Speak Nuptial Vows At Pretty Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lannavi B. Loveland in Sylvan township was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday evening, March 3, when their daughter, Ardea Magdalene, became the bride of Dillman W. Wahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wahl, Waterloo.

At 7:30 the bridal party descended the stairs to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal chorus, played by Mrs. Glenn Rentscher, sister of the bride. Rev. Henry W. Lenz, pastor of Salem Grove church, officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The bride was lovely in an ankle-length gown of robin's egg blue crepe, fashioned on straight lines, with short puffed sleeves. The bodice was trimmed with white net and silver pins studded with rhinestones. Her full length veil was caught at the back of a small hat made of tiny white velvet flowers, with a touch of the robin's egg blue for trimming. White gauntlet gloves and slippers completed the costume. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies.

Miss Lorena Seitz, who attended as bridesmaid, wore a tan crepe frock trimmed with rhinestones and self-plaiting. Her accessories were a matching hat, white gloves and slippers, and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Lewis Wahl, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held and a three-course dinner was served to immediate relatives and a few close friends. A large wedding cake centered the table, flanked by blue candles in crystal holders. Artificial water lilies were presented as favors.

Mr. and Mrs. Wahl will reside at the Clear Lake farm, where they will be at home to their friends after March 15.

The bride-elect was feted at several pre-nuptial courtesies. Mrs. Fred Notten and Mrs. Lloyd Heydlauff were hostesses at the home of the former on Thursday afternoon, March 1 at a miscellaneous shower in honor of the bride. The afternoon was spent in a social way. A pot-luck supper was served to the forty guests. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mrs. Glenn Rentscher entertained at her home on Saturday evening, February 24, in honor of the bride. Progressive hearts was the diversion of the evening. A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Laurene Walz and Lorena Seitz. The bride received many beautiful gifts.

ENTERTAIN LIMANERS
Mrs. George Krumm and Mrs. Fred Kennedy were entertainers at the Limaners Sewing club at a meeting held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Krumm. Following the pot luck dinner, a guessing contest furnished amusement, Mrs. H. A. Prudden receiving the first prize and Miss Mantie Spaulding low. Short readings were given by the members and the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to sewing.

Two Hundred Attend Republican Meeting

Approximately two hundred Republicans from Washtenaw county, Lansing and Jackson attended the get-together held at the Chelsea public school auditorium Tuesday evening.

Following the dinner, which was served at 7:00 o'clock by the Senior class and other high school students, the meeting was called to order by Theo. Bahnmiller, Sylvan supervisor, who introduced Lawrence Leever of Ann Arbor, chairman of the Washtenaw county committee, who presided as master of ceremonies.

Alex Groesbeck, former governor, who was expected to appear as the principal speaker, was unable to attend the meeting. However, a number of Republicans who are prominent in county and state politics were present and gave short addresses.

Florence Pollock of Ann Arbor, president of the Washtenaw County Republican Women's club, spoke briefly and introduced Mrs. Geo. W. Rogers of Jackson, president of the Michigan Federation of Republican Women's clubs. Mrs. Rogers delivered a very inspiring address, appealing to the women to take a more active interest in politics.

A number of the Republican members of the state legislature were present and were called upon for short talks. The speakers included Representatives Allen McDonald of Lansing, Earl McNitt of Cadillac, Don Vander Werp of Farmington, Carl Delano of Kalamazoo, Elmer McDonald of Port Hope, Haskell Nichols of Jackson, Donald Sias of Midland and James Wilson of Kalamazoo. All of the legislators assailed the policies of the present administration at Lansing and cited many specific instances of tactics being used by the administration to which they are vigorously opposed.

Others who gave short talks included Wm. Laird of Ann Arbor, vice-chairman of the county committee, Mayor Robert Campbell of Ann Arbor, Circuit Court Commissioner Joseph Hooper, Prosecutor Albert Rapp and John Kalmbach.

During the dinner hour music was furnished by the Barbour-Koch String Trio, and several numbers were rendered by the Harmony Four quartet—P. F. Niehaus, Austin Faist, Paul Harbour and J. Fred Barrels, with Mrs. P. F. Niehaus at the piano.

The next get-together of county Republicans will be held in Manchester in April, the date to be announced later.

