

Speed Up Your Egg Factory

Your hens are your egg-making machines. They turn your low-priced feed into high-priced eggs. Keep those machines in order. A hen must produce ten times her weight in eggs every year to be really profitable. Hens must eat liberally. Their feed is the raw material. Look to their appetites, their digestion, their health, their condition. Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-A-Cea puts hens in laying trim.

Standard Starts New Matrimonial Bureau

We are thoroughly convinced that a new matrimonial agency in the mid-west is a necessity when a Massachusetts man finds it necessary to write to ask us to find for him, through the advertising columns of our paper, a life partner or help-mate, who is well financed and whose specifications measure up to quite a high standard. The letter does not state the reason for the necessity of searching for a wife so far from his native state of Massachusetts, but we take for granted that this particular gentleman has heard in some way or other, of the beauty for which ladies in this section of Michigan are noted.

Nevertheless, here is the letter: "Wanted: To correspond with a lady between the age of 30 and 40 years; one that lives in the country, with means. I am 52 years of age, 6 feet in height, athletic build, do not smoke, or drink of good habits and called good-looking; dress well. I would prefer one that plays some instrument as I have a wonderful voice. Must be English of birth, and Protestant. Object—marriage. (Signed) James A. Roberts, Elms, 3 Revere St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Former Chelsea Couple Celebrate Anniversary

A recent issue of a Galt (California) newspaper contained a clipping which tells of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Williams. The couple were married in Chelsea on November 25, 1879, Thanksgiving day. They were residents here for a number of years and Mr. Williams was station agent for some time. The item follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williams, who reside west of Galt, celebrated their golden anniversary on Thanksgiving Day, when a large group of friends gathered in their home that evening in their honor. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were married on November 25, 1879, at Chelsea, Michigan, on a Thanksgiving Day.

At a late hour a chicken supper was served and a golden gift presented the couple by A. J. Marcoe in behalf of the assembled guests. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Newman, the latter a girlhood friend of Mrs. Williams known in Chelsea, Mich., as Miss Kate Canfield.

On November 22nd, Valley Oaks Grange tendered Mr. and Mrs. Williams a happy surprise and presented them with a suitable gift of gold. On Thanksgiving Day their children assembled to celebrate the occasion with a turkey dinner. The children and their families present were: Ed Williams of Sacramento, Roy Williams of Oakland, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bush of Galt, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Patterson and son and daughter of Galt.

Three Games Played At H. S. Gym Friday

In a close and interesting game Friday evening, Van's Five nosed out the High School Reserves by a 19-18 score. The team managed and captained by Van along with four of the high school alumni were nearly defeated by the Reserves. At the half the score was 8-5 in the Reserves' favor. Up to this point of the game the reserves were outplaying their opponents. In the 3rd period Van's team rushed ahead and the quarter ended 15-10 in favor of Van's Five. In the last quarter the Reserves came back strong and scored 4 field goals only to lose by a point. Of the three games played that evening, this was the best and the fans were well satisfied.

The high school girls defeated the Alumni by a good score. All during the game the girls were ahead. The Alumni had a good team with the best material they could obtain.

In the last quarter the Alumni seemed to get going and dropped several field goals and were the better team in this final period.

The last game of the evening was between Fahrner's and Steger's teams. The former's team were victors. Fahrner's team was well organized and outplayed Steger's quintet. Steger's team, like the other teams, made a strong come back in the last quarter and scored several baskets.

The official opening of the season comes this Friday night with the Reserves, the girls and the high school varsity all playing three teams from Manchester Hig. These will be three good games. Come and boost your teams.

How to Cure Anarchy He and She Ran Away Adopt, Adapt, Improve Lindbergh Has a Statue

A boy of seventeen, calling himself a Communist, appeared before Magistrate Substant, who said to him: "What you need is for me to have you in a two-by-four room. What I would do to you? I'd broken your eyes and give you some real American spirit."

That, you will admit, is a perfect plan for discouraging the spirit of anarchy, which disregards established law and legal procedure.

In New Jersey the wife of a Baptist clergyman runs away with a chicken farmer, member of the congregation.

She advises her husband to get a divorce. The chicken farmer leaves directions for the care of chickens and his three children.

This is shocking news, but we should read it having in mind the great number of clergymen's wives and chicken farmers that stay faithfully at home, leading monotonous lives with little thanks to the clergymen's wives from the congregation and often few eggs for the chicken farmer from his hens. Faithfulness is the rule and is never advertised.

