Fishing License Law Effective In October

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Lansing which was carried in daily papers Tuesday evening, it will be unnecessary for fishermen to purchase license until October.
There has been considerable dispute in the matter and final ruling was not made until Tuesday. The article in its entirety is as follows:

Lansing, Mich., June 20.—The controversy over whether licenses will be needed for inland lake fishing beginning June 25 appeared to be ended today, with the state taking a neutral stand. Those who want to help swell the conservation fund for fish propagation may buy a 50 cent general rod license. If they refuse, however, they will not be arrested.

Instructions were sent to all conservancy officers by George S. Hogarth, director, explaining the situation. The legislature passed a general rod license law, but failed to muster the necessary two-thirds majority for immediate effect. Laws not given immediate effect become operative 90 days after final adjournment of the legislature. Final adjournment is set for July 17 and the general rod act becomes effective about the middle of October.

After failing to give the measure immediate effect the legislature partially backtracked by adopting a resolution proposing that its provisions be enforced immediately. Patrick H.
O'Brien, attorney general, ruled the law is effective, because of the resolution. Attorney members of the legislature disregarding, saying it is impossible to make an act immediately effective by resolution.

Hogarth has decided the law will not be enforceable until next October.
Until then all fish—except trout—may be taken without a license, but the state would much rather fishermen would buy licenses.

Local Men Attend Trade Meet In G. R.

D. H. Bacon and E. W. Eaton represented the Central Fibre Products
Co. at a national meeting of paper
twine manufacturers at Grand Rap-

there being attendance from the Pacific coast as well as from the East.

Because this group of manufacturers appreciate the far-reaching effect ed to establish a code of ethics and fair competition for presentation to the Government for its approval.

Mr. Eaton was elected a member of the executive committee and treasurer of the Paper Twine Manufacturers' Association.

Senior Writes of Class Journey to the Chicago Fair

By Erma Dettling

The Chelsea High Senior Class of 1933 left Monday, June 12, at 7:00
a. m. on their yearly trip. This year they attended the World's Fair in Chicago. The trip was made in a special bus, chartered for that purpose. However, bus trouble delayed the arrival in Chicago, taking the entire first day for the trip.

The class, chaperoned by Miss Leah Hazard, Miss Virginia Barnes, and Supt. Earl Y. Poore, spent Tuesday at the fair grounds, first taking a bus trip around the grounds, becoming acquainted with the locations of the various buildings through which they might desire to go. After this the class broke up into small groups,
each going where they pleased.

While in Chicago they also took trips to various points of interest.
Wednesday morning they took their own bus and made a trip through the market districts of Chicago and the stockyards. They also drove out Sheridan Drive and visited Evanston.

Thursday morning the group went through various residential districts of Chicago and they saw the campus of Northwestern University and its stadium. Thursday afternoon they were taken through the Broadcasting Company by a guide who explained the details of broadcasting to them.
Friday morning the class saw the campus of the University of Chicago and here they visited the beautiful University of Chicago Chapel.

Saturday morning the entire group visited the Field Museum and the Shedd Aquarium, which ended their four of Chicago.

During the afternoons and evenings, which were not occupied by tours, each individual was allowed to do what he desired to do. Some went to the fair, some shopping, some to see movies, and some remained in their rooms.

The class left Chicago about 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, arriving in Chelsea Sunday morning about 7:00 o'clock. Everyone was glad to get home again after their pleasant trip to the World's Fair.

the day delightful.

Tower Creamery Co. Will Open July 1st

Because of late arrival of some of the materials to be used in preparing their building for occupancy, officials will be delayed until about July 1st.

Masonry and floor work in the building is nearing completion and

Council Has Not Bought Dust Layer

At the regular meeting of the common council Monday evening a petition was presented by residents of McKinley street, asking that that street be surfaced with black top.
The petition stated that inasmuch as the village authorities had spent funds for dust layer on other streets without cost to adjacent property owners that the petitioners felt that McKinley street should be surfaced with black top at no expense to the property owners.

