Local Woman Injured In Motorbus Mishap

The 8:10 westbound motorbus of the Eastern Michigan Transportation Co., in slowing down to let a passenger off Monday evening at the intersection of South Main St. and US-12, skidded across the street, crashing into the air pump of the Staebler Oil Co.

Miss Theresa McKernan of Lyndon township, who was a passenger on the bus, received injuries to her back and arm, and was taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor, where she is employed as a nurse.

The damaged air pump was sent to the factory for repairs, and air is being supplied by direct connection with the air motor.

Mexican Orchestra Appears At Kiwanis

Members of Ramos Mexican Orchestra, the musical organization which appeared in concert at the public school auditorium Monday night, were guests of the local Kiwanis club at their regular meeting Monday evening.

Following the luncheon the musicians rendered several instrumental and vocal selections, displaying their exceptional ability in the realm of music. P. L. Clark was in charge of the program.

Chief Chirsky, of the Triquetri tribe, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis meeting next Monday evening. H. D. Withers will have charge of the program.

Welsh Singers - Ramos Orchestra Appear Here

Two of the most outstanding musical ensembles in the history of Chelsea entertainment bookings were presented at the public school auditorium during the past week under the auspices of the Senior class of Chelsea high school.

On Thursday evening the world-renowned Welsh Singers, fourteen in number, appeared in a return engagement. Their program consisted of choruses, duets and solos, and was under the direction of R. Festyn Davies, celebrated conductor and organizer of this famous group of singers. The group have been acclaimed Britain's "greatest male ensemble," and to those who heard them it is generally agreed that they are justly deserving of a great title.

Monday evening's entertainment was presented by the Ramos Mexican Orchestra, under the direction of Hesiquio Ramos, father of the other members of the orchestra—two sons and three daughters. All members of the orchestra displayed exceptional ability as instrumentalists of high rank and the seniors sang with unusual charm.

The high school Seniors and Supt. Clark should be complimented for securing this high class talent for the pleasure of Chelsea music-lovers.

ENTERTAINS FOR HUSBAND

Mrs. George Hadley entertained at a six o'clock dinner Sunday evening, as a surprise for her husband in honor of his 45th birthday anniversary. TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

He had one arm upon the wheel. Quite joyful was his ride; The other one was wrapped around "The sweetie" by his side.

A copper yelled: "Use both your arms!" In a voice that carried far; "I can't," the loving again replied, "I have to steer the car."

PROFESSOR SPEAKS ON WORLD PROBLEMS AT FELLOWSHIP MEETING

Dr. W. D. Henderson, of U. of M. Delivers Address At Methodist Church Tuesday Evening.

Dr. W. D. Henderson, of the University of Michigan, spoke before the Fellowship club of the M. E. Church Tuesday evening. His subject was "Hands or Arms Across the Sea."

Dr. Henderson opened his lecture by calling attention to the four great problems that confront the world, namely: First, International Peace; second, Problem of Government; third, Machine Age—Machine versus the Man; and fourth, Learning to Live Together. He first called attention to the great reversal of civilization that would surely come should the peace of the world be destroyed.

In treating the second problem, he said: "There are three great experiments in government today—Communism, Fascism and Democracy." He pointed out that Russian Communism is the most colossal experiment in government but probably has in it the seeds of destruction. He raised the question as to what will happen to the greatest experiment in Dictatorship, Italy when Mussolini dies? He then stated that he believes there is great hope for the experiment in Democracy of which England and the United States are the greatest examples, providing government "of the people, by the people and for the people" means in the final analysis in this last phrase "for the people," all the people instead of a certain class.

Under the third point, machine age or machine versus the man, he gave statistics to show that our machine age has brought about over production in many lines. For example, we had 2,500,000 bushels of wheat in elevators in the United States before last year's harvest began, a year ago we produced 4,600,000 bushels of potatoes and we are only able to consume 3,000,000 bushels per year, and the Hoover investigating committee in industry has just reported that we have shoe factories enough in the United States at the present time at peak production to produce in four months 300,000,000 pairs of shoes, hence, an average supply of three pairs of shoes every four months for every man, woman and child in the United States. In the face of these facts, he stated we go on discussing how we can make two potatoes grow where formerly only one grew and how we can make more automatic machinery to speed up production.

The Ford Victoria

A NEW FORD BODY TYPE OF DISTINCTIVE BEAUTY

The newest, latest addition to the wide variety of Ford body types is the distinguished Victoria. It marks a new degree of beauty and of value in a low-price car.

The striking lines of the Ford Victoria are especially apparent in the graceful sweep of the straighter, lower top, the slanting windshield and the curving bustle back, with the spare wheel set at a conforming angle. There is a suggestion of continental design also in the shape and size of the side windows and the intimate, four-passenger interior arrangement.

The comfortable, deeply cushioned seats are upholstered in luxurious mohair or fashionable Bedford cord, optional with the purchaser. Appointments and hardware reflect the manner of a custom-built car.

Another appreciated feature of the new Ford Victoria is a choice of attractive body colors. They complement its fresh new lines and contour and help to give it distinctive place on every highway.

Nathan Straus
A Farmer's Charter
So Much Russian Money
See Your Country

The death of Nathan Straus in New York, three weeks before the completion of his eighty-third year, is a great loss to this country.

