RANSOM ARMSTRONG WRITES INTERESTING LETTER FROM SOUTH

Writes Of Voyage To Cuba and Jamaica; On Way To Colon, Panama Canal Zone.

Gao W. Walworth recently received a very interesting letter from Ransom Armstrong, who, with Fred Havela, is spending the winter in the southland, and we are pleased to print the letter, which we are sure will be of interest to the many local friends of "Ransom and Fred." The letter follows:

At Sea, Feb. 2, 1930.
Dear Friends:
You said "Let us hear from you, Ransom." I don't know if that was just politeness or not but this beautiful morning while we laze along on this azure sea, a gentle breeze blowing and just enough haze to temper the too ardent sun, I'll write you what Fred and I have been about in the last few weeks.
After starting in early December from Cavanaugh we drove down thru Missouri, Oklahoma and into our old stamping grounds in Louisiana, visiting friends and relatives all the way, getting into Houma, La., just before Christmas, where we were most royally received. We spent Christmas with our good French friends and loathed about for several weeks but the south was cold this year as well as the north, so in mid-January we went up to New Orleans to see what we could do about a further trip towards the tropics.
I told Fred "This is your trip and I'll go where you say," but when he proposed a trip to Rio Janeiro, Brazil and up the Amazon to Henry Ford's rubber plantation I re-negged so he chose to come first to Havana. The 1 had seen it before, the entrance into Havana harbor, past grim old Morro, then by Cabauna fortress into this beautiful land-locked harbor will ever be a thrilling adventure. Gifted with my good imagination I could see all those gallant sailors and soldiers from Columbus and Cervera to Evans Sampson and Schley for the Admirals to Cortez Pizarro down to our own gallant Roosevelt and General Leonard Wood who had filed thru this bottle neck to make history.
Of course we ran over the entire city from cigar factories, cemeteries, presidential palace to the Spanish club, the Jockey club where we saw the ponies run, the Casino, Cuba's Monte Carlo, even to the Tropical Garden or Scotchman's Paradise as it is termed, where several colored waiters are kept busy drawing cool beer and "giving it away."

MAKE THAT VISIT NOW

We see it so often.

Some one dies. The folks come to the funeral. The parents come or the children come. The brothers and sisters come. Relatives come.

Many of those who come to the funeral never came to visit the deceased in his or her lifetime. We know of cases in which a son had not been back to the old home town for 20 years. But he came to attend his mother's funeral. We have heard of brothers who never saw anything of each other since early manhood. But after death had laid his hand on one the other came to see his brother in the coffin.

Of course people should attend the funerals of their relatives. It is a mark of respect. But how much better it is to see the folks, the loved ones, the friends, while they are still alive. Then it is that the visit is most appreciated. Folks who are dead do not know those who attend their funerals. But there is many a heart that is yearning for a visit with some member of the family, with some friend.

JUST BE CAREFUL

Michigan winters the last few years have been marked by an unusual amount of ice on the highways, caused by snow removal which leaves the roads in such shape that every light thaw and freeze forms a thin coating of snow and ice on the hard surface. And there seems to be no remedy for this condition, so rapidly is the falling snow rolled down and flattened out by the rubber tired vehicles, making it impossible to keep the pavements thoroughly bare through the greater part of the season.

There is only one answer to this new hazard—careful driving. Railroad crossings, street and highway intersections should be approached with great caution, and at no time should a car be driven at an excessive speed with such a slippery coating underneath the wheels. Traffic laws will not help—it is up to the individual motorist to be his own "safety first" movement.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

We may believe that our Government is the best in the world, but it does not follow that we believe it best fitted to do all our public work. It can do many things well. But of some things which it attempts it makes a pretty sad mess. However efficient it may prove itself in some directions, it is neither all-powerful nor all-wise.

This is a country of delegated powers and rights and functions, and our historic policy has been not to concentrate too many of them in one person or one legislative agency. We have never wished to create in the United States a system like that which used to prevail in Russia, when a man could not build a house in Vladivostok until he had got his plans approved at St. Petersburg.

