Detroit Man Killed Here Monday Morning

One man was killed and another badly injured when they were involved in a collision early Monday morning on U.S. 12 about two miles west of Chelsea.

The blowing out of a tire on a west bound car driven by A. N. Hubbard of Highland Park caused the machine to swerve and collide with a west bound roadster, throwing it into a nearby field. Leo N. Willis, the driver, was instantly killed and Ray Evans, who accompanied him, suffered several broken ribs and bruises about the head and face. Hubbard was uninjured.

Willis was 43 years old, and was employed by the Dean, Harris Co., Detroit. His body was brought to the Plankert funeral home, and later was removed to his home in Detroit. Evans was taken to the local hospital for treatment.

Miss Gertrude Holton Weds Syracuse Doctor

The marriage of Miss Gertrude E. Holton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Holton, of 35 Roseland Place, Toledo, and Dr. William Anthony Lawler, of Syracuse, N. Y., was solemnized at 12:30 Saturday, August 13, at the home of the Bishop of the Toledo diocese, Rev. J. Allen Babcock, of the Catholic Student Council, Ann Arbor, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride was charming in an empire gown of suede lace over white satin. She wore a helmet of seed pearls and carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and gardenias. The attendants were Mrs. Paul Leonard of Akron, Ohio, and C. Lawler of Syracuse, N. Y., brother of the groom. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Woman's Building, and a four-course breakfast was served to 100 guests. The bride's table was centered with white roses and gypsophila and illuminated with white tapers. Ophelia roses and delphinium adorned the other tables, which were lighted with rose and blue tapers.

Both bride and groom are graduates of the University of Michigan, the former having been instructor of French and Mathematics in the Chelsea public schools for the past three years. On their return from a wedding trip, Dr. and Mrs. Lawler will reside in Syracuse.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clark of Chelsea were guests at the reception.

Annual Flower Show Will Be Held Aug. 28

Announcement is made by the Chelsea Greenhouses that their Annual Flower Show will be held on Sunday, August 28. A number of attractive prizes are being offered for the best of several groups of flowers, and it is expected that there will be many entries on display.

The Ann Arbor Curb Market Basket Picnic will also be held on the Greenhouse grounds that day. The public is invited to participate in this event while attending the flower show. A large crowd attended the combined events last year, and the greenhouse management is anticipating a larger attendance for this year. Further details of the event, including a list of the prizes, will be announced next week.

Announcement

Everyone is urged to attend the Big Temperance Rally, sponsored by the Washtenaw County Brotherhood, Friday evening, August 19, at 8 o'clock in the Chelsea High School. E. G. Rollings, a nationally known lecturer, will speak on the subject, "The Liquor Business Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow." Kenneth Shouls, pianist of the First Baptist church, Pontiac will be an added attraction.

PLEASE RETURN WATCH!
If anyone fishing in Sugar Loaf Lake has the good fortune to catch a large fish containing a fine 21-jewel watch, Geo. Seitz will pay a handsome reward to the honest gentleman if the watch is returned to him. Although George claims that he didn't bait his hook with the golden bait, he suspects that some one of the gigantic fish inhabiting that lake made a lightning dive for the watch and devoured it before it had time to reach bottom after falling from his pocket while he was fishing there recently.

ST. MARY'S PICNIC TO BE HELD AT N. LAKE SUNDAY, AUGUST 21

Committees in charge of the St. Mary's picnic which will be held at North Lake on Sunday, August 21, promise for the people of the community one of the greatest events ever attempted here. The public is cordially invited to attend the picnic and the program of events includes pleasurable activity for every minute of the day.

One of the greatest attractions, of course, is the delicious dinner which will be served from 12:00 to 1:30. The committee in charge of this part of the program promises that there will be plenty to eat and that service will be first-class.

Three speakers have a part in the program. They are: Judge P. H. O'Brien of Detroit, Hon. Edward Francis Dorf of Hudson and Prof. C. S. Blake of Grand Rapids. The first named is a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination on the Democratic ticket and the latter represents Geo. W. Welsh on the Republican ticket. Thus plenty of political fireworks are promised to add to the amusement of the assembly, and perhaps some food for serious thought.

Program of event will be as follows:

10:30—Newspaper race.
10:45—Potato race.
11:00—Peanut race.
11:15—Candy race.
11:30—Race for children under 12.

2:30 to 4:00—Pat man's race, pleating contest, ball and bat race, tug of war, flag race.