Mr. Straus set an example of wise philanthropy, devoting more than a quarter of a century of his active working years, and a substantial fortune, to his fight for pure milk throughout the United States. As an example to others he distributed pasteurized milk, including milk properly modified for young infants, in the poor districts of New York.

His influence is felt in foreign countries as well as here. Because of his work pasteurization of milk and careful handling and bottling are now enforced by law, and, thanks to Mr. Straus, the death rate among infants in New York has been cut down 50 per cent.

Mr. Straus was one of three brothers, all distinguished for good citizenship and public spirit.

His brother Isaac, whose heroic death on the Titanic will be long remembered, represented his state in congress, and was one of the three greatest merchants produced by the United States thus far. A monument in New York city was erected in his honor. Oscar Straus, the youngest brother, represented this country as ambassador to Turkey at Constantinople, and was in the cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt.

Nathan Straus literally saved the lives of millions of children. His memory will be cherished in the hearts of millions all over the world.

Farmers of Saskatchewan have formulated a "charter of liberty." They demand a "co-operative commonwealth within the British empire." That has a Russian sound.

The demand a basic price for wheat to cover the cost of production, retroactive to the first of August. That sounds like Uncle Sam.

They would abolish grain exchanges and all speculation in farm products. And they would have the government crop insurance, "guaranteeing all farmers' production against all natural risks." That sounds like heaven.

Also the farmers ask an arrangement that would require the cost of things bought by farmers to fit the selling price of commodities that the farmer produces.

Where does Russia get the money?

Her annual budget is $16,500,000,000, much bigger than ours. Biggest in the world, and she has a surplus of $750,000,000, while we face a deficit.

The Swedish Krupp works receive from Russia an order for military supplies amounting to $14,500,000, and Germany has just shipped into Russia thirty carloads of machinery and equipment for a large ammunition factory, one of several small shipments sent by Germany to Russia within the last few years. German engineers and chemists will erect and supervise the factories, which can be used, and probably are intended, to manufacture poisonous war gas. Perhaps we underestimate Russia. The allies may have made a mistake disarming Germany and making her worthless as a buffer between Russia and western Europe.

Every American should see all of this wide, beautiful country. West, East, North and South, going by one railroad and returning by another, and without making one trip through the Panama canal.

The pessimist especially should see his country, from the plant trees of Washington and Oregon in the Northwest, to the palm trees and sand beaches of Florida.

A trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific means only three nights on the train now, and the comfort of modern travel is unbelievable—solid trains of steel cars, running smoothly, with every comfort of a first-class hotel, and the additional pleasure of going somewhere and seeing the world as you go.

You sympathize with the turtle because he cannot go far. But at least he goes as far as he can.

You feel sorry for the Texas tick, crushed from a cow, and unable in his whole lifetime to crawl more than two or three feet in search of another cow's leg to start in business again. Don't be a turtle or a Texas tick. Travel, see your country.

Doctor Williams, editor of Mental Hygiene, says, very truly, that those that practice or contemplate trial marriage "lack sincerity and faith in each other."

The girl in the partnership may be sure of one thing—namely, that the man thinks little of her.

If his opinion of her were what it should be he would want to marry and forever, with no trial, no doubts and no misgivings.

Detroit, after a period of hibernation, shows signs of life at full speed. Tens of thousands of additional men have gone to work. Seventy-five thousand started at the Ford River Rouge plant.

Chevrolet promises 30,000 steady jobs through the winter. Dodge, Ford, Lincoln, Buick, Cadillac and Chrysler are all increasing inventory. (©1931, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

METHODIST HOME

Miss Mary Jean Voigh of Fowlerville spent the week-end with her grand aunt, Mrs. Elvira Green. Miss Voigh is attending the University at Ann Arbor, taking lessons on the violin. She entertained the family by a number of choice renditions in the auditorium on Saturday evening. She has visited here before and will be welcomed any time she can come again.

Mrs. George Barnhart visited her sister's family in Toledo on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Batchelor of Detroit called on Mrs. Frances Robtoy on Sunday. Their daughter, Miss Sally, accompanied them.

Miss Edith Warner spent the week-end with her sister and family in Adrian.

Mrs. Hollapeter is expected to return from her vacation on Thursday. Her duties have been well taken care of by her daughter, Mrs. Martin, during her absence.

Mrs. Charles Park has been confined to the bed for the past few days but is somewhat improved at this writing.

Mrs. Frances Robtoy has now spent four weeks in bed with her fractured hip. It will be remembered that she fell Christmas morning, fracturing the hip. She is a model of cheerfulness during her intense suffering and puts to shame many of us who complain with very much less affliction.

Miss Ruth Weber is acting as a special nurse and has won many friends by her pleasant and gentle manner.

Mrs. Thompson of Ypsilanti was a caller of Mrs. Frances Robtoy on Sunday.

Mrs. Dorothy Longworth, who has been in attendance for Mrs. Amelia Lewis, is compelled to leave for a short vacation. Mrs. Rieky of Saline takes her place. Mrs. Longworth has made many friends while she has been here any they wish her well in the future, hoping that she will return to the home.

Florida has no attractions for us this winter, as their weather cannot exceed what we are getting. Thanks to old probabilities.

Charles Park had as a visitor on Sunday his grandson who is attending the Normal at Ypsilanti.

