St. Paul's And Giants Victors This Week

Post season soft ball games played during the past week have apparently been just as interesting as games played during the official Twilight Ball League season. Large crowds attended the games, played on Friday and Monday evenings.

On Friday evening St. Paul's team defeated Alee's Nine, 5 to 4. Walter Mayer hurried for St. Paul's and Carl Schneider was at the receiving end. Leonard Van Gieson and I. Pollock performed the battery duties for Alee's. Russell McLaughlin and Clayton White officiated as umpires.

The game Monday evening between Chet Miller's Giants and Bob Winans' Midgets resulted in a victory for the "big shots", final score being 4 to 3. Lyle Haselwerdt and Al. Rossbach pitched for the Giants and B. Crocker and W. Rossbach divided honors behind the plate. The Midgets' battery consisted of A. Schiller and B. Winans. Jas. Munro and Elwin Hulse were the umpires. The game was apparently lost for the Giants when Nick Pannitka lost a hard hit fly ball in the glare of the sun, allowing the big fellows to score three of their four runs. Chet Miller made one of the outstanding plays for his Giants when he made a spectacular running catch of a fly ball, which ended the game.

A local team made up of brothers will be opposed by a Pinckney team at Holmes field tonight. The game is scheduled to start at 6:30.

The greatest game of the season will be played next Monday evening when the champion Legion team, piloted by Ed. Miller, will be opposed by Meserva's All-Stars, a team selected from other teams of the League. Meserva's team membership consists of Al. Rossbach, W. Rossbach, Jas. Munro, Ross Munro, Bud Hugel, Schwardt, Harvey Lixey, Paul Baczour, Floyd Rowe, Leonard Van Gieson and Carl Schneider. Names of the Legion line-up have not as yet been divulged.

Local Young People Speak Nuptial Vows

A pretty wedding took place Saturday evening, August 21, at the home of Mrs. Stella Thorne, 19205 Derby Ave., Detroit, when her sister, Miss Luella Victoria Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Cox, of Chelsea, became the bride of Jay E. Weinberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Weinberg, of Sylvan township.

Before a tangle of evergreen and roses the marriage ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Fred Walker, pastor of the Methodist church, Flat Rock, formerly of Chelsea. The bride was attired in a Barbara Lee model of peach chiffon and lace, and carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses, while Miss Doris Foster, as maid of honor, wore a gown of powder-blue chiffon and carried Tullman roses. Eldon Weinberg, her brother's best man, carried the ribbon bearers were Audrey Jean Fox, of Petoskey, and Wilda Jean Miller, cousins of the bride. Robert Buntfield, Jr. and Leonard Nagle. The wedding march from Tchaikovsky was played by Robert Buntfield, Sr. of Detroit.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to about 50 guests. Roses and summer flowers formed attractive decorations.

Both bride and groom are graduates of Chelsea high school. The bride also completed a course at the Eastman Dental Dispensary, Rochester, N. Y., and the groom a dairy course at Michigan State College, Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Weinberg departed on a motor trip through Eastern Canada. Guests from this vicinity who attended the wedding were: Walter E. Cox, Mrs. Isabel Cox, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Weinberg and family, Miss Mildred Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. George Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. John Hamp, Jack Weber and Albert Alexander.

Miss Gloria M. Gage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gage, and Ernest J. Wilcox of Saginaw were united in marriage at the Congregational parsonage on Sunday afternoon, August 21, 1932, at three o'clock. Rev. A. B. Potts officiated. The attendants were a niece and nephew of the bride, Miss Helen Holm and Walter A. Gage.

Mrs. Wilcox is a graduate of the Chelsea high school and the State Normal at Ypsilanti. She taught in the schools at Oxford for two years, where Mr. Wilcox was principal for two years. She will teach in the local schools the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox left on a motor trip to the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec and other points of interest in the north and east.

WINS SPECIAL PRIZE

Mable Huston, of Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Huston of this place, has been awarded a special prize of a complete outfit of wearing apparel in a popularity contest being sponsored by Jackson merchants.