If everything is loaded upon the Government, it loses what little efficiency it has and gets congestion of the brain, while the extremities are paralyzed. From the New York Times.

Deserts

Whenever a man is disposed to complain because he isn't getting all that's coming to him, it is generally true that what he really ought to do is to congratulate himself. —Fort Wayne News Sentinel.

This Week

by Arthur Brisbane
Big Corporation Useful
On Crime's Highway
Worrying the Burglar Education and Money

The General Electric company has perfected a device to transport electric power over longer distances at less expense. The invention, called a "thyatron," is described as a modified vacuum tube, adapted to power transmission uses.

Some day science will "hook-up" the world's great power stations of North America, Niagara, those in the Rocky mountains, on the Columbia river, Brazil, with other great stations in Africa and all over the world, as radio stations are now hooked up. Then will come wireless transmission of power, so that airplanes will be able to "pick-up power" at various points in their journey. Instead of carrying tons of fuel.

The research work done by such institutions as General Electric, United States Steel, Westinghouse, Standard Oil, etc., will give back to the public in increased prosperity a hundred dollars for every one that those big corporations have ever received.

This country is traveling rapidly on the road that leads to thoroughly organized crime and complete contempt for law.

A United States grand jury reports that officials supposed to suppress the sale of drugs are organized on a "racket" basis, misrepresenting their activities to get more money from the government.

Some of them are alleged to be narcotic addicts. The charge is made that the big men in the business can "buy their way out" if they get in trouble.

In the seven months past criminals and others have purchased three times as many pistols as were sold together in the twelve months of 1928. A big demand for killing machinery.

Mr. Louis Herson of New York's Irving Trust company delights in annoying burglars. He built, far underground, below his new fifty-story building, a safety vault lined with toughest steel, thick as the ancient walls of Jerusalem. It is the biggest vault in the world except those of our Reserve Bank and the Bank of England.

Now he surrounds his steel walls with a thick layer of water, so that the poor bank burglar, even if he did break through the heavy steel, would have to do his work in a diving suit, most awkward for handling dynamite and drills.

Henry Ford, planning to spend one hundred millions educating young people on his own lines, making them "fit into life," teaching every one a trade, wants no advice.

He is right. No one knows better than he how to prepare boys for useful work. But Mr. Ford spoke hastily when he said he wanted no advice on education from those that never earned or saved a dollar.

The world's greatest educators have not been money makers or savers. Aristotle, who taught Philip's son, Alexander, made no fortune for himself. Alexander, conqueror of the world, spent collecting specimens for Aristotle, greatest naturalist and philosopher of the world, more than the total fortune left him by King Philip.

Conrad Hubert, who changed his name from Horowitz, made many millions, left $6,000,000 to useful charities, left $1,000,000 to his brother.

The brother, who sticks to his old-fashioned name, Horowitz, has been a humble court interpreter and he says he will now devote his time to German opera and charity.

Why did the rich brother wait until he was dead to give a million dollars to his mother's other son?

Many of us forget the proverb often quoted by Nathan Straus:

"What you give in health is gold, what you give in sickness is silver, what you give after death is lead."

Automobile makers will spend $10,000,000 scrapping old cars to clear the way for new cars and moderate the second-hand car nuisance.

H. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors, one of the best salesmen in America, is chairman of the scrapping committee.

Perhaps Mr. Grant could find a way to ship those old cars, knocked down, to foreign countries—China, Africa, anywhere. Ten million old cars scattered over the earth would soon create an appetite for ten million new cars, just as the little car creates a demand for a larger car.

An expert says that in nine years, from the end of 1920 to the end of 1929, stocks were going up 60 per cent of the time, and going down 34 per cent.

The difficulty is to pick out the time when they are going up.

Two $50,000 speed-boats, each carrying three Liberty motors, with 38 knots speed, will help hunt rum runners in New York waters.

Other fast boats, costing $250,000, will be put on the lakes to check rum running there.