Many Attend Merkel Bros. Farmers' Day

More than four hundred people visited Merkel Bros. hardware store on Saturday, when Farmers' Entertainment Day was featured. A free lunch was served at noon by the store proprietors, and a special feature of the lunch was the ice cream, furnished by the Miller Ice Cream Co. of Eaton Rapids. More than 15 gallons of ice cream was served by a representative of the company.

Three representatives of the International Harvester Co. were present. During the afternoon moving pictures, furnished by the International and Miller companies were shown at the Princess Theatre. The management of the Princess also showed a two-reel comedy feature picture.

The free roll of wire fence which was offered by Merkel Bros. was awarded to Geo. Klink, and Mrs. F. Lindemann received the Aladdin floor lamp.

Tournament Outcome

In our first H. S. tournament ever held in Chelsea last week. The teams placed as follows:

East Jackson—Tournament champs, Vanderhook Lake, runners-up; Chelsea, consolation. Michigan Center, fourth place and Pinckney, 5th place, in the standings in the finals.

The crowd's attendance marked one of the largest in the history of Chelsea, therefore the townspeople, as well as students should be congratulated for their fine showing of supporting the local aggregation. The pep that the people showed to the games was remarkable and the fighting spirit was surely aroused more than ever before. We are sure that the townspeople got their money's worth at the game for two of the games were decided by either 1 or 2 points and each were thrillers.

So again in thanking the townspeople and students for their loyal support we bid to the 1934 basketball season of Chelsea—"Adios!"

Hi-Lights of the News

Through the Eyes of a Senior

It has come to our attention that at the present time there is a strike in existence against the CWA. The object of the strikers is more pay. The fact that the CWA scale is so high has been a cause of criticism around here and the scale is uniform everywhere. It is apparent that honest work at fair pay is not sufficient for these strikers. What else could they seek? You said it, Graft.

France is beginning to see the advantage of coming out of her present diplomatic isolation. It remains to be seen to whom she may direct an alliance. She has been having a bad time with tariffs. She bargained with America for an increased liquor quota and in return increased the quota and certain American goods. Since the theory behind France's quota system is to let as little be imported as possible, it followed that some other quota must be reduced. England was the unlucky country. For several weeks, a deep blue smoke has been seen hovering about the British Parliament. They seem to be attempting to find a method for strong coercion of the French and have lowered French quotas in England. France is now looking for new markets and she must come out of her shell.

It is rumored that the unemployed Legislature at Lansing is about to take a firm stand on the vital issue of Technocracy. Or perhaps they will take up the Slavery question.

A careful study of last Sunday's newspapers would indicate to the shrewd observer that Pres. Roosevelt has been in office one year.

Prof. Tugwell, one of Pres. Roosevelt's advisors has been invited to study farm conditions in Porto Rico. Back in 1918, Russian officials sometimes went to Siberia to study the salt mines, too. (Seniors will recognize Prof. Tugwell as co-author of their Economics Book).

Fifth Grade

This class received a letter from one of their classmates who is on the way to Florida. This is the interesting letter:

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 9, 1934.
Dear Class:
Today I am in Chattanooga, Tenn.

I intend to start for Atlanta tomorrow. I stopped at Horse Cave, which is seventeen miles out of Louisville. This cave contains a river of black water. This river can only be seen in the cave.

Next I stopped at Mammoth Cave. This cave is eighty miles out of Louisville. It is the largest known cave in the world and an area of about 80,000 square miles. The passageways that have been explored cover 100 miles. The main cave is 8-miles long, 40 to 175 feet wide, and 125 feet high in some places. There are many rooms in the cave. The most beautiful room is called the Star Chamber. The ceiling of this room is of black rock and dotted with snow white crystals of gypsum, and when seen by reflected light it glitters like diamonds. This cave contains a number of small rivers and lakes.

The largest one is Echo River, which is about one-fourth of a mile long. It gets its name from the wonderful echoes produced in this part of the cave.

Chattanooga is a very pretty city. It is situated just north of Lookout Mountain. It manufactures iron and steel. The surrounding country is very beautiful. It was also the battleground of three of the most important battles of the Civil War. Around the Lookout Mountain you will see bullets sticking in the trees and stumps.

