Electricity

one of the CHEAPEST Good Things in America

Of how many things in your home can you recall the price?

Long after you have forgotten the price of your electric range, it will still be making your work easier and will be giving you more time to do interesting things. The convenience of an electric range is worth something, isn't it? Who's the last one to come to the table? Mother—with the gravy bowl. Face red, nose shiny, eyes watery. Just all fagged out, and too tired to eat any of the good meal she has prepared, slaving over a hot stove. That can't be right. And it certainly isn't necessary in these days when she could have a cool, automatic, modern electric to do the cooking while she entertains her guests, listens to the radio, or attends to some of the many tasks always awaiting a woman's attention.

American Legion Will Hold Poppy Sale Sat.

On Saturday, May 27, Herbert J. McKune Post, No. 31 of The American Legion will conduct their annual poppy sale in behalf of disabled war veterans, their families, and the families of deceased veterans.

The official poppies, which will be sold Saturday, were made by disabled World War Veterans in the U. S. Veterans' Hospital at Battle Creek.

The poppy sale is the badge of remembrance for those who sacrificed their lives in the country's service. It stands for the highest type of patriotism that we can conceive. It recalls the spirit of those days when every American was dedicating his energies and resources to the national cause and when life itself was not too much to give for the country.

Poppies glowing on every coat on Poppy Day will show that we still remember and honor the supreme sacrifice our war dead made for America.

The newly organized Girl Scout Troop will sell the poppies, and the local Legion Post asks the cooperation of everyone in the community to make the sale a success.

Large Crowd Attends Official Ball Opening

What is believed to have been the largest crowd ever assembled to witness a "Twilight Ball League" game, gathered at Holmes field Monday evening to take part in the delayed official opening of the season. The festivities began at 6:15 when the American Legion Junior Band, under the direction of Wesley Smith, paraded through Main street, followed by a large number of baseball fans in cars. When they arrived at McKinley street the band boarded trucks furnished by the Federal Screw Works and the Chelsea Milling Co.

Upon arrival at the ball field the band rendered a number of selections to entertain the crowd until game time, and also contributed to the entertainment between innings. Although one of the official participants in the opening ceremony did not arrive in time to start the game off, the "act" which had been promised for the occasion took place at the beginning of the second inning, when J. J. McKune, village president, ascended to his place on the mound and delivered a ball which was intended for Dr. L. J. Paul, league president, who was equipped with the catcher's mitt. However, the first ball pitched by Mr. McKune was a wide sweeping curve which lacked the velocity necessary to reach the doctor, and another trial was permitted. The second ball was a perfect strike and Alexander, a Harper team man, who was at bat, took a cut at the ball. There was so much "stuff" on the ball that the result was an easy pop foul which was easily taken by the league president.

During the game a free-will offering was collected and the total of $18.50 was received. This money will be used to help defray expenses of maintaining the field during the playing season.

Results of all games played during the past week are as follows:
Thursday—Trojans 8; Spaulding 7.
Friday—Cong' 8; Federal 7.
Monday—Federal 8; Harper 5.
Tuesday—Spaulding 6; St. Paul 5.

LEGISLATURE HAS MUCH TO DO
DURING THE FINAL DAYS OF SESSION.

By Elton R. Eaton.

Lansing, May 17.—Not until the very day that the Michigan legislature decided to adjourn its present session and go home will the people of Michigan know how they are going to be taxed and what is going to be taxed. Neither will they know how much money has been appropriated for state expenditures and how much has been cut from the budgets of past years.

Seemingly all of the important tax legislation, all of the tax relief measures and many of the important appropriation bills are being turned into the legislative hopper at one time—at a time when representatives and senators are anxious to quit their long tedious legislative grind and get back home.

Not to this very day has there been any definite welfare legislation advanced to a point for final consideration. This is due largely to the fact that many members of the house are not in accord with the executive and senate idea of fund diversion to aid the hungry unemployed people of Michigan. This money must be diverted from one of the only sources the state is getting money from—the automobile weight tax, or the federal government will no longer give aid.

In fact the Michigan welfare department has already been advised that no federal money will come to Michigan for the usual May allotment. That means that cities and counties that have contracted debts upon the assumption that they would have this federal money to pay these bills with, will not be able to pay the bills for supplies contracted for the various welfare units of the state.