LIFE FITNESS

There is nowhere in the land any home so remote, so humble, that it may contain the power of mind and heart, and conscience to which nations yield and history submits its process. Nature pays no tribute to aristocracy, subscribes to no creed or caste, renders fealty to no monarch or master of any name or kind. Genius is no snob. It does not run after titles or seek by preference the high circles of society. It affects humble company as well as great. It pays no special tribute to universities or learned societies or conventional standards of greatness, but severely chooses its own comrades, its own haunts and own training. —Woodrow Wilson.

I WILL

I WILL make this day worth while. I WILL drop the past, remembering it only as a valuable path through which I walked into the now.

I WILL take up the work of the day as a personal pledge to do my best, with interest and enthusiasm.

I WILL do the things I have failed to do before.

I WILL attempt new things that I know now that I can do. I will go ahead.

I WILL play the game to-day with a warm heart and a cool head.

I WILL smile when I feel like frowning. I will be patient when I feel tempted to acid. I will take personal command of myself.

I WILL be loyal to the concern for which I toil. I will be faithful to all my trusts. I will master the smallest detail. I will boost—not knock. I will do—not intend. I will get things done.

I WILL work because I like to. I will be fair and just because there is no other way to win.

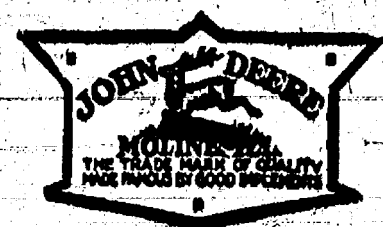

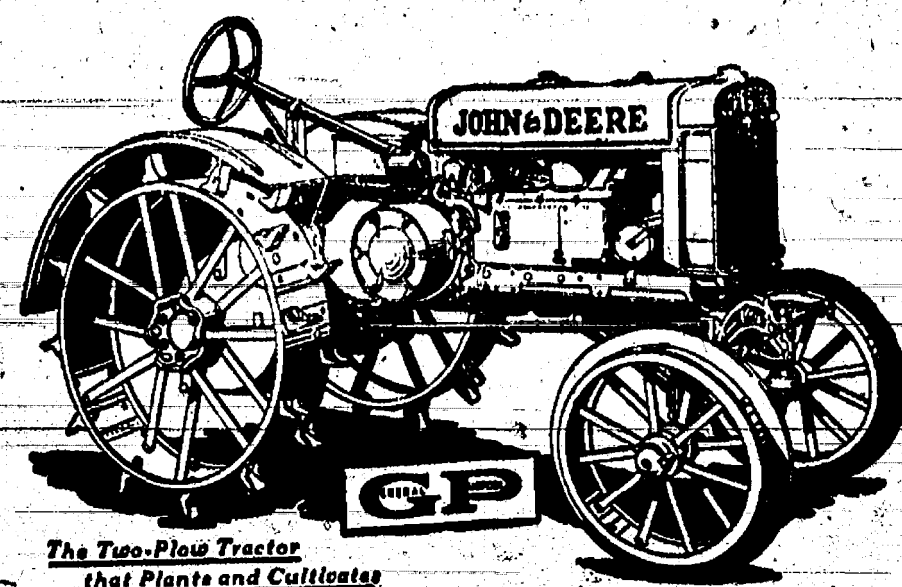

I WILL do right because it is right. I will drink defeat, if it comes at times, as good medicine. I will sweat by courageous effort—determined to succeed at all times.

I WILL be careful of my time, considerate of my health, jealous of my honor. I will help make the day great for any one with whom I come in contact. I will serve for the people whom I work with all my heart and with all my mind and with all my strength. For in the glory and success of my concern is hidden the glory and success of my own self.

I WILL make the day worth while. —George Matthew Adams.

Odd German Timepiece

One of the most unusual of the world's time-tellers is in Stettin, Germany. It has a large and terrifying face of a bearded man in the center of the dial, who every second rolls his eyes from side to side in the manner of the mythical Gog magog. In his mouth he holds a metal plate telling the day of the month, making in all a grotesque picture. It bears the inscription of 1536.