Your classmate,
Betty Platt.

Sixth Grade

As a result of our interest in stars we wrote poems, acrostics and stories. As a group we wrote:

Weird Moon Shadows

The moon is shining overhead,
It shines through the window upon my bed.

It lights my room with a ghostly light,
And makes weird shadows through the night.

Shadows of bed and chairs and all
Are making queer shapes upon the wall.

And there they dance until the moon
At these weird shapes I laugh in scorn.

And then while I am fast asleep,
They slowly off the wall will creep.

Ethel Yeager wrote this one called "The Sun":

I like the moon that shines when we rest,
I like the stars in the sky,
But the star I like best
Is the sun;

It gives us light to live by.

Betty Luick wrote one called "The Stars":

Before I go to bed
I look at the stars
Up over head;
Some are red,
Some are white,
But they all shine
With a lovely light.

Dillys Johns made an acrostic using the letters for Other Worlds:

O is for Orion so strong and bold,
T is for Twins of whom we've been told,
H is for Hyades up in the sky,
R is for Rigel as up so high.

R is for Rigel a very bright star,
W is for when we see him afar,
O is for old which some stars may be,
A is for rings around the moon,
Which on stormy nights we see,
I is for lights that are bright all night,
D is for dippers which are out very bright,
S is for sky which includes all the stars,
And also the planets, including Mars.

Report on Gutch and Karl, by Virginia Olcott—written by Joan Walworth:

Gretch is a little girl from Berlin, Germany, who with her parents and brothers are going to live in the country with her grandma. She lives in peace valley. A boy by the name of Karl lives there too. They spend their time talking and helping one another. Their teacher takes them on hikes. A man by the name of Willy Winkelbach comes to live with them, and to help the father with the farming. They pass many happy days until Christmas Eve where the book ends.

Two nice book reports were written: Giff and Seiff in the South Seas, by Gifford Pinchot, written by Peggy Blecker.

These people took this trip for the purpose of collecting valuable specimens for museums. They went from New York to the White Islands and back to New York again. Of course they stopped at a lot of islands meanwhile. Many interesting adventures were encountered on the way.

The people who went on this voyage were Gifford Pinchot and his father, the Governor of Pennsylvania, his friend, Dr. A. K. Fisher, Dr. Henry A. Pillsbury, Sparks, Ment, Bish and the First Mate Nelson, Jerry the Captain, Bud Pete, Torp, Fritz, and Otis. They are the crew and the scientific men. Giff's mother went along also.

Kitty Hofferle—Where is that Lucille Kuhl? You wait until I get hold of her, I'll cool her off.

My Visit to Speech Class

When I entered the speech class room I was amazed to hear a chairman call a meeting to order and start a discussion of a carnival. Before long I learned the class was studying parliamentary procedure and to arouse an interest in class, they took on the imaginary responsibility of preparing a carnival.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Joan Dancer. Then the reports from the committees formerly appointed were heard. The reports were on the building of booths and the supplies which were to be put in the booths.

They even went so far as to decide a price for fortune-telling and also suggested whom to get for the fortune teller.

Among the amusements planned were: A style show, with high school girls as models; a minstrel show, haunted house, circus, and stunts from all classes.

To hear the interesting discussion you would think a real carnival was coming soon.

As Falls the Eventide

Under the blue sky of the eventide,
Sat a gray-haired man and wife
Dreaming the dreams of the long ago
And the beautiful things of life.

In the gathering dusk of the twilight
As the stars peeped forth from the sky,
A Killdeer sang his song of love
To them and God on high.

And that pretty, little flower
That nodded in the twilight still,
Whispered a song to the couple,
As the moon appeared o'er the hill.

And so fell that glorious eventide,
On a gray-haired man and wife,
Who were dreaming dreams of the long ago,
And the beautiful things of life.

Girls Play Final Game

Last Saturday the girls' basketball team journeyed to Ann Arbor and played the Clinton girls in Barbour gymnasium. The line-up was the same as usual with Esse replacing Faist; Shayer and McGaffigan for Adams, Moeckel for B. Blecker and Adams for J. Blecker. Chelsea girls held the lead for the entire game with the final score being 15-7. The first half of the game was exciting. The girls all had a very fine time in Ann Arbor and all are tickled because they won their last game. And thanks to Miss Hazard for her fine coaching.

