Red Cross Roll Call Opens Armistice Day

The annual roll call of the local chapter of the American Red Cross will be held from Armistice Day, Nov. 11, to Thanksgiving, Nov. 24.

A special feature of the drive for this year will be an effort to secure memberships at a higher fee than the $1.00 which is ordinarily paid for annual membership. In addition to this nominal fee which is usually collected, contributing membership can be obtained for $5.00, sustaining membership for $10.00 and supporting membership for $25.00.

It is hoped by local officials of the Red Cross that many local people who have been contributing $1.00 will increase their gift, inasmuch as there will be a much heavier burden in taking care of needy of the community than has ever before been experienced. Regardless of the amount paid in membership fee, only 50c goes to National Red Cross headquarters, the remainder remaining for local relief work.

When the membership drive starts girls will be stationed in both banks and at the postoffice for collection duties.

REVERENCE CUE BUDDIES ARMISTICE DAY, NOV. 11

One hundred twenty-one years ago, a seventeen year-old boy in a New England village wrote these words: "So live, that when thy summons comes to join the innumerable caravan, which moves to that mysterious realm, where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death, thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night, scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave, like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

Beautiful words. Splendid sentiment. A picture, indeed, of the type of heroism that has made America what she is.

Shut your eyes with me and catch a few glimpses of the panorama of the past. The pilgrim fathers, plowing the virgin soil, with his long rifle conveniently near. The pioneer woman, serving as wife and mother, and spiritual guide for those who conquered a wilderness. The man and woman who united into one great nation the land that is lapped by two mighty oceans. You know these heroes and heroines of America's past.

But, not the least of them are those hundreds of ours who, only a few short years ago, went "over the top" never to return, but with the sentiment of Bryant's Thunatopsis engraved upon their minds.

Armistice Day is their day. From somewhere in the far reaches of a great spirit universe, they will be looking down on us that day. To their buddies who did not "go west" but who remain to enjoy the life they died for, they have bequeathed this day of theirs, this Armistice Day.

Will you aid them in their plans to make this 1932 anniversary a memorable one?

Ann Arbor Man Dies In Cottage Blaze

Donald E. Davison, 27 years old, was burned to death and Richard Sawyer, 25, was badly injured in a fire which destroyed the Sawyer cottage at Cavanaugh lake early Sunday morning.

The young men, both residents of Ann Arbor, arrived at the cottage Saturday and planned to go hunting Sunday. They attended a dance Saturday evening, and on their return after midnight, built a fire in the fireplace. In a statement made by Sawyer, he said he awoke at four o'clock and found the room they were occupying filled with smoke and the other part of the cottage a mass of smoke and flames.

After an unsuccessful attempt to awaken Davison and to drag him to a window, Sawyer finally broke out a window, after which he partially lost consciousness from smoke suffocation and fell from the window to the ground, suffering cuts about the face and hands.

Neighbors arrived shortly, but too late to make an attempt to save Davison. The fire department made a quick run from Chelsea, but the building was almost leveled to the ground when they arrived. The body of Davison was taken to the Muehlke funeral home, Ann Arbor, where funeral services were held at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. E. C. Stalhorn officiating, with burial in Bethlehem cemetery.

Davison came to Ann Arbor about five years ago from Vincennes, Ind., and had recently been employed at the Hunter gas station. He leaves a widow and two sons. Richard Sawyer, son of A. J. Sawyer, an Ann Arbor attorney, was taken to his home where he is reported as suffering considerably from shock in addition to the injuries received.

It is planned by the Kiwanis club to sponsor meetings of this nature in each school district in this vicinity during the winter months, with recognized medical authorities as speakers. A variety of subjects will be available for these programs.

Preceding the address next Tuesday evening a musical program will be rendered by the Chelsea High School Band, and Chelsea Boy Scouts will give a demonstration in advanced Scout work.

Young people of the community, regardless of age, are especially urged to attend the meeting. There will be no admission charge.

WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of State

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 26.—Approximately 300,000 motorists are without legal operators licenses, the state police estimate, in calling attention to the fact that on or before Nov. 1, the last big reregistration under the 1931 statute, must take place.