Michigan is one of the few states that has not yet complied with the demand of Washington that it must provide some state aid for the support of its unemployed people in order to get federal aid. Washington takes the position that as long as the Michigan state government has done nothing to provide funds for the hungry, the federal government cannot and will not help a state that refuses to help itself.

Upon promises of the enactment of the Kulp bill that provides funds for welfare, the state government during the past few months has been advancing money to the state, but now the federal aid has been withdrawn.

So it can readily be seen that important legislative welfare questions are going to be jammed into the final days of the session for consideration.

Bills that provide finances for the public school system of Michigan are making progress. Fears expressed a few weeks ago that almost a complete collapse of the school system of the state was an outlook for the fall, have been disappearing and it begins to look now as though the legislature will be able to get some revenue producing bills through that will keep the most of the schools open for at least a greater portion of the year.

Some progress is also being made on the Moore delinquent tax bill that has been down and out two or three times but in some way finds sufficient new vitality to arise again and carry on. Possibly this is due to the fact that even though the original bill wasn't all that it should have been, there is merit to the desire of some of the representatives and senators to give some aid to property owners who are unable to pay their taxes. The one stumbling block that has stood in the way of the Moore bill, the fear that it was designed to aid some of the big city real estate subdividers who in the past have milked the public, has been somewhat overcome by the presentation of facts which show that most of these fellows do not now own the land they originally dished out as nice, attractive homesites.

House and senate committees are working on some of the points in the bill that have been so strongly contested and they hope that there will be a satisfactory agreement in the near future.

Prison appropriations have been cut by both senate and house committees. Much of the luxury of prison life will go out as a result of these curtailments.

Four-H club work, one of the excellent features of the work of the extension department of the Michigan State College, has met with the approval of the house, the appropriation for this work among the boys and girls of rural Michigan having been passed without difficulty. The bill is now in the senate where it doubtless will meet with the same consideration.

Villages and cities will not be able to raise property assessments if a bill pending in the house should be passed.

Another veteran state employee passed out of the picture during the past few days, Thomas Buckingham, for nearly 20 years assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, having been retired by the state board of auditors. His place has been filled by a brother of State Treasurer Fry. Possibly this indicates that the new assistant superintendent, who has proven to be a very likable chap, will be elevated to the position that Wallace Brown has held so well and so efficiently over a long period of years. Supt. Brown's term of office expires July first unless the board should decide to retain him.

A bill regulating and codifying all of the cemetery laws of Michigan is in the house. It is one of the longest bills ever presented to the legislature.

OUR NEIGHBORS

NORTHVILLE—Roland B. Widmayer, formerly of Detroit, is the new manager of the Kroger grocery store here, taking the place of Leo Van Bonn. Claiming Chelsea as his home town, Mr. Widmayer has moved to Northville and will live on West St. He has been with the Kroger company for two years.—Record.

CHARLOTTE—Charles R. Osborn, 69, died on Saturday morning. He was a brother of former Governor Chase S. Osborn.—Republican-Tribune.

TECUMSEH—Fifty-four seniors will receive diplomas at the annual commencement exercises to be held in the Tecumseh high school auditorium Thursday evening, May 25. Graduation is being held two weeks earlier this year on account of the shortening of the school year.—Herald.

SOUTH LYON—When a person's conscience hurts, that person usually repents and tries to retract the wrong they've done. Judging from what we hear from the Shushall home this week, somebody's conscience "hurt" but not near hard enough. Anyway guilty parties retracted only partly their evil-doing. About a month ago the Enushalls placed five throw rugs on the lawn back of their house, to clean, and forget to take them inside at night. Next morning the rugs had disappeared. One morning last week, Mr. Shushall went to his garage and was surprised to find a filled gunny sack in front of the door. Inside were three of the five rugs stolen a month ago.—Herald.

Michigan
Department of State

WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of State

Lansing, May 17.—Drastic changes in the gasoline tax law are contained in the bill which will receive final consideration by the state senate during the present week. The bill contains the recommendations of Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald, contained in a report submitted to the governor and legislature last January.