The village officials want to make it clear that they have not spent one cent this year for any kind of dust layer for Chelsea streets. North Main street was treated with dust layer by the state highway department as it is a state-maintained highway. Residents on some of the other streets have purchased calcium chloride themselves and applied the dust layer in front of their homes.

Several other petitions asking for surfacing on certain streets were also presented at the Monday evening council meeting, but they are all being held up pending decision of the council as to what procedure will be followed.

Neighbors May Lop Off Overhanging Tree Limbs

A man was fined five guineas for damaging two trees belonging to his landlord, says an English paper. He declared that he had applied to the landlord to have them cut down and, when permission was refused, lopped them.

The judge told him that he was lucky to get off with a fine for by the Malicious Damage act, a person is liable to five years penal servitude for cutting down a growing tree.

A curious case of the same sort came up at Kingstown when a woman was accused of "poisoning" a tree. It was a large poplar standing on a neighbor's land and the defendant said the roots were ruining her lawn.

The magistrate said that while the defendant had a right to cut away the offending roots, she had no right to use poison; and she was fined two pounds. She had also to pay five pounds compensation and five guineas costs.

Tree law is curious. Most people are under the impression that, if a fruit tree belonging to a neighbor has branches hanging over their wall or fence, they have a right to the fruit. They are wrong. They have not only no right to the fruit, but the owner of the tree may enter the other person's land to gather his fruit or to pick up windfalls.

Yet when the tree is not in fruit the person whose land branches hang may lop those branches.—Montreal Herald.

work, the chemist used simple apparatus and simple methods to get amazing results, frequently revealing the secrets of arts once considered lost in the tombs of the Egyptians.—Detroit News.

Find Gem-Studded Gold Blade

Near Alt-Lusheim, in the historic soil of the Rhine-plains between the hills of the Odenwald and the Harz, the remains of a gem-studded golden sword have been found. Scientists ascribe it to the period of the Migration of the Peoples, around 450 A. D. According to ancient saga, Siegfried and Kriemhild lived at that time, and it is possible that the sword belonged to some hero of the Nibelung period. The find is on exhibition in the Historical Palatine museum in Heidelberg.

Gecko, Quick Change Artist

A little-known tropical creature called the chameleon gecko is a rapid quick-change artist. It can make itself practically invisible at a distance of a foot. During the day it clings against its resting place, which may be the bark of a tree covered with lichen, and every changing hue of the latter is faithfully reproduced upon the body of the gecko. The body itself is marked with irregular lobes of skin, which help to fade it into the background, but its bright eye will often give it away.

Progress of Matches

The friction match, first made in 1827, consisted of splinters of wood dipped in fused sulphur and then tipped with a mixture composed essentially of antimony sulphide, chlorate of potash and some adhesive gum. Later, in 1835, the phosphorus friction match was perfected, which ignited when rubbed against a rough surface. The safety match (1855), so called because it would in general strike only on a prepared box, simply transferred the phosphorus from the tip of the striking match to the side of the box.

Ireland Not Home of Potato

Ireland is not the home of the Irish potato. Its original home was western South America where it was found and taken to Europe by explorers who were in search of gold. The potato did not win immediate favor in Europe. War, famine, and bloody diseases were necessary before it gained popularity. In Scotland, it was considered for many years the forbidden fruit that got Adam and Eve into everlasting disgrace.

Choosing Chief Executive

There have been several notions in the house and senate looking for a change in the system of electing a President, one as early as 1803. In 1868 a motion was made for the direct election of President, again in 1874 and 1877. President Jackson included a recommendation for the abolishment of the electoral college and direct vote for the President in each of his annual messages to congress from 1829 to 1830.

