MANY men, who later became prominent in the affairs of the nation, were students at an academy conducted at Lodi Plains by Professor Nutting between the years 1847 and 1857. Students were enrolled from all parts of the country.

The Family Circle

Some Dads and Mothers seem to feel
When they sit down to eat a meal,
Their little folks would spoil it.
The tablecloth from which they eat
Is, oh, so dainty, clean and neat—
And little hands might soil it!
The parents, though, of course, are proud
Of Little Sis and Brother—
But yet the tykes are not allowed To eat with Dad and Mother.

And so the children eat alone;
And they'll recall it, when they're grown—
When they look back to days of old
The dinner-hour, for them, will hold Few memories they will treasure
The dinner-hour that they should prize.
As one when life was splendid—
I'd have the fear they might despise
As one when smiles were ended!

My little tykes, I must confess,
The tablecloth are apt to mess—
But I proclaim—what of it!
A spotless cloth is nice to see.
But ours from spots is seldom free—
But even so, I love it!
And so, when we sit down to dine,
It's not just me and Mother—
But with us, too—their eyes ashine—
Are Little Sis and Brother.

Christian Symbol in Old Turkish Mosque

A beautiful mosaic of the Virgin Mary has been found in a Turkish mosque in Constantinople. For 500 years it had been hidden under whitewash.

The workmen who were replastering the interior of the mosque reported the glint of gold which they had uncovered to the religious authorities, who notified the National museum, whose experts were sent at once to complete the uncovering of the mosaic.

Once disclosed in all its glory of form and color, the next step was to ask Ankara what to do about this picture of the mother of Christ dead in her bliss surrounded by saints and angels high on the wall of a Moslem mosque.

Ankara, seat of revolutionary Turkey, replied that the mosaic was to remain where it was and was to be preserved with the utmost care.

This for the first time in history Moslems worship beneath the shadow of images, the representation of which has for centuries been absolutely prohibited by the Moslem religion.

Watch That "Stepped Out" Pleased Leslie

Little Leslie Luckbur had been given a beautiful watch—which, by the way, was his first—as a Christmas present.

Funnily enough, he did not seem very excited about it, and managed to restrain his enthusiasm in a very marked manner. However, he went out to a party, and returned in tremendous spirits, exclaiming:

"I've got a ripping watch!"

"I'm so glad you like it," said his mother, duly pleased at his joy which up to now he had concealed.

"Yes," he continued, "it's half an hour ahead of Lew's watch, and it's a whole hour ahead of the church clock. It beats them all!"—London Answers.

No Use for Them

"No," said the suburban farmer, "you won't do any business here, me lad. I've finished with labor-saving machines. I don't hold with 'em."

The young traveler could not help but smile.

"Look here," continued the farmer, pointing to a typewriter, "take a look at that. That's a writin' machine."

THE WISDOM OF SAFETY

Safety means saving human life. Obeying the simple rules of safety, however, in this state last year nearly cut down the number of accidents in one-third.

Through this reduction in accidents, industry was able to pay larger compensation to the injured worker without the burden becoming oppressive.

Employer and employee have an equal interest in the work of accident prevention. Safeguards should be thrown around the worker, who in turn should exercise caution throughout his entire working day.

Only fools are unmindful. No one wants to be placed in that class.

WANTED—MORE SMILES

What the world wants is more smiles. Not the cheap, tailor-made, superficial, gummy, thin-skinned, diplomatic grin; but the good, wholesome, big-hearted smile that leaves no room to doubt its genuineness. That kind of a smile is always at a premium. They are deeply rooted, hence they draw nourishment from the innermost recesses of a warm heart, kept so by the reflected rays of the sunny countenance they light up.

Smile in the street, in the office, in the workshop, in the kitchen, in the parlor, in the school room, in the playground, everywhere. Smiles are the sunshine that comes bursting thru dispersing clouds, revealing heaven's own blue.

J. W. Burgess.

SAFETY IN INDUSTRY

The conceiving and carrying out of the present safety program of American industry is an outstanding illustration of the way in which modern men have been translating their morality into terms of the machine age.

In 1904 it was estimated that 3,000,000 persons were ill at all times. This meant an annual loss of 13 working days per person. Since 1909 we have cut this loss to something near eight days per person.

I believe our machine civilization will rectify the blunders it has made in its early youth, and rectify them on its own initiative, without the outside assistance of reformers. In other words, I believe that the much abused principal of enlightened self-interest will lead the captains of machine industry to do the things that will make our civilization a livable civilization, equal in human-beauties and benefits to any civilization that has preceded it.—Glenn Frank, President, The University of Wisconsin.

A SIXTH OF YOUR TIME

You should be interested in your government.

You work a day a week for it. The expenses of the government, national, state and local, now consume a sixth of the national income. That means that on the whole everybody works one day in six for his country. And that day is not Saturday with the afternoon off.

Many people do not give a sixth of their income to the government. Those who own no property pay a smaller portion. We know of people who work all of the time for the nation, pay out all that they earn for taxes upon lands.

