mary Willy met with a painful accident Saturday morning when removing the cover from a pile of boiling coffee she had made for the boys to take to the woods for their lunch.

While releasing the cover the force of the steam blew the cover off and that and the hot coffee flew into Mrs. Willy's face and neck. Neighbors did what they could to relieve the suffering woman until the arrival of a Chelsea physician. As the flesh had not blistered, it is not thought there will be any scars.

Mrs. Willy has been in poor health from flu for a number of weeks, and this, together with the burns and shock have forced her to bed.

Standing near his mother when the explosion occurred, Arthur was burned on his forehead and on his scalp and one shoulder was so saturated with coffee that it took quite a while before the clothing could be removed. After a few hours the unfortunate people were very much more comfortable.

Mrs. Alice Angell, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Etta B. Frey, has returned to her home in Columbus, Ohio. Other guests at the Frey home last week were Miss Minnie Kanger of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Minnie Plow of Chelsea, and Sheldon H. Frey of Detroit spent the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin McCurdy of Cass Lake spent the week-end with Mrs. McCurdy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bohne.

Earliest Form of "Pie"

The name pie probably was evolved from the French "pied," meaning head, and from "pie" meaning foot for the early method of cooking a meat was to cover it with a doughy paste, leaving the feet sticking out through the crust to serve as handles.

Ruth and Henry, the Twins

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

RUTH and Henry Willis, twins, graduated from high school in the same class and together they made their plans for college. Then came a family disaster which separated them, ended the dream of college, and put them to work in distant cities. Each felt it was a particularly hard blow to the other.

Ruth was given a job as a stenographer. She lived with a relative, paying her board, and tried hard to be happy.

"It is all right for me," she said, "a girl doesn't have to be so well educated. I wonder if at the end of two years, he would find work and take up studies again."

She said two years because in her businesslike way she had figured it would take her that long to save enough to help him through the college years. It occurred to her that counting other young men were earning their own way through college, she dismissed the thought with an allowance for Henry, who, doubtless, was working because he believed it to be his part.

"He will try to refuse," she decided, "because he won't wish to go to school while I work, but I'll make him accept."

"She wrote to him telling how happy she was in her work and when she was made secretary to the manager, her message conveyed the impression that her highest ambition had been achieved.

"And I guess it's," she tried to convince herself, "only I wish they would not keep telling me I ought to cultivate my voice." At a club of young women in her church the voice was discovered.

Ruth was made to sing and thus attracted the attention of those who saw the promise of real talent. Suddenly she knew she had found out what she wished to do above all else but the joy in the discovery was dampened by the realization of the obstacles.

It cannot be said she never thought of using the money she had saved for a musical education, but she put the thoughts aside, telling herself she was selfish. Henry could make better use of the money. He was of the sort that demand full mental equipment to do big things. In high school he had gone far enough to realize what was before, had been stimulated to high ideals, and then had been put to work in a shop. In a few years there would be nothing left of his ambitions and the man who could have become a leader would be a little less than an ordinary workman because he would have no heart for his task.

He could not be making much money or he would have told her. She pictured him struggling along with the vision of his youth fading away and the fumes of work and discontent appearing on his face. Her Henry, the father of the twin for the other, Ruth, shared the harder and added to the store.

Two years passed and full approached with the opening of college. The forty-eighth week of work, too, and she had been offered a course there at half the regular fee. Ruth smiled as she started the envelope containing the draft to Henry for the sacrifice added to the pleasure of saving. She mailed the letter with a lighter heart than had been hers since the day of their separation.

In the fall when she returned, was a letter from Henry, Henry, who would be in the hard work and the year, for success. He would not be long, she was reading between the lines. He was so sure he would have her.

Which she opened this letter she hoped for out of it felt a check, and for the same amount as the draft she had enclosed for him.

"I came easy, $15, home," he wrote. "I am making good and really have more money than I need. I thought, maybe, you could use this to go on with your studies, you know, like we planned."

"Easy." She pictured him saving on food and clothing to give her this and she knew now why he had not gone to college to earn his way through. He had planned this all the time and had kept it a secret and the girl who had done precisely the same thing for her brother vowed she had never heard of anything so wonderful.

"I'll use his money and he'll use mine," she said, "and we will put each other through college."

Cheerfulness

What, indeed, does not that word "cheerfulness" imply? It means a contented spirit; it means a pure heart; it means a kind loving disposition; it means humility and clarity; it means a generous appreciation of others; and a modest opinion of self.—Phineas.