Veterans' Administration

The veterans' administration was authorized to be established as an independent agency under the direction of the President July 3, 1930, which further authorized the President by executive order to consolidate and coordinate under a single control all government agencies having to do with the administration of laws relating to the relief of and other benefits provided by law for former members of the military and naval forces. By executive order of July 21, 1930, there was established the veterans' administration and consolidated therein the bureau of pensions (previously under the jurisdiction of the secretary of the interior), the United States Veterans' bureau, and the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, the latter now known as the Bureau of National Homes.

Scout Council Has New Camp Program

The Washtenaw-Livingston Council of Boy Scouts has adopted an important change in its camping program this season, according to announcement from Scout headquarters at Ann Arbor.

In the past, the Scouts attended the Council camp, Camp Newkirk, near Dexter, on the Huron river. Individual boys attended either with or without their troop leaders, and paid a fee of six or seven dollars per week. Leadership was hired by the Council, and the Council prided itself on the quality of camping carried at this site.

However, it has become more than ever apparent this year that the "good old ways" are not good enough for 1933. In the first place, it was discovered that less than 80 per cent of the Council's Scouts attended Camp Newkirk even in the most prosperous times, and this number would necessarily be reduced this year. Further, it was discovered that many boys do not "feel at home" in the camp of a hundred or more. At the same time, certain other councils reported success in getting over 90 per cent of their registered Scouts to camp for at least a week during the summer.

The secret of this success was found in the "troop-camping" plan, which has just been adopted by local council.

Under this plan, each troop will select its own campsite, furnish its own transportation, set up its own camp and operate it under the direction of its own year-round leaders. Food will largely be taken from home, and there will be no fancy chefs to cook it—the Scouts will do that for themselves. The daily program will be determined by the boys and leaders together, with only a few fixed hours. Regular times for meals and for swimming must be maintained, to protect the health and safety of the campers, just as in the former council mass camp.

Troop 1 of Hamburg returned Saturday from a week's camp at Blind Lake in Livingston county, under the direction of Roy Martin of Ann Arbor.

Taking all food from home, the troop's total cash expense for the week was only 38 cents, spent for gasoline. The boys were wholly on their own, and learned how to cook delicious biscuits and cornbread without ovens. Many interesting and useful "gadgets" were invented for camp use. The "buddy" system of swimming, always having a partner for each boy, was used to protect the swimmers, just as in the larger camp.

For troops and smaller groups wishing to go camping, but where their own leaders cannot attend, Camp Newkirk will be open at slightly higher expense, with trained leadership available. It is proposed to conduct model troop camps with these small groups, as a demonstration of the most modern ideas in the operation of Scout camps.

For the boys under 12 years of age, small groups of friends will be accommodated in a separate division of the camp, beginning about July 2. The officers of the younger boys' camp have been chosen from those with special ability to deal with children of that age. The cost of this camp will be $5.00 per week, since a cook and other officers must be furnished, with more supervision than older boys require. The principle of having boys come to camp only with small groups of their close friends will obtain throughout, since this enables the boy to feel at home from the start. Special attention will be paid to the teaching of swimming, Indian lore and campcraft.

Parents and boys interested in any of these camping opportunities should consult with local Scout leaders or with Scout headquarters, 324 E. Huron street, Ann Arbor.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

