Bootleggers Given Prison Sentences

James Swartz, 36, and James Curran, 33, both of Jackson, were arrested Monday evening on a charge of violating the prohibition law. A farm house, located about a mile east of the Washtenaw-Jackson county line, in Lyndon township, had for some time been under surveillance of the sheriff's officers, and Monday evening, Deputies Jacob Ayres and William Dalley arrested the Jackson men as they were about to enter the house with liquor. Ten gallons of moonshine liquor was confiscated by the officers and Curran and Swartz were taken to the county jail at Ann Arbor, where both pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the prohibition law. Swartz was sentenced from six months to two years in the state prison at Jackson, the minimum term being recommended by the court. He was also assessed $50 costs. Curran was placed on probation for five years and assessed a fine of $400 and costs of $100. In default of the payment of the fine and costs, Curran must serve from six months to two years in Jackson prison, with the recommendation of six months.

The home of Elmer Harvey, 5 miles northwest of Chelsea, was raided by the Washtenaw county sheriff's department and state police Saturday night. One and one-half gallons of whiskey was confiscated and 350 points of beer and 30 gallons of mash was destroyed. When arraigned before Judge Sample this week Harvey pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the prohibition law and was remanded to await sentence. Harvey and his wife have both served time in prison.

Chelsea Defeated By Milan In Close Game

By Bob Wallace
Chelsea's undefeated League Five met defeat at the hands of Milan's fast Five last Friday night. The largest crowd that ever witnessed a basketball game in Chelsea saw the boys run up a 10-2 lead over Milan in the first few minutes. At this point of the game Chelsea slipped and Milan tied the score early in the second period. At the end of the first half Chelsea enjoyed a three-point lead. In the last half over a hundred Milan roosters went wild and cheered their boys to victory. With a few minutes to play Chelsea made a basket, making the score 19-18. Chelsea with a minute to play did not have a shot at the basket and the game ended. This was the first defeat in five League games. Chelsea's chances were badly bent, not broken. If the fast U. High team beats Milan a week from this Friday, there will be a triple tie for first place. Never were three teams more evenly matched than are U. High, Milan and Chelsea. In a preliminary game which was also a League game, the Chelsea Reserves defeated Milan Reserves in a good fast game. The Milan boys were much bigger and very fast. Chelsea had a three point lead at the half. The Reserves still have a chance for the League championship. The Chelsea girls were easily defeated in a hard fought game with the Milan girls. The Milan girls were very tall and were by no means equal competition for the Chelsea girls, the score being 19-4.

THOSE WHO SERVE

"Suppose any man who can 'look back on a long life and is able to say: 'I have never risked the life and fortune of any human being; I never lost that vigilance which could endanger by its loss the safety of another human being; I never with foolish impulse of taking a chance risked myself and therefore the good and comfort of another. Where I lived, small as it may have been, I played my part. I helped to keep it safe; I was a cooperating human being.' The person who can say that, whether he is the president of a safety council or a crossing watchman, has served his generation well."

FRIENDSHIP

Don't flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. The nearer you come into relation with a person, the more necessary do tact and courtesy become. Except in cases of necessity, which are rare, leave your friend to learn unpleasant things from his enemies; they are ready enough to tell them.

Mr. Hughes, Chief Justice

Henry Ford's New Plan

No Bolshevism Needed

A Real Stigma

Mr. Hughes is now chief justice and the people have in their service a man of great ability, profound knowledge of the law and highest integrity. They know that Mr. Hughes, for the sake of public service, exchanges a private law practice worth $500,000 a year for the small wages paid by the richest nation to its highest judges.

Henry Ford may spend $100,000,000 establishing schools that will enable students to "get into life" when they come out at eighteen years of age. He says: "The reason we have so much crime and racketeering is because schools do not teach our young men how to fit in the world. Racketeering is nothing but a revolt against the present improper, ineffectual system of teaching."