One of the most important provisions is that requiring wholesale distributors to post a surety company bond to protect the state against loss of tax money collected by the distributors. Under the present law, the distributor receiving the gasoline for distribution to retail outlets assumes the tax to be collected from the retail dealers. A distributor is required to report each month's business and to pay the tax by the 20th of the succeeding month. He therefore has at all times the use of large sums of tax money accumulated between the time of collection and its payment to the state, and it is to protect the state that the bond was recommended. Any distributor who cannot secure the bond would not be put out of business, but he would be denied the right to handle untaxed gasoline and have the use of the tax collections.

Another problem faced by the Department of State is that of taxing other motor fuels, such as kerosene and Diesel oil when used in heavy duty trucks. Engines using this class of fuel are being developed rapidly and at present escape very largely the tax on the motor fuel.

Various other provisions provide for the proper keeping of books and accounts by dealers; the prohibition of night-time deliveries except in cases of emergency; require the owner's name to be painted on all gasoline delivery trucks and other amendments to the present law that will prevent tax evasion.

For the first time, the Public Acts of 1938 and the Local Acts of 1938 will be published in a single volume. Previously it has been the practice to publish two volumes. Combining these acts will effect a saving of between $6,000 and $8,000.

Some idea of the work Mrs. Carrie Gowing is doing in the arranging and sending of Christmas and other holiday cards to the children of our mission schools in Burma and other foreign fields can be formed when she reports that last year she gathered, arranged and mailed over 13,000 pieces. If she does not send at least 10,000 pieces each year she calls it a poor year's business. Her supply of cards is very low at present and she asks for contributions of used cards.

THE OPTIMIST

A brighter day is coming,
I feel it in my bones;
I've been downhearted long enough,
And now I'm thru with moans.
Cock Robin sings from every bough,
Good cheer for young and old;
The new born leaves are clapping
hands,
There's music in my soul.

A brighter day is coming,
The perfumed air is sweet;
I have innocuous—noculate,
For everyone I meet.
A happy smile that won't come off,
Sometimes a hearty laugh;
Ha ha! Ha ha where're I go,
Without a bit of chaff.

So here's my May-day greeting,
My perfect day in June;
My July with its happy 4th,
My August with Full-Moon.
September's Laborday of Joy,
October's birthday meeting;
November's thankful happy heart,
December's Christmas greetings.

So happy days are just ahead,
I feel them in my bones;
I've had the blues full long enough,
And now I'm thru with moans.
Cock Robin sings from every bough,
Good cheer for young and old;
The new born leaves are clapping
hands,
There's music in my soul.

Extra wrecking crews were called and eighteen hours of work was required to clear the tracks. Steel coal cars were torn apart and the contents scattered. Several gasoline cars were turned completely over, with the gas saturating the ground for many rods. The wooden box cars were smashed into kindling. The right of way for over one hundred feet was torn up on both sides of the tracks. Luckily none of the crew was hurt. Several days were required to make repairs to the track and right of way. May 15, 1933

Time and again I am told—by my own organization and by others—that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives—he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,—all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car—but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"—the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

Local Boys Enjoying Reforestation Camp

A very interesting letter, telling of conditions in the reforestation army camp at Camp Custer, was received by Theo. Rahmiller, Sylvan supervisor, from Harold Welch, on Tuesday of this week. Welch is one of the contingent selected from the list of Sylvan applicants and, according to the letter, is enjoying the camp life. The message follows:

May 21, 1933.
CCC, 473.
Camp Custer, Mich.

Mr. Theodore Rahmiller.

Dear Sir:

As the marines say, we are here, and the situation is well in hand. We arrived here all OK, and every one seems to be in the best of spirits, and all are trying to get started for the woods. We are well treated, as well as they can possibly do under the conditions that exist. We had a very good percentage pass the examination. Only eight were rejected, which was a very good record for our company. We were sorry to see them go back. As soon as we were accepted, we were organized into a company of our own, and all of the under officers were picked from our own bunch. That is, they call them foremen and overseers. And if they are able to handle men they will hold those jobs when they get up to the camps to which they are going.

I was very lucky in getting the job as head overseer in our company which consists of about 212 men, and Harvey West got the job as assistant overseer under me. We now have the record of being the most efficient bunch of men that has come to this camp. So that speaks very good for the Washtenaw county bunch of boys.

I was over to the camp the other night, and the commanding officer of this camp gave us a talk, and he said that there would be 112 companies of men from his camp area, which are the states of Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois. So it will not surprise me if the boys from our county go to one of them states.