NEW TEACHER HIRED

The Chelsea Board of Education has received the acceptance of Miss J. Alma Cash for the position in the high school made vacant by the resignation of Miss Josephine Weidemeyer.

Miss Cash is spending the summer at Arkadelphia, Arkansas, having received her Master's degree from the University of Michigan in June. She is a teacher of experience in the three languages that she will teach in Chelsea, namely, English, Latin and French. She is very highly recommended by the University of Michigan and is highly regarded by the Teachers' College from which she graduated. In fact the head of this college states that he would like to have Miss Cash on his faculty.

These unusual qualifications have led the local Board of Education to believe that in Miss Cash they have a valuable addition to the teaching staff.

Legion Downs Catholics To Win Championship

Local baseball devotees who were injecting so many "ifs" in their prophecy of the outcome of the Twilight Ball League season games found that their opinions were of little consequence, and that results were quite a surprise to a majority of fans who have closely followed the games this season.

Congregationalists failed to hold the St. Mary's team last Thursday evening, the latter team winning, 8 to 5, thus placing them in tie position with the Legion team for high honors.

The play-off game Monday evening, between the Legion and St. Mary's attracted the largest crowd of the season, it requiring careful parking of cars to accommodate all spectators within the confines of the Holmes field ball park. With a great amount of "rooting" for both top-notch teams, interest in the game was quite apparent.

With Al Rossbach hurling for St. Mary's and Ed. Miller for the Legion team, batters of both teams were held to a comparatively small number of hits. The final score of the game was 4 to 2 in favor of the Legion, resulting in their championship of the League, finishing with a percentage of .738, having won 11 games and lost four.

This year's Twilight Ball season has been intensely interesting from the start. Most of the teams have played good baseball, and good sportsmanship has been in evidence among players throughout the season. Congregationalists, finishing in third position, should be given special mention inasmuch as their team was a new organization entering the field this year, although a few of their outstanding players have been affiliated with other teams in past seasons. St. Paul's team was in a threatening position during the first part of the season, being at the head of the standings for a short time. They finish in fourth position. Masons hold fifth position and the Methodists are at the bottom of the list. The Masons and Methodists played one less game than the other teams, which would have been played if the result would alter standings.

Final standings are: W. L. Pct.
Legion 11 4 .738
St. Mary's 10 5 .667
Congregationalists 9 6 .600
St. Paul's 6 9 .399
Masons 6 9 .357
Methodists 3 11 .214
Such keen interest has been displayed in the games that other contests are being arranged for the pleasure of fans. On Monday evening at 6:30 Chet Miller's 6-foot Giants will oppose Bob Winans' Midgits, the game to be played at Holmes field. Giants' line-up: Al Rossbach, W. Rossbach, B. Crocker, L. Haselswerdt, T. Haselschwerdt, C. Miller, E. Miller, C. White and Paul Niehaus. Midgits' line-up: Bob Dvorak, Bob Winans, Alvin Schiller, Glen Novess, Duane Winans, Raymond Dancer, Bob Wallace, Pete Allshouse and Nick Panarites. There will be no admission charge, and a good game is promised.

Alec's Nine has challenged St. Paul's team and a game will be played by these teams on Friday evening of this week, starting promptly at 6:30. Meserv's All-Stars, a team selected from the five lower deck teams of the Twilight League, have accepted the challenge of the champion Legion team, and they have scheduled a game for Monday evening, August 20. It is stated that this battle may develop into a three-game series.

A team made up of brothers will play the Pinckney soft ball team here Thursday evening, August 25, Holmes field, at 6:30. The following brothers will play: E. Miller, C. Miller, J. Munro, R. Munro, A. Alexander, A. Alexander, W. Alexander, N. Mayer, W. Mayer. Substitutes: D. Winans, B. Mayer.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I was born on May 1, 1898. Can you tell me on what day of the week that date fell on?

Ans.—May 1, 1898 fell on Sunday, that being, of course, the day of the week on which you were born.

Ques.—If you answer all kinds of questions, will you tell me why God didn't make a woman before he made man?

Ans.—We dare not tell you to whom we referred this question (for he is a married man); but he said God made Adam first in order to give him a chance to talk.

Ques.—I want to ask in your good paper how the word "route" is pronounced? I often hear it pronounced two different ways.

Ans.—The best authorities give "root" as the correct pronunciation of "route." While "route," rhyming with "out," is common in many localities, "root" is gradually displacing "route."

Ques.—Some old postage stamps I have show a water-mark of "U. S." on them, while others are plain. Is that some secret sign or mark?