Schools at present are better than they were 50 years ago before racketeering became a science. Students should all learn to use their hands, particularly those not well adapted to using their heads. It would be waste of time for men of the type of Voltaire, Milton, Moliere or Beethoven to learn a trade, but they are scarce.

Mr. Ford should modify his resolution to "devote the rest of his life to educational undertakings." Part of his effort should produce tractors of the caterpillar type—plenty of power with the traction "track" fully inclosed, protected from dust.

In one column you read about a "mob" of 1,200 idle men, fighting police in Cleveland; twenty in the mob injured, officers hurt.

In another column you find comfort, perhaps, in news from Washington that our national banks have resources of over twenty-nine billions of dollars.

Seven thousand four hundred and eight institutions have on deposit more than twenty-two billions.

A country so rich ought not to have so many men who are willing to work and idle.

You are told that the mob of rioting unemployed men in Cleveland had been influenced by "Bolshevik propaganda."

It is very easy to say "Bolshevism." But when a man is out of work, worried and perhaps hungry, he needs no help from Lenin to make him dangerously dissatisfied.

Men adrift on a raft in midocean that had never heard of Lenin or Bolshevism have killed and eaten each other.

Five states of the South, highest in illiteracy, are conducting educational campaigns to reduce "the stigma."

Census takers list illiterates. Iowa has only 1.1 percentage of illiterates, lowest in the nation. Nebraska came first until 1920, and is striving to regain the championship.

However, persuading or forcing hard-working people to study at night, when they are tired out, and learn enough about their A B C's to remove the illiteracy stigma is not doing much.

To be able to read and write when you lack leisure to do either, and have no access to books worth while, is no help.

As well teach a man 5,000 miles from Egypt to read hieroglyphics on Egyptian monuments.

Hard, under-paid labor and lack of work are a "stigma" worse than illiteracy.

The world still loves titles. In a Los Angeles lawsuit about money collected for a newly invented religious "cult" you meet a mild-looking gentleman called "The Four Winds of the Whirlwinds." He wrote down with his typewriter 50,000 pages dictated by angels to the priestesses of the "Great Eleven Cult."

"Concords of stars led the priestesses to various locations, and there the stunts and their meaning."

Men and women gave tens of thousands of dollars in return for nonsense of this kind, which proves that the human race is largely foolish.

Ogden L. Mills, assistant secretary of the United States treasury, in a few words convinces you that this country has genuine prosperity if prosperity consists in getting more of life's good things than anybody else gets.

The United States has only 7 per cent of the world's population and yet, says Mr. Mills, "that 7 per cent consumes approximately 48 per cent of the world's coffee, 53 per cent of the tin, 56 per cent of the crude rubber, 21 per cent of the sugar, 72 per cent of the raw silk, 36 per cent of the coal, 42 per cent of the pig iron, 47 per cent of the copper and 69 per cent of the crude petroleum."

"Out of nearly 32,000,000 automobiles in the world on January 1, 1929, more than 24,000,000 were owned in the United States."

We certainly get our share. Perhaps the World court will tell us we get too much.

AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS INCREASING

The business session of the Michigan Press Association is held each year at Michigan State College. The 1930 convention took place last week. There is a mutual bond existing between the college and the publishers of Michigan's community newspapers—both are vitally interested in the agricultural sections of the state.

These annual meetings have been held at the college for the past eight years. During that period an important change in student attendance has been noticeable. There is a increasing enrollment in the classes devoted to agriculture. At one time enrollment in these departments fell to such a low ebb that the word, "agriculture," was wiped out as a part of the college name, although it was the oldest institution in the country devoted to the science of agriculture.

For a long time the graduate of an agricultural college was the subject of much ridicule in his neighborhood when he returned home following graduation. Other boys on the farm, unable to secure these advantages, sneered at the idea of a college education being necessary to successful farming. It took almost three generations to wipe out this belief.

This increasing attendance of agricultural students was discussed by the editors. Some said that it indicated a growing interest in agriculture and the desire for young people to succeed on the farm. Others claimed that the tendency revealed a desire to secure an education and get away from the farm.