I will close for now, but will try and keep you posted on our movements as we go along. Now, I can't write to everyone of these boys' parents and some of them are very sick about writing to their folks, so maybe if you would kind of pick out some of this news and have it put in the Chelsea paper, their folks would see it and would feel that they had not made a mistake in letting their boys come here. I know they all want to know how they are being treated here, and I want to say that the food is good, and the conditions are very good, and the clothes are of good stuff and plenty for the use of the boys while they are in this work. Well, will write again as soon as I get some more dope on what we are going to do. So good-bye for the present.

I remain Sincerely Yours,
Harold Welch,
CCC, 473.
Camp Custer, Mich.

Local Youths With Reforestation Army

The men will spend two weeks at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, before being taken to the forests of the northern part of the lower peninsula.

Thirty-three members and three visitors were present. Lunch was served after the program.

Indiana's First Elected Governor

Youth had a way even in those heady pioneer days in Indiana, for Jonathan Jennings became the first elected governor of the state at the age of thirty-two. Previously to winning that honor he had been, furthermore, active in gaining statehood for his adopted state. Jennings was born in Hunterdon county, New Jersey, in 1784, the son of a Presbyterian minister.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Can you answer in your good paper how many different makes of automobiles there are in the United States?

Ans.—It is not known exactly how many different makes of automobiles there are in the United States. As of Jan. 1, 1933, there were 140 different makes and models being manufactured.

Ques.—Is the area of Alaska smaller or larger than the area of Texas?

Ans.—Alaska is much larger in area than Texas. To be exact, Alaska is the same size as Texas, Montana, Maryland and Delaware combined.

Ques.—As I have no dictionary, will you please answer what an optician is?

Ans.—An optician is one that works with spectacles and other instruments for the eyes.

Ques.—During long engagements, should a girl accept attentions from other men, or a man show attentions to other girls?

Ans.—No. Only such attentions as are usual in the give-and-take of social life. Neither an engaged man or girl should appear conspicuously in public or private social functions or places of amusement with any other man or girl, but should make themselves as pleasant as possible to outsiders and not concentrate every thought upon their own affairs.

Ques.—Who is the biggest liar in this town?

Ans.—Impossible to state, as we have your initials only.

Ques.—I am engaged to a young man, and would like to know if it is proper if I should give him a present because of our engagement?

Ans.—It is quite proper and very often done to give your fiance a present of any nature. However, it is not necessary.

Ques.—Is it true that a spider has only one eye?

Ans.—No. A spider has eight eyes.

Ques.—I wish to ask in your question column when and where was Martin Van Buren, a president of the United States, born? Was he a Democrat or Republican?

Ans.—Martin Van Buren, the 8th president of the United States, was born Dec. 5, 1782, at Kinderhook, N. Y. He was a Democrat. At the time he was elected, there was no Republican party as we now know them.

The early "Republicans" changed the name of their party to "Democrat," while the Republican party of the present day came into existence in 1850.

Ques.—Did Clever commit suicide? If so, what was the date?

Ans.—Clever did not commit suicide, as some erroneously believe. He was assassinated on Dec. 7, 43, B. C.

Ques.—What are some of the hottest things to serve at the family evening meal?

Ans.—We don't know. Probably arguments, which we will take care of, if you send them in.

Ques.—Will you please tell me what age a tree will get if not cut down or destroyed?

Ans.—The length of time a tree will live, if not cut down or destroyed, depends entirely upon the kind of tree in question. Some giant trees in California which are still living and apparently healthy are known to be six thousand years old. With these the age was computed by the annual rings of the trees.

Ques.—Can you tell me what the diameter of the moon is?

Ans.—According to U. S. astronomical calculations the diameter of the moon is 2,163 miles.

Ques.—How many people have given up citizenship in the United States and have gone to foreign countries to live?

Ans.—Statistics show that 400,000 United States citizens are now permanently living in foreign countries, but it is not known how many of these have sworn allegiance to their adopted countries.