The British know positively that a war doesn't pay. They face a "stump year" in industry. Losses in stocks, heavy taxation, labor in power, are some things that worry Britishers that were rich and now face poor.

Across the channel in France, on the other hand, everything is booming, nobody idle. And the French are persistently drawing on Britain's supply of gold.

New York's nocturnal officers, against the world's richest, wildest city, say you must drink in this battle, or do your drinking not more than five minutes away from a doctor.

Adopt, adapt, improve. Those three words, recommended by the prince of Wales to his fellow-countrymen, might well be adopted, adapted and improved in this country.

The young prince, one of the most useful, hard-working citizens of Great Britain, said to British industrialists: "We British think we are very efficient, and we are at the head of the world in lots of things, but to keep in the van we must be conscious of that."

Very valuable thing—the knowledge that we learn something new every day. To put it in three words: We must learn to adapt, to adapt and to improve.

We Americans think we are very efficient. In fact, we are absolutely sure of it. But we are not always "adapt, adapt, improve."

For instance, railroad managers of the United States stand looking, doing nothing, while automobile omnibuses and trucks took away some of their most profitable business.

They woke up late to that situation, and they are not thoroughly awake yet.

St. Louis wants to erect a statue to Lindbergh. It is unnecessary. It is too soon, and who in the country could make it good enough except the Lindberghs, and for the time, has given up sculpture.

Lindbergh possesses now a monument sufficient in picture in every American mind of a youth sitting in a small box with wings, leaving New York alone, crossing the ocean from New York to Paris.

When you have that kind of monument you don't need anything of marble or bronze.

Helen Wills, good California girl, is now Mrs. Frederick S. Moody, Jr. He is a Californian also.

That wedding interests Americans, all fond of Helen Wills and proud of her. It also interests engineers, who believe that a super-race could be built up by proper marriage selection.

Fortunately, they are wrong about that.

A super-race is being produced, not as birds of breeding horses or dogs, but produced by intense affection and concentration, which more than anything else decides the qualities of the child.

For other details read the first chapter of "Tristan Shandy."

"Fly, Red Eagle of the Tyrol" is the name of a German play. Italy wants a scene changed in which youth of German blood tells how Italian gendarmes shot his mother. Germany will oblige: the play will be toned down.

The incident is interesting, because applause that greets the play and patriotic utterances shows how easily a new war could start, once the nations get their breath.

Criticizing installment payments for automobiles and other expensive units has gone by. Without such payments industries would dwindle.

The wise man, knowing that he will not live forever, pays for a thing and enjoys it at the same time.

People Are Urged To Feed Starving Birds

"Feed the birds," is the appeal made by the Department of Conservation to all friends of birds, whether they are bird hunters or not; for at present starvation faces the pheasants, quail and other ground feeding birds. Unless many people establish feeding stations at once and maintain them during the next three months, our loss of bird life may easily be so great that it will take years to make good the shrinkage.

In the southern third of the state, rains followed by cold weather and heavy snows have either buried such food as weed seeds, wild fruit, etc., or coated them thick with ice. Consequently there is little if anything for the birds to eat except what they obtain about farm buildings or at shocks of corn which have been left in the fields or at artificial feeding stations.

Artificial feeding stations are unnecessary where such corn is available, but a few shocks should be opened up so that the birds will not have to break ice to get at the grain, it is said. But elsewhere, corn, wheat or other grains should be put out, either in naturally protected places or under artificial shelters.

Feeding stations should be located at swamp borders, in brush along fences, or in similar places, which the birds are known to visit. The snow may be swept or dug away and the grain scattered on the cleared space, but such stations should be tended after each fall of snow. "Lean-to" shelters can be provided by arranging poles against trees or fences and covering them with burlap, brush, corn stalks, weeds or evergreens. Pheasants or quail which have become accustomed to feeding at a station, will dig through as much as three inches of snow to get at the feed, so it is unnecessary to construct elaborate, complete snowproof shelters. Feed hoppers or other feeding boxes are often used but are not essential.

As a satisfactory feeding method for remote stations which can be seen seldom, the Department recommends putting ear corn on spikes driven through pieces of board or poles which can be leaned against fence posts or trees so that some of the corn will be above the surface even though new snow should cover the lower ears.

