Detroit Youth Drowns In North Lake Friday

Leslie Walters, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Walters, of Detroit, was drowned at 10:30 Friday morning while bathing in North Lake. He, with his sister, Miss Lella Walters, Stanley Simons and Doris Parkinson, also of Detroit, had gone out on the lake in a boat to swim. Walters dived from the boat and sank in the water. Simons attempted to rescue him but was unable to do so, because of Walters' attempt to pull him under.

Resuscitation methods to revive him were unsuccessful. Dr. Edwin C. Ganzhorn, coroner, was called and announced that no inquest would be held as the death was clearly accidental.

The body was brought to the Plankell funeral home and later was taken to Detroit for burial.

Lake Cottages Get Electrical Service

With the extension of power lines from Sylvan Center to Cavanaugh and Crooked Lakes, approximately 75 cottages and 50 farm homes will be served with electric current by the Consumers Power Company.

L. A. Southard, Superintendent of Electrical Distribution for Consumers, informed the Standard on Tuesday that the current was now turned on in about thirty cottages at the south end of Cavanaugh and that all who have signed the contract will have current within a few days.

Contrary to some reports, Mr. Southard stated that Consumers Power Company is making no charge for extension of the line to these lakes. Installation of wiring and fixtures is under the supervision of electrical contractors, having no connection with Consumers with the exception of a working agreement.

A minimum charge of $6.00 per year will be made by Consumers for hook-ups on this new extension.

State Dept. Tells Of Special Session Act

A communication from the State Department of Education, which contains valuable information for school officers, has been received by Cora L. Haas, Washtenaw Commissioner of Schools. The letter, which is self-explanatory, is printed herewith:

"I wish to call your particular attention to Act No. 40, Special Session of 1932. Said act was given immediate effect and is now in full force and operation. Briefly, it provides as follows:

1. The district board or board of education of any school district shall provide by resolution for the deposit of all public school moneys, including tax moneys, coming into the hands of the school district treasurer, in one or more banks or trust companies to be designated therein, and in such proportion and manner as may be there provided.

2. Upon designation of any depository or depositories by the board of education it shall be the duty of the school treasurer to deposit all funds coming into his hands, including tax moneys, therein in his name as treasurer of the school district and in such proportion and manner as may be provided by the board of education's resolution.

3. Neither the school treasurer nor the sureties on the treasurer's bond shall be liable for any loss occasioned or sustained by the failure or default of any bank or trust company designated as a depository by the board of education.

4. This exemption from liability shall apply even though the statute provides for the furnishing of a bond or bonds by depositories of school moneys in primary, graded, township, and rural agricultural school districts. (See sections 18 and 19 of chapter 2, part 1, and sections 25 and 26 of chapter 3, part 2, Act No. 319, Public Acts of 1927, found on pages 20 and 21, and page 116, respectively, of the 1931 Compiled School Law.)

5. The school treasurer and the sureties on the treasurer's bond shall be liable for moneys not deposited in accordance with the provisions of this act.

6. The operation of any law insofar as it pertains to the depository bond or bonds for the deposit of school moneys is hereby suspended until July 1, 1933.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed)
C. Lloyd Goodrich.

Public Library Notes

Books for both adult and juvenile reading will be put on the shelves this week and will be ready for library patrons on Saturday. These books are a portion of the purchase with funds realized from the sale on Tag Day. More will be added later.

For the convenience of those who cannot get in for books in the afternoon, the library is being opened on Saturday evenings from 7 until 9 o'clock until further notice.

MANY EVENTS MARK 4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES

H. S. Osler, county agricultural agent, will soon begin a series of judging meetings with the crops club members of Washtenaw county to teach them to judge the various kinds of field crops. A. E. Hagen, county club agent, will hold a series of judging practices with the dairy, pig, beef and poultry clubs for practice in judging livestock and poultry. During the first half of August a county-wide contest will culminate these judging practices at which time the representatives from this county will be selected to participate in the district contest at Michigan State College during the third week in August.

The Cackle and Crow club of Rogers Corners, Freedom township, will judge poultry at 8:00 o'clock Friday afternoon, July 8. The Lima Dairy Calf club will hold a dairy judging practice that same evening. The calf club will hold a dairy judging practice again on Thursday evening, August 4.

The Korreck Kare Kalf Klub will meet for a judging practice on Saturday evening, July 9, and Saturday evening, July 23. Wednesday evening, July 20, the Lima Livestock club, composed of sheep, beef and pig club members, will hold a judging practice with the Seio Junior Farmers. They will meet again for that same purpose on Friday, August 5.

The Lima and Lyndon Poultry clubs will hold two joint meetings on Thursday evening, July 21, and Tuesday evening, August 16.

The above are special meetings of the various clubs. In the meantime, all of the clubs in the county will hold their regular monthly meetings as usual.

Between twenty and thirty 4-H club members from Washtenaw county will go to Michigan State College, East Lansing, next Monday afternoon, July 11, to attend 4-H Club Week which will continue until Friday, July 15.

The members who are eligible to attend are those who were selected as delegates from last summer's club groups, and last winter's clothing, handicraft and hot lunch clubs. (These delegates were formerly called county champions.)

The girls will be housed in the girls' dormitories on the campus, and the boys in the college gymnasium. The program will include classes where the boys and girls will come in contact with some of the outstanding men and women faculty members of the college. There will also be a program of recreation for them.

A large number of the 40 4-H forest rangers of Washtenaw county plan to make the trip to the Dunbar Forest near Sault Ste. Marie during the week of July 24 to 30 inclusive. This will be the third annual state encampment of 4-H forest rangers. They will leave here by car and trailer on Sunday, July 24, and will return the following week-end. The camp opens Tuesday, July 26, and closes Friday morning, July 29.