COUNTY UNITS

The "little red schoolhouse" may have a strong sentimental appeal but that is just about the most that can be said for it today. The need for maintaining a vast number of small school districts disappeared with the advent of the paved highway and the automobile. Distances which once had to be traveled afoot or by horse and buggy can now be covered in a mere fraction of the time in the family car or the school bus. With a few possible exceptions there is no longer the slightest practical reason why separate rural school units, with their separate overhead costs and limited educational facilities, should be continued. The consolidation of rural school systems into well-organized county school systems would open the way to greater economy, increased administrative efficiency, and better school advantages all around. It is the logical thing to do.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

Charter of Auxiliary Open Until June 15

The Auxiliary to Herbert McKune Post, No. 31, was organized in Chelsea on May 15, 1933. As there were a number of ladies who could not be present at that time, but who were desirous of becoming charter members, the charter is held open for 80 days, terminating on June 15, 1933. Any who wish to take advantage of becoming a charter member, may do so by getting in touch with Mrs. Wilbur Hinderer, who is the Unit Secretary.

All women who are eligible to membership in the Auxiliary come under one or more of the three following classifications: (a) Mothers, wives, sisters or daughters of members of the American Legion; (b) Mothers, wives, sisters or daughters of men or women who were in the military or naval service of the United States between April 6, 1917 and November 11, 1918, and who died in line of duty or after honorable discharge; (c) Women who of their own right are eligible to membership in the American Legion.

The meaning of a membership in the Auxiliary is an opportunity to help care for those broken men who gave their health for their country, to look after the children whose fathers were taken for a bigger duty, to aid in the development of this great country for which so many have been willing to die, to raise a voice for the maintenance of its defense, to assist in fostering its international friendships and to stand guard over its principles and ideals. It is a big thing to offer any woman and as the full meaning of membership in the Auxiliary is more widely understood the eligible women of America are seeking it in ever-increasing numbers.

Inspection Made On Local Rural Routes

Yearly inspection of rural mail routes, which is required by the postal department, has been made by Acting Postmaster Kent Walworth, during the past week. Inasmuch as requirements call for the inspection in May, Mr. Walworth was required to accompany the carriers over their routes, as H. D. Witherell, newly appointed postmaster, will not take over his duties until June 1st.

The inspection takes in location of rural mail boxes, their appearance, condition and approach which is provided by patrons to the boxes, as required by postal laws and regulations. Another requirement which was met during the first 15 days of May was the yearly count and classification of mails handled by rural carriers from the Chelsea postoffice. This count revealed the fact that 13,357 pieces of mail were carried on the three rural routes going out of Chelsea in the 15-day period.

Many inquiries have been received at the local postoffice relative to the change of time when rural patrons receive their mail. In order to perform the best service to their patrons the carriers do not leave the postoffice until they have distributed the mail which arrives on the 10 o'clock train. The schedule of this Michigan Central train was changed a few weeks ago, the time of its arrival having been changed from 6:30 a. m. to 10 o'clock. If the carriers are to deliver the mail which arrives on this train it is impossible for them to leave the postoffice before 10:30 to 11:00 o'clock. Otherwise most of the mail would be delivered a day late. This delay in leaving also accounts for the fact that rural patrons on the Chelsea routes are receiving The Chelsea Standard on Thursday instead of Friday, as the paper goes to press Thursday morning, in time to reach the postoffice before the carriers depart.

While this change in time of service on rural routes may not meet with the approval of everyone concerned, the carriers are making an effort to serve to the best of their ability, and in a way which they believe will meet with the approval of a majority of their patrons. By leaving at a later hour, they can take care of a greater variety of needs of their patrons, many of whom telephone to local stores in the morning and place orders for parcel post delivery on the same day.

Mileage covered daily on the Chelsea rural routes totals about 125 miles, and approximately 400 families are served daily, or a total of about 1,200 patrons. Services which are rendered are many, including the carrying of produce by parcel post from grower to consumer. The carrier always carries a supply of stamps, stamped envelopes and postcards, and his only request is that patrons refrain from dropping coins in the box, but that they first purchase their stamps. Carriers assure their patrons that they are on the job to render "Service with a Smile."

A Section of The Standard Devoted to Items Concerning the Chelsea Public Schools

Chelsea High School Accredited By N. C. A.

E. Y. Poore, Supt. of the Chelsea high school, has just been notified that this school has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the period ending April 19, 1934. In explanation of the term of accrediting the local school authorities have been advised that it is the established policy of the Association to prepare each year a new list of approved secondary schools.