RE-REGISTRATION OF VOTERS NOT NECESSARY IN SYLVAN

It is not necessary for the electors of Sylvan to register, if their names are already on the poll books, unless they have moved from one precinct to another. All voters who have become 21 years of age since the last registration date or who have moved into the township since then will have to register in order to vote at the election on September 13.

The general registration laws of Michigan provide that every four years all voters in precincts of 5,000 and upward must re-register. Under that number it is not required to be done. There are about 1700 names on the two poll books in Sylvan and their names have been copied into the new books.

H. W. Lewis, pastor of Salem M. E. church, will also speak. Other entertainment will be interspersed.

Prizes are being offered by the greenhouse management in four groups of entries. It is stated that it isn't necessary to display flowers grown from greenhouse stock, but that everyone is invited to make entries in the show. Prizes will be offered as follows:

For the best 25 mixed Gladioli—Credit slips to the amount of $5.00 for plants at any time of the year.

One Thousand Attend St. Mary's Parish Picnic

For a whole-hearted community gathering, where everyone seemed to enjoy themselves, St. Mary's picnic, held Sunday, goes into local history as a huge success. Ideal weather conditions, coupled with the wonderful setting afforded by the Eisenbels' grove, made it possible to carry out the program in a fitting manner.

The excellent and abundant dinner, prepared by the men of the parish and served so efficiently by the young ladies, well deserves comment and adds one more to the long list of St. Mary's successful feasts.

The program was in variety. Everyone enjoyed the games and contests, which brought out the fine American spirit of sportsmanship. The speaking, although of a political nature, was excellent and all seemed to take a keen interest in the views of the various speakers. The musical numbers, by George Atkinson, the Burg quartet and the Waterloo band, were very enjoyable and especially well rendered—with the thanks of St. Mary's to the talent who so kindly consented to assist.

Dancing spirit was in evidence with a goodly number tripping the light fantastic to the strains of the Rogers orchestra, whose generous consent to assist made possible on with the dance!

The usual sport and game booths did a thriving business and the inherent American trait "to take a chance" was well demonstrated.

Pop, candy and ice cream? Sure it was there, and a look around the booths convinced you that the youngsters didn't get a chance to consume all of it—and finally, back of it all, prevailed that fine brotherly spirit that brought out an attendance of nearly a thousand people from near and far, from all sects and creeds, to join in renewing old friendships, making new, and showing the spirit that makes this community such an ideal place in which to live.

St. Mary's wish to extend a hearty thanks to everyone. They appreciate the fine attendance and assistance which crowned their efforts with success.

MILAN—Anticipating the rapid growth of the village due to the addition of a number of families who will become permanent employees of the new Federal Prison, the Milan village council at their regular meeting last Friday night took under advisement several needed improvements. The water supply particularly came to the attention of the City Dads. The pres-

Fat Man Reduces

53 Pounds—Oh Boy!

Don't be stubborn, you big fat men throw off your fat before your fat throws you into the discard. Do as Mr. S. A. Lanier of Sawtelle, Calif., did—read his letter:

"I have used two reducing belts to no benefit but since using Kruschen Salts each morning in my coffee I have taken off 7 lbs. in a week and eat what I like. I weighed 245 lbs. 6 months ago and now I weigh 190 lbs."

Take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—now you know the safe way to lose unsightly fat. For a trifling sum you can get a jar of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks—at any drugstore in the world—but be sure and get Kruschen—your health comes first.

ent pumping equipment was purchased in 1907 and has been in constant use since that time. The Council are now considering replacing this equipment with newer and more modern equipment at a small cost. The necessity for the change comes in the fact that the village will furnish to the new prison its entire water supply.—Leader.