IN MEMORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

No bugles blared to herald out his birth,
No bonfires leaped above the sleeping earth,
No soft, luxurious cradle waited there
To hold his little body in its care.

HIS home was cold and cheerless like that cave
That sheltered One who came to love and save—
Humble and poor within that cabin rude,
He lay—the man to stir the multitude.

AND like that other One when manhood came
He sought not riches, power or fleeting fame;
His was a purpose noble, great and high:
To make a better world for you and I.

MAN of vision, sent to fill our need,
Humble of heart, mighty of strength and deed;
A grateful world gives thanks and praise today
Because a man like you has walked its way.

Herbert Hoover Wins Two More Degrees

Herbert Hoover, president-elect of the United States, who has the distinction of holding more honorary college degrees than any other man in the country, 20 to be exact, has also won the right to two additional degrees from the school of practical experience. These are Practical Farmer, and Experienced Poultry Raiser, according to Klager Bros., local hatcherymen, who operate the Klager's Hatchery.

Although little was said about it during the pre-election campaign, Mr. Hoover, in partnership with Ralph Merritt, owns a 1313-acre farm 250 miles from San Francisco. Here he raises crops valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. In addition the farm has 2500 laying hens, 200 sows and 150 cows.

Hatchery chicks are the nucleus from which the Hoover farm poultry flock was built, according to the Klager Bros. In accordance with the most modern farm poultry methods, and in the interest of economy and profits, the Hoover stock is replenished each year with baby chicks from hatcheries. Eggs are marketed regularly, the income from this source proving considerable, since only the best of high egg-laying stock is used to make up the laying flocks. The usual culling, and marketing of broilers adds another source of profit, and removes the "loafer hen" from the flocks, thus giving increased egg production at less feed cost.

"Purchase of chicks from laying stock of proved quality is fundamental in profitable farm poultry work, Klagers say. It has resulted, during the hatcheries of the country into an organization which has as its identifying slogan, "Hatchery Chicks for Greater Profits." These hatcheries are pledged to fair dealing with customers, and the production of quality chicks from stock of known profit-producing ability. Our own hatchery is a part of this organization."

DUNLOP'S SURETY BOND versus Mileage Guarantees

USUALLY the poorer the tire, the longer the mileage guarantee. What you really want is a certainty that your tires will keep rolling. That is what you get with this new Surety Bond. It's backed both by Dunlop and the American Surety Company. It is as clear as crystal. In effect it says that for the first 12 months we will take all responsibility for your Dunlops giving perfect service. It doesn't matter whether a tire fails through accident, or collision, or blow-out, or misalignment, or stone-bruise, or road-cuts, or rim-smash, or side-wall injuries, or tube-puncturing, or valve-tearing, or faulty toe-in, or under-inflation. We repair it free, OR you get a new tire at a reduced price, depending on the time you have run it. You just know the Surety Bond will be fulfilled. You just know that Dunlop Tires must be finer and stronger and better... other wise how could they be backed by a Surety Bond like this. Come in and read a copy. You will find it refreshing in its directness and its liberality.

Birthplace of Lincoln by No Means Squalid

And now there has been brought to light practical evidence that the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln was not the pitiful but of poverty—that has been described laughably by historians nor was the great emancipator of humble and poor parentage. A letter-book of Capt. John Dunlap, historic printer of Philadelphia, and wealthy landowner, compiled with a research made recently by a newspaperman of Kentucky, brings out plainly these refutations.

Since the recent discovery of the important work rendered during the Revolution by Captain Dunlap and Lieutenant Claypole, printers of the first daily newspaper in America and official printers of the Continental Congress, John Barr, Connecticut historian and a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, has followed the documents of Dunlap and revealed through his study many interesting facts of historical value.

The latest spurge of information that has come to notice is the letter-book of Dunlap, located by the Historical Society by the noted architect's great-grandson, George Chapman Dwight of Haymarket, Va., formerly of Philadelphia attorney. The letters are the correspondence of Dunlap and four other wealthy men who traveled to the very spot in Kentucky where Lincoln's family came from Virginia in order to invest in land there.

Dispels Poverty Legend.
By comparing the reports of these men to their Philadelphia associates and the documentary evidence presented in a book compiled by Louis A. Warner, a newspaperman of Hodgenville, Ky., Mr. Barr has drawn conclusions which he points out as adequate to dispel the popular belief in the poverty legend.

Abraham Lincoln needed no such tale to enhance his greatness. His rise from obscurity was mighty enough, starting from the Kentucky bluegrass frontier—it is not necessary to fable his beginning from a low level.

