SCOUTS TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY WEEK

Boy Scout Week, which will be celebrated from February 7 to 13, is the 22nd Anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, and offers to the Scouts of Livingston and Washtenaw counties a number of interesting features. Extra interest is added to the Anniversary week this year in the fact that Boy Scouts will, approximately during the same period, be celebrating the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Two outstanding council-wide events have been planned by the Washtenaw Council, including both Livingston and Washtenaw counties, as well as a number of local events. Local Scouts are especially interested in the broadcast over the NBC blue chain, from 8:00 to 9:30 Monday evening, February 8, when Star Scout Bob West, son of the Chief Scout Executive, will repeat the Scout oath and law.

Tuesday night the council-wide banquet will be held in Harbour gymnasium, Ann Arbor, and is scheduled to begin at 6:30 with an unusually interesting program planned. The program will include a number of selections by the Scout band, including the new "Washtenaw Council March" written especially for the Scout organization by T. Bruce Rider; an original Scout play, put on by troops 1 and 101 of Ann Arbor; snappy reports of the year's activities by the various troops represented; awarding of veteran badges; and plenty to eat. Tickets will sell for forty cents, and may be obtained at the door or at Scout headquarters. Scoutmasters must make reservations for Scouts, parents and friends of their troops, by Monday morning. A large number of boys from the local troop are planning to make the trip, along with their parents, troop officials, and friends.

On Thursday evening, February 11, there will be a "Jambooree" at Ypsilanti high school, beginning at 7:30, and open to all Boy Scouts in Washtenaw and Livingston counties, together with their friends and parents. A program of stunts, movies, games and Scout songs will be followed by a swim in the big swimming pool, under the direction of Coach Schaefer.

During the week, Scouts in each town will put on exhibitions of Scoutcraft in school and before clubs and churches. Scouts with uniforms will wear them throughout the week. On Sunday, the boys will all attend church, and in many cases, sermons will be preached emphasizing the principles of the Scout movement.

Legionnaires Attend Ypsilanti Meeting

The meeting of the Second District of the American Legion, held Sunday afternoon at Chas. McKenny hall, Ypsilanti, was attended by about 300 members. Herbert J. McKenny, Post No. 317, was represented by Dr. Faye Palmer, Paul C. Maroney and Geo. W. Walworth.

Following the banquet at 7 o'clock, Dean Brown, of Ypsilanti, presided as toastmaster and the principal address of the evening was given by Governor Wilbur M. Brucker. State Commander Leo Keegan of Bay City, Post Commander Ray Kelly of Detroit, L. T. Robinson of Detroit, commander of the second district, and Gen. John P. Kirk of Ypsilanti, also responded to toasts.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. George A. Barth was guest of honor at a birthday dinner given Sunday by her children at her home in Chelsea township, as a surprise in celebration of her 75th anniversary. Three birthday cakes featured the dinner, and Mrs. Barth received many gifts as souvenirs of the event. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. M. McMullen of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. William Barth and daughters, Ellean and Wilma, of Dearborn, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Barth, daughters Letha and Arlene, of Stockbridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Walz of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Lewis Mayer and Mrs. Clara Frinkle of Stockbridge also were Sunday callers at the Barth home.

HOLD FAREWELL PARTY

A farewell party for Mrs. E. W. Weber, widow of the late pastor of St. John's church, Rogers, Conn., was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hinderer, Freedom, and was attended by about 130 members and friends of the parish. Rev. W. G. Mauch of Dexter gave a talk and in behalf of the guests presented Mrs. Weber with a purse of money. Supper was served at 10:30. Mrs. Weber, who for the past two years has resided in Freedom, leaves this week for Hartford, Ill., where she will make her home.

Chelsea High Wins League Encounter

Hi School Scribe
Chelsea High's basketball team added another victory to their string last Friday night, defeating Saline by the score of 21-13 on Saline's court. Saline took the lead at the outset but Chelsea tied the score in the first quarter, then forged ahead during the second quarter, holding the lead the remainder of the game. The score at the half was 13-7 in favor of Chelsea. Saline came back in the second half and played Chelsea on about even terms. Final score, 21-13, Chelsea.

This is Chelsea's sixth victory of the season, against two defeats. In Huron Valley League competition Chelsea has won three games and lost one. They are tied with Clinton for second place.

In the preliminary game, Chelsea's fast playing reserves defeated the Salinereerves by the close score of 18-12. This game was fast and well played and it was either team's game until the last minute of play.

Ypsilanti Group Will Present Drama Sunday

On Sunday evening at the Methodist church the up-to-the-minute drama "The Dawn of the New Day" will be seen and heard.

This drama is the production of Miss Florence Eckert, Associate Professor of English at the Michigan State Normal College and has been presented three times recently in Ypsilanti.

It was also presented by Miss Eckert and her cast at the Methodist church in Manchester the evening of December 6th and the audience filled the church to capacity.

It was given on December 17th at the home of President and Mrs. Ruthven of the University of Michigan under the auspices of the Ann Arbor Woman's club. The newspaper commented that "it was enthusiastically received." Last Sunday evening it was given in the New Hudson Methodist church and February 2nd it was given in one of the churches at Saline. It will be given Sunday evening, February 7th at Chelsea and February 9th in Detroit.