BROOKLYN—On Sunday, Mrs. J. A. Lowery of Manchester entertained at dinner a party of six people with whom she went to school in Bridge-water 65 years ago. Many reminiscences of the olden days were indulged in and the party was considered a unique success. Those present were Seraphine Copkin Runyan, Cement City, 84; Mary Woodward Road, Clinton, 82; Callista Brown St. John, Saginaw, 80; Abbie Palmer Lowery, Manchester, 79; J. Arthur Lowery, Manchester, 78; Ara H. Palmer, Brooklyn, 76. There was also present: Marie Fisk Feldkamp, 66, who lived in an adjoining school district.—Exponent.

PARMA—The first pouring of iron in a new foundry not yet completed, located four miles west of Parma on the Erie street road, was scheduled to occur today as the manufacture of pig points and other farm equipment got underway. The new factory is located on the Ralph Brooks farm and Albert Boulton of Albion is associated with Mr. Brooks in the venture. Already 12 men are being employed at the plant and according to Mr. Brooks it is expected that between 12 and 15 more men will be taken on within a short time.—News.

MASON—Forty years of service upon the Maple Grove cemetery board is enough for Frank P. Millbury and at the meeting of the city council Monday night he presented his resignation. The council members were loathe to accept the resignation but after considering that a man who has served for 40 years could not well be asked to continue his service against his will, finally accepted it.—News.

HOWELL—The primary tickets as finally certified by County Clerk Hagman list the names of fifty candidates having contested for office. The county republican primary ticket has 30 names seeking 9 offices. The Democratic ticket lists 20 names of candidates who seek 8 distinct offices.

Sheriff Jacob Andres Has Fine Record

"Jake Andres," as he is known to his host of friends in Washtenaw county, is seeking re-nomination as sheriff at the coming primaries, on the Republican ticket.

Jake's record as sheriff speaks for itself. One of the most important cases in the history of the county and the country as well, was handled by Sheriff Andres—the "Torch Murder" case. This mystery was solved in a very short space of time. Twenty-four hours after the criminals were apprehended they were on their way to Marquette prison, carrying sentences of 240 years each, making it impossible for any governor to pardon them.

At the present writing there is not one criminal case that has not been solved. Every crime that has been committed has been solved, the criminals apprehended and are now serving time either in Jackson or Marquette prison.

COTTON PRICES ADVANCE

AT CHICAGO STORES

King-Cotton appears to be staging a comeback. In the markets of Chicago and New York December cotton has touched top prices for the season. It has sold at an advance of more than 50 per cent over prices in effect on June 9. In addition, the prices of finished cotton are growing steadier. The price of gray goods—cotton cloth—just as it comes from the mills—has advanced about 20 per cent.

The result of the gradual strengthening of prices for raw cotton has been an improvement in the prices of cotton goods. While the prices of raw cotton were declining merchants followed a hand to mouth policy of buying, naturally being loath to purchase wares in any amount when by waiting they could get them cheaper.

Now with prices moving forward merchants have returned to the market and are buying to supply their wants for months to come.

An official of Marshall Field & Co. says his company has sold the greatest amount of cotton goods of any year since moving into the Merchandise Mart. The company's mills are working overtime to supply the demand.

"We have been having hundreds of cotton goods buyers in from the south," this official stated. "The reason there are so many southern cotton buyers here is that they understand the real cotton situation in the south and are acting accordingly to fill their needs. Our present prices for cotton goods will be withdrawn at the end of this week and an increased price schedule substituted."

"The price of gray goods has advanced from something over 4 cents a yard to around 5 cents a yard, the general increase being about 20 per cent."

W. R. Meadows, cotton registrar for the Chicago Board of Trade, reviewed the prevailing situation.

"This year's estimated crop of 11,306,000 bales will be about 1,000,000 bales lower than expectations," he said. "Back in 1921 we had somewhat similar conditions, with world disturbances and a general feeling of depression. The price of cotton dropped from 43.75 cents a pound in July of 1920 to about 11 cents in June, 1921."

"Then came the short crop of 1924 and prices advanced rapidly, more than doubling in about six weeks' time."

Mr. Meadows stated that the carry-over this year will be about 19,000,000 bales, making a total supply of better than 24,000,000 bales. In order to maintain the general advance, Mr. Meadows added, the mills must consume cotton on an extensive scale.