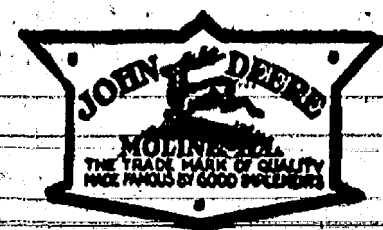

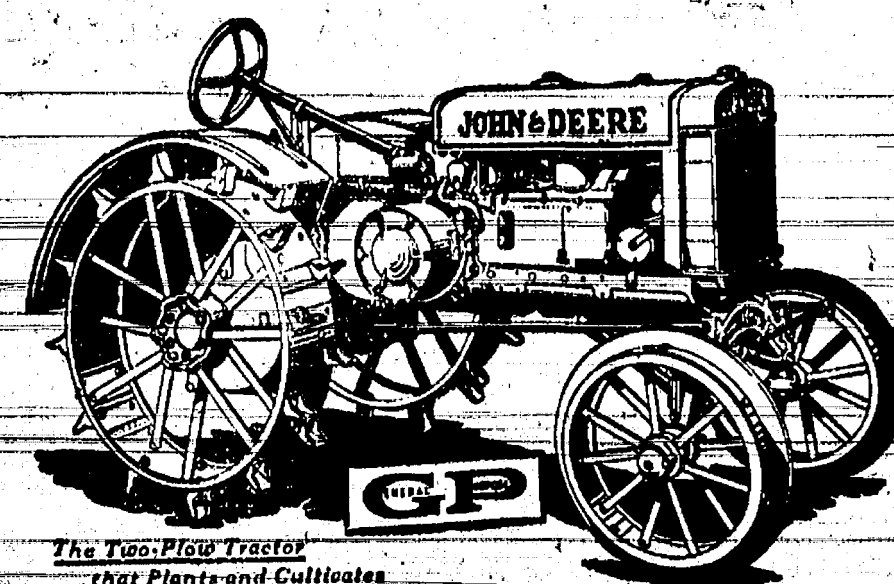

It is true there is a growing desire by the young men on the farm to seek an agricultural education and then enter commercial activity that deals with agriculture. The education is useful and the tasks that are performed are useful.

However, the fact is established that most of the boys receiving an agricultural education are essentially boys who are to return to the farm, stay there and gain success. The old time prejudice against the college trained farmer has disappeared. That is a hopeful sign for the future of the farming industry.

POWELL—The annual Farmers and Merchants banquet will be held here on Thursday evening, February 27. Dr. Eben Mumford, of the Michigan State College will deliver the principal address.

Besides being an ideal two-plow outfit the new John Deere General Purpose Tractor has great power to do all work, including planting and cultivating. With the planting outfit shown at the right one man can plant from 30 to 40 acres a day three rows at a time. There are no levers to operate on the GP—a mere touch of the foot raises and lowers planter. You get the same accurate planting for which John Deere No. 999 Planters are famous.

WITH A "GP" ON YOUR FARM—
You can do more work per day.
You can do it when it should be done—
You can do it with less help.
You can farm with less drudgery.
LET US SHOW YOU ITS MANY FEATURES NEXT TIME YOU'RE IN TOWN.

Equipped for cultivating as shown at the left the General Purpose Tractor will cultivate from 25 to 40 acres in a day—3 rows at a time. One man with this outfit will do the work of four men with four single-row cultivators and eight horses. All rigs are raised or lowered by a touch of the foot—without stopping the tractor. In all, there are more than 20 major farm jobs that the GP will do.

Maple Sugar Makers

The first warm days of the year are a warning to the sugarbush owner that the time is at hand for getting the harvest equipment ready, according to members of the forestry department at Michigan State College.

New roads and paths through the woods can be brushed out during cold weather and these clearing operations will facilitate the collection of sap on days when every moment is valuable. Roads should be spaced closely enough to avoid carrying loaded sap buckets long distances to the sled.

