House Destroyed By Early-Morning Fire

The apartment house of Mrs. Geo. W. Palmer, corner of Park and Madison streets, was destroyed by fire early Friday morning. The blaze started in the Park street apartment occupied by M. L. Knickerbocker and family and is believed to have been caused from an overheated furnace. When discovered about 12:30, the fire had gained such headway that the stairway was impassable, and Mrs. Knickerbocker and children made their escape from the upper story by a ladder, with the assistance of a neighbor, L. H. Azzell. Mr. Knickerbocker was away on a hunting trip when the fire occurred.

The entire contents of this apartment were consumed, with an approximate loss of $1500.00. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bahmiller, who occupied the Madison St. apartment, saved only a portion of the furniture on the main floor. The contents were insured.

The estimated loss on the building is $5,000.00, partially covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Knickerbocker and Mr. and Mrs. Bahmiller extend their thanks to neighbors and the firemen for their efforts in assisting them.

The fire department members appreciate the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Azzell in serving coffee during the time they were on duty at the fire.

Union Thanksgiving Service Wednesday

One of the outstanding Thanksgiving events in this community will be the union Thanksgiving service which will be held next Wednesday evening in the Congregational church. Annual St. Mary's Fair To Be Held Next Week

Tuesday and Wednesday next week and the annual St. Mary's Fair will be in full swing—starting off with one of those justly famous chicken suppers—chicken, biscuits with gravy, cranberry sauce, salad, coffee and pumpkin pie—and then the fun begins. All the old favorite "fair" games of skill and luck, poultry of all description and plenty of it, groceries, hams, slabs of bacon, flour, canned goods at the Country Store. At the Ladies' Shoppe, aprons, pillow cases, table cloths—just any number of things for the home or dress, or to give for Christmas presents.

A Parcel Post booth, with gifts of all kinds to suit everyone, and also at the Fish Pond—and blankets and blankets at another booth—and also aluminum ware and of course, candy and many other things.

A cafeteria will be open after the supper on Tuesday night and all of Wednesday evening.

A combination donation ticket carrying 15 grand prizes is being circulated and may be secured from any parishioner—and any one of the prizes is well worth while.

This annual fair has become a meeting place for former Chelsea residents who come to spend Thanksgiving with their relatives and friends here, and the renewal of old friendships alone would make it worth while to attend.

President Sponsors Boy Scout Awards

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, according to an announcement from the National office of the Boy Scouts of America, has sponsored an award to local Councils of Boy Scouts who develop efficiency and proficiency to a high degree, and which evidence the development in the Scout program and activities which comes from continuous membership.

Believing that Scouts will gain from a longer tenure the Scouting authorities have devised the plan of awards which the President, who is Honorary President of Boy Scouts of America, and still retains his active Scouting connection, as President of the Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York, has sponsored. Many of the awards will be made during the celebration of the twenty-fourth birthday of Scouting, February 8 to 14, 1934.

There will be a red, white and blue sash for each Scout Troop that qualifies and a knotted wide ribbon of red, white and blue silk for the Scout Councils which, by a high figure of proficiency among the troops are entitled to the Council awards. The Troop Award and the Council ribbon bear the following inscription: "The President Franklin D. Roosevelt 1933 Ten Year Program Award."

The point of membership tenure has been stressed in connection with the award because of the fact that the Scouting authorities feel that in view of the proposed for increased leisure time, as developed in the Federal program, the Scout program of activities proposes excellent ways for boys to use this time. For older boys the Scout program offers a list of leisure time activities.

Every troop which makes application for the award must demonstrate that it has carried on an approved program during 1933 and it must show an increase in membership over 1932. In addition at least half of the new members of the Troop gains during the year must be boys who have passed their 14th birthday but are not yet 18, and at the same time, 80 per cent of the boys who become troop members in 1933 must be registered for a continuing membership.

The awards are coordinated with the Boy Scout Ten Year Plan of growth which seeks to give the benefits of the Scout program to a million membership next year.

District Commander Speaks at Legion Meet

For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred percent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the Community, State and Nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our citizenship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

This is the preamble to the constitution of The American Legion and was the subject of a talk given by District Commander Fred Battelle of Ypsilanti before the local post of the Legion at Kell's hall on Tuesday evening of this week.