The correspondence Dunlap offers testifies to the richness of the land, the beautiful resources of the country and the splendid type of men who populated the section. John Dunlap, his brother, James, George Keightley, William Orr, the engineer, and Michael Phillips, then treasurer of the United States, were partners in purchasing 135,000 acres of the Kentucky land. Later, Dunlap's son visited Elizabethtown, ten miles from the Lincoln birthplace, to carry on his father's affairs.

At the same time that these men who made the long journey from Philadelphia via Pittsburgh, the Ohio river, Lexington, Ky., and Franklin, Ky., Abraham Lincoln, grandfather of his namesake, who became President of the United States, left his comfortable home in Virginia for the same purpose—to invest in the newly opened land of promise. Abraham Lincoln had extensive holdings in Virginia and purchased large tracts in the new country. He was not poor. The year was 1783.

Indians Killed Grandfather.

Again, the Philadelphians were linked with Abraham Lincoln in tragedy. The country was beautiful and rich, but dangerous from hostile Indians. Lincoln lost his grandfather, the same year that George Keightley was killed in a similar, perhaps the same, Indian massacre. James Dunlap tells the story of Keightley's death in a letter to his brother, who had returned to Philadelphia temporarily, with plans to remove his family to the new country. The letter, warning him to remain North, reads:

"Dear Brother: I am now on my way to the Falls. I am sorry I have some very unhappy news to tell you—that is the death of Mr. Keightley, who was killed by the Indians on the 12th of August 1783, within five miles of this place and 15 from the Falls—V. Daniels, the lawyer, was killed at the same instant. Mr. Johnston, the clerk of the lower county, was wounded; in the same company, Mr. Keightley was shot, tomahawked and scalped—They drive away all notions of returning to this country. All that is to be got in it is not equal to the danger that attends living in it."

When Abraham Lincoln met his death at the hands of the Indians, his oldest son, Mordecai, who was fifteen years old at the time, avenged his death as an Indian stooped over to take the revenge upon the Indians—Lincoln, father of the President, witnessed the scene. He was ten years old at the time. The entire estate went to Mordecai Lincoln, under the law of primogeniture, and consisted mainly of 8,544 acres of land in Virginia and in Kentucky—a considerable estate for "a drifting, moving people, struggling with poverty."

Father Owned Land.

So it was that Thomas Lincoln was to earn his livelihood. He rose from laborer to carpenter, surveyor, soldier, farmer and property owner. In Elizabethtown he was employed by Samuel Hayscraft, a substantial business man of the territory, who was a close friend of John Dunlap and who wrote many letters to the Philadelphians. There he met Nancy Hanks and later built the cabin where Lincoln, the President, was born—a new cabin and as well constructed as an average house of the time and section—on a farm, ten miles from Elizabethtown, at Hodgenville.

Deeds in the coming years show that the farm which has been identified as the site of Lincoln's birthplace and from which the cabin descended in the Lincoln memorial was taken consisted of more than 300 acres—a considerable plot, and not a few acres, as has been told. The farm was purchased in 1808 with $200 in cash and other subsequent payments. He owned, in addition, records show, 230 acres of Kentucky lands.—Leonard H. Arnold, in the Philadelphia Record.

To Symbolize Lincoln Spirit

In a clump of black oaks on a knoll in southwestern Indiana a monument of Indiana limestone is to be erected to perpetuate the memory of Abraham Lincoln and enshrine the humble grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln, his mother.

Thomas Hibben of New York, a native of Indiana, has been selected as the architect, and his plans have been endorsed by the Indiana Lincoln union, an organization of nationally known Hoosiers.

The edifice will be a departure from the usual sophisticated type of architecture, Mr. Hibben explained. "We seek to create a symbol of the great power and gentleness that was Lincoln," said the architect. "Such gentleness is not negative, but infinite and human. Such power is the nobility of strength, the understanding of all humanity in its reality."

The memorial will be approximately 200 feet in each direction, comprising a series of four open-air courts of simple masonry surrounding a main building from which will rise a shaft 150 feet high.

The grounds surrounding the memorial will be landscaped to reproduce the scene as it was in the forty-two years the boy Lincoln lived and toiled there.

Lincoln's Friend

He labored in a lonely field. Yet sometimes I have thought He glimpsed a figure distant there As patiently he wrought Through aching stillnesses, where He toiled—and murmured not.

How often in the anguished hours He felt and understood The Lonely One who watched afar So sorrowful, and good, The Silent Friend whose presence there Gave solace to his mood.

Surely he felt him near, when men Forsook and fled the place! When all he knew of comfort Was in that changeless grace! Surely, in his Gethsemane He must have seen His face! Laura Simmons in the Boston Globe.