Before any school can be considered for accrediting by the North Central Association it must be on the highest list of schools approved and accredited by the school authorities of this state. In addition it must meet the high standards which the Association maintains with respect to the school building and its equipment, the school library, laboratory and instructional equipment and apparatus, school records, the requirements for graduation, instruction and spirit, salaries of teachers, the training and preparation of teachers, the teaching loads, pupil loads, and the school program with reference to physical education and its athletic relationship with other high schools as determined by the State Athletic Association.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is an accrediting agency comprising twenty states and is the largest regional accrediting agency in the United States. The object of the Association is to establish close relations between the secondary schools and the institutions of higher education within the North Central states and in such other territory as the North Central Association may recognize. All decisions of the Association bearing on the policies and management of secondary schools and institutions of higher education are understood to be advisory in their character. The accrediting of schools by the North Central Association is a cooperative undertaking. Membership in this Association is purely voluntary. It must be the desire of the local authorities of a high school to have the school accredited by the Association.

Advantages that high schools realize as a result of being accredited by the North Central Association can be summarized as follows:

1. The graduates of an accredited high school are privileged to enter institutions of higher education within the North Central States without entrance examinations, provided that they have credits in the high school subjects required by the college or university for admission. Since other accrediting agencies recognize schools accredited by the North Central Association, this privilege of entering institutions of higher education without examination is extended practically throughout the United States.

2. The graduates of accredited high schools have the assurance that their high school diplomas will be acceptable to State Boards having to do with the granting of certificates for the various professions of medicine, dentistry, law, etc. In states requiring graduation from approved high schools as a prerequisite to the obtaining of a teaching certificate, the graduates of schools accredited by the North Central Association meet the requirements of such a law.

3. A high school approved by the North Central Association must maintain high standards and consequently the community is assured of a program of modern high school education.

4. The examination of the school at regular intervals by inspectors and supervisors serves to stimulate progress and to prevent the development of questionable practices and tendencies.

5. A high school accredited by the North Central Association enjoys a greater prestige in the surrounding country and therefore finds it easier to attract non-resident pupils.

6. The patrons have more confidence in, and are generally more willing to support, an accredited high school.

EDUCATION AND PROGRESS

There has been a good deal of discussion from time to time in recent years regarding the fundamental and primary reasons and purposes of education, as we understand education to mean that received or conferred through the operation of schools and the use of books.

Utilitarian Idea Criticized

We have heard a good deal of criticism of the so-called utilitarian idea—that education is primarily for the material benefit of the student, to enable him to make a better living and to get on in the world.

Criticism of this sort naturally involves the conclusion that the proper purpose and design of education is simply to broaden the mind of man and make it possible for his soul to live up among the clouds while his feet may be in the mire and his body bruised and sore from the buffetings of the world.

There are others who preach to us that the chief purpose of the school is to teach service and usefulness in the world.

A Kentucky department of public instruction official, L. N. Taylor, writing in the United States Daily recently, said that "the purpose of the public school system is lost sight of—clouded in terms of dollars and cents—and made to apply only to the economic advantages of education."

Probably both views are wrong when stated within those narrow limits.

Progress in Three Ways

The design of education fundamentally is to make more intelligent men and women. Only thus is it possible for them to make progress in any way, materially, intellectually, or spiritually.

Educated mankind, indeed, will inevitably make progress in all three ways.

That is true education, and the desire and need of material progress should not be neglected or lost sight of any more than the progress of the race and of individual man in the other two realms of his being.—Port Huron Times Herald.

TAXES

Majority public opinion is wholeheartedly in accord with the principle of maintaining public schools adequately. A majority opinion recognizes the right of each generation to free and ample opportunities for education. A majority opinion, too, would be wholeheartedly in favor of maintaining the schools by some other method of finance than taxation on homes and property, especially when homes and property are carrying a heavier load than they can bear. . . . no more taxes than are absolutely necessary to maintain vital public functions, such as the schools, should be considered, and whatever new taxes may be necessary should be considered only after all economies possible have been made.—Battle Creek Enquirer and Evening News.

EDUCATION CHANGES

But our ideas of what constitutes education are rapidly changing, and methods of promoting and determining education must of necessity change also. Time was when education consisted chiefly of knowing and being able to recite long portions of the literature of the country. Only so, in the centuries before books were multiplied, was knowledge spread and wisdom advanced. Today even the wisest and most versatile may know only a very little of the great body of literature and information. May it not be true that education will in the future consist chiefly in knowing how to go about finding easily and quickly what it may be necessary at the moment to know?—Port Huron Times Herald.

