Jubilee Singers Will Appear Here April 20

Mason Jubilee Singers, a group of noted Negro songsters and entertainers, will appear at the Chelsea public school auditorium on Friday evening, April 20. The entertainment is being sponsored by the Kiwanis club and all the net proceeds will go to the Chelsea Boy Scout organization.

These singers are a nationally famous company of Negro vocalists, entertainers and radio favorites, and they will give one of those irresistible foot-tickling old-time jubilee entertainments.

Nothing in vocal music exceeds the quaint and haunting charm of negro voices of mellow gold. For sweetness, harmony and the expression of the varied emotions of the human heart, there is nothing else in the world like the music of the Southern darkies, whose spirituals and camp-meeting shouts are among the most distinctive and cherished heritages of American music.

And how those Mason Jubilees can sing! They make you feel with them the ecstatic joys and hopes of a race which even while in bondage permeated their music and became the dominant characteristic of their lives. It is no wonder that the American people almost universally find delight in this form of entertainment.

Their Jubilee presentation will include a popular concert program of appropriate songs, clean clever comedy, readings, and novelties. A plantation scene "Way Down South Before de War," will feature well known spirituals and jubilees, camp-meeting shouts, plantation melodies, and the rollicking care-free tunes and folk songs of the period.

Proceeds realized from this entertainment will be used by the Kiwanis club and Boy Scouts to construct a shelter for the boys on the campsite at Crooked Lake which was recently deeded to the local Scouts by E. E. Brown of Ann Arbor, with the Kiwanis club named as trustee.

Mark L. Sugden New Supervisors' Chairman

At the organization meeting of the county board of supervisors, held Tuesday, Mark L. Sugden, mayor of Saline, was elected chairman, with Fred Sott of the third ward, Ann Arbor, as vice-chairman. Mr. Sugden has been a member of the board for five years, also heading the finance committee.

In connection with the budget, which calls for an expenditure of $337,725, an item of $35,000 for mothers' pensions was discussed. Several members of the board contended that the privileges of the pension are being abused. One member proposed dropping the mothers' pension entirely when the money is used up, and leaving the care of the 197 families now receiving aid to the welfare department.

Another proposed hiring an administrator to re-investigate all cases applying for aid.

The board was notified of the action of the legislature in exempting farm personal property up to $1,000 from taxation. L. O. Cushing, chairman of the board of auditors, made an appeal that a fair cash value be rendered on all property for assessment purposes, whereas in the past, some supervisors have assessed only two-thirds or three quarters of the value of the personal property. With the $1,000 exemption there would be no motive for such action.

The motion to waive the collection penalty of three per cent on 1933 taxes on property offered as security for loans was voted by the board.

NEW SPEAKER INSTALLED

A decided improvement has been made at the Princess Theatre during the past week by installation of a Jensen-auditorium-speaker. This speaker is the best obtainable, according to the management, and is the same as was recently installed in the Michigan Theatre, Detroit. The tone is soft and clear, and will add greatly to the pleasure of local theatre patrons. The speaker was purchased by Mr. Weber through the Lloyd Heydlauff agency.

Cooking School To Be Conducted Here Two Days Next Week

Sessions Will Be Held Wednesday and Thursday, April 18 and 19. With Miss Adams in Charge.

Spring is here and with it new leaves and fresh life everywhere. Why not get in tune with nature and add new ideas to your daily menus—spring ingredients for your family—easy to take—in the form of appetizing, tasty salads and delectable desserts. New thrills which bring joy to your every day menus!

The spring demonstration of the Washtenaw Gas Company will be held Wednesday and Thursday, April 18 and 19, from 2:30 to 4:00 p. m. in the Chelsea public school auditorium. Everyone interested in cookery is invited to attend. There will be ideas to make your entertaining distinctive and new, economical ways of preparing every day food. There will be dainty cookies for afternoon teas and different surprise cookies for the family cookie jar!

The old fashioned short cake—one of the first harbingers of spring—will be there in all its glory. There will be angel foods, and the secret of their fluffiness and tenderness will be revealed.

Tabulate your cookery questions. They will be cheerfully answered. Why are my green vegetables always dark in color? Does that mean the vitamins are lost? How can I make a fluffy omelet that will not fall? Those in charge want you to feel that this is your demonstration and will gladly help you with your cookery problems.

The food prepared will be given away at the end of each demonstration. There will be valuable baskets of groceries, meat, spring flowers and flour from the Chelsea merchants. There will also be given away a beautiful Magic Chef range such as you saw in seven-out-of-the-nine-model kitchens at the Century of Progress. A stove anyone would be proud to own.

Miss Adams, Home Service Director for the Washtenaw Gas Company, will conduct the school, assisted by Miss Fern Palmer, a student in the Home Economics Department of the Michigan State Normal.

Occupants Injured When Car Is Ditched

An automobile accident Sunday forenoon between the H. A. Prudden home and the South Main street intersection on US-12 resulted in two bad scalp lacerations for Mrs. Ernest Gelow, who with a company of Detroit friends was returning to her home in Kalamazoo. The car was driven by Mrs. William E. Gelow of 1578 Leroy St., Ferndale, and the accident happened when a rear tire blew out and the car overturned into the ditch. She received two fractured ribs and cuts about the face but was able to return to her home.

Mrs. Ernest Gelow was brought to Chelsea Private hospital, where she will be confined for several days. The other occupants of the car, Mrs. Lewis Rozzolo, Mrs. Ada Bronson and baby, and four children of Mrs. W. E. Gelow, were uninjured.

The automobile, badly damaged, was driven back to Detroit.

Open House at Public School Friday Night

Open house will be held at the Chelsea public school on Friday night of this week, when the high school and all the grades will be in session.

The real purpose of this open house is for public inspection of the work which was done on the buildings with CWA funds this winter. All grades will be dismissed Friday afternoon and called into session in the evening so the public can see just how the school is operated.

School will be in session from 7:00 until 8:30. At 8:30 a program will be given in the auditorium for the pleasure of all who care to attend. The popular Chelsea High School Band will present a concert, under the direction of Wesley Smith, and Prof. W. D. Henderson of the University of Michigan will address the gathering.

Extensive repairs have been made in the grade building. In fact, the general interior appearance would compare favorably with an entirely new building. The high school building has also been greatly improved.

The public is cordially invited and urged to attend this open house.