Ans.—No. At one time all postage stamps were printed on paper water-marked "U. S. P. S." (United States Postal Service), but this was discontinued in 1916.

Ques.—Can you tell me what are the Goodwin sands, and why they are so called?

Ans.—In the Strait of Dover, about six miles off Deal, is a stretch of dangerous shoals, which are thought to be the remnant of a submerged island once owned by Earl Godwin. This stretch of sands was named after him, but was corrupted into the word "Goodwin."

Ques.—I would like to know how the bones of canned salmon are made soft. Will you please answer this in your questions and answers?

Ans.—The process of subjecting canned salmon as well as several other varieties of fish, to intense heat after the containers are sealed, softens the bones. Some people think the bones are softened by the oil in the cans, but that is not true.

Ques.—I have been curious to know why dancing shoes are called "pumps." I will thank you for an answer in your interesting question department.

Ans.—The origin of the term of "pump" as applied to dancing slippers, is not known for certain. The best authority we can find is that they were first called "pumps" because they were worn on pompous occasions among the nobility. The word "pump" is a corruption of "pomp."

Ques.—I know very well that "B. V. D.'s" applies to a certain kind of underclothes, but am at a loss to know what the letters mean and why they are thus called?

Ans.—We have answered this question a number of times in the past, but for your benefit we will say again that the initials "B. V. D." is the trade-mark of a certain brand of underwear, being the initials of "Bradley, Voorhees & Day," the manufacturers.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer this question: Is it proper to say "the United States" or "these United States"?

Ans.—When speaking of this nation as a group of states, then it is proper to say "these United States." But when referring to this nation as a unit, it is proper to say "the United States." "These United States" is sometimes used as a flowery form of speech. And while it is not technically correct, it is more or less sanctioned by usage.

Ques.—Will you kindly tell me how much insurance is carried on the United States capitol building in Washington, D. C.

Ans.—None. The United States government owns so many buildings that it has about the same advantage as an insurance company, hence it is its own insurance company. Furthermore, most of the federal buildings are fireproof and the government finds it less expensive to appropriate money for replacements when needed rather than to make the payments on insurance policies.

DEXTER—Arrangements are being made and committees appointed for the annual Labor Day Picnic and Homecoming which will be held Labor Day, September 6, under the auspices of St. Joseph's parish.—Leader.

INCKNEY—One bit of good news broke for the residents of this section last week when the local creamery was leased by the VanCamp Co. who announced that they would reopen the institution for the reception of milk this week Thursday, August 11. Four men arrived here Monday who have been working to get the creamery in shape to start operations.—Dispatch.

JACKSON—A readjustment of tuition fees for Jackson schools was adopted Thursday night by the board of education, which will result in a considerable saving to pupils and other districts sending children here. The resident tuition charge for Junior college will remain the same, $60, while the non-resident fee has been lowered from $310 to $140.—Tribune.

er districts sending children here. The resident tuition charge for Junior college will remain the same, $60, while the non-resident fee has been lowered from $310 to $140.—Tribune.

MASON—Entry was gained to the coal office of the Mickelson-Baker Lumber company Tuesday night and a cash box containing $63.00 was stolen from the safe. The thief forced a rear door to the office. Sheriff's officers believe that the combination upon the safe was not turned when Albert Herzog, the manager, left for the night. The money was locked in a box in the safe. When Mr. Herzog opened the office early Wednesday morning he discovered the robbery. The rear door was open and the locked box was gone from its usual place in the safe.—News.

MORENCI—A stray dog appeared at the farm home of George Brooks recently, who lives about two and a half miles southwest of Onsted, and bit the family dog and two cows in a herd of 18. Later it became known that the dog was mad. Dr. C. S. Tuttle, veterinary, vaccinated the cattle and watched the herd for rabies. Symptoms of the disease developed a few days ago in two of the cows. One was killed Tuesday and the other it was expected would have to be killed soon. None of the family was bitten by the dog.—Observer.

MILAN—Hundreds were in attendance at the centennial celebration of the organization of the York church. Former pastors, residents of the community and many who traveled from miles from other sections of the state were greeting old friends and new in the two days' celebration. Eight were present who were also present at the fiftieth anniversary in 1882.—Leader.

