E. E. Brown Gives Campsite To Scouts

Through the generosity of E. E. Brown of Ann Arbor, former publisher of The Chelsea Standard, a tract of more than one acre of land situated on the west shore of Crooked Lake owned by Mr. Brown has been deeded to the Boy Scouts of Chelsea and this community.

The Chelsea Kiwanis club is named in the deed as trustee for the property which is to be utilized for Scout activities. In event the Kiwanis club ceases to exist at any time the Board of Education of School District No. 3 will become trustee for the property.

If for any reason there would be no Scout organization in Chelsea the land would be dedicated to the use of the youth of the community to be used as the trustee would see fit.

The property lies just 185 feet from the lake shore but there is a right-of-way 100 feet in width from the tract to the lake front. The land lies on a hill and is well timbered, which makes it an ideal spot for Scout activities.

This gift of Mr. Brown to the Chelsea Scouts is a very generous one and people of the community who are interested in the youth movement of Scouting will feel grateful to the donor of the property.

The Kiwanis club with in the near future, sponsor a movement to raise funds to start a building program for the Scouts so they will have adequate facilities for their activities.

The address of the evening was given by Dr. Peter F. Stair, assistant pastor of First Methodist church, Ann Arbor, after which a solo was rendered by George Atkinson, Xylophone and vocal solo. Katharine Fletcher. The program concluded with two selections, "Caroline Moon" and "Dinah" by the quartet. Mrs. Lawrence Wacker was the accompanist.

Dancing and cards furnished diversion for the balance of the evening. The following were chairman of the committees in charge of the banquet: Program—Walter Harper. Menu—Peter Kinney. Decoration—Geo. Atkinson.

Fenn's Drug Store Burglarized Friday

The drug store of H. H. Fenn, on South Main St., was burglarized Friday night, the loss consisting of about $12 to $15 in change taken from the cash register, a wrist watch, a fountain pen and a jack-knife. Entrance to the store was gained through a rear window, by cutting a hole in the upper sash and reaching through to remove the bolt. The theft was discovered by Mr. Fenn when he opened the store Saturday morning.

Four Hundred At District Legion Meeting Sunday

Sunday proved to be a big day for the local Legion Post, when they were hosts to the Second Congressional District meeting.

The biggest little village in the United States did itself proud, and undoubtedly convinced the many visiting Legionnaires and Auxiliary members that they have the spirit to still "carry on."

Business sessions of both the Legion and the Auxiliary were held in the St. Mary's Memorial hall during the afternoon. Both sessions were well attended, there being approximately 125 Legionnaires and one hundred members of the Auxiliary present. Reports of the Post Commanders throughout the district contained the number of members and their activities, indicating continued growth. Chelsea Post had the satisfaction of reporting an increase in membership of over 40 per cent.

Comrade Belkyer, a representative of the CWA in Michigan, gave an interesting explanation relative to the CWA and the Legion. Many questions which were put to the Comrade, were satisfactorily answered. Comrade Fred Lyons of Detroit, Chairman of Child Welfare Committee in the State, outlined the work being done at the American Legion Hotel at Otter Lake. Explanation was made as to how the finances of the Hotel were being expended. He made it quite clear too, that the Legionnaires have assumed a great responsibility in the care of these children. No invitation having been extended, the time and place of the April convention has not been determined.

The banquet which was held in the public school auditorium following the business sessions of both organizations, was exceptionally well attended by Legionnaires, Auxiliary and local guests. The hall was appropriately decorated with American flags in keeping with the spirit of the American Legion. Over four hundred were served. The dinner was under the sole supervision of the Legion members of the local post.

Musical numbers during the dinner were furnished by Hansen's orchestra of Jackson. Introductory speaker of the evening was Adjutant Floyd D. Rowe of Herbert J. McKune Post No. 41 of Chelsea, who very capably introduced H. L. Hisecker, superintendent of the Chelsea public schools, as toastmaster. Several selections were rendered by the "Harmony Four," composed of Paul F. Niehaus, Austin Faust, Paul Harbour, and J. Fred Barba—local boys that know their stuff. The Legionnaires and the Auxiliary were welcomed to the village by its President, J. Edward McKune. Commander Kolb of the Chelsea Post, expressed his appreciation for the continued cooperation of the various committees responsible for the success of the entire program. A very pleasing Minuet by six children of the lower grades of the public school, under the capable direction of Florence Yager, was part of the program.

Ford's Dixie Night, through the courtesy of Palmer Motor Sales and the Ford Motor Company, entertained so well that it seemed they might have to spend the whole evening in Chelsea. They are real entertainers. The Harbour String Trio also proved that they don't have to take a back seat. An interesting talk was given on National Defense by Lawrence C. Leever of Ann Arbor. Mr. Leever is District Chairman of National Defense as well as County Chairman of the Legion. Comrade Leever expressed his regret later that at a late hour he was informed former Governor Brucker would be unable to attend the event, due to illness.

Farewell Reception Given For Pastor

Last week a cabinet session, consisting of the Bishop and District Superintendents of the Detroit Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was held in Detroit. At this meeting changes were made in the pastorate of seven churches within the bounds of the conference.

Among these was a change in the pastorate of the Chelsea Methodist church. Those changes were made after due counsel with the several pastors and churches concerned.

Rev. Paul Matthews and family go to the Pleasant Ave. Methodist church, Hay City, and Rev. P. D. Munby comes from the Marine City church to Chelsea.

Monday evening a farewell reception was held and a supper was served in the local church which was largely attended by the members of the church and friends of the family. A beautiful spirit of friendship and good will pervaded the assembly.

Philip Hoesemle was master of ceremonies and called upon Rev. W. J. Balmer for remarks. Before speaking all joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds Our Hearts in Christian Love." The speaker assured the pastor and his family that this hymn expressed fully the thought and feeling of all present. He congratulated them on going to a well established church in a larger city, with an adequate support guaranteed, and contrasted this with some less favorable experiences in his own ministerial life. Mr. Balmer's remarks were followed by a presentation to Mrs. Matthews from her Sunday school class in appreciation of their willing good will.

At this juncture, Mr. Hoesemle, as treasurer of the church, handed Mr. Matthews a check in full for his services to date. This handsome amount, the treasurer said, came so easily and willingly that he was never so greatly pleased and surprised. He thought the hard times was passing on all so much that ready cash would be difficult to secure. He further stated that more members had been regularly using the church envelopes, making their payments weekly, than in any years during his position as treasurer of the church.

Mrs. Matthews made a tender response to the gift from her class and Mr. Matthews paid tribute to the good will and kindly cooperation of the church and congregation, and gave some glowing reminiscences of his earlier ministry.