Under the present operators law, motorists are required to obtain a new license every three years. Prior to that time once a license was issued it was good until the owner lost it.

The present statute became effective May 1, 1931, and under its provisions all licenses issued prior to January 1, 1925 expired November 1, 1931; all licenses issued prior to January 1, 1928 and subsequent to December 31, 1924 expired May 1, 1932; all licenses issued subsequent to December 31, 1927, expire November 1, 1932.

While many motorists have taken out their new licenses there are literally thousands who have failed to comply with the statute. The police estimate is based on registrations under the old law, which brought in about 150,000 applications annually and a check of accident records that show one driver out of every seven involved in a collision of any kind has no license.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 26.—Michigan's new election law gave the White House secretaries of President Herbert C. Hoover something to think about a few days ago.

Now knowing that the Michigan statute provides that every candidate is to be furnished with a proof-ballot for checking purpose to ascertain if his name is properly spelled and placed in the proper place and under the proper party label, one of them called Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald to find out why county clerks of Michigan were sending in ballots for their OK.

Mr. Fitzgerald explained to the person on the other end of the telephone line that the county clerks of Michigan were just following the law.

It is incumbent on each of the county clerks to have a sample ballot approved by every candidate. Mr. Fitzgerald explained to the White House secretary and President Hoover was included just the same as every one else, down to county surveyor.

This year the names of the candidates for president and vice-president on all parties appear on the ballots rather than the names of the presidential electors. This provision was enacted by the 1931 legislature.

JUDGE OF PROBATE

Throughout the length and breadth of our Nation during these days of economic distress no other public official is more called upon to render fine decisions, conserve public monies, render aid and sustenance, properly, fairly and equitably administer the estates of the deceased than is your Judge of Probate.

He is forced to stand squarely on his own two feet between a tremendous and seemingly necessary demand for huge expenditures for needed aid and a similar large demand for conservation of tax dollars.

In 1932 voters should not let party affiliations interfere with the selection of the right man for this important county office.

Your estate, large or small must, some day go to the probate office for apportionment to others. Every voter enters in the present economic situation and it is your dollars that are to be used to supply others not so fortunately blessed.

When spending one man's dollar for another's relief be sure to place the responsibility in the hands of a man who through long experience, a great grasp of the present needs of the unemployed and whose background of dependability, fairness and honesty dates back throughout an entire life of unselfish service to his community.

A vote for the retention of Probate Judge Jay G. Pray, regardless of party ticket is a safeguard for YOUR property and YOUR tax dollar.

Sharon Twp. Farmer Mines White Gold

Last week Ben Kuhl of Sharon township demonstrated on his farm, to 25 farmers who attended the demonstration, the mining of a quantity of white gold, otherwise known as marl. Marl can be used as a substitute for limestone in correcting soil acidity. Seventy-five to 80 per cent of Washtenaw soils are acid, and fail to produce maximum crops of clover, alfalfa, and other leguminous crops. This condition can be easily corrected by the application of limestone. In view of the present economic situation farmers are turning to the development of their marl beds for this purpose, says H. S. Osler, county agricultural agent.

The marl bed from which the excavation was made last week on Mr. Kuhl's farm covers an extensive area in that territory. Thousands of tons are available, and can be easily excavated. An examination of the deposit by a representative of the agricultural engineering department of Michigan State College and Mr. Osler, shows that the deposit in this area varies from six to 12 feet in depth. Tests of quality of this marl indicate that it contains better than 85 per cent lime. This is considered a very good grade of marl. For correcting soil acidity it is usually applied on the basis of one and one-half yards of marl being equal to one ton of ground limestone. Most of our acid soils need two tons of ground limestone. Three yards of marl would provide practically the same amount of calcium, and would be equally effective in correcting soil acidity, says Mr. Osler.

Marl can be applied with a manure spreader, and applications can be made any time during the year. It should be applied as far as possible ahead of seeding of alfalfa in order to get the maximum amount of benefit. During the past few years, Mr. Osler states, there has been a considerable increase in the tonnage of ground limestone used in Washtenaw county. Figures show that 4,093 tons were used in 1931; 2,020 tons in 1930; 2,185 tons in 1929; 1,567 in 1928. In 1931 the following kinds and quantities of limestone were used: Hydrated lime, 383 tons; pulverized limestone, 524; and limestone meal, 3,186 tons.