Mrs. Ione Gorton entertained Mrs. Lathrop of Kalamazoo a couple of days last week.

We were grieved last week by the news of the fatal auto accident to the Rev. J. J. Pating, superintendent of the Methodist Out People's Home in Grand Rapids. He and his wife visited the home last summer and their visit is remembered with pleasure.

Mrs. Mary Lemon has been confined to her room with a severe cold, but is better now.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Sanford of Detroit and Miss Lottie Miller of Dryden were guests of their aunt and cousin, Miss Sarah Cooley on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Wade of Hudson made Mrs. Elizabeth Filer a visit on Friday.

LIMA CENTER

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Russell and son called on friends in Ann Arbor, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seitz and family spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern of Saline.

Miss Esther Reichert of Ann Arbor spent Sunday at the home of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seitz and family of Ypsilanti and Mr. and Mrs. John Seitz and family of Ann Arbor spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seitz.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jacoby of Detroit called on Mr. and Mrs. Harley Russell, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trinkle visited the former's brother Otto and family of Manchester on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Schmid and little daughter and Mrs. Kittle of Eldred Blvd., Ann Arbor, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Russell on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Holminger and daughter, Harriet, Miss Zola Marsh and Miss Mabel Notten spent one evening last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Eschelbach entertained Mr. and Mrs. Burt Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Englehart, Mrs. Mata-Lucht and Christ Klein at an oyster supper, Monday evening.

UNADILLA

Mrs. Mae Pinkham and daughter Lathrop of Kalamazoo were recent guests at the home of Eli Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Marshall entertained at a birthday dinner party on Monday.

Miss Sarah Grindley and Mrs. Robinson of Detroit were Tuesday afternoon callers at the Claude Rose home.

Mrs. Wm. McRobbie was called to Detroit on Tuesday by the serious illness of her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin Marshall and family were guests of her sister in Albion on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Palmer of Eaton Rapids were visitors of her parents on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Buhl have been spending several days with their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Cranna and family.

Howard May and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orson Clark were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Teachout.

Miss Florence Collins of Pontiac, should be sufficient to speak to him. Merely make some remark to ex-

Lyons, and Emmett Page and family of Pontiac were called here the past week by the illness and death of their father, W. B. Collins.

A. J. May and wife have been spending several days with their son, Francis May and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Teachout and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Teachout were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Barnum.

Mr. and Mrs. Vet Bullis and Mr. and Mrs. John Grosshans were Sunday guests of Glenn Mayer and family.

MASON—A resolution adopted by the board of supervisors Monday names board of county road commissioners in particular and all other departments in general and urges that all supplies and equipment possible to be purchased within the county be bought here. It is said that action by the county road board in buying a fleet of Indiana trucks for highway work has angered Lansing motor car manufacturers.—News.

SALINE—A. Z. Smith, founder of the Milan Leader half a century ago, died at his home in California on January 2, according to the last issue of The Leader. He was 73 years old at the time of his death and had been in the publishing business until within a few years ago.—Observer.

HATCHERY OVERSEER ASKED TO HELP LAND BIG TROUT

For a fish hatchery overseer to catch someone in the act of trying to catch one of the institution's prize exhibition trout from a hatchery pond is enough provocation for anger, but for the poacher to calmly ask the overseer to help him "land the big one," would be a little beyond human endurance.

Claud Lydell, overseer of the Lydell Hatchery at Comstock Park was walking around the grounds when he saw unwarranted splashing in the pond in which he retained exhibition fish. Circling around the edge of the pond Lydell saw a long line extending into the water. At one end was a huge, splashing fish. At the other end and near a clump of bushes was a boy.

"Hey," the boy called to Lydell, "will you help me land him? He's a whopper."

Lydell told this story to overseers of Michigan hatcheries, assembled at Lansing for a general conference of members of the Fish Division of the Conservation Department.

Unnumbered hundreds of fish are stolen every year from hatchery ponds, the Overseers said. And not all of the offenders are boys. Adults have been caught stealing hatchery fish. Frequently nets and parts of nets have been discovered in the ponds after the approach of a hatchery employee had frightened away the poacher.

It is not only the big fish that are stolen, according to the overseers. Four- and five-inch fingerling trout have been taken in large quantities.

Complete day and night patrolling of all hatchery ponds is a financial and physical impossibility. Many of the ponds are at considerable distances from the hatchery buildings.

One hatchery was successful in keeping its fish by buying "bomb" lights along the banks. It is claimed that the lights disturbed poaching; frightened away herons and other predators and attracted fish food in the way of flies and bugs.

METHOD OF DISTRIBUTING FISH TO BE CHANGED

While the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation is not ready to completely abandon the application system in determining locations for planting fish, it is gradually making less use of the system.

It is considered possible that in a short time fish will be planted entirely under the direction of those who have studied lakes and stream conditions and are familiar with the needs of various waters.

The Conservation Department is now carrying on work to determine the fish capacities of streams and lakes of various types, sizes, bottom composition, etc., to make it possible for the Fish Division to plant fish intelligently and with the least loss. As this work progresses it will be more and more possible to plant fish scientifically; placing fish of one species in waters adapted best to that particular species; placing fish where they are most needed and neglecting those waters in which lack of food or other conditions makes survival of planted fish improbable or impossible.