AUTOMOBILE PHILOSOPHY

If you have your license
You may well be glad;
If like me you have no car,
You need not be so sad.

Gasoline costs money,
Repairs are heavy too,
You may walk or take a car
Is our suggest to you.

What can't be helped must be endured.
May somewhat change our rhyme,
But life is not all poetry,
Nor does it always line.

Face, bravely face what comes to us,
Through millstones though it go,
It may cause our refining,
And save us endless woe.

Suppose your license tax was paid,
No doubt you would be glad;
But in these days of Hit and Run,
Perhaps you might be sad.

Your car, not only might be wrecked,
A loved one might be hurt,
So cheer up, honey, and be brave,
And keep on the alert.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Why is the gold in the United States treasury kept in bars instead of being coined into money?

Ans.—Gold is valued by fineness and weight. Enough of it is coined to take care of domestic needs. Gold, when coined into money, will lose more or less in weight while it is in circulation. Therefore most of it is stored away in bars. Under the monetary policy of the present administration, gold is not used as a medium of circulating money and all of the gold is kept in bars.

Ques.—When the old 18th amendment was adopted, did all the states in the union ratify it?

Ans.—No. Connecticut and Rhode Island voted against it.

Ques.—Please suggest a good name for a male dog. He is black and white.

Ans.—If he is a crowner we would suggest that you call him "Rudy" with apologies to the radio singers.

Ques.—Is there any cure for cancer? If so, can you tell me how?

Ans.—While remedies have been administered that have greatly combated this dreaded disease, there has not as yet been an absolute cure discovered. Hope that cancer will soon be conquered by use of anti-cancer serum is revived by a report from the British Isles where encouraging results were obtained by the use of such treatment in the cases of about 25 victims. The serum was injected into the main mass of the cancer or into the artery leading to it. The chief difficulty with the serum now lies in keeping it localized in the infected area long enough to produce results. This serum is the result of nearly a decade of work and research on the part of the British cancer research board. It is still in the experimental stage and of course cannot be obtained in this country.

Ques.—What is good to grow hair on bald-headed people?

Ans.—Nothing that we know of. Efforts, however, are being made to stimulate the growth of hair on bald-headed persons by implanting the pituitary glands of sheep.

Ques.—What is the meaning of "E Pluribus Unum"? And why was it placed on some of our coins?

Ans.—"E Pluribus Unum" is a Latin phrase, which was part of the design of the Great Seal of the United States, and means "one in many." This became the motto of the United States, and therefore the phrase was placed on our coins.

Ques.—I have heard so many reports about the age of the earth, so I am asking you to answer actually how old is the earth?

Ans.—According to the proponents of the new science of geophysics (the linking together of geology and physics), the earth is at least two thousand million years old, and warm blooded animals that bring forth their young alive appeared on the earth, not more than one hundred million years ago. Geophysicists say that the earth as a whole is composed of a central core of molten or liquid metals that possibly extend halfway to the surface. They say that the oldest known rocks on the surface, which formed the basis of their figures, are nearly two billions of years old.

Ques.—What is Hitler's true nationality, and what is his religion?

Ans.—Adolph Hitler, chancellor of Germany, is an Austrian, who descended from Swiss stock—dating back about 400 years. He is not affiliated with any church.

Ques.—I am told that a watch can be used for a compass. If this is true how can it be done?

Ans.—Yes, it is true if the sun can be seen. Point the hour hand directly toward the sun and the point halfway between the hourhand and the figure 12 will be due south.

Ques.—What countries use the Panama canal? Or is it for the United States exclusively?

Ans.—Any country may use the Panama canal that pays the toll. All vessels pay toll, and this includes vessels carrying the United States flag.

Ques.—Who originated the tune and story of the "Arkansas Traveler"?

Ans.—This is so old that its origin is not known for sure. It is said that while traveling through the back country of Arkansas in the political campaign of 1840, Col. Sandy Faulkner gave the dialogue which he received from an old native who dilled between wisecracking remarks.