Local Boxing Show Was Great Success

Tuesday's boxing show put on by the local American Legion post was in the opinion of the spectators, the fastest and snappiest show ever held in Chelsea. In 11 of the 12 bouts the boxers were evenly matched and all put up real fights—from the starting to the final gong it was fighters boxing in with gloves flying and fast action every second.

There were two knockouts and the rest all clear-cut decisions and every decision but one met with the approval of the fight fans, the one exception being the decision given to W. Moore over Locke in the second bout.

Four local boys won their matches: Les Proctor, Buzz Spalding, Russ Proctor and John Dvorak, while Keith and Steiner lost their bouts but tried hard and covered themselves with glory and a little blood.

If the Legion keeps up the high standard established by this, their opening card, Chelsea will become a mecca of fight fans and will come to the top in amateur boxing.

More equipment is being purchased to eliminate the wait between bouts and the next show, which will take place soon, will be speeded up and will provide even better entertainment.

The officials were:

Referee—Bob Armstrong, Jackson.
Judge—Jack Dunn, Ann Arbor.
Judge—Harold C. Spaulding, Chelsea.
Timekeeper—F. W. Merkel, Chelsea.

Bell man—Wm. Schatz, Chelsea.
Announcer—Wm. Rademacher, Chelsea.

Promoter—Morris Hoffman, Chelsea.

A. R. Mason of Jackson was the inspector of the Michigan Boxing Commission in charge.

Prizes were woolen sweaters and sweat shirts.

Decisions
A. Moore, Ann Arbor over Pacyma, Jackson.
W. Moore, Ann Arbor over Locke, Springfield.

Dvorak, Chelsea over Havens, Michigan Center.
Terry, Ann Arbor knocked out Harris, Jackson.

Fox, Jackson over Steiner, Chelsea.
Secord, Michigan Center over Keith, Chelsea.

Les Proctor, Chelsea over Orwick, Michigan Center.
Bradbury, Dexter over McBride, Jackson.

Spalding, Chelsea over Ebersol, Jackson.

Russ Proctor, Chelsea over McCleary, Ann Arbor.
DeWeese, Jackson knocked out Fisher, Napoleon.

SOME GOOD FOLKS AND—?

I've seen some good folks here and there, Down through the months and years;

They'd smile, or crack a joke or laugh Or with you show their teeth;

We first-rate folks to live among— They'd lend and borrow too, But 'O! if once their temper broke, 'Twas "cock-a-doodle-do!"

I've lived near folks so stingy— As tight as bark to tree, They'd skim their milk three times a day,

Then use that milk for tea; A hickory splint they used for broom, They'd scold because it wore, Their days were never long enough, And they were always sore.

Well—How about yourself, old man? Suppose you wait a bit, And turn the searchlight on yourself, And watch the dial slip.

Well, a-hem, I know I'm human-like, I'll own it, here an' now, And I'm resolved to mend my ways, If God will teach me how.

—Arthur Carlton.

MORENCI—Here is some good news for the school children from the fifth to the twelfth grade, inclusive. For the next five weeks school will be in session on Saturday, or six days a week. And now for the bad news: This will allow the upper grades to catch up with their work on school can be closed on time for the summer vacation. In case all are not delighted with the six-day school week, the only course of escape left is to write General Johnson of the NRA and demand a five-day week. During the time the school building was being redecorated and repaired by CWA workers, the seven upper grades were closed two weeks longer than the lower grades. It is now necessary to make up the time lost by holding school Saturday, Supt. Olsen said, or keeping school open until nearly the first of July.—Observer.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I wish you would settle an argument and state whether "America," "The Star Spangled Banner" or "Hail Columbia" is the national anthem of the United States?

Ans.—All three are used as national songs, but "The Star Spangled Banner" is the only one officially recognized.

Ques.—Is there any place in the United States where a license to marry is not required? If so, where is it?

Ans.—There is no such place within the boundaries of the United States proper, but in the territory of Alaska no license to marry is required.

Ques.—I would like to ask you what is meant by the Monroe Doctrine?

Ans.—The Monroe Doctrine was incorporated in President Monroe's message to Congress on Dec. 2, 1823. He said in substance at that time that we should consider any attempt on the part of any European power to extend their system of colonization on any part of this western hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety, and "it would be considered as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States. Therefore if any European power should declare war on, or try to establish a colony in, any country on this side of the Atlantic, they would have Uncle Sam to reckon with. That's the Monroe Doctrine in a nutshell.

Ques.—What course should I pursue to get a patent? And how am I to know that it doesn't infringe on some other patent?

Ans.—The proper course to take in applying for a patent is first to employ a reputable attorney, preferably a patent attorney. You will be obliged to submit a complete description of your invention, and it must be accompanied by a model (working model) or drawing suitably illustrating the same. As nearly two million patents to date are filed in the patent office, your attorney would have to make a search in the patent office to ascertain if yours is an infringement. The preparation of an application is a highly complex proceeding and usually cannot be conducted except through an attorney.

Ques.—What President was it that signed the old Volstead act on prohibition?

Ans.—The repealed Volstead Act was not signed by any President. It became a law during President Wilson's administration when a Republican Congress passed the bill over Wilson's head after he had vetoed the measure.

Ques.—We have decided to leave following question to your paper: A says that the farthest southern point of Texas is farther south than the farthest point in Florida. B says the Florida point is farther south. Who is right?

Ans.—B is right. The farthest southern point in Texas looks to be farther south than any point in Florida if one is looking at a flat map. The fact is, the Florida point is 49 miles farther south than Texas. Cape Sable, Fla. is in latitude 25 degrees 50 minutes, while the most southerly point in Texas is 25 degrees 5 minutes.

Ques.—I would like to ask you what is meant by a "Quaker tip?"

Ans.—This is a colloquial expression meaning payment by a kiss for some favor rendered. Its use is usually restricted to love-lorn swains in exacting payment from their sweethearts when they do them some great favor.

Ques.—In observing the movies very closely I notice tears rolling down the cheeks of the actresses. Do they really weep like that?

Ans.—No. The tears that you see the actresses shed in the movies are not real tears (unless they happen to be thinking of their salary cut). Then maybe they are. The tears you see are usually nothing more nor less than drops of glycerine.

Ques.—This is a colloquial expression meaning payment by a kiss for some favor rendered. Its use is usually restricted to love-lorn swains in exacting payment from their sweethearts when they do them some great favor.