Because of the present large demand for bass and because of the fact that the propagation of bass is still limited in Michigan, extreme care is exercised in determining where these fish shall be planted. Beginning this year, all applications for bass and bluegills will be returned to the overseers of the fish hatchery nearest to the waters for which the plant is requested. The Fish Division will be guided somewhat by his recommendation in determining whether the waters are suitable for bass or bluegills, or whether fish are needed.

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT TO UNDERGO REORGANIZATION

A reorganization of the field operations of the Law Enforcement Division of the Department of Conservation, while decreasing the number of men, will create a more mobile force, has been authorized by the Conservation Commission.

The Commission, at its regular January meeting, authorized the retirement of men who had become incapable for efficient work because of their age or for other reasons.

It was recommended that worthy men, retired because of age, and who had seen long service in the Department, be given the game and fish license agencies for their counties. Commissions would form a substantial income.

The department deeply regrets that these retirements have become necessary. "Director George R. Hogarth said referring to the commission's action. "It is the same problem that is encountered by business organizations every day. When a man reaches an age when he can no longer perform his duties he must be let go, even though he has given his best years to faithful service. That we have no retirement fund or pension system is very unfortunate."

Through the reduction in the total number of the field force each county in the lower peninsula will be limited to one conservation officer. In districts where it is thought necessary, one or more "free lance" officers will be attached to headquarters to be available for call to any part of the district to answer complaints or to assist the local officer.

Nugget of Wisdom

To be happy it is first necessary to determine to be happy, not simply to hope to be happy.

MANCHESTER—Austin Yocum, who has been a resident of Manchester since October 1900, and has been actively engaged in business for about 35 years, has concluded to retire. He has been conducting a closing-out sale the past two weeks, and on Saturday night intends to close the doors. The sale has been conducted by R. H. Speese of Sturgis and the residue of the stock will be moved to Sturgis, where there is said to be a good opening for a store, and his son, William Yocum and Mr. Speese will have charge there.—Enterprise.

Mr. Yocum was a former resident of Chelsea.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by GEORGE DORSEY, Ph. D., LL. D.

Propaganda for Sanity

IN EDUCATION attempting to encourage creative thought, or merely trying to divert thinking into old channels and old little it entirely? Thinking on old lines is to continue in the same old way regardless of reason or intelligence. Thinking soundly is to wake up and ask questions—it is to make new creations possible.

I went through one school and was halfway through another before I woke up and discovered that I was alive; that it is no sin to question anybody or anything; and that there are several problems yet unsolved. It was quite too long before I realized the difference between "That is so" and "That is necessarily so"; quite too long before I realized that going to college did not necessarily mean anything in particular.

Curricula change and lists of "electives" grow like weeds, but the human nature in the professors—and in the pupils remains the same. The school merely demands that a certain amount of a specified number of courses be absorbed; the success of the course is measured by the number that take it.

The curriculum itself reads like a multi-order catalogue. No conceivable course is omitted except one on life and how to get more out of it with less friction to others and less lost motion to the liver.

All this may sound like propaganda. It is. Propaganda for sanity; for enlightenment; for brain work; for time to live and the acquisition of a few simple tools to live with; for understanding; for such clarity as will abolish the need for aims; for honesty in values and intelligences in legislation; for critical judgments; for dispassionate opinions; for hatred of shams, intolerance, falsehood, and deception; for riddance of quacks, mountebanks, impostors, charlatans, vermin, and ignorance; for a cure for every family and a joy ride through life for every one; for socially useful behavior.

Everything that man has made, done, said, and thought, has been built on the impulse to live, organic hunger for food and mate, fashioned, molded, and reinforced by the emotional drive to life. Every normal human being has that equipment at birth. It is in the very marrow of the child's bones. In the propaganda of its nerves.

It can be encouraged to grow, to expand, to blossom, to bear fruit. It may produce an inspiring leader who will show the way and be the way to bring a new order into the world of human affairs.

Society may kill him. Never mind. Society will build a monument to him in admiration of his having dared to be a leader. The least we can do is to keep our hands off the corpse of youth.

Emotional drives are not new in man, or even in primates. The newness, the uniqueness, are man's responses. Race and fear once led to flight or fight; they now supply the drives which may lead to drink, to burglary, to murder, to insanity, to suicide even.

As Thomas points out, the day-dreamer may become a scientist, a scintillator, or a liar; the adventurer, a vagabond, cowboy, missionary, geologist, or ethnologist; the killer may shoot big game with a rifle or with a camera.

The problem, then, is such a reorganization of society that socially useful behavior shall be at least as profitable and interesting as unsocial or criminal behavior.

What is wrong with the picture? Each one, I repeat, will have his own opinion and his own remedy—and will be ready enough to express opinion and remedy, and back up both with hot argument, if necessary. But what will be about it?

Parents will continue to do business with unsocial or criminal professions, and teachers will probably labor in vain for a living wage; but there is one thing both parents and teachers can do: give youth the opportunity to become conscious of society, of human life, of humanity; encourage it to think, to speculate, to revalue, to weigh evidence, to become disinterested, to choose, to see through things, to see things and life objectively. Critical consciousness.

How has "progress" been made in medicine, in chemistry, in physics, in engineering in all the respects in which progress has been made? By doubts, by questionings, by testings of hypotheses, by solutions of problems, by critical activity in the human cortex.