Plans are being formulated by the Legion to entertain the kiddies of this vicinity during the Christmas season. Committees were appointed by the local Commander of the post and it is expected that this event will be outstanding in the memory of the youngsters.

Chelsea Legionnaires are also planning to entertain the various posts of this Congressional district in the month of January. They anticipate some very notable speakers for the occasion and it is hoped that it may be possible to invite the general public of this community to the gathering.

A Thanksgiving party is to be held at Sylvan town hall on Monday evening, November 27, to which all men are cordially invited.

Evangelistic Services Open Monday Evening

A Christian Crusade, conducted by Rev. P. Raymond Powers of Chicago, will commence with a great community rally in the Chelsea M. E. church Monday evening, November 27th, at 7:30.

Special features planned are: A male chorus of one hundred and a mixed chorus of two hundred, with Dr. Powers conducting.

The Old Meeting House Quartette, with two boy singers, three and four years of age, have accepted a special invitation to sing and furnish music. This same group thrilled a large audience here last Sunday night—this will give those who did not hear them a second opportunity.

Numerous ministers are expected to be present with their groups from the adjoining community.

Servants will be conducted every night until December 10, Saturdays excepted.

On Wednesday evening the service will be strictly a Thanksgiving service with Dr. Powers as the special speaker. Having preached on numerous occasions in large cities under the auspices of cooperating churches the annual Thanksgiving sermon, his message should be timely and well worth hearing. Special Thanksgiving music will be used.

New Relief Society Organized In Chelsea

On Monday evening there was instituted a Conference of the Society of Saint Vincent de Paul at St. Mary's school. This society, which is international in its membership, has for 100 years carried on its work of caring for the poor and needy of all creeds, working along the same lines as laid down by Frederic Ozanam, who founded the society in Paris in 1829.

Children will enjoy the distinction of having one of the first conferences to be installed in a small village; the other 105 conferences composing the Particular Council of Detroit diocese, all being located in the larger cities.

Meetings will be held each Monday at 8 p. m. at St. Mary's school. The officers who are to be appointed by the Particular Council will assume their duties next Monday night.

The delegates from Detroit were: Messrs. Murphy, Hodge, Heimlich, Rohrbaugh, Goetz, Weber, J. Sullivan and Dr. J. Sullivan, and after the meeting they were the guests at a luncheon served at the Swickath home on Congdon St., Mrs. C. H. Swickath and Mrs. W. Rademacher being the hostesses.

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of State

Lansing, Mich.—The need for a reduction in price of automobile license plates is shown by the decrease in motor vehicle weight taxes and gasoline taxes collected by the Department of State in 1933.

For the first nine months of 1933, the total gasoline tax amounted to $15,122,867. This is a decrease of $1,187,512, under the amount collected during the same period in 1932.

The motor vehicle weight tax for the first 10 months of 1933 was $17,632,417 or $1,149,492 less than was collected for the first 10 months of 1932.

Department records show that on Nov. 1, 1933 there were 58,416 fewer motor vehicles operating on Michigan highways than there were a year ago. Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald has recommended that the legislature reduce license plate costs to three, six and nine dollars. This reduction, he declares, would permit thousands of motorists, who cannot afford to pay the present weight tax, to use their automobiles.

Public Acts of 1933 are now being distributed by the Department of State. Under the law the Public Acts are furnished without charge to various county officials and may be purchased from the Department by citizens for $1.50.

A new political party will appear on 1934 ballots. It is called the Progressive Fusionist Party and has adopted as an emblem the American flag and pictures of Theodore Roosevelt and Thomas Jefferson. The vignette and proper application for a place on the 1934 ballot were filed with the Department of State last week.

HOWELL.—It will not be long now before the Howell Airport will be a regular flag station for the Kohler planes and the airport will be listed among the group of emergency fields in Michigan. Some little work has yet to be done on the matter of flood lights, but the big beacon has been erected and the connections were being made Monday and Tuesday. When a decision is made and an understanding completed between the state and the city, the flood lights will be connected and the field ready for all emergency requirements of the state aeronautic board.—Republican-Press.

