Thieves Take Money From School Building

Discovery was made this morning at the public schools that thieves had entered the high school building during the night, making away with a small sum of money.

The glass in the outside kitchen door was broken enough to permit unlocking the door, as was the plate glass in the door leading to Supt. E. L. Clark's office.

It was in the superintendent's office that the money was taken. The culprits ransacked the office but no great damage was reported.

The thieves were no doubt disappointed when they were unable to find the receipts from the Kiwanis minstrel show, which undoubtedly was the reason for their breaking and entering the building.

Red Cross Receives Letter Of Thanks

The local chapter of the Red Cross recently received a letter from John T. Bowers, who is stationed with Company H—15th Infantry at Tientsin, China, in which he voiced his thanks for the Christmas bug which was sent to China by the local chapter and received by him. He sent several interesting snapshots which he took in the Orient. Mr. Bowers' letter follows:

A few lines to let you know I received your Red Cross Christmas bug and wish to thank you for same.

In appreciation for your gift I am sending you a few snapshots which I have taken here in China.

Please let me know if you get them as sometimes the Chinese officials open our mail. Wishing you a very Happy New Year, I remain,

Yours truly,
John T. Bowers.

St. Mary's Defeated In Close Contest

St. Mary's were nose-d from a victory in the last few minutes of play by the Charlotte Independents in a game last Sunday. St. Mary's led at the half, 12 to 10, but in a very exciting last quarter they were nosed out and defeated 26 to 20. Charlotte has lost no games and their smooth playing and offensive attack explained the good record.

St. Mary's will play a delegation from the Union Trust of Detroit, Sunday. This team has lost one game in three years, so it promises to be an exciting contest.

Manager Kolb reports the St. Mary team in fine condition for this contest.

Children Honor Mr. and Mrs. P. Merkel

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Taylor and children, Virginia and Tommy, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCarty and family, of Detroit, A. J. Merkel of Lansing, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Merkel and daughters of Sylvan.

This week Friday Chelsea clashes with the fast Milan team on the home floor. Victory for Chelsea will mean the championship of the Huron High School League. There will be three games.

George S. Davis was appointed secretary and J. Bacon and Fred Kalmbach, tellers. The oath of office was administered by John Kalmbach.

The party committee was duly authorized to place in nomination candidates for the various village offices; the caucus then adjourned.

"Spirit Of Honesty" Prevails In Chelsea

That the "spirit of honesty" exists in Chelsea to such an extent that the mice are getting the habit was demonstrated by one of the small pets at the Chelsea Milling Co. recently.

One day a $2.00 bill disappeared from the cash drawer, which could not be accounted for by anyone in the office. The incident had just about been forgotten when, just one week after the money had been missed, discovery was made that the thief had returned the money to the place from which it had been stolen.

While it was known that mice were persistent visitors in the office, they had not been thought of in connection with the theft until the returned bill was found to be somewhat chewed up. Evidently the mouse could not find anything for which it cared to spend its $2.00 so the money was returned to the owner.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Each passing year serves to add to the love and reverence the American people have for the memory of Abraham Lincoln. No other American has ever approached the inner circles of men's hearts like the "Rail Splitter of the Sangamon."

Born in abject poverty, amid primitive surroundings, his whole early life a series of bitter disappointments that would have discouraged the stoutest heart, he did not have his name forever engraved in the highest niche of human emotions throughout the entire world.

He knew and understood the common people. He was of their kind and his great heart went out to them in sympathy so deep it marked him apart from his fellowmen.

No other man was so maligned in public life as Abraham Lincoln. He knew the bitterness of being misunderstood—but through those darkened days he kept forward in his purpose to awaken in all hearts a new love of liberty, a new interpretation of our national purpose.

He was first among us to catch the spirit of real Americanism—he earned the right to be called the first American.

THE UNEMPLOYED

President Hoover says the unemployment situation, the worst in years, is beginning to clear. Industrial utility, and government expansion programs are already absorbing thousands of idle workmen. Thousands of additional workmen are expected to find employment when the more suitable building months of the year arrive.

This is the most encouraging news we have heard in a long time. Unemployment is the world's greatest menace to progress. When men are hungry—and out of work everybody suffers. Not one class, but every class feels this economic pinch. Even the arts and sciences are affected when poverty stalks abroad in the land.

We cannot hope to cure the ills of unemployment entirely through legislation. But there is certain kinds of legislation that would be helpful. The employment of two million boys and girls in factories while two million men, heads of families, are without work is an economic mistake. It should be corrected by law.