Present the arguments of taxation and immediately there is explanation. The national government says that it does not take much. The state government says that it consumes but a few mills, county and township levies are small, village and school-district expenses are larger, but only a proportion. The high taxes are made from the combination of them all and the citizen pays for everything from a rake for the village to a battleship for the nation.

We are not saying that such a condition does not have its desirable features. The government of the United States, national, state and local, is as the public has made it. The public has demanded what we have today and the public is paying for it. No doubt, but on the whole, the nation is getting value for what it pays. Any time that the public wishes to change the condition or proportion it lies within its power to do so.—Grand Rapids (Minn.) Herald Review.

OUR FUTURE HEROES

As a nation we deplore war, yet continue to raise to stardom those who practice it as a profession. Heroes of peace many times remain unknown and unused.

It is now proposed to reverse this ages-old custom by putting peace accomplishments ahead of those gained upon battlefields. It is true that the nation needs its defenders, but it also needs those willing to sacrifice in the interest of science. Both are necessary for our national progress and security.

Teaching children through history books to reverse the heroes of peace, while minimizing deeds of valor on battlefields, is said to be the purpose of an entire new course in the study of national and world history now being prepared for use in the school systems of this country.

The idea appears both sound and sensible. We have been in a habit of placing too much stress upon those who walked to glory through seas of blood, forgetting the heroes of science, struggling to give us longevity and comfort.

Such a change will not dim the lustre of those who have already walked across the pages of history, but it will give encouragement to those engaged in prolonging the life of the human race and providing new things for its creative cohort.

Safe Drivers

A Melbourne man recently telegraphed from Sydney that he was about to leave by train for home. The message put up a stiff contest, and had the passenger walked from Spencer street would undoubtedly have won the race.

He took a taxi (in my opinion, an unfair advantage) and beat the wire home by a clear ten minutes. He was explaining to his wife that the telegram should have reached her the previous evening when his small daughter spoke up: "Daddy should have brought his telegram with him, those silly people might have lost it."—Sydney Bulletin.

Chinese Superstition

There are towers in Shanghai where men watch for fires. When one is discovered the fire-bell is rung. When the old custom house was built a large clock was placed in its tower. For some weeks after this clock began to strike the hours there were very few if any fires.

The Chinese said it was because the fire-god thought that every time the clock struck there was a fire announced, so he could rest without helping. All these things seem ridiculous to us but are very real to the Chinese.

New York's Early Days

An article published in the Christian Advocate says: "At the beginning of the Nineteenth century the commercial metropolis of the United States occupied only the lower end of Manhattan island, what is now 'town' being still made up of scattered farms and country estates, including the little village of Harlem. The actual measurements of the city proper are given as: three miles in length (from the Battery to East 125th street), one and a half miles in width, and eight miles in circumference."

Question And Answer Dept.

NOTICE—If your question does not appear below, it is because it is awaiting its turn, and will be published eventually.

Ques.—I would like to ask through your paper about what years were the rails on the Michigan Central railroad made of wood with a strap-iron on the top and what was the shape and size of the wood?

Ans.—In 1821 the Detroit & St.
Joseph railroad, now known as the Michigan Central railroad, was chartered with a capital of $1,000,000 to run directly through Washtenaw county. The road was completed from Detroit to Ypsilanti by the state in January 1839. In October 1839 the road was completed to Ann Arbor.
The track at the time the road was built was laid on oak stringers 57 on top of the ties with the bottom of the stringers notched to fit over the ties.
The facing of the stringers was a steel strap three and three-quarters inches in width and one-half inch in thickness. The section men walked over the road bed every day carrying a pack of spikes and maul and replaced all spikes that had become displaced.

Ques.—It is known there are some quacks among medical doctors, so I would like to ask you if there are any quacks among beauty doctors?

Ans.—Evidently so, judging from some of the patients we meet.

Ques.—What species of snakes are the longest, and what length do they get to be?

Ans.—The anacondas and the regupythons are two largest species of snakes. The longest snake captured of which we have any reliable record was a regu python captured in Malaysia and shipped to Hamburg, Germany. This serpent died immediately after reaching port and was stretched on the deck of the steamship and measured by Dr. Arthur Irwin, then director of the Philadelphia Zoological Society. It measured a few inches more than thirty feet in length and weighed nearly 300 pounds.

Ques.—Will you please kindly answer in your paper how old monkeys live?

Ans.—From 12 to 15 years is old age for monkeys. Of course, longevity depends to some extent on the species.
Occasionally a monkey will live to be more than 20 years of age. A Moor monkey recently died in the National Zoological Park at the age of 21 years.

Ques.—I have always been quite curious to know why some girls are called "flappers." I will appreciate the information through your question column.

Ans.—"Flapper" as the slang designation for girls of a certain type was borrowed from England, where it was applied to young girls who defied conventions by bobbing their hair, dressing in boyish costumes, smoking cigarettes and substituting for men in driving trucks and other labor. The term came into general use in the United States about 1920, when "Flappers and Philosophers," a novel by Francis S. Fitzgerald, was first published. Gradually the term has come to mean any worldly wise, venturesome girl who goes to extremes to attract attention, especially in matters of dress. This origin of "flapper," however, is disputed.