The cast is composed of students of the Michigan State Normal College and the setting of the drama is the Peace Palace at Geneva. The time is midnight and the play is of an allegorical nature and deals with the vision of signing the disarmament pact that will bring world peace.

Paul Ungrodt, secretary of the Board of Commerce, Ypsilanti, will give a brief address on "The Present Military Situation." He gives in a very interesting way, facts that everyone should know.

Colored lights, special music, etc. will be part of this worthwhile program.

DATE SET FOR DAIRY PROFITS CONFERENCE

A dairy profits conference is being planned for Washtenaw county by a committee of which Wm. Austin, Saline, is chairman. The conference will be held in the court room at Ann Arbor on Friday, February 12, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, according to an announcement by H. S. Osler, county agricultural agent.

Mr. Austin, York township, Fred Notten, Sylvan township, and A. C. Bittzer, dairy department, Michigan State College, the committee, have signed and mailed certificates of appointment to the delegates to this conference who have been selected from every school district with the cooperation of Miss Cora Haas, county school commissioner. Cards have been sent to the teachers, who will have their older pupils take a dairy cattle survey. This survey will include the number of mature cows, the number of heifers, the number of bulls over 12 months, and under 12 months, and the number of acres of alfalfa and sweet clover on each farm in the district.

The conference will be a business meeting of representative dairymen who will discuss the dairy problems of the county. The summary from the survey cards will be used as a basis for outlining a long-time plan of work in dairy improvement in the county in order to put it on a more profitable basis. Production will be discussed from the basis of economy rather than increased total production. This meeting of dairymen will be largely a discussion of ways and means of improving the dairy industry. Everyone present will have an opportunity to participate in the discussion if they so desire.

Mr. Austin says that the dairy industry in the county is in a very satisfactory condition, and dairymen in all sections are confronted with the problem of efficiently producing and satisfactorily marketing their milk. Improved transportation, decreased consumption and reduction in milk prices have brought about an acute situation.

Farmers do not expect the high prices of a few years ago, but they would like a reasonable return for their investment which includes the maintenance of their dairy herds, pay for their labor and overhead, and the expense incurred in making improvements necessary to meet the requirements of the board of health. At the present time the majority of milk producers are receiving only two to three cents a quart for their milk. Some may even face the problem of not having a market at all.

Announcements will be made regarding the progress of the organization of creameries, or processing and receiving stations that are now being considered by dairy producers in several different sections of the county. It is understood that plans are being made to assist the producers in taking care of their surplus as well as provide them with a market for their butter fat.

Department of State

WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of StateLansing, Mich., Feb. 3. Probably the oldest licensed automobile driver in the United States lives in Michigan.
The Department of State recently issued a driver's license to Thomas Gordon of Grand Rapids, 102 years old. When the application giving Mr.
Gordon's age was received, at first it was thought a mistake had been made.
Then because of his advanced age, he was asked to demonstrate to state police that he could control an automobile. They reported that he was as adept a driver as the "average man of 60."Because of the difference in the cost between copper and steel, the department does not feel justified in using copper for the 1933 license plates, therefore making it necessary to continue with the 24 gauge steel material. Plates for 1931 and 1932 cost the department 15c per set but the department is in hopes to reduce this cost for 1933 plates to 10c per set.
Estimates from various copper companies show that copper plates would cost from 17c to 19c per set.
The additional cost of copper for the 1,350,000 sets which will be needed for 1933 is too great to be disregarded even though the department desires to aid Michigan copper mines.
While the department has shown a decided preference for a 1933 plate with a white background and black numerals, final decision is not to be made until after ranking police officials in several Michigan cities have been consulted. The order for the 1933 plates will be placed in about 30 days.

The blizzard which has been raging in Michigan since January 31 until today, will probably go down in history as one of the worst experienced in the State. The big storms in other years, notable in recent times, were those of 1893, 1896 and 1904. On Wednesday of this week the five rural mail-carriers from Chelsea were unable to cover but a small prtion of their routes. The north and south highways were drifted full. The Michigan Central and the D. U. R. railways were unable to keep their trains running on schedule time and all of them were from one to four hours late. It will be several days

Judge Sample Awards
Fair Society Fund

According to the Ann Arbor Daily News, Judge George W. Sample on Saturday ruled that the county must pay the Washtenaw County Fair Society $5,000 which the board of supervisors placed in the budget last October but payment of which was refused because of a technicality in board procedure.

The hearings held Saturday in circuit court were exceedingly brief. Only one witness took the stand. Supervisor Gilbert Madden testified to records of the board, admitting their authenticity after questioning by Louis E. Burke, who represented the fair organization in its petition for writ of mandamus against Frank H. Ticknor, county treasurer, to compel payment of the appropriation.

In his ruling Judge Sample said that he could do nothing else but order the $5,000 paid. Records of the board, he said, showed the money had been appropriated and placed in the budget. The $5,000 was paid the fair society within a half hour after the hearing, the money being taken from the general fund.

Little Money Spent
For Highway Repairs

While the repair of gravel roads has been continued by the Washtenaw county road commission, the road board, for purposes of economy, has decided to avoid spending any considerable sum of money on gravel highway maintenance this time of the year, it is stated in the weekly report of L. D. Townsend, engineer-manager.

