"O Little Town of Bethlehem"

It was on a night nearly two thousand years ago that shepherds, watching their flocks by night, saw in the east the star which led them to the humble structure in the little town of Bethlehem where the Prince of Peace was born. Since that time there have been many examples of how Destiny often picks one of these "little towns" for the scene of events which change the course of human history.

As the time comes round again to celebrate the event which took place in the little town of Bethlehem so long ago, one cannot help feeling that nowhere is the true spirit of Christmas so much in evidence as it is in the "little towns" which dot the map of America—in the small communities such as this one. For the people who live in them are a home-loving people; they are a friendly people; they are a neighborly people. Unlike those who live in the great metropolitan centers, they are closely associated with each other in their everyday lives; they share with each other their joys and their sorrows; their trials and triumphs, and what affects one, to a large extent, affects all.

It has been our fortune to have charge of an important institution in such a community—the Home Paper. We are happy that such has been our fortune, that we are permitted to have a part in building up such a community as this, a community where friendliness and neighborliness are the essential elements in giving the phrase "peace on earth, good will to men" a real meaning.

So in this season of brightness and laughter in our homes, of joy of living and joy of giving in our hearts we bring to you this friendly and neighborly greeting "Merry Christmas!" and with it the sincere good wishes of —THE PUBLISHER

Kiddies To Be Guests Of Standard At Princess

For the pleasure of kiddies of Chelsea, and vicinity who are 12 years of age or under, the Chelsea Standard will give a theatre party at the Princess Theatre, Christmas afternoon. The time for the party has been set for 3 o'clock, to allow ample time for the Christmas dinner, and it is with the thought of giving our young friends an afternoon of entertainment as a climax to their Christmas pleasures that we are sponsoring this matinee show.

"Good News" has been secured by the theatre management for this occasion, which is one of the outstanding shows of the season, based on the famous stage success which ran for one year on Broadway.

To make the program a real "all comedy show", the screen song "Pony Boy" and Paramount Talkartoon comedy "Fire Bugs" have been secured as an added attraction.

The publisher of The Standard extends a hearty invitation to the boys and girls of this vicinity to be his guests at this matinee show Christmas day. Free tickets for the show will be distributed at the Standard office on Saturday, commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Seating capacity of the theatre limits the allotment of tickets to 225, distribution of which will be made to children applying in person.

In every detail of design, color and appointment, the new Ford Victoria is an impressive motor car. It has that excellence of style and the many out of the ordinary features that attract discerning buyers. It is a distinguished addition to a line of Ford DeLuxe Body Types that have won wide approval.

The Victoria is a four-passenger coupe with wide, comfortably cushioned seats. There are arm rests at either side of the rear seat. A recessed floor affords ample leg room. Front seats fold forward and both are adjustable. The interior is richly trimmed and deeply cushioned in harmonious colors with either Bedford Cord or Mohair, as desired.

A variety of special body colors is available for the Victoria from which a selection may be made. All are in pleasing contrast with the tan-colored top and rear quarter. Bright metal exterior parts are in rustless steel.