"God Be With You Till We Meet Again" was sung and the gathering broke up with hearty handshakes and kindly expressions of good wishes for the future, as they leave for their new field of labor.

Scouts Will Observe Anniversary Week

Scout Anniversary Week, celebrating the 24th birthday of the Boy Scout movement in the United States, will be observed from Thursday, February 8 to Wednesday, February 14, inclusive. Present plans point to the most extensive celebration ever held in the history of the movement.

Several special features will mark this year's observance. Perhaps the highest point of interest is attached to the mystery connected with the National Good Turn which will be requested of all Scouts and Scouters by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his broadcast at 12 o'clock Saturday noon, February 10. No advance information as to the nature of the "Good Turn" will be available until the moment the President makes the announcement. Boy Scouts in every corner of the country are already holding practice mobilizations in order to be prepared to carry out the President's wishes with utmost efficiency.

Another feature of interest will be the formation of the "Old Scout Association," which is intended to give former Scouts and leaders to the number of over 8,000,000 an opportunity to associate themselves more definitely with the Scout program of citizenship. Many troops will hold reunions during the week, with pot luck suppers and banquets to welcome back the "old timers" into the fellowship of the greater Scout program.

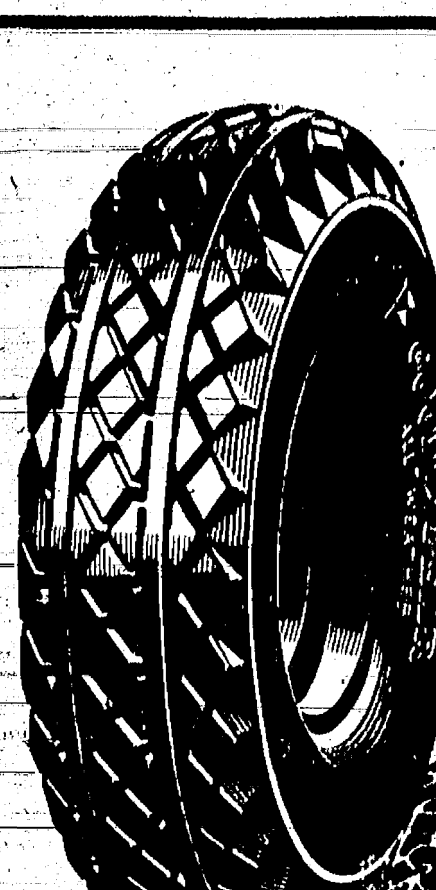

Each of the three districts of the Washtenaw-Livingston Boy Scout council will have an anniversary week committee which will prepare detailed plans for the troops within the particular area. Clubs, schools and churches will hold Boy Scout programs during the week.

Lansing, Mich.—Michigan motorists who are unable to purchase 1934 license plates, may drive to New York or Chicago as well as travel through adjoining states with 1933 plates without fear of embarrassment.

After it was announced that 1933 plates would be legal in Michigan until March 1st, 21 states and two Canadian provinces notified the department officially that they would honor 1933 Michigan plates until that date. They are Alabama, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. The Provinces of Ontario and Saskatchewan also agreed to reciprocity.

From informal reports reaching the department, many other states are allowing 1933 Michigan plates to be used as long as they are legal here. Several motorists have driven to California without being halted and in cases where local officers have questioned the motorist, the state motor vehicle administrators have declared the Michigan driver could proceed on his journey.

Neither the Department of State nor any employee of the department is connected with the Michigan Automobile Tax Reduction League, which is soliciting signatures on petitions seeking a reduction in license plate costs. In many cities and villages, solicitors are endeavoring to secure signatures and small fees, according to reports to the department, by linking the league with Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald.

"I have advocated license plate fees of $8, $6 and $9 but I hope no one will get the impression I have any connection with the circulation of these petitions," he said.

A total of 93,697 new automobiles were purchased by Michigan residents during 1933, according to Department of State records. There were 277,420 used cars sold in the state during the year, the records show.

News Review of Current
Events the World OverPresident Asks Senate to Ratify St. Lawrence Waterway
Treaty, and Battle Begins—Russian Ambassador
Trojanovsky Presents His Credentials.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PUTTING to the test his influence over the senate, President Roosevelt in a special message to that body asked speedy consideration and ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada. The opponents of the pact had been waiting for the chance to start the battle, and they were so numerous and so determined that no one would predict the outcome. Ratification requires a two-thirds vote, or 64 of the 96 senators.

Coincidental with the reception of the President's message was the submission of a minority report by Senator Wagner of New York as a member of the foreign relations committee. In which Mr. Wagner argued vigorously against ratification of the treaty. He declared the cost of the waterway to the United States would be $473,186,000 instead of the $272,463,000 estimated by the proponents of the pact, and he asserted the United States would spend three times as much as Canada, though the Dominion would receive a "vast preponderance" of the benefits. The senator added:

"Most important of all, I am not in favor of a public works project designed to employ Canadian workmen with United States money. The treaty provides that, although the United States is to supply the funds for most of the work in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence river, the portion of this work on the Canadian side of the section is to be performed with Canadian workmen using Canadian materials."

The President's message to the senate gave his opinion that the treaty was fair, that the waterway project was economically sound. He declared that "local fears of economic harm to special localities or to special interests are grossly exaggerated." He attempted to dispose of opposition from Illinois and Mississippi valley senators by declaring that the treaty provision on the diversion at Chicago was adequate to guarantee a sufficient volume of water.

The opposition of Chicago and the Mississippi valley to the treaty was voiced especially by Senators James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois and Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri. Both these gentlemen declared entirely unacceptable a suggested compromise for attaching a reservation to the treaty holding that if the United States Supreme court at any future time altered its present order that the Chicago diversion should be limited to 1,500 cubic feet per second after 1938, the alleged judgment of the court should automatically be enforceable under the treaty.

The Mississippi valley people are especially opposed to the surrender of the domestic sovereignty of the United States over Lake Michigan; and all the members of the army board of engineers except the chief engineer held that the treaty provisions for diversion at Chicago were inadequate.

RECOGNITION of Russia was formally completed when Alexander A. Trojanovsky, the Soviet ambassador, arrived in Washington and presented his credentials to President Roosevelt at the White House.

Ambassador Trojanovsky

He brought with him several members of the embassy staff and as soon as the diplomatic procedure had been completed he eagerly got down to work on the matters of trade relations, credits and other questions with the officials of the State department.

Mr. Trojanovsky was recommended on his journey from Europe by William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to Moscow. At the Washington station he was welcomed by Jefferson Patterson and Robert E. Kelley of the State department, and by Toshihiko Taketomi, the Japanese charge d'affaires, a personal friend during the years when Trojanovsky was ambassador to Tokyo.