Fuel for boiling down sap can be cut from dead and non-producing trees. The sugar maker will need a standard cord of fuel wood for every 60 or 70 buckets used in the bush. Green wood is not satisfactory for boiling sap.

Spiles, pails, and evaporator should be thoroughly cleaned and scalded before the run of sap starts. Off-flavored syrup and sugar may be caused by unclean utensils.

If new containers will be needed, an early order will get them to the farm in time for use. Small containers which can be used as sample packages are recommended by the forestry department for convincing new customers of the value of maple syrup. A little of the product distributed in these small cans often helps secure customers for larger amounts.

Truck Will Exhibit
Good Dairy Methods

To improve the quality of milk and milk products, a specially built truck will visit towns in 16 Michigan counties, and specialists from Michigan State College will show some of the methods which may be used to keep milk clean and sweet.

The use of model cow stalls, small-topped milk pails, and a proper type of strainer will prevent the entrance of dirt into the milk. Proper cooling of the milk will discourage the growth of bacteria and keep the milk sweet for longer periods.

The quality of butter is determined by the grade of cream from which it is made and this in turn is dependent upon the care given the milk before it is skimmed. Better practices in all steps of the dairy business will improve the quality of the products, increase the demand for these foods, and aid the price.

Types of recommended equipment will be shown on the truck and specialists will explain at each meeting how these can be used to the best advantage. Members of the agricultural engineering and dairy departments at Michigan State College will give the talks.

Counties which will be visited are St. Clair, Feb. 17-18; Livingston, 19-20; Eaton, 21; Gladwin, 24-25; Gratiot, 26-27; Clare, March 3-4; Clinton, 5-6-7; Kent, 10-11-12; Barry, 13-14; Monroe, 17-18; Lenawee, 19-20; Jackson, 21; Van Buren, 24-25; Allegan, 26-27; Calhoun, 28.

Favorite Bible Passages

Morris Sheppard
U. S. Senator from Texas.

Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. — Matthew 22:37-39.

Comments: These verses, containing the reply of Christ to the lawyer in the temple, are my favorite ones because they announce the doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, making love of God and man the predominant duty of the race. (Compiled by the Bible Guild.)

Boy Scout Honored At Birthday Party

Clerks Have to Sing

A German department storekeeper in Smyrna, Turkey in Asia, makes all the help sing. They must sing from the counter girl to the housewife, even if there is only one customer in the store. The salesgirl must sing while she is waiting on the customer. She can only stop to give the price of the goods or to answer a question. It is catching. During the busy hours singing captivates even the customers.

TELEPHONE SERVICE STOOD STRAIN WHEN CHAOS REIGNED IN WALL STREET

The Stock Exchange Quotation Board

DURING the recent stock market panic in the financial section of New York, chaos reigned in Wall Street, but the telephone system held up under the strain of the greatest peak of traffic in the history of communication.

Five central offices, two dial and three manual, were put to the severest imaginable test when the number of calls completed in Manhattan jumped up 385,000 almost overnight. The percentage of increase over normal conditions was 74 for incoming and 56 for outgoing calls. The dial office of Hanover alone handled over half a million outgoing and incoming calls in a single day. Nor is the praise due alone to machinery, for there were thousands of out-of-town calls to be handled by operators.

As an illustration of the emergency which was met by the telephone system of the metropolitan financial district we cite this incident. The normal capacity for handling calls at the "N" board of an exchange, where incoming calls are set up, is 200 calls per hour per operator. During the chaotic days when the stock ticker spelt disaster to thousands, one "N" operator is credited with having set up 3,340 calls in a single hour. That means about one call every three seconds.

The plant forces of the telephone company were in evidence 24 hours a day building and assembling apparatus designed to afford relief. Jobs were done in a day's time that would ordinarily require much longer. The power system was taxed to the limit and for several days the emergency power equipment was kept running to supply electric current to carry the hundreds of thousands of voices that sped over the wires. So far as is known this is the first time it has ever been necessary to resort to this measure. Trench hours were cut in half, and there was no end of night work and overtime, let alone the constant demand for speed.