Heavy rains during the past few weeks and the fact that warm weather has made for heavy traffic has resulted in gravel roads becoming pitted. With spring frost conditions bound to arise during the next two months the road board is avoiding any work which might have to be duplicated later.

Washouts were filled on several gravel highways during the week and two trimming crews have been busy on the Salline road when weather permitted. Sign posts and guard rails on US-12 were repaired during the week while intersections on M-17 were cleaned and trees marked for cutting were taken down.

Descriptions of the local roads which will be taken over as county highways now are being obtained by road office engineers and it is hoped that by April 1 these roads will have become part of the county highway system.

On February 26 bids on compensation and liability insurance will be taken, Mr. Townsend announces. He also suggested to the road commissioners that an investigation be made relative to the establishment of a state weighing station for this county either in conjunction with the new state police station at Ypsilanti or at a point west of Ann Arbor on US-12.

June Clover Helps
Bean Contest Winner

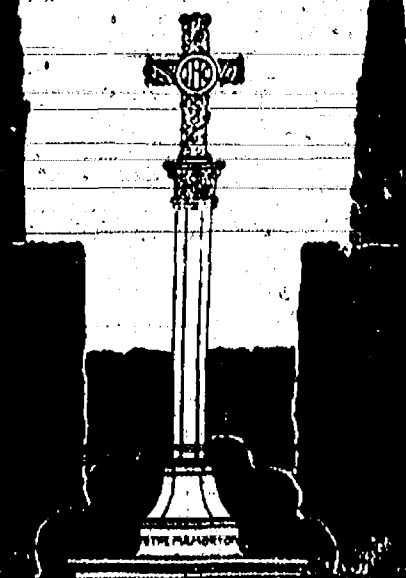

East Lansing, Feb. 3—June clover plowed down and a broadcast application of 180 pounds of 0-20-0 fertilizer enabled Oscar Volker, Pigeon, to outdistance competitors in a state-wide bean production contest with a crop of 40.32 bushels to the acre, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

A cup and thirty dollars in prize money was awarded the winner by the Michigan Bean Growers Association. Other prizes totaling $250 went to other entrants in the contest. Sixty-four growers from 18 counties competed.

The average production in fields owned by the first 20 men in the contest was 24.93 bushels per acre, while the average production for all farmers in the State in 1931 was nine bushels per acre. Most of the leading growers were in the Saginaw Valley.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Why do they call the doctor a "stork" when he brings a baby?

Ans.—Haven't you noticed that the stork has a big "bill"? Well, that's why.

Ques.—I wish to ask in your questions and answers on what date and day of the week Gen. George B. McClellan was born?

Ans.—Gen. George B. McClellan of the American Civil War was born on Sunday, December 3, 1820.

Ques.—Can you answer in your question column who Sir Hubert Wilkins was?

Ans.—Sir Hubert Wilkins was the commander who attempted to take the submarine Nautilus to the North Pole.

Ques.—I desire to ask you if Lindbergh has any brothers or sisters and where do they live if he has?

Ans.—Lindbergh has no brothers, but he has a half sister, Mrs. George W. Christie, who lives in Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Ques.—What is the difference between evaporated milk, Pasteurized milk and condensed milk?

Ans.—Evaporated milk is pure sterilized milk with 60 per cent of the water removed. There is nothing added to it, and there is nothing taken away from it. Pasteurized milk is milk that has been exposed to a temperature of 131 to 158 degrees to prevent or check fermentation. Condensed milk is a combination of milk and cane sugar. The milk is not sterilized, and the sugar serves as a preservative.

Ques.—Are there any Jews in any race of people other than the white race?

Ans.—Yes. There are some Jews in all the races. They predominate in the white race, with a large following among the negroes. Of these alone there are several thousand and they maintain synagogues in New York. Some of them are converts to the Hebrew faith, but most of them are descendants from white Jews who intermarried with colored people in Abyssinia. The orthodox colored Jews deny the divinity of Christ, eat only kosher meat, keep Saturday as the sabbath, fast on Yom Kippur, eat unleavened bread during the Passover, and send their children to Jewish schools when they can. Many colored Jews contend they are the descendants of the original Israelites of Judea, and that the white Jews are descended from the ten lost tribes.

Ques.—I am curious to know when fish sleep. Can you tell me?

Ans.—Fish do not sleep. They cannot close their eyes. However, they have periods of activity, followed by periods of repose. It is during the latter period they get their "sleep," if you prefer to call it such. It is a sort of rest that gives to the fish what genuine sleep gives to humans and most animals.

Ques.—I want to ask in your paper if the planet Mars is inhabited by people? If so, are they like the people on earth?

Ans.—Dr. E. C. Slipher of the Lowell Observatory, one of the world's leading astronomers, says it is very reasonable to believe there are people on the planet Mars. He says they may or may not be like the people of the Earth. He says he finds physical conditions almost identical with that of the Earth.

Ques.—Can you tell me in your question department what has become of Carter, the man that discovered King Tut's tomb in Egypt?

Ans.—Howard Carter, who discovered King Tut's tomb, is now busy searching for the tomb of Alexander the Great, the king of Macedon the fourth century B. C.