TIME TO CHANGE OIL

DRAIN OUT SLUDGE, THE OIL EATER

This New Motor Oil stops sludge formation... cuts oil costs

Time now to drain out winter-worn oil and change to heavier grades, and when you change, decide that this summer you'll keep sludge out of your engine. For sludge clogs your oil lines, hinders lubrication, fouls your filter. It makes valves sluggish so you lose gasoline power. Finally, it causes rings to stick and pump oil. It is the greatest cause of high motor-oil consumption.

Keep sludge out by using ISO-VIS "D", the Anti-Sludge Motor Oil. It does not sludge under the hardest kind of driving. It keeps rings lively and free, reducing oil consumption to the minimum. That's why you have to add to it less frequently between drains.

Disarmament

AT THE present time much is heard about disarmament. To the world in general the word means the act of disarming, as by reducing the military or naval force of nations. As the years pass, it is being learned that this taking away of power is not in itself capable of bringing peace. Yet is not peace what the people of the whole world are seeking? The realization of harmony can never be gained while the thoughts of men are filled with envy, hatred and suspicion. If race conflicts be eliminated from the thoughts of men, then the host of evil beliefs, expressed in malice, jealousy, and the like, would disappear.

Suppose the right way of thinking, with the consequent blotting out of thoughts of hate, should spread until for the whole human family all sense of hatred had been destroyed. What a change would have come over the world! Indeed, to disarm the mind of evil modes of thinking would bring about the peaceful attitude of nations towards one another which people so much desire.

As nations are aggregations of people, each individual in the nations must disarm his own thought of fear and hatred. This true disarmament is not material, but spiritual. If, really desiring to have no need for arms, we must begin with ourselves and control our own thoughts.

Those who have learned through the teachings of Christian Science that man is the reflection of divine Love, God, the creator of all that is real, must live consistently with this teaching. They must refuse to think or express thoughts which include hatred. What will be the result? The love expressed in their thinking will be felt by all with whom they associate.

For those who have the correct understanding of Truth, now, not tomorrow or next week, is the time for them to begin by right thinking to help disarm the world of its fears.

One may say: "What good can my thoughts do for the world? I am only one standing against the widespread belief in the power of evil." Studying the life-example of Christ Jesus, we find that he was one against the world. He was his right knowing, right thinking, and right acting in vain? Are we truly his followers when we are not endeavoring to fulfill his mission? Was not this mission to bring to light peace, good will, universal love? The three years of his glorious healing ministry were filled by him in showing the world, for all time, how to disarm itself of all error. As in the time of Jesus, envy, hatred, suspicion were roused by his demonstrations of the truth, so at this period, Mary Baker Eddy writes (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 134), "Error is only fermenting, and its heat-hissing at the still, small voice of Truth; but it can neither silence nor disarm God's voice."

Joshua and his band were not discouraged because the walls of Jericho did not fall at once. It was necessary that the army should march around the walls each day, for six days, and on the seventh day seven times. And not only did the people march together, but before the walls fell they shouted as with one voice. By the individual recognition that the real man reflects only Truth and Love, so-called mortal mind is denied, and its false beliefs of envy, jealousy, suspicion, hatred, and fear are destroyed. Love is supreme. The Psalmist realized that men have the power to resist evil when he said, "The counsel of the Lord standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations." The counsel of the all-knowing Mind can and will guide men aright as they give up self-will and surrender to God, Truth. "The thoughts of his heart" are thoughts of peace. Are we listening to these spiritual thoughts or ideas of peace and harmony, or are we believing that hate and fear are irresistible? It is for each individual to answer aright this vital question.

SEA SCOUTS ORGANIZE

Much activity is being done by this new organization in Chelsea. The organization is most beneficial to any one of its members, who must be 15 years of age to become a member. Seventeen members already belong and membership was closed April 1. Closing its membership is due to a course of instruction which starts at this time. The officers of the organization are: Skipper, Wilbur Blomenschneider; 1st Mate, Albert Cooper; 2nd Mate, E. W. Eaton. A Sea Scout committee consists of A. L. Richards, chairman; Dr. A. L. Brock and Wm. Kolb.

The benefits derived from this organization and course of instruction are: First—teach the boy how to work; 2nd—build for him a good healthy body; 3rd—this instruction teaches him the very activities performed on a real U. S. N. ship and credits him with a year's training in the U. S. Navy should he wish to complete the course and enter the navy; 4th—builds up in the boy's mind the ambition to go ahead for better things, because the possibilities are certainly in his path should he seek them.

The one big opportunity which has already presented itself is the summer course planned for July. The U. S. government has loaned the U. S. S. Ypsilanti, who is commander of the Sea Scouts of this district, for this cruise. The Chelsea members can avail themselves of this cruise by becoming an "Ordinary" Sea Scout, which requires three months of training, and passing of examinations at the end of this period. This cruise will take two weeks. It takes them to Mackinac Island, where they will be guests at the Grand Hotel, two days of fishing on Lake Superior, two days at the World's Fair in Chicago, and there will be other stops at different ports along the route.

The first objective of the local unit is to earn uniforms for each boy, which costs $4.00 each; after which each boy will try to earn $12.00 which is required for each boy's expense of the cruise. As an officer of the Chelsea Sea Scouts allow me to say that these boys are more than willing to do anything to gain this end. And may we request of the people of Chelsea that if you have any job, large or small, such as hauling ashes, rolling lawns, spading gardens, washing windows or anything else you might want done, will you kindly call or inform any of the members or officers?

Members: K. Gilbert, F. Strieter, E. Hawley, M. Richards, D. Foster, G. Beisler, A. Guldin, N. Panaritis, L. Beutler, S. Slane, D. Hepburn, S. Banteli, G. Hart, G. Seitz, G. Huston, H. Ives, L. Plach.

Through the courtesy of Walter Harper, who has so willingly donated the front rooms over his garage to the Chelsea ship, has enabled the local unit to have their own home, and at this time we all wish to extend a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Harper for this courtesy.

Notice is hereby given to members of the Chelsea Ship that on Thursday night, April 12, at 8 p. m., the Chelsea Ship will mobilize at Ypsilanti for their first drill. Chelsea Sea Scouts will meet at 5:15 p. m. at Harper's Garage.

The Chelsea Post of the American Legion voted at their last meeting to sponsor the local Sea Scouts.