Man is a free moral agent and can be magnanimous and deal disinterestedly, humanity is a definite goal, social justice is desirable and possible, individual lives may be gloriously diversified, uniquely individualized, and yet socially useful; or, these are mere phrases, snares to catch gulls, swimming away for troubled souls. Here again, opinions will differ; but no one will pretend that society today is organized (as a living organism is organized) or that social relations are one whit more intelligently ordered than in the days of Pericles or Julius Caesar.

The problem, then, narrows down to this: children of nature and creatures of circumstances as we are, can we discover what organic evolution is up to and can we help it on its way? (© by George A. Dorsey.)

MUST HAVE PERMIT TO CARRY HUNTING ARMS IN GAME AREA

Permits are now being required by the Conservation Department of all persons desiring to carry any kind of hunting arms in all areas frequented by game on which the season is closed.

The requirement is being made in accordance with an opinion of the office of the attorney general and with Chapter 4, Section 5, of the General Game Laws of 1929.

This requirement means that a permit must be obtained now to carry either shotgun or rifle in any of the game areas of the Lower Peninsula.

A permit will not be necessary to carry a shot gun in the Upper Peninsula until after January 31, when the rabbit season ends in that section of the state. During the closed deer season a permit to carry a rifle or a shot gun loaded with buckshot, slug load or single ball load in any area frequented by deer, is necessary.

Ducks and Geese Are Fed Pretty Much Alike

Ducks and geese are fed just about alike. They should be kept warm and dry and fed about four or five times per day. All young water fowl should have soft foods, that is to say, wet mash mixed as follows: Three parts yellow corn meal, four parts bran, one part red dog or low-grade flour by weight. Add to this 10 per cent of high-grade meat scraps, 1 per cent of fine sand, and mix with water or milk so that it is quite moist but not sloppy. Feed this every two or three hours for two weeks.

Care for Chicks

Raising good chicks is about the most important thing on a poultry farm. That to a large extent determines your profits. If you neglect the chicks by crowding them too closely, by letting the house become filthy and the soil in bad shape, you may produce weak chicks that do not live well and lay well. It is comparatively easy to grow good chicks if you are willing to do the necessary work of properly caring for the chicks.

Turkeys on Upgrade

Turkey raising is on the upgrade, now that the blackhead bugaboo has been done away with. And the turkey growers are getting the marketing system down to a fine point, too. Six turkey marketing associations have just been formed in various parts of Colorado, and the next thing will be a statewide pool. Profits received by members of turkey marketing pools in the West last year were very pleasing—that's why new pools are being formed to handle this year's crop.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "de man dat's attic complotly 'bout getting de wust of everything is simply 'advertisin' de fact dat he's a pore business man."—Washington Star.

HILLSDALE COUNTY MAN ASSESSED HEAVY FINE

A midwinter bath taken by Conservation Officer C. G. Cole in the waters of Long Lake in Hillsdale County, cost Boyd Zeider of Reading, $109.60.

Cole and Conservation Officer Faye Warner were patrolling the numerous lakes in the County. Far out on Long Lake they saw a man and a woman in a row-boat lifting a gill net. Cole and Warner circled the lake and found an automobile parked near a dock. They hid in waiting for two hours and until the boat pulled in to the dock. The woman advanced to reconnoiter while the man remained aboard the boat. When the woman saw the officers she ran for the dock. Cole outdistanced her. However, the man in the boat pulled away. He was ten feet from the end of the dock when Cole arrived. Cole dove into 15 feet of icy water and managed to grab the stern of the boat.

Zeider was fined $100 and paid court costs of $9.60. The net and fish were confiscated. Mrs. Zeider was not arrested.

WHITEFISH YIELD NEW SOURCE OF REVENUE

Whitefish, long an important staple of the commercial fishing industry of Michigan is today yielding a new and important source of revenue—"caviar."

A recent report of the Department of Conservation that the waters surrounding the state last year produced 4,463 pounds of caviar caused some questioning remarks, for sturgeon are protected in Michigan.

Whitefish "caviar" came into popularity after the cessation of trade relations with Russia disrupted the caviar market. Today the popularity of caviar taken from whitefish is forming an important source of income for Michigan fishermen.

Whitefish roe is a by product of the commercial fishing industry. It is secured mostly during the month of October in advance of the spawning season of the whitefish.

Builders of Famous Tunnel

Clifford M. Holland was the original engineer of the Holland vehicular tunnel, and this tunnel was named for him. After his death, the work was continued under the direction of his assistant, Milton H. Freeman. Six months later Mr. Freeman died, and the position of civil engineer of the project was given to Mr. A. Singstad, who saw the construction through to its completion.

End to Railroad Passes

The Pennsylvania railroad directors voted December 15, 1925, to discontinue the issue of passes and free tickets of all kinds from and after January 1, 1926, and other big railroads took similar action shortly thereafter. All issuance of passes was not stopped, however, until the interstate commerce law was amended in June, 1926.

Old Charlie was just a cow pony,
With a saddle marked, buck-kneed and lank.
And double O brand on the flank.
His sire was just one of the herd—
His mother as common as he;
But little we thought of his pedigree.

He carried us safe to the school house
Through the mud or the sleet or the snow,
And never put up an objection
Whenever we wanted to go.
And dull was that bright day of autumn,
And many the tears that we shed,
When father came up from the barnyard
And told us old Charlie was dead.