Ques.—Why do some people say "post card" while others will say "postal card"?

Ans.—There is a slight difference. A post card is a card usually bought from a private concern and on which a stamp must be placed. A postal card is issued by the government and requires no stamp other than what is stamped by the government.

State Ownership Of Land Is On Increase

Lansing, Feb. 3.—The state ownership of lands in Michigan increased 200,104.06 acres and 2,790 city and village lots, mostly through tax delinquency during the year 1931, the Lands Division of the Department of Conservation indicated today, issuing figures as of January 1, 1932.

Land owned by the state, including the areas deeded during 1931, now totals 2,038,722.42 acres and 76,000 village and city lots.

While the state's holdings in many counties were materially increased during the year, in five counties, one in the lower peninsula and four in the upper peninsula, state property shows decided decreases under totals listed January 1, 1932. The average in Bay county dropped from 3,584 to 2,842 acres, the Department of Conservation having disposed of considerable land in that county during the past year. Chippewa, Houghton, Iron and Keweenaw county state land figures are lower than they were a year ago because of land sales and exchanges.

State owned land in several counties increased enormously through 1931. In Alger county it increased almost 19,000 acres in Crawford 13,000; in Gladwin 13,000; in Grand Traverse 7,000; in Lake 21,000; in Montcalm 22,000; and in Ontonagon 36,000 acres. These large increases in state owned areas for 1931 do not indicate a single year of delinquent taxes. They are decided to the state only after examination and represent rather the extent of examinations for the previous year.

During the period beginning July 1, 1930 and ending December 1, 1931, the Department of Conservation disposed of 45,977 acres and 2,000 city and village lots through sale. Such sales brought a revenue of $125,207. In addition, 8,000 acres of state land were given out in homesteads.

Only three counties in Michigan do not have state owned land. They are Branch, Hilldale and Wayne. The state holdings in several other counties are negligible. In Washtenaw it being only 200 acres.

Lantis Ice Cagers

Defeat Stockbridge

Floyd Lantis took his newly organized basketball team to Stockbridge last Thursday night, where they defeated a veteran independent team.

The game was a very fast and close one, the score being 22 at the end of the first quarter. At the half the team commanded a 10-4 lead. The Chelsea team stayed in the lead, the final score being 19-16.

There were a number of pointers that followed the team, and it is hoped they will give plenty of support in future games which Mr. Lantis promises to be good ones.

This team is playing under the title of "Lantis Ice Co." They are all local boys and are playing as a strictly independent team.

May Plant Shiners In Inland Waters

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—Experiments will be carried on within the coming year by several of the state's fish hatcheries to determine whether the lake shiner will propagate and thrive in the inland waters of Michigan.

The Fish Division of the Department of Conservation believes that if this miniature species will live and breed in the inland lakes, it will form a valuable food for game fish.

The adult lake shiner, averaging two to three inches in size forms a large source of food for commercial species in the trout lakes. Lake perch, unnumbered millions of these fish annually run up many of the streams bordering along the Great Lakes and it is possible to secure out a sufficient number each year to give adequate plantings to every inland lake of Michigan were it desirable.

If it is found practicable and is determined that the lake shiner will breed and live in inland lakes it is probable that within the next two years many of them will be planted in inland lakes to supplement the food supply for game fish.

In a report recently given by the Institute for Fisheries Research an opinion was expressed that the shiners would not feed on the fry of game fish.

While the lake shiner is quite delicate, it can be easily handled in cold weather.

Book a Day Keeps Vaid Away

By a systematic method of collecting books, one Leon Vincent of Paris was able to defy the void of ignorance. He made it a rule to add one volume to his large library each and every day. But Vincent did not include payment for the books in his method and he was arrested at an outdoor bookstall while slipping a work into his pocket. Many Paris bookshops had contributed to his collection, according to their claims.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—In concern over the disappearance of the young and beautiful wife of his wealthy friend, Crane White, private investigator Coggeshall, a man who has been in the White household, escorted up the old gold velvet of the much photographed stair-

CHAPTER III

Bright and early on Saturday morning, a dark, distinguished gentleman, evidently quite at home in the White household, escorted up the old gold velvet of the much photographed stairway a slender, bearded young man in heavy shell glasses and a worn, soft felt hat. In Mrs. White's little sitting room they were met by her maid, a severe Englishwoman of middle age.

"Good day, Coggeshall, good news from Mrs. White, I hope," the friend of the family asked kindly.

"Indeed, Mr. Glaenger, I've had just no news at all from Mrs. White," she returned.

"Well, well, I expect Mr. White will bring us plenty when he gets back."

To speak by Mr. White's clock on the telephone, Mr. Glaenger, when he heard it at eight o'clock this morning, felt not to be leaving his house, if he's well, the woman returned triumphantly. "He's sent for Hall's already."

"Ah, well, a man under the goiter needs his salt, really, more than ever, you know, Coggeshall."

"And how about a woman, sir?"

"Well, well—"

Mr. Glaenger looked drawn and preoccupied.