Boys and girls should not be allowed or forced to work in factories except in unavoidable cases where extreme necessity demands. They should not be working during the years when they should be playing, laboring when they should be learning. Our greatest waste today is in impaired bodies and undeveloped brain power. We should not need to be urged to insist on a better contribution to posterity than we are now making.

CRIME NEVER PAYS

Scarcely a single day in the year passes that does not see a new face among the inmate population at the Michigan Reformatory. Some days there are several new faces. Gradually the prison population grows. The and never seems to shrink.

These inmates are mostly first term men. They comprise all kinds and classes of society. They come from the depths of the city, from respectable homes, from places high in their community, but invariably they come because of a desire to possess something without giving adequate value in return.

A checkup of the inmate population reveals that most crimes are committed for money. And the price of the crime is human happiness destroyed by prison and disgrace.

There is not one man among the thousands of inmates whose earnings from crime ever equaled a fair compensation compared to that enjoyed by the man with a job. They might better have a job digging ditches. At least they would have saved their happiness and self respect.

We study this single phase of the crime problem. We wonder at the incongruity of those men who were foolish enough to try to wrest even a small gain out of the poorest paying business in the world.

THE RECKLESS DRIVER

There is not much consolation for the reckless driver in the action of the state supreme court, which a few days ago came out strongly for the validity of the negligent homicide act. Heretofore the court had been divided on this question, with the result that many prosecuting attorneys were reluctant to prefer charges under the act against drivers of automobiles involved in fatal accidents.

Although we have no speed limit under the Michigan law, the driver of an automobile is supposed to have his car under control all the time. The court by its latest ruling says that this is all that a jury needs to know in deciding whether a driver was negligent or reckless in causing death.

The law says in effect: "You may not drive recklessly, you must be able to stop within the assured clear distance ahead, and if there is an accident your failure to stop is prima facie evidence of recklessness on your part."

This Week

by Arthur Brisbane
To Terrify Terrorists
Another Attempt to Kill
For Gold Star Mothers
Women Spend 53 Billions

Los Angeles, Calif.—The shooting of the Mexican president, his wife and another, none killed, fortunately, will mean drastic action in Mexico. No nation will tolerate even in civilized times, a campaign for the control of government by murder. Back of the young hand that fired the shots there stands in the shadow some mysterious organization, relying on terror and using swift tools for its purpose.

Ortiz Rubio and the powerful Portes Gil, former president, now Mexico's secretary of the interior, will find a way to terrify the terrorists.

Before the would-be murderer shot him, Ortiz Rubio, in his brief inauguration address, had promised that all classes of Mexicans "should enjoy the privilege of being classed as men."

Come familiar with conditions under which Mexico's lower classes have lived, and with the attitude toward them of the upper classes, will know what that means to the Mexican underdog.

Congress votes more than $5,000,000 that "gold star" mothers may visit their sons' graves in France. Of $14,000,000 mothers entitled to go, 6,000 have expressed a desire to go. Many cannot go because of duties at home. Others, perhaps, dread the sorrowful shock. To those that do not go, congress should pay in cash the per capita amount that it would cost to send them; about $1,000. No other course would be fair.

Texas has an "anti-chain store association" to drive and keep out chain stores owned outside the state. The governor and other high officials are said to endorse the association, which seeks to protect thousands of small merchants, driven to the wall by chain store efficiency and economy.

Another attempted murder among our Latin-American friends. An attempt, fortunately a failure, is made on the life of Mello Viana, vice president of Brazil. As in the recent Mexican outrage, the man attacked was making a political address and the would-be murderer was moved by political hatreds. Only harsh severity can meet such an assassination attempt.

Richard Stewart, rug merchant of Warren, Ohio, is in jail. Judge Perry found him guilty of molesting a woman. Stewart offers an excuse as old as Adam: "The woman told me so." In jail Stewart refuses to eat. It would have been fortunate for Adam, and for us, but bad for the clothing business, had Adam likewise refused to eat.

Charles Evans Hughes returns to the Supreme court as chief justice, at President Hoover's request. In him the people have a brilliantly able man, worthy to take Mr. Taft's place. And from Mr. Hughes' acceptance of the position you learn that honor and opportunity to be useful are more important than financial profit.

Chicago's Retail Advertising Institute is told that American women spend every year fifty-three billion dollars.

A million is a great deal. A thousand millions is a very great deal. Fifty-three thousand millions spent by the women in this country is an extraordinary amount of money.

The rich in this happy land, very many for some, are richer than they ever were. The Treasury department tells you there were 430 Americans in 1928 with annual incomes above $1,000,000. The total on which they paid income tax was one thousand and seventy-three millions.