Ques.—I would like to ask you when
is the best hog-killing time?

Ans.—In the winter unless you mean some automobile drivers—then it's any time.

Ques.—Are there more than one cable between America and Europe?

Ans.—Yes. At the present time there are nine cables between Europe and America. The tenth cable is now being laid by the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Ques.—Can you answer in your interesting question column what language Adam and Eve spoke, and how did they know the meaning of each word they said? How did the language originate?

Ans.—We do not know. The scientists say that primitive man sang,
grunted or roared to express emotion,
just as the lower animals do now.
Tongues of prehistoric men could not form words and consequently the initial communications between members of the human race were mostly according to British scientists, that if by gesture. The human being found that if he sang, grunted or roared while using his lips or tongue for gestures, that there was a mysterious effect on the vocal part of the conversation. Others came to recognize the mouth pantomime by ear, and could even understand in the dark or when the pantomime was out of sight of the one listening. At this stage, according to the scientists, human speech originated.

Ques.—Can you tell me when I can get a good siren for my car?

Ans.—Yes, but we don't know good she'll be; just state whether want a blonde or a brunette.

Ques.—My beau calls on me often. Should I kiss him every time he leaves after calling on me?

Ans.—You should not kiss him all unless you are his fiancée. You should not even receive his company
if you are not of a marriageable age.

Ques.—I am deeply interested in your question department and would like to ask you how much of a salary
the Pope gets? I have heard that it is over $10,000,000.

Ans.—No. The Pope gets

Advertising Increases Business At Kroger's

T. Cobb, manager of the local Kroger grocery, announces that he has been awarded first prize in a contest which the company conducted in this district in an effort to increase their sales volume.
Under the management of Mr. Cobb, sales have increased 58 per cent during the five week period—beginning February 2 and ending March 9. Most of the credit for this increase, Mr. Cobb states, is given to the consistent advertising campaign which has been carried on through the Standard, conveying their message of special prices to hundreds of families in this community each week.

Brotherhood Plans To Extend

An interesting meeting of the tenaw County Brotherhood, Sunday at Christ's church. New plans of service were started.

The program of the afternoon, stressing the meaning of Brotherhood, given by W. a member of Christ's church, was followed by special music by R. E. Jerle who was for and gave two numbers, the Irish song "Mother Mac".
Short talks were then given by representatives from many of the churches of Ann Arbor including Salvation Army, Evangelical, Episcopal, Presbyterian and Methodist.

A fine fellowship prevailed. Leon Hartaway, Ypsilanti, Methodist church, summarized the purpose and program of the Brotherhood.
After a lunch the cabinet was called and a larger program of service was planned. Two important committees were appointed, one to plan evangelistic services for summer resorts this summer.

Fine talks were given in the evening by two former presidents of the Brotherhood, W. A. Goings and Oscar Smith, Willis. They stressed the importance of the slogan "Service for the King" through a united and interdenominational movement.
A resolution was unanimously passed expressing the opposition to hunting on Sunday in the county. This is a question to be voted on at the April election.

The main address of the evening was by Rev. A. B. Van Schoik, Adrian, now a farm manager of the Farm's Operating Corporation. His address was mainly taken up in answering the question "Why Am I a Christian?"

EYESIGHT

Optical Lenses

There was recently completed, Washington, D. C., a telescope lens which had taken over two years to manufacture.

This was considered quite an achievement; at indeed it was, but compared with the human eye it is really insignificant for the eye contains an adjustable lens more intricate and far more valuable than any telescope or camera lens ever devised.

By means of involuntary muscular control, the eye focuses automatically to that we see nearby objects, as well as those at a distance, clearly.

A telescope lens can be replaced if necessary—but the eye cannot. Give your eyes proper care by corrective glasses if necessary and periodic examination anyway.

Beryllium

The bureau of mines says that beryllium is a rare metal and is found in considerable quantity only in one mineral, beryl, which contains only about 5 per cent of beryllium.

The process of extracting the metal is expensive and difficult. At present it is quoted at about $200 per pound. There is no market except for experimental purposes.

If there were a definite market it is possible that it could be made for $15 or less per pound. It is not magnetic. It is a fair conductor of electricity, and is not stronger than good steel. As it is easily oxidized by heat, it would be difficult to cast.

Modern Methods

Muddyville was one of the very latest model villages, and all the houses were brand new.

A prospective resident was being shown over a small "old-world cottage" she hoped to buy by a very enthusiastic estate agent.

"But where is the kitchen?" asked the woman after making a tour of the place.

The estate agent consented to his plan of the first floor. Then he looked up quickly.

"Oh, you promise that yourself?" he answered blandly. "Any really good shop will sell you a combination kitchenette and dining table."

Ambergis Loses in Value
While ambergris is still quite valuable, it does not possess the value it did years ago. There is no demand now for it that there used to be. Ambergis was chiefly used in the most fragrant incense of the East.

From the embalming stuff, but the advanced scientific chemistry in recent years has not only made possible the embalming of the human body, but also to produce artificially other and better aromas at the one-hundredth part of the cost of ambergris.