Sometimes in my dreaming I ride him
Again through the snow and the rain
And gallop on in my fancy
I hear the wind sing through his mane.
I hope on the great day of judgement
Somewhere and somehow there will be
A pasture for faithful cow ponies
Like Charlie, without pedigree.

The Lighted Candle

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright)

ISABEL was of the opinion that she must have been ushered into this world by candlelight. She was so confident of the influence of this soft light on her disposition that she felt sure it was not merely an inordinate fondness for the mellow glow but a trick of the fate for which she had such profound respect.

She was an unusual combination of the practical and the artistic type of girl. It was not strange that with this many-sided nature she had found it difficult to center her affections on a single sort of a man with whom to travel through life.

She had just been reading a little volume with a whimsical painted binding—a ship sailing on a vague blue sea with a vague blue sky, she thought, "Where the Blue Begins," was the title, and the text was as fanciful as the picture, as even Isabel's most impractical moments could lead her to desire.

"I wonder where it does begin," she asked herself as she closed the little volume, "I wonder."

Isabel lighted a candle on her table. Then she arose and lighted a pair on the mantelpiece and a small holding three candles on the wall.

She was waiting for a man whom she had found a very companionable and interesting.

"But I seem to miss something in him," she was thinking as she sat there in the yellow glow. "I suppose I shall always miss something in everyone."

Footsteps on the porch brought her back. She went to the door to greet not the man she had been thinking of, but another.

"Why, Bruce Benjamin? I didn't know you were even on this side of the Atlantic," she cried, giving him both her hands impulsively and dragging him into the room.

"I haven't been long," said the man. "Arrived last night and am off again the end of the week."

They had not seen each other for months and their last meeting had been anything but a cheery moment. Before they had time for getting acquainted again the other man arrived and made it a two, with all the three-cornered necessities of conversation. She was not unaware of the undertone of romance that seemed to be dragging her out of the prosaic conventional atmosphere of the room, but she contented it with dexterity and neither of the men felt uncomfortable.

It must have been another pre-arranged move on the program of despatch that made it necessary for John Hamilton to leave so early. He seemed genuinely to dislike leaving. He seemed to have a home-like engagement that he called him. It was not because he felt himself a third.

Alone, Isabel and Bruce Benjamin happened into an awkward silence for a moment. Isabel studied the flickering candle on the table beside her. The man watched her with eyes that would have told any observer that what he might have told her many months ago had not been a mistake but probably the most sincere, most earnest speech of his life.

"Are you doing any singing—or writing," Isabel? he asked at last.

Isabel shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, not much," she said. "I think I'm too restless to do much serious work."

She was still watching the flame. "You'll never do much serious work in those lines—pretty bits, salable verse, songs that folks will love to hear but will never get you on the stage."

She looked at him suddenly, open-eyed, perhaps a bit annoyed. He could not tell. He did not care. His time was short.

"You're not complimentary, at least," she retorted after a moment in which she had seen an expression that she could not meet with annoyance.

"I mean to be. You are a wonderful girl, Isabel. I've been about the world since I left you. I've seen lovely women of all ages and all nationalities. But always, your face, the warmth of your personality came before me and I compared them with the wonderful You—Isabel. No—look at me!" he said, as she dropped her eyes—"I want to tell you everything. I love you. You know that. I know it better now than I have been away from you for long dreary months. Does it make any difference?"

Isabel looked at him steadily. Something quite out of the ordinary was taking place within her emotional range; she was climbing from one peak to another, quickly, breathlessly.

"I—"

He rose and went toward her. "You do? I believe you do! I see it. I feel it," he cried.

And then after a long silent moment she drew away from him. "You don't even know what I was going to say, Bruce. I was going to tell you that I had found out where the blue begins."

And then she had to explain to him all about the book and her fancies and the tiny bit of blue she had found at the foot of the candle flame on the table that night. "I felt that it was a good omen, dear, because of all the times I have looked into all the times I have looked into candlelight. I had never noticed that infinitesimally small spark of blue in the flame before."

English Treasure Trove

About a year ago a jar of rose nobles was unearthed at Broadhurst Manor, Horsted Keynes, England. These are gold coins of the Fifteenth century and of great value from an antiquarian point of view. Even in London ancient hoards are found. A man digging a trench for a water main at Froydon found two earthenware pots, stuffed with coins, which proved to have been minted between A. D. 1337 and A. D. 1350. Though green with age, they were in excellent preservation.

Evolution of "Gossip"

A gossip was originally a godparent, from the Old English godsbibb, meaning "akin" or "standing in relation to." Gossip soon came to mean a friend or acquaintance, either of the parents of the child baptized or of the other godparents, and hence women friends of the mother present at birth. The transition of meaning to an idle chatterer is easy.

Hardening Copper

An old coppersmith says copper can be hardened for ordinary purposes by hammering it or submitting it to great pressure between heavy rollers. He further says that putting red hot copper into dies that are ice cold and submitting it to an enormous pressure until it is cold will make it as hard as steel.—Exchange.

White Sugar Sweetest

Sucrose is the sweetening agent in sugar. White granulated sugar is 99 per cent sucrose, while brown sugar is between 90-99 per cent sucrose. Brown sugar may seem sweeter at times, but white granulated sugar really contains more of the sweetening agent.