MANCHESTER—Every few days someone, woman or man, but strangers, appear at stores and homes selling one thing or another and they are persistent even after being told that you cannot buy and finally to get rid of them too many of our citizens make a purchase. Why do we do that? We have stores in the village which sell perhaps the same articles and as a citizen we really should buy of them. Merchants and others are paying taxes here for other public necessities and are patronizing our merchants while the traveling salesmen pay none of these and too often you find that the traveling salesman has swindled you.—Enterprise.

$12,000 In Prizes Attracts Entries

This year's premiums to be awarded at the Washtenaw County Fair will total approximately $12,000. Among those departments which will be very popular this year are: Livestock divisions, including horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, and rabbits, with premium awards totaling nearly $8,000. In the farm crops divisions, including flowers, vegetables, seeds, grains and fruit there will be awarded approximately $1,000.

The Boys' and Girls' club work and all forms of children's participation is no doubt one of the salient features contributing to the success of the Fair. There will be an addition to the usually large and fine exhibit, a greater profusion of entertainment than has ever before been attempted at the county fair. It is believed by officials that there will not be an idle moment in the entire program of events. The consolidation of the Milt Hinkle Co. and the Adams Rodeo Co. will be the stellar attraction on the amusement program. For one who has longed to witness the great Cheyenne frontier day, the Pendleton round-up or the Calgary stampede, this exhibition at the Washtenaw County Fair allows unusual opportunity to see the biggest event of the nature ever brought east. Performances will be presented each afternoon and evening.

"REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM" TO SHOW AT PRINCESS

Re-creating in all its charm and emotional appeal the most famous romance of the twentieth century, Fox Films' spectacular production, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," featuring Marian Nixon and Ralph Bellamy, will be shown at the Princess Theatre, Friday and Saturday, August 19th and 20th.

Faithfulness to Katy Douglas Wiggin's and Charlotte Thompson's original stage play is noted throughout the picture which relates the amazing adventures and glamorous romance of the little girl who believed in happiness.

Alfred Santell's direction, marked with constant attention to the maintenance of the original spirit of Rebecca's character, also adds much to the entertainment values of the film. Headed by Mae Marsh, the important supporting cast includes Louise Closer Hale, Sarah Padden, Alan Hale, Alphonse Ethier, Ella Guy, Ronald Harris and many others.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clowry of Lansing were week-end guests at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Potts.

A Section of The Standard Devoted to Items Concerning the Chelsea Public Schools

BOARD OF EDUCATION ANNOUNCEMENTS

Judging by the experiences of the past, together with the prospect of new non-resident students, it is estimated that the Chelsea High School will have an enrollment, during the coming year, of approximately 175. This estimate is based upon the following considerations:

Last year the enrollment in the 8th grade of the Chelsea Junior High School was 34. Assuming that 30 of these will attend high school, and that 20 graduates of the rural schools will also attend, we have a potential Freshman Class of 55.

Last year the 9th grade had 50 students. Hence, we anticipate 45 Sophomores. In last year's 10th grade were 39 students; we expect 35 Juniors, therefore. A total of 42 were listed in last year's 11th grade, and we are expecting a Senior Class of 40, since we are aware that this class will include some students who took their first three years in other schools.

In addition to those students who will be enrolled in the regular four years of high school work, we expect that 5 graduates will enroll for post-graduate work in courses which they missed as regular students.

It may be of interest to know that the prospective students have responded fairly well to our request for early enrollment. At the close of last week, the number who have arranged their daily schedules for next year had reached 101. These were divided as follows:

Freshmen—32
Sophomores—22
Juniors—21

Seniors—25

Post-graduates—3

We sincerely hope that every prospective student will have visited the school office and made his class schedule before next week comes to a close. An earnest request is hereby made that all students place in the hands of the superintendent the list of textbooks that they wish to purchase from the school. Orders for books will be forwarded to the publishers on September 1st.

The following is a list of the books which students of the Chelsea High School will need in their various courses at the beginning of the school year:

ENGLISH

9th Grade Composition—Tanner, Correct English.

10th Grade Rhetoric—Tanner, Composition and Rhetoric.

11th and 12th Grade American Literature—Long, American Literature, Newcomer et al., Three Centuries of American Poetry and Prose.

LATIN

1st Year—Gray and Jenkins, Latin for Today, 1st Year Course.

2nd Year—Gray and Jenkins, Latin for Today, 2nd Year Course.

FRANCOIS

The same study materials that were used in the first year.

SOCIAL STUDIES

9th Grade—Citizenship—Hughes, A Textbook in Citizenship.

10th Grade—World History—Pilllow, Man's Great Adventure.

11th and 12th Grade—American History—Muzzey, The American People; Pease, Syllabus of American History (This book will be furnished to students without charge).