In this connection this year has seen a considerable growth in popularity for women's wearing apparel made of cotton. Mrs. E. H. Miller, cotton statistician for James E. Bennett & Co., points out a variety of articles now being made of cotton which have taken on the public's fancy. Included are sports costumes, socks, pajamas for street and beach wear, underwear, purses, etc. Seersucker, formerly used little except in the south for men's suits, has come into vogue in making clothing for both men and women of the north.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bollinger and daughter, Mrs. John Meyer and daughter, and Jacob Hauer spent several days of the past week with relatives at Pruddenville and Grayling.

Intelligence Test

The Intelligence quotient, of 1, 0, of a person is determined by multiplying the mental age by 100 and dividing by the actual age. Thus the Intelligence quotient of a normal person is 100. A person with an I. Q. below 80 is rated as subnormal, while one with an I. Q. above 120 is rated as gifted.

WALWORTH & STRIETER

Which is the "BEST"
AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR

EVERY MOTHER naturally considers her own baby a little better looking, a little more intelligent, than other babies.

Every refrigerator manufacturer, we suppose, feels that way about his own product. If we said that the "best" automatic refrigerator is Electrolux, we should be called prejudiced of course. So we shall merely state the facts, and let you be the judge. The facts are these:

Electrolux started several years after other well-known makes, yet it has gone into more than a quarter of a million homes. Why?

In the first place, Electrolux freezes without machinery. It hasn't a single moving part. Therefore it is absolutely silent—always.

The simplicity of Electrolux is a guarantee of dependable, trouble-free operation. When you want ice cubes, crisp dry cold, you get them.

There is no intermittent stopping and starting with Electrolux. And so the cold is constant, steady.

Electrolux is so economical to run that it saves you money over other kinds of refrigeration. Its operating cost is no more than a few cents a day.

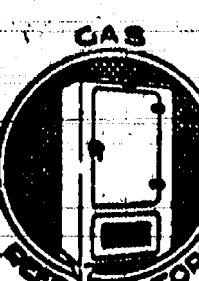

A tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water are the "whole works" of Electrolux. The gas flame is absolutely protected by an automatic shut-off. The refrigerant is hermetically sealed in rigid steel and needs no renewal. This refrigerant is merely 3½ pints of ordinary, harmless ammonia, little stronger than household ammonia.

A final reason for buying Electrolux is that your own gas company sells it to you. They stand behind it, and guarantee to keep you happy, satisfied.

All we ask is that you see Electrolux—compare it, before buying any refrigerator. New low prices, completely installed. A small down payment puts one in your home. Write for full information.

What Is The Fundamental Purpose Of The American Public School System?

A Digest of a Series of Articles by William McAndrew, Formerly Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools, in "The Nation's Schools," September, 1930 to February, 1931.

By Earl Y. Moore, Superintendent, Chelsea Public Schools

For the sixth time in this series of articles I join with Mr. McAndrew in blowing the horns of Washington, Jefferson and other revolutionary statesmen, as well as those of Webster, Clinton, Mann, Stevens, Lincoln and Roosevelt. All of these men had definite convictions about the place of the public school in American life. We might add to our trumpeters a large number of men who sit in editorial offices and many other men in public life who are asserting and reasserting that public schools were founded to teach civic, political ideals; to train all youth actively to ensure an honest government for union, justice, tranquility, defense and the general good of all, not the selfish gain of the pupil.

Frequently I hear the criticism that the graduates of our public high schools cannot read, write, spell or calculate. We should be able to answer this criticism by inviting the critic to come and test the children.

Similarly, we should be able to give an accounting of our teaching of civics.