White Wall Street was busy at night, catching up on its tremendous bookkeeping job, the telephone central offices were correspondingly busy. Four times the usual number of operators worked nights and Sundays so that the service did not fail. On a Sunday the outgoing traffic in one office was 835 per cent above normal, but it went through.

In addition to the regular operating and plant maintenance forces, who were taxed to the limit, an emergency trouble-shooting gang was formed and remained on duty each night clearing every difficulty as fast as it appeared. No piece of apparatus could be allowed out of service in such times. Every bit was needed.

The entire system of telephone communication was taxed to the limit, and when panic and chaos reigned in the world, the vital factor in carrying on the business of the financial world coped with a business undreamed of in times of efficiency, calmness and discipline.

Ans.—"Barber shop chord" originated through an old custom of keeping in barber shops an assortment of musical instruments with which customers amused themselves while awaiting their turns.

Ques.—What should a person do when bitten by a dog?

Ans.—It depends upon who was bitten. Ordinarily the dog should be killed, but in some cases a banquet to the dog would not be out of place.

Ques.—Our school class has decided to ask you if there is any special reason why the German elections are held on Sundays. Also do any other countries hold their elections on Sunday?

Ans.—The elections are held on Sundays, and holidays to give all people an opportunity to vote. Elections are held in many other European countries on Sundays and holidays, and this is also true of Mexico.

Ques.—Can you answer in your good question column if there is the same amount of water on the earth now as there was at the beginning of time, or is there more?

Ans.—There is about the same supply of water on the earth now as there was millions of years ago. Water is composed of two elements—oxygen and hydrogen. A chemist can readily decompose water into these two elements. He can also combine these elements and produce water. But there is no known natural agency on the earth at the present time which produces water by combining oxygen and hydrogen. And there is none that decomposes water. It is safe to say that there will be no appreciable change in the water supply for millions of years.

Ques.—I want to ask you why some people refer to Sunday clothes as "glad rags"?

Ans.—The expression is the outgrowth of "glad," when that word had the old meaning of bright and flashy. Of course, "rags" is a jocular term of any clothes. Hence "glad rags."

Ques.—Is it true that the earth is getting lighter because so much coal and oil being taken from it and being burned up?

Ans.—No. The taking of coal and oil from the earth and burning them up does not change the weight of the earth as a whole. The component parts after burning remains just the same and weigh just the same. The atmospheric blanket around the earth figures in its weight just as much as the soil does.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer why the "O's" in the initials "A. W. O. L." when it stands for Absent Without Leave?

Ans.—Originally it was intended to read "Absent Without Official Leave." But in the official list of abbreviations the officials of the navy department shortened it to read "Absent Without Leave."

Ques.—Can you tell me if Henry Ford is a Mason?

Ans.—Yes, Henry Ford is a Mason. He is a member of the Palace Lodge in Detroit.

Ques.—Will you explain in your question department what is the meaning of "Nevada"?

Ans.—Nevada is a Spanish word that means "snow clad."

Ques.—What is the name of the department in the United States that has control of immigration?

Ans.—The Department of Labor.

Ques.—How did "Negro Mountain" in Pennsylvania get its name?

Ans.—During the French and Indian war in 1758 Col. Thomas Cresap of Maryland originated a company of volunteers and marched against the Indians who were carrying on a desolating war around the headwaters of the Potomac river. With Col. Cresap were his two surviving sons, Daniel and Michael, and a large Negro. Advancing along the road they met a band of Indians on one of the high mountains in that region. In a running fight Cresap's party killed an Indian and the Indians killed the Negro. From this circumstance the ridge was named Negro mountain.

Ques.—Please tell me through your column, the name of the instrumental selection which precedes and follows the program of "Amos 'n Andy."

Ans.—"The Perfect Song."