"I want to take all Mrs. White's jewels and have them gone over thoroughly, Coggeshall," he said. "They shouldn't be left here with both of them away, anyway. She keeps too much here. If you will give me the keys—or it's a combination, isn't it? my young man here will list them and give you a receipt. Meanwhile, I will telephone to Atlantic City."

"It's a key and a combination, sir, and Mrs. White keeps the key, all ways. You'll have to get it from her," said the woman.

"Hain't Mr. White a key?"

"He had, sir, but Mrs. White mislaid her key and was alarmed some one should find it and had it changed, and the combination, too. There only came back one, and she was vexed at the forgetting to order the two, but only last Wednesday (the day she left, sir), she mentioned to me that she could not seem to remember about ordering that duplicate key. So I am inclined to doubt he has one, Mr. Glaenger."

"Then, in case of a fire, the safe would have to be taken out bodily? No one but Mrs. White could get at it?"

"It looks so, sir," said the woman quietly.

"This is idiotic," the Jeweler declared, and seizing the telephone he called up his establishment angrily, and demanded that the four "safe-men" in the place be sent up to him immediately. "Lumber," he paced out into the hall to wait, and the young man was left alone with the maid.

"Getting out a pencil, he began to sharpen it carefully, his eye on his job."

"I'm sorry to hear Mrs. White is so ill," he said quietly.

"I don't know that she is ill," the woman returned briefly.

"Ah, I'm glad to hear it," he said lightly. "You'd be the one to know, of course."

She glanced at him suspiciously, but he was evidently barely interested. His attention was attracted just at the right moment.

"There's more than you thinking that young man," she announced bitterly. "But it seems I'm not the one after all. It's not that I mind a lady's walking out, just as she is, and dressed more for what you might call walking in the country on a rainy day, than for New York. But to be told to pack a bag with simple things—panties, what are simple things? If a person's ill—well and good. But there's a difference in the clothes required," the woman announced.

The young man mumbled something about "a little of both, ma'am," and began to write busily with his now sharpened pencil.

To which the English woman replied tartly, that all men were alike in her opinion.

At this moment Mr. Glaenger hurried back into the room.

"I'm leaving immediately for Atlantic City," he said briefly. "Mr. White's got a headache out of this, I'm afraid. Coggeshall, this is Mr. Wells, one of my young men. As soon as he's in, he will list the various pieces and give you a receipt for them. Take them directly to Littenhart, the head of the repairs, you know, Wells, and be sure to get your receipt from him."

"Very good, sir," said the young man, "and there are some things I'd like to ask you about."

In the hall he spoke low and quickly.

"Mr. Wells, he asked Mr. Glaenger. "It's just as I felt from the beginning—I must have it out with the maid."

"You really feel—"

"There's no one else, Mr. Glaenger! Why, nobody even knows where she started for. Why should she have taken a taxi and not her own car, for instance?"

Mr. Glaenger sighed.

"This woman says that she was dressed as if for walking on a rainy day in the country," the young man went on, "and Wednesday was a perfectly clear day. No, Mr. Glaenger, I must have some help. And I think she's the woman to help me."

Mr. Glaenger shrugged one expressive shoulder.

"Very well, my dear young man—whatever you say," he murmured. "We can't keep this up, you know, any longer. A few days, perhaps."

Personally, I should have had ago—well, no, I can't say that. But I doubt if my own friend's scruples, at any rate, use your own judgment, and that day, that day!" he repeated with almost a smile.

Mr. White's sea-green and ivory bedroom a swarthy, squat little man was kneeling beside a safe in the wall, when Mr. Wells returned, Coggeshall stood on guard behind him.

"Pretty tough nut, eh?" suggested Mr. Wells, watching him with interest.

"The sweeter one cracked carefully."

"Not much," he answered. "There she goes!"

As the door swung open, he picked up his bunches of keys and file, and swept them into a shadowy bag.

"Hardly what I'd call a job," he said, and he scuttled out.

The woman sighed.

"I expect you'll want them out of the cases?" she said. "Have you a bag with you?"

"They would take up less room," he agreed.

She moved without a word, to a closet, and produced a leather bag.

"Put them in here," she said briefly, and taking out a memorandum book, she pressed its spring.

"These are the small pearls," she began, but the box was empty.

Muttering something about an emerald pendant, she pulled out an exquisite green case with tooling edges. But this also was empty. Under his keen eyes she turned out every one of the cases and small drawers in the safe, but there was nothing in any of them. Her face was as white as their velvet linings.

But Mr. Wells was quite unconcerned.

"Now, what do you think of that?" he said lightly. "She took them with her, after all! Good-bye, on you, what?"

She stared at him a moment, and then dropped her head into her hands and wept. He waited in silence while you could have counted five, and then switched her hands away suddenly.

"Where'd she go?" he asked.

"I don't know," the woman sobbed, instinctively altering her manner, even through her tears, to something new in his tone. "They won't any of them tell me, sir."

He scanned her pale gray eyes, but they hardly wavered under his. And yet—and yet—there was something he could swear there was something—

"Sit up," he said abruptly, "and listen to me. They don't tell you, but because they don't know. That's why. Nobody knows. And we've got to find out."

It was quite clear to him that although she was not entirely unprepared for some disconcerting news of her mistress, she was honestly ignorant of her whereabouts.