We can find millions for highways, billions for public enterprises, hundreds of millions, if not billions, for a soldier's bonus, but we must spare and scrim on education. We are making helpless children and youth in need of higher training, professional leadership pay for our fully with shortened school years and inadequate equipment, under teachers whose salaries are being reduced to the point where continued professional growth will be impossible.—Lotus D. Coffman, president, University of Minnesota, at N. E. A. department of Superintendence meeting in Minneapolis, 1933.

A Romance of the North Woods

By Harold Titus
W. N. U. SERVICE

"Here's coffee for you, Paul. Sugar? There's no cream."

"Black!" he mumbled. "Just black."

She poured a great cup of the scalding beverage and he took it clumsily from her.

"Careful," she said. "It's hot. . . ."

He drank the coffee slowly; she filled the cup again. He appeared to be oblivious of her presence for long intervals. His hands, under the stimulant, ceased to tremble so violently, and she thought that perhaps this device for gaining time might work against her.

"Three cups he drank scarcely speaking, and another half-hour was gone."

"There!" he said, setting the cup on the hearth with a clatter and rising. "Better now!" He eyed the girl closely. "Where were we, eh? We were. . . . Oh, yes; about you. . . ."

"You're paying for not loving me! You've scorned me, you had him wait outside your office and throw me out. . . . Well, he isn't here now!"—advancing.

Ellen backed away as he came forward, heart pounding in her throat.

"Paul!" she cried, but he did not seem to have heard.

"He won't know; you can't call him!" He seized her wrists in his clammy grip and drew her close.

"We'll leave here together, you and I. . . . Just you and I, and—"

"Let me go!" she cried, wrestling against his hold. "Let me go, Paul!"

She tore one hand free and struck at his face with it. In a paroxysm of fear, "Let me go, I say!"

She staggered and would have fallen except for the table as she broke from his hold. She poised there a moment, one hand on the olefin, the other at her throat, watching him. Then, like a flash, she whirled and flung herself across the outer door, tearing it open, crossing the threshold in flight as he cried out and leaped forward.

The girl's strength was no match for his. He caught an arm and dragged her back into the room.

"None of that!" he said evenly. "None of that, Ellen! You've eluded me for a long, long time. That's over. We're here. . . . together. . . ."

She circled the room to a far corner and stood there, hands behind her back, while he dragged the table along the wall and placed it against the door.

"There!" he said. "There we are!"

He smiled oddly. "I've things to do, Ellen. I'm going on. I've got to get an outfit together. Can't have you running off while I am busy. . . . I'm going on! And you're going with me! You're the one thing I've wanted that I didn't get. . . . I almost had all the rest but you. . . . I never came near having you until now. . . ."

He laughed again, mirthlessly. "And now you've got to go! I can't leave you here, to go back and tell them. . . . I can't harm you, Ellen. . . . I never could harm you. . . . unless you try to get away again."

He moved to the cupboard, opened the doors and surveyed the contents. Salt, tea, sugar, he took down and carried to the table. He eyed the utensils next, picking up knives one by one, examining them, selecting one of the lot eventually, placing it also on the table. A frying-pan next; a teapot.

Flour and other articles, until the end of the table was heaped with them. After this he started rummaging, peering under the bed, tearing aside the calico hanging at one end of the room to paw over the deep shelves behind it, muttering to himself.

"Where's he keep his pack-sacks?"

Ellen gestured toward the fur loft and tried to speak. The words would not come; the inspiration, the hope, throbbing in her heart, choked them back.

RAIN PHILOSOPHY

Dank, dripping trees through my window pane. Chill winds that rush from the river's bend. Bearing their burden of swirling rain from leaden skies at the dark day's end. Life's cloudy days have such uses, too, Downpours of sadness and fear and fright, These too are sent, that, when reached anew, The sunlit heights shine with fairer light.

HOWELL—The Howell Electric Motors is now operating at a new high peak of capacity. Production demands for April and May, to date, are four times the average for the past 6 months, and are rapidly approaching an all-time peak for production in the local plant. Monday morning eleven new men were placed on the pay roll, bringing the productive pay roll to approximately 250. Production schedules call for 250 to 300 motors per week, with possible step-ups required by an increasing industrial demand. Republican Press.
