C. H. S. Seniors to Leave For Chicago Monday Morning

The Seniors expect to leave for Chicago, the destination of the year-end trip, about seven o'clock next Monday morning. They plan to go by a special bus and should arrive in Chicago between three and four that afternoon. It is probable that they will stop for a picnic lunch somewhere along Lake Michigan. For that evening is planned a trip in their bus through the main parts of central Chicago to enable the Seniors to familiarize themselves with the city.

On Tuesday morning, the Seniors will take a trip through the Fair grounds in the Greyhound bus used for that purpose. It is not possible for them to take their own bus into the grounds. This trip is about eighteen miles in length and will give them a general view of the entire exposition. The remainder of the day will be spent inside the Fair grounds.

On Wednesday morning the group will again go by its bus for a drive through Jackson Park and to the campus of the University of Chicago. The afternoon will be spent at the Fair grounds.

On Thursday morning a drive is planned north from Chicago to Evanston, the home of Northwestern University, perhaps as far north as Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. This drive takes the group up the famous Sheridan road and through beautiful Lincoln Park. The afternoon of this day too will be spent in the Fair grounds.

On Friday and Saturday at Soldiers' Field, are being held the National Inter-High School and Inter-Collegiate Track meets. Many of the Seniors may wish to attend these.

There are many things of interest in Chicago which are not included on this tentative schedule, such as the famous Art Museum and Field Museum, the merchandise mart, stock yards district, and the broadcasting stations, to say nothing of the lovely hotels. Visits to these, either by group or as individuals, are being arranged. The group expect to leave Chicago sometime late Saturday in their bus and return to Chelsea.

A detailed schedule is rather impossible in view of the fact that Chicago is known to be uncertain as to weather and the conditions of feet after walking over miles of Fair grounds may dictate changes, but the Seniors all look forward to a grand and glorious trip.

Large Crowd Attends Lima Center Reunion

About 175 guests from Detroit, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Grand Lodge, Parma, Flint, Williamston, Francisco, Chelsea and vicinity attended the annual reunion of School District No. 3, held Sunday at the school house, Lima Center.

Dinner was served at one o'clock, after which the president, John Steinbach, called the assembly to order. A verse of "America" was sung and prayer was offered by Rev. Henry W. Lenz. The Lima Center orchestra played the "Commonwealth March" after which the program committee took charge, with Mrs. Martha Weinmann as chairman, and a program was rendered as follows:

Address of Welcome—Stowell Wood.

Response—Henry Wilson.

Reception For Seniors Is Outstanding Event

One of the outstanding school events of Chelsea High occurred Friday evening when the Junior class entertained the Seniors at a banquet and dance at the public school gymnasium. The room was artistically decorated with ferns, lilies and daisies, under the skillful direction of Paul Rogers and Duane Winans.

A delicious dinner was served to 20 guests, the girls from the Sophomore and Freshmen classes assisting in the serving.

Andros Guide of the Junior class presided as toastmaster at the program following the banquet. Matthew McGaffigan, Junior president, proposed a toast to the Seniors and a response was given by Edna Hawley. Miss Dorothy Wilson, teacher of music, rendered three selections: "Come to the Fair," by Marjorie Aspiration, by Cox; and "Shorty's Bread," by Wolfe, in her usual charming manner.

Katherine Staffan, Student president, gave a toast to the faculty, expressing on behalf of her class their appreciation to the teachers for their cooperation and help throughout the year. Mr. Thompson responded to this toast, wishing the Seniors good luck and God-speed. The program was brought to a close by all the guests joining in the strains of "Aur Wiedersehen." The accompaniment was played by Marie Wenk, who also furnished music during the banquet.

Immediately after the banquet, a dance was held, with music by the popular orchestra, the Stavedoren. The Alumni of Chelsea High also were guests at the dance.

Alumni Banquet To Be Held Friday Evening

The Alumni banquet of Chelsea high school, dedicated to the Class of '33, will be held Friday evening at the public school auditorium. The supper will be served by the Women's Union of St. Paul's church. A. W. Wilkinson, '33, will be toastmaster of the evening and the program will be as follows:

St. Mary's Church Is Scene Of Pretty Wedding Tuesday

St. Mary's church was the scene of a pretty wedding which was solemnized at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 6, when Miss Dorothy Lisbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Liebeck of Sylvan, became the bride of Theodore F. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Smith, 1118 Cooper St., Jackson. Rev. Fr. Henry van Dyke performed the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Margaret Liebeck, sister of the bride, and Gerald Smith, brother of the groom.

The bride was attired in a gown of white mousseline de soie, with ivory trimmings, white hat and accessories, and she wore a corsage of white roses and forget-me-nots. The bridesmaid wore a dress of maize embroidered organdie made on similar lines and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses and pink larkspur.

The altar was lovely in its decorations of pink and white peonies.

Following the service a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents for the wedding party and the immediate families.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left later for a wedding trip to points in Canada. For traveling, the bride wore a yellow swaggar suit, with white accessories.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's high school, also of Cleary Business College. The groom is a graduate of St. John's high school, Jackson, and is employed in the Municipal Court. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Jackson.