Sportsmen's clubs and all conservation organizations are especially urged by the Department to realize the seriousness of the situation and to do as extensive and as thorough winter feeding as can be managed. Interested people who cannot spare the time to tend feeding stations can help by supplying feed for those who are willing and able to do the actual work, it was suggested. The Department stressed the necessity of immediate action in establishing feeding stations, for in this cold weather, the birds can survive only a few days without food.

Copies of a circular giving detailed suggestions on building and maintaining feeding stations will be mailed by the Department upon request.

County Farmers Close Farm Account Records

Twenty Washtenaw county farmers will close their farm account records, which are being kept in cooperation with the County Agricultural Extension office and Farm Management department, Michigan State College.

H. A. Berg, specialist for the college, has been cooperating with H. S. Osler, county agricultural agent, in conducting a farm account project in Washtenaw county during the past year. Early in the year of 1929 the cooperators met with Mr. Berg at Ann Arbor in a farm account school. At this time complete farm inventories were entered in the record books, and the method for keeping the records was carefully explained. Farm visits were made during the summer, and all books were checked. On January 7th and 8th Mr. A. W. Wright, farm management department, will meet all cooperators and close their books for the year 1929, and assist in starting new accounts for 1930.

On January 8th, Mr. Berg will hold a special farm account school, meeting with all new cooperators for 1930. A correct entering of the opening inventory, and proper understanding of the method greatly simplifies the keeping of farm records says Mr. Berg.

There was much interest in this project last year, according to Mr. Osler. He advises that he will have a limited supply of record books available at the County Agricultural Extension office, Court House, Ann Arbor, for dialogue pictures, in a small town out. Those who are unable to attend the side of Los Angeles, the audience vice-who desire to keep records during 1930.

Farm records in Washtenaw county will begin January 1st, and it is very important that a complete inventory of all real estate, livestock, feed, grain, supplies and machinery be made at the beginning and at the end of the year. These items, together with the receipts and expenses for the year properly classified, provide the essential information for an analysis of the year's farm business.

The farm account school will be held January 8th, in the Supervisors' room, Court House, Ann Arbor, beginning at 10:00 a. m. Any person desiring to start a farm account record for 1930, and wanting more definite information regarding this project, are welcome to attend.

Chinatown Is Locale For "Welcome Danger"

Harold Lloyd, who is recognized all over the world as a past master at putting thrills on the screen, outdoor himself in his first all-talking picture, "Welcome Danger," which comes to the Majestic Theatre, Ann Arbor, beginning Saturday, January 4, for one week. Underground Chinatown in San Francisco provides the setting for the picture, which are guaranteed to send and his new leading lady, Barbara Kent, in other portions of the picture. Lloyd has a habit of making his gags appear plausible, and in "Welcome Danger" he has his audience fighting with him through every foot of the smashing finish, so sincere is the action and setting.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I would like to ask through your question and answers what "poppycock" means?
Ans.—It means a rooster who has become a father.

Ques.—To settle an argument will you please answer how many years George Washington lived in the White House?

Ans.—None. He never lived in the White House, for the obvious reason that the mansion was not completed until a few days before his death in 1799. President Adams was the first to reside in the White House.

Ques.—Were the Christians massacred by the Mohammedans when they captured Jerusalem? In what year did this occur?

Ans.—No. Omar, the Arab caliph, admonished his troops not to disturb the Christians and their churches, and also to refrain from pillaging the city of Jerusalem. This was in 637 A.D.

Ques.—Can you answer if polygamy is practiced by the Mormons in the State of Utah? Also whether Brigham Young had any children?

Ans.—The plurality of wives is contrary to United States law and therefore it is not practiced among the Mormons of Utah. Brigham Young was the father of 56 children by many of his wives.

Ques.—Can you tell me the origin of the expression "Every cloud has its silver lining"?

Ans.—It is not known who originated that expression in those exact words. It is believed that it sprang from Milton's "Comus," when he uses this expression: "A subtle cloud turn forth its silver lining to the night."

Ques.—May I ask you if alligators are good to eat, and are they classed as fish or flesh?

Ans.—Alligators are good to eat for those that like the taste. The meat is white and tender, but it has a musky taste which most people do not like. They are classed as animals, but being amphibious, they inhabit swamps and marshy land.

Ques.—Will you please be kind enough to answer in your good paper why electric railway lines are called "interurban"?

Ans.—This is a combination of two Latin words—"inter" (between), and "urban" (town). Literally meaning "between towns." When the system first began it was called "interurban" to distinguish from the street railway.