MATHEMATICS

9th Grade Algebra—Hawkes, Luby, Tanton, New First Course in Algebra.

11th Grade Algebra—Hawkes, Luby, Tanton, New Second Course in Algebra.

10th Grade Geometry—Durell and Arnold, New Plane Geometry.

SCIENCE

9th Grade Biology—Smallwood, Elementary Biology.

11th Grade Chemistry—Brownlee, Principles of Chemistry.

12th Grade Physics—Carhart and Chute, Practical Physics.

BUSINESS STUDIES:

11th Grade—Business Arithmetic—Miner et al., Business Arithmetic.

12th Grade Business English—Davis and Lingham, Bus. English and Correspondence.

12th Grade Business Law—Weaver, Business Law.

11th and 12th Grade Typing—Sorelle, New Rational Typewriting.

11th and 12th Grade Bookkeeping—20th Century Bookkeeping and Accounting.

Not later than September 1st, all students should furnish the superintendent a list of the books which they wish to purchase new. Orders for new books will be sent to the publishers on September 1st, and those students who delay turning in their lists will find themselves handicapped by delay in securing their books after the school year opens.

It has come to the attention of the superintendent that some students have gained a false impression of the purpose of the new steel lockers that are to be made available to them during the coming year.

It is not expected that the locker will serve simply as a substitute for a school desk, but rather as an added convenience. In the locker may be placed clothing, books, and any other items of personal property that the locker will hold. Every student will be assigned to a school desk, where, if he wishes, he may keep his books.

In this connection it should be explained that the room in the high school building which heretofore has been variously referred to as "assembly", "study hall", or "session room" will, during the coming year, be used only as a library. All library books and materials will be placed in this room and it will be maintained as a space set aside for study purposes only. All library books will be available for student inspection at all times.

In the library there will be several large tables for the accommodation of students who wish to use reference books. In addition, the room will contain 109 regular school desks. These 109 desks will be issued to as many students, for purposes of storing books. The remainder of the student body will have desks for storage purposes in the various class rooms. Thus every student will have one desk in which he may keep his books and papers.

It will be seen that the library will not have a desk for every student, but there are sufficient desks in this room to accommodate all of the students who will be studying there at any one period. Thus every student will have, somewhere in the building, a desk in which he may store his books, while those who use lockers will simply have the privilege of keeping their books either in the locker or in the desk, as they desire. When a student passes from one classroom to another, or from a classroom to a study period in the library, he will wish, of course, to change the book or books that he is carrying with him. If he keeps his books in a locker he will go there and make the change. If he uses a desk for storage of his books, he will likewise go there and get what he needs for the next period.

For the benefit of students and parents alike, we wish to repeat and emphasize the point that the library will be used only for study. This room, the largest in the building, will never, at any time of the day, be a place for casual conversation or informal talk. The student who comes to school early may go here to study and be assured of working without disturbance. Similarly, students may study here in comparative silence during the noon hour and after the close of the regular school day.

We sincerely trust that the above explanations will answer all questions of uncertainty both as to the facilities for study and as to the uses which may be made of desks and lockers.

What Is The Fundamental Purpose Of The American Public School System?

A Digest of a Series of Articles by William McAndrew, Formerly Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools, in "The Nation's Schools", September, 1930 to February, 1931.

By Earl Y. Poore, Superintendent, Chelsea Public Schools

The California Taxpayers' Association says: "The public schools belong to the people. They are for civic preservation and betterment. Their output can be measured; it must be measured; it will be measured." Why should not the superintendent, be required to take the stand and give an account of his stewardship? Here are some questions that the public has a right to ask me: What are the steps taken in your organization to prepare the children for an adherence to the duties of honest government, of knowledge of the doings of the people's representatives, of participation in the political work of the community? What are the steps taken by you and your teachers toward cultivating your expertness in political knowledge and duty? What are the results of your civic teaching?