GIRL SCOUTS MEET

The Girl Scouts held a meeting at the school Monday evening, April 9. Miss Haist, county school nurse, secured for us a group of nurses from the U. of M. who put on a very fine program. They showed us how to care for sick people in our own homes. The demonstration included making a bed occupied by a patient, giving a bath in bed, caring for broken bones, etc. This program helped the girls on their second-class work.

We have not held regular meetings since the beginning of the scarlet fever epidemic but we hope to make up for lost time now that spring and sunshine has outwitted the fever germs.

Divisions of Yugoslavia

The Kingdom of Yugoslavia—a name officially adopted by royal decree of King Alexander, signed on October 3, 1929—had its old provinces abolished in 1929. The country was then divided into nine banats, called banovinas in Serbian, and the district of Belgrade, which corresponds to the District of Columbia. With one exception, the present political divisions are named from the rivers of Yugoslavia, by the same system used in France.

WRITES FROM ARIZONA

The following are excerpts from a letter recently received by his parents from Roy Ives, of Tucson, Arizona, also an original poem.

"Have just returned from a motor trip to Coolidge Dam, the Devil's Canyon, Roosevelt Dam, Phoenix and Casa Grande Ruins. It was quite a trip to make in a little more than 48 hours, but it was very beautiful mountainous driving, and educational, since we visited the Ponto Cliff Dwellers near the Apache Trail and the ruins where prehistoric Indians once lived and tilled irrigated fields. The desert is very beautiful there now and desert flowers are in bloom.

"Wheat around Phoenix is over two feet high and is headed out. The farming land surrounding Phoenix is very flat, much like it is in northern Ohio, and you can see for miles. The land is very rich and there is plenty of water from irrigation ditches."

The poem:

Arizona Mountains

Filled with rocks and pines and aspens, Gulleys, cliffs and needle beds, Here and there a snow-capped mountain.

Towers faintly o'er the rest; Source of many icy fountains, From their bare but snowy crests.

In the foothills and lower altitudes With their rocks, mesquite and greasewood,

There's a barren, different hue, Not a sign of yellow pine wood, Nor of aspens, nor of snow; But the prickly, thorny cacti Where the others will not grow.

With their rugged walls so steep, Here and there a canyon rocky Plores in the mountains deep; Twists and turns, a path untrodden, Onward, upward thro' the mass, An occasional streamlet running In a narrow, crooked path.

And this lonely mountain stream, Flowing downward thro' the canyon, Forming falls of glimmering sheen; Plunging now, and then is lying In a little quiet pool, 'Till the desert sands it reaches, Making an oasis cool.

—Roy G. Ives.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That whereas House Enrolled Act Number 30 of the 57th Legislature of Michigan in Extra Session of 1934 provides that within ten days after the approval of said act by the governor, the governor shall issue his writ of election for the purpose of submitting the approval or disapproval of said act, and the several projects therein provided to the qualified electors of this state:

Now, therefore, inasmuch as I have heretofore this day duly approved of said act, and in accordance with the duty and authority so in me imposed, I do hereby designate Monday, April 30th, 1934, as the date of the election in said act prescribed, to be held on said day at the place and at the hour designated in this act, for the submission of the qualified electors of this state to the question of the approval or disapproval of said act and of the several projects provided for in said act.

Dated this 25th day of March, A. D. 1934.

(Signed)
(L. S.) William A. Comstock,
Governor of Michigan.

By the Governor:
Frank L. Fitzgerald,
Secretary of State.

State of Michigan,
57th Legislature,
Extra Session of 1934,
(Bill No. 32)

HOUSE ENROLLED ACT NO. 30

AN ACT to provide for the contracting of a debt by the state to suppress and prevent an alarming and dangerous dislocation in the social and economic life of the people of this state; to provide for the furnishing of employment for such purpose, and the issuance of bonds therefor; to provide for the construction of certain projects; to provide revenues and taxes for the payment of said bonds; and to provide a referendum thereon.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. Declaration of policy.

Unprecedented economic dislocation, resulting from a financial and industrial depression, occasioning widespread unemployment, loss of savings, of homes and of farms, and a general suffering, destitution and discontent, is causing a state of threatened unrest and disorder in the state of Michigan. Some overt acts are now occurring and others of a more serious character are threatened. The safety of this state requires that this condition be suppressed so far as it is existing and that it be prevented insofar as it is threatened. The suppression and prevention of this condition cannot be adequately accomplished by force. It is contrary to the genius of our people to attempt to suppress or prevent it by force, and it is wiser to do so by other and peaceful means. This condition can be best suppressed and prevented by removing the cause of its existence, which is the widespread unemployment, the loss of savings, homes and farms, and the resulting suffering, destitution and discontent. This is proposed to be accomplished by providing employment to persons unemployed within the state by embarking upon a program of state construction of public works as a necessary, useful and state-wide character, and to borrow from the National Industrial Recovery Act, under the provisions of section ten, of article ten, of the state constitution, the sum of thirty-seven million, eight hundred seventy-four thousand, four hundred fifty-eight dollars and forty-two cents, and to issue general obligation bonds of the state therefor, pledging the full faith and credit of the state for the payment thereof and of the interest thereon. The sum so borrowed shall be used exclusively for the purposes hereinafter set forth: Provided, however, That, if under the National Industrial Recovery Act or other laws of the United States of America federal governmental agencies shall advance to the state of Michigan, a direct grant of money for any of the purposes hereinafter set forth, the amounts of said money shall be used to cancel bonds issued under this act. In no event shall bonds be issued in excess of the aggregate actual cost, as determined by the state administrative board, of the projects authorized by sections six and seven of this act.

Sec. 2. Creation of state debt; issuance of bonds. The state administrative board is authorized to issue and sell on behalf of the state of Michigan, in the sum of thirty-seven million, eight hundred seventy-four thousand, four hundred fifty-eight dollars and forty-two cents, and to issue general obligation bonds of the state therefor, pledging the full faith and credit of the state for the payment thereof and of the interest thereon. The sum so borrowed shall be used exclusively for the purposes hereinafter set forth: Provided, however, That, if under the National Industrial Recovery Act or other laws of the United States of America federal governmental agencies shall advance to the state of Michigan, a direct grant of money for any of the purposes hereinafter set forth, the amounts of said money shall be used to cancel bonds issued under this act. In no event shall bonds be issued in excess of the aggregate actual cost, as determined by the state administrative board, of the projects authorized by sections six and seven of this act.