PLYMOUTH.—Luigi Gallo escaped death by inches last Friday night when his automobile slipped onto the Pica Marquette tracks out on the Five Mile road as the result of an oncoming train. The wheels of his car spinning and unable to move it from the tracks, he opened the door of his machine and jumped but a few seconds before the train crashed into the automobile, completely demolishing it. Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Do moth balls kill moths?

Ans.—No, they do not actually kill them, but they will not stay around where they can smell the balls if they can help it. Moth balls are made of naphthalene, which chemical is very repulsive to them.

Ques.—Can you tell me how rings are gold-plated by electricity?

Ans.—The rings are hung in a solution containing gold through which passes an electric current. Each electron as it passes through the solution finds one of the atoms of dissolved gold and attaches itself to that atom. Then it moves across the solution to find the wire by which it can leave. Rings are hung on this wire. The electron enter the rings. The gold atom, on which the electron was riding is left behind on the surface of the rings. Gradually these atoms accumulate and form the gold-plating of the rings.

Ques.—When it is 75 or 100 degrees below zero is it possible to get colder? If so, how much colder can it get? Or what is the limit?

Ans.—When there is absolutely no warmth whatever, then it ceases to get colder. This point is reached when it is 549 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit). Helium gas will not freeze until it reaches this theoretically low temperature.

Ques.—I want to ask in your good paper if the ouija board is really moved by some supernatural power?

Ans.—No. Most scientists believe that people who use this device and really believe that they receive supernatural messages through it are unconsciously deceived. They move the board themselves, or rather their unconscious minds move it, without the conscious mind of the mover being aware that this is the case.

Ques.—Can you tell me whether or not employees of professional people come under the NRA?

Ans.—Nurses, internists, technicians, and other like professions are not subject to the restrictions of the NRA with reference to the number of hours. They are, however, subject to the minimum wage requirements.

Ques.—I can't understand how there can be such a thing as "minority rule." Can you explain this term?

Ans.—Simple enough. For example, when a new baby arrives in the home, then you will have "minority rule."

Ques.—How far away is the nearest known star?

Ans.—Outside of the solar system the nearest known star is twenty-six trillion miles away from the earth. It requires more than 2,000 years for the light of this star to reach the earth, traveling at the speed of 186,000 miles a second.

Ques.—Does an American-born woman lose her citizenship if she marries an alien?

Ans.—No. An Act of Congress approved Sept. 22, 1922, provides that the citizenship status of a natural born American woman need no longer follow that of her husband. The wording is: "A woman citizen of the United States shall not cease to be a citizen by reason of her marriage unless she makes a formal renunciation of her citizenship before a court."

Ques.—I frequently hear the expression "sink or swim" and would like to know how it originated?

Ans.—This phrase often heard in modern speech, literally means that someone is on his own resources and can depend on no one else for aid. It is supposed to have originated in the days when witches were bound and thrown into the water. If they sank they were guilty, and if they floated they were declared innocent.

Alice Lora Brown was born in Bushville, New York, May 7, 1860. When sixteen years of age she came with her parents and an older sister to Michigan and for a few years lived on a farm near Ypsilanti. They moved to that city where she graduated from high school and entered the Normal College from which she also graduated in 1889 and 1901.

From an early beginning her religion was the sweetest and most abiding part of her life. For three years she followed her chosen work as teacher of sciences and mathematics in public schools of Cassopolis. When her physical frailties necessitated her giving up the work which was a cause of lasting regret. Miss Brown came to the M. E. Home at Chelsea in December, 1925 and was one of its most loyal and thankful members for nearly seven years. She found here a good library, but without system, had been accumulated, which she catalogued in a permanent system and served as director until the last week of her life, thereby with her frail hands, built her own monument which will abide. After coming to the Home, her church membership was transferred to the Chelsea church. Funeral services were held in the assembly room of the Home, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Matthews. Hymns, selected by Miss Brown, were: "Going Home," a duet by Mrs. Balmer and Mrs. Matthews, and "Abide With Me," a solo by Mrs. A. Fraser of Ypsilanti, unaccompanied. Friends from Ypsilanti were her sister, Mrs. Carrie BeGole, a nephew, Lee BeGole, and nieces, Miss Allie and Mrs. Harry BeGole and a close friend, Miss Jessie Phelps. The burial was beside her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Hyram Brown in Ypsilanti. As a companion Miss Brown had proved an ideal personage.