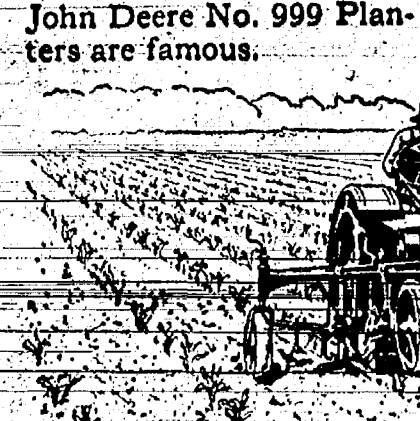

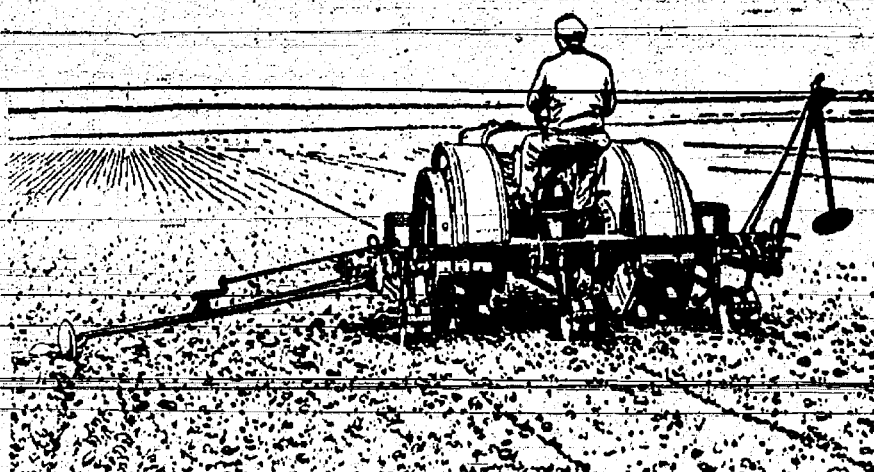

The light-weight but remarkably powerful and durable John Deere tractor of standard design.

The Two-Plow Tractor that Plants and Cultivates

Short-Handed?

Put the John Deere GP to Work

Besides being an ideal two-plow outfit the new John Deere General Purpose Tractor has great power to do all work, including planting and cultivating. With the planting outfit shown at the right one man can plant from 30 to 40 acres a day three rows at a time. There are no levers to operate on the GP—a mere touch of the foot raises and lowers planter. You get the same accurate planting for which John Deere No. 999 Planters are famous.

Equipped for cultivating as shown at the left the General Purpose Tractor will cultivate from 25 to 40 acres in a day—3 rows at a time. One man with this outfit will do the work of four men with four single-row cultivators and eight horses. All rigs are raised or lowered by a touch of the foot—without stopping the tractor. In all, there are more than 20 major farm jobs that the GP will do.

WITH A "GP" ON YOUR FARM—

You can do more work per day.
You can do it when it should be done—
You can do it with less help.
You can farm with less drudgery.

Furnace coils left overs from an era that has passed

Kerosene lamps, wood-burning cook stoves and corrugated washboards are the crude implements of an age that has passed. And still there are homes where the hot water supply comes from a rusty furnace coil! Sometimes the faucet brings water scalding hot—other times, merely lukewarm—yet, this crude pipe continually squanders 400 lbs. out of every ton of fuel that goes through the furnace door. Why not junk the old coil?

You can have instant hot water—always at the proper temperature—day or night at the turn of the tap. A thrifty Handley-Brown Heater will provide a never-failing supply for bathing, shaving, the dishes and the laundry. And the cost is surprisingly small—a few pennies a day! Stop in and we'll demonstrate.

We will allow you $5.00 for your old heater and $2.50 for the furnace coils

Favorite Bible Passages

Edwin Markham

Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Whoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant.—Matthew 20:26-27.