Complimenting Miss Liebeck, Miss Catherine Canfield, entertained at a miscellaneous shower last Friday evening at her home on Congdon St. Bridge furnished the diversion, with three tables in play. Miss Virginia Wheeler and Mrs. George Liebeck were awarded high honors. Lunch was served, the tables and rooms being attractively decorated with spring flowers. The bride to be received many lovely gifts. Out of town guests were Miss Norma Bentley of Ann Arbor and Miss Margaret Grip-ton of Britton.

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of State

Lansing, Mich.—Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald in a recent letter to United States Senator Pitt Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and to Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg and James C. Gurnea, protesting against the proposed increase of three-quarters of a cent per gallon in the federal gasoline tax. He brought out the fact that the motor-ists of the country will be called upon, should the industrial-recovery program now under consideration by Congress be adopted, to pay 42 per cent of the cost of the program while they will benefit only to the extent of 12 per cent through the building of roads and other highway improvements. This is brought about through the various taxes, including the gasoline tax, imposed upon the automobiles and its use.

In addition to this "out-of-line" tax, the proposed increase will bring the tax on gasoline used by Michigan motorists to four and three-quarters cents per gallon. This tax will greatly encourage the gasoline bootlegger who, with this differential, can operate at a very profitable advantage. This will increase the problem of tax evasion, by far the greatest problem before the gasoline tax administrators of the country and in the combat of which Michigan has been in the forefront.

The original federal tax of one cent per gallon imposed upon gasoline was purely an emergency measure, designed to raise automatically on June 30, 1934, based upon the returns from this tax, it is estimated that the additional three-quarters of a cent tax will produce additional revenue of approximately $2,000,000. Experience, however, has proved that an increase in the gasoline tax has invariably resulted in decreased consumption. It is not likely, therefore, that the anticipated increased tax return will be realized.

Secretary of State Fitzgerald has not only opposed consistently any increase in the present state tax on gasoline, but has also advocated a substantial reduction in the present motor vehicle weight taxes.

Building and loan associations in Michigan were instructed by the Department of State to pay dividends in the future out of collected earnings. This order was issued after department examiners found that several associations were paying dividends based upon earnings which were due and payable but which has not been collected.

MASON—Mason high school, like most of the other schools in the state, has the largest class of graduates in the history of the school. The 1933 class is the first group of seniors to receive diplomas here. The first class consisted of two members back in 1879 and on Wednesday 52 seniors will have completed their high school work in Mason. The largest class previous to this year had 40 members. Telephone Company Increases Advertising

In a letter sent to all District Managers of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., C. W. Hungerford, advertising manager for the company, explains why he is ordering an increase in advertising space in all newspapers. The optimistic attitude of Mr. Hungerford is told in the letter received by W. M. Schroeder, advertising manager of this district. The letter follows:

To All Managers:

For perhaps four weeks, beginning June 1, we plan to increase the size of our advertisements in the weekly papers from sixteen inches to twenty-four inches and to run them, in their present size, twice instead of once a week in the dailies.

We are doing this because there appears to be a definite improvement in business conditions and a general feeling of confidence that this will continue. These facts should result in increased buying of commodities and services and it is very important that our Company take immediate advantage of improved conditions and promote the sale of telephone service. This increase in advertising space as you know will be only one part of the general effort in this direction. It is intended to supplement the increased sales effort that is being put forth by our sales people and by employees in general. Copy for the advertisements features the fact that many telephones are being reinstalled and is calculated to create a desire on the part of former customers to have telephone service again.

Since 1929 our income has been reduced approximately one-third and it is imperative that we check this serious loss. In 1929 our customers paid us $42,000,000; in 1932, $34,000,000, and we estimate a further drop to about $27,000,000 in 1933. This is a reduction of $15,000,000 in money paid us from the 1929 figure, and has been brought about not only by a reduction in the number of telephones, but also by a reduction in the amounts paid us by customers who still have telephones.

With these reductions in revenue, and in spite of our best efforts to reduce expenses, the present earnings of the Company are such that we can pay interest only on the bonds and notes of the Company. These represent something less than one-third of the total money invested in the business; the remaining two-thirds of the investors' money will receive nothing.

Since the earnings of the Company have never been sufficient, over any extended period, to pay for the cost of the service and produce the small margin of profit that we are entitled to, there is no money now available to help us over this lean period—we must get along on what we can earn right now.

I have gone into our revenue situation at perhaps greater length than necessary, for I know you are generally familiar with it. I wished to mention it, however, by way of emphasizing the reason why we are increasing the amount of money we are spending for advertising even in the face of such loss. We believe that we have profited by the use of newspaper advertising in the past; as you know, we have not curtailed it during the last three years. If we have been correct in our judgment that it has been good business to continue our advertising in the same amount during the past difficult months, it would appear good judgment to increase it now when there is good reason to believe that our business can be stimulated by a concerted sales effort.