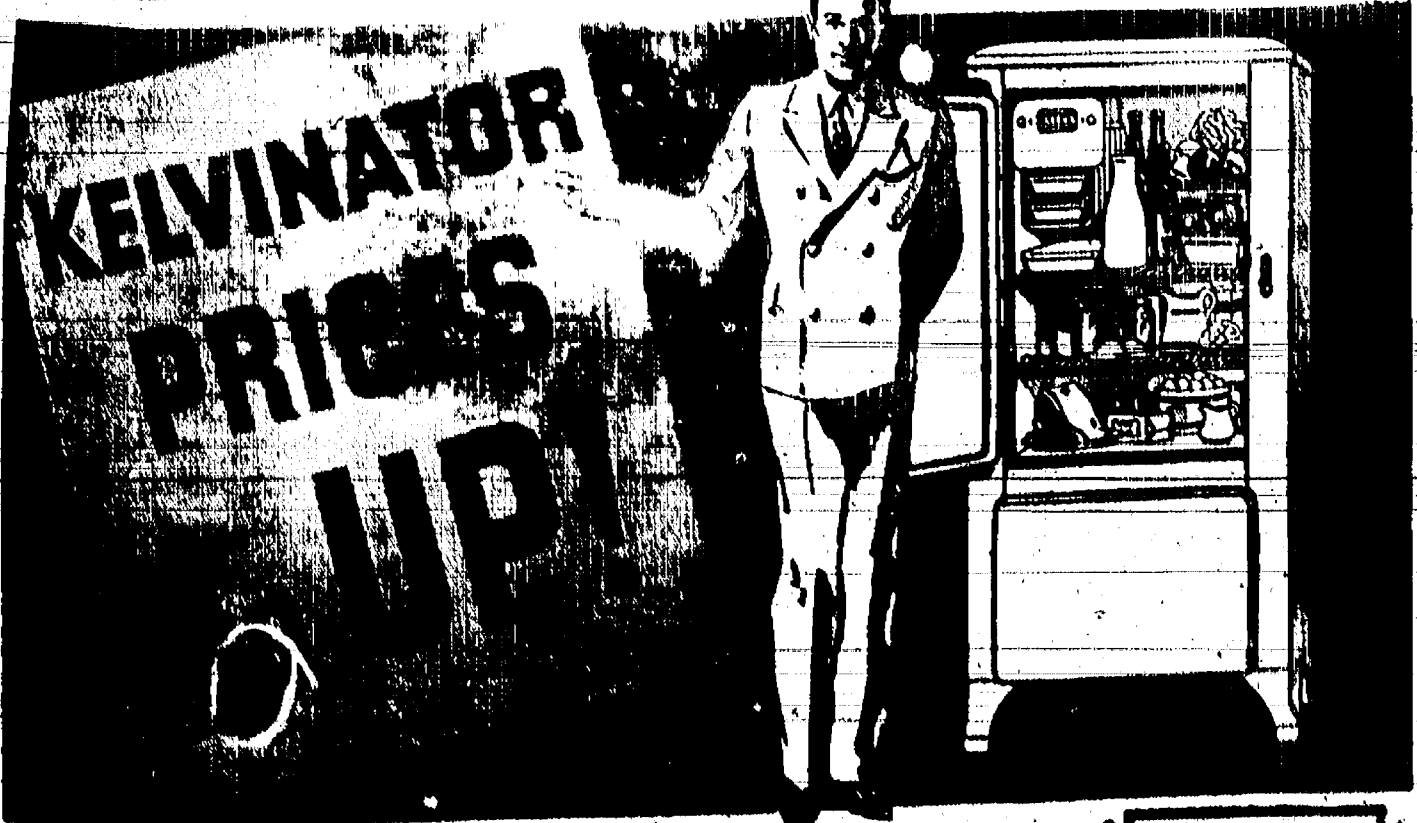

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

H. D. Witherell, Local RepresentativeLegislative Session
Ends, Chaos FearedNo Money For Public Schools, But Food and Clothing Taxes.

By Elton R. Eaton

Lansing, Mich.—The regular session of the state legislature is at an end. The members have returned to their homes to condemn, praise or explain the administration in power. They have gone home to face the boys and girls of their neighborhood whose educational opportunities have been snatched from them. They have gone home to tell the fathers and mothers of these boys and girls that the state government from now on is going to demand a tax on the food they are required to eat to maintain life; that the state government is going to tax even the clothing they wear to protect themselves from the elements and to maintain some sort of decency.