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God.—Matthew 19:24.

If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give it to the poor.—Matthew 19:21.

Comment: When Jesus says poor at this point, I think that Jesus means the members of his Holy Brotherhood of the Kingdom. I am chiefly interested in the social passion that pervades the Gospel as a sacred fire. This aspect of the great Message has never been emphasized sufficiently. (Compiled by the Bible Guild.)

Due to the foggy condition of the upper atmosphere Pilot Patterson was unable to complete his trip and made the forced landing safely. He took the mail pouches to the local postoffice, where they were sent out on the first mail train, and reported to Jackson that he was unable to complete his flight.

A man was hired to guard the plane for the night and Mr. Patterson remained here for the night. He left Tuesday morning about nine o'clock to complete his trip.

Volley Ball Season To Close March 24

A call for more volley ball players to report at the public school auditorium each Monday night has been issued by Clarence O. Bannmiller, president of the League. The volley ball season will close March 24, and it is hoped that more interest will be taken in the last few games yet to be played.

Tuesday evening of this week the Legion team defeated the K. of P. and the Independents won from the Odd Fellows. Next Monday evening the K. of P. will oppose the Odd Fellows and the Legion will play the Independents.

The Legion team has not been defeated this season and it is hoped that enough interest will be taken by other teams in the League to get their men out and show the Legion men a thing or two in the art of real volley ball playing.

There is one place in the United States where four states come together—Arizona, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico. As yet there is no town at this intersection.

TOO MUCH AHEAD

Whether business is good or bad, we cannot say. No one can tell by reading the newspapers. Some business leaders tell us that everything is rosy. Others say that business is poor.

One problem appears the most important. That is the question of debt. The installment purchasing plan and easy credits have led to an enormous increase in debts, personal and business.

Doubtless nothing serious will come of it. But the test of many things is to be made in the future. Installment purchasing may be very sound. It is until people buy beyond their means then it becomes dangerous. Many people have so obligated themselves. They have not "budgeted" their expenses but have mortgaged the future. They are much in the position of many who speculated in stocks. They have spent their paper profits.

And business enterprises have followed the same course. It has been easy for industry to sell its stocks and securities and industry has piled itself high with debts. There has been unwarrented expansion. If business declines even a small percentage, there will be inability to pay dividends, on stock issues and in some cases the interest on the preferred stocks and bonds that have been issued. Time will tell. It is still too early to make predictions.

HORSE POWER

There have been several arguments on the subject of automobile horsepower, due to whether it was power developed by the engine or power shown in performance on the road. Now it seems there can be an argument about horsepower developed by horses. In a contest at St. Johns, a team of horses exerted 18.9 horsepower, which is more than nine horsepower per horse.

Maybe the person who first gave definition to "horse power" was not acquainted with Michigan horses, and based his unit on the showing made by an inferior breed. Maybe the experts are right when they say a good horse, a one horsepower horse, has a lot of reserve energy which he shows in an emergency, becoming, as it were, five or six horses in a pinch—a sort of superhorse.

But we are inclined to believe that a good Michigan horse is so far better than the average that no question should be raised as to the validity of the horsepower as a unit of force, and that the test at St. Johns proved it.—Detroit News.

SIX CYLINDER..... SENTENCES

By DR. JOHN W. HOLLAND

Most family trees have "shady" spots. He who "kicks" himself will be made the "goat."

It is a just old world. Mud slingers finally get pelted with their own mud.

Be careful in lending money that you do not lose both your money and your friend. If more kind words were spoken to the living, the ministers and priests would not have to speak so many over the dead.

If you are proud of your strength, try breaking a hard-shelled habit, and you will become humble.

MODEL T FORDS

USUALLY, when a person buys a new Ford from us, he has by no means exhausted the transportation in his old car. We have several bargains to unused mileage in our showroom sight now, awaiting second owners. Naturally, the prices are so low that you could easily afford to have one—possibly for the second car which will solve your family's transportation problem.