Holmes to give more of his time to other business. It is the intention of the firm to remodel their store. The front will be changed, and the wall that divides the clothing from the dry goods department will be taken out, this making a fine room 44x120

PLYMOUTH—Not since a water main was laid on West Ann Arbor street has it ever been known to freeze until last Sunday. Residents in that section of the city were surprised Sunday morning when they awoke to find that they were without a water supply. City officials say they cannot recall a time when there have been so many freeze-ups as have been experienced during the present winter. Steady freezing weather day and night for nearly four weeks has sent the frost deep into the ground. Some report that the earth is frozen to a depth of more than two feet in places, but this prevails only in a few places.
The lack of snow has had much to do with the hard frozen condition of the ground.—Mail.

An Ancient Volcano
is that of the discovery of an exposed volcano in the heart of the mountains in Montana that is thought to be several million years old.

BROOKLYN—Brooklyn school opened Monday after a week's vacation on account of scarlet fever. A checkup of the students with Dr. Schepeler, health officer, noted just 10 cases, but 30 more are in quarantining with the families. Of the total school registration of 236 there were 99 absent on Monday.—Exponent.

Lingane gave a miscellaneous shower for Miss Kathleen Culhane, who is to be the bride of Charles (Bud) Stapish sometime in April, at the home of the latter, northwest of Chelsea, Saturday evening. Cards were the diversion of the evening, high score going to Mrs. Ben Stapish, mother of the groom-to-be, and Chas. Heiler of Jackson, consolation to Mrs. Chas. Heiler and Patrick Lingane. A lot of fun was derived from a cake containing a thimble, a wedding ring and a dime. Miss Culhane received a number of lovely gifts. Out-of-town guests were from Detroit and Jackson.

About 42 relatives and friends assembled at 4:30 at their home on Adams st. and after the arrival of the guests Mr. and Mrs. Koch took their places before a background of ferns and with Rev. P. H. Grabowski officiating, renewed their marriage vows. The service, which was conducted in the German language, was followed by the German chorale, "A Mighty Fortress," sung by Julius H. Niehaus. Two solos, "Calm as a Night" and "Auld Lang Syne" were rendered by Prof. James Hamilton of Ann Arbor.

A two-course dinner was served at a table illuminated with gold tapers and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, surmounted by a miniature bride and groom. Over the table was suspended a gold wedding bell.

A program furnished entertainment for the evening and the following numbers were given:

Piano solo—La Secret—Jean Marie Kuebler.

Solo—The Rugged Cross—Julius H. Niehaus.

Selection—The Koch-Barbour Trio.

Poem—Ma and Me—Miss Loretta Bahnmiller.

THE STUDENT FRATERNITY MURDER

By Milton Propper

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Sturken during initiation into the Sigma Sigma fraternity, Stuart Jordan, university student, dies almost immediately. A physician declares he was poisoned. Convinced that he was murdered, the Phi Kappa Phi detective takes charge of the investigation.

CHAPTER II—An injection of evidence is shown to have been the cause of Jordan's death. Rankin finds all the student's shoes are marked with thumbtacks. His only known relative, his uncle, Howard Morlock, St. Louis banker, also his guardian, and his heir.

CHAPTER III—Two students from the vicinity of Vanderbilt, the home town, Ralph Buckley and Walter Henderson, are in the investigation. Henderson, a Phi Kappa Phi member, Arnold Prince, was chiefly responsible for Jordan's admission into the fraternity. A prominent lawyer, Edward Fletcher, present at the initiation, also engages Rankin's attention.

By a few questions, he discovered the extent and duration of the boy's association with Buckley. He had met Palmer at the social club directed by the university for its students, and engaged him in a game of pool. Previous to that, they had merely a nodding acquaintance in two English classes in which both studied under the same professors. Subsequently, the two boys began to study together outside of class.

Spending an evening now and then at cards, usually in Buckley's apartment. And in February, when the fraternity rushing season began, Palmer proposed him as a candidate, though unsuccessfully. Somewhat sportily inclined himself, he admired Buckley's example in sophistication and fast living. Otherwise, he knew nothing about him except that he spent a great deal and appeared to have funds.

"No doubt you supplied him with a large part of them," Rankin observed shrewdly. "You lost quite an amount, didn't you in these card sessions?"