FORLORN ISLAND

Nothing but a sudden gale could stop them now—and no cloud was in sight. They ate their dried meat, passing it from hand to hand, drank from the water casks, and paddled wearily on. The bluffs of Ignak Island began to take form.

And now Eric divined that the great adventure of his life would soon pass. Fate is a master playwright and she would provide a quick curtain for this drama of the North. As Ignak harbor opened before him, he saw what looked like three little black sticks standing in the blue.

The trading ship was in.

CHAPTER XIV

The skipper of the Chelsea, little auxiliary schooner out from Seattle to trade with the Aleutian and Kuril Islands, gave no greeting as the two kayaks paddled alongside, but his eyes opened. Like most sailors, his extra senses were keenly developed, and even now he knew that here was a tale to tell on lonely decks for the remainder of his life. White faces were not common in these waters. The kayakers were of a primitive type he had never seen before—and they came from the direction of Davy Jones' shoal.

When the boats were fast, Eric came up the ladder to the deck. "I'm Ericson, first officer of the Intrepid."

"What's your name?" Captain Nelson demanded.

"The Intrepid," Eric repeated patiently. "She was lost early in the summer."

Nelson stared hard. This was bigger news than he had imagined. "I hear about her. She was supposed to go down with all hands. Do papers been full of her?"

"Captain Waymire and nearly half the crew went down. The survivors are marooned on an island in Davy Jones' shoal." Eric drew a deep breath. "I want to arrange for you to go in and get them."

"But—but—" the old Dane stammered and stuttered—"dare's no way to get into Davy Jones' shoal!"

"We've been there—with the Intrepid. She draws more water than you. The pass from the north is safe unless you hit a gale. Of course if you don't want to try it I'll wireless for a coast guard cutter, but the passengers are in a hurry, and you can name your own figure."

Nelson came of a thrifty race. Moreover, it was his life to poke the Chelsea's nose into uncharted waters and unknown harbors, where the big tramps dared not venture. He suggested that Eric come to his cabin. There, over two glasses, they talked tersely and to the point.

They were under way in three hours. Of Eric's five mates, all but two had deserted, but it was a good riddance. Big Smith returned to join his brother. Guiltless of any crime of blood, Petroff bargained with Nelson for passage to the Kuril Islands. The Chelsea cruised round the shoal, and at noon of the next day, Eric was on her bridge, spying for the pass.

The search was long and nerve-racking, but he remembered the approximate latitude of the mile-wide gap in the reefs, and another twenty-four hours found the trader safely through into deep water, heading for Forlorn Island.

Nan looked often to the deep in the three days of Eric's absence, and was first to see the Chelsea's masts prick the sky line. The sight seemed to break the last thread of her self-control. Sobbing, she ran to Horton's cabin, but she could not speak, and could only beckon her friends to the beach.

It was true. The ship was coming in. Deliverance, fulfillment, home.

While the Aleuts gazed darkly, the catways leaped into the nearest boats and sped to meet the ship. Cheers, laughing with streaming eyes, waving with smiling lips, they paddled alongside until the anchor dropped, then hoarded and held revelry on the deck. Even Petroff and Big Smith shared in the reunion. It was a sight new to Captain Nelson's eyes: a millionaire and his family out of their minds with rapture, embracing him and his grinning sailors, and dancing hand in hand with cut-throats. It was a complete breakdown of civilized reserve. Even Roy caught the general contagion and danced a wild hornpipe on the deck.

Horton wanted to leave at once, but Nan remembered her humble friends forsaken on the bleak shore. "Of course we must tell them good-bye," Horton said contentedly. "Oh, if we only had some presents to give them."

"The hold of this ship is clean full of presents," Nelson told him. "Would—would you let us have some of 'em?" Horton spoke in faltering tones.

"Sure. All you want."

"The flush of excitement on Horton's

face swiftly died away; he seemed to remember something. His trembling hand dove into his pocket, felt his talisman, and came out steady and strong.