Mr. Osler says that there are a number of marl deposits in the county that can be utilized to advantage by the farmers in different communities. This marl provides material for correcting soil acidity at a minimum cost. At the demonstration on Mr. Kuhl's farm last week approximately 50 yards of this white gold was excavated in one day by means of the equipment demonstrated by the agricultural engineering department, Michigan State College.

He is survived by the widow and two brothers, Eugene, of Long Beach, Calif., and Willis, of Farwell. Funeral services were held from the residence at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. Fred Matthews officiated and burial was in East Side cemetery, Grass Lake.

Talking It Over in 1880

"If you don't accept him you'll probably be an old maid. You're not getting any younger. Twenty your next birthday. Who wants to marry a girl twenty-two or twenty-three? You can't afford to wait any longer. He's forty years old. You couldn't ask a better age. You'll look his age when you're twenty-five. For the next five years you'll look younger than he does. Five wonderful years. He offers $30 a week. You could live in luxury. And he has a horse and buggy. I don't know what's the matter with the girls nowadays. In my time a prize like this would never have kept dangling."—Kansas City Star.

Valencia, City of Joy

When the Moors were in Spain centuries ago, they used to call Valencia "the City of Joy," and while there may be other cities in the world which appear to deserve the same title, no one can go to the City of the Old, even in winter, and not find it true to its name. Here amid white, gold and blue-tiled roofs, green gardens, orange groves, farms hidden in olive orchards and bridges over quiet waters are scenes of vestiges of the Middle Ages and even memorials of the days when, 138 years before the Christian era, Valencia was first founded.

Gin Better Than Growl

The growl may be a necessary part, like a flea on a dog, but neither gives any contribution to life other than to make it miserable. Turn up the corners of your mouth for a change and watch your spirits rise in proportion. It is just as easy to grin as it is to growl.—Grit.

Senior Class

Holds Re-election

Last Tuesday a re-election of senior class officers took place. This was caused by the resignation of the former officers.

Those nominated for president were Doris Wals, Eldine Hawley, Earl Lehman and Erma Dettling. Doris Wals carried the election with 15 electoral votes. Earl Lehman was then elected vice-president with Jennie Scripsten as secretary and Bob Allhouse as treasurer.

A board of directors were then elected, the personnel consisting of Erma Dettling, Audrey Merkel and Elaine Hawley.

The senior class is now very well united, and are resolved to pull together for a trip to Washington.

School Spirit

Should our school spirit extend only to the point of shouting madly at football, baseball, and basketball games? Athletics, without a doubt, receive all honor due to them. Why shouldn't our studies receive as much publicity?

To hit rock bottom, what, in reality, is our purpose for establishing schools from coast to coast? Is it solely for the purpose of producing winning athletic teams? No, it is to equip boys and girls with well developed minds for our greatest game, LIFE.

Everyone does not possess the physical qualities and abilities to make touch downs and home runs. Every one, however, can work with an earnest, sincere desire to learn and make good grades. Not only to ourselves, to our faculty, to our parents, to do well, but to our own Chelsea High School. Through honest-to-goodness, steady conscientious plugging, we ought to establish a standard that will force every school in Michigan to quicken its pace, to compete with us. It's up to you!

Speech Class Antics

If you should have happened to walk in the sixth hour Speech Class sometime during the past five weeks, you probably would have been a bit amazed. You needn't have been, because all the peculiar antics of the students in the front of the room were only first attempts at pantomimes.

The first on action began with individual pantomimes, which were improvised by the members of the class. After purpose and co-ordination of movement had been emphasized, the class was divided into groups, which presented original pantomimes of life-like situations, varying from card games to mock weddings.

The meetings of the Museum club are now going to be held twice a month in the gymnasium. At the last meeting there were about 70 students present. Many of these students brought articles for the museum. Bryce Richards brought a pair of old crutches, Orpha Scripture a pair of earrings, Wm. Sietz an old newspaper, and an animal skull, and Mortz Bruckner three old books of Luther, printed in 1555. A great many Indian implements and weapons were also contributed.