THE BUSINESS FUTURE

Kate reports summarizing conditions in a number of industrial and trade groups substantiate to an appreciable degree earlier promises of orderly adjustment and continuation of normal activity, with hesitancy, which had existed in some lines, rapidly disappearing. In virtually all the industries reporting changes, since the first Business Survey Conference was held at Washington, are in the direction of improvement and gathering momentum and the outlook is correspondingly clearer. Psychological as well as actual factors, manifested in the greater degree of certainty in anticipating future conditions, appear most favorable.

At the Michigan Central Station, in Detroit, a man, waiting for a train, bought an apple at the lunch stand. As he finished eating it, he looked around for a place to put the core, but found none. He was about to throw it on the floor when he saw a policeman looking at him. The little man started in nobly to eat the core, still looking around frantically for a place to throw it. He kept on looking and eating until the core was all gone but the stem. He looked at the stem, sighed, and put it in his pocket as he eyed the policeman meekly.

FOR MORE SAFETY

Systematic traffic regulation is seen as the only remedy for reducing the rapidly growing list of automotive accidents, which during 1929 surpassed all previous years in the number of fatalities occurring.

This action was determined upon by the executive committee of the National Conference of Street and Highway held recently in New York, where the committee considered a comprehensive program for meeting this situation through uniform traffic laws and regulations, including driver's licenses, enforcement, education, improvement of traffic facilities, protection of grade crossings and highway intersections, and the better maintenance of motor vehicles.

Plans were laid for completing and bringing up to date reports on all these phases and a nationwide movement to bring about the application of these remedial measures will be put under way immediately.

SYMPHONY BROADCAST
ENLIVEN ANNOUCEMENTS

There is something on the air. Music lovers have been listening to it Sunday afternoons, fascinated and intrigued by the drama and incident it portrays. This "something new" is the announcement preceding each number on the programs of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. If ever you've listened to a full resume of classical music, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra's presentation is doubly refreshing. Here, the spokesman tells the music lover for himself. Every listener places his own interpretation on the music of Chopin, Beethoven, and the other great masters.

The announcer of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra-concerts finds that people are deeply interested in the characters of the composers. Their biographies are often the key to an understanding of their music. He reveals the thoughts, the ideals, the sufferings, the personality of the composer in relation to each particular selection.

Thus, in the program to be broadcast Sunday afternoon, February 22nd, a richly varied group of composers is presented. You learn that Emmanuel Chabrier, whose "Joyeuse Marche" is first on the program, was a short, pudgy little man, who astonished his fellows with his weird hair and comical coats. He had thick, shaggy hair which he performed the most dazzling feats on the piano. It follows that you are all agog to hear this "Joyeuse Marche," which was beyond the powers of the students for whom Chabrier wrote it—and which he thereupon arranged for the orchestra.

On the same program is Schubert's Symphony No. 8, called "The Unfinished." Schubert's history is doubtless well enough known to music lovers. Yet, when the announcer crystallizes the extraordinary personality of Schubert in his word picture, his poverty, his hunger, his gay, brave spirit which soared above illness—a deep, sympathy and understanding settles on you as you wait for the opening chords of that moving melody, which we know as "The Unfinished Symphony."

Every one of the great composers, whose works figure on the programs of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra radio concerts, are recreated in word picture for the moment preceding their composition. How much greater is the grip which Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony has on our senses when we realize the anguish and suffering which Tchaikowsky endured during his creation of this work. How eagerly we listen to Rimsky-Korsakov's themes of the sea, when we know that the great Russian composer was a naval officer before he devoted himself entirely to music. When we hear the story of Beethoven throwing dishes at the cook, we must sympathize with the cook, but we are entranced with the musical description which Beethoven gives to this turbulent life in one of his great works.