In a brief interview granted to the press Mr. Trojanovsky said he was not planning to negotiate a nonaggression treaty with the United States similar to those the Soviet Union has with various European countries. He thinks this unnecessary because of the good relations established by the exchange of letters between President Roosevelt and President Kalinin.

JAMES L. DONNELLY, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, voices an opinion that is held by many who have hesitated to express it publicly. He asserts that the objectives of the President's recovery program are in danger of being defeated by the activities of leaders of organized labor.

"An examination of the record of organized labor since the adoption of the recovery program," he says, "indicates that its contribution has been definitely negative; that the policy of organized labor has reflected the selfish ambitions of its leaders rather than the welfare of the American workman."

He asserted that a recent survey made by his association and other industrial organizations in all parts of the country indicate that since the NRA was enacted approximately 1,200 strikes involving about 800,000 workers have occurred. These workers lost approximately 10,000,000 working days and wages amounting to more than $35,000,000, he said.

The American Federation of Labor, for its part, thinks the business prospects for 1934 are bright though overshadowed by the danger of inflation by fiat money. The organization estimates 6,400,000 persons have been put to work largely as a result of government measures, but adds that in November 10,702,000 workers remained unemployed and that civil works administration funds, giving temporary work to 4,000,000 persons, will be exhausted by February 15.

EARLE BAILEY, who has been acting as fiscal assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, has resigned, and it is no secret that his retirement was the price paid for the unopposed confirmation of the appointment of Mr. Morgenthau by the senate. Certain members of the upper house, notably Senator Coughlin, let the secretary know that they did not approve of the retention of Earle Bailey. Bailey and Morgenthau had consented to help him temporarily and intended to quit soon. So the fiscal assistant wrote a nice letter saying that he would have to get back to New York to resume his work with the Seligman firm of investment bankers.

It was Bailey's connection with the banking house that aroused the opposition to him. Senator Coughlin had said openly that it was scandalous that there should be chosen for a high treasury post a partner of the Seligman firm, whose flotation of loans to South American countries, now in default, was alive before a senate investigating committee. One revelation was that the firm paid a "commission" of $450,000 to Juan Leguia, son of the president of Peru, in connection with negotiation of a loan to that country.

CHICAGO'S milk supply was practically cut off by a strike of dairy farmers of that region who demand a higher price for their product. The controversy was complicated by the evident desire of the larger milk distributing companies of the city to drive out of business the smaller concerns that depend on "cash and carry" trade, and by the determination of the organized milk drivers not to accept reductions in pay. The farmers, thoroughly organized and ably directed, and the temporary idle drivers committed luncheonable acts of violence and vandalism, almost with impunity. Milk trucks were burned or dumped in the street with their contents, and in at least one instance a train was stopped and robbed of a consignment of condensed milk.

When the strike had lasted five days and the farm administration and Secretary Wallace had shown no disposition or ability to end it, Mayor Kelly arranged a truce and arbitration agreement and the shipping of milk to Chicago was resumed.

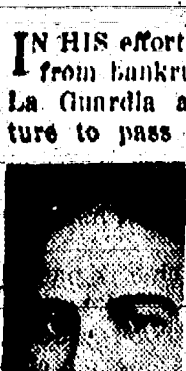

SPEAKER BAILEY, after a conference at the White House, announced that President Roosevelt was making no out of town engagements for the period during which congress would be in session but would remain at his desk until adjournment. He added that the President hopes this will be early in the spring, as he believes the legislative program will be disposed of speedily.

PLANS for the issue of $2,000,000,000 of farm bonds for the purpose of refinancing the national farm mortgage burden were got under way at the instance of the President, who sent to congress a special message on the subject. The bonds were authorized last year with a guarantee only of the interest, but Mr. Roosevelt asked that both interest and principal be guaranteed in order that the bonds might be made readily acceptable to investors. The administration's bill also would increase to $800,000,000 the $200,000,000 emergency funds established last spring for mortgage loans to farmers who cannot refinance their debts through the land banks.

SIX navy seaplanes carrying 30 men made a nonstop flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, 2,300 miles, in 24 hours and 45 minutes. It was the longest, nonstop flight over water ever made and Lieut. Comm. Kneller McGinnis and his men were entitled to the high praise they received from high officials of the navy.

BY A 5 to 4 vote the United States Supreme court sustained the constitutionality of the Minnesota emergency mortgage moratorium law which provides that, during the emergency declared to exist, courts might stop in to halt or delay real estate mortgage sales and extend periods of redemption. This was held to foreshadow the probable stand of the court when other New Deal measures come up before it.

In another opinion the Supreme court held that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Miss Ada Burroughs, his secretary, must stand trial for conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act during the campaign of 1928.

Mayor La Guardia

IN HIS efforts to save New York city from bankruptcy Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia asked the state legislature to pass a bill that would give him full control of the city's finances. But he ran into a snag at once, for Governor Lehman in a stinging letter told the mayor he would never approve such a measure which, he declared, would establish a fiscal and political dictatorship that he considered entirely unnecessary and essentially un-American.

"No man in this country has ever asked for or received the dictatorial powers which would be yours through the enactment of this bill," the governor wrote.

Mayor La Guardia, who always has been a fighter, came back with a letter that bristled with references to the evils of the situation confronting the city, the hopelessness of trying to get assistance from the board of aldermen or putting piecemeal legislation through at Albany and accusations of political maneuvering by the governor. Later the governor and the mayor got together and worked out a compromise to reform the city's financial setup and balance the budget. Under this program the mayor will not be able to set himself up as sole dictator, with power to abolish jobs and consolidate departments, but will have to share these powers with his fellow members of the board of estimate. The mayor has only three of the sixteen votes on the board, but his Republican-Fusion confederates hold an additional ten votes and on the face of things, the mayor will be able to swing his plans into effect.

TO ORGANIZE FOR GREATER BUYING POWER

THROUGH their county corn-hog control associations, American farmers can follow the pathway to increased purchasing power for corn and hogs. Under the corn-hog control plan, they can organize to control production and they will receive the full benefits for their efforts. Although the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is charged by law with the responsibility of directing the corn-hog reduction program, the actual sign-up of contracts and the local administration will be in the hands of the corn-hog control associations which will be organized in major corn-producing counties by contract signers. Each farmer who signs a reduction contract becomes a member of the association and is entitled to a vote in its affairs. The Board of Directors of the County Corn-Hog Control Association will be composed of representatives from the various communities within the county, elected by contracting producers, themselves. In each community a permanent committee of three to five members also will be elected by farmers.

Arrange Meetings For Every Farmer

Special programs for all types of farm business conducted in Michigan probably will be the most valuable feature of Farmers Week at Michigan State College, Jan. 20 to Feb. 2.