Hidden Treasures

There are many places in Britain where legend says that great treasure lies hidden. One such is Great Treasures, an ancient stronghold in Herefordshire. This treasure is said to be watched over by a black crow.

WILLIAM B. COLLINS

William B. Collins, aged 77 years, of Lyndon township, died in a Jackson hospital on Saturday, January 17, 1931, from injuries received in a fall from the hay loft of his barn on Friday.

Mr. Collins was born on the farm where he resided. He had been active for years in the affairs of the township and for the last five or six years had filled the office of president of the Northwestern Washtenaw Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

He is survived by four daughters and several grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the family home on Tuesday, Rev. H. J. B. Marsh of Milan conducting the services. Burial in Collins cemetery, Lyndon.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the Chelsea fire department and other people of Chelsea who came to our aid when fire threatened complete destruction of our home. We thank all for their quick response to the alarm.

Mrs. Koneski and Anna Koneski

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. George A. Cox and sons, Walter, Arthur and Norman wish to express to neighbors and friends their sincerest appreciation of the sympathy extended to them, both in kindness shown and the beautiful flowers sent during their recent bereavement.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank Mrs. Combs, M. E. Sunday school, Mrs. Steiner, fourth grade boys and girls and all for being so kind to send flowers, plants and gifts to Evelyn during her sickness at the hospital and at home.

Mrs. Eva Swarthout.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their efforts in helping to extinguish the flames which destroyed our smokehouse, and threatened our other buildings, on Monday, January 12.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wenk and family.

Jamaica's Monuments

Jamaica is filled with interest for the tourist. Kingston, the capital and principal city, is the usual port of call for ships. Here, in one church, are the burial place of Morgan, one of the most famous of the buccaneers that roamed the Spanish main, and the coat of arms of Admiral Nelson, who once made his headquarters at Kingston.

Ed. Miller was in Detroit on Monday, where he attended the Automobile Show.

Mrs. J. S. Cummings, Mrs. A. L. Steger and Mrs. R. E. Jolly were Ann Arbor visitors Monday afternoon.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Please tell us in your very interesting question column, the difference in value of the food we eat. I mean how much more are some fruits, vegetables, cereals or meat worth as food?

Ans.—We cannot go into detail in giving the number of calories in each food, but we give herewith comparisons of foods which are high and low in food value.

Vegetables—Beans (dry), corn, peas, sweet potatoes and white potatoes are very high in food value. String beans, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, lettuce, radishes, squash, tomatoes are very low in food value.

Meats—Tenderloin, chicken, frankfurters, mutton, sausage and bacon are high in food value. Beefsteak and roast beef are low.

Fish—Fat fish like salmon and sardines are high in food value, while lean fish like cod and halibut are low.

All dairy products are high in food value except skim milk, which has only one-half as much food value as whole milk.

Eggs are high in food value, one egg containing as much food value as an ounce of tenderloin.

Fruits—Bananas, figs, and prunes are high in food value. Apples, peaches and berries are lower.

Bread—White, gluten, rye and whole wheat bread have practically the same food value. All are high.

Breakfast foods—Grapenuts, shredded wheat, biscuits, waffles, griddle cakes are high in food value. Cream of wheat and oatmeal are lower in food value but are easily digested.

All pastries and nuts are high in food value but hard to digest.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer what is lampblack made out of, and what is it used for?

Ans.—Lampblack is used for various purposes. It is principally used for making printing ink and paint. Lampblack is made by burning substances in a manner that will shut out the free flow of oxygen, when the flame will become smoky and the soot accumulates on suspended surfaces.

Ques.—I wish to ask in your question department what kind of an animal is a mandrill?

Ans.—A mandrill is a species of baboon distinguished by having a short tail and savage disposition. The adult is about five feet tall when standing erect.

Ques.—In your paper of a recent date you stated the Declaration of Independence was in the "capitol" at Washington. We are wondering if the word "capitol" means the building or just Washington?

Ans.—The building was not meant; it was a mistake. The document is in the Library of Congress.

Ques.—I am a crackerjack at football, baseball, basketball, ice-skating, or anything else one can think of. All that I am I owe to my dad. What should I do about it?

Ans.—Just send him 10 cents and square the account.

Ques.—Can you tell me in the question column what the "iron cross" is and what does it mean?

Ans.—The "iron cross" is a military decoration given for distinguished services by the German government. It was first given by Frederick William of Prussia in recognition of distinguished services in war. In the war with France in 1870-71, it was revived. The decoration consists of a Maltese cross of iron bordered with silver, and is suspended from the neck by means of a cord.

Ques.—Will you please be kind and tell me if the United States owns the island of Formosa? Or does England own it?

Ans.—Neither one owns it. The island belongs to Japan.

Ques.—Is Luxemburg a part of Germany? If not, where is it located? And did they fight on the German side?

Ans.—Luxemburg is a grand duchy of Europe that is surrounded by Germany, France and Belgium. The government is constitutional, the ruler being assisted by a chamber of deputies. While the German language is spoken there almost exclusively the government remained neutral during the World War.

Ques.—Why is the moon frequently referred to as "lunar"? I have read about "lunar eclipses."

Ans.—In Roman Mythology Luna was the goddess of the moon. Hence, lunar pertains to Luna.