Michigan—Michigan the mighty—Michigan the beautiful—has for the first time since its discovery in 1810—turned its face backward. Its educational system has been wrecked. While legislation has been passed that provides care for the crippled, the insane and the idle hands of the shiftless and unemployed, not one penny has been raised or provided for the public schools of Michigan.

Down through all the days of statehood Michigan has maintained a legendary reputation for its public schools. It has fostered them and pampered them as its most sacred asset.

Almost over night it has junked the whole system. One of the inequities of the whole mess is the fact that appropriations have been made to support and maintain the normal schools of the state where young men and women are trained to be school teachers—but unless the people interested in the public school system of Michigan can devise some way to keep the schools open, there will be no schools for these instructors to conduct.

A last minute desperate effort by Senator Leon Case of Waterford to save the schools was made. He managed to be written into the sales tax bill a clause appropriating $15,000,000 for the primary school fund, the money to be paid out of the general fund. But this, it is feared, means little, as the schools can have only what is left out of the $31,000,000 the sales tax is expected to raise after all the state departments and institutions have taken their dip into the fund. If the sales tax does not raise the amount of money, there will be no funds for the public schools. By chance if the amount secured from the sales tax should be more, then of course the schools will profit. But the schools have had each year from the state anywhere from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. Even the most hopeful can see little in sight during the next year.

There is some talk that Governor William Comstock will call a special session of the legislature during the next few weeks to provide support for the public schools, but unless he does, hundreds of the little district school houses that dot the hillsides of the state, the grade schools and the high schools will be unable to open next fall. If they do, possibly through some local taxation support, they will be able to run but a few months of the year.

It was the vote of the people last fall, the vote that wrote into the state constitution an amendment which took away from the state a right to tax real estate, coupled with the failure of the legislature to provide new revenues for the support of the schools that has led to the collapse of the public school system of Michigan.

Condemned by members of the legislature as a bad piece of legislation, the amendment that shifted the tax burden from the rich man to the back of the poor man, as Representative William Connelly declared, nevertheless the sales tax bill has passed and Governor Comstock is going to approve it. It is effective immediately and from now on the people of Michigan are going to pay a three per cent tax on everything they buy. The bill was condemned by both the senate and house as being entirely unfit for passage, but it was necessary that the state be provided with some revenue to maintain some semblance of an organized government. Therefore, dozens of representatives and senators voted for a bill they knew to be unfair and declared to be bad in many of its features. The bill is expected to raise some $31,000,000 for the support of the state. An exemption was placed in the bill that provides a cut of half for the farmers. There will be no sales tax collected on gross sales of less than $100 per year. This will make it possible for farmers to conduct little roadside stands to sell the products of their orchards and gardens without the payment of a tax. The sales tax will require sales of new jobs and the bill carries an original appropriation of $100,000 for the boys in play with.

Tasapayers of Michigan who thought they might escape from the present legislative car in state expenses will find when the final account of the work of the present is tallied that even the tremendous totals of the Becker administration, the highest of their time in state history, have been exceeded. But administrators and leaders point out that the present high appropriation is a result of a cut of between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 left by the old administration and the appropriation of $13,000,000 for welfare work. The cost of the state government during the next fiscal year will be somewhere between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 it is estimated.

One piece of worthy legislation was enacted into law, due to the exposure of the newspapers of attempted bribery in an effort to kill the measure. Small loan companies and loan sharks were unsuccessful in their effort to prevent the passage of a bill cutting the interest rate on small loans. During the Becker administration when small loan companies began to appear and others ran away with legislation they wanted the state to empower these concerns to collect three and one-half per cent interest per month on small loans. Early in the present session Senator Francis Kulp of Berlin, Frank and two of three other members introduced bills to cut this rate to one per cent per month. But before members of the legislature had reached Lansing, these bills had been snatched by lobbyists. In Lansing to save the legislation to cut this exorbitant interest rate. They succeeded in keeping the bills out of senate committee, even though the house had passed one bill cutting the rate to one per cent a month. Then it was that newspaper correspondents snatched out the power of the loan shark lobbyists over some members of the senate. The house demanded a legislative inquiry at lobby activities and it came to light that at least one lobbyist had been requested to that lobby telegrams had flooded the legislature and that every conceivable plan had been resorted to to kill the bill cutting the interest rate on small loans. In the face of the publicity and the disappearance of the lobbyists, members of the senate committee did not keep up their fight to kill the measure. It was reported out and passed, putting the interest rate that these outfits can charge legally to one and a half per cent per month. It is another case where the men and women of little means are forced to pay a ransom in order to get the thing that the more fortunate secure for less.