C. W. Hungerford,
Advertising and News Mgr.

When the Armistice was signed, the 329th was on the front lines. On Nov. 12, 1918, after an all night's march, this regiment was the first troops to enter and occupy Pont-a-Mousson. Normally a city of 66,000, it was deserted of every human soul. It was between the lines when the Armistice was signed and had been in possession of Germany and the Allies, alternately. It is a historic city, divided by the Moselle river. This regiment had first choice of the best homes in the city in which to make its headquarters.

DON'T FORGET THE OLD HYMNS

While modern melodies of song are popular today,

And many hearts are gladdened by

The music they display,

O may we never substitute

That helped our faith to claim

The pardon, comfort, peace and joy

Through Jesus' Holy name.

The precious fountain—filled with blood,

Is just the same today,

As when I plunged beneath its flood

And worked my sins away.

The Rock of Ages cleft for me

Shall bridge death's sullen stream,

And land me safe on Canan's shore,

'Mid fields of living green.

Must Jesus bear the Cross alone,

And all the world go free?

Was it for crimes that I have done

He grew upon the tree.

Am I a soldier of the Cross,

A follower of the Lamb,

O bring thy great salvation near

And take me as I am.

So don't forget the dear old hymns,

They'll help to keep you true;

The simple story of the cross

Is old, but ever new.

—Arthur Carlton, M. E. Home.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results. Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients, too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Will you please answer in your good paper what the early American Indians used for money?

Ans.—The "money" of the early American Indians was called "wampum." It was composed of white and purple shell beads.

Ques.—Did the discoverer of electricity ever develop it for commercial purposes? Who was he?

Ans.—Benjamin Franklin discovered electricity on Jan. 8, 1846, but he died without knowing how to control it, even in a crude way.

Ques.—I wish to ask in your question column which was the last state to be admitted to the Union?

Ans.—On Jan. 6, 1912, New Mexico was admitted to the Union. This was the last state to be admitted.

Ques.—When was the battle of New Orleans fought? And why did this battle occur after peace had been declared with the British?

Ans.—The battle of New Orleans, under command of Gen. Andrew Jackson, was fought on Jan. 8, 1815. This was about one week after peace had been declared, which Jackson did not learn because of slow communication in those pioneer days. At this battle Jackson won a most decisive victory over the British.

Ques.—Can you answer which was the first state to secede from the Union at the beginning of the Civil War?

Ans.—On Dec. 20, 1860, South Carolina seceded from the Union. It was quickly followed by ten other states.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer if Winnie Ruth Judd, the Arizona murderer, was hanged? If not, why?

Ans.—A sanity commission declared that Winnie Ruth Judd was now insane. As the Arizona law forbids the hanging of an insane person, she was committed to an asylum for the criminal insane until such time, if ever, she is pronounced sane. Then she will be hanged, unless pardoned or sentence commuted.

Ques.—Why are so many men stoop-shouldered now-a-days?

Ans.—There are various reasons for this. Probably the most prevalent is the style of ladies' short skirts.

Ques.—How can patrons of a bank have their deposits guaranteed?

Ans.—As yet we do not know how this is going to be worked out. However, until a plan is found, we would suggest that you just "Phoney!" when you see a crook.

Ques.—I am engaged to a young man and the wedding date is set. But we have become less interested in each other since the day we became engaged. Should I break the engagement or carry out the wedding or wait for him to say something? A suggestion from you may help.

Ans.—By all means you should break the engagement. This you could easily do by explaining to your fiancé that you realize that your relations are not congenial, and that it would be the best for both of you to annul the engagement. If he is sensible, he will see it in the same light and your friendship will not be marred.

Scouts Plan Trip To Century of Progress

Boy Scouts of Washtenaw council are planning to attend the Century of Progress World's Fair in Chicago this summer in large numbers. In most instances, the Scouts will attend in groups from their own community troops and will be transported to and from Chicago by their parents and Scout leaders.

Realizing that this great celebration would undoubtedly attract a large number of boys, the National Scout headquarters obtained the use of the Lake Michigan Beach club as a site for housing many of the Scout troops visiting the Fair. This Club will accommodate 200 boys overnight, and will give them supervised swimming and recreation. A rate of $7.50 for three full days and nights at the Fair, with accommodations at the Beach club, has been set by the Regional Scout headquarters, estimating food at $1.00 per day. Local Scout leaders believe it possible to cut well on less than this amount, thus reducing the cost above mentioned. This does not include transportation to and from Chicago, as in many cases this will be furnished for only the cost of gas and oil.

Those who are interested in taking such a trip should communicate with local Scout leaders or with Wallace F. Watt, Boy Scout Executive for Washtenaw and Livingston counties, at 324 E. Huron St., Ann Arbor.

Need New Farm Act To Help Hag Prices

East Lansing, June 7—A change of 10 per cent in the supply of hogs causes a 20 per cent change in the market price and Michigan farmers are now confronted with the problem of disposing of their pork in a year when there are more than 2,500,000 more hogs than usual, according to Charles Brand, Washington, D. C., who now is trying to increase farm incomes through provisions of the new Farm Act.