Fifty Miles, 10 Cents
Welcome to Einstein
Japan's Mighty Growth
That Strange DeathSome very important news about a new engine comes from London. Operated by gas generated from coke, this engine drove a truck weighing one ton, with 500 pounds of passengers, fifty miles at more than twenty miles an hour for a total cost of 10 cents.This is not pleasant news for railroads, already meeting competition from automobile trucks that can't run fifty miles for 10 cents.Professor Einstein, arriving in America, got a noisy reception and didn't like it. His friends are mathematicians, astronomy, abstract thought.
They don't yell or push.Remember, he is difficult to question Einstein, knowing well that only six men in the world could understand his answers to important questions, and probably no newspaper man is included in the six.The learned professor, supposed to supplant Newton, says the law of gravitation doesn't net everywhere.
Also, straight lines do not exist. "The infinite universe" is not infinite. It is all made of curves, and so comes back to the place whence it started. At least, that is how it sounds to ignorance, which asks Professor Einstein:
"If the universe isn't infinite, what is located outside of its boundaries? And if, as you say, there was a point in past history when time actually began, how do you explain that?"Professor Einstein says: "I explain it perfectly, but you can't understand the explanation." What can you reply to that?A mouse can't understand a telephone, although it hears the bell ringing every day.In any case Einstein is a gigantic mathematical genius. No doubt about that, and he is most welcome.In spite of earthquakes, tidal waves and restricted territory, census returns show that Japan's population is 64,587,000, more than 4,000,000 increase in five years.Greater Tokyo, with a population of 4,969,000, is the world's third city.
Including colonies, Japan's population is 60,000,000.A great, powerful people, the Japanese. What would be their number had they been able to spread unrestricted on our Pacific coast?Mysterious death, carried by the fog and killing scores in Belgium, worries the British. Reassuring words, to the effect that it only injured those that were already ill or very old, are not convincing.In Yorkshire, near Groomston, ten cattle are found mysteriously dead in the fog, with symptoms that look much like those of the Belgian death fog, which also killed cattle.Could it be—one guess is as good as another—that the recent shower of meteorites brought with it from distant space some poisonous substance that, reduced to powder by contact with the atmosphere, floats about in the fog and is carried into the lungs?
Meteorites bring us iron, copper, gold.
Why not arsenic or a worse unknown poison from some vicious interstellar neighbor?Russians are now accused of sending us "gas generators" and "anthracite coal" for $1 a ton less than it costs to produce. That probably is guess work.
We don't know what is costs Russia to produce coal.You will be told by the ignorant and those that reject real science in favor of some substitute that "germs and microbes" are all nonsense, everything being "in the mind."The authorities of a hospital had no such theory. Fortunately, three patients died, strangely, immediately after operations. Investigation showed that a sterilizing machine, employed in the operating room, had insufficient steam heat and streptococci and staphylococci on operating room linen passed through it unharmed and killed the patients with whom they came in contact.Mr. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, says that government lending money to buy human food is "perilously near" the dote.On the other hand, allowing many people to be hungry might bring you "perilously near" to dangerous rioting or something worse.The dote is humiliating to those that receive expensive tax payers that provide.The British, grown wise by watching the mistakes of others, know that the important thing is to keep human beings fed. Then you can manage them.Senator Walsh of Massachusetts wants the government to establish a five-day week in government service to help the employment situation.Industrialists have learned that the eight-hour day is possible and beneficial. Year in and year out men will do more good work in eight hours a day than they would in ten hours a day.Perhaps it will be discovered that men can do more work in a five-day week lifetime than on the old plan.

Farm-Made Friendship

Henry Hicks was almost nine and I was half past eight—Had a couple seat at school and traded hooks and bait.
Used to say, when we grew up,
We'd never marry wives—
Buy a farm and live alone together all our lives.

Human plans are fickle things
When taken of their best;
Hickses sold their farm one day
To move away out west.
Spent our last day on the creek and at the pasture gate—
Good-bye's said for grownup folks
But worse for mine and eight

Life has brought me many friends
The wise the short, the tall;
Still abides a friendly face More precious than them all—
Just a freckled, friendly face
That seems to smile and say:
"Farm-made friendship is the best And never fades away."

SCHOOL NOTES

By Alvin Schiller
Chelsea Hi was defeated in a fast game of basketball played here last Friday evening with Lincoln Hi of Detroit. This was the team that Chelsea wound up their football season with by defeating them 6 to 0.

The Lincoln boys came onto the floor with revenge in their hearts and had Chelsea beat in determination right from the start.

Fast playing by both teams marked the first quarter, and finally ended with Lincoln out in the lead 14 to 5.

The second quarter was not quite so fast as the first and Lincoln remained in the lead with a 19 to 9 score.

Third quarter was another of the fast and wonderfully played periods of the Lincoln team in which they ran the score up to 26 to 13.

In the last quarter the Lincoln boys displayed some of the finest passwork that was ever displayed by a high school team. They wound up the game with a score of 45 to 15 in their favor.

Chelsea Hi Reserves won their Try Standard Liners for results—25c. December 20, at 2:30 p. m. game, defeating the Lincoln Reserves 15 to 9. The score at the end of the first quarter was 4 to 0 in favor of Lincoln, but in the second quarter Chelsea got started and ran the score up to 6 to 5 in their favor.

At the end of the third quarter the score was 12 to 7 in favor of Chelsea, and the game finally wound up with the Chelsea Reserves in the lead, 15 to 9.

"Davie" Was Just Dog

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)
IF DAVIE had not been along, Ethel would not have been run down by the swift moving truck. Davie and Ethel were having their morning walk along upper Broadway in the glorious sunshine. It was all over in a few fleeting moments. Davie darted across a street, Ethel now actually began to save him from an oncoming truck and a moment later she lay a huddled mass of unconsciousness in the dusty street.