On Friday, Oct. 21, an election for president of the student body of Chelsea High School was held during general activities period. The following people were nominated: Doris Wals, Lisetta Widmayer, Roger Hinderer, Ren Hutzel, Wallace Wood and Katherine Staffan. Katherine Staffan was elected by popular vote, receiving 73 votes.

EDITORIAL

Probably the most common mistake made by high school students is the false belief that they are doing well in school if they are merely able to recite well each day. Learning does not result from reciting in class. Learning involves the mastery of ideas. The school simply furnishes a favorable environment for this mastery. Many persons educate themselves without going to school at all. Lincoln had little school, but much learning. The student who is really most successful in school is not the one who talks most, but the one who thinks most.

LITTLE WOMEN

Margaret (age 6 years)—"Miss Dancer, do you have any books for women to read in the library?"
Miss Dancer—"Why, yes, Margaret, I guess so. Who did you want them for?"
Margaret—"Why, for myself. Who did you suppose?"

REMEMBER

"A careless student is just an accident going some place to happen."

Elementary News

OCTOBER 20th

Kindergarten—During the past week the kiddies of the kindergarten made health booklets containing cut leaves and flowers. They all brought pictures pertaining to health which they have posted in poster form.

First Grade—Here we find the pupils making color squares and circles, at the same time learning the names of the colors. They started their alphabet book in the earlier part of the week.

The subject of Indians is of greatest importance. In connection with this study they have made wigs and such as the Indians use, and have picture decorations of Indians.

They have learned to place their numbers correctly, some reaching the number 40.

Monday the pupils were weighed, discovering that most of them gained. And they have been learning something about trains. A story about trains was read to them and five of the youngsters dramatized the play for your news editor. I liked it.

Second Grade—The little people of this grade enjoyed the extra day of vacation last week and are happy to be back at work again. They are busy learning the four directions—north, south, east and west. They know how to find the north star, where the sun rises and sets.

Miss Dancer has library night for second graders every Monday. Many very good books are on the shelves, and wish to be taken home by the little people.

Have you ever heard of "fads"? There seems to be a "fad" in this grade which is "going around together." Every day they add a new member to their list. Luther Kusterer was the last one to join the ranks.

Clayton Myers moved to Manchester where he will attend school in the future.

Third Grade—The third graders are to choose a president on Nov. 8. Garmely Holbrook is running on the Buzzing Bee ticket, while Jean Meserva is running on the Busy Owls ticket.

When they vote, they will go to the polls which are their green chairs. Jean and Garmely will tell their classmates what they will do if they are chosen. In this way they will know for which person to vote.

Fourth Grade—The pupils of the fourth grade have organized a Girls and Boys Council based on good citizenship. The officers were elected by ballot after discussions as to the qualifications necessary for each. The results were as follows:

David Potts—President.

Grace Riemenschneider—Vice-president.

Doris Ashfal—Secretary.

Kenneth John—Treasurer.

Mrs. Steiner—Council Advisor.

Fifth Grade—The first group in the reading class of the fifth grade are making book reports this week. They had their choice of books they had read this fall. In language they are studying the picture called "The Shepherdess" by Henry Leville. Each child is writing a brief description of the picture for their notebooks. Individual copies of the picture are furnished.

OCTOBER 27th

Kindergarten—Due to the fact that the enrollment in the kindergarten is so great, it was requested that parents refrain from sending unenrolled children to kindergarten unless accompanied by an adult. It is hoped that this request will be complied with without any misunderstanding.

The kindergarten pupils are busy making Halloween decorations, busying themselves now in the process of making Halloween booklets.

First Grade—These children have a zeppelin balloon in their room in which they plan to take on an imaginary trip in the near future.

Working on citizenship booklets. Keep them very busy.

Second Grade—The second graders were visited Friday by Mrs. Strieter and Mrs. Kusater. Helen Grabowski is proud to have had a birthday last week making her seven years old.

The room of the second graders is being decorated for Halloween.