The tragedy of school keeping has been its guardianship of the little—little children, little matters, little courage. Here is the largest idea that ever engaged the talents of big men—a horde of a hundred million people of all racial strains to be fitted for a generous, unselfish manner of living together in what is officially set down as a more perfect union. They are to be trained to choose justice rather than self-interest; they are to be prepared to demand and to see that others get justice; they are to remove from power unfair officers or the law of whom there are more among us than in England, France, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway or Sweden. We are to train youth to set up a civic organization that will prevent riots and labor disputes by removing the injustices that cause them. We are to defend the nation from attack and to promote the general, not the individual, welfare.

In spite of the indifference and don't-care attitude of great masses of the American people, every intelligent, observant person realizes that today the world is literally sitting on top of a volcano. Greed, hate, lust, fanaticism are just beneath the surface in dozens of the nations. "The Orient is a seething cauldron, occasionally bubbling over with Japanese greed for land or internal dissension in China. Italy has its Poon-Bah who wears his black shirt astride his black horse and tells a nation what it may do and how it may do it. The Balkans are no less a witches' kettle of discord than they were before the political dreamers drew up their misguided Peace of Versailles in 1919. Germany staggers under her burden of debt and arises each morning wondering whether today will see another cabinet installed at Berlin. France mistrusts everybody and spends more money for armaments than she did before the World War. Each day England adds a few more men to the dole line. And so it goes. Many examples might be given, but these are sufficient.

The point of all this harangue is that the principles of democracy upon which the American nation was founded, are being discounted in large areas of territory and among vast millions of people. You may laugh as much as you wish at this attitude of alarm which I exhibit, but I am perfectly willing to be counted among those who shout and keep shouting to the skies that American democracy is in danger. It is my firm conviction that it can be saved only by a renewal of faith in our fundamental institutions and a training of our youth in not only the ideals but also the machinery of democratic government.

I'm telling you that if we neglect this procedure, another generation will see this land ruled by gangs, racketeers, blocs, communists, or a dictator.

The relation of the public school to all this is obvious. We must push the coming citizen into concrete thinking of the service the community should have in return for what it pays for his schooling. It is impossible for the school management to be fair and honest to the community unless he makes its problems a serious concern of the schools. Civic duty does not come as a by-product of usual school subjects, no matter how excellently they may be taught; it must be specifically studied.

You people who pay the taxes and are the stockholders in our local public school system, what do you think of these ideas? Am I right or wrong? If you agree, visit our schools during the coming year and give us suggestions as to how we may carry out these ideals in better manner. If you think we are fanatical and hysterical in our statements of educational policy, come to our schools and show us how we can produce better results. This is a challenge to every citizen of this community. If good things are done, we wish your approval and your encouragement. If mistakes are being made, we need and desire your constructive criticism. In either case, find out the facts. Get them at first hand. See for yourself. Visit the schools. I wish we might adopt in Chelsea the slogan, "KNOW YOUR SCHOOLS." When the people really know the facts, then things are going to be as the people would have them, and that is democracy.

"FAST COMPANIONS"