"Of course. This is a trading ship. There was a clang in his voice that silenced Nan, and made Eric whirl. "Captain Nelson, I want to buy a thousand dollars' worth of your goods to give the natives. Eric, here, will know what they want worst; he's been looking after them—steel knives, axes, rifles, sweets and the like, everything that will make them happy."

The boats were loaded to the gunwales, such a treasure as the tribe had never dreamed, and the gifts taken to the beach and distributed amid an awed silence. From now on, life would not be so hard behind the shoals. Every squaw would wear a steel-pointed spear and firearms. Now that the pass was known, perhaps a little schooner would steal in once a year, to trade the white man's luxuries for pelts, elderdown, and fossil ivory. Yet by the same tokens, the doom of the lost people was sealed. In the end they must either migrate to the larger Aleutian Islands, surrender their tribal identity and become cannery workers under the white man's law, or perish victims of his civilization. The latter was more likely. It would be hard for them to leave the crags and windy beaches of Forlorn Island.

They only grunted when the pale faces bade them goodbye, eyes unlit and brown faces impassive as their own. "Good-bye," but when in a dreary silence the ship's boats glided away into the harbor, their strange lonely souls gave voice. On the beach an old crone struck up a wailing chant. All her people joined in a wailing song of farewell to the ship that might have been brought from the lost Asiatic birthplace beyond the setting sun, possibly a dirge springing extempore from their savage hearts. Their arms, waving in rhythm, finally they dropped on their knees, and with imploring hands lifted to the skies, called on their tribal gods to give safe passage to their departing friends.

"Kou-yudun Agougou! Achidan Agougou!" This was repeated again and again. "Sikoug-kouyoudah, kouyoudah."

The song died away. Awe-struck, the sailors rested on their oars. Eric looked into Nan's eyes to find them brimming with tears.

"Why must we leave them here?" she whispered.

"Where could we take them, that they'd be better off? This is their home."

"But it's so lonely, so dreary. I can't bear to think of it. Let's go quickly."

But now Mother Horton had struck up the heart song of the pale faces, and even the Chelsea sailors joined in. Across the water the old strains swelled:

Should auld acquaintance be forgot, and never brought to mind? We'll hae a cup o' kindness yet, for days o' auld lang syne.

The oars flashed. The crowd on the beach dwindled to black dots in the shadow of the crags.

It was still rough fare for the castaways. The three women would occupy the captain's cabin; the others were given bunks below decks. But great changes impended: Eric gazed southward with troubled eyes. Only two hundred miles through the Aleutian chain lay the well-charted seas of the north Pacific, and beyond the port lights were shining.

The dream was passing, just as Nan had foretold. Horton was among the first to waken, with nervous, fumbling hands he removed his parka and donned the clothes of civilization saved from the wreck, a rumpled blue suit and a yachtman's cap still trim and smart. But presently his leaping heart beat steady and cool. After a reassuring touch of the little leather book in his pocket, he made for the pilot-house. Eric and Nelson were looking at charts, but he pushed boldly between them.

Eric glanced up with narrowed eyes. Not only Horton's clothes but his face was changed. His angling jaw was set, his expression confident and resolute.

"Nelson, we're not very far north from the Great Circle route to the Orient, are we?" he began.

Nelson came to attention. "Just about a day's run, if we hit straight through the Aleut chain."

"I want you to intercept one of the big liners, and put us aboard. How soon do you think you could do it?"

"The Empress of Castle is east-bound right now—only about eight hundred miles away. We heard her talking just last night."

"Do you think you could catch her?"

"Sure. All you want."

"The flush of excitement on Horton's

face swiftly died away; he seemed to remember something. His trembling hand dove into his pocket, felt his talisman, and came out steady and strong.

"Of course. This is a trading ship. There was a clang in his voice that silenced Nan, and made Eric whirl. "Captain Nelson, I want to buy a thousand dollars' worth of your goods to give the natives. Library News

Since the Chelsea Public Library was opened we have lent over 17,000 books to the people of Chelsea. Have you used the library? If not, come and look over our growing selection of books.