Sixth Grade—Upon entering the sixth grade room this week I almost screamed aloud. There I stood, surrounded by weird faces. Luckily they were only the clever Halloween masks that each child had made on each of which is written a quotation from the "corn song."

The sixth graders plan to have an educational program each week. They have formed two dramatic clubs, who alternate in giving programs. Last week the club gave a little playlet entitled "Cynthia's Cows."

Library News

The girls of the library club have taken almost complete charge of both libraries for the past two or three weeks. A great many schedules have been made out for the various committees of workers, with successful results.

During the past weeks the members of the elementary library committee observed the discharging of books. The number of books "let out" were all recorded. Thanks are due the grade teachers who so willingly co-operated in making this demonstration possible.

Circulation for the elementary library during the past month totaled 245. The circulation for the high school library during the past month totaled 382.

Editorial

During these first weeks of school it has been the custom to have little or no class discussion.

Previous years in school have convinced me that there is much value to be gained through class discussion. Some of the important reasons for discussion in class which occur to me at the present time are: (1) One learns from another's errors. Every student in the room has an opportunity to correct errors made by any other student. In order to present a correct answer, he or she must do a great deal of thinking along constructive lines. (2) Students who would not study a lesson otherwise will often study because he thinks that "Mr. or Miss. So and So might ask me that."

(3) To many persons oral facts mean more than written ones. On some people things heard register more effectively than do things read or written. (4) The greatest argument to my mind, that we have for anything is its successful use in the past. It will be remembered in this connection that Socrates asked questions of his disciples. It is written of this wise man of ancient Greece that he set people minds to work by asking them questions. Who can doubt the wisdom of this great teacher of the remarkable influence he had on his student, Plato and through Plato, Aristotle.

In every well conducted class period, there is a bond between teacher and pupil. There is an understanding between them; like the understanding between the actors in a play to the audience.

The classroom is the students place to express themselves—their place for exercising their originality, imagination and initiative.

As I am advocating the asking of questions for a discussion, I will conclude this discourse with one. Think about it!

Why ever change the old for new? When the old will better do?

Festivities

Last Friday evening, Oct. 21, the eighth grade class of Chelsea High School held its first party in the school auditorium. As Mr. Thompson, the class advisor, was absent, Mr. Vander Ven acted as chaperon. Games furnished the diversion of the evening. Refreshments consisting of sweet cider, doughnuts and popcorn were enjoyed by all. We hear that everyone had a good time.

40-20-10 Days Ago

Sept. 19—School's been open six days now—Ho-hum! Such is the life of a student. Friday we have first football game with Dundee—wonder who'll win?

Oct. 9—Saturday—no school. Even tho' Roosevelt did beat us Thursday—are we worn hearted? No!