In the program of March 2nd, Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D Major is listed. The announcer will contrast the happy, placid, full years of Brahms with those of the less fortunate composers. And we experience a new thrill as we listen to the rich harmonies of this great German master. The unusual presentation of Chicago Symphony Orchestra broadcasts is not a little responsible for the extraordinary popularity of the concerts. People who ordinarily do not care for classical music, find a singularly potent appeal in these programs, while those who have always delighted in the offerings of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra take added interest in these presentations. The announcer's word pictures of the composers have become a popular feature of these programs.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is to be congratulated for sponsoring so fine a program.

SINCE WASHINGTON'S TIME

The coming of February 22 not only reminds us again of the birthday of the Father of Our Country and our debt of gratitude to him; the date is also significant for the changes it calls to mind in the structure of the United States. We have come far since the lifetime of George Washington, in the population, and world esteem, in commerce and industry, in the arts and sciences. February 22 tempts one to compare 1930 with the seventeen hundred and to glory in the story of accomplishment that is represented by the many advantages we possess today over the pioneers of that time.

Not by any means the least of these advantages is the superior protection against illness and disease enjoyed today. Just how far we have come in the 108 years since the birth of Washington in protecting health is illustrated by one or two happenings in Washington's own life.

In 1781 George went to the Barbados with his sick half-brother, Lawrence, in the hope that a change of climate would improve the sick man's health. His diary relates the following: "This morning received a card from Major Clarke, welcoming us to Barbados, with an invitation to dine with him. We went, myself with some reluctance, as the smallpox was in his family. Mrs. Clarke was much indisposed, inasmuch that we had not the pleasure of her company. Was strongly attacked with the smallpox, sent for Dr. Langman whose attendance was very constant till my recovery and going out, which was not till Thursday, the 18th of December (from Nov. 17th)."

Lawrence was suffering from tuberculosis and it was partly due to his death from that disease shortly after the Barbados trip that George, the younger son, came into possession of historic Mount Vernon. Had the Washingtons possessed the knowledge about tuberculosis that is common property today, the life of Lawrence might have been saved, as well as that of George's stepdaughter, Patsy who died of the same cause. Likewise, had modern knowledge prevailed then, a dinner party would not have been given in a house with smallpox, and George Washington would not have contracted this illness.

The work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association has done much to take from tuberculosis its dire significance of Washington's era, and the efforts of other health organizations have been singularly rewarded, as in the case of smallpox. Yet there is no cause for resting on laurels now won. Rather, the challenge to be answered is: "How much more will have been won in the battle against needless disease when another two centuries have been added to the time since Washington's birthday?"

State Cement Plant To Undergo Repairs

Announcement has been made by M. H. McGaffigan, superintendent at the State Cement Plant at Four Mile Lake, that the plant will be shut down Friday of this week, for a period of sixty days.

According to Mr. McGaffigan, storage facilities at the plant are filled to capacity and production must necessarily be curtailed until state road construction work releases shipments from the plant.

During the period of the shut-down necessary repairs will be made at the plant.

There are now about two hundred inmates at the local state-owned industry, all of whom will be kept in their present quarters during the shut-down. Eighty-four free men are in the employ of the institution.

THE STATE POLICE

We have heard no criticism of the request by the Department of Public Safety for an appropriation from the State Administrative Board sufficient to equip the state police with machine guns and other equipment enabling them to speak to the modern criminal in his own kind of language.

In recent years the state police have arisen to an enviable position as a law enforcement body. We no longer hear them spoken of in terms of contempt. In hundreds of instances they have demonstrated their value in bringing down criminals and bringing them to justice. Nothing so discourages the wrongdoer as the fear of prompt detection and speedy punishment.

There was a time when the majority of our citizens, especially in the rural districts, looked upon the state police as an arrogant body of uncivil employees. So marked did this dislike become there was actual danger of the entire department being legislated out of existence.

All of that has been changed. Not only do they have continued warfare against crime, but are helpful in straightening out our traffic problems, curbing reckless drivers, assisting motorists in distress, acting as first aid to any call for help that they have become indispensable in the present scheme of things. There will be no opposition to any reasonable request they may make for funds to carry on their work and enlarge their sphere of usefulness.