The week begins with a day devoted to the dairy industry. Associations representing four of the major dairy breeds will hold their annual meetings during the week and two banquets are scheduled for Monday night. Members of the dairy department at the College will talk at the special meetings all five days and A. J. Glover, Hoard's Dairyman, will speak on Monday.

Farm crops programs start on Tuesday and continue through the rest of the week. The Crop Improvement Association's annual meeting is set for Tuesday afternoon and the crops men have a banquet that night. Several men not connected with the College talk at the crops meetings. Two crops shows are to be held.

Horticultural meetings start Tuesday and continue through the week. All of them are held in the Horticultural building. Landscape meetings are in the same building but a separate program is provided for home beautifiers.

All kinds of activities are provided for livestock men. Meetings, shows, elections of officers for the breed associations, and special programs will crowd the hours from Tuesday through Friday. Most of the events for horsemen occur on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Sols programs are split into two sections, one for upland farmers and one for those specializing in muck soils crops. Muck farmers meet on Wednesday and the two succeeding days, and the upland sols meetings start Tuesday.

Agricultural economics and farm management sections have meetings from Tuesday on through the week. Some of the most important discussions will occur in these meetings. New regulations and plans for agriculture make it imperative for farmers to get the latest information, and this will be given in these sectional programs.

Problems in agricultural engineering will be discussed by members of the College staff, and the College department has several exhibits prepared to show the value of farm tools and equipment. Meetings in this section start Tuesday and are held in the gymnasium annex.

Bookkeepers meet four days starting Tuesday in the Horticultural building. Foresters have a one-day program on Wednesday in the Forestry building. The commercial foresters association meets Friday in the same building.

Social workers and those interested in the human problems of the rural districts should attend the Michigan Country Life Association meetings held on Wednesday in the Engineering building. The Master Farmers Association meets Thursday in the Union Building, and the Master Farm Homemakers Association meets the same day in that building. The State Grange meets Friday and sponsors a Grange singing contest. The Short Course Association meets Tuesday.

Many events interesting to poultrymen start Tuesday and continue through four days. Prominent poultry growers from this State and from other states appear on the sectional programs. A turkey show is one of the features of the week.

BROOKLYN—A daughter was born on Monday, January 8 to Mr. and Mrs. Don Reed of Brooklyn at the Foots hospital in Jackson. There have been many boys in this branch of the Reed family, but no girls for 97 years since the birth of Mrs. Mary Reed Hill, now a resident of Rockwell St., Jackson. The young lady will probably be named "Delano," for an ancestor, Lydia Delano Reed, who was grandmother of President Roosevelt. — Export.

"INASMUCH"

This is not WWJ.
Nor WJLL.
It's just a voice from one who cries
"To you, and you, and me."
You may not have a radio.
Not Victor phonograph.
You may not have a piano.
Inspiring thrill or laugh.
But if you have the helping hand,
The kindly word of cheer,
Or, if you're moved by orphan's cry,
Or, dry the widow's tear.
Or, just a willing "Inasmuch!"
The promise is to you!
The One who gave it has the power,
And He will see you through.

—Arthur Carlton.

Come ye blessed of my Father—for I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me; in prison, and ye came unto me;—and the King shall answer "Inasmuch" as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me.—Jesus, Math. 25: 34, 35, 36, 40.

Rural School Officers Will Meet Saturday

Once each two years a member of the State Department of Public Instruction comes to the county for the purpose of discussing matter pertaining to School Law. This year, Dr. B. B. Elliott, whose official capacity is that of Director of Research, will be the State man present at a meeting of school officers to be held at 9:30 on Saturday, January 20 at the Y. M. C. A. building in Ann Arbor.

As usual, the School Officers' Association of this county will hold its annual meeting on the same date. The regular business meeting will be held at 1:15 p. m. with the president, Aaron Sommer presiding. Following the business meeting, Dr. Elliott will speak on the subject, "The Rural School Situation in Michigan As We See It and the Changes We Hope to Produce." It is the desire of the association to open this meeting and the discussion which will follow, not only to officers but all who are interested in the subject.

The CWA school improvement projects are now going forward at a rate such that it is expected they will be completed. Inasmuch as one hundred of the rural districts submitted applications, it can be readily understood it is a large undertaking. Paul Kroske, who worked on the projects from the beginning, has become the county CWA supervisor for rural schools. Alvin Marsh, who also assisted in the preparation of the applications has been made assistant to Mr. Kroske in the northeastern part of the county. The three other assistants are Geo. Marsh in the southwestern section, Mr. Gots in the southeastern section and Mr. Norton in the northwestern section.

Mr. Ehlers has been appointed CWA sanitary engineer for the county. Although working under Mr. Kroske, his work is quite independent inasmuch as he has a crew of men over and above the regular county quota, and has a budget of several thousand dollars which will be used entirely in the construction of out of door toilets. These toilets must be built according to Federal specifications, are sanitary, and are built at no cost to the districts. Applications are still being accepted by Mr. Ehlers.

Give Holiday Dance

One of the social events of the Christmas vacation was a dance given by the Seniors on the night of Wednesday, January 11. It was held in the gym and the music was furnished by the pep band of Russ Howard and his negroes. The dance was attended by many of the local alumni and high school students and a good time was had by all.

The Trojans gave a dance on Friday, Dec. 29 with Art Winters and his band supplying the tunes. The Trojans decorated the gym by putting Christmas trees along the front end of the stage by the footlights and around the orchestra platform. The spotlight played on the couples while they danced with the color of the lights changing continuously. The crowd was made up mostly of local alumni and high school students and also a number of alumni home for Christmas vacation.

The Legionnaires gave a dance on Monday, January 1, with the same band, same decorations and practically the same crowd.

These dances made up the public affairs but a number of private parties were given by high school students during the course of the last three weeks' vacation.

Staff Gives Tea

On Tuesday, December 19 at 4:00 p. m. the Staff of the Journalism Club gave an informal tea in Room 21 for the reporters and the high school faculty.

Room 21 is now the property of the Journalism Club (or will be as soon as the work on the grade school is completed) and the tea proved to be a very nice housewarming.

Tea, sandwiches and Margaritas were very tasty in the middle of the afternoon. A few decorations in green and red and an end table with books lent a homelike and holiday atmosphere.

Our Editor-in-Chief, Marjorie Sadt, poured and the Misses Hofferist, Belsor, Beaman, Satterthwaite, and Williams acted as hostesses.

Teas are thus far quite novel in Chelsea Hi. and since this is so, the Hi-Light Staff realize that many improvements can be made on this art of giving a tea. However, the girls on the Staff appreciated this opportunity to get such experience as they think it will mean much to them in future years.