The trip to and from the camp will include visits to places of outstanding interest in forestry, such as forestry nurseries, national and state forests, etc.

The Raisin River Forest Ranger station located in the vicinity of Manchester, were hosts to the Clearwater Ranger station of Lyndon township at an overnight camp at Wampiers Lake Sunday evening, July 3, and Monday, July 4. Fourteen boys were in camp. In addition, R. F. Kroodsma, extension forester, Michigan State College, Gottlieb Jacob, Forest Supervisor of the Raisin River station, and A. E. Hagen, county club agent, were present. After the weather cleared off on Monday morning the boys began their regular program. The Clearwaters won the ball game from the Raisin River rangers. Mr. Kroodsma took the 4th year boys out in the woods where he conducted a class in estimating timber which is one of the things that 4th year rangers must do to fulfill their requirements. While they were estimating timber all the rest of the boys learned to pace off distances, measure the highest trees, tell the age of trees and tell the direction by the use of a watch, and tree growth.

The boys finished their morning activities with a swim in the lake. After dinner they again played ball, after which Mr. Kroodsma took them on a tree identification hike.

The Clearwater Ranger station will hold an overnight camp Saturday, July 16, at the home of their leader, Homer Stofey, in Lyndon township. Professor E. V. Jotter of the forestry and conservation department, University of Michigan, will attend this camp.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL
The Luther League of Zion church, of Rogers Corners, will hold an ice cream social on Tuesday evening, July 12, at the home of Mrs. Christ Grau, one-half mile west of Rogers Corners. Everyone cordially invited.

Isam Band To Give Concert Wednesday

The second of a series of concerts to be presented by Isam's Band will be given here next Wednesday evening, starting promptly at 8 o'clock. The program is as follows:

Large crowds attended the concerts given Saturday night by the Waterloo Band and Wednesday night by the Chelsea High School Band.

Plan Features For M. S. C. Farmers Day

A pageant, depicting steps in the improvement of equipment to aid farm and home life during nearly a century of Michigan rural development, will be an outstanding feature of the annual Farmers Day at Michigan State College on Friday, July 20.

From the days when the squirrel rifle was the chief bit of "harvesting" machinery at the Michigan homestead, and the ox cart was the height of luxury in transportation, down to the modern combine and the latest thing in gasoline buggies, floats in the pageant will show briefly but graphically the tremendous progress made in the equipment of the farm.

The housewife will not be forgotten. The story of her emancipation from the water bucket and the pump will be told, with a modern indoor water system shown as the present day running mate of the newest in farm machinery.

While the floats will not be elaborate, college officials predict that they will prove interesting in focusing attention upon the surprising changes of a relatively short period of state history. The pageant will be held during the afternoon general meeting on the M. S. C. campus.

Special demonstrations planned by the departments of the college agricultural division will be scheduled for the morning of Farmers Day, along with the usual inspection of the various fields and barns.

Twilight Ball News

Only two games were played in the Twilight Ball League during the past week, no game being played Monday evening on account of the Fourth of July holiday. A regular game is scheduled for Friday evening of this week. St. Mary's defeated St. Paul's 7 to 1, last Thursday. On Tuesday, the Legion and Methodists played a tie game with four runs each at the end of the seventh inning, thus adding another postponed game to the list.

Schedule for the next week:

Thursday, July 7—Masons vs. St. Paul's.

Friday, July 8—St. Mary's vs. Congregationalists.

Monday, July 11—Masons vs. St. Mary's.

Tuesday, July 12—Methodists vs. St. Paul's.

Thursday, July 14—Legion vs. Congregationalists.

Friday, July 15 (Postponed game)—Methodists vs. St. Paul's.

The standings:

	W	L	Pct.
Legion	5	3	.625
Congregationalists	5	3	.625
St. Paul's	4	4	.500
St. Mary's	4	4	.500
Masons	3	4	.428
Methodists	2	5	.286

WILDCATS DEFEATED

WEEKLY NEWS PULLETIN

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of State

Lansing, Mich., July 6.—Motorists who fail to answer court summonses for traffic violations, which are misdemeanors under state laws, are liable to have their drivers' licenses revoked.

In recent weeks, police departments in Detroit and other cities have been asked for the revocation of approximately 100 licenses weekly on this ground. The offenses for which failure to appear in court may result in loss of the right to drive are: failure to stop at "through" streets and highways and driving at speeds faster than those allowed by cities and villages.

After the secretary of state is notified of the failure to appear in court to answer a summons in such cases, it is mandatory on the department to revoke the license to operate a motor vehicle. To obtain a new license, the law requires that a new application be made in the usual way and also that there be attached to the new application a court release for the previous alleged offense.

The last two weeks in June saw the sale of new automobiles in Michigan take a decided spurt. This is attributed in a measure to the desire of Michigan citizens to drive new cars on vacation trips and during the fourth of July holidays.

Titles were issued by the department of state for 5,336 new cars during the last two weeks of June. This is about a 50 per cent increase over the number of titles issued during the first two weeks in the same month. The demand for transfer of titles of used cars also showed some increase but was not so decided as in the case of new automobiles. During the last two weeks of June, 10,505 title transfers were made for used cars. During the same period, 472 automobiles that had been operating in other states, were granted Michigan titles.

SCHOOLS WILL RECEIVE LESS MONEY FROM PRIMARY FUND

Michigan schools will obtain $3,802,000 less from the primary school fund this year than in 1931, the auditor general revealed Saturday in Lansing. The fund will be apportioned in September.

The end of the fiscal year Thursday night had brought collections of $20,748,207 into the fund, compared with more than $24,000,000 last year. The fund is made up of inheritance taxes and apportioned to utilities, insurance, and other companies.