Mr. Brand points out that the American pork producer can not hope to dispose of a normal export supply of pork. Germany placed a duty of $2.40 per hundredweight on last last month. This duty was $2.40 a hundredweight more than the price of lard in Chicago. There are only eight foreign customers for American pork now for every 20 that were buying in 1926-29.

The consumption of pork and its products by Americans has increased during these years but the increase in consumption has been obtained by a drastic cut in price. Pork can not be stored for long periods but must be moved on the market and sold at whatever price it will bring.

This driving down of price often results in the farmer receiving a much smaller sum of dollars for the greater number of hogs than they would have obtained for a much smaller number. In addition, the farmer loses the extra feed, the extra labor, and the added capital investment.

The provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act will be invoked in order to obtain a higher price for hogs. The plan used may be that of trade agreements or the increase may be obtained by allotment of production. Proper arrangements at which consumers, processors, and producers are represented will be held before any plan is selected.

Bury Their Heads

At night, birds bury their heads in the feathers on their shoulders, but never put their heads under their wings. Most birds sleep on their feet, squatting down, but a few sleep standing up on one leg, with the other one drawn out of sight.

UNITED STATES WEALTHIEST AMONG NATIONS, CURTAILS EDUCATION, MORE SEVERELY THAN THE POOREST NATIONS OF WORLD

The depression appears to have affected education in the United States more than it has the schools of any other country, according to reports received in the Federal Office of Education by Dr. James P. Abol, chief of the foreign school systems division. Following are reports from several of the countries:

Canada. "Progress of Canada" are quite generally withholding school building programs and in some cases reducing salaries. The Federal Office of Education reports, "but school attendance is increasing and educational expansion has been slowed down, not halted. Education, less than other governmental activities, is suffering from budget retrenchments. No schools have been closed in the Province of Ontario; attendance has increased and new buildings have been erected or old buildings improved, where conditions demanded such action."

Mexico. The National Government of Mexico, providing about two-thirds of all the money spent for education in that country, "seems determined to carry on its educational commitments despite the depression," according to Dr. Abol. The American consulate reports that "school expenditures from the national treasury have steadily increased since 1927." Other branches of governmental activity have suffered more than education.

Argentina-Panama. The 1933 budget for the National Board of Education of Argentina continues favorably with those for 1931 and 1932. Panama, however, has increased the number of pupils per teacher, but also increased the number of teachers to care for a larger school attendance. A considerable sum has been spent in constructing modern school buildings and in repairing those in bad condition.

Central and South America. "No special changes of importance have come in the educational situation in Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica and Haiti," Dr. Abol indicates. In Peru, El Salvador and Honduras the schools have suffered. Brazil's revolution, Nicaragua's civil war and earthquakes and political disturbances in Cuba, more than the economic depression, have interrupted educational progress.

Albania - Italy. "There is no period of depression in Albania," comes the cheerful statement.

END OF SOPHOMORE SCHOOL DAYS

School days will soon be over for awhile. They are going to end nicely with each class having a picnic at some lake or river.

Just think, Sophomores, next autumn we shall be Juniors (maybe). It seems as if we were Freshmen. Doesn't it? The Sophomores hope the Freshmen will be better than the Freshmen than we were. Sophomores as a whole give the best regards to the Sophomore class of 1933-1934.

INVITED TO BECOME MEMBERS OF JOURNALISM CLUB

The following persons are invited by the present Journalism Staff to be members of next year's staff. The Freshmen and Sophomores are to be contributors and the Juniors and Seniors are to make up the editorial staff. We wish you the best of luck in editing "Seepiess" in the year 1933-34.

LETTERS TO BE GIVEN OUT

For the first time in a good many years the athletes of Chelsea high will receive letters in return for completing in sports.

The letters are yellow with a purple trim. The yellow is set up from the purple trim. The boys' letters are about twice as big as the girls' and have an in blue color.

On Commencement night these letters will be awarded to the following people: Leo Allshouse, Robert Allshouse, Louis Hoesel, Lynn Dancer, Andrew Gude, Harold Grove, Keith Harvey, Elaine Hawley, James Howe, Ren Huetzel, Robert Nicholas, Glennwood Novess, Nicholas Panatier, James Panatier, Charles Panatier, Paul Reichert, Manning Richards, Junior Scott, Richard Sowers, Edward Steiner, Herbert Wallace, Harold West, Robert Williams, Max Youngs, Gladys Abdon, Verna Adam, Janet Dancer, Ruth Felt, Helen Hindsdale, Joan Iselin, Eleanor Swanson, Mildred Tompkins.

The letters are being awarded to those who completed in the major portion of the games. Letters are being given out for football, boys' and girls' basketball, and baseball.

IRISH FREE STATE

The Irish Free State declares, "So far, education expenditures remain unaffected. The present national policy is one of economic self-development and of improved social services. Budget increases under these heads are offset by economies in other directions and by increased taxation. Education is at present seeing the fulfillment of a big reform program begun by the Irish Government in 1922 and now nearing completion."