Sec. 3. Creation of state debt; issuance of bonds. The state administrative board is authorized to issue and sell on behalf of the state of Michigan, in the sum of thirty-seven million, eight hundred seventy-four thousand, four hundred fifty-eight dollars and forty-two cents, and to issue general obligation bonds of the state therefor, pledging the full faith and credit of the state for the payment thereof and of the interest thereon. The sum so borrowed shall be used exclusively for the purposes hereinafter set forth: Provided, however, That, if under the National Industrial Recovery Act or other laws of the United States of America federal governmental agencies shall advance to the state of Michigan, a direct grant of money for any of the purposes hereinafter set forth, the amounts of said money shall be used to cancel bonds issued under this act. In no event shall bonds be issued in excess of the aggregate actual cost, as determined by the state administrative board, of the projects authorized by sections six and seven of this act.

auditor general. Such signatures may be in facsimile in the discretion of the state administrative board. Interest coupons with lithographed facsimile signatures of such officers may be attached to such bonds. The bonds herein authorized and the interest thereon shall mature serially in equal annual amounts as nearly as possible, but not later than thirty years from the date of issuance, but such bonds shall be callable at par plus accrued interest, at the option of the state administrative board, at any interest-paying date from the date of issuance, shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed five per centum per annum, shall be sold at not less than the principal amount thereof together with accrued interest and shall be in the principal sum of not less than one hundred dollars or multiples thereof; and said bonds shall be payable in such funds as are, at the time of maturity, legal tender for the payment of debts due the United States. The bonds and the interest thereon shall be subject to the state and all forms of taxation by the state or by any political subdivision thereof, or by any municipal corporation therein. The state administrative board is hereby empowered and authorized, on behalf of the state, to make such contracts and execute such instruments containing such terms, provisions and conditions, not inconsistent with the terms and conditions herein set forth, as may be deemed necessary or convenient for the purpose of obtaining the loan herein authorized. The bonds until sold shall be deposited with the state treasurer to be delivered by him as directed by the state administrative board.

Sec. 3. Registration of bonds; registration book; cancellation. All bonds issued under this act shall be numbered consecutively and shall be registered in a book provided for that purpose to be kept in the office of the auditor general, said book to contain a record of the date of the execution and issuance of the bond, the number thereof, the amount and the date of maturity, the name of the purchaser and the registered holder thereof. If registered, together with such other information as the state administrative board may require to be kept. The auditor general shall also keep a register showing the date of payment of each bond, and of the interest thereon, indicating specifically the number of the voucher by which such payment is made. Upon the payment of any bond, the same shall be cancelled and shall be filed with the auditor general for its payment.

Sec. 4. Creation of fund and appropriation. The proceeds of the bonds herebefore authorized to be

Irish Setter Said to Be Able to Hypnotize Prey
In his native country the Irish Setter's true worth is enjoyed. Its employment in the field being the conclusion of all others throughout the Emerald Isle. Developed there from the "setting" Spaniels, he first appeared in their color, red and white. Through careful breeding white has been discarded and is never present in the rich golden coat, chestnut color of mahogany predominating in the breed specimens. Presumably there is also a mixture of the old Spanish pointer in all setters, for from so other dog could a breed inherit the wonderful scenting power, the status attitude when on point. Nor their style in drawing up to the game holding their spellbound at the will of the hunter.

When occasion demands the Irish setter displays the courage of a lion. Yet he is notably good-tempered with man. His hazel or brown eyes shine in their expression his careless indifference that endears him to all dog lovers in and out of the field. Few dogs which grace the show bench are more admired than this 60-pound creature, reputedly the most intelligent of the setter family. Behind a laterally oval skull there is plenty of brain room. This oval-shaped foundation produces much of the well-chiseled outward conformity that designates him as a classical head.

For the purpose of providing for the payment of the principal of and the interest upon bonds issued for the purposes set forth in this section, it shall be the duty of the legislature to appropriate sufficient sums of money for such purpose. THE STUDENT FRATERNITY MURDER

Milton Propper

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Stricken during initiation into the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, Stuart Jordan, university student, died in the laboratory of the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity house, Philadelphia, detective, took charge of the investigation.

CHAPTER II—An injection of cause is shown to have been the cause of death. Jordan, a student of the university, was a member of the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity. His only known relative is his uncle, Edward Fletcher, a banker, also his guardian, and his heir.

CHAPTER III—Two students from the vicinity of Vandellia, Ill., Jordan's home town, Ralph Buckley and Walter Jordan, were in the laboratory of the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity house, Philadelphia, on the night of the initiation, and his key, including a key of the fraternity house, stolen from him.

CHAPTER IV—A significant fact discovered is that a student, Larry Palmer, a Phi Beta Sigma member, was charged with the murder of Stuart Jordan, a student of the university, and his key, including a key of the fraternity house, stolen from him.

CHAPTER V—Jordan has been paying by check, for a month to some unknown person. The student's checks are not among his effects. Howard Merrick, a student of the university, is suspected of the murder. He is a student of the university, and his key, including a key of the fraternity house, stolen from him.

Rankin did not consider he was being unduly distrustful in suspecting Howard Merrick. The situation created by Mr. Jordan's will was too significant to be disregarded; the temptation it produced perhaps too strong for the guardian's probity. In the cold light of reason, it furnished an all-powerful motive for the boy's murder. For all the detective was aware, Merrick had some urgent desperate need for the estate. And under these equivocal circumstances, the nephew had actually died less than two months before his birthday.

Immediately, however, Rankin was confronted by the problem of Mr. Merrick's opportunity to commit the crime. Each suspect in turn, who was not a member of the Phi Beta Sigma, presented the same problem. If, as Merrick claimed, he had left Vandellia at eleven o'clock the previous morning to come east, he could not have been in Philadelphia the Tuesday night of the murder or be personally responsible for the crime. And an accomplice among those who attended the initiation was improbable. Clearly Rankin must have Mr. Merrick's journey and his movements the past forty-eight hours investigated.

This was his conclusion when Simpson entered Captain Thomas' office to announce to him another visitor, asking for the officer in charge of the university case.

"Well, bring him in here, Simpson," Rankin instructed, "and let's hear what his business is."