Some payments into the fund were delayed beyond the close of the fiscal year. They must apply, however, on the present business year.

The auditor general will be unable to determine the exact condition of the general fund at the end of the fiscal year until next week when all accounts will be cleared.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Where are the places of greatest rainfall and how much rain falls annually in these places?

Ans.—At the equator the average yearly rainfall is estimated at 95 inches. At a few isolated places the fall is often very great. At Cherrapunjee, in the Khasia Hills of Assam, 615 inches fall in the year, and there are several places in India with a fall of from 190 to 280 inches. The rainfall at New York is 43 inches; Washington, 41 inches; San Francisco, 22 inches.

Ques.—I would like to know what "SS" means on legal documents?

Ans.—"SS" in legal documents is the Latin abbreviation for "scilicet," meaning "to wit," "that is to say," or "namely."

Ques.—To settle an argument I am asking you what is the population of Arabia?

Ans.—The Arabian peninsula has a population of 7,000,000, according to the 1930 census.

Ques.—Why were the Hawaiian Islands once called the "Sandwich Islands?"

Ans.—When Capt. James Cook discovered them he named them "Sandwich Islands" in honor of John Montague, the fourth earl of Sandwich.

Ques.—What are lubricating oil and gasoline made out of?

Ans.—Both of these are produced from petroleum. Lubricating oil is the heavier portion of the crude oil after the gasoline, kerosene and other lighter and non-lubricants have been distilled off.

Ques.—Was Alfred E. Smith the first Catholic to run for president of the United States?

Ans.—Yes. He was the first to run as a regular party nominee. In 1872, however, Charles O'Connor, a New York lawyer and a Catholic, ran as an independent Democrat.

Ques.—What is meant by the "loop" in Chicago?

Ans.—This is a popular name of a district on the south side which constitutes the principal business district of the city. This part of the city is the heart of Chicago, and the loop is encircled by the various elevated railways. It is thus it gets its name "The Loop."

Ques.—Does the sun travel on its axis faster than the earth? How long does it take the sun to make a complete revolution?

Ans.—The sun travels on its axis much faster than the earth, but being 110 times larger than the earth, it takes old sol 28 days to make a complete revolution, while it takes the earth only one day to perform this feat.

Ques.—Will you kindly tell me in your interesting question department just where Mt. Pelee is located?

Ans.—Mt. Pelee is an active volcano on the northwestern side of Martinique, an island in the West Indies belonging to France. Mt. Pelee has had four notable eruptions in the last hundred years, the last occurring in 1902. Next to the last was in 1902, when about 25,000 people were killed in the city of St. Pierre, near the volcano.

Ques.—How do astronomers and the scientists tell how fast the stars travel since they are so far away to be measured?

Ans.—The measurements of the speed of stars by astronomers and scientists is a method all their own. They use the velocity of light itself as the speedometer. They determine the speed of stars directly from the star's own light.

Ques.—Since I have read and heard about so many people having Stradivarius violins, I want to ask you if it is known how many violins he made?

Ans.—The number of violins made by Antonius Stradivarius, the Italian violin maker, was about 1,000. There are not more than four or five hundred of these in existence. The country has been flooded with antiques looking like line bearing the imprint of "Stradivarius." While some of them are genuine "Strads," most of them are fakes.

Ques.—Can you tell me what bumblebees live on in the winter or do they migrate like birds?

Ans.—While bumblebees manufacture honey, they do not eat it, but feed to the young in spring. The males die, and the fertilized female pass the winter in some snug retreat in a semi-torpid state until spring when they start their broods. The older daughters do not mate, but devote their time to feeding their younger brothers and sisters. They correspond to the workers among honey bees.

Beethoven Anecdote

The Royal Philharmonic society—founded in 1813 and still flourishing as probably the most exclusive and distinguished musical organization in the world—has a proud memory or two in respect of Beethoven. For one thing, it commissioned him, in 1802, to write a symphony. He thereupon wrote the immortal Ninth "Choral" symphony, one of the most wonderful of all his works. The original score, in Beethoven's writing, is now in the British museum. And further, the Philharmonic society's gift of $500 to him when he was on his deathbed was of such value to him that his letter of thanks to the society expresses his deepest gratitude for it and promises in return—a Tenth symphony! That, alas! was never to be written.

Great Appetites

Fondness for pickles seems to have been a characteristic of famous personages as well as of ordinary mortals, both ancient peoples were especially fond of pickles, and historical records from antiquity down to modern times tell us that Cleopatra, Tiberius, Julius Caesar, Napoleon, and our own Washington and Jefferson were among the world celebrities who liked the familiar appetizers—that we moderns know so well.

The cucumber, most popular form of pickle, is one of mankind's oldest foods, and was first cultivated in northern India 3,000 years before Christ.

Cromwell's Wise Words

Does a man speak foolishly? suffer him gladly, for you are wise. Does he speak arrogantly? stop such a man's mouth with sound words that cannot be gainsaid. Does he speak truly? rejoice in the truth.—Oliver Cromwell.

At 6 o'clock they had a wienie roast and all partook of a bountiful supper which was served on the lawn. The evening was spent in a social way with readings, instrumental selections and singing. At a late hour all departed for their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Seigrist many happy returns of the day.

Mrs. Vera Simons of Detroit was a Monday visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harr and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fritzmeier and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Harr.

Woman's Constant Fear Over Dire Possibility

My husband says that it is very unfortunate that I should suddenly discover my fingernails are all worn out and have to make a special trip to town to buy more.

But every woman knows that a dark day—darkness—occasionally—when things come home from the laundry and even the little holes where she used to put the thumbs are gone. Mrs. Smith says men dress with so little effort and there isn't a morsel of her life that she doesn't have to sit up in bed and sew up something before she can dress.