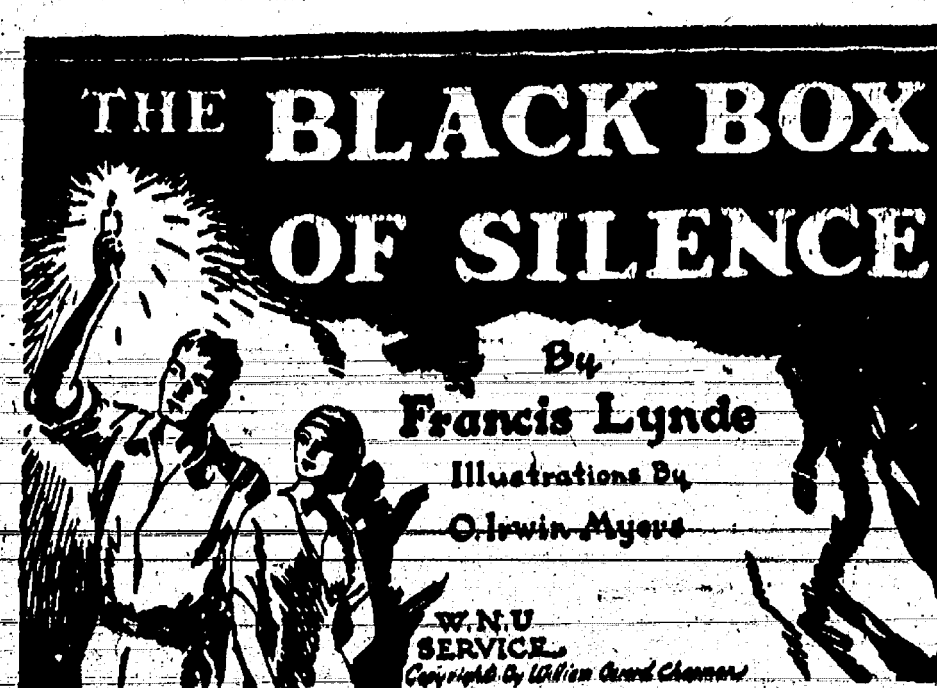

Do you remember the sparkling voice you used to hear over the NBC network as "Buster Brown" in the "Real Folks" programs and in "Collier's" hour?

It was none other than Tom Brown, talented young stage actor who came to Hollywood just before Christmas, 1931, to try his quality before the studios. One test—was enough; it set all the producers agog and Brown was flooded with offers from the day he arrived.

Within two days Brown made his choice, and selected Universal as the studio in which to develop his screen career. Signed on a long term contract, Brown's first picture for Universal is "Fast Companions" in which he plays the lead, and which is coming to the Princess Theatre on Friday and Saturday, August 26 and 27.

Education's Cost

The cost of public elementary and secondary education is put at 2.4 per cent of the total national income.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Having demonstrated the power of an extraordinary silence, the black box, which he had perfected, Owen Landis, young inventor, in the little town of Carthage, confided to his cousin, Wally Markham, that he had the device he had planned might be used for evil purposes. That night the black box is stolen from a safe in Landis' laboratory.

CHAPTER II.—Landis tells Markham the only person, beside himself, knowing the combination of the safe, is Betty Lawson, with whom the inventor is in love. Markham takes a plaster cast of the device and plots to find out the combination of the safe.

CHAPTER III.—Betty, daughter of a college professor, a girl known to Markham, holds him in a friendly way, but is above suspicion, but to assure himself he takes an opportunity to go to the car to find out the combination. Betty tells him that a stranger in town, who is posing as a "barker," had driven her home from the theatre the previous night, and that she had done in the hands of a burglar. The girl should have deliberately stolen the invention from Landis' safe is unthinkable, but to prove she was present at the time of the robbery.

CHAPTER IV.—Markham, vaguely suspicious of Canby's honesty, searches his hotel room in his absence. He finds hidden there a complete set of burglar's tools. Canby, returning, brings the revolver and burglar's kit to the hotel clerk, claiming to have just found them in his room. That night the safe in Landis' laboratory is broken open and looted. The noise of the explosion being unheard, Landis' black box is in the hands of a crook and is put to the uses he feared. Landis, with Markham, drives at once to Perthdale.

"Glad to give you the facts, but they are mangled, thus far," was the ready reply. "At about three o'clock, Biggers, one of our two town night watchmen, saw an auto come in from the east, and he supposed it was merely a belated tourist's car passing through, as quite possible it was. A little later he saw the car standing in the street opposite the bank, and a man had the hood open and appeared to be doing something to the motor. The next time he watched his beat, which was about an hour later, the auto was gone and the bank was a wreck."

"And he had heard nothing in the meantime?" Markham queried.

"Not a sound; and neither did anyone else, so far as we can learn. An explosion that ought to have aroused everybody within the town limits didn't arouse anybody."

"It was the watchman who discovered the robbery?"

"Yes. Passing the bank on his later rounds he found broken glass all over the sidewalk; the front windows had been blown out. He gave the alarm and came and called me. I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw what had been done. The interior of the building is a complete wreck, showing that an enormous charge of explosive must have been used. Even the concrete walls are shattered."