The teaching of Reading has become a science. That is, the process has been improved by experiment and proof until proper training in it can be accurately measured and compared with standards that I can require of every teacher. Judd and Gray and other careful researchers have put reading where a mastery in two years is now equivalent to that of five years of work when I was a pupil in a common school. Early literacy is now possible for all normal children. But, if I were put on the stand and required to testify before those who pay my salary, I could not get by with a showing that my school system teaches the children to read well, or that they are above the standard of the country in reading ability. Why not? Because it is not enough that the child knows how to read. It is important to consider what he does with what he reads. Benedict Arnold was an excellent reader. Some of Al Capone's syndicate are among the most highly educated men in Chicago. O'Shea has this to say: "We are entering a new era of knowledge of children. Results of thousands of experiments are available. A child is the most complex entity of all we have to do with, even more so than the adult. But children can now be measured mentally and bodily. The old notion that their earlier years matter little is utterly exploded. Probably they are the most important times of life. The foundations of democracy must be laid in them. To avoid the teaching of civics until the senior year of the high school is reprehensible folly. To let children grow up in a school atmosphere with rules made wholly by adults engenders a conflict with law and order and tends to produce deplorable lawlessness in after life. The child's inner urge is social and he is easily persuaded toward civic good."

Why do children fail in school? Careful experimentation proves that failures are not due to low intelligence. Bright children, attentive and willing, lose their grip. Some children develop a "failure complex". I had one of these when I began to study Algebra. I was conditioned in my first semester's work in this subject. Fortunately for me, I had a different teacher in the second semester and finished the year with a good record. The fault was not with me, but with my teacher. I know now that this is true but I could never have gotten an admission of it from my teacher. When I was a small lad, the teacher's business was to designate the day's portion of the book and to require you to learn it. Tomorrow she would hear you reproduce the portion required of you when your turn came to recite. She would mark your score in a book. It was not uncommon for 25 per cent of the children to fail of promotion. Without any trial, the high schools cheerfully espoused the doctrine of the survival of the fittest. The rule was, sink or swim. There was little or no sense of responsibility to the public that paid the teachers. In my opinion, the real task of the high school is that of assuming the responsibility of all youth sent to it, clean and dirty, well-mannered and insolent, bright and stupid, and of adjusting civic instruction to the capacity of each. Nature has endowed some children with greater ability than others, but each can be encouraged to develop the best that is in him.

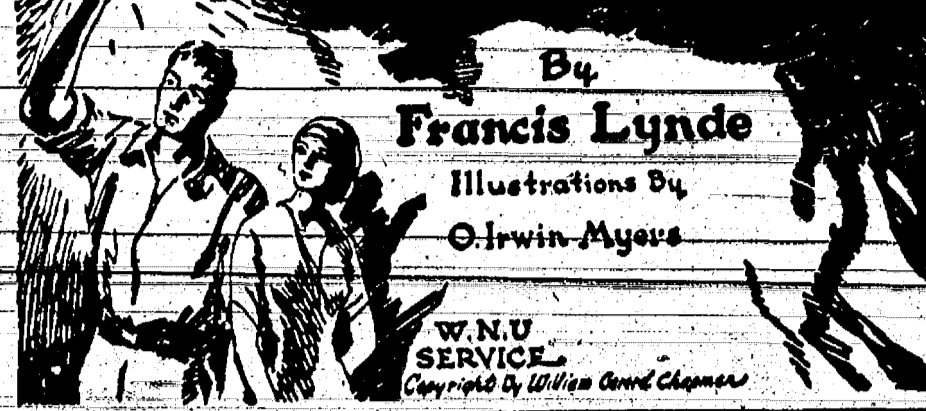

The greatest deadening force in the public schools is the mass recitation. Too many teachers use the same methods for all children. They recognize no differences. The truth is that each child is a separate problem, requiring attention to his particular ability and his special needs. There is no such thing as the "Average Child". The school must realize that children range from feeble-mindedness to genius, but that each deserves the opportunity to develop himself for civic usefulness, whether he has one talent, five, or a hundred.

Superintendent Cody of Detroit says: "Education in the spirit of life must give to youth only those experiences that have a direct meaning and use in the world of today and tomorrow. It behooves us to interpret the lessons of the race for social, civic and moral betterment. From our teaching must result a new social political order, based on intelligence and reason. We must hold steadfastly to our great spiritual truths and realize them in modern life. Those truths are sanctified to us in the great national documents: more perfect union, justice, domestic peace, defense, general not selfish welfare."

Today we have methods of measurement which tell us not only what teaching is good, but how good it is. The community that wants to know how its schools compare with the country in general can find out. Here is a long sentence of McAndrew's, but there is food for thought in it: "The main policy of American education is not to give the child the intellectual inheritance of the race; not to wipe out illiteracy; not to develop the whole man—heart, head and hand; not a sound mind in a sound body; not to train leaders; not art for art's sake; not to get money into a savings bank; not to make a seller of goods; nor to fit for vocation; nor to prepare for college; nor to entertain with dancing, drama and athletics; nor to provide for leisure time; nor for worthy home membership; nor for any of the scholastic objectives with which we are so familiar; but, first to train for politics, which is service to the community as an entity organized as government, for a better union, justice, tranquility, defense and general welfare, and after that if there is time and money, to provide such other good as is closely related to the main duty."