Model T Fords are thoroughly reconditioned and guaranteed. We also have other makes of cars for second owners—priced according to the unused service in them. Regarding our used-car prices, remember this: There is no "padding" to care for excessive trade-in allowances, for the price of the new Ford is so low—so close to the cost of production and selling—that there is no leeway for unreasonable trade-in concessions. When you buy a used car from us you pay just what it is worth, and no more. We would hardly care to risk our reputation and good-will by following any other policy.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I am curious to find out why the chief justice of the United States supreme court wears a robe? Will you please answer in your question column?

Ans.—The practice of wearing gowns by the United States supreme court dates back to the beginning of our government and was copied from the English custom. It is supposed to make the proceedings more dignified. All members of the United States supreme court wear the robes, but the judges in other courts do not.

Ques.—Why is it that the Hebrews are called "Jews" and sometimes "Israelites"? Aren't they all the same?

Ans.—"Jew" is a corruption of the name "Judah." "Hebrew" was originally applied to Abraham and his descendants. Later the twelve tribes were called Israelites because they were descendants of Israel. After the tribes became lost, and what was left of them became assimilated with the tribe of Judah in Palestine. From this came the corrupt word "Jew," which is generally resented by the Hebrews of today.

Ques.—I have just read that hair grows from the roots instead of from the end, and the article recommended singeing. Now if it grows from the end what good will singeing do?

Ans.—It is true that hair grows from the roots. When hair becomes abnormally dry the ends will split thus allowing the oil to escape that would otherwise be retained to nourish the hair. Singeing seals the ends and prevents the hair from splitting readily.

Ques.—To settle an argument will you kindly state if there is such a thing as a hoop snake? And does it roll like a hoop?

Ans.—The hoop snake is common in the southern states; but they are harmless and spend most of their time burrowing underneath the ground. Superstitious people believe that this snake puts his tail in his mouth and then rolls like a hoop. There is no foundation for this belief.

Ques.—Was Helen Keller, the deaf, dumb and blind woman, born in that condition? Also how old is she, and where does she live?

Ans.—Helen Keller lost her sight through a severe spell of sickness when she was two years of age. Up to the time of her sickness she had learned to say a few words, but she forgot all except the word "water." She can talk, but cannot hear herself making vocal sounds, but does not know whether she is talking loud or soft. After several years with Miss Anne Sullivan as her tutor she graduated from Radcliffe with honors, and today she is a good lecturer despite the fact that she cannot see or hear. Everything she learns comes through the sense of touch. She is now 50 years old.

Ques.—Will you please answer what the abbreviation "Ltd" means, following the name of some firms?

Ans.—It is the abbreviation of the word "limited," and means that the liability of each stockholder is limited to the amount of shares he holds.

Ques.—I would like to ask if there was ever a president who died in the White House?

Ans.—Yes. There were two presidents who died in the White House. They were Zachary Taylor and William Henry Harrison.

Ques.—We are asking you to settle an argument by stating in your question department is a person can cut the stamp from a government stamped envelope and paste it on an ordinary envelope for mailing if the envelope was spoiled addressing it?

Ans.—No. This is not permitted by the Postoffice department. If the envelope has been spoiled it may be returned to the postoffice where you will be given its value in postage stamps.

The Radio Amateur
What do you mean Fide?

We are going to have a little chat about a topic of interest to most all of us and about which none of us have any absolute knowledge.

It seems that just a light wave can be reflected by a mirror and broken up by diffracting mediums so is it with radio waves.

Much investigation has been under way and some interesting things have been discovered in connection with fading and skip distance. Two noted men Kennedy and Henshaw some how or other got the idea that there is an ionized region above the earth's surface and that the free electrons in this region played an important part in reflecting and refracting the radio waves. The number of free electrons in this ionized region is affected by the time of day and season of the year. Kennedy believed that the sun-spots play an important part in this ionization process.