The youth looked uncomfortable at the question. "Well, yes, I did," he acknowledged with obvious reluctance. "How could you guess that?" But it was just that Ralph had phenomenal luck at cards; I never managed to hold them. Anyhow," he added almost defiantly, "someone has to come out on the short end. And I'm as willing to take a chance as the next man."

"Of course." Tactfully, the detective shifted the subject. "You say that Buckley came to a smother at the opening of your rushing season, this winter?"

"Yes, but that was as far as it went. I acted as his sponsor and wanted him pledged and eventually initiated. But one of the other brothers didn't care for him and so he was dropped before the final selection was made. I don't know why; he's a d-d decent fellow." The point was evidently a sore one with the boy. "I still can't see what Ned Patterson had against him."

"Patterson?" Rankin's question held a fresh note of interest. "Was that who objected to him? What was Patterson's particular reason for opposing Buckley?"

Stanton shrugged. "I couldn't say, because we don't require an explanation for rejecting a mere prospect. By our rules, that objection can be purely arbitrary. Or for that matter, to dismiss a pledge who has proved unsatisfactory. Only it takes three dissenting voices to remove a pledge pin; and they are recorded by passing around the blackball box."

"Blackball box?" Rankin asked curiously. "Then you wouldn't know who is responsible for the adverse votes, where pledges are concerned?"

"That's right, the balloting is secret. Up to initiation, any brother can call for the box at any meeting to reconsider any one of them. Each brother deposits a ball in the box, white if favorable and black if not; no one watches him. The count-up decides the fate of the candidate in question."

"Do you know," Rankin asked of Palmer, "whether Buckley had any idea that it was Patterson who rejected him?"

The boy hesitated. "I . . . I guess I told him," he admitted apologetically, and Stanton frowned. "After the pledges were sewed up, I mentioned to Ralph how disappointed I was he hadn't got a bid, and then asked why Ned held a grudge against him. When he said he didn't even know Patterson, I was darned puzzled."

"And was he aware that Mr. Patterson acted as Jordan's sponsor, Mr. Palmer?"

"I think I told him that, too. Because the next thing he wanted to know was whether we had offered Stuart a pin. I answered that we had and spoke of Ned as having backed him up."

It was what the detective had expected to hear. "Then Buckley must have seen Stuart at that first smoker, since both were present," he said.

"Very likely, sir," Palmer agreed. "But if they met, I didn't notice a thing to suggest they were over-acquainted."

before; and I was with Ralph most of the evening. In fact, his question about Jordan was the first time he showed any interest in him. And the last as well, that I remember."

"How did Buckley react when you informed him of Mr. Patterson's association with Jordan?" Rankin inquired. "Did he make any comment about it?"

"Not a word, sir. Come to think of it, it made him change the subject right away, and he didn't raise it again."

"He never spoke deliberately of the dead boy or tried to influence your vote against him as a pledge?" The query evoked the detective's perplexity.

Again Palmer's reply was in the negative, which failed to accord with his conjectures. He was at a loss to comprehend Buckley's forbearance, when he should have been vengeful, until he realized that the young man's position forced him to be silent. He dared not shatter his rival's last, reach Jordan's ears and rebound on him. For the dead boy could set the university authorities to examine his previous record in school and thus discover the deception by which he had gained admission to Philadelphia. It was also probably this fear of disclosure that prompted him to avoid Jordan, if he encountered him at the fraternity smoker. Pondering the problem, the detective nodded in satisfied understanding.

"To return to your movements last night," he continued his interrogation. "Where did you and Buckley go for your drinks?"

Larry Palmer ran his hand through his hair. "Well, it isn't very clear to me," he said uncertainly. "But as far as I can remember, we only visited one place—a kind of a speakeasy on Spring Garden street. I don't know exactly where it was, an ordinary house somewhere between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets near."

"Yes, I know the place," Rankin interrupted sternly and critically. "How the devil do you come to be frequenting a joint like the Morton club?"

The boy recognized the reprimand implicit in his biting inquiry. "Oh, it wasn't my idea, sir," he explained quickly. "I never even heard of it until Ralph told me about it. He first mentioned it early in February and suggested that we ought to take it in some night. It was different, he said, from anything I'd been before. And when he spoke of it several times after that, my curiosity was aroused and I wanted to go; I had been to all the speakeasies nearer the campus. But somehow, things always turned up to prevent Ralph from making it until last night."