Ushered into his presence, the new comer was obviously a college man, but slightly older than the average undergraduate. Perhaps twenty-six, he featured and intelligent, his slender mustache and pinches added several more years to his age.

"I am handling this unfortunate affair," the detective introduced him. "My name is Rankin. What can do for you, Mr.—?"

"Howard, Kenneth Howard," the stranger informed him, "I am a graduate student in the department of chemistry at the college."

"You have some information about the fraternity house murder?" Rankin inquired. "Were you acquainted with Jordan, Mr. Howard?"

"No, I was not. But my reason for coming may have some bearing on the case, though I hope not. The newspapers all say the poison used to kill Jordan was strychnine. The juice of hemlock, I am not sure, is not easy to obtain and it was one of the alkaloids with which I was working. This morning, I measured my supply at the laboratory and discovered that some of it, and some strychnine, as well, were missing."

The detective nodded, gratified that the publicity given the name of the poison in the papers had brought the results he hoped it would. "You kept it in the chemistry laboratory at the university?" he asked.

"Yes, for my specific experiments," Howard replied.

"I see. And for your experiments, you have in your workroom a quantity of alkaloids, including conium?"

"Just a little at once. They are seldom used and the department orders them, only when required, a few ounces at a time."

"Could conium be procured from any other departments in the college, where the handling of chemicals is part of the curriculum?"

"I doubt it, Mr. Rankin," Howard answered. "That was how I knew nothing was wrong in the first place."

I compared my stock this morning with my chart of what remained; and ascertained I was shy two grains of strychnine and over six drops of the hemlock alkaloid."

"More than sufficient to cause a great deal of damage," Rankin commented grimly. He leaned across Captain Thomas' desk. "From your last check-up, Mr. Howard, have you any idea what day they disappeared? When did anyone have the opportunity to remove them?"

"I am almost positive I lost them day before yesterday. On Tuesday, I happened to be experimenting with both poisons and I weighed them in the morning before starting. None was missing then; and I made no mistake about the amounts I measured out for my tests. The fact is that during the afternoon, I left the laboratory several times for maybe twenty minutes or more."

"The definiteness of the probable date was pleasing; the Tuesday he mentioned was that of the tragedy."

"Couldn't the theft have occurred just as well yesterday, during your absence?"

"No, because the place is always under lock-and-key," Howard replied. "Short of breaking in—and there is no sign of that—it is impossible to enter."

"You have the only key to the room in the department?" the detective inquired.

"Oh, no, my adviser, Professor Harris, also owns one," the young man returned quickly. "But he assured me this morning that he lent it to no one and that it was not out of his possession either Tuesday or Wednesday."

Rankin's voice held the grave note which usually accompanied an important inquiry.

"Have you any suspicion of the identity of the culprit? Any reason to believe he was some particular person?"

Howard shrugged his shoulders carelessly. "I'm afraid not, Mr. Rankin. But almost anyone could have sneaked into the laboratory Tuesday afternoon and taken the poison."

"Who, for instance, was aware you were dealing with a variety of poisons? I just want a general notion of how widespread the fact was."

"Well, Professor Harris of course, and the assistant professor in organic chemistry, Mr. Nichols." The visitor reflected a moment. "Then outside the department, my roommate in the graduate dorms, Frank Powell, knows of my efforts; he is in the medical school. And yes, so does Ned Patterson."

Rankin remained casual. "You didn't observe Mr. Patterson near your workroom on Tuesday afternoon?"

Beginning a negative nod, Howard's eyes suddenly widened, as at an unexpected recollection.

"Yes, I did," he exclaimed in evident excitement. "In fact, I remember he was actually in the laboratory itself while I was out, though I didn't think anything of it. About three o'clock, I went downstairs to consult Professor Harris, and stayed with him twenty minutes. When I returned, he was in my room standing by the shelves of chemicals—almost as if he had been meddling with them."

"What excuse did he make for his presence?" Rankin asked, still unmoved.

"He said he had merely stopped in to learn how my research was progressing. And not finding me in, he had been waiting."

Rankin rose to his feet. He was confident he had learned all Howard could tell him; and he did not wish to raise the train of speculation and suspicion in his visitor's mind that had already begun in his.

"Well, whoever was guilty of the theft," he concluded the interview, "may have left some clue in the laboratory. Perhaps his fingerprints; you might not have destroyed them in handling the bottles he also touched. Anyhow, I would like to have our finger-print expert accompany you back to the university and make an examination of your laboratory."

Howard also rose. "That's all right," he agreed. "I don't know whether he'll have any success, but he's welcome to investigate as far as he likes."

"Then I'll speak to Mr. Johnson at once," the detective said, "and send him along with you. And thank you for coming with this information."

He did not add that one of his first tasks, after the two men had gone, would be to obtain a specimen of Ned Patterson's fingerprints at the fraternity house, without his cognizance. Should the search be productive, they would be ready for purposes of comparison.

Until he had unmistakably established that the poison was strychnine, it would be premature to suspect him of the crime. In his case, however, there was no doubt of his opportunity to commit it. By his own statement, he had entered the initiation chamber at eight-thirty, having relinquished his position beside Jordan on the excuse of being ill. From the seated line of brothers behind the plectra, he could approach his intended victim more safely to untie his wrist. Particularly was the substitution suspicious in view of his disgust and anxiety while being interrogated after the tragedy. He had only access to Jordan's quarters. He could therefore have marked all of his shoes. Rankin was certain that if Patterson killed the boy, he had acted for himself and not to aid Buckley, against whom he had ynted as a candidate and whom he obviously disliked. Were they in cahoots, Buckley would not have needed to enter the house at all.

The real obstacle in making out a case against Patterson was that of motive. For ostensibly, he was Jordan's friend; up till Tuesday itself, he appeared to favor the boy, recommending him to membership and guiding him. Otherwise, unless he deliberately masked a long-standing enmity, he would have prevented Stuart from becoming a pledge. It followed then that the cause for hatred, if any existed, was of extremely recent origin. But what could have happened in the past few days to turn esteem abruptly into murderous fear or hostility? Groping for an answer, Rankin recalled the scene he had overheard at the Morton club, when the sponsor explained why he could not pay Carl Walton his gambling debt. Something, he said, had prevented him from obtaining the money both on Tuesday and Wednesday. Was that something the student's murder or, in some fashion, connected with the motive behind it?