The little boys and girls will be glad to know that many of their old friends—books they loved, have been on a long journey and are now back on the shelves in beautiful new bindings—"Dicky Bird", "Old Mother Goose", "Twelve Dancing Princesses", "Raggedy Andy" and many more are ready for you again.

We have a beautiful new story of Normandy—"The Little Duke"; also a new copy of that superb dog story "Call of the Wilds". Do you know Buck, the wonderful dog-hero of the book?

For the older boys and girls who wish credit at school for reading, we have Paul de Kruif's "The Microbe Hunters" for science credit, "Andreas Story"—How the Arctic after 88 years yields its secret of a most heroic expedition is history of a thrilling kind.

Our two new books by Stewart Edward White, "The Long Ride" and "Ranchero" would make excellent book reports. These two are the story of Andy Burnett—the first vivid tale of the American trapper—the Kentucky rifle or "Boone Gun", Andy Burnett using the very gun an old gunsmith made for the young adventurer, Daniel Boone to take over the mountains to Kentucky. In "Ranchero" Andy, the mountain boy, blazes his way across the Divide into the Golden Spanish California of the 1840's. His adventures and his wooing of Senorita Camela in this gaily colored province of Old Mexico make one of the richest of Mr. White's chronicles of early American life.

Young Folks

Kindergarten
 The pupils in the kindergarten are still making good use of their so-called "Grocery Store." They are now busy making and marking toy money to use. Thru this dramatic play they have learned to recognize numerals from one to five.

First Grade
 The first graders certainly must be popular by the looks of the visitors list this week. Mrs. Dietle, Mrs. Gatty, Mrs. Richards, and Mrs. Gaunt were the visitors. The first graders expressed their appreciation by saying they were always glad to have mothers visit them.

There were six first grade pupils absent from school with colds, due to the fact that the first snow was too much for them.

Thanksgiving almost here? Yes, and the first graders are fully aware of the fact and are preparing pictures of fruit and flowers.

Fourth Grade
 The fourth graders were entertained by the fifth graders at a "Radio Program."

The boys and girls who have had a perfect score in "New Word Study" are as follows:

Pearl Alexander, Marian Eisele, Jeanne Meservy, Richard Schmidt, Edwin Gaunt, Charles Lane, William Sheehan, Bessie Shinnaberry, Richard Dibble.

Fifth Grade
 Are you listening??
 Station CLGP (Chelsea School Grade Five) broadcast a program in commemoration of Armistice Day.

The proceedings of the program are as follows:

Announcer—Betty Fletcher.
 The program was opened by the sextet chorus singing "My Flag and the Airplane." Members of the sextet were Ethel Hulse, Dorothy Osterie, Helen Kieth, Margaret Harper, Kenneth Johns and Betty Platt.

Helen Miller then gave a short review of the World War.

General Pershing (the part was taken by Ralph Dingler) gave an address and "The Gun That Bombed Paris" was given by Lois Palmer.

Poems were read by Barbara Carpenter, George Knickerbocker, Bernath McBride, Vernel Scripper, Ruth Yettah.

The sextet closed the program with two songs: "The Soldiers' Return" and "The Band."

Sixth Grade
 The week of November the 6th was "American Book Week" for the sixth graders. They made and bound books, using a real book binding stitch for sewing the leaves together. They made the end papers by crumpling the paper on which they had splashed a variety of water colors. These books can be used for many things.

They also took some tests to find out how many characters they could assign to books. For example:

The White Rabbit—Alice in Wonderland.
 Jo and Amy—Little Women.
 Friday—Robinson Crusoe.

Another test was of this type: Who traveled on a Magic Clock?
 Who rode to the ball in a pumpkin coach?

They read together "The Story of Books," which is an account of the evolution of written records from primitive markings scratched on the walls of caves to our present book forms. In their study of Egypt they intend to make a more detailed study of these records.

Seventh Grade
 The students of the seventh grade literature class have written a short play based on King Arthur stories. The dialogue and action has been arranged entirely by the seventh grade pupils themselves. In fact entire charge of "producing" the play has been given to certain groups. The seventh graders have shown a great interest in this dramatization and will soon be working on a Thanksgiving project.