Another Year

Once again with our lanterns we turned our footsteps toward the old wooden church. Wearily we mounted the well worn steps, that creak and groan whenever a foot is put upon them. As we went along we disturbed dust and cobwebs of a year gone by. Soon we reached the top of the tower and there in its same old place hung the bell. Nervously we watched our watches. It was exactly twelve. We picked up the well worn rope and rang the old year out and the new year in.

1933, you're out—year in, 1934. By the way, I wish you all a happy and more prosperous New Year.

Jack Frost

I heard a merry, sly, little elf,
Chuckling and laughing to himself,
And outside my window I heard him say,
"I'm going to paint your windows today."

I looked, and I saw him happy and bright,
Painting the windows in crystal white;
There were pictures of field, wood, and hill,
And of the stream by the old grist-mill.

Then laughing in glee as he went his way,
I heard him, off in the distance say,
I'm coming around tomorrow again,
To paint more pictures on your window pane.

Roosevelt Defeats

Chelsea Hi Team

Last Friday, Chelsea High played Roosevelt in a game of basketball that will undoubtedly be one of the fastest games of the season. Both teams were fast, but Roosevelt was "one basket faster", the final score being 23-21.

Pete Allhouse, H. Wallace, N. Panarites, J. Seitz and G. Novess started the game for Chelsea. Roosevelt got the tip-off the first four times and this resulted in giving her the first four baskets, making the score eight to nothing. At the end of the first quarter the score was 8-3 in favor of Roosevelt. C. Panarites went in for Pete Allhouse in the last of the first quarter.

During the second quarter both teams added to their tallies. Chelsea adding 6 more points and Roosevelt 4 more, making the score at the end of the half 12-9 in favor of Roosevelt. The first half was played very hard by both teams and they welcomed the half as time for the much needed rest.

The third quarter started and the Chelsea cagers started out as though they were very much refreshed by the rest and ready for the fight that was to follow. H. Wallace was again in the starting line-up. After a short period of light scrimmage, Pete Allhouse went in for H. Wallace. N. Panarites went to guard and Allhouse and C. Panarites were forwards. Chelsea began to rally and at the end of the third quarter the score was tied at 17 all.

The fourth and last period of the game started with both teams apparently still going strong. Both teams scored two more baskets each and this tied the score at 21 all until the final whistle blew ending the game. J. Panarites went in for H. Wallace in the last quarter.

The teams took advantage of the time out period to rest before the whistle blew, thus starting the overtime period of three minutes. The whistle blew and there was a mad scramble for the ball. Roosevelt took the ball on the tip-off, but Chelsea High soon had gained possession of it, and was on her way down the floor looking for a chance to score the winning basket. Both teams shot many times but they were all in vain until Burrell, a Roosevelt man, had the ball and with three seconds to play. He shot and made the winning basket.

From time to time, there will appear in this corner of the paper, a column entitled "As Seen Through the Eyes of a Senior". The author will, at various intervals, interpret news and events of the day of interest to himself and he earnestly hopes, to the readers of the Hi-Light.

The author will appreciate any comments and suggestions from the general public and particularly from fellow students as to the subjects contained in this column. Let's make a Forum of Today's News and discuss it together. We can make it interesting and highly beneficial.

Changes

The youngsters feel that they have made quite a real hop, now that they have been moved in with the big high school folks.

First Grade—Occupy the stage. They are considering their new location as an adventure. Mrs. Dancor believes that the class work will be able to be carried out very successfully. Robert Reed has returned to school, and two new members, Eldore and Willard Carlson have joined the class.

Second Grade—Are using the west end of the gymnasium. Small tables and chairs have been erected for studying purposes.

Third Grade—Wanted! A larger room. If anyone has a larger one to offer, please find a place in the building for them. They are using the Journalism room.

Fourth Grade—Are not meeting with such difficulty, and seem to be getting along fine in the room where the library was.

Fifth Grade—Consider themselves fortunate, for they have a large room in which they can carry on their class work successfully. They occupy Miss Barrus' room. Material for their forestry project has been sent for.

Vacation News

Our girls' basketball team is progressing very nicely. They played their first game during vacation.

For a first appearance our girls did well even if they did lose to the Alumni. The Alumni turned out a very strong team to defeat them.

The girls played a very good and swift game. I will give you an idea as to who the players were: Helen Hindelang, Ruth Paist, Helen Hofferist, played as forwards; Eileen Adam, Jane McGaffigan, played jumping center; Larue Wolf, Barbara Blecker, played running center. Our guards were Jean Irwin, Jean Blecker, and Katherine Hofferist. We had many subs that did not get a chance to play. We hope they will next time and we also hope they win. Better luck next time, girls!

Ice skating has become very popular around Chelsea during vacation. Every day dozens of boys and girls were seen making figure eights and taking spins on the ice.

Hunting ranks next in our vacation sports. Please, boys and girls, be careful when you shoot your guns.

C-R-A-Z-Y

Bang! Whiz! Purr! Yes it's station C-R-A-Z-Y again. The second program on the air this season.

Now the first number.
Jim Panarites—to the minister on Sunday: "Oh father, how I wish when I die that you had the key to heaven."

Minister: "Why, Jim?" asked the amazed man.
Jim: "Because, then you could let me in."

Preacher, patting Jim on the back: "I think, Jim, you can put that off your mind for a while and worry, because I haven't the other key to let you out."

Harold Grove will tell you how to get a hat for every occasion. So we hear "Harold Dear" was at the local theater the other evening and upon finding he couldn't locate his hat, said loudly, "Say, you put my hat in my car before I got out there or I'll call Atkinson."

When Harold got to the car he saw to his amazement that the car was partly filled with hats and that he had to see them home before he could leave. Now wasn't that too bad!

At a New Year's party the other night the question was asked "Has anyone ever heard of a perfect woman?" Jean Blecker: "Yes, I have. There really was one. It was Bud Gulde's first girl friend."

And so the end of another quarter hour of innocent amusement and entertainment. Our apologies, pals, who have been chosen.

past 14 years gave out last week. The equipment is worn out and the cost of repairs was getting to be too great. The council in session last Wednesday night voted to buy a new fire engine of the Barton Co. through Slayton and Son. It will consist of a new Barton pump and a 250 gallon tank which will be mounted on a Chevrolet chassis. The body of the old fire truck will be used and also the hose, part of which was recently purchased.

THE STUDENT FRATERNITY MURDER

By Milton Propper

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Stricken during initiation into the Mu Beta Sigma fraternity, Stuart Jordan, university student, dies almost immediately. A physician declares he was poisoned. You may Rankin, Philadelphia detective, takes charge of the investigation.

"You are probably right about the poison being administered schematically," the physician said. "This mark is undoubtedly that of a hypodermic needle; it was so aimed as to inject the contents into the blood along the arm."