Northwestern Europe

Small Ugo-Finnish countries of northwestern Europe, the Office of Education, foreign school systems division has learned, are all reducing their budgets. Funds for education in Estonia are yearly an increasingly higher per cent of the total expenditures, however. The decrease for schools is not unproportional in Latvia. Lithuania allots 14 per cent of the budget to education, and expects nothing more than temporary curtailment of its school expansion program. Education and social services have suffered unduly in Finland.

Poland

Schools of Poland have been able to care for increasing attendance in face of lessened national appropriations. The situation in Spain is complicated by the establishment of the Republic and the closing of large numbers of private sectarian schools.

England

The depression caught England in the midst of an educational program. Education along the lines proposed in the Harlow Report. Teachers' salaries were reduced 10 per cent and other reductions were compelled, but a reduction of the year 1932 shows that the education and school health services have held up well. Higher fees are proposed for secondary schools.

France. France, to the contrary, is planning to make all secondary schooling free of tuition, and even in Morocco is holding education appropriations at the level they have reached by steady increases in the past five years.

Japan

Coinciding with the termination of the era of prosperity, Japan completed a school-building program. Partly due to this, national appropriations for education have decreased.

But an empty rifle is a weapon nevertheless. He saw the quick tracing of Gorb's foot, observed the short, sharp gesture with which he lifted the gun. He ducked, quite sure of himself, too sure of himself. The butt of the rifle missed his head as it sailed towards him, but the barrel, trailing, dropping as it came, rapped him across the skull.

CHAPTER XIV

It was a heavy blow. His cap was protection enough to turn it from a stunning shock to simple bewilderment for a second or a fractional second.

He fired as Gorb rushed. He fired quickly, with intent to kill; but he fired blindly, too; was off-balance when he squeezed the trigger.

Locked together, they rolled over with a mighty thrashing of legs, up, settling the table, coming to rest against it. John, head now cleared, on top, grappling for Gorb's throat.

The body beneath him heaved and bowed. It was like steel with the strength of desperation.

They were up again, locked once more and John could feel Gorb's breath hot on his cheek. He struck at the hand which gripped his throat. He stamped on Gorb's feet.

They had an instant of blows, too, and then Gorb was on John's throat. The two lay on the frozen grip.

And could not break it. He drove his knee upward and though the force lifted Gorb from his feet his throat still held did not weaken.

Things began to grow fuzzy to John. A buzzing sounded in his ears, growing louder. His legs went limp and he sagged to the floor. Gorb leaped over him, both hands locked on John's throat, head down of the other hands clawing at them.

But a man with a job of work to do can't fall, can he? Not when failure means tragedy, can he? John Belknap struck hard. The blow landed squarely on Gorb's mouth and John was free, with the sweet air flooding his throat with the buzzing dying out, but as he rolled over the other kicked. His paw caught John in the side, threw him against the wall, knocking down an ax which was leaning there.

He was free, but Gorb also was free, and scrambling towards the stove, stooping over to retrieve the pistol.

He gave a crouch of triumph as he whirled, weapon in his hand. He brought the muzzle to his mark but as he pulled he ducked because an ax was swinging towards him, flung hastily and none too surely. A man on his knees cannot seize an ax and time it all in one movement and be sure.

It was good enough. The tongue of flame spurted wide and Gorb fell heavily as the ax head caught him full on the chin.

John was on his hip body in an instant. He had the hands crossed on the small of the man's back, pinned there by a knee as he stripped his own belt from his waist. He felt the other struggle slightly as he took the first hitch about those hands, and he struggled harder in a second. . . . but it did him no good. He might curse and threaten and thresh the floor with his body. He was bound securely.

He was through.

John found her cowering against the wall. He lifted her slowly to her feet.

"It's all right, Ellen," he said gently. "It's all over."

He led her out into the wrecked room, which showed Paul Gorb, bound hand and foot in a chair, leaning ing forward, sobbing, straining with futile movements against his bonds.

"The man looked up then. He stared at them with glazed eyes.

"That's what you wanted," he croaked. "That's what you wanted," nodding at them as they stood, John supporting the girl by an arm about her shoulders. "That's why you came, eh?"

"No, Gorb. I didn't know, or it would have been why. I came with a warrant that Nat Bradshaw tried to serve. And there'll be another for you by now. For murder, maybe, Gorb."

"Murder? Murder?" His voice was shrill and he wrrenched his wrists against the unyielding belt. "No, no! That can't be. No murder. Mistake! Mistake, I tell you, Belknap! D-n mistake!"

"Tell you"—licking his lips. "I'll tell you. . . . I'll trade with you, Belknap. . . . John. I'll trade. You got her now. . . . She's yours, when she knows. . . . I'll trade you what I know for this warrant you talk about." He was panting, as if just in from an exhausting foot race. "Tell you, John. . . . I'll trade. Yes, she's what you want, she's more than anything else to you. More'n a warrant, more'n anything. Let me loose."