Ques.—Can you inform me in your question column what is meant by "petty larceny"?

Ans.—Petty larceny is the taking and removing of personal property belonging to another, with the intent of depriving the owner of what belongs to him, when the value of the property stolen is small and the criminal may be punished in a lower court.

Ques.—To settle an argument, will you please explain what a Hottentot is?

Ans.—The Hottentots are the descendants of the aborigines of the southern part of Africa. This name was given to them by the Dutch, but they call themselves Quana. Their complexion is light brown; the hair is woolly, and the nose is flat.

Ques.—I want to ask you if the North Pole and the South Pole regions became possessions of the United States since Americans discovered both places?

Ans.—No. The North and South Pole regions do not belong to any nation since the discovery is not followed by an actual settlement. There is very little probability that these vast waste lands will ever be settled by any nation or nationality, so this is not much to worry about.

Ques.—What is the popular name of the city of Bagdad in Asia?

Ans.—The popular name of Bagdad is the "City of Peace."

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS AGO

Thursday, January 17, 1907

Frank P. Glazier, village president, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Frank Leach, village marshal, Geo. A. Young and about 250 townsmen last Saturday visited the saloons and billiard halls and seized every slot machine in the various establishments. Fifteen machines were gathered by the crowd and taken to the corner of Main and Middle streets where they were broken up with sledge-hammers and then a bonfire was started with the debris. The billiard room conducted by Henry Fullen, who allowed school boys in the place, was closed.

The cornerstone of the Emily Glazier Old People's Home was laid, with addresses delivered by many prominent clergymen of the Detroit conference.

Herman Hudson of North Lake has sold his engine and saw outfit to parties in Dansville.

Mrs. H. L. Wood has sold her interest in the Hatch-Durand block, corner Main and Middle streets, to Mrs. Anna Hoag.

F. E. Storms & Co. have been awarded the contract for the lumber for the large barn that Lewis Eschbach will have erected on his farm in Lima the coming spring.

R. J. West of Sylvan Center, while on his way to Jackson last Saturday with a load of junk, met with an accident that broke one of his legs. The accident happened between Grass Lake and Leoni.

A Gay Little Feather Is "the Touch That Tells"

The hat with a gay little feather speaks with a French accent. Paris milliners are posing clusters of bright, gay little feathers on the most unexpected places, maybe at the very peak of the crown or jutting through at the back of the hat, and they adore Alpine effects.

Professor Speaks At Fellowship Meeting

tion of over-production, our government has brought on still greater complications by passing a most absurd tariff which has caused our export trade to fall to an exceedingly low level just at the time when greater trade with the markets of the world would have brought a solution to our problem. As a result of our setting up a tariff barrier to other nations in the exchange of commodities, we not only decreased our export trade, but we have also lost a good opportunity for other nations such as England and Germany to go into the markets of the world and underbid us.

This condition is especially bad since Germany is completely rehabilitated industrially and on a quantity production basis greater than ever before.

Dr. Henderson cited a specific example of an automobile dealer in Switzerland who had an order in for a number of hundred automobiles from the United States. Congress and Hoover passed the tariff bill and the dealer at once cancelled his order and bought German and French made cars. This serves as only one of a multitude of examples which might be given.

The above illustrates that our legislation in a democracy should be for the benefit of the masses instead of certain classes, that is, "government for the people," according to the speaker.

The fourth problem of learning to live together is both a national and international problem. He spoke of the shift of population from the country to the city. A few years ago 70 percent of the people lived in the country and 30 percent in the cities and now we have a complete reversal—70 percent in the cities and 30 percent in rural areas. In this rapid shift of humanity, we have not kept pace with proper adjustments of law and order. As a result, we have our great populated centers infested with their gangs, gang rule, and their Al Capone's.

Dr. Henderson spoke at length on the great need of our learning how to live together internationally. He told of his meeting Ramsey MacDonald while in London in 1914. He spoke of the significance of Ramsey MacDonald's visit to the United States in the interests of better understanding between the two great English speaking nations. He told of how England's Prime Minister and daughter came to the United States without any pomp or show or ceremony but only as a common man on a great mission.

At a dinner in New York, Ramsey MacDonald plead with the people of the United States to be patient in trying to better understand the people and the traditions of Great Britain. He spoke of it as a nation with bursting barns and full granaries and hoped that we, people of the United States, would remember that by closing the ports of Great Britain for three months we would starve twenty millions of people. He emphasized the need of cooperation and better understanding, since there are forty-eight million people in the British Isles and by the cultivation of every foot of land, they are only able to support twenty million people. Hence it is necessary for them to rule the waves by bringing in raw materials, making finished products and shipping to the markets of the world to buy food for the support of twenty-eight million people. A similar condition exists in Japan, Germany, and some other nations of the world. Dr. Henderson added that something definite must be wrong with our economic system when the condition of bursting barns and starving babies exists.

Dr. Henderson closed his lecture pointing out how the Mussolini rule might kick John Bull's bucket and thereby upset the peace of the world. That is, we might send a ship laden with supplies and ammunition through the Straits of Gibraltar for Mussolini's gold and England would destroy it, causing war with America.

England and America can be saved from such a catastrophe by cultivating a better understanding and learning how to live together. In short, all the nations of the earth must learn this lesson. The question is: "Shall it be Hands Across the Sea, or Arms?"