Whether or not this supposition was far-fetched, the incident at least revealed Patterson's desperate need of money. And the coincidence of events was remarkable; his need; the theft of the poison and the murder were all developments of the same day, Tuesday. So significant was this sequence that Rankin felt it justified further steps against the sponsor. Besides securing his finger-prints, he ought to search his room and belongings at the fraternity; possibly he might discover some trace of the missing chemicals. For the present, too, he resolved to have Patterson watched and followed. There was always the likelihood that some of his future actions would be incriminating.

Kenneth Howard's visit did not end the unanticipated occurrences of the day. Scarcely had he gone with the finger-print expert, when the phone bell rang. The call came from the dormitory office at the university; the detective had no difficulty in recognizing over the wire the deep, slightly crackling tones of Mr. Thorne.

Rankin did not consider he was being unduly distrustful in suspecting Howard Merrick. The situation created by Mr. Jordan's will was too significant to be disregarded; the temptation it produced perhaps too strong for the guardian's probity. In the cold light of reason, it furnished an all-powerful motive for the boy's murder. For all the detective was aware, Merrick had some urgent desperate need for the estate. quarters, he parked his car behind a long, low gray building, outside the university dormitories. As he turned into the Gothic arch within which, on the right, was the post office, he found Mr. Thorne standing outside, waiting to meet him. And he was amazed to observe his agitation; the postmaster nervously intertwined his hands and seemed genuinely relieved at the advent of the detective.

"Thank goodness you're here, Mr. Rankin," he burst out. "The same lady has come again for Mr. Jordan's letters. Just three minutes ago she's inside now waiting for me to look in the last mail for a letter."

Rankin could scarcely credit his good fortune. "She's back? You haven't told her you're holding one for me?"

"I've said nothing, sir." The postmaster was breathless. "I was hoping to delay her until you got here; so I pretended I still had to open one bag of mail before I could be sure whether Jordan had any letters. Then I sneaked from the office by the back door, through the dorm behind and ran out to stop you. But I'm afraid she'll get frightened and leave if she has to stay much longer."

The detective's decision was instantaneous. "Here is what I want you to do, Mr. Thorne," he instructed. "Return and inform her of the letter; you can even describe it for her. If this is the one she's interested in, her reactions to finding it might explain her motives. Meanwhile, I'll follow you in the front and watch her until I consider I ought to interfere. But whatever happens," he paused for emphasis, "do not permit her to get hold of the letter under any circumstances. You understand? And Mr. Thorne, Rankin finished, "behave as naturally as you have up to now. We stand a better chance of learning her game if we don't rouse her suspicions."

He allowed the postmaster a minute to enter the office from the rear before he used the front door. A woman leaned over the counter, beautiful in spite of her obvious anxiety, but closer to thirty years than twenty-five. Lacking a fresh and unspoiled quality, her charm seemed to Rankin unpleasantly dulled by sophistication. Callousness was apparent in her full sensuous lips and invitation, though without sincere emotional warmth. In her piercing black eyes, a wedding ring glittered on her well-manicured left hand.

Both her pose and her decorative costume proclaimed her wealth and position. But even the contrasted colors of her dress seemed coarse to the detective, and the earrings she wore, ostentatious. As she hunted for a particular mail box, Rankin moved within hearing distance.

The postmaster, holding an envelope in his hand, was saying, "This letter from Gladys to Mr. Jordan. But that's the only one."

"Never mind; that's the one I want," the woman interrupted; she tried unsuccessfully to dissemble her eagerness and relief. "The one I sent him."

"That's very good of you, Mr. Thorne," the detective returned. "I'll be out for it this afternoon. Can you tell whether it is a personal letter or not?"

"Well, it looks private. If that's what you mean," Mr. Thorne replied. "It was mailed early yesterday. . . . And Mr. Rankin . . ." he paused. "I think I ought to tell you there was a lady here today, asking for his mail, too; whether anything had come for him."

Rankin's voice held a note of wonder. "A lady to find out about his letters? What was she like?"

"Quite young, sir—hardly more than twenty-five and very attractive," was the response.

"And precisely when did she stop in to make this inquiry?" the detective queried.

"At about ten, after I'd distributed the first mail which arrived at nine o'clock. She asked kind of anxiously if a letter had come this morning for Mr. Stuart Jordan. And when I said none had, she looked disappointed and worried, as if she was expecting one."

She wanted to know what time this next mail would be sorted; then she thanked me nervously and left in a hurry without another word."

"You have no idea, I suppose," Rankin demanded eagerly, "who she was?"

Mr. Thorne was positive. "No, she didn't say why she was interested in Mr. Jordan's mail. To tell the truth, I was so surprised by her questions that I gave her the information she was after and she went, before I had a chance to think it over. Then the only thing I could do was get in touch with you; only I wasn't able to get around to it until this letter arrived."

"I've decided to call for it at once," Rankin announced abruptly. "This requires immediate investigation. Expect me in about ten minutes, Mr. Thorne."

Hurriedly, he rang off and hastened from headquarters into the city hall courtyard below, where his machine was parked. There was ample cause for his growing excitement. In Mr. Thorne's recital, which the postmaster could not appreciate. It was the first indication in the case that a woman had had some contact with the dead boy. Thus far, all the evidence negated the existence of any girl in his life; the absence of feminine letters, the ignorance of members of the fraternity and Mr. Merrick's testimony. And now suddenly out of nowhere, this woman appeared, mysteriously interested in the student and, in all probability, being at least indirectly concerned in his death. Otherwise, she would have come forward openly and offered her assistance, rather than hide and surreptitiously attempt to learn about his mail.

Twelve minutes after leaving headquarters, he parked his car behind a long, low gray building, outside the university dormitories. As he turned into the Gothic arch within which, on the right, was the post office, he found Mr. Thorne standing outside, waiting to meet him. Seniors Succeed!

On last Thursday and Friday evenings, our Senior class presented "The Whole Town's Talking" which proved to be one of the biggest successes our school has ever seen.

Compliments poured in so heavily on the splendid work of the cast in portraying their various roles, the smoothness with which it was presented, the able directing of Miss Hazard and just everything in general, that the quarters couldn't stay fast enough to meet the demands of the givers of those compliments, though we know it was all very sincerely said. For after all, wasn't it the truth?