At any rate the practical part of it is of most interest to us, so we will have a look at the path of a wave after it leaves the sending antenna. If the wave is sent from the vertical half wave antenna it will of course travel in all directions but will be strongest at an angle somewhere between 30 to 60 degrees from the horizontal. Now the component of the wave that travels along the ground will soon be absorbed by the ground, trees, buildings, etc., so the part that reaches our receiver is a reflected wave. Waves going straight up will be lost by those arriving at the reflecting medium at an angle will be reflected back to earth some where. Experience shows that the shorter the wave length the greater will be the angle of reflection so we can expect the very short waves to come back to earth in some remote place and the longer the wave the nearer it will be reflected. The distance between the sending station and the place where the waves come back to earth is known as "skip distance." It would be simple if that were all, but it is not the character of the reflecting medium is undergoing continual change from morning to the next morning and from one year to the next so no definite assumptions can be made as to the exact place any wave will strike the earth after they do follow a somewhat systematic scheme and we are quite sure that if a station is operating on an 80 meter wave it will be able to communicate over about 50 miles in the day time and about 800 miles at night and that a station operating on 40 meters can cover about 500 miles in the day time and about 5,000 miles at night.

The station operating on twenty meters has a somewhat difficult time calculating where his waves will come back to earth if at all. In the day twenty meters is good for a few thousand miles and in the early evening and up until eleven P. M. I have heard WAT in the Antilles, but as the night grows shorter the twenty meters signals fade away and are no more until the sun starts to rise the next morning.

It is believed that fading is caused by the changing of the ionized layer that is the waves are reflected first to us and then away just as a ray of light would be reflected by a revolving mirror. Fading is much more pronounced on the short waves than on the long waves.

For the beginner in amateur radio it is well to start listening and copying on the 80 meter band because the signals there are about the steadiest of the three bands. There are some good commercial stations near the 80 meter band too. NAA at Arlington sends with a pure d. c. note at the bottom of the 80 meter band in usually goes at the rate of about 15 to 18 words per minute so we should be able to get an occasional letter. NAA never fades in the evening and it is a very good station to get code practice from.

To all who are interested in radio beyond being a mere novice, the best advice any one can give is "Get a copy of the A. R. R. L. Amateur Handbook" containing therein all the necessary "dope" on becoming a full fledged "ham."

Class C. W. WAT in played me a game of chess last Sunday P. M. over the radio. He is located in Norwalk, Ohio, about a hundred and thirty miles from here. Each square on the chess board has a name and when making a move it is necessary for him only to name the man and the square. Each of us has the complete set up and each moves both sides so that the complete game is before both. We played for two hours with out one break or interruption in transmission.

Dear friends: Our civilization was established, our government was founded, by men of a religious cast of mind. If they were not all personally religious, their mode of thought had been fashioned in a religious atmosphere. A church was almost the first structure erected by the colonists, both at Plymouth and Jamestown. It was an austere religion at Plymouth, a light-hearted religion at Jamestown, but religion was the most important ethical influence in both these cradles of American civilization, and in the Maryland of Lord Baltimore and Charles Carroll.

Before you decide what to do next Sunday think these facts over.

Sincerely yours,

A. E. Potts, Pastor.

RANSOM ARMSTRONG WRITES VERY INTERESTING LETTER

activities which included a trip to the southern coast of the island we were glad to take ship once more for Jamaica, passing down around the west end of Cuba. We left Havana in the evening, and 'tis a never-to-be-forgotten sight to see the lights along the Malecon and the blinking light at Morro as we steam thru the velvet blackness of a Cuban night; to sea.

The next day we passed the United States' gift to Cuba, the Isle of Pines, and a little later the Caymans, Royal Palm covered islands, the homes of many fishermen and cocoanut growers.

We seem to be the only travelers on this Blue Caribbean Sea for we have not even seen the smoke of a distant steamer or the flashing white of a fisher's sail. But next morning we wake to see the cloud-wreathed tops of Jamaica's mountains just before us. In an hour we are anchored in Port Antonio's glassy harbor and our boat is surrounded by the bobbing woolly heads of dozens of brown-skinned boys shouting to throw down a quarter, a dime, a nickel or even a penny. Whenever we did comply with their request, down, down they dived, we could see them through the clear water, but they invariably came up with the coin clutched in his hand, immediately transferred it to his mouth and shouted for more.