She says the reason some women appear vivacious at times is that they are kept up with fear and excitement over the horrible possibility of something's becoming detached and you never saw a woman of phlegmatic temperament whose every string and button wasn't lashed on with iron firmness.—Kansas City Times.

ANN ARBOR—It has been announced at the County Road Commission office in Ann Arbor that employees of that department have received a ten per cent cut in wages, the second since the first of the year. The saving is said to be $261 a week. The cut was approximately ten per cent.

Bishops Hold "Commune"

With Long-Dead Ruler

Before a new bishop is enthroned in Winchester cathedral he has to have an interview with William the Conqueror. On his way to the cathedral he goes into a small church in the high street and there remains alone for a few minutes. The origin of the custom is this: In the days of the great Norman new bishops went to his palace as an act of loyalty before going to the cathedral. So strong was the hold he had on men's minds that even after he was dead they continued the custom. The little church of St. Lawrence stands on the site of the Conqueror's palace, and so for centuries the bishops have been visiting the church, there to commune with the spirit of the Conqueror. "There can be few other men," remarks an English writer, "who have so set their mark on the world that people pay them state visits more than 800 years after their death."—London Mail.

Washington Tree Planter

There is a phase of Washington's career which is not always mentioned in articles concerning him, but which is a very interesting one. He was an enthusiastic tree planter and collector, and he sent to far-off places for particular varieties of trees that he wished to plant at Mount Vernon. During the years from 1783 to 1785, following the end of the Revolutionary war and preceding his election to the Presidency, Washington spent practically all his time improving the large estate at Mount Vernon, laying out his grounds and making his plantings. Still growing at Mount Vernon are 43 trees which were planted by Washington during his lifetime.

OUR FAMILY and YOURS ...

One you've never heard!

WHAT DO YOU THINK, MARY, JOHN HAS PROMISED TO GET ME AN AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR.

THAT'S FINE—I LIKE MINE LOTS!

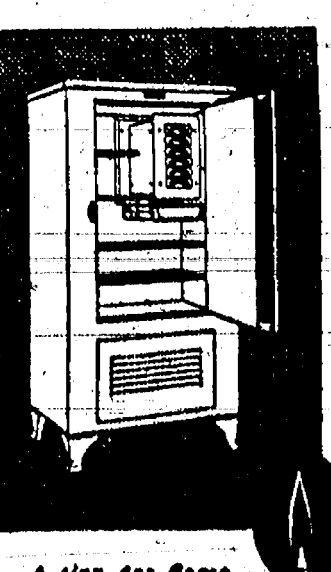

WHAT I DIDN'T KNOW YOU HAD ONE!

OH, YES WE'VE HAD OURS FOR SOME TIME BUT YOU'D NEVER KNOW IT WAS AROUND. IT'S SO SILENT YOU COULD SLEEP RIGHT BESIDE IT. IT'S AN ELECTROLUX.

ELECTROLUX is the big new idea in automatic refrigeration. For, without machinery, without sound, Electrolux produces constant steady cold... freezes plenty of pure, sparkling ice cubes. And at a cost of only a few cents a day!

A tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water do all the work. Continuously, they circulate the refrigerant. There is no alternate stopping and starting. That's why food keeps fresh longer in Electrolux.

And should your Electrolux ever require adjustment, you may expect the same prompt and efficient service you are accustomed to receive from your gas company. Electrolux prices are no higher. Terms are liberal. Come in and let us show you the complete line now on display.

I Like The Depression

Editorial by Henry Amley, Globe-News—Amarillo, Texas

I LIKE the depression. No more prosperity for me. I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life; I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common—everyday food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high-hat.

Three years ago, only one man of the News-Globe organization could be out of town at a time. He had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as possible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat through three hours of bunk in order to make a 5 minute speech, then driven the 100 miles back so as to be ready for work the next morning.

Nowadays, as many News-Globe employees as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole outfit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any difference.

I LIKE the depression. I have time to visit my friends; to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at a hotel. Now, I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy home-cooking. I have even spent the week-end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I LIKE the depression.

I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbors." One of my neighbors has one of the best-looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two and three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit of clothes in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-going-to-meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up, and I don't mean maybe. I LIKE the depression.

Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner—at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go on a party, I could never locate her, and since there was always a "blonde" or a "red head" available I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the clubs. Try Standard Liners for Results—26c

And if the depression keeps on, I will be going to prayer-meeting before long.

I LIKE THE DEPRESSION.

Now I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

In town. She even joined the young mothers club. We don't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

We got stuck up and hifalutin. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan.

When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl in mine. If she came in last, it was vice versa.

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my home now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back just like she did before Hoover was elected.

I haven't been out on a party in 18 months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. Think I will keep her, at least until she is forty and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real honest-to-godness food. Three years ago, we had filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak and flour gravy. Then we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get sow-bosom with the buttons on it.

I LIKE the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all the damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War.

I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a preacher in our community who could tell me anything.

Now I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

And if the depression keeps on, I will be going to prayer-meeting before long.

An ARMY of Salesmen who take little time

When a salesman calls upon you, your subconscious question is, "How much time will he take?"

Yet an army of salesmen comes marching into your living-room regularly. They take your time only when you can spare it. They present their products to you briefly and politely, without a single interruption during your moments of consideration. They retire at your wish, or tell you more if you desire.

Are you learning all you can from these salesmen—the advertisements in your local newspaper? They come from the market places of the world. They bring the latest facts about the things you want and need, suggest other things you might want or need. They can make life more pleasant, efficient and economical. But you—and you alone—are the judge!