And, as you know, this represents only a fraction of the really big incomes. These are met with incomes above one hundred millions each. Their money is in great corporations. The latter re-invest their earnings and find stock dividends instead of cash to the big controlling stockholders. On such dividends, in accordance with Supreme court decision, the really rich men pay no income tax.

One man, with much more than a hundred millions income, paid no income tax. In reports once published, only six millions income tax. Without the stock dividend device he would have paid forty millions at least. A lot of salary earners and professional men made up the difference.

Of the supermillionaires, twenty-four have more than five millions a year each. With all that money you would expect to hear of some remarkable and interesting things done, but money and imagination do not always go together. Imagination prevents accumulation.

For brains and ingenuity there are always openings and success. What is wanted is something that will give a decent living to any man or woman willing to do honest work. Even the average man has a right to live, or should have.

ALL HANDS ON DECK!

If you heard that command on ship-board you wouldn't lose any time taking your place on deck.

And you would obey the captain's orders, even if your own life was needed as a sacrifice to save the rest.

President Hoover is commander of our great ship of state. As a citizen you are a member of the crew.

He has called all hands on deck and all that he asks you to do is to go to work. Certainly not much of a hardship in following out such an order. When nearly two million people quit work to engage in speculation of all kinds the economic loss to the country was tremendous. No wonder there had to come a day of reckoning.

But your ship and my ship is going to ride safely through the storm—have no fear about that. The present situation serves as a warning to watch closely the dangerous shoals in the future.

All that we need to do is to give the best that is in us. Work, always a salvation, is America's best friend.

SOME IMPROVEMENT

A more prosperous condition for agriculture is indicated by the fact that foreclosure of farms are constantly decreasing. During the last year in which records have been made, approximately 20 farms out of every thousand were foreclosed, sold for delinquent taxes or otherwise went into default. This number was considerably less than in the previous year when 24 farms out of every thousand were lost. Land values also declined in the last year reported upon by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

A good value for farm lands, however, is out of the question as long as a large acreage of foreclosed land remains on the market. It is, however, encouraging to note the movement toward additional sales of land and the prospect that there is soon to be a market for most lands at some value. Those who are best informed state that this condition is approaching.

During the days when the world is covered with snow and ice there is a noticeable decrease in fatal automobile accidents. Throughout this period motorists instinctively sense the danger that lies in excessive speed, or in taking unnecessary chances of any kind. Why is it not possible to carry this inner fear into the season when the highways are free of the hazards of winter driving? To do this would cut down our traffic toll to a point where it would not cause the feeling of horror that it did before the beginning of the winter months.

The individual motorist, not the legislator, is the person who can most help in cutting down this enormous loss in human life. Not only does he endanger his own life, but the lives of innocent people when he indulges in reckless driving.

Unless this class of drivers are willing to do this of their own accord action will be taken in sheer self defense. Strict examination in order to procure a drivers license, barring reckless drivers from operating a machine, and other safeguards will be provided in addition to what we now have unless there is an immediate and radical change in the conditions which existed while traffic was at its height last year.

CURING HEADACHES

No one likes headaches. When they come, as they have a habit of doing for most of us, one's first impulse quite naturally is to get rid of the ailment in the easiest possible manner, which usually means taking a headache powder of some variety or other.

This method of treating headaches is questioned by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, which states that an ache in the head, cannot, like a cut finger, be treated as a separate ailment. A headache is not a disease itself, but rather a sign of something wrong inside. It may be temporarily stopped by a headache powder, but the relief does not touch the real cause of the trouble. Use of "headache cures," in fact, often adds to the body's troubles by giving it the additional task of combating a poisonous preparation of drugs.

A far better method for treating the ordinary headache is suggested by the Association. In the case of a mild attack, it is often possible for the sufferer to trace the source of his ailment and to remove the trouble at its root. For instance, a walk in the open air may relieve a headache caused by confinement in a stuffy room. Regular exercise for those with sedentary occupations will often put an end to habitual headaches. The headache that is due to too much smoking, too much tea or coffee or other over-indulgence, violent exercise, lack of sleep and the like indicates its own treatment.

The important point to be remembered about a headache concludes the Association, is that it is a sign of another, deeper, ailment that will not be helped by merely drinking a glass of water in which has been dissolved a powder. If corrective measures, such as those noted above are not helpful, or if headaches are frequently severe or a serious condition, such as defective eyesight, a contagious disease, or defective teeth may be at fault. In that case, advice is given to secure prompt medical treatment.

Still beats for you.

Valentines, like sailing birds,
Fly south, fly east,
Seeking each a love land
Where love may feast;
Seeking each its own kind
The whole world through;
Never finding more love
Than I give you.