Taking the launch for shore, we walked up the narrow road through flowers and blossoming shrubs and trees of every shade and hue. At the hotel we took a car for the seventy-mile ride across the island to Kingston. It was Saturday and market day and we met hundreds of women boys and girls marching along the road, bound for market with their loads of sweet potatoes, yams, coconuts, wood and hay perched upon their heads. Sometimes one saw a woman driving a loaded donkey scarcely larger than a good sized dog, balancing at the same time a basket as large as a tub filled with fruit upon her grinning chocolate colored head.

The road was good, but the grades, curves and banks were breath-taking. It takes some driving to negotiate a big car around a curve just as you are meeting a great load of sugar cane drawn by two or three yokes of East Indian oxen. These oxen which seem to be used here to haul the loads seem to differ considerably from our cattle for their horns stand straight up in front while the Cuban work cattle of which I saw many have long horns like the by-gone Texas steer.

This drive through Jamaica is truly a drive through fairyland. So materially different from anything I'd ever seen. The colored people so different from our own southern negroes. They spoke with a decided English accent, making it difficult for me to understand them. Our chauffeur, a young clean linen-clad black boy, was a constant delight with his intelligent answers to our innumerable questions. To our ears he might just have been from some in 'old England instead of a native Jamaican negro.

On the principal square in Kingston stands an impressive statue of Queen Victoria reminding me of a banner I once saw stretched across a Windsor street by the ferry. It was at a Detroit National reunion of the G. A. R. and hundreds of people from the Middle West were streaming across the river leaving the U. S. to stand for their first time on foreign soil. On the banner it said "This is Canada. God save the Queen." As each old Western farmer stopped and read the device he snorted contemptuously and spit while his womanfolk gathered together and glanced about half apprehensively and didn't know whether they wished to go on any farther or not.

But all good things as well as all ill must pass so at last it came time to bid farewell to this "Lovely Isle" as it is very aptly called.

On our good ship, the Parimima we steamed out of this wonderful harbor over the roofs of the ancient city of Port Royal sunk by a violent earthquake in the year 1600. Destroyed, as the old chronicles say, by God for its exceeding wickedness. It was long the rendezvous for Morgan, Blackbeard, Captain Kidd and all those other pirates and buccaners of those early days, but a big buoy at the harbor's entrance is claimed to be fastened to the steeple of their long departed and silent church.

So now we are once more out on this gently rolling, smiling sea and from where I sit writing I can see the flying fish break into the air and sail dozens of yards away to escape whatever danger threatens them. Our next landing we expect to be at Colon, where I am sure new pleasures await us and where this will likely be mailed.

I don't know how you will greet this effusion—it got out of hand as I sometimes do when I get to talking and go on and on and on but I just wanted you to know that if home be where the heart is then "blow low, blow high, blow wet, blow dry," my home and heart is back in Michigan at Chelsea and Cavanaugh among the familiar scenes and friends of a life-time making.

Is Fred enjoying this? He's eating.

ing it alive! I don't know if we will ever get him used again to the little waves of Cavanaugh Lake.

Remember us kindly to any who would care to hear of Ransom and Fred. You know who it would be as well as I do myself, perhaps better.

Finis.

Your sincere friend,

Ransom S. Armstrong.

Holland's Bulb Fields

The miles and miles of bulb fields in Holland are a rare sight in spring, but the Dutch grower is no sentimentalist; the bulb fields would soon disappear; an unprofitable industry, if he did not send his workers out, day by day, to cut off the full blooms and thereby strengthen the bulbs for future flowering. The tourist is welcome to as many flowers as he can carry away from the "refuse pile" beside every patch.

But That's Different

Even after a motor car owner has privately condemned his own car to no uncertain language, he is surprised to hear how little a dealer will allow him for it on a trade.—Des Moines Register.