Can you afford to deny an audience to THESE salesmen? They do more than try to sell you something. They bring you the news of what your neighbors and your countrymen are doing in the world of business.

Advertisements do not ring doorbells—but they receive cordial reception from intelligent, discriminating people everywhere. Again and again they point out the only true bargains—sound merchandise at fair prices. When you read the advertisements, you are helping yourself to better things!

BOARD OF EDUCATION ANNOUNCEMENTS

Duties of the Superintendent of a Graded School District:

(a) To recommend in writing all teachers necessary for the schools, and to suspend any teacher for cause until the Board of Education may consider such suspension;

(b) To classify and control the promotion of pupils;

(c) To recommend to the Board the best methods of arranging the course of study and the proper text books to be used;

(d) To make reports in writing to the Board of Education and to the Superintendent of Public Instruction annually, or oftener if required, in regard to all matters pertaining to the educational interests of the district;

(e) To supervise and direct the work of the teachers and other employees of the Board of Education;

(f) To assist the Board in all matters pertaining to the general welfare of the school and to perform such other duties as the Board may determine;

(g) To put into practice the educational policies of the State and of the Board of Education in accordance with the means provided by the Board of Education.

Part I, Chapter III, Sec. 111, Michigan General School Laws.

Additional tentative details of the Board of Education's plans for the coming school year in the Chelsea Jr. Sr. High School are here given for the benefit of students and patrons.

It is a pleasure to announce that the distribution of duties among the teachers, as given in the data published last week, has been approved above will be used for consultation by the accrediting authority of the University of Michigan and of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. A letter to this effect is now in the files of the Board.

The Board of Education has tentatively adopted a school day for the coming year which will extend from 8:30 to 12 noon and from 1:20 to 3:30. The plan will allow a noon recess of one hour and twenty minutes and will provide for a total of seven daily class periods of forty minutes each. An interval of five minutes for the movement of students between classes is provided. Four of the class periods will fall into the morning session and the remaining three into the afternoon.

In the middle of the morning session there will be a half-hour interval for a variety of activities which, it is hoped, will be held during the recess period. These activities will be of a nature to give the students a change from the regular school day and will also be held for any other reason that may be desired.

Monday—General Assembly.
Tuesday—Club Meetings.
Wednesday—Class Meetings.
Thursday—Club Meetings.
Friday—General Assembly.

The exact nature of the schedule of classes will be determined upon consultation with the various departments of the school. Such a plan will be put into operation. Such a plan will be put into operation. Such a plan will be put into operation.

At the annual school meeting in 1931, a motion was carried to the effect that the school year of 1932-33 should be 9 months, or 180 teaching days, in length. In accordance with this official action by the people of the district, the Board of Education has made a tentative calendar for the coming school year.

The plan is to begin the school year on Monday, September 12th. The first month will consist of 15 teaching days in September and 5 days in October. The teachers' pay day for the first month would be on Friday, October 7. The second month would include 16 school days in October and 4 in November, with pay day coming on Friday, November 4. The third month would use 16 days of November for teaching purposes, with 4 days of December, and the teachers would be paid on Tuesday, December 6. There would be two days lost in November on account of Thanksgiving and the day following it. The fourth month would consist of 13 December days and 7 days of January; the teachers receiving their pay on Tuesday, January 10. During this fourth month would occur the Christmas Holiday Season of one week.

The remaining months of the year would then line up as follows:
5th Month—15 school days in January and 5 in February. Pay day Tuesday, February 7.
6th Month—15 days in February and 5 in March. Pay day, Tuesday, March 7.

7th Month—15 days in March and 2 in April. Pay day, Tuesday, April 4.
8th Month—13 days in April and 7 in May. Pay day, Tuesday, May 3. (This plan provides for a Spring Vacation of one week during the April month.)
9th Month—15 days in May and 5 in June. Pay day, Wednesday, June 7. Commencement—Thursday and Friday, June 8 and 9.

The above outline provides for 180 actual teaching days, or, in other words, nine months of 20 days each. It represents the best thought of the Board in its effort to carry out the will of the people as expressed at the last annual meeting. If a change in this plan is desired, such change can be made by action taken at the 1932 annual meeting next week. It is obvious that if the teachers are paid in semi-monthly, rather than monthly, installments, then there will be a pay day between each pair of dates given above.

It will be readily apparent that by this plan of providing for 180 actual teaching days in nine months of school, a school year will result which will be practically of the same length as in past years under a ten-month term. The value lies in the saving that is made possible by basing the salaries of teachers on a period of nine months, rather than 10.

In order to provide for the operation of the schools according to the above plan, the Board of Education has prepared a tentative budget, as follows:

Expected Receipts:
From Turner Bill Funds	$ 700.00
From cash on hand, July 1, 1932	4500.00
From Tuition	4500.00
From Library Funds	1800.00
From Primary Funds	7000.00
From Direct Tax	15000.00
From Rentals, Delinquent Taxes, and other miscellaneous sources	900.00
Total	$32,100.00
Expected Disbursements:
For Expenses of General Control	$ 3220.00
For Expenses of Instruction	17102.50
For Expenses of Operation of School Plant	3800.00
For Expenses of Maintenance of School Plant	950.00
For Expenses of Auxiliary Agencies	450.00
For Miscellaneous Expenses	600.00
For Capital Outlays	3800.00
Total	$29,822.50

Attention should be called to the fact that this budget calls for the levying of only $15,000.00 in direct taxes, as against $17,000.00 last year and $22,000.00 the year previous.