Grade Operetta
 Yes, it's so. There's going to be another Grade Operetta this year. The date is December 8th, so remember everyone has a date for December 8th with the Grades. We want you there.

All children from the first thru the sixth grade will be in it, and now the surprise! The Kindergarten Band will play several selections.

There will be three acts to the play, which will all take place in the Toy-maker's Workshop.

There are to be several dances by the little folks. We think they are going to be snappy ones too.

The name of the Operetta is "The Toy-maker," by Trehaner. It will be directed by Miss Dorothy Wilson, who will be assisted by the elementary teachers.

And now we hope you will come.

Thanksgiving

The earliest harvest Thanksgiving in America was kept by the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth in 1621. Since 1817 the festival has been observed annually in New York, and since 1863 the Presidents have always issued proclamations appointing the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day.

What were they thankful for? Let me give a few of the many things. They had freedom of worship; God had guided them across the uncharted waters of the great Atlantic for the abundance of the crops, for homes and land, after the terrible privation, pestilence, starvation, and plague of the preceding winter.

What we should be thankful for, during this crisis: That we live in the United States, instead of Soviet Russia, where religion is being stamped into the ground; that we have the best institutions for education; that we are able to enjoy the great inventions of our most famous men, such as automobiles, electricity, airplanes, steamships, farm implements, good roads, telephones and telegraphs, rural-free delivery, public libraries, and innumerable others; that we have ways and means of providing for those who are in great need; and that in 1933 as well as 1621 we are under the protection of God, and have many more things for which to be thankful, to continue the observation of "Thanksgiving Day."

An Interview With Old Man Winter

We are all quite aware of the fact that Old Man Winter has decided to pay us an extended visit. He has come with all his belongings; namely, lots of snow, a little ice, and cold weather. To most of us he is well come, but to some he is not. But his power is much stronger than ours, so let's make room for him in our community (for he likes lots of room), and tell him to take off his hat and make himself at home.

Through an interesting interview with our annual visitor a few days ago, I learned one thing that I think should be passed on to you.

Old Man Winter told me he always enjoyed his annual visits here, but there was one flaw in them. He is dissatisfied with the use frequently made of his choicest possession, snow. He feels hurt every time one of us uses his snow (in the form of a snowball) to throw at some innocent person. It is all right with him if a group of children have a snowball tournament among themselves but he hates terribly to have any of us throw snowballs at just anyone we see.

It being his snow and not ours, I feel that it would be easy to refrain from throwing snowballs this year, don't you?

Let's try it anyway.

Winter's Pal.

ODDS AND ENDS

Mildred Beeman's pastime is spent in selling tickets for the minstrel show.

Junior Nicholas has it bad. He fell up the steps when entering the shop building.

Donald Osterie has the pet expression of saying "May I borrow your pen?"

Junior Blecker is starting a new sport—"Sliding down cherry trees."

Harold West became so bored in Business Law class that he fell off his chair.

Ruth Faust was in such a hurry to come to school that she fell on the sidewalk.

Paul Nicolai is the schoolboy without a name.

The Business Law class remained after school because of their good behavior.

Miss Hazard gives her History Tests after school.

Gladys Abdon stays after school for Miss Barrus in a big way.

Harley Prudden wants to do something desperate.

Notice! Thursday, November 16, Chelsea Public High had a perfect attendance.

Arlene Satterthwaite has so much money (ticket money) she has to count and recount it.

Milo Taber spends his English class entertaining the girls.

Paul Rogers is keeping his eye on Jean Blecker.

Jim Panaritis may be found by just calling "Yoo-Hoo!"

Are You Guilty Too?

Many of us are guilty of things we are not aware of, namely: speaking correctly, etiquette at public places, manners, and many other similar things. Let us try to help you and many others, force these, by going to the "theater" first. Other articles will follow in like manner, in the "Hi-Light." Just watch for them!

"Let's go to the theater."

This is a sentence commonly used among the younger people of this town.

And what happens after we get there? First, we will watch a young boy and girl who have just entered the theater and seem to know what is right.

The young boy hands the usher the tickets and then permits the girl to go first behind the usher, he following and taking his seat after she has taken hers.