Representative Vernon J. Brown of Litchfield county, veteran fighter in the house for economy in state affairs who broke with ex-Governor Becker two years ago because Becker ignored Brown in his efforts to force a reduction of state expenses, has gone home only fairly satisfied with the work of the legislature. Brown feels that he had pulled successfully through the house went on the rocks in the senate. As an example of the way the thing was done, the Brown bill cutting the appropriation of the University of Michigan down to a point that would have enabled the school to function, but on a retrenched basis, was increased in the senate to a million, one hundred thousand dollars. Dozens and dozens of other appropriation bills he sponsored in cooperation with Representative Gus Hartman of Houghton, met the same fate. The ten million dollar saving that Representative Brown declared the state could make and function just as good as ever, faded to a mere few millions due to the tremendous institutional and departmental lobby system that flourishes in Lansing.

The bill Senator Kulp introduced which would have made it illegal for public officials of any kind to do anything in behalf of any pending legislation, died without a word of mention from the committee to which it had been assigned. While around the legislative halls in Lansing one can hear nothing but criticism and condemnation of the work of the legislature, there are those old time legislative observers who are frank to declare that the failure is in no way due to the legislature itself. "There has not been a single state official with knowledge enough or interest enough, except in the bi-monthly payroll checks, to try and work out a legislative program of any kind for troubled Michigan," they say. Then came a break between the governor and some of the senate leaders. So it has gone from worse to worse, with no one looking out for the taxpayer's back home.

A financial chart has been prepared that shows that Michigan for six years has been running in the "red." It was soon after Governor Green assumed office that the state's finances according to this chart, slung below the red line, to remain there to this very day. Not once during all of these six years has the state been out of the "red." Each year it has sunk lower and lower until the present administration was faced with a deficit of something like $13,000,000. Even the sinking funds that were created during the Slomper times have evaporated.

The taxpayers' program for a reduction of governmental expense and a decent tax of some kind has been forgotten. The demand for political jobs has had to be met. To pay off the holders takes money, and to get the money takes and takes and takes. The political jobs are being filled and new tax laws have been enacted, with open charges that legislative votes have been swapped for paroles and job promises. In order to get the votes necessary to put over the program of the politicians, the session is ended. Some say maybe it would have been better if it had never been started.

Lansing, Mich.—The three per cent sales tax adopted by the legislature just before the session adjourned, provides that the law, if signed by the governor, shall be administered by the auditor general, the state treasurer, the secretary of state and a fourth to be chosen by the three executive state officers. It is estimated that the sales tax will produce approximately $29,000,000 annually. As finally adopted by the legislature, the sales tax bill makes no provision for extending additional state aid to Michigan's school system although it contains a direct appropriation of $15,000,000 for state aid to local welfare agencies. In dropping the appropriation of $15,000,000, veteran members of the legislature asserted that there was no organization to fight the battles of the unemployed while school officials were well organized and would be able to fight successfully for state aid in event the schools were unable to function efficiently under present revenues.

One of the closing acts of the legislature was the restoration of public utility delinquent tax descriptions. Under the new bill publication of the descriptions of property to be sold for delinquent taxes will be resumed in 1938. Newspapers are to be paid under a graduated scale which will make no change in the rate previously paid by the majority of weekly publications.