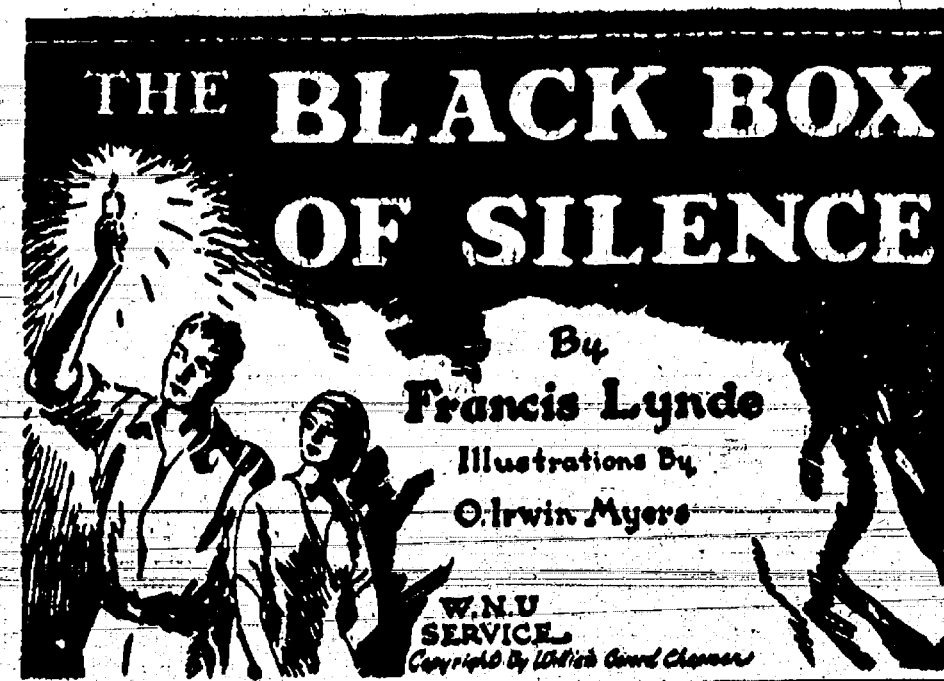

Oct. 18—Names were announced for the Honor List—Are you a lucky one?

EDITORIAL

Jesus once asked this question: "What shall I profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Right now in Chelsea High School there are many students who might ask themselves this question: "What shall I profit a student if he (or she) memorizes many facts and gets high marks but fails to be trustworthy and dependable?" The hard-working taxpayers of this community are paying for a school which is intended for boys and girls who honestly and sincerely desire to graduate as good American citizens. There is no place in our school for the fellow who refuses to respect the rules made for the general welfare of the whole school.

"NOTICE"

The high school have planned to spend Halloween night in some activity. Perhaps it will be a big party in the gym—who knows? We will all know later.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Having demonstrated the power of an extraordinary silence, the "Black Box," which he has perfected in his room, and young Markham, in the little town of Carthage, confides to his cousin, Wally Markham, that he has the device of a box which might be used for evil purposes. That night the black box is stolen from a safe in Landis' laboratory.

CHAPTER II—Landis tells Markham the history of the box, knowing the combination of the safe, is Betty Lawson with whom the inventor is in love. Markham, however, is not in love with Betty, but is attracted to her because of her beauty and her father's position.

CHAPTER III—Betty, daughter of a college professor, is well known to Markham. Both he and Landis believe that the box is a device for burglarizing. Markham does not tell Landis of his discovery that the girl should have deliberately stolen the invention from Landis' safe. He is unable to prove the box was present at the time of the robbery.

CHAPTER IV—Markham, vaguely suspicious of Betty's honesty, returning to his hotel room in his absence, finds hidden there two loaded automatic revolvers and a complete set of burglar's tools. He is only able to suspect that the box is a device for burglarizing. He is unable to prove the box was present at the time of the robbery.

CHAPTER V—At Perthville they find a stranger, riding in a Fleetwing, and claiming to be a business man of Louisville. He is the only possible suspect. Markham and Landis decide to follow him, although advised from Louisville that the only possible suspect is the three. At St. Joseph Markham sees Canby's car, a Nordyke. He learns Canby is driving west. With the box and the three men, they follow the car.

CHAPTER VI—While he and Landis are sleeping, Markham's car is stolen and wrecked. He buys another, and they go on the road to a mining town of Copah. They get news of the Fleetwing ahead of them. At a certain point, they are stopped by a man in a suit, who is the only possible suspect. Markham and Landis decide to follow him, although advised from Louisville that the only possible suspect is the three. At St. Joseph Markham sees Canby's car, a Nordyke. He learns Canby is driving west. With the box and the three men, they follow the car.

CHAPTER VII—Markham and Landis follow the three men in the Fleetwing. They find the commissary of the Chelsea box, which has been stolen and robbed and two men killed. Again there was no sound of the explosion, and the three men were seen to arrive of Canby and his party. Markham meets a distant relative, William Starbuck, who gives them some information as to Canby's whereabouts.

CHAPTER VIII—At Brewster they meet Canby. He tells them he is in the West on business connected with his firm, and that he is a Nordyke. He and his father are with him as usual, the professor being interested in paleontology. Landis and Markham are attracted to the attractive girl, who is a Nordyke, but best of their assailants. Henceforth, Markham decides, the two of them will co-operate in the search for the box, which has been stolen and is evidently having become desperate.

His next thought was to go in search of Landis. As he went toward the Hotel entrance, he saw Canby step out of an elevator and go quickly to shake hands with the new arrivals, and noticed that Smith waved the three a good night and turned away—a bit of byplay that seemed to say that he did not care to be identified with Canby. Markham stepped out upon the sidewalk and glanced up at the mine office windows. They were lighted, and he crossed the street and climbed the stairs to the second floor suite.