Valentines, like fairy folk,
Fly high, fly low,
Seeking choicest gift of earth
That man may know;
Seeking love you gave me
When life was new;
Love that lives forever,
That I gave you.

Nothing Sedate About Valentines of Today

Sedate synonyms whispering guardedly of love characterized the early American valentines, as shown in a collection made by the Chelsea Historical society. Changing times produced more direct expression until in 1830, the collection reveals the valentine verse makers leave no doubt of the senders' amorous sentiments.

The earliest valentine shown is dated 1800, but all before 1850 were hand-made affairs, generally a red heart with a pretty but proper inscription.

Miss Esther Howland began making valentines commercially in 1851, the society points out, and it is from that time on that the late, heart-embossed creations date. Many of Miss Howland's valentines were simply inscribed: "To one I love."

Comic valentines appear to have enjoyed a perpetual vogue throughout the years, the society showing many which it describes as "ridiculous, witty and severe."

One of the valentines of the World War period has a picture by John T. McOutcheon, cartoonist, with verse by George Ade. The picture shows a mother who has apparently censored her daughter's mail to a soldier abroad. Beneath is printed:

Mr. Soldier Man:
I cannot send what my daughter wrote.
It might set fire to the damned old boat.

I HAVE CAUGHT YOU, VALENTINE

Valentine Presents

Not so very long ago, in some parts of England valentines were something more than we understand them today. Not only were messages and verse decorated by hearts and darts, sent by post, but on the eve of St. Valentine day it was the custom to leave on the doorstep of friends presents of all kinds. Such bulky articles as a desk and an armchair were known to have been left there. The donor would then knock and disappear to watch from some vantage point until the door was opened and the valentine present taken in.

Sentimental Messages

Sentiment expressed on early valentines prove that the gentleman then meant the words he inscribed or that he had of promise suits weren't as common as they are today.

The wise young man of 1830 is satisfied with "To my sweetheart" inscribed on a large, red heart filled with chocolate, but a message inscribed in 1863 reads as follows: "To my friend: The charm that best can sweeten life is found to be a faithful wife; the wife I seek—good, kind, and true—love whispers I shall find in you."

Leave No Trace Of Old Records

All previous Farmers Week attendance records were sunk without a trace by the tides of visitors which surged about the Michigan State College campus last week.

Eight thousand people watched the events on the general program at the Thursday evening meeting and one thousand guests attended the Farm Bureau banquet at the same time.

Dairy breed association meetings on Monday brought larger groups than usual to these special meetings and the banquets given by the associations had to be conducted under special rules to take care of the overflow which could not get into the regular banquet rooms.

No partiality was shown by the guests of the College for any one attraction. The only complaint heard was that the number of shows, exhibits, and meetings was so great that it was impossible to see and hear everything on the program.

The State Farm Bureau decided to hold their annual meeting preceding Farmers Week next year to avoid the crowded conditions which they found this year. They will meet at the College during November.

State Crop Removes Gamble From Clover

The yield and quality of Michigan's clover seed crop make it possible for farmers of the State to avoid the gamble of planting unadapted seed from questionable sources, is the statement made by the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

While ordinary clovers are not expected to last through many seasons, the crop is no exception to the rule of the farm crops department that good seed is cheapest. Inferior seed frequently germinates poorly and is apt to contain mixtures of undesirable weeds.

One Michigan farmer was found during a survey of seed sources who had grown the same strain of clover on his farm for 64 years. Several reported growing the same clover for forty years, and many had produced the same kind for 15 years.

Clovers of this sort have proved their worth for Michigan farms. The survey was made by the crops department to find such strains and to make them available for use throughout sections where they are adapted.

Tests made at the College through a series of years have proved that seed from certain sources are not adapted to Michigan. Home grown seed of good quality removes most of the element of chance from the business of getting a stand of clover.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I am curious to know how the term "Old Nick" came to be applied to the devil. Can you tell?

Ans.—This term originated in Scandinavia, where "Nikken" is the name of the evil spirit. Hence the name became generally applied to the devil.

Ques.—Is it true that Mark Twain, the humorist writer, served in the Confederate army? If so, where did he enlist? Also how did he get started as a humorist writer?

Ans.—Mark Twain, whose real name was Samuel Clemens, was a pilot on the steamboat Mississippi when the Civil War broke out. He joined a company of Confederate sympathizers at Hannibal, Mo., and he was elected a second lieutenant. The company met in secret. One night while Twain was asleep in a hayloft the barn caught fire. In making his escape from the fire he sprained his ankle which prevented him from active service. This occurred about two weeks after he enlisted. He was disgusted with army life and resigned, giving as his reason "fatigue caused by persistent retreating." That was the extent of his connection with the Confederate army, and his remark was the beginning of his career as a humorist writer.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer in your good question column why is it that monkeys can't smile?