"I'll tell you everything."

"I'm not going to untie you, Gorb. . . . John. . . . I'll trade. You got her now. . . . She's yours, when she knows. . . . I'll trade you what I know for this warrant you talk about."

"Oh, yes you will!" Tears sprang to Gorb's eyes. "I'll give you all you want now for just a moment's rest."

"I'll go away. I'll stay. I'll never bother you again. You can go to your father then, and tell him you found out what he couldn't. Great man, and smart. But you'll be smarter than he."

He licked his lips again. "See? I'll give you prestige; that's what you want now. . . . after Ellen, there. Prestige with the old man. Yes. That's it. . . . You can tell him how I crossed him up. North Star Lumber company? Ever hear of it? That's me, Paul Gorb. . . . Dummy company in St. Paul. I got the good grades of lumber at cut prices, see? I paid with notes at the Belknap & Gorb bank in Kampefest. I took it all, every day of it. . . . Paper's no good; worthless. Belknap & Gorb 'd have been insolvent in another year if it hadn't been for you. . . . When old Tom got suspicious we forged inspectors' reports and changed car numbers on him. He couldn't check up. North Star looks great on paper. St. Paul banks like us. . . . But it was me, all me! See? Your finding out'll make a hit with him!"

He laughed shrilly. "Amoos? That warrant? Give it to me now. . . . I've come clean to you give me a break."

"Oh, don't. Don't let him go on!" Ellen whispered.

She buried her face on John's chest, and he anchored her close, turning his back to Gorb whose chin now sagged low as he sobbed hoarsely.

"Hold it," he whispered, mouth against her ear. "Hold it, old fellow! It's an ordeal but."

"That won't it?" She caught up his word and lifted her face to look into his. "Anything's worth it."

To know. . . . Oh, John! How could I ever have believed it? What a silly, blind girl!

She might have said more had his lips not stopped her words. "They stood so in that first long kiss."

They did not hear the opening of the door, did not see Wolf Richards' amazed and frenetic gaze sweep, his room with its littered floor, the smashed chair, did not see him stare at Paul Gorb nor at them.

But as he stepped in and stamped snow from his feet they sprang apart, wheeling towards him.

"S'all right," he yelped. "S'all right! Don't mind me, young ones! H-t to pay her, I see! Place built. . . . Paul Gorb under my roof where I never have him. Tied up, too, which means something! But 's all right! S'all right! Notin' matters but what's all you two, forgive! Notin' else matters a-tall!"

It was evening when that strange procession made its way into Kampefest. John Belknap in the lead, Wolf Richards behind him, dogs and thoggon with its bundled burden next and Ellen walking in the trail they made. The town awaited about them until John had to call on others to close the way.

Night then, and wires commenced to sing and the next morning's newspapers told the story in bold headlines for Harrington to read in the Belknap Lumber company office, for others to read the world over; some in a Paris hotel.

Harrington could not get John the first dozen times he called because the boy, with Ellen in the corridor outside, sat at the bedside where Nat Bradshaw fought for his life. "Tell them I'll answer no 'phone calls," he whispered to Ellen. "That goes until Nat is . . . until a change comes. . . ."

And so other telephone calls had time to be made, even calls which spanned the ocean.

It was evening before the doctor, who had leaned over the bed with such concentration for so many minutes, this time, straightened with a sigh.

"Well," he said, "it looked like a go." "You mean he's going to make it?" John whispered.

The head on the pillow moved; the eyes opened and looked up at them, blinking.

"Course, Johnny," Nat whispered. "Sure thing."

And then a boy could he free to ease a distracted central, to sit in the hospital office and converse in Harrington's methodical way of conversation.

"I guess the newspapers had it all, then," he said, after he had listened for long. "I'm all right. Nat's going to live; we're all set here and I guess you've spent enough on tolls."

"Tolls! Wait until you see the toll bill for a talk I've had with your father today!"

"What! You talked to—Is he back?"

"Back—nothing! He's in Paris and read the bulletin in the Herald's edition over there. He got me on the wire and, luckily, the afternoon editions were coming off so I could give him some details. He says, first, that he's on his way home on the next boat. Next, he wants me to read you a letter that he left with me to be opened in case . . . well, in case a cathedral fell on him, was the way he put it. It's dated in December, the day he left. He wrote it just before you came in from Witch Hill, I guess."

"This is it."

"Dear Johnny—if you read this, it will be because the doctors overlooked a lot of shakes and blow-downs when they caused my inside two weeks ago. I've kept my mouth shut about being under the weather; time enough to worry folks when there's a cause, especially your mother. They tell me that three months of rest will put me spry again. I hope they're right for a lot of reasons, but only one of them frets me much."

"This is because if I hit the grade for the last time and you are going to beat me to finding out just how big a monkey I've been made in the Kampefest operation. Yes, son, things are wrong up there. I guess you were right in your estimate of Gorb. For over a year I've been certain that a plot is being put over on us. I can't run it down now; that's a job for a well man. I'm going off to get well so I can fix what I broke."