"Do you think that whoever untied Jordan could have introduced the poison at the same time without being observed?"

"Since we must face facts," Doctor Thompson answered, "I should say it is easily possible. It would be the work of an instant, and the needle to hold a fatal dose is small enough to conceal in the palm of the hand."

"Rankin nodded. "How long was the interval between the time Jordan was unbound and his prostration?" he asked Stanton.

"Not more than five minutes, sir," he returned. "Long enough to get out the wine and distribute the glasses, and for me to explain the toast."

"If you could tell, Doctor," Rankin mused, "how long after injection, the poison would take effect, we could be more positive about the time it was given. I don't suppose, however, until it's analyzed that . . . Hello, that's strange!"

He stopped short and suddenly stooped over to inspect the dead boy's shoes. On both, in the hollow of the soles, against the heel, he discovered two wide-headed, flat thumbtacks. Conspicuously, in the light of the room, one tack lay embedded in the side of each heel, itself, and the other in the arched leather beside it.

"How do you explain that, Doctor?" the detective questioned. "What in the world are those thumbtacks doing in Jordan's shoes?"

For a moment Doctor Thompson was silent, his eyes puzzled and pondering. "It almost looks as though the criminal put them there to aid in identifying him," he responded at length. "The guilty person would have taken that precaution if he knew the room would be dark. Otherwise he could not differentiate one pledgee from another. They all looked alike in their robes, covered by hoods; and kneeling at the altar, only their wrists and feet were visible. The entire crime seems to have been ingeniously planned in advance with remarkable foresight."

The detective lifted one foot to catch the light and scrutinized the tacks closely.

"They were put in very recently," he announced. "They are still bright and new—not scratched or nicked a bit. . . . What do you think, Doctor?"

Doctor Thompson took a moment to examine them. "Yes, you're quite right, Rankin. He hasn't been carrying them. I should judge, over a day or two at the most."

"Then it might be worth tracing his movements of the last forty-eight hours, to learn who had the opportunity to tamper with this pair, unknown to him."

"Only last night, Jordan's shoes were left here at the fraternity house, with the rest of his clothes," Stanton volunteered. "All the pledges undressed here before they were driven out in the country in clothes other than their own and deserted."

"Last night?" Rankin asked sharply. "He didn't wear his own clothes? How was that?"

"Well, we always have the initiate rather severely on the final evening before the ritual," Stanton explained. "It's to . . . er . . . humble them for the more solemn ceremonies. Usually we leave them in some lonely section far out of town, without money or means of transportation. And to guard against their hiding funds in their clothing, they all strip and put on other clothes that we give them, instead; their own clothes they leave here."

"So that the boy's outfit was in the house until he returned? Who prepared the pledges for this trip?"

"All of us were present at some time or other. None of us cares to miss the last sport we have at their expense."

"Then anyone could have used the chance to mark these shoes?" Rankin queried, disappointed.

Stanton replied affirmatively. The detective turned to the murdered boy and removed the contents of his pockets.

He inspected them briefly, but thoroughly enough to disclose nothing pertinent, at least on the surface, to his death. There was an expensive watch, a fountain pen and pencil; a costly black leather pocketbook in-itled "S. J." containing thirty dollars and a Missouri automobile license; a creased program of a formal dance the Mu Beta Sigma fraternity had evidently held on Saturday, three nights before. A check book of the Philadelphia Western bank indicated Jordan's bank balance to be fully four thousand dollars, immediate proof of his affluence and position. His pants pockets held a gymnasium disk, granting the holder all the privileges of the university's athletic facilities, loose change and several keys; one belonged to his letter box, one apparently to an auto, and one was labeled "Craft 315."

His loose papers included a schedule of his classes, roughly scribbled notes of a course in European history, and a book of tickets to all of Philadelphia's contests and games.

There were no letters to give Rankin any information about his family or associates.

He looked up from his scrutiny. "There's little enough to work on here," he again addressed Stanton.

"What do you know about Jordan and his people?"

"I'll tell you what I can, sir," the president replied. "But you mustn't expect too much. After all, no one in the house was acquainted with him for more than a month; only since the beginning of February, when our 'rush' season for new members started."

"Only a month?" The detective raised his eyebrows inquiringly. "He's a junior, isn't he? I thought Mr. Warwick said this was his third year."

The supervisor nodded his verification. "So it is."

"That's right, sir," Stanton concurred. "What I meant was that this is his first year at the university. He spent his freshman and sophomore years at Aberdeen college, near his home out west; he transferred east just this past September."

"Aberdeen? That's in Missouri, somewhere. . . . Hannibal, isn't it? Have you any idea why he exchanged colleges as a junior and chose Philadelphia?"

The president shook his head. "No, he never mentioned any reason. I suppose because he wanted to go to a better known school and get away from home."

Rankin removed the dead boy's automobile license from among his other belongings.

"I suppose this is Jordan's address. If he went to college in the same general locality. . . . Hunter street, Vandalla, Ill.," he read. "That can't be very far either from Hannibal or St. Louis."

"Yes, Vandalla is his home," Stanton informed him.

"How about his school address?" the detective inquired. "Did he stay at the fraternity house?"

"Oh, no, he has a room in Croft hall, in the upper classroom dormitories."

"That explains the name on the key he was carrying," Rankin put it to one side with the license. "And now," he went on, "how much can you tell me of his family and position? What are his connections and situation at home?"

"As I said, very little; our only information on those matters was what he gave us on the questionnaire he had to fill out when we pledged him."

"Then you had better let me see the questionnaire," the detective suggested. "I can get what facts there are most accurately from his answers."

The form, when produced, dealt with miscellaneous data mostly concerning the dead boy's family, religion and previous schooling. The most valuable fact it revealed was that both his parents were dead. His mother had been Alice Merrick, before her marriage, and his father, Edward Jordan; after their names was written the word "deceased."

Howard Merrick, evidently a relative on his mother's side, who also lived on Hunter street, in Vandalla, was mentioned as his guardian. According to the record, he was a banker.

"How old was Jordan?" was Rankin's next question.

Stanton hesitated a moment. "Twenty-one I think—going on twenty-two," he said.

"And you were also aware that he was extremely well-to-do? This check-book indicates that."

The president answered earnestly, almost as though in justification; his voice held a tinge of regret.

"Yes, since money is unfortunately important in keeping up a chapter house like this, we'd rather learn before offering a candidate a bid, whether he has the means to join, than suspend him afterward for failing to meet his obligations. On that score, we didn't have to worry about Jordan; he ran his own car, a large roadster, here at school."

"Have you any notion of the source of his income?" the detective inquired.

"No, I haven't; as long as he had surficient, that was none of our business." Rankin directed his words to Mr. Warwick. "Anyhow, his relatives will have to be notified of his death at once. Naturally, this Mr. Merrick, his guardian, will want to be summoned as soon as possible."