C. C. SCOUTEN

The following was taken from a Niagara Falls newspaper of last week Wednesday:
Chester Charles Scouten, 72 years old, a veteran employe of the New York Central, died today at his home, 2218 Pierce avenue, after a week's illness from a complication of diseases.

Mr. Scouten was born in Grass Lake, Michigan, and when a young man entered on his career as a railroadman. He entered the employ of the New York Central railroad forty years ago and 38 years ago moved to Niagara Falls. For many years he served as conductor on freight and passenger trains running out of this city and Buffalo. Three years ago he retired from the service. Mr. Scouten had a large number of friends in Niagara Falls who will be grieved to hear of his death.

He is survived by his wife, Clara; two sons, Robert and Earl; and one daughter, Mrs. Adeline Williamson, all of this city, and two brothers, Thomas of this city, and Benjamin of Albany.

The funeral will be held from the family home Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. C. Crofts officiating. Interment will be in Elmwood cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Scouten resided on a farm they purchased at Wm. H. Croft at North Lake, for a few years, and moved from there to their present home. They have a number of relatives residing in this vicinity and were frequent visitors here. The late Mrs. Clara Scouten and Mrs. Scouten were sisters.

Isolating Situation

Probably a goodly woman in Missouri recently was the one who took her husband by the ear and led him over to the piano to play a tune. Now her husband made out that useful instrument with a cigarette stub after then couldn't find the home, Kansas City Star.

Many beautiful gifts were presented the honor guest, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

DR. GEORGE A. ROWE

Dr. George A. Rowe, aged 70 years, died at his home in Stockbridge, Tuesday, January 29, 1929. He was born in Lyndon township, and was a son of George and Adelaide Rowe, being one of nine children.

Dr. Rowe had practiced medicine in Stockbridge forty years. He was vice president of the Stockbridge Savings Bank, a member of the Masonic Lodge and of the M. E. church.

He is survived by the widow, three brothers, E. E. Rowe of Lyndon, Dillon Rowe of Stockbridge, two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Bott of Lyndon and Mrs. Louella Pickell of Unadilla.

The funeral was held from the home Friday. Interment in Stockbridge cemetery.

Those from Chelsea who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rowe, Mrs. Elizabeth Runciman and Mrs. Agnes Runciman.

MRS. ELIA H. BABCOCK

Mrs. Elia H. Babcock, wife of Colin E. Babcock, died Saturday morning, February 2, at her home in Grass Lake. Mrs. Babcock was the daughter of Aaron and Marcia (Hatch) Lawrence, and was born near Ypsilanti, November 18, 1843.

She was united in marriage to Colin E. Babcock in 1874 and they were residents of Chelsea for many years before moving to Grass Lake.

She is survived by the husband and one son, Lawrence L., at home. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Foster's funeral parlors, Grass Lake, and the body was brought to Chelsea for burial in Oak Grove cemetery.

Amusing Weather Prophets

The old saying has been regarded by the expert people as a reliable weather prophet. When kitty rushes under the table, the cat is saying "breeze" in the air, that is, "breeze" has wind in the air, it's going to blow. Fishermen declare that the trout and whitefish are a weather prophet cannot compare with the cat. A net put in the fish North was such accurate, they assert, that it saved the lives of all on board three times. A float in the water of a storm. The fish would run to and fro on deck, splashing and leaping. The fishermen made their predictions accordingly, and on each occasion the forecast failed to make a mistake.

Plane Successfully Used in Seeding Grass

Portland, Ore.—Success of grass seeding experiments carried on by airplane over a 1,000-acre area in Coos county, Oregon, may result in the seeding of large pasture areas along the Pacific coast from the air in 1929.

An excellent stand of grass, evenly distributed over the area, was obtained at approximately one-third of the expense incurred by hand seeding. Harold R. Adams and N. W. Perkins, commercial flyers at Lytle Point, set a record for speed in seeding grass lands when they covered the 1,000 acres in slightly more than ten hours.

The idea, which was conceived by Dr. Earl G. Lowe, a physician at Coquille, Ore., and one of the stockholders in the Coquille Valley Sheep and Wool company, may be extended to other pasture lands next year.

Using a specially constructed hopper to hold the seed in front of the cockpit, the valve opening of which was controlled by the pilot in the rear cockpit, the pilot was able to seed strips 90 feet wide flying 70 miles an hour from an altitude of 500 feet.