"If there's one thing I've prided myself on it was the picking of men. I took Gorb on first, because he had a hold on just the laxest you and I needed for the Big Job; and, second, because, spite of all of you—he looked good to me."

"There are some men who can do it mistakes, but a Belknap hates to. When we have to, though, we want to do it ourselves and not have somebody else finding out what tools we've been. Besides, any man with a son like you wants to be able to turn over the works to him without any messes to clean up. I don't even want you to guess that there's a mess until I get it fixed up. Then I can tell you and save my face. That is straining a point, perhaps, but if you ever have the sort of a son you should have, such a son as you are to me—you'll get the idea—that the admiration and respect of a boy will keep his old dad hustling to be worthy of them."

"You'll be in soon. For the second time I'm going to steer you away from Kampefest. It's going to break your heart and mine, too. But you're not going to allow it; neither am I. The reason is that we're Belknaps, and the breed doesn't show hints or affections much—it feels a lot, though, and so it."

The doctors are wrong and you have to get your explanation this way, please believe that. For finding you so I can have a chance to wash the clothes I've dirtied and by doing so keep your respect."

"And above all, you must realize this: that an old man has a devil of a time playing up to what a father of a son like you should be. I'm so proud of you it keeps me awake nights. Good luck; God bless you."

"TAT."

Harrington paused. His voice had shaken a trifle on the last.

John blinked his eyes and cleared his throat with a brave, long h-r-r-r-rump!

"I'll . . . I'll . . . he began. "I guess I'll be d-d weakly."

"But you should have heard him cheer, clear across the Atlantic, when I told him what the afternoon papers said, about all the double-crossing you'd forced Gorb to confess."

"And he said for you to stay right there in Kampefest and run the job and that he was coming to ask for a chance to help—that's just what he said; to ask for a chance to help—as fast as boats and trains can bring him. Says that he feels fit as a fiddle and had already booked passage two weeks earlier than he'd intended to. You can use your own judgment, of course, but I don't know as I'd make any important changes until he gets here."

John reached out for Ellen's hand.

"How long will it take him?" he asked, commencing to smile.

"Why, not long; ten days, say."

"Ten days? Don't you call that long? What's that?"—leaning closer to the phone as the wire went and for a moment. "Oh—the job—sure, the job can stagger along for ten days without any changes, but there are other things up here, Harrington, so important that they make the job look like a joke. . . . And ten days? Man, for these other things, ten days is ages . . . and ages . . ."

FOR FAILURE PROOF BANKING STRUCTURE

Speaker Outlines Threefold Cooperation Between Bankers, Government Officials and the Public to Maintain Bank Standards

TWO elements beside the bankers themselves are required in order to give the nation universally the type of banking it should have; Francis H. Sisson, president of the American Bankers Association, declared in a recent address. He said that the efficiency of government officials upon whom the people rely to supervise the banks properly, and the patronage of the people themselves are factors in the kind of banks a community shall have.

"There can be no question that the people of the United States should have banks immune from failure and wholly free from bad or questionable banking," Mr. Sisson said. "It is not enough, as President Roosevelt has said, that while some banks have been liquidated or disbanded, this was not true in the vast majority of our banks. A situation should exist in which there is not even a small minority of banks open to question. There should be no room for dishonesty or incompetency to exercise any influence in banking anywhere."

"While bad faith and bad management enter the human factor in all types of business, their effects in banking should be surrounded by such special safeguards as to render them no longer a factor in bank failures. The responsibility for bringing this about, however, cannot rest upon the bankers alone, for the nation to accomplish it are not wholly in their hands. There are other essential elements."

"One is the efficiency of government supervision. Since we rely so greatly upon supervision, it may, unless it is of the highest order in safeguarding the public interest, create a sense of false security. Supervision should render bad banking impossible, but it has failed to do so. There was supervision by practically the highest type of bank supervisors in every one of the instances of questionable banking that has shocked the attention of the country during the past three years. Therefore a thorough strengthening of supervision is clearly called for if the people are to rely on it to the fullest extent for the protection of their interests."

The Public's Part
"Another essential factor in maintaining good banks involves the part played by the public in banking. There is certainly a responsibility on the people themselves to support that type of banker whose rigid adherence to sound principles makes a sound bank, rather than to give their patronage to the easy-going banker who may be easier to do business with, but whose methods create a weak bank."

"Bank customers are charged with a great responsibility in protecting the safety of their banks in respect to their utilization of the assets of the banks as borrowers. Banks have failed because many of their loans and securities, created in good faith by bankers in co-operation with the business interests of the country, proved unsound under subsequent conditions. An unsound loan is created by the borrower as well as the banker. A bank is only as sound as its community, and this applies also to the banking structure as a whole in relation to the economic condition of the nation as a whole."

"A bank is truly a semi-public institution, but in a reciprocal sense—it has its obligations to the public but so has the public equal obligations to the bank. No one who has not sound banking principles at heart has any business in a bank whether as a banker or as a customer."