Ans.—Monkeys have no facial muscles with which to smile. Probably they wouldn't if they could since they have been accused of being related to man.

Ques.—I enjoy reading your good paper, especially the questions and answers. Now I wish to ask one. Can you answer when cigarettes were first smoked in this country? Also where did they originate?

Ans.—Cigarettes were first smoked in America in 1880 and in Europe in 1878. It was in that year that the Prince of Wales, later King Edward, made a trip to India. On his way he stopped at Alexandria, Egypt, where he indulged in the favorite smoke of that country. He liked them so well that when he returned to England he placed an order for 60,000 to be made in Egypt. Then an enterprising tobacco firm started to make them, and in 1880 was exporting them to this country. It is not known how long they were smoked in Egypt before that time.

Ques.—To settle an argument will you answer in your question department if it is good English to use the word "while" in this sentence: "You can while away the hour?"

Ans.—Strictly speaking, it is not good English to use the word "while" in that sense. The proper word is "while" used in the same sense as "be-fruile." However, the word "while" in this sense has been used erroneously so often and generally that even good writers now use it that way.

Ques.—Where and what is Venus de Milo, and how did the name originate?

Ans.—This is a large statue that represents the goddess of Venus, and it was found in 1820 by a Frenchman on the island of Milo, one of the Greek islands. It was brought to Louvre, France, where it still remains.

Ques.—Can you tell me why it is that swallows are never seen running around on the ground like other birds, but are usually seen flying high in the air?

Ans.—It is because they cannot walk or hop on the ground as other birds do. All members of the swallow family are distinguished by their small, weak feet which they use only for perching and clinging. They spend most of their time on the wing and feed chiefly on insects which they catch while in flight. They even scoop water on the wing.

Ques.—I desire to ask in your questions and answers why the Chinese wear pigtails?

Ans.—The queue (or pigtail, as you call it) was established in 1644 when Tartar emperors began to reign in China. The people were compelled to shave the forehead and adopt the queue as a symbol of loyalty and subjection to new masters. Since China became a republic they were no longer obliged to shave the forehead or adhere to the "pigtail", and the custom is rapidly dying out.

Ques.—Does the Boy Scouts of America bar negroes from their organization?

Ans.—No. There are now 618 colored troops of Boy Scouts of America, with a membership of 12,000 negro boys.

Ques.—Is Lafayette, the man who helped the Americans gain their independence, buried in Arlington?

Ans.—No. Lafayette was not buried in America. The remains of the great Lafayette rest in Picpus cemetery in Paris.

"The Viking" Coming To Princess Theatre

Cruising out over the Pacific Ocean in an open boat was quite an experience for the members of the Technicolor Company, filming scenes for "The Viking," a picture based on Quillic A. Liljencrantz' famous novel "The Thrill of Laila the Lucky." The production, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, done entirely in color, will come to the Princess Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, February 19 and 20.

In a Viking ship, a replica of the Gokstad, a barge of the Tenth Century, the personnel of the Technicolor company comprising over one hundred men and one woman, Pauline Starke, the leading lady, set sail from San Pedro harbor to take the ocean scenes. Never has this famous shipping port witnessed such a sight as the Viking ship, manned by Norse Vikings costumed in the regalia of a thousand years ago. As the Gokstad, rowed by fifty oars, passed the giant ocean liners of today, it looked just like a large sized lifeboat such as is carried on modern vessels.

The decks of the ships in the harbor were lined with passengers and seamen, fascinated and amazed at the sight of this odd vessel gliding up the channel under the man power of the grizzly Vikings. They were fascinated by its picturesqueness and amazed at the thought that, in days long gone by, a duplicate of this same strange craft sailed the high seas, raiding and pillaging on land and sea.

From Norway to Greenland, and from Greenland to a "land beyond the seas," so history relates, sailed "Laila the Lucky," warrior and adventurer in a discovery of America, long before the days of Columbus. And he sailed in just such a boat as the Gokstad. He sailed on for weeks, perhaps months, not knowing what lay beyond the horizon of the then considered "square" world. Faith in the new God, alone, carried "Laila the Lucky" onward.

This epic story of Viking days is presented throughout in natural colors with the improved Technicolor process, and is the visualization of the poetic era of the Tenth Century, reproduced with convincing realism.

Pauline Starke, Donald Crisp and LeRoy Mason head the brilliant cast. Others include Julia Swayne Gordon and Claire McDowell.