"The university will advise him officially," the supervisor promised him. "I will see to it that a telegram is sent tonight to his address on the questionnaire. You'll be immediately informed of any reply or message we receive."

The detective continued his interrogation of Stanton.

"To return to how long the chapter has known of the boy," he asked, "you said the first contact with him occurred about the beginning of last month?"

"It was on the opening day of the second semester of the school year," the president reflected briefly. "To be exact, on Monday, February second. Our first smoker was on the second, and we invited every likely prospect of whom we knew. After that, we gradually eliminated the undesirable. Finally, we held a last affair and asked it to just those to whom we'd decided to offer the pledge pin this year, that was on February fourteenth."

"So that he was pledged three weeks ago, this past Saturday," Rankin figured out. "How did you first come to learn of his being at the university?"

"Through one of our alumni, a Dr. Arnold Prince, of St. Louis. As you understand, thirty-seven chapters in as many colleges over the country; that gives us a large alumni organization. Whenever one of them hears of a promising boy who intends to enter a school where Mu Beta Sigma functions, it is his duty to inform the interested chapter about him."

"Have you any such chapter at Aberdeen, where Jordan came from originally?"

"No, we aren't organized there," Stanton returned. "And of course, he never joined any other fraternity at Aberdeen; before we accepted him, we made certain of that. Professional and high-school fraternities are legitimate, but a student can belong to only one undergraduate college fraternity."

"And just who is Doctor Prince?" Rankin wanted to know. "What can you tell me of him?"

"Nothing at all, sir, beyond what his letter contains," the president replied. "We can't know every brother who ever graduated. But he writes that he was educated at Northwestern university, in Fort Wayne, Ind.; he belongs to our Omicron chapter, there. He must be comparatively young because he took his degree and finished his courses only eight years ago."

The letter had been destroyed, Rankin's next question disclosed, once its contents were noted. But the author's address, if he desired it, could be found in the fraternity's national roster, which catalogued every living brother of Mu Beta Sigma. The letter had contained nothing, as far as Stanton could recall, to explain the extent of Doctor Prince's acquaintance with the murdered boy, or the origin of his volunteered information.

Before proceeding further, the detective had Stanton obtain the physical address—Harker street, in St. Louis. Then, he shifted the topic of his inquiry.

"Now, I have a somewhat difficult request to make," he announced impressively. "Consider it carefully before speaking, Mr. Stanton. I want your opinion of Jordan. . . . your impression of his nature and temperament. Give me a sort of character sketch; I think I can rely on your judgment."

The very purpose of the discipline preceding initiation was to appraise the candidates and determine their worthiness; hence, Stanton's portrait of the boy's personality was comparatively complete. As a pledgee, Jordan had been generous and sincere; though light-hearted, a certain gravity had given him stability and a sense of proportion. He was amenable to correction, his cheerful disposition blending well in the fraternity. As a scholar, he was capable but not brilliant, without much enthusiasm for study. He had normal appetites; he drank to be sociable, though not to excess and enjoyed an occasional risqué joke. Essentially, however, he was refined and clean-minded. He had no enemies among members of the chapter of which the president knew.

As to his attitude toward the opposite sex, Stanton was uncertain. The boy had attended only one dance since he was pledged, that of the past Saturday; then, he was unaccompanied.

Without being alone, he had not mingled much in the merrier of the affair. Yet, when he danced, his evident enjoyment indicated that he was quite at ease in the company of women. There was no girl with whom he had seemed especially well acquainted or toward whom he displayed a preference.

At the conclusion of the sketch, Rankin expressed his gratification.

"Excellent! Well, Mr. Stanton! But can you give me no further facts about the boy than you have already? What about the other pledges?" the detective suggested. "Their interests and his were mutual; he might have made one of them a confidant."

But Stanton shook his head. "Hardly, sir, after less than a month's acquaintance. Besides, the rest are all freshmen and he's a junior—the only upper classman we initiated this year. They're nothing in common to cause any close friendship, there."

"Would the records," Rankin asked, "add anything valuable to what I've learned? Those Jordan filed on entering the university. Even a little light on the case should be important. When can I see his papers?"

The supervisor pursed his lips. "Not until morning, I'm afraid," he said doubtfully. "The office of admissions is closed; and the clerks are more familiar with the files than I. Still, if you must have them now they can probably be located. . . ."

"No, I guess they can wait till tomorrow," Rankin returned agreeably. "I have enough to occupy me here, as it is." He paused and looked abstracted. "With these records," he then went on, "you might also send me the names and addresses of anyone now studying here, who formerly came either from Aberdeen college or the boy's home town, Vandalla. I don't want to disregard any possible source of information."

"When Mr. Warwick promised Rankin he would receive all the requisite documents early in the day, the latter faced Stanton.

"It might be helpful if I saw Jordan's sponsor," he proposed. "Mr. Patterson, isn't it? Did he know him before your rushing season?"

Muscovy Duck BelievedNative of South America

The Muscovy duck is found wild in South America, and this is believed to be its original source or habitat. Experiments made by cross mating proved them to be a distinct breed, as the offspring of such matings proved to be sterile. They were formerly known as wild musk ducks and, occasionally, are called—Brazilian ducks. They feed in marshes and low lands, but nest in high locations. The females are kind and tractable, and the males, under two years old, can be controlled, but when older they are cross with children. During the breeding season they will attack animals, and even persons who may trespass on their territory or disturb their nests.

There are colored and white Muscovys. The males are slightly larger than the females. The breeders require that the colored variety shall have pink bills shaded with dark or dark color; brown eyes; yellow shanks and feet, shaded with dark—sometimes almost black; body plumage is lustrous black. The white Muscovy has a pinkish white bill, blue eyes, orange or yellow shanks and feet, and pure white plumage.

About the head and face of Muscovy ducks is a distinctive mark like the caruncles on the head of the turkey. This is most pronounced in the mature males. They have a growth of feathers on the top of the head, which they can elevate at will. It is said that they will continue to breed for twelve years or more.

Chalk Cliffs in DenmarkRise Straight From Sea

Geologically speaking, Denmark owes its existence to the mountains of Norway. Every stone in Denmark once was a tourist from Norway, arriving with the glaciers on a submarine reef of chalk and lime, until in a manner similar to the building of the Newfoundland sandbanks by the icebergs from Greenland, Denmark emerged.

This fact explains one of the most beautiful sights in the country—coasts of fantastic chalk formation in many places. The grandest of these formations is Moens Klint, and described as the gem of Denmark. This is a range of white chalk cliffs 400 feet high and about five miles in length rising straight from the sea. The top is forest clad and extends in places to deep gorges which split up the masses of chalk, making points and pinnacles of weird loveliness, everywhere. The union of white chalk, green trees and vegetation and blue sea is most picturesque, especially if you view the whole from a passing steamship, at the hour of the setting sun.