I'll bet that the boy knew that if there were no usher at hand and if it were necessary to force a way thru a crowd he should go first, and the row in which the two are to sit, then step aside and let the girl go in first.

Now, let us look around the theater. We see that the boys and girls are sitting alternately or the girls are sitting together with a boy at each end.

We all are familiar with the boy who goes to our theaters and insists upon reading the captions aloud, and announcing in a loud voice that which has just happened and what is going to happen. It does disturb your enjoyment of the picture, doesn't it?

We now notice another boy and girl. The girl seems to find it a little difficult to read the program. The boy should now read the caption as quietly to her as he can.

We notice many people now who are coming in late, and some who are leaving early. Don't they cut off your view for awhile? And with the noise of their coming and going shut off some important fragment of the drama? How do you feel when people do this in front of you? Don't you feel sort of disgusted and wish you hadn't come?

But no matter how you feel you must make their movements easier by giving them enough room.

Boys and girls who leave the room between the acts should at least, in consideration of others, return before the curtain rises.

We notice between the acts that girls all over the house get out their vanities and carefully go over the process of revising their make-up, as unconcerned as though they were at home in their own bedroom, which is where they should be for such personal pursuits. Sometimes they even comb their hair. Modesty in girls is still a virtue and the make-up should be put on at home—not in public places.

A great deal of "booing" is going on in the theater and we also notice that in this town this feeling is very apparent. This continual "booing" shows rudeness and unsportsmanlike feeling. It should not be practiced. Above all—sportsmanship is greatly admired and a place or town without it is put down in the annals as a poor loser and a difficult town in which to get along.

Can't you try to help by doing your share to obliterate "booing"?

In this little town theater of ours we show very little consideration of others. There is a great deal of protracted conversation carried on; the crunching of peanuts and candy and the snapping of gum spoils the theatrical atmosphere; and the rustling of programs or candy wrappers adds to the general distractions which fray the nerves of the average theater goer.

Let me leave you with this thought: "Our etiquette shows us as we really are. Be careful!"

WHAT AN INVENTION!

Principal—"Willie, you've been a naughty boy. Go to the vibrator and give yourself a good shaking."

DID YOU SEE IT?

Last Thursday and Friday nights, the people of our town, as well as the students, saw another of those very successful minstrel shows which the Kiwanis club of our town put on. It went off very well, and the men furnishing all the wise-cracks, and two or three of the men in the chorus helping on solos. Everybody was very much delighted with the dancing furnished during the show, and in between acts, also. Perhaps our town is developing talent along that line.

You probably know our seniors feel pretty good about it all, since they got half of all the profit.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS!

WHAT IS THAT IN THINE HAND?

(Exodus 4:2)
 A man who thought his talent small.
 For he was slow of speech,
 An humble man who watched the flock,
 The flock of Jethro's sheep.
 Was called of God for duty, which
 No other one could do;
 Though insufficient of himself,
 Was anxious to be true.

Like many another who is called,
 He begged to be excused;
 But God who knoweth hearts of men,
 Knew best whom He could use.

He yielded, and his weapon was
 A shepherd's crook or rod;
 But in his hand and thru his will
 Was made the Power of God.

Obedience to God comes first.
 Results come as He wills;
 The cruse of oil, the widow's meal,
 We have on record still.
 (1st Kings 17:10-14)

God often uses foolish things.
 As men count things of sense;
 To bring to pass His sovereign will,
 And yield a recompense.

—Arthur Carlton, M. E. Home.

WAYNE—An additional 200 enumerators were put to work Monday on the head tax registration and 200 more Tuesday by Elmer P. O'Hara, county clerk, bringing the number up to 500, the full staff for Wayne county. The work is progressing rapidly, O'Hara said, but it is too early to estimate how much time will be required for the work in each district.—County Review.

NORTHVILLE—Arvid V. Jacobson, former Northville high school mathematics teacher, arrested Nov. 1 at Helsingfors, Finland, for espionage activities, made a full confession, according to an Associated Press dispatch, dated Friday, Nov. 10. The wire states that Chief of Secret Service Riekl said that his case was complete and that Mrs. Jacobson had undertaken an important part in the alleged espionage.—Record.