Pinckney—The oil well which was put down on the Crandall farm near Howell has been abandoned and the machinery will be moved to another location. Drilling reached a depth of 1300 feet and three distinct showings of oil were reached. However it was decided to discontinue drilling as oil was not found in paying quantities. Dispatch.

First Birthday Celebration

George Washington's birthday first was celebrated as a patriotic holiday at Newport, R. I., in 1781, 18 years before he died. Washington was present at some of the most notable of the early holiday occasions in honor of his birthday.

He attended a gigantic patriotic ball in his honor at Philadelphia on February 22, 1792. His birthday was celebrated each year from then on but the greatest of all the celebrations took place in New York in 1793.

Lonely will operate with greater force to some instances, than rigor. It is therefore my first wish to have my whole conduct distinguished by it.—Washington.

The Radio Amateur

By Ralph O. Williams
Dexter, Michigan

LEARNING THE CODE

I blush to assume any authorship for all the radio articles ever written. "Learning the code" takes the reader ship and I guess every author has his own method, no two being exactly the same, but all having the same end in view. So what I am going to say is in no way original and is not textbook style. As you read these little essays on amateur radio, think of me not as an "author" or a hard-boiled instructor. For in reality I am just a "Lowly Ham" enjoying the game to the utmost and wishing for you the same enjoyment.

If you like my hobby, I would like to help you get started. It's a noble game, played by a class of people with a high standard of morality, young and old, and each having the same urge to accomplish. The secret is the thrill of communication, which few normal persons fail to experience. I know you'll like Amateur Radio. There always has been a great deal of talk about lack of interest on the part of the father toward his son. Well, Dads, here is your chance to be real pals with your sons. For any boy a dozen years old can learn the code and I believe the age limit for license is sixteen. There is no age limit at the other end.

Amateur radio is a real hobby, one you can enjoy any time of any day or any night. You don't have to shave or dress, you can just roll up your shirt sleeves "step to it" any old time. The KEY and most essential tool in the game is the CODE. The "general service code" is called, or if you like it better, "International Morse." The letters of the alphabet are represented by tones similar to the time signals you hear each noon over your radio. These tones are broken up in long and short tones, the long tones called dashes, and the short ones dots. But as you listen to them being transmitted you can not help but think of a dot as being represented by the word "DIT" and the dash by the word "DAH." So you would hear the letter A as DIT DAH or dot dash, similarly B would be DAH DIT DIT DIT or dash and three dots. When learning the code it much improves your speed to learn the letters according to their sounds and not according to the number of dots and dashes and repeating these sounds over and over you will soon have the whole alphabet learned.

THE CODE

A - DIT DAH, B - DAH DIT DIT DIT, C - DAH DIT DAH DIT, D - DAH DIT DIT, E - DIT, F - DIT DIT DAH DIT, G - DAH DAH DIT, H - DIT DIT DIT DIT, I - DIT DIT, J - DIT DAH DAH DAH, K - DAH DAH DAH, L - DIT DAH DIT DIT, M - DAH DAH, N - DAH DIT, O - DAH DAH DAH, P - DIT DAH DAH DIT, Q - DAH DAH DIT DAH, R - DIT DAH DIT, S - DIT DIT DIT, T - DAH, U - DIT DIT DAH, V - DIT DIT DIT DAH, W - DAH DAH DAH, X - DAH DIT DIT DAH, Y - DAH DAH DAH, Z - DAH DAH DAH DIT DIT.

NUMBERS

1 - DIT DAH DAH DAH DAH, 2 - DIT DAH DAH DAH DAH, 3 - DIT DIT DAH DAH DAH, 4 - DIT DIT DIT DAH DAH, 5 - DIT DIT DIT DIT DAH, 6 - DIT DIT DIT DIT DIT, 7 - DAH DAH DIT DIT DIT, 8 - DAH DAH DAH DIT DIT, 9 - DAH DAH DAH DAH DIT, 0 - DAH DAH DAH DAH DAH. Often zero is represented by one long Dash (or DAH as we call it).

Now we have the whole code in terms of its sound. The DAH is just three times as long as the DIT. Let's get a buzzer (if not purchased we can use an old door-bell or Ford coil) and a key and start in on some practice. Hooking up the buzzer, key and battery in series we are all ready to start in. Press the key, you hear a buzz, call it a dash. Now press the key for a short period of time (just down and up) that is a dot, call it DIT. One precaution necessary is to be sure and make the dashes long in proportion to the dots. Many beginners, when on this point and it makes it difficult to read their "stuff." It is much better to send slow and clear than fast and not distinctly.