It has now stood for thousands of years, but from time to time large masses go back to the sea, as when the well-known "Queen's Chair" formation fell in 1893, making a temporary island off the coast about 700 feet long, which has since disappeared.

Smallest Fly Biggest Enemy

Of the insect pests that have proven themselves enemies of man some are remarkably small for the damage they can do. Such is the case of the chalcid fly which, although the full grown insect is smaller than a single seed of clover or alfalfa, can cause serious trouble in a field of either of these crop plants. For each chalcid fly egg is deposited in a seed of clover or alfalfa while the seed is still soft and green and the grub hatching from one of these eggs eats all of the soft juicy tissues with which it finds itself surrounded. It then uses the hollow shell of the seed as a shelter in which to pupate and does not emerge therefrom until it has gone through all the changes necessary for it to become a fully developed fly. This means that as soon as it leaves the seed in which it was hatched it is ready to start at once propagating its kind to the ruin of more seeds.

Status of Man Resembles Many

The question of who was the sculptor's model, so often asked since the dedication of the Scottish-American war memorial in Edinburgh, Scotland, has been answered. At the sixth commemoration ceremony of the piece Dr. Tait McKenzie, the sculptor, explained that it is not the portrait of any individual, but an expression of the idealism of youth which gives a family likeness to people of varied lineage. To illustrate the universal trait depicted, it has been shown that a photograph in an American office is so much like the statue that it was believed to be that of the model. An American mother seeing the statue thought it was that of her son. A German doctor often journeys to Edinburgh to view what he declares to be a striking resemblance to his lost son. Others from other countries have seen a likeness to lost relatives.

The Word "Turkey"

The root word "turk," meaning "power" or "to arrive at maturity," is found in many languages from the Caucasus to China. The term "Turki" was used to designate those tribes speaking the Turkic languages. Chinese history records these warlike tribes as existing from 1400 B. C. onwards. They united and became independent about 650 A. D. The spelling "Turkey" is merely a corruption of "Turki." The fowl known as the turkey was so called because it was erroneously thought to have come from Turkey, although it was introduced into Europe from America in 1530.—Pathfinder Magazine

Mountain Range Almost Directly Under Equator

Ruvenzori, a mountain range in equatorial Africa, is unusual in its very situation. It lies almost immediately under the equator, surrounded by rank, steaming tropical forests and sun-drenched plains covered with tall elephant grass; yet, says a correspondent in the Montreal Herald, it pushes its peaks up to eternal snow. Nowhere else are there comparable heights under the equator, rising from the heart of a continent. The Andes of Peru, relatively close to the coast, and the mountains of the island of New Guinea, are the closest competitors.

Weather conditions do their part in contributing to the strangeness of this African mountain mass and in throwing an almost literal veil of mystery around it. The peaks are hidden by clouds and for except at rare intervals. As a result, the definite existence of the mountains was unknown to Europeans until 1894, when Sir Samuel Baker, while exploring Lake Albert saw a blue mountain to the south.

His observations went unverified until 1897, when Stanley saw the peaks and made known the fact, for the first time, that they were snow-capped. It was not until more than a decade later that the snow-line was the principal address of the evening was made by Prof. John H. Mayskens, Department of Speech of the University of Michigan. Prof. Mayskens was introduced by Comrade Harold Gault of Ann Arbor. The speech, in part, was as follows:

"The country can depend upon the American Legion for protection against war. The American Legion is a body of men who have given what they had, and have given us the peace we have today. They do not want their sons to go through the terrible things of war as they did. The Legion is the backbone of America."

"If we could view all the things that are taking place today we would wonder whether it did not look as if preparations were being made for war again. But we should not be frightened. The Legion are making preparation against war."

"Ideals which have been built up by our forefathers are being destroyed because of mob rule. We must have courage—these things had to come. When men took more from their fellow men than they should, they then allowed greed to sway their sense of justice. For example, in 1776 England's greed was the cause of the taxation that brought about the Revolutionary war. Greed also was the cause of the Civil and World wars."

"We are now entering into a new era. During periods of turmoil we find two kinds of people. The conservative people, who look at the past but not at the present and the future. The other group, the American Legion, who look into the future as well as the past and present. Their reason is to conserve out of the past the things that may be useful in the future for strong government of the people, by the people, and for the people, which is known to every school child."

"We hold and respect the veterans and the dead who gave their lives in the war. A new era is to be expected."

"What were the forms of government 2000 years before Christ? First we had private rulers, each having a plot of land and ruling over a few people. When the population increased these groups were combined under a kind of ruler by divine right. The kings ruled until the queens told the stories of their fears and the common people found that the kings were no better than themselves. They decided they wanted parliaments to run their governments. The parliamentary form of government lasted until men felt ready to carry the burden of government themselves. The parliamentary government then gave way to the republican form of government, and of course, also the democratic."

"If we are to find a new era that will last in the future, we cannot allow men to suffer around us and still go on."

"So in closing, I say to you, as long as this iniquity continues I will stand before you and say, 'These things must be righted.' Bring on a new era, but bring it on in justice for people gave their lives to build it up. Justice must be done to those that gave their lives and those that gave their blood for this new era."

Not the least of importance in the community was the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary of the 2nd District on Sunday, January 14, held in Chelsea. As usual, the record of representative Posts was high in attendance, there being 17 out of 19 units to report. The individual attendance was 80.

The meeting was opened by Virginia Brock, who is president of the local unit, and immediately under the capable direction of Mrs. Goodwin of Adrian, one successful report after another was presented to the group. Among these reports was one given by Mrs. Lyons, wife of the State Welfare head and which carried a world of information, beneficial to the members from the standpoint of future work in their own unit. With Mrs. Lyons were two Detroit guests who were charmingly presented to and cordially received by the Auxiliary members.

The able Mrs. Lucile DeRyke of Milan chatted in an informal manner on the subject of National Defense. As this is one of the outstanding topics of the day, it was accepted with a vast amount of enthusiasm. Mrs. DeRyke, through her investigations and interest, plus her adaptable personality has made her topic and service indispensable to her local and district units. By the way, Mrs. DeRyke was nominated for candidate for the next Department President. She ought to carry that office in a big way.

The various unit reports were splendid—each unit seemed to have some one thing that was outstanding in its activities. These activities, however, are not carried on in a competitive way and yet at each new break, any Post is proud to be recognized for the worthwhile thing in which it has been particularly occupied. Right now the units of the 2nd District are having a membership drive—the losers to entertain the winners. Chelsea unit needs only five more members to fill her quota.