The complicated Raymond bill which would permit automobile owners to "buy as you drive" is now before the governor for his approval or veto. The bill contains provisions for paying the full weight tax or for paying the portions of the tax according to whether an automobile is placed in use in January, March, June or September. The measure might result in decreasing the gasoline tax to 10 cents.

Old age pensions to be financed by a 22-cent tax on all Michigan citizens will become effective in Michigan, if the measure adopted by the legislature is approved by the governor. Under certain restrictions the bill provides for allowances of $20 per month for aged persons who have no other means of support.

SPENT IN MICHIGAN

Annually, thousands of visitors come to Michigan for their vacations. They spend a great deal of money in our state each summer.

The concerted effort of Michigan residents can bring many more vacationists to Michigan. We can tell our out-of-state relatives and friends of the advantages of Michigan and persuade them to spend their vacations here. No state can offer them more... few so much. They will find no disposition in Michigan to "bank the tourist." They will find vacation costs moderate and accommodations to fit every pocketbook.

In Michigan they will find a delightful summer climate; enchanting and varied scenery; historic points of great interest; unlimited opportunity for all summer sports; the best of highway and other transportation facilities; comfortable and reasonable hotels, tourist homes, and camps; modern and progressive stores, newspapers, and theaters.

And is this not a good year for Michigan people to spend their vacations in Michigan? Few of us really know our own state well. A tour of both peninsulas would be pleasant and instructive. Many points along the way would be of great interest both to children and adults. Let us spend our vacation money in Michigan this summer. We would all profit by it.

HOWELL. Tuesday afternoon two strangers were in the Blackmer Clothing Company store at Fowler, apparently interested in making some purchases of goods. In fact, one of the visitors did purchase a shirt while the other man was apparently taking in the lay of the land. Tuesday night evidently about 4 o'clock in the morning 25 men's suits were burglarized from the store, just how much small furnishings were missing had not been determined Wednesday noon. The burglars entered the front door, just how they got in was not determined. The shop's forces has not been able to get any definite clues, except that the men are thought to have left to wards Lansing.—Republican-Press.

Among the contracts which were let at the Federal Prison last week and which have received official sanction of the Department of Justice is the fence which will enclose the entire reservation. WAYNE. An elderly man who mingled with the congregation during services at the Congregational church Sunday morning and made off with the pocketbook of three women, was caught by Wayne police as he was leaving town after the services. At the conclusion of the services the three women missed their pocketbooks and then members of the congregation recalled that they had noticed an elderly man with a black satchel at the rear of the church during the services and that he had left the church before the conclusion of the services. The Wayne police were given the description and the man was taken in to custody at Michigan avenue and Bagout St. as he was walking towards Detroit. A relatively inspection of the bag by the police indicates that Norton had made it a practice to carry on worshippers at church services. The bag contained a long list of nearly a thousand churches in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio states together with the hours of service and the names of the churches. Articles found in the bag included more than a dozen pocketbooks, both men's and women's, fountain pens, ladies' compact, a half dozen razors, rosaries, neckties, ladies' gloves, handkerchiefs and similar items. —Candid Review.

Sprays Aid Profits from Potato Crop

Adequate protection of potatoes by spraying or dusting results in a profitable increase of U. S. No. 1 potatoes, as shown by years of experimental work by the crops department at Michigan State College.

In the College trials, spraying with Dielderux mixture has given better results than dusting with copper-lime dusts but the latter treatment has some advantage. Gains obtained from spraying or dusting are not markedly affected by weather conditions but the profits do increase greatly in years when leaf hoppers are numerous. Apparently, the hoppers are the chief factor in cutting down the potato crop in a series of years.

Bad attacks of blight, of course, seriously injure potato crops, but the outbreaks of blight are not as common as the damage by leaf-hoppers and the aggregate loss is less. Blight also is controlled by spray or dust applications if the treatments are given at the proper times.