Hold the key firmly between the thumb and second finger letting the first finger fall upon the key toward the back edge. Don't be afraid to use your hand. Make all dots and dashes fairly. When you press the key, don't do it with a weak trembling motion but use a firm and determined force that will insure perfect dots and dashes. You will soon discover just how hard you have to press to get good DAHs and DITs.

After a little practice with the key and buzzer you will be able to understand an occasional letter when you hear it on your short-wave receiver. When listening to code on your receiver be sure to take a paper and pencil and copy every letter you can get even if you miss four or five in between. Soon you will be able to copy every other letter and before you know it you will be copying everything you hear and then you are ready for the test and a station of your own.

Radio Station W8DDI informs me that he has been sending code practice to friends near Chelsea, that is a splendid opportunity for you to get some practice, if you have a receiving set. He works on the 80 meter band. Send I (W8AJC) will be sending code practice too, so if you have a receiver or are contemplating building one, if you will just drop me a card, I will see that we have some code practice.

Since Mr. Heininger and myself are so near, it would be best that we arrange a schedule and alternate with the code practice transmissions. So when I have received enough letters to make it worth while Mr. H. and I will arrange a schedule of code practice and let you know what hours. So all who want practice will do themselves a favor by writing either Mr. Heininger R. F. D. Route 1, or W8AJC, R. F. D. Route 2, Dexter. There are no strings tied to this offer, it is merely an expression of good will and is free to all for the asking.

Wayne - The Board of Directors of the Detroit-Wayne Industrial Airport, Tuesday authorized the expenditure of $414,000 for clearing and grading work and building of hangars on the 640-acre site located at the Wayne limits. The Board also authorized the issuance of 175,000 shares of common stock, par value $1.00, to finance completion of the project. - Review.

O. B. Taylor Leaving For Trip To Sahara

Sunday's Detroit Free Press contained an article telling of a trip which Orla B. Taylor, formerly of Chelsea, will take, leaving New York February 22. The article follows:

Motoring hundreds of miles into the heart of the Sahara desert, and taking an active part in one of the greatest celebrations in the history of France, will be the experience of a Detroit resident, who has been at odd times an adventurer, author, traveler, attorney and business man.

Orla B. Taylor plans to leave New York, February 22, on a journey that will take him 200 miles south of the southern border of Algeria, in northern Africa. Arriving at El Golea in the latter part of March, he will attend the Centenary celebration commemorating the acquisition of Algeria by France in 1830.

Mr. Taylor will be accompanied by Mrs. Taylor, who has been his companion on travels that have taken them into every country in the world, with the exception of Australia and New Zealand.

Arrangements for the celebration were concluded in May, last year, after Mr. Taylor had spent several weeks in Algeria in conference with officials of the French government who are preparing a program of races, games and contests that will mark the week of holidays. Many fairs and bazaars will be opened that will attract traders, tribesmen, visitors from foreign countries, government officials, soldiers of the fleet, racing camels and automobile drivers from the whole of Africa.

The principal contest will be a 200-mile camel race on the Ghazal-el-Ghazal track in which hundreds of the riders will compete for the Grand Prize of the Sahara. The prize of 4,000 francs, made possible by the J. S. Harlan Foundation, was established by the widow of the late interstate commerce commission member, who was a life-long friend of Mr. Taylor.

"It seemed to me that a race of this sort, unique in Algeria, would be likely to attract the best qualified drivers and riders of the plains," said Mr. Taylor in commenting on the feature of the program. "The Mohari, those white-robed camels of the desert, will easily make 100 miles in 20 hours. It probably will take two days to run the race which will test the endurance of the riders as well as the fitness of their mounts. The course lies between the two oases of Ghazal and El Golea, a distance of 280 kilometers, or approximately 200 miles.

"This long-distance race, which will be an annual event in the future, is intended to encourage dramatic riding in the territories of the south. It will be open to dramatists of all categories, both civil and military, and is expected to give great renown to the display of El Golea.

"Gaston Doumergue, president of the French Republic, will attend the celebration and will witness these races and contests along with Governor General Bordes, of Algiers; J. Belandier, military commandant of the Territory of Ghazal, and various other French and Arabian officials. These visitors will make the journey into the desert by automobile, traversing the 400 miles of shifting sands in cars especially designed for desert travel. They are equipped with 12 wheels, four on each of the three axles, and provide the traction required to pull through the loose sand. The French government requires that at least two such autos are provided for any party venturing into the desert.

"The danger of driving into 'sand pockets' makes it imperative that another car be along to pull the helpless one out in such an emergency. Following his visit to the Centenary, where he will be donor of the prizes in the contests, Taylor plans to visit Athens, Constantinople, Warsaw, perhaps Russia and then—June in London. He will return to Detroit in July.