Largest Fixed Star
The Naval Observatory says that Alpha Scorpii (Antares) is the largest fixed star of which we have reasonably accurate measurements. Its diameter is about 400,000,000 miles. Its volume is 100,000,000 times as large as the sun and 125,000,000,000 times as large as the earth. Its distance is probably 35 light years. This distance is 20,000,000 times as great as that of the sun from the earth.

Expert Directs Opening of Safe by Telephone

Baker, Ore.—A lock expert, listening over the telephone to the almost imperceptible sounds of falling tumblers in a safe door, directed the opening of a strong box here.

Miss Kathleen Kivett, office employee, telephoned Charles Braun, the expert, in Weiser, Idaho, nearly 50 miles away, that she had lost the safe combination. She said Braun told her to put the mouthpiece of the telephone next to the safe door and to turn the dial. By the sound of the tumblers as directed her hand and the door was opened in less than five minutes.

Irish Students Find Prehistoric Remains

Dublin.—Skeletons of prehistoric men have been found in 3,000-year-old limestone caves festooned with stalagmites at Kilgarry, County Waterford, Ireland.

Two complete skeletons and remains of skulls, leg bones and finger bones have been discovered during excavations by university students.

"The caves still bear traces of habitation."

Near by have been found a bronze knife, eight inches long, a bronze pin, beads, bored bones' teeth for neck wear, a quantity of pottery and two millstones for grinding corn.

Gum So Popular Rumania Bars It

Bucharest.—The government has ordered the withdrawal of all American gum-vending machines from the tobacco stand at Bucharest. The official excuse for the action is that the sale of gum was found to be interfering with the sale of tobacco, a government monopoly.

Billy's Showy Car

By CLARISSA MACKIE
(Copyright.)

IT WAS at Mrs. Granville's tea that Ann Fordyce first met Billy Agnew. Miss Granville presented a grave-eyed young man with a stern, handsome face. Agnew looked at the famous Miss Fordyce without curiosity, as if all her millions mattered nothing, although to lovely Ann the name of Agnew suggested dim recollection of a financial crash and broken fortunes.

"I saw you yesterday, Billy," declared Mrs. Granville as she gave him a cupful of tea.

He looked vaguely at her. "I was in so many places yesterday," he apologized.

Polly Granville laughed. "This was at forty-fifth and Broadway, and a policeman was handing you a little slip—'you were in your car'."

"Oh, I remember," grinned Billy Agnew.

"One usually remembers such things," smiled Ann.

He looked at her casually; then his eyes seemed dazzled.

"Another fellow," thought Ann scornfully, "probably worried to death over his debts—racing around in a showy car and—"

Some one called Ann out of her reverie, another brought her more tea and cakes, and others crowded out Billy Agnew, who presently vanished altogether.

"Billy had to go—has a lot of engagements," he kept his promise of coming to my tea," said Polly Granville to Ann when the two were alone.

"Is it a privilege to have him at one's teas?" asked Ann lightly, though she was interested in the grave young man.

"I consider it an honor," said Polly earnestly, and Ann would not question her further.

The next day she lunched at the divination, and because her own car had broken down she sent for a taxi-cab. One of the hotel's chauffeurs handed some dark little cars-waited here. As it rolled up, Park avenue toward home she happened to glimpse at the profile of the driver.

It was Billy Agnew!

This was his car! A taxicab driver, he had appeared at Polly Granville's tea—was it one Polly's penance? But so many people had recognized him, and they appeared to like him. He was like a, I

Does drive a taxi—It must be passing for his friends.

"Pshaw! Ann, don't you know he does it because he needs money? When his father was and died suddenly, do you know the limousine was the only thing after everything else was sold? Is an only son, his mother left his cousins were frantic because might disgrace them, but he blood—he's studying nights to his law course."

"It was after midnight when was awakened from sleep by the of her guest—clad in a scar kimono, her dark eyes tragic, excitement."

"What is the matter? Be demanded Mrs. Granville.

"Come into my room, please, sitting before the fire, Miss Fordyce faced her denials."

"Tell me, Polly, is Billy Agnew son of that Agnew who was in my father's mines?"

"Yes," said Polly bluntly.

"Was it something my father—that ruined John Agnew?"

"I don't think your father he was sick—and you were with him. But your Uncle who also owned the mines, out Mr. Agnew—I don't know the details, but it was when your Uncle Martin was a there is no one left save Ann slowly."

"I was sure you didn't know," said Polly scornfully, "and remember a good scold, and so proud take a cent from you!"

Polly was right. All the eyes and judges argued with new to give up his taxicab money—that Ann wanted—half of what she possessed was more than was due, he abdicated. "Wait until I talk then I'll talk about it."