The door was opened by an elderly man in his shirt sleeves. "Mr. Starbuck," said Markham, "is he here?" "Not now," was the prompt reply; and then, "You are Mr. Markham? I'm glad to see you. I was just going to phone the hotel to find out if you had come in. You are needed. Word came a little while ago that Professor Lawson had been hurt by a landslide up at those fossil beds, and Mr. Starbuck got Mr. Landis and a doctor and started up there in his car. A few minutes ago they phoned and asked me to find you and send you after them with this," picking up a black bag. "It's the doctor's instruments. Must have left them here when he came up with Mr. Starbuck."

Markham was deeply shocked at the news of the professor's accident. "How badly is Doctor Lawson hurt?" he asked. "Pretty badly, I judge."

"Has his daughter been told? She is stopping with the Stillings."

"They didn't call her up," Mr. Starbuck and Mr. Landis both agreed that it was better not to tell her until they found out just how bad it is.

"Where is this fossil place? Can I find it in the night?" "Maybe you won't need to; maybe you'll overtake the other car. I can show you how to go so you can't very well miss the way that is, if you don't overtake Mr. Starbuck," and upon a sheet of scratch paper the elderly man sketched a rude outline map, penciling in the road that Markham should take with the various right and left turns indicated by guiding arrows. "Not much of a map," he apologized, "but maybe it will do."

Markham picked up the black bag, saying, "If they telephone again, tell them I'm on the way and will try to overtake them."

At the hotel garage he called for his roadster and told the night man to fill the tank. He got in to place the car for the filling, keeping his seat until the man finished and came around for his pay. For this reason a dark figure had its chance to slip unseen from the shadows of a nearby doorway, to stoop for a brief moment at the rear of the car, and thereafter to vanish as swiftly and silently as it had come.

Once across the bridge and headed northward, Markham let the roadster out. He was glad the bookkeeper had told him that Starbuck and Landis had not passed the distressing news on to Betty; thus saving her a long and heartbreaking interval of anxiety and uncertainty before the worst could be known.

For a time nothing intervened to make him slacken speed. With the paved road left behind, however, Markham's difficulties began, and he had to get out the scratch-paper map and follow its markings. But after he had made the first two or three arrow-indicated turns a speed-slackening became strictly obligatory. The road was now degenerating into a country cart track among the hills.

Spurred on by the sharp necessities, Markham kept the roadster in motion, shifting gears only when he was obliged to. In this manner he had made something over twenty speedometer miles of the bad going before he came to the end. On one of the rockiest of the hills the motor coughed a few times and stalled, and not for any switchings-on of the starter would it yield another explosion.

He got his flashlight and climbed out to investigate. So far as he could determine, the ignition system was in perfect condition. Next, he tested the fuel feed by trying to flood the carburetor—but it wouldn't flood. With a malediction on his ill luck, he took off his coat, got out the tool kit, and began to take things apart to probe for the trouble.

Though he was a fairly good mechanic, the probing process proved to be a glut of time, and a long period of what he could well imagine might be a life and death delay for Betty's father was wasted before he had satisfied himself that neither the gas line nor the vacuum tank was responsible for the power failure. It was only as a last resort that he went to look at the gas tank gauge. But a single aiming of the flashlight at gauge was enough. Though he was assured that he had left Brewster with a supply of gasoline which should have taken him five or six times the distance he had traveled, the tank was now empty. The small drain cock in the tank bottom was partly open, with the last residue of the liquid fuel still dripping from it.

Under other conditions, and in view of what had already happened to him and Landis since leaving Carthage, his suspicions would doubtless have been awakened at once. Still laboring under the burden of his responsibility as a doctor's messenger he thought of nothing else, and the half-open drain cock merely suggested one of the many road accidents that may happen.

Obsessed by the thought that the life of Betty's father might be hanging in the balance for the lack of the instruments in the surgeon's bag, he snatched it and the pencilled map out of the car, and with the flashlight for a lantern, started on afoot.