Most Wild Lands Open To Public For Hunting

Despite the rapid increase in private hunting club lands from which the public is being excluded, such lands, as yet, form but a relatively small percentage of the wild lands available for hunting purposes in the northern part of the state, according to figures gathered last year and recently compiled by the Game Division of the Department of Conservation.

According to these figures there are approximately 14,000,000 acres of "wild" land in Michigan, north of Townline 20, which may be considered hunting territory. Of these 14,000,000 acres, 94 per cent is open to everyone, and the remaining six per cent is restricted to private hunting only. Much of the land open to everyone for

Michigan Production Of Oil Is Increasing

While Michigan ranked 18th among the 10 states in the United States producing oil in 1928, it had jumped to 13th place last year, according to national compilations received by the Geological Survey Division of the Department of Conservation. The production for Michigan last year has been estimated at approximately 5,000,000 barrels of oil. In the amount of oil produced per well per day in 1929, Michigan ranked fourth among the 10 oil producing states, the statistics show. Only California, Texas and Colorado ranked higher than Michigan last year for the daily average production of oil.

Marquette county has the largest area open to public hunting. The figures show 1,032,337 acres or 95 per cent of all wild lands in this county to be available for this purpose. Roscommon county, with 47,285 acres, has the largest area closed to all hunting. Of this acreage, 43,835 acres is state-owned land closed to all hunting as game refuges and the like. Chippewa county has 110,655 acres of state owned land which constitutes public hunting ground. The state has now 1,220,285 acres north of Townline 20, which are open to the public for hunting, and the total of state owned lands is increasing by about 200,000 acres a year.

Howell, Miss Vera Smith whose farm on the Byron road just north of Howell, was sold to the Raycroft Industries for the big Tyr farm, which ran for a few years, was obliged to foreclose her mortgage and take over the farm some time ago. She now has sold the hutsches and other pens which formed the outfit of the Tyr farm, to the Michigan Fur Farm at Peck, Michigan. Several big truck loads are being moved from here this week. - Republican-Press.

"KONJOLA MADE ME FEEL LIKE ANOTHER MAN"

After All Else Had Failed, Detroit Man Finds Quick Relief Through New Medicine.

"Konjola made me feel like a new man," said Mr. William Stevens, 303-B, R. F. D. No. 7, Detroit. "My liver was badly out of condition for years. My eyes and skin were yellow. I had no end of bilious spells and these grew more frequent and severe as medicine after medicine failed to help me. At last I had to go to bed, too sick and miserable to be on my feet. 'The outlook was dark, for I had not the faintest idea what to try next. Then my attention was attracted to Konjola. Words fail to express my delight when the first two bottles passed to me that I had found the medicine I needed. Two more bottles set my liver right, and as the poisons were swept from my body, my eyes and skin lost their yellow hue and my general health began to climb. Today, I feel like I did years ago. Konjola is sold in Chelsea at Burg's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

Easy Measures Stop Losses From Goiter

Michigan flockmasters can prevent the occurrence of goiter in next spring's lambs by feeding their breeding ewes one or two grains daily of either potassium iodide or sodium iodide, according to a statement by animal husbandry specialists at Michigan State College.

The chemical can be fed to the ewes by mixing it with grain or it can be dissolved and poured over salt which is fed to the sheep. Another method of administering the medicine is to mix one ounce of it with 25 pounds of salt and 25 pounds of steamed bone meal.

Care must be taken in mixing the chemical with the salt and bone meal to get an even distribution of the iodide. It is best not to make up too large a quantity of the mixture at one time.

Goiter is quite common in Michigan flocks, the specialists say, and they advise the prevention of the trouble by the treatment given rather than attempts at cure after the lambs are infected with the disease.

It is sometimes possible to reduce the goiter on the lambs by painting the swelling with tincture of iodine or with an ointment prepared by combining one ounce of iodine crystals, six grams of potassium iodide, and four ounces of vaseline.

Correcting an impression about our USED CARS

WE HAVE sometimes found the impression prevailing that we will not accept anything but a used Ford car in trade for a new Model A. That is not a fact. Many cars in both high and low price classes are being constantly traded in for the new Ford.

If you're in the market for a used car, come to our show room. Thousands of miles of used transportation are represented there in cars awaiting second owners. And each one is priced at just what it is worth. There is no "price padding" or inflation to permit us to recoup excessive trade-in allowances. The price of the Model A is so low that excessive allowances for used cars are impossible.

You can take advantage of this situation. Act now! Come and see these bargains in used mileage.