Ques.—Will you please give me the horoscope reading for females born on October 17, 1892, December 12, 1888 and April 4, 1904?

Ans.—We cannot do that through this column. It will be necessary for you to send a self-addressed and stamped envelope for each one of these dates in order to get a horoscope reading. There is no other charge.

Ques.—Does the state of New York own the Statue of Liberty? How much was paid for it?

Ans.—The United States government owns the Statue of Liberty. It was accepted as a gift, hence nothing was paid for it.

Ques.—I want to ask in your paper if it is true that a negro was the first man to discover the North Pole? If so, why don't we hear more about it?

Ans.—Officially, Admiral Peary gets credit for the discovery of the North Pole. However, he had a negro in his Polar expedition named Matthew A. Henson, who was an expert dog driver, and Peary selected him, with four Eskimos to make the last dash of 130 miles to the Pole. He reached the Pole about two hours ahead of his superior.

Ques.—I don't like the way my husband talks to me; should I take a rollin' pin to him or what?

Ans.—No, just tell him never to start anything you can finish, and he'll keep mum for evermore.

Ques.—Are there any deaf women in Chelsea?

Ans.—Start a scandal and find out.

Ques.—I am a subscriber of your good paper and would like to ask you where the longest bridge in the world is located?

Ans.—The longest bridge in the world at the present time is the Ambassador bridge connecting Detroit in the United States and Windsor in Canada. It is two miles long.

Ques.—I was born on July 3, 1898. Can you tell me what day of the week that was?

Ans.—July 3, 1898, was on Sunday.

Fishing Clubs Urging Change In Streams

Requests from individuals and fishing clubs urging changes in the status of various streams for 1930 are now being received by the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation.

While most of the requests urge the reopening of certain trout streams to fishing, many are asking that streams be closed as conservation measures.

Such requests are received every year, and form one basis on which the annual designation of open and closed streams is based.

All requests are given careful consideration by the Department. Each one is referred back to the district conservation officer of the particular area for his recommendation. The original request, the recommendation of the district officer and information which the Division has on file in its office are all considered when divisional recommendations are made to the Conservation Commission.

The Commission will designate the closed and open streams for 1930 at its February meeting. All requests for changes in the status of streams for 1930 should be sent to the Fish Division before January 15th so that there will be time for the preliminary investigations and recommendations.

We have a letter in our office from the Perkins Corporation stating emphatically they do not have anyone out republishing windmills, nor do they manufacture/pumping windmills. We understand this man has made an exorbitant charge for repairs and that his work has not been satisfactory. Just another case of spending your money with a stranger and getting humbugged.—Review.

With Difficulty

The work of feeding 110 people engaged in filming the Richard Dix latest starring picture, "Redskin", in and around the great Canyon de Chelly in northeastern Arizona, was increased manifold by the comparative inaccessibility of the Paramount location camp.

The camp was established at the Chin Lee trading post, one hundred miles from Gallup, New Mexico, the nearest railroad point. All of the supplies were sent in by truck over roads that most of the way were but two rutts through the sand of an open desert. The last twenty-five miles of the drive were over natural table rock that ascended and descended through forests of pine and juniper like a staircase.

More room will be provided for occupants of the rear compartment. Access will be easier around the folding seats in front. In exterior appearance, the car will be much improved.

"It still will retain the crown roof effect with rounded corners on the rear quarter, the beauty of which will be accentuated by an entirely new design body belt and moulding treatment."

"The coupe, too, will be entirely new in design. It will have a lower roof line. French roof quarters will emphasize the low effect and the long lines of the new moulding treatment."

The Sport Coupe, which has a rumble seat as standard equipment, will have all the lower body lines of the coupe.

The sport treatment is carried out above the belt line, as heretofore. The roof line will be lower, also, and in this car, too, driving comfort will be improved by the installation of an adjustable seat. The same feature will be extended to the Convertible Cabriolet.

"The two open cars, the phaeton and roadster, are entirely new in design, with long, lower lines, and more beautiful appearance."

Mr. Palmer emphasized the fact that no new model has been brought out. Mechanically the car is essentially the same. While new features such as wheels and a new composition steering wheel, black and polished to a high lustre, with finger knobs underneath the rim, have been added, all the standard features which have made the Model A a car of such remarkable dependability have been retained, he said.

These include sturdy steel construction, four Houdaille hydraulic double-acting shock absorbers, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, quick acceleration, ease of control, 65 to 65 miles an hour and smoothness, balance and security at all speeds.