The usual crowd gathered swiftly, but not too swiftly for Davie to leap over and mount guard beside his beloved mistress. His great black body bristled and ominous growls and strong teeth dared anyone to touch his property.

The frightened mob hung back while a red pool grew alarmingly bigger beside the prostrate Ethel.

And still on one was brave enough to risk a life for a life until John Strange saw the situation, pulled his muscles taut and gripped Davie firmly by the jaw. The struggle lasted a breathless moment. There was a badly torn hand for John Strange, a dawning of understanding in online eyes as if mastery had been recognized.

Ethel was carried swiftly and tenderly into the drug store on the corner to await the ambulance, and John Strange followed to get his torn hand dressed. Davie followed meekly.

John Strange, when he appeared again with his hand neatly bandaged, saw Davie's dejection and had compassion on him.

"Come on, old boy," he said, "you won't be permitted to go along with your mistress to the hospital, so you had better stay with me."

Davie, full right in with the idea for he across and followed Strange in his dignified dog fashion, after casting a lingering glance at his unconscious mistress.

Strange gazed ruefully down at the hand in which the dog's teeth had left a nasty gash. Unfortunately it was his working hand—that famous left hand known so well for its cartoons.

When Davie's mistress finally did wake from her long coma she felt reasonably comfortable and happily quite uncertain as to what had happened.

"Davie," she called softly, "where's my Davie boy?"

Nurse and doctor exchanged glances. They imagined there was a man in the case who was no doubt ignorant of the fact that his sweetheart was lying in the hospital swathed in bandages.

There had been nothing with which to trace Ethel's identity and no message had reached the hospital regarding her.

"My dog," she questioned pitiously. "He is all I have in the world—my Davie."

But Davie was well cared for by John Strange and the two were fast becoming firm friends. Strange had gone to the address marked on the dog's collar and found it to be an empty house. He scanned the personal column in a morning paper regularly but decided that either Davie's mistress had not recovered from the accident or she dreaded to inquire into her dog's fate.

Ethel, however, was making a frantic search for Davie upon her release from the hospital, but it was not until she read a line in her newspaper that a clue was given her as to the name of the man whose courage in tackling Davie had perhaps saved her life.

"We are pleased to announce," the article read, "that our own John Strange will again be favoring us with his famous left-handed cartoons. His injured fingers are ready now to handle the pen." Ethel knew, without being told, that John Strange was the man to whom she was indebted.

It was during a sultry evening when she was having her dinner in a small restaurant that she suddenly realized that the man at next table to her own was handling his fork with a very much scathed hand. In a moment she had scribbled a note on a bit of paper and asked her waitress to deliver it at the next table.

The next moment two pairs of eyes, destined from the beginning to meet, were gazing at each other. John Strange arose and sat down at Ethel's table and the whole story from the second that Davie went on guard was told to the listening girl.

"And now," said Strange, "shall we walk up Broadway so that I can go in and get Davie? He little knows the joy in store for him. I have seen in his dog eyes many a time, a great longing."

"But your hand," said Ethel softly. "He tore it badly."

Strange looked down into Ethel's eyes. "He was doing his duty—guarding his treasure," he said. "I can only admire him for it."

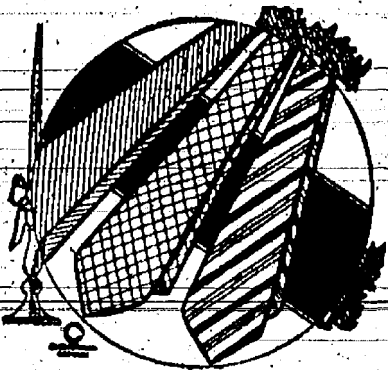

And fifteen minutes later the usual Broadway strollers were amused to see a great black dog bounding down the walk as if suddenly gone mad.

"He's just dog," laughed Ethel and the tears were very near her eyes, "but he's very, very dear, aren't you, Davie boy?"

Looking up she caught something in John Strange's blue eyes which made her color softly and realize that Davie had brought something really wonderful into her life.

Psalm 91, quoting verses 1-11

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in Him will I trust.

Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence. He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shall thou trust: His truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday. A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee. Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked.

Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the Most High, thy habitation; there shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling. For He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.