Well acquainted with the underworld, Rankin easily identified the establishment to which Palmer referred, from its location. The Morton club was generally known to the city authorities; actually, it was more than a speakeasy—an elaborate gambling house where faro, roulette and a dozen other games of chance were played nightly for high stakes.

"It was Buckley, then, who chose yesterday for the excursion to Morton's?" Rankin asked next.

"I suppose it was," Larry Palmer replied. "He happened to ask me last Wednesday when our initiation would be held, and when I told him the coming Tuesday, he seemed pretty disappointed. He said he intended visiting this 'dive' of his that evening. At first, I wanted him to postpone going there; I felt I ought to be at the initiation. But, as I was quite anxious to see the place, I finally agreed to go along with him yesterday."

"You had done much better to keep entirely away from it," Rankin commented brusquely. "What time did you get there?"

"A little before eight, sir. Ralph seemed to know the man at the door and had no trouble getting past him. He vouched for me and then we went into the barroom and sat down at a table for a few drinks. It was a large room at the end of a long hall."

"Yes, I'm acquainted with the layout," Rankin informed the boy. "And after that?"

For a moment, Palmer collected his thoughts. "I started to feel strange when I took my second drink," he related. "I had a funny sinking sensation in the pit of my stomach and a ringing in my ears. I tried not to let on to Ralph about it, not wanting to spoil his fun. So I kept talking to him real fast, while the ringing got louder and louder and the room began to turn around dizzily, until . . . well, I just thought the lights went out."

"There isn't the slightest doubt your drink was drugged," the detective declared positively. "Or that Buckley slipped knock-out drops into it when you weren't looking." He raised his hand to silence a question. "But finish your statement for me, Mr. Palmer. At what time did you leave the club?"

Greatly upset by the direct accusation, the boy shook his head unhappily.

"I can't remember that, sir; any more than I remember speaking to you, later. My last recollection till I found myself in bed this morning, was of talking to Ralph. For a while, it is all a blank; I must have been out completely. In fact, I don't recall ever quitting the speakeasy and working my way back to the house."

"You couldn't tell me then, when Buckley also departed from the club?"

"No, I lost complete track of him, Mr. Rankin. Only this morning, I thought of him again and wondered what had become of him. But I couldn't even remember whether he had returned here with me last night or not."

Rankin made no effort to conceal his disappointment. "And that is all the information you can give me as to what happened?"

"Yes, sir," the boy spoke with conviction. "Everything else has slipped my mind altogether."

"Except about your keys, Larry," Ted Stanton prompted him. "You ought to mention you couldn't find them when you got up today."

"What keys are those?" the detective asked quickly. "When did they disappear?"

"My regular keyring," Palmer replied, "holding my hall-box key, the house key to the front door and others. But I don't see that their loss means anything. I distinctly remember having them on reaching the speakeasy; they were in the same pocket as my house change and I fished them when I took out the taxi fare. And this morning, my money was still there but not them. I suppose they must have dropped out of my pocket while I was wandering around."

GRASS LAKE

There was a mad scrambling under tables and for the back door of the Lambert pool hall late Wednesday afternoon when an automobile driven by Fred Sager, crashed through the front of the building and ended up by parking in front of a pool table. A rum game was in session at the far end of the building and the players, taken unaware by the crash of glass and falling woodwork, scampered for shelter, not knowing what kind of a disaster had befallen them. However, the accident was a lucky one, for no one was in the front of the building, the sidewalk was clear and the only damage was the wrecking of one-half of the building front and a scratch or two on the Ford car. Mr. Sager was endeavoring to stop his car at the curb but instead of placing his foot on the brake he pushed down on the accelerator. Mrs. Sager was with her husband but neither were hurt. This is the third time this winter that cars have plunged over the sidewalk and into store fronts. The accumulation of ice and snow along the curb places the pavement on a line with the sidewalk.—News.

The SHEER Stockings are of an unusually fine texture. We'd wager you'd never notice the trifling imperfections if we didn't label them "irregulars".

The SERVICE Stockings also have a quality look about them. The reinforced hems and feet forecast loads of wear. Buy enough for your spring class and general needs.