"But what's happened to her, sir? What's happened to her? Where would she go? And why couldn't she send us word? You mean there's been no word at all?"

He looked her straight in the eye.

"Yes, there has," he said, "but it doesn't do us much good. She will come back, if she can, she says, but not if the police are notified. She swears she means it. If you have any idea, Coggeshall, the remotest ghost of an idea, as to where she might have gone, and could get any word to her, now's your chance to help her."

She looked directly back at him.

"Yes, sir, but I haven't," she said.

He acquiesced.

"All right," he said shortly.

"Now these jewels, she's got them, of course. Took them with her, undoubtedly."

"No, sir," said the maid definitely. "She didn't do that, sir. That I know. I went straight down to the front door with her, and all she had was her handbag on her wrist and a square box with the big onyx paperweight that broke, that I'd done up myself, the evening before. She was to take it to the Jeweler's herself, and talk it over. I knew the package, for I'd tied it myself."

"Then she had them on her, some where?"

"On her?" the maid repeated scornfully. "Will you tell me where, sir? The way the ladies dress nowadays, where would you put what came out of these boxes? Bunched out like that, indeed?"

"Couldn't you sew them in?" he began, but she cut him short.

"I tell you I dressed her," she cried, and he gave way.

"Well, anyhow," he said, "Now see here. Either she wanted to run away, or she didn't. If she wanted to, well, that's that. I don't see that there's anything more to be said. I'm done. Well, know, son enough, if she didn't (which I believe) then she wants to get back. And if she didn't want to come back, why did she write that way? Why not just go?"

"What way, sir?"

"She said, 'I hope to come back,' and 'I must leave you for a little,' but she also said that she was frightened to death," said Mr. Wells, slowly.

"Frightened to death?" the woman repeated, "frightened to death?"

"Oh, dear me! Dear me! And poor Mr. White on the day of his back!"

But if she said she'd come back, sir—

"That's all very well," said the young man, "but suppose she can't? She said she hoped to come back. That's a little different, you see. There may be some funny business here, you know. When I thought she had no jewels, I felt very different about it. But with all that junk on her—well, she must have known all that, when she wrote."

He swung to the safe door, having tumbled the boxes back in it.

"Now, where was she going on Wednesday?" he asked. "Was she up at all?"

"Mrs. White had been worried for some weeks, sir, but I can't say why, and it's no good asking me," she said, facing him obstinately. "I know you're here helping Mr. Glaenger, and I'd help you all I could, if it had any ways to do with madam's going off, sir. But I mean honest, I swear to it before anybody, police or otherwise. Ladies have their worries. Mr. Wells, and my lady has not been herself, to say herself, for some time. But it's got nothing to do with dreadful things like this, and disappearing away and all. I know nothing what-ever about this."

"But my dear woman, you can't possibly judge—"

"Excuse me, sir, I can judge about this," said the maid, obstinately, "and you would agree with me, directly you knew. Of that I'm sure. It's this way, she went on almost pleadingly, and quite honestly, she was certain."

"If she didn't come back, sir, I'd tell you, and ten to one you'd laugh at it—a gentleman would," she added bitterly. "But if she does (and you think she means to), then she'd never forgive me in fact, would it tell you, sir? Well, I know that. You see, it's that kind of thing! But nothing like you think," she ended, looking keenly at him.

There was something convincing about her. She was no fool, this woman.

"Why did you tell me at all, then?" he asked her.

"Because I shouldn't be honest, and not," she answered promptly.

"And she's forgot a lot of things lately, Mr. Wells, and let a lot of things go, and—why didn't she mention to me about those jewels now? And where are they?"

Her face worked painfully.

"She hasn't drawn any checks," he said, watching her. "There's a big balance at the bank."

"Oh, it's not that," she cried impatiently, and then, "Can't you do something, sir?"

It was extraordinary, the way she appealed to him, seemed to trust him. A man she had supposed to be a Jeweler's clerk ten minutes ago! He realized in himself a distinct alteration of feeling; that fair of his had shifted with the wind. How much did he really believe in Crane White, the glorious Jeweler, just now? How astonished he had become, all of a sudden.

So, then, as a clerk, he had expected to find a Jeweler of talent.

the terror of the writer, of that jumbled, blotted letter—when first he read it. Why did it seem to him now that she knew her own business best, probably?

"I'm afraid she'll have to do a little something for us, first, Coggeshall," he answered dryly. "I must telephone Mr. Glaenger."

Mr. Glaenger listened in rather no-tentive silence to his young friend's communication.

"The articles that were wanted for repair, sir, don't seem to be in the closet you suggested—no, sir, nothing whatever—absolutely certain—yes, sir, lady must have taken them herself, yes, sir, obviously—of course, that alters the situation—I imagine the lady I met this morning could be of a little more help than she's willing to be at present, but I don't despair of her—"

Of course I understand that, money is no object—I advertised for that effect, this morning—Yes, I think we shall leave again, myself. Good-by, sir."

He came back to the bedroom. Coggeshall was sitting just as he had left her.

"I must get along, now," he said kindly, picking up his hat. "I'll look in later. Of course it depends on you, you know, whether this goes out or not."

"Very well, sir," she said listlessly. "You may depend they'll get nothing out of me, sir. I'll be here. There might be a message for me."