"The banker is a semi-public servant. He is charged with the heaviest of responsibilities and obligations that occur in our economic life. But he can meet these fully only through the co-operation of good laws, good public officials who are empowered to exercise authority over his bank, and good business methods on the part of business men generally who utilize his bank. Only through such cooperation by all elements in our nation's community life can we be assured of a failure-proof banking structure."

"The Administration at Washington has taken hold of this problem with a firm grasp of essentials and is executing splendid leadership toward the desired end. The strongest feature of the government program will be found in recognizing the joint responsibility of the public, of business and of government officials together with the bankers themselves in creating the kind of banking the nation should have."

Improved Pasture Pays
IMPROVED pastures at cheap source of food for stock. A farmer in New Hampshire, cooperating with his county agent topdressed his 5 acres of pasture with 500 pounds of complete fertilizer at a cost of $15, reports the United States Department of Agriculture. After 4 weeks he turned his cows out on this pasture. Tests made during the six weeks the cows grazed there showed that his herd produced 7,000 pounds more milk than they did in the same period the previous year, although the farmer had no cow lower and fed 300 pounds less grain. Based on current milk prices he made $150 on the extra milk and saved $15 on the grain, netting him an increase in income of $135.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.

DISPELS MYSTERY OF BANK BUSINESS

Country Banker Gives Simplified Picture of How a Bank Works to Help Other People's Business

A COUNTRY banker recently prepared the following simplified statement for his neighbors on just how a bank goes about helping them:

"It is the most important part of a bank's business to lend money. Of all the money deposited in a bank, the law requires that a certain percentage be kept on hand as a reserve to meet the demands of depositors. It is the business of its officers to lend the balance conservatively and safely."

"The loans of a properly managed bank are invariably made to those it believes are able to repay, and always on condition that they be repaid at a stipulated time."

"The promise of an individual to repay a loan to a bank on a certain date is as sacredly inviolable as the promise of a bank to repay its depositors on demand, or in the case of a certificate of deposit, on the date it falls due. When it comes to the knowledge of an individual that he always pays, his credit is established, and his bank is always glad to extend him needed accommodations."

"A well managed bank never capitalizes industries. That is, it does not place its loans in fixed form, but puts them where they are to be used for temporary requirements, and where they will be taken up at the time specified."

How a Bank Lends
"It is not the function of a bank to become a partner in industries, nor could it be legitimately done with the money of depositors. Its loans must be kept in 'liquid' form—that is, repayable in cash at stated intervals."

"A bank must use the greatest discrimination in making loans. A stranger cannot expect accommodations. It is customary for the borrower to make a statement of his financial affairs, which is kept in the bank's records. It is a punishable offense to make a false statement for the purpose of borrowing funds."

"Naturally, in their dealing with the regular depositors of the bank, its officers become well acquainted with their characters and their resources and are thus in a position to determine how large a line of credit each one is entitled to. This is one of the great advantages of being a bank depositor."

"The man who knows how to get into debt wisely, that is, who borrows money with which to make more money through legitimate enterprise, is the borrower whom the bank is looking for. By the frank interchange of opinion and a free discussion of various projects, the borrower is often guided and helped by his banker."

"In order to procure a line of credit at a bank three things are important:

"1. A statement of assets showing a basis of credit in the way of invested capital, or collateral of sufficient value to cover amount of loan, or

"2. An endorser whose credit is established at the bank; and

"3. Adequate deposits of a sufficient amount to justify the extension of the desired accommodation."

AS WILL ROGERS SEE IT
Will Rogers recently told why the banks had got into trouble. "Don't blame it all on the bankers," he said. "When we all needed money they loaned it to us—but when they needed it we couldn't pay it back."

Advertising Aids Business Revival
NEW YORK, June 8.—Excessive conservatism are expediting business by effective advertising despite depressed business conditions, declared A. W. Miller, advertising counsel, at a bankers' conference here recently.

"Is 1933 a good year in which to advertise?" Mr. Miller asked. "Yes, if 1933 is a good year to advertise in, to reinforce the public's confidence in you, to put more business on the books. There is now business to be had today and tomorrow's opportunities are getting it. But new business will come in only if you go on now."

Advertising campaigns since the war in "Will Rogers' new newspaper advertisement" these days? They will read anything that interests them. There are plenty of present day arguments for business."

Advertising Mistakes
A QUESTION before many of us is what changes of advertising policy it may, should be made in view of present financial and business conditions. It is perfectly natural for us to give consideration to some degree of retrenchment, but it is dangerous to let reduction in expenditure be such as to bring about a real gap in the continuity of the advertising. It is a common mistake for some advertisers to think that they can turn advertisements on and off like water from a faucet and expect it to become immediately effective whenever they are prepared to resume operations. Advertising does not work that way. Temporary conditions should not influence us to make too serious inroads on the program of advertising, which can be wisely continued only on a long term basis. Francis H. Sisson, President American Bankers Association.