The conservative character of the figures on estimated receipts is evidenced by the following facts: Receipts from tuition during the year just past were only a few dollars under $5000.00. Receipts from primary funds were nearly $9500.00. Of $17,000.00 voted in the form of direct taxes, a total of $16,853.53 were actually collected. The Board believes that the receipts from primary funds during the coming year will be in excess of the $7000.00 given above, but even at this figure, it will be possible to get by with only $15,000.00 of direct taxes. If the receipts from other sources are in excess of the estimates, it will only mean that we have a greater margin of safety.

Students of the high school are cordially invited to call at the office of the superintendent at any convenient time, for the purpose of discussing their prospective schedule of work for the coming year.

Seedless Oranges
The raising of seedless oranges was originally an "sport," propagated in Brazil by means of budding, and the seedless oranges now grown in the United States are descended from two imported Brazilian trees—Buda or "budding sticks," as they are called, are taken from seedless-orange trees of ordinary type. When the buds send out shoots the seedlings are cut back, so that only the budded portions develop. The unfruitfulness in seedless oranges is caused by the malformation of the pistillate blossoms, which without being fertilized, as nature provides no means of pollination.

Biting Remarks
What is the most biting thing ever said by a statesman about a political opponent? I have always put highest Dimsdale's description of John Stuart Mill as a flashing gooseneck, and the saying, usually attributed to Lord Balfour, that if a certain politician had a little more brains, he might be described as half-witted. But here is an acid comment from an unexpected quarter. Gladstone's style was too torrential as a rule to permit of epigrams, but he once observed of a man whom he distrusted that "he was of a composition to which water would add stability."—London Spectator.

OUR NEIGHBORS

MASON—Vernon J. Brown, representative in the State Legislature during the past two terms, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself. His petitions for nomination upon the republican ticket are already in circulation throughout the district and are being freely signed, it is reported.

MANCHESTER—Fred Widmayer, in remaining successfully in business for a period of 50 years in one place in this village earned the congratulations of all of us. With the aid of his sons he is still carrying on and we hope that continued good health will allow him to enjoy himself for a great many more years. The report that his wife, who has been in very poor health is improving, if true, will no doubt aid him in this.—Enterprise.

GRASS LAKE—According to figures announced by N. M. Davis, supervisor, as determined by township board of review, the tax levy on townships real estate has been reduced 10 per cent and more than that on personal property. The total valuation on both real estate and personal for 1932 taxes amounts to $2,270,275, of which $2,103,845 is real estate, and $166,430 personal, as compared with 1931 taxes which totaled $2,427,590, a difference of $181,815. Real estate for that year was $2,228,635; personal $198,975. The tax rate has not been determined.—News.

HOMER—The old swimming pool near the Cortright Mill, where all the Homer bathers loved so well to gather every day and during the week, has been condemned for bathing purposes by the board of health. This was done because the carcass of a horse has been found in the water, one mile up the pond on the south side of the Air-Line railroad bridge. A sample of the water has been sent to Lansing for analysis. The local bathers have deserted the swimming pool for nearby lakes.—Index.

TECUMSEH—H. H. Hanna Thursday announced that he had been notified by Congressman Earl C. Michener of his appointment as postmaster in Tecumseh. The letter from the congressman did not say when the appointment would become effective.—Herald.

STOCKBRIDGE—Edward Binding, aged resident of Stockbridge, succumbed about 9:30 o'clock Monday night of last week at his home, here after several years of ill health. Mr. Binding, 81 years of age, moved here from a farm in White Oak about 25 years ago and has lived in Stockbridge since that time. He is the last of nine children of James and Grace Binding. His health started failing since the death of his wife, several years ago. Funeral services were held at 2:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon at his home and burial was in Dansville.—Brief-Sun.

BROOKLYN—The luncheon given at the Brooklyn Hotel June 23, celebrating the completion of 35 consecutive years of work by the Bay View club, was attended by thirty-one present members, charter and honorary members and guests. The outgoing president, Mrs. Frank Neely, presided at the program following introducing Mrs. Chas. Greene, toastmistress, who presented the speakers. A greeting song, written by Mrs. C. A. Ford, for the 25th anniversary, was given, with Mrs. Herbert Watkins at the piano.—Exponent.

BRIGHTON—John Strick returned Monday from Petoskey, where for several days he had been in attendance upon the joint annual encampment of the Michigan Departments of the Grand Army of the Republic, the United Spanish War Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. It was the fifty-fourth annual encampment of the G. A. R., the twenty-ninth of the Spanish War veterans and the thirteenth of the Foreign War Veterans. A large number of auxiliary and associated organizations also participated in the gathering.—Argus.

PINCKNEY—Pinckney village will have a tax rate this year of seven mills on a dollar or seven dollars on a thousand. This is about $10 per thousand lower than the tax rate of Howell which is $17 per thousand. Pinckney had a nice balance on hand and there was some talk of not collecting any village tax this year. Careful economical village administration for the past few years have made this possible and built up a surplus. The closing of the local bank in which the village funds were on deposit has made necessary the levying of a tax this year.—Dispatch.

HOWELL—The Livingston county road commission plans the laying of several miles of black top and dust laying off spread in the near future. The county is laying the black top for the state on the three mile stretch from Howell to the sanatorium, this being a state trunk line. This will take about ten days more. Dust laying off will be spread through the towns and villages, and about five miles of black top distributed one mile each as follows: Hartland road, Oak Grove road, near Pinckney, north of Fowlerville and a mile near Brighton.—Republican-Press.

Under Frozen Stars

By George Marsh

COPYRIGHT BY PENN. PUB. CO. W.M.U. SERVICE.