Mr. Wells went lightly down the stairs, bug in hand.

"You'll be here, will you?" he muttered to himself, "now—I wonder?"

MANCHESTER.—The location of Manchester village in the valley of the historic River Raisin, has frequently been praised for its beauty and attractiveness by writers and travelers. Many times strangers who had heard of the three falls in the river at this place, came this way to view them. Even since the middle dam was carried out by a spring flood, the two remaining falls continued to attract many Ohio and Indiana people and up-state residents of Michigan, driving south, came this way. Many more would come if our partially paved highways were extended through Enterprise.

Oldsmobile Shows 60-Per Cent Increase

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—A 60 per cent increase in production of 1932 Oldsmobiles over the 1931 cars during the same period last year is reported by officials of Olds Motor Works. Retail sales are reported to be keeping pace with the increased production schedules.

"Since the start of production of the improved Oldsmobile Six and the new Oldsmobile Straight Eight about the middle of December, 7320 cars had been manufactured up and including January 31," states the official announcement. "This is 2751 cars more than were produced over the same period last year, showing a gain of 60 per cent."

"Part of the increase was made in December and part in January, the increase in the January production over that of last year amounting to 35 per cent, or more than one-third."

"In addition to this tangible improvement in production and shipments, Oldsmobile's experience at the automobile shows held during January has been most encouraging. In most instances, 1931 show records of retail sales have been exceeded, and, further, a far larger list of live prospects has been secured. The shows have indicated an overwhelming interest in the new 1932 automotive products by the public."

"BROOKLYN.—After a series of three meetings at Napoleon, milk producers of this area have decided to start a co-operative creamery at Napoleon. Incorporation will be completed soon under the plan furnished by Mike Noon, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau and over 100 shares have already been pledged at $10 each. The low price of surplus milk has been the deciding factor in promoting the creamery, and it is proposed to not only manufacture butter, but other milk products and to sell whole milk—Exponent."

SOUTH LYON.—Farmers around South Lyon are wondering in just what way they are to dispose of their milk in the future, inasmuch as the Detroit Creamery has served notice that they will discontinue their station here on March 1. The Creamery has been under contract with the Michigan Milk Producers Association, said contract expiring on above date. An over supply of milk is responsible for their action.—Herald.

Woman Issues Rules Of Ideal Home Life

East Lansing, Feb. 3.—"Thou shalt make beautiful, keep clean and in order thy home" is the greatest of the "Ten Homemaking Commandments," according to Miss Myrtle Weldon, state home demonstration leader of Kentucky, main speaker at the Home Economics extension banquet Tuesday evening being held in connection with the homemakers' division of Farmers Week at Michigan State College, February 1 to 5.

Second of the commandments should be "Eight hours a day shalt thou labor and do all thy housework and the other eight of thy waking hours thou shalt attend to thy homemaking," explains Miss Weldon, who follows this with "Thou shalt not slump on thy job," as the third of the commandments.

In the fourth, Miss Weldon advises every housewife to "take a short vacation from thy household tasks." This in order to better live up to the next commandment, "Thou shalt guard thy health and the health of thy family with all thy might."

The sixth and seventh "laws" as provided by the speaker, are closely related. "Thou shalt strive to keep thyself mentally alert" and "Thou shalt at all times hold thyself in readiness to answer the call of thy family for friendship and companionship," as is also the eighth, "Thou shalt cultivate and encourage in thyself and in thy family a sense of humor and the ability to laugh."

The next to the last is one which is being found of increasing importance in the feminine world of today, "Thou shalt strive to make thyself easy to look upon," and the tenth commandment is "Thou shalt not forget thy community."

Japan Marches On
Wrigley, a Builder
Science Marches On
Mr. Knudson's Aspirin

The Japanese, persistently pushing their plans for Asia, took Shanghai with the usual formula: "troops and airplanes landed." The airplanes, in opposition, then troops march in where airplanes have prepared the way.

Kindhearted pacifists may learn something from the situation in China and Japan. China is a thoroughly unprepared in a military sense.

Japan, thoroughly belligerent and thoroughly prepared, sends forth battleships to Shanghai, many carrying airplanes; also sends submarines that rise and discharge airplanes from any spot desired.

It should enlighten the sweetest pacifist to see the pitiful condition of unprepared China with four hundred million people threatened by small Japan.

William Wrigley, Jr., having worked hard every day of his seventy years since childhood, is dead of heart disease, with his wife and children around him.

He was a typical American builder, created a great business that has made his name known all over the world, developed and helped to develop half a dozen industries, built great hotels, bought and developed Catalina Island, establishing a steamship line from the island to the mainland. He gave work to thousands of men and women, profits to those that shared with him as stockholders.

If he could return and live another life to order, he would select exactly the same kind.

It is some comfort to know that while so many things go wrong, science continues its ceaseless conquest of humanity's problems.

You learn from Doctor Witte, formerly a research scientist with General Electric, now an associate of Doctor Moore and White in their clinic, that application of heat, sent through the tissues of the body by electric current and the infrared rays, promises to restore health to thousands that had reconciled themselves to lifelong illness.