"This auto that the watchman saw," Markham went on, "has there been any effort made to trace it?"

"We have done what we could. Nothing definite has come of it. The roads are full of cars coming and going at all hours of the day and night. We couldn't very well authorize indiscriminate arrests on a mere suspicion. All we could do was to try to trace a car which had, presumably, passed through Perthdale at a certain hour of the night. Such a car has been found and traced, but the occupants, three business men of Louisville, were able to give a perfectly clean bill of health."

"You say this car fitted the watchman's description?" Landis put in. "Where was it seen last?"

"At Terre Haute—passing through at about seven this morning. The three men had breakfast there, and that is where they were questioned. As I say, they produced a clean bill of health and had the documents to show for it."

"You got this by wire?"

"Over long distance, from the sheriff. He said the men laughed and invited him to search them and they said they hadn't robbed a bank, yet, but they might need to before they got through with their mining venture."

As they left the banker's house, Markham said, "Well, what do you think, Owen? Are we on the trail of your black box?"

"There isn't the slightest doubt, in my mind. Wally, I've simply invented a new horror, and these scoundrels, whoever they are, are using it. God only knows what they'll do next!"

"What about this Terre Haute crew which seems to be no clew at all?"

"I've been thinking about that. While Mr. Stockdale was talking it struck me all at once that those three men might have been running a bold bluff. It would be the cleverest way of throwing everybody off the track."

"That's so," Markham acquiesced; and then, abruptly, "Are you good for an all-night drive, Owen?"

"Anything to get action."

"All right; we'll go. It's a long chance, but it seems to be about the only one. We can take turns driving and manage a bit of sleep that way. It will probably prove a wild-goose chase, but we'll make it."

Accordingly, half an hour later, the blue car took the road again, following the trail to the westward. Driving and sleeping by turns they reached Terre Haute early in the morning and Markham ordered all the morning papers.

When they came, they both went through them painstakingly, and found nothing. If the Perthdale exploit had been repeated elsewhere, the news had not reached the press wires.

"Rather lenient," Markham remarked. "Assuming that the three men we have traced this far are the Perthdale-bank wreckers—and that's stretching the probabilities a good bit—we don't know which way they went from here. I suppose there is nothing for it but to wait until the lightning strikes again somewhere."

"With the weapon they've got, the bandits who are using it won't stop with the looting of a single country-town bank."

"You still think they have your black box?"

"There can't be a doubt, in the light of what we learned in Perthdale."

"We'll hunt up the sheriff who telephoned Mr. Stockwell. Maybe he can tell us which way the men in the black touring car went from here."

As it turned out, the sheriff couldn't tell them the thing they needed to know, though he could, and did, give them a fairly good description of the three, coupling it with advice of a discouraging nature.

"You fellows are barking up the wrong tree," was the form the advice took. "I put those men through the mill yesterday morning and they came clean—clean as a bound's tooth. Why, they gave me the addresses of a dozen prominent people in Louisville, and offered to stop over while I wired about 'em!"

"You didn't wire, did you?" Landis put in.

"No; not wasting their time or mine. Those Perthdale people didn't have a thing on these chaps; nothing more than that they happened to be driving a car that looked like one somebody had seen going through their town. With fifteen or twenty million cars chugging round over the country—"

"Sure," said Markham; then, "Did these men say which route they were taking to the West?"

"No; I didn't ask 'em. But if they're making for Colorado they probably took the National to St. Louis and Kansas City."

Entirely at a loss as to what to do, other than to wait for the news of another mysterious robbery, Markham and Landis sought the greater part of the forenoon making guarded inquiries at the various garages and filling stations in the hope of hearing something which might indicate the direction taken by the black touring car in leaving Terre Haute, but black touring cars passing through, in all directions, were as plentiful as falling leaves in autumn.

"Well," Markham announced, "I've got one more shot in the locker. I've just remembered that I know the telegraph editor of the Chicago News and I'll wire him to let me know if anything breaks. He'll do it, I'm sure."