THE BLACK BOX OF SILENCE

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Having demonstrated the power of an extraordinary silence, the black box, which he has perfected, O'Shea, a young inventor, in the little town of Carthage, confides to his cousin, Markham, the task of finding out the cause of the explosion which had taken place in the laboratory.

CHAPTER II.—Landis tells Markham the only person, beside himself, knowing the combination of the safe, is Betty Lawson, with whom the inventor is in love. Markham takes a plaster cast of a woman's footprint, found beneath the window of the laboratory.

CHAPTER III.—Betty, daughter of a well-known Carthage family, goes to Markham. Both he and Landis believe her to be above suspicion, but to assure himself he takes an opportunity to fit the cast to one of Betty's shoes. They are identical. Betty tells him Herbert Canby, a stranger in town, who is posing as a "prominent" had driven her home from the theater the previous night, and that she had dozed in the car. Markham, however, is not satisfied with her discovery. That the girl should have deliberately stolen the invention from Landis' safe is unthinkable, but the evidence of the plaster cast seems to prove she was present at the time of the robbery.

Ormsbury unlocked the straps and spread the contents of the bag on his desk. Canby's astonishment was either real or feigningly simulated.

"Well—I'll be d—d!" he burst out. "Wouldn't that set your back teeth on edge? Who do you suppose planted that outfit on me?"

"Where did you say it was?" queried Ormsbury, spurring for time.

"Under the bottom of my wardrobe. The bottom board is loose, and when I opened the door to put my grip away, I saw that one of the trousers had got caught under the loose board, and when I picked the clothes up, the board came with 'em. And there in one corner, was this thing. What is it—a plant, or a joke?"

Markham was watching Canby narrowly as he talked, but his open-eyed frankness was as convincing as it was disarming. "If it is a joke, somebody must have a badly distorted sense of humor," Markham put in. "It strikes me that the point of a joke like that would be rather hard to discover."

"Oh, I don't know," Canby returned, with an easy laugh. "There are still a few standstills in Carthage who are calling me all the hard names they can dig out of the dictionary. I don't doubt some of them would be ready to shoot, if I put you out of my possession. It's up to you, now, Ormsbury. What will you do with the stuff?"

"I suppose I ought to turn it over to the police," he said, half doubtfully.

"That would be the part of a good law-abiding citizen," Canby agreed. "On the other hand, though, it would earn a good bit of unpleasant publicity for the hotel, wouldn't it?"

"It would," Ormsbury admitted with a wry smile. "I guess I'll lock the bag up in the hotel vault for the time being, and wait to see what, if anything, develops."

"That is sensible. Meanwhile, I'll keep an eye out for the joker—if it is a joke."

"Well, what do you make of it, John?" Markham asked, after Canby had gone.

"Just what you did—I imagine. The fact that he brought the stuff here to me clears him. But that isn't all. You remember the series of burglaries we had last winter, don't you? At the time they were going on, we had a man and a woman who was registered as his wife in Suite Three-Sixteen—Canby's room. About the time when the town got desolate and called in a well-known detective agency to work with the local police, the couple vanished—disappeared between two days."

"And you think the man was the burglar?"

"I've always had a sneaking idea that he might have been—and had nothing to do with it. This hidden tool kit knocks out the doubt, doesn't it?"

Still holding a mental reservation or two on his own part, Markham said, "Well, I suppose that clears up the mystery," and got up to go.

"Not quite," Ormsbury smiled, and didn't tell me why you wanted to break into Canby's room in his absence."

"I had a notion which now seems so foolish that I'd like to keep it to myself," Markham pleaded, and he had climbed into his car and was driving home before he recalled an incident, the significance of which he had entirely missed at the moment, namely Canby's mention of the fact that a trousers' leg of the fallen suit of clothes had been caught under the loose board, and had so been the means of disclosing the hiding place of the burglar's kit.

"By George!" thought Markham. "I wonder if that was his way of telling us, or me, that he knew somebody had been trying around in his diggings. I wonder!"

But the wonder became unimportant when, as he was passing the Landis house, he saw Owen waving a newspaper as a signal for him to stop.

"It's come at last, just as I said it would!" Owen said, passing the newspaper to Markham. "Read that!"