CHAPTER I—From his fur post, Sunset House, in the Canadian north, Jim Sun, a certain Indian, sights an overturned canoe in the lake. With his headman, Omar, he rescues the canoe and its occupants, a young man and a woman. The young man, a white man, is named Jim. The woman is named Aurora. They are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER II—Before leaving Aurora and Jim arrange to go to the Deer Lodge, over the portage trail through the hills, to the Vermilion, and on through the day slaved dogs and man until the cold, strengthening with the dying wind and a freezing dusk fall on leg-stiff team and driver, driving them into the spruce. But through the day, as the hurrying sled passed the cold hills and the black apron of the shore, hour after hour devouring the white miles, the snow yielded no further traces of the lost girl.

CHAPTER III—Jim, with Omar, goes to discuss plans with his superior, Andrew Christie. Displaced at the house showing made at the post, Christie allows Stuart, at his request, to take the Indian to Leblond.

CHAPTER IV—After hearing the story, Leblond discharges Paradis, Jim and Aurora arrange a rendezvous. At the meeting they acknowledge their mutual love, though realizing months must elapse before they can see each other again. Jim and Aurora decide to go to the Deer Lodge, over the portage trail through the hills, to the Vermilion, and on through the day slaved dogs and man until the cold, strengthening with the dying wind and a freezing dusk fall on leg-stiff team and driver, driving them into the spruce. But through the day, as the hurrying sled passed the cold hills and the black apron of the shore, hour after hour devouring the white miles, the snow yielded no further traces of the lost girl.

CHAPTER V—Jim, visiting the Indian camps in the Pipestone country, finds Paradis has enlisted the natives from trading with Stuart. Paradis men ambush Jim and Omar again, but they are not harmed.

CHAPTER VI—Jim and Omar travel for a camp, and Jim, as a part of the plan, leaves his two dogs, a husky and a malamute, to guard the camp. The dogs are named "Medicine Stone" and "Deer Lodge." They are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER VII—Camping for the night, the two travelers roll their sleeping bags and hide in the bush nearby. Indians attempt to knife the men, but Jim and Omar, with their dogs, successfully defend themselves. The Indians are named "Medicine Stone" and "Deer Lodge." They are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER VIII—On his way down the river, Jim encounters a determined attempt to stop him. Cornered by his enemies, Jim, with his dogs, successfully defends himself. The Indians are named "Medicine Stone" and "Deer Lodge." They are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER IX—Fate falls into Jim's hands, and he is successful in his quest. He finds the girl he is looking for, and they are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER X—Stuart returns to Sunset House, and Jim, as a part of the plan, leaves his two dogs, a husky and a malamute, to guard the camp. The dogs are named "Medicine Stone" and "Deer Lodge." They are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER XI—Jim, as a part of the plan, leaves his two dogs, a husky and a malamute, to guard the camp. The dogs are named "Medicine Stone" and "Deer Lodge." They are both of the same name as the characters in the story.

CHAPTER XII—Back at Sunset House, making preparations for the handling of the expected big Christmas trade, Jim receives a note from Aurora. She has returned from Winnipeg, and urges him to visit her at once at her father's trading post, saying Jim loves her. He is forced to wait until the morning. That night, one of the Indian boys, who had been sent to the post to find that Aurora had been kidnapped by the Indians and carried off to the north, is found dead on the ground.

Jim Stuart was paying dearly for his triumph at the Medicine Stone, paying in the anguish of despair. The dawn of a clear day broke blue and bitter. For an hour Jim had traveled in the half-trail, half-walk of the snowshoe swing, when, as he passed close to the alders of the shore of the narrow river, he suddenly stopped. A muffled brush of the rim of his eyebrows as he stared at a clump of frozen bushes.

Running to the shore, he reached above his head and tore from the brittle twigs a piece of white fabric, stiffened by frost.

"Handkerchief!" he shouted, triumphantly, and in a corner found the embroidered letters, "A. L. B." "Handkerchief!" He was right. They were on the Deer Lodge trail—ahead of him. She had dropped it as a sign to those she knew would follow.

coming—fast as dogs can travel!" Leaping on his sled, he cracked his whip with a hoarse, "Marche, Wolfe! She's ahead of us, boy! They've got a big lead but you'll wear 'em down. You'll show those scrubs what real dogs can do!"

Up the Deer lodge, over the portage trail through the hills, to the Vermilion, and on through the day slaved dogs and man until the cold, strengthening with the dying wind and a freezing dusk fall on leg-stiff team and driver, driving them into the spruce. But through the day, as the hurrying sled passed the cold hills and the black apron of the shore, hour after hour devouring the white miles, the snow yielded no further traces of the lost girl.

Starting under frosted stars dimming before the dawn, hurrying to the trail until stars again glittered in the auroral heavens above him, Jim urged his team down the white Vermilion to the first of the Pipestone lakes. Through the Pipestones and down the Sturgeon lake, sped the dogs, pushed by the insistent appeals of a man half-mad with grief and fear. With his powerful team driven to the last ounce of their stamina, Jim wondered if he had overtaken and passed the man he hunted, concealed somewhere on the Pipestones? It was possible. Slowly Jim lost hope.

And so, one pitiless gray day, when the dying sun hung smothered in haze above the black ridges which ringed the Sturgeon, six footcrops, stiff-legged dogs, heads down, tails brushing the ice, crept within sight of the island of the Medicine Stone.

"It is he!" said Omar to old Jimaw, in Ojibwa, as they waited beside a fire for the appearance of Jim at the rendezvous. "He has come fast, for the trail is long, but he has seen nothing."

Trail-beaten dogs and driver limped in from the lake ice. In amazement Jimaw stared at the drawn face and tortured eyes of the factor of Sunset House, as they shook hands. To Jim's eager look Omar shook his hooded head. "No sign—nothing."

Groping under his skin capote, Jim produced the pitiful square of white muslin.

"I found this on the Deer Lodge—nothing since. I never spotted a sled track; the snow wiped out everything. What do the Indians say?" Omar gravely shook his head.