Markham wrote his message, and dispatched it, and within the next half-hour an answer came. Early in the morning, too late for the news of it to get into the morning papers, a bank had been blown up in the small town of Smithburg, Ill., and nobody had heard the noise of the explosion.

A hasty examination of the route map located the small town three-fourths of the way across Illinois, and a start was made at once. By hard driving the scene of the new devastation was reached a little before dark, and inquiry proved that the Perthdale raid had been repeated, this time, however, with a murder added. The body of the town watchman had been found in the debris of the wrecked bank with a bullet through his heart.

Again, as in Perthdale, the accepted theory seemed to be that a hitherto unknown and remorseless explosive had been employed. At this, Landis, with a growing sense of his culpability in what he felt was no more than right that he should tell the story of his invention and its loss, regardless of the consequences to himself. But to this Markham objected strenuously.

"It wouldn't help matters in the least, and it would most likely mean all sorts of trouble for you," was his emphatic protest. "You are no more responsible than is the inventor of the nitroglycerin or dynamite these reggie are using."

"But am I not withholding information that the authorities ought to have?"

"They would doubtless say you were—and give you the third degree to try to get more out of you. No; thus far, we have the only clew that promises anything at all, and these city sleuths would only make a hash of it if we should pass it along to them. We'll get a bite to eat and go on."

"Where to, from here?" Landis queried.

"I'll show you, after we get a lunch put up. We can eat as we go."

It was still early in the evening, and, driving out of town to the southward, Markham made a half circle, cutting all the roads leading to the westward. At each intersection he made inquiries at the nearest farm house, and by this means they were once more upon the trail of a black touring car answering the description given them by the Perthdale banker.

An early rising farmer had seen such a car; it had stopped opposite his gate to change a tire. Markham questioned the farmer closely.

"How many people were in the car?"

"Couldn't tell. There were two men changing the tire, and another inside. That was all I saw."

"Could you see them well enough to describe them?"

"Not all of 'em—just one. Tall fellow, smooth-faced, pretty well dressed. Had somethin' the matter with one ear—looked like what you read about them prize fighters' ears; I forgot what you call it."

"Cauliflower ear," Markham supplied. "What kind of clothes was he wearing?"

"Here the farmer was at fault; couldn't remember about the clothes except that they were neat and clean."

Markham let the clutch engage and the blue roadster sped on to the westward.

Throughout the evening they had little difficulty in tracing the black touring car. A garage keeper had talked with one of the men, and he had said he and his companions were from Louisville, and were on their way to Colorado on a business trip. Asked if he had heard of the Smithburg robbery and murder, the garage man said he had; that the tire buyer had told him about it.

"Some nerve, and it chimes in pretty well with your notion of a bold, bad bluff," was Markham's comment, as they drove on into the night. But now Landis was beginning to admit a doubt.

"We are taking an enormous lot for granted, Wally, don't you think? The men are not acting like robbers."

"You may be right, at that," Markham conceded. "It is all a raw chance, I'll admit. But now we are on the way, we'll keep going until we catch up with them and give them the once-over."

At Hannibal they learned the number of the black car with the Kentucky license plates.

Their stop for the night was made at a late hour at Chillicothe, and as Markham drove into the garage near the hotel he was assigned a space beside a dark-colored touring car, duty and wayward. As he was giving the garage keeper directions about putting the blue roadster in condition for an early start in the morning he glanced at the number plate of the dusty car.

"That car, standing beside mine, who owns it?" he demanded.

"I don't know," said the garage owner. "I bought it today from two fellows who drove through from Louisville. I got a bargain off 'em."

"Two, you say? Weren't there three?"

"No, only two. It's all straight. They had a bill of sale, giving the motor number and all. To make sure, I wired the Louisville dealer who sold 'em the car, and got his answer. They gave me the dealer's name and address."

"You say they took the train. Do you know where they were headed for?"

"Somewhere out in Colorado, by said. They took the four o'clock. I wose they did."