Hour after hour he pushed over a road which finally became no road at all, but upon which he could occasionally see the tracks of an automobile.

It was these faint tire marks that kept him going, and it was not until the gray dawn found him halting to stare at a way-worn car drawn up in front of a log cabin beside the road, which here ended abruptly, that the suspicion that he had been cleverly victimized struck him.

Before he could recover from the blow the cabin door opened and an unshaven, gray-haired man came out to voice astonishment at finding that he had a visitor.

"Well, well, stranger! Where on top of earth did you tumble from?" he called out.

Briefly, and hurriedly, Markham explained, and the gray-haired one laughed.

Manchester.—The hand of fate has been extended to obliterate from our view the little old brick schoolhouse at the southwest corner of the public square in Manchester. The Enterprise has been unsuccessful in ascertaining the exact date of its construction, perhaps nobody knows, but men and women who spent their lives here have failed to reveal a knowledge of its beginning as a district school. It has not been used as a school for many years. It was last used as Scout headquarters, but on being declared unfit for further use it was permanently closed.—Enterprise.

To the People of Chelsea:

Two years ago, when elected State Representative for the first time, I publicly stated that I was opposed to having one man hold an office year after year, indefinitely. I still feel this way.

I am now asking for a second term. In the legislature, as in any other group, a new man cannot expect to go far or accomplish much until after he has gained the confidence and friendship of his colleagues. After serving through one regular and one special session, I am now able to call every man in the House of Representatives by his first name. I believe I enjoy the firm friendship of a great many of these men.

Consequently I now feel that, should you honor me with re-election, I can return to Lansing and readily accomplish things for this district. A brand new man, particularly if he is a member of the other party in our Republican legislature, can hope to gain little headway for some years.

During my first term, I worked and voted for every economy measure, except those vitally affecting this district. I opposed such measures as the closing of the Chelsea Cement Plant and a reduction in the appropriations to the University because I felt I should do my best to safeguard your own interests and your own pocket books.

One strong committee chairmanship has been promised me in case I am re-elected. I consider my job only half done and ask for one more term so that I can finish what I have started. I believe my record entitles me to this opportunity. Sincerely yours,

Philip C. Pack

Representative for Washtenaw County in the State Legislature

What Your Vote for Michener Means

Out of more than 400 members of Congress, Earl Michener stands within three seats of the top in seniority and influence. His long, honorable and progressive service to this district is now approaching a point of real dominance in that body.

Your vote for Michener will insure this district being represented by a man of influence. When you want him to do something for you down in Washington, you will have a man to whom his colleagues listen with respect.

If you have ever written Mr. Michener, you know how promptly he replies. You know how hard he always tries to get what you want. It would be difficult, indeed, to find a man more worthy of your trust, a man better fitted to discharge the duties imposed upon him.

On November 8th, place a cross (X) before Mr. Michener's name. Continue in office this man who has been tested and found tried and true.

Re-Elect Earl MICHENER

Will Show Methods of Grading Alfalfa

The growing importance of Michigan's alfalfa hay crop on the terminal hay markets in the East has led to arrangements made by Michigan State College to have E. O. Pollock, marketing specialist from Washington, give demonstrations in this state of the methods used by buyers in grading hay.

The first meeting where methods of grading will be shown is to be held at East Lansing, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. Other meetings will be held at Monroe, Nov. 2; Jackson, Nov. 3; and Sandusky, Nov. 4. Members of the college staff and extension agents will be given instruction at the college meeting. Farmers, hay buyers, and other interested persons are invited to attend the other three meetings.

Farmers are asked to bring samples of hay to be graded at the meetings. Samples of both poor and good quality should be taken, so the grower can see the reasons why the grades are made. A sample six inches thick and 18 inches long should be cut from the bale or mow.

Grades depend upon leafiness, color, and freedom from mixture with grasses or other legumes. Some markets prefer one grade and others a different quality. Mr. Pollock will explain which grades sell best on particular markets.

Michigan alfalfa has become a factor on the eastern markets only during the past few years. Meetings held during the past few years at which good methods of curing alfalfa have been shown have helped the grade of Michigan hay.