W. S. Knudson, president of the Chevrolet company, told eleven hundred agents and salesmen at the Los Angeles-Biltmore hotel that a good way to leave present conditions may be borrowed from a story published in Life.

"A man went to bed the worse for wear and awoke to see at his bedside a monster with horns, a spiked tail and smoke coming from its nose. At first he was alarmed, then, summing courage, he said to the monster: 'If you do not treat me properly, I am going to take two aspirin tablets and swear off drinking.' Then where will you be?"

A few millions of Americans could swear off shivering, the business boogey now sitting at their bedside would vanish.

Somebody who planned to kill ground squirrels, vermin of disease, mixed a deadly poison, thallium salts, with a large pill of grain.

Half-starved Mexicans stole the grain, made tortillas. Several have died, more are expected to die.

No one is to blame, unless you blame starving creatures for stealing grain, or those that mixed the poison for leaving it where it might be stolen.

Could not scientists in one of our great laboratories produce synthetically a scent that would lure to traps and death any desired kind of vermin?

The revolution in Salvador is a big one for the size of the country. Class hatred plays an important part. Dispatches tell of "anistocratic" fighting against the common people and two thousand killed in one battle.

Uprisings in so many places against political authority and against prison authority are accompanied by equally serious uprisings against religious authorities. Pope Pius in an Associated Press dispatch expresses grief at the "truly terrible harshness" with which the Jesuits have been treated in Spain.

The pretext for suppressing the order and confiscating thirty-million dollars of their property is alleged to be an oath in which they put obedience to the church before obedience to their own government.

Prize fight promoters have arranged a meeting between Max Schmeling, a German called heavyweight champion of the world, and Sharkey, who gave Schmeling the title by striking a foul blow.

Neither fighter is of the first class. The late John L. Sullivan could have frightened either of them with a look and dropped either with a single punch. The tall Fitzsimmons, from the land of kangaroos, when in his prime could have beaten both of them in the same day with an hour's rest between.

But the world must have its brutal, second-class, if it can't have first class.

SCHOOL NOTES

The pupils of Chelsea High and some of the lower grades were highly entertained Tuesday by Lawrence Abbott. His clever impersonation of many typical characters of American life delighted everyone. Especially skillful was his presentation of the Vanishing American, the old toothless farmer, the silly old maid, little Willie weeping a poem, and small Mary's study of her new baby brother's wardrobe in which she learns that doctored clothes.

Mr. Abbott not only seems able to make people laugh and grow fat, but also to make them appreciate the more worthwhile side of life.

The French club held a hard time party at the gymnasium Tuesday evening. The menu consisted of two courses, the first being crackers and water, the second, pickles and sandwiches.

Chautauqua
The name "Chautauqua" first applied to the lake in western New York, is from the Seneca language and is said to signify "big pond in the middle" from the shape of the lake from which the region gets its name. It became the name of the summer educational assembly first held on the shores of that lake in 1879 and then of the educational and entertainment system patterned after the Lake Chautauqua gatherings.

Fowl Uncover Gold
A man living in Coventry, England, has a garden that is part of a new estate and bought a hen and cock. As the fowls were scratching about near by the dug up a board of gold and silver. The lucky bird found that the gold belonged to the reign of George the Third and that there were 18 pieces of gold and five of silver. The treasure had been buried exactly 100 yards from the foot of the oak tree and in a direct line with the gate and squire.

MASON—Whether or not Sts. Cornelius and Cyprilian Catholic church of Bunkerhill will lose the services of Father John M. Duffy is not definitely known. Last week The Michigan Catholic carried a list of transfers made by Bishop Gallagher of the Detroit diocese. Drinton of St. Phillips church of Columbus, near Port Huron, who was to take Father Duffy's place at Bunkerhill. —News.

Why fifteen million women cook with GAS

Because Gas Cooking is...

BETTER

Modern Gas Cooking is fully automatic. Gas is more flexible and is more positively controlled than any other cooking heat. And remember, that more than three-fourths of the cooking is done on the cooking top where speed and flexibility are vital factors. In broiling, the Gas flame sears the food instantly.

QUICKER

It is a well known fact that Gas is the only fuel which will give maximum heat instantly. Just turn on the Gas and you have heat at full force—Pronto! Every other fuel necessitates waiting.

CHEAPER

Gas heat costs less per person per meal than any other modern cooking fuel.

ASK ANY FAMOUS CHEF—Look about you in hotels and restaurants—and out for yourself from professional cooks who know good food as well as they know the cost of cooking—ask those "in the know" what type of heat they use for short order cooking and broiling.

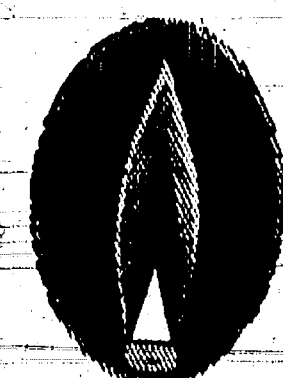

There will be just one answer and that answer will be—

G - A - S

MODERN GAS RANGES give you all these features, plus the advantages of up-to-date equipment.

Washtenaw Gas Co.

211 E. Huron St. — Ann Arbor

The little sharp blue flame... it's always hot. It has the cooking job well under way while other types of fuels are merely getting started.