Markham read the news item to which Landis was pointing.

"At an early hour this morning the inhabitants of the quiet village of Carthage were electrified by the discovery that their one and only bank, the Perthdale Security, had been wrecked, actually torn to pieces as to its interior, by an explosion which should have rocked the town to its foundations. A charge of explosives, heavy enough entirely to demolish the bank vault, to make junk of the fittings and furnishings and to shatter every window in the building had been fired some time during the night, the perpetrators of the robbery getting away with cash and negotiable securities amounting to over $50,000."

"The singular thing about the bold robbery is the fact that the crash of the terrific explosion was not heard, even by persons sleeping directly across the street from the bank, nor by either of the town's two night watchmen. The theory is that some new explosive, noiseless in its operation, was used by the robbers, and every effort is being made to ascertain if such an explosive is known to science."

"Here's where we get action!" Markham snapped. "I am a few things into a grip and tell your family they needn't look for you back until they see you. I'll do the same and come around for you in a jiffy. If we spin the wheels we can be in Carthage before dark. The 'noiseless explosion' settles it, doesn't it?"

"No question about that. These vegies had my box and used it."

"Right! Hustle your make-ready or I'll beat you to it. Time is the essence of the thing. We want to hit the trail while it's warm. I'm gone!"

And with a roar of its powerful motor the roadster shot away.

CHAPTER V

An Obstacle Race

Markham spun the wheels on the run to Perthdale to such good purpose that it was only a little after dark when the blue roadster turned in at the yard of the country-town tavern. Delaying only long enough to wash off the dust of the long drive, Markham and Landis went to the dining room. There was little to be gathered from the excited discussion of the mysterious bank robbery. The majority opinion gravitated toward the belief that some new and noiseless explosive must have been used.

"Everybody's up in the air, naturally," Markham commented as they were leaving the dining room. "We'll find somebody who isn't too excited to talk sensibly; somebody who can give us a little real information. I'll ask in the office." And when he came out, "Stockwell, president of the bank, is our man; lives just around the corner. We'll go and hear what he has to say."

They found the banker exactly as predictable—the more easily after Markham had introduced himself as the son of a banker.

"We saw the account in an Indianapolis paper, so Mr. Landis and I drove over to get the facts at first-hand," Markham explained. "If these handlets have got hold of something new, there ought to be a concerted effort made to run them down before they wreck us all."

NORTHVILLE—At a recent meeting of Northville Rotarians discussions were heard of conditions of distress during the nation's outstanding periods of "hard times." It was found that the panics of 1837, 1841, 1857, 1893 and 1921 were followed by great times of prosperity. Rotarians took new hope that the best times the country has yet seen are not far distant.

TECUMSEH—A dozen five-pound ducks were stolen from the Will Phelps farm on the town line road early Wednesday morning, according to a report to members of the sheriff's department. Deputies Chester Harvey and Harold Treat answered the call to the Phelps farm at 4:30 a. m., and made an investigation but the thieves had made their getaway.—Herald.

The wise man Saves for Future Days

Today can take care of itself, but you do not know what tomorrow will be like. If you are young you save for your tomorrows, when you will no longer be young, and when you are old all the yesterdays that you saved will take care of your present.

Money saved in youth is a boomerang that comes back to bless you in age. Save for future safety.

WISH TO CORRECT something in my adv. which was inserted in this paper some time ago. Some thought I had a big fish story, some thought I was dreaming—yes, and some even had the nerve and would like to call me a liar when I was telling about ducks swimming in between the hills of the southwest corner of Green Lake some years before Ireland went dry, and water was rushing over the hogback road and which the steady flow of four big springs some thirty rods from the south shore and southwest corner, and the start of ice and snow in the spring, and some rain during the summer. This Green Lake was always up to a natural height and was hitting the high water mark every second in the year. I often wished I could hold it that way—this Green Lake looked very nice and I often wished I could stack it up when it was pouring down like the straw out of a threshing machine blower or cord it up like I would block wood or lay it up like I would a brick wall. Why didn't I know those days or someone put me wise to it! I surely would have gone down some 80 rods southeast of the town hall, in between those two little hills and put up a little cement wall sky high and a few rods of dirt on both sides and two or three trap doors in the middle; then everybody would have a good time not only one spear the big fish from the bedroom window and have fresh fish for breakfast, ducks for dinner and muskrats for supper. Now you have the whole thing in a nutshell and can pick the meat out of it! George Klink.