While high pressure sprayers with nozzles set to send spray to all parts of the leaf surfaces are best, the College tests show that pressures can be too high as well as too low. A pressure of 300 pounds gave better results than pressures either at 150 pounds or 450 pounds.

Complete directions on spraying and dusting potatoes will be available in a bulletin now being published by Michigan State College. The bulletin is Special No. 234 and can be obtained free by writing to the bulletin clerk at the College. It will be off the press before July 1.

Inflation No Cure for Farm Problems

Michigan farmers should not be deceived by a present rise in farm prices partly due to inflation into a belief that inflation is the correct solution for farm problems, according to Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, who points out that, while the farmers get an initial benefit from rises in prices of raw materials, this benefit is nullified later by increases on goods which must be bought.

The 100 per cent increase in the price of wheat and of cotton between the early days of May and the middle of June are in a measure due to inflation and are partly due to faith in the government's plan to make adjustments in the production of basic crops. The benefits from inflation vanish if the dollar gained in the rise of wheat has to be paid for a dollar rise in manufactured goods, but price gains obtained from crop adjustments will not be wiped out by increased expenses.

Michigan farmers are adding to the surplus of basic crops when unrestricted acreages of wheat are planted and when uncontrolled numbers of hogs are marketed. No steps are being taken to limit this year's wheat crop but hearings have been held in Washington to work out plans to adjust the next crop to the visible supply and to the world's needs.

Potato growers in Michigan, who remember the 1924 and 1925 crops know that big crops and increased acreages are not a sure source of adding to farm incomes. The total value of the 1924 potato crop was $180,960,000 and the price per bushel was 78 cents. The 1925 crop was 88 million bushels smaller, sold for $1.83 a bushel, and had a total value of $327,670,000.

Potato growers in the United States paid $146,610,000 for the surplus of potatoes which no one wanted and which could not be sold. Mistakes of this kind, whether in the production of potatoes, wheat, milk, or pork, can not be cured by inflation. Crop adjustments are the correct answer, says Secretary Wallace, and these adjustments on the basic crops will be made under the Farm Act if farmers will cooperate with administrators of the Act in carrying out its provisions.

No Michigan farmer will be urged to join with his neighbors in obtaining relief for all agriculture. The plans will be explained through newspapers and by extension workers and each farmer will judge his own willingness to work with his neighbors in the proposed plan.

Country Was Overloaded With Hard Times Tokens

The crisis of 1837 created an acute shortage of coins of all kinds. Copper pieces of many varieties appeared, issued by individuals and by corporations. And many were issued for advertising purposes, or for political propaganda, the majority of the political coins exemplifying the spirit of sectional and bitter partisanship of the time of Andrew Jackson. Even a button factory in Waterbury, Conn., issued many thousands, and the volume in Baltimore reached such proportions that federal officers took steps to prosecute private coiners under the provisions of a long-forgotten law of May 8, 1792.

These coins were known as "hard times tokens." The country was overwhelmed with them, and for a few months in 1837 they seemed to drive out all coin from circulation. Those bearing the phrase "substitute for silver" were issued during this death of currency, by irresponsible state banks over which the government had no control.

The date November, 1837, appearing on the coin was that of a convention held in New York on the twenty-seventh of that month by representatives of leading banks in 19 states, to fix a date for resumption of specie payment. These representatives met again April 16, 1838, and decided to resume payment in specie the tenth of May following, which was successfully accomplished after a suspension of exactly one year.

Most of our laws regarding passports date from the World war, though the secretary of state was empowered by the Act of 1890 to issue passports. Up to the war time, however, it was unusual for an American citizen to take out a passport to visit a European country unless he were going to Russia, Turkey or one of the Balkan countries where there was likely to be difficulty. Even in 1900 the State department issued a general statement advising all Americans intending to travel abroad, outside of British dominions, to provide themselves with passports before leaving the United States; those visiting Russia or Turkey were required to have the passports countersigned by a Russian or Turkish consular official. -48