"I talk to two hunters on de Pipestone, but dey see no trail and no sled headin' north."

"In one-two sleep," said Jimaw in his native tongue, "there will be many teams from the Winksk and the lower Sturgeon. They bring their furs to the House of Sunset. If he passed here they have met him."

"Can he keep alive—and game in the winter on the Winksk and the Sturgeon, Jimaw?" asked Jim.

The old Indian shook his head. "He will not know where to find the camp, nor where to find the sled. He will starve."

"Starve?" muttered the man who listened, with a shudder. "Better to starve, though, than live that long with Paradis!"

That night Jim lay like a dead man. There would be no start before dawn under the stars for him and his dogs. Before daylight, six inches of new snow covered the trails to the Winksk and the lower Sturgeon. Until the hunters came in from the north Omar and Jimaw insisted that their chief rest with his dogs. To go on blindly was madness.

Late in the afternoon Jim waked to the yelp of huskies. The first of the Winksk hunters were in to meet Jimaw, on their way to the trade. Throwing off his robes, Jim hurried to a knot of hooded Indians who stood beside their panting dogs, gesticulating excitedly as they talked to Jimaw and Omar.

"You say a sled passed your camp in the night, heading north?" Jim heard Omar ask in Ojibwa.

"She may be starving, already—starving!" Down the lake, purple under the starlight, Jim's six dogs galloped into the north.

CHAPTER XIV
Clear, before him, over the white shell of the lake, led the sled-tracks of the hunters from the Winksk. They miles—thirty miles away she had been at dawn. While he had slept she had been there, over the hills to the north—calling to him, and he had not heard. Already she may have cheated the madman who had hoped to disappear with her into the white heart of Keweenaw—chosen, in her desperation, the refuge of death.

Crossing the portage to the Winksk, Jim traveled through the night, holding a grip on his sanity by running until exhausted behind the sled. Later, at the camp of the hunters, he found a single sled trail which led downstream in the young snow.

"You've got a day's start, Paradis!" Jim's hoarse voice broke on the silence, "but you're lost! Every hour you're coming closer—I'm crawling up on you. Still I teach you with my hands!"

Four hundred miles to the north, the Winksk met the frozen coast of Hudson's bay—four hundred miles of pitiless hills, of desolate forests, of muskies and white barrens over which the withering winds of midwinter howled endlessly.

But Paradis should never see the bay! The man, who tightened his belt in his haggard eyes followed the trail before him over the river ice, as he was seized by one thought.

"She'll not wait long. It's a matter of days!" he muttered, as he started. "No rest—no sleep while I see this trail!"

Ruthless as a starved wolf on a caribou track, stopping only to eat, at that day dawn the winding Winksk Jim held to the sled-trail in the snow. At last the gallant dogs, who for twenty hours had driven their iron-thews to his call, faltered.

"Marche, Wolfe!" wretchedly protested the hoarse voice of the man who, to lighten the load for his spent dog, for hours had swung head down, at its tail of the sled. At the call the gallant lead-dog lifted his loiling head, and lurched forward in the traces, but the team behind were done, and making no response, hitched along at a slow walk.

"It's no use! We're through!" groaned the man who had driven himself to the end of his strength, in his ears the voice of Aurora ever calling him on, on over the endless snow.

The swift December night was close, and as the team crawled behind him, Jim staggered ahead, searching for a place to camp. Shortly the trail he followed swung in to the shore.

"Their camp!" Spurred by the thought of what the snow would reveal, the excited man followed the trail into the timber.

In seconds he would know—know it! There might be a message—a sign that she still hoped, hoped for the help that her eyes had strained for in vain.

There in the thick spruce ahead was the fire-hole, with the dead embers, the beaten snow of the camp. With pounding heart he reached the spot trampled by the dogs and a man's necessities.

"She's alive! She's with him!" Before him in the snow were the imprints of small feet.

Frantically he searched the campsite for some evidence that she had not disappeared—some sign to the speeding dog-teams on the trail of Paradis. And at last, in a small cedar he found a scrap of birch-bark.

On it was traced with a charred stick: "Dogs gone! Come quick! A!"

"She knows we're behind her—knows we're coming, Wolfe!" Jim shouted to the dogs who had brought the sled in and lay panting on the snow. "All teams done for! We'll get him tomorrow, you cripples! A big feed and sleep tonight. Tomorrow we'll burn up the trail!"

Later, as the muffled body of Jim Stuart lay in the sleep hole beside the flaming birch logs, and near him, huddled in thick furs, curled his trail-beaten team, deep in the sleep of utter exhaustion, the spruces above them fretted with the rising wind. And before dawn, the first north-wester from the leelets of the bay was shrieking up the valley of the Winksk.

The man who waked, and stirred his stiffened legs to rise and freshen the fire for his breakfast kettle, found the camp buried in drift as the blast of the blizzard flayed the rocking spruces.

For a space Jim lay in his blankets, while tears of weakness and shattered hope slowly froze on his uncovered face.

"I'd have reached them today! They're not far ahead, ten—fifteen miles," he groaned. "But the dogs won't face this long."

Eating his breakfast, he harnessed the dogs, reluctant to leave their sleeping holes in the snow, secure from the drive of the wind which roared past up the river.

"Marche, Wolfe!" Jim snapped his whip beside the ears of the gaunt leader, and man and dogs plunged with lowered heads into the white smother.

Owes Life to Cough
At Dar-Es-Salaam, Tanganyika, an African native is pointed out as the man who coughed in his grave. Pronounced dead, his relatives had assembled and the drama had reached the moment of burial when the chief so coughed loudly. He recovered, expressed a belief that he had been under a spell and started for the village witch doctor, who coughed once and fled.