The crowds could have been bigger—can't that always be said?—but the ones who did come certainly enjoyed the play and doubtless more than one was nearly exhausted from laughter. For, who could possibly have gotten into as many scrapes as Bud Gulde as Chester Blimey, the hick bookkeeper, or out of as many as Roger Hinderer, as Mr. Simmons, the general "fixer"? What with all the suave ways of Paul Rogers as Roger Shields, the heart interest furnished so ably by Helen Hofferling as Ethel Simmons; that little touch of haughtiness and drama by Barbara Blecker as Letty Lythe the motion picture star; that realistic "wildness" if we may express it thus, of Arlene Satterthwaite as Mrs. Simmons; that sweet neighborliness of Jean Irwin and Mildred Beeman as Lyla and Sally; the realism of Jim Panaritis as the taxi driver; and Gladys Abdon's able impersonation of the maid; Mattew McGuffigan, who did so well as the motion picture director and last but not least, Ruth Palat's fine portrayal of Sadie Bloom, the night club hostess—the Senior play has left the whole town talking!

Second Grade
They are going to have a talking, moving picture of the three little pigs soon.

We are studying the names of the days of the week. We have a poem, "Kitchen Kalender" by Hugh Lofting which aids us and here it is:

Partly, and Bun day
Ought to be Monday,
Then Irish Stew-day
Falls on a Tuesday.

Dine-out-with friends day,
Let's make that Wednesday;
Next, Apple-pie day,
Should always be Friday.

Sausage-in-butter day,
Put that down Saturday;
But what about Sunday?
Oh! take a rest one day.

Godfrey C. Fitzmier Killed In Auto Crash

Godfrey C. Fitzmier of Ann Arbor, former resident of Freedom township, was killed early Saturday morning when the car which he was driving toward Ann Arbor crashed into a truck stalled on US-12 with a broken wheel, five miles west of Ann Arbor. Mr. Fitzmier, accompanied by Edwin Renau of Saline and Gottlieb Koenigster of Ann Arbor, were returning from a visit with friends near Chelsea when the accident occurred. He apparently did not see the flames placed at the rear and sides of the truck, and drove into the rear end. His chest was crushed against the steering wheel. The other passengers received lacerations about the head and were taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, but were reported not critically injured.

Early Friday evening Mahlon C. Dunkel of Chelsea ran into the rear of the same truck shortly after the wheel broke off. His companion, Mrs. Helen Hutzel, received a slight injury to her knee and the car was badly damaged.

Mr. Fitzmier was born January 4, 1876, in Freedom township, where he resided until 1928, when he moved to Ann Arbor. He was married to Emma Kuhl, who died in 1922. Surviving are two sons and three daughters, Walter, Arnold, Clara, Helen and Irene, all of Ann Arbor; three sisters, Mrs. Philip Feldkamp of Freedom township, Mrs. August Kuhl of Shar on township and Mrs. Charles Kittel of Ann Arbor, and a brother, Ernest, of Chelsea.

Funeral services were held at 1:30 Monday afternoon at the Muehl chapel, Ann Arbor. Rev. A. A. Schoen of Dexter officiated and interment was at Hope cemetery, Freedom.

First Community Chorus

The community chorus movement in the United States was launched in Rochester, N. Y., in 1912, by Harry Barnhart, a singer, musician, conductor and a pupil of Maestro Cortez and Verdi. For some time while in vaudeville a feature of Mr. Barnhart's act had been to get the audience to join in the chorus of his songs. Discovering that everybody wanted to sing and could under proper direction, he determined to develop the idea. While in Rochester he secured permission from the mayor to appear with the municipal band in Convention hall and have the people sing. The audience responded enthusiastically and there was formed the first community chorus.

Hindu Superstition

The Hindu considers it unlucky to visit the sick at night, lest some prowling demon follow the visitor and then haunt the sick one.

International Law

By International law is meant the system of rules that civilized nations agree to observe and agree to be obligated as a common law for regulating their mutual rights and duties in peace and war. Hugo Grotius has been called the father of international law and in 1625 prepared a great treatise covering many debated points. In 1873 the Institute of International Law was founded by the leading jurists of the civilized world. America was represented by Francis Pickens Field. The Hague tribunal, the World court and the League of Nations are all developments of the attempt to stabilize law among the nations.

STOP GETTING UP NIGHTS
Lax the Bladder With Juniper
(Oil, Buchu, Etc.)

Flush out the impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of BU-GETS, the bladder laxative, also containing Buchu leaves, etc. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Guaranteed by J. Vincent Burg, Druggist.

Victims of a Woman
When men curse the inventor of stiff collars, they are cursing a woman—though doubtless few of them know it. She was an American, Mrs. Hannah Montague, the wife of a blacksmith. She washed her husband's shirts—and in doing so noticed that the collar was nearly always more dirty than the shirt itself. So, with a sudden inspiration, she cut out the collar and put hands around the necks. Then she starched the collars. They stayed clean longer. Mr. Montague was agreeably surprised. He told his friends. That was a century ago. A tablet on a house in Troy, N. Y., still bears witness to the memory of the inventor of stiff collars.

Unearth Ancient Altar
A fourteenth century altar stone in a good state of preservation was unearthed in grounds at Hadley, England, adjoining a chapel building, which for more than 200 years has been used as a cowshed, but was recently restored and reopened. During the course of excavation work the leveling of a small mound revealed a slab which appeared to be the base of a chimney. For weeks it attracted no attention until a well known antiquary and architect paid a visit and identified the slab as the altar. Five crosses were found on the under side of it.

Escape From Devil's Island
A seven-years' record of the notorious Devil's Island penal colony off French Guiana shows that prisoners attempt to escape on an average of one every fourteen hours. About 25 per cent of them are never recaptured, having gained their freedom—some died at sea or in the jungle. Collier's Weekly.

Vegetables and Grains From New World to Old

Maize, or Indian corn, and the tomato are among notable contributions of the New world to the old. The sweet potato is a native of America, the tropical and semi-tropical regions being its home.

The eggplant is said to be native to Peru, while garden beans also flourish in wild state on the slopes of the Andes. The various beans have a wide distribution, however, and the origin of many of the cultivated varieties is uncertain.

Strawberries are native to both Europe and America, and the varieties presently cultivated in this country are the product of crossings of the European and American varieties.

Oats, barley and rye are thought to have been developed from grasses which once grew wild along the basins of the Mediterranean. A Persian origin is ascribed to wheat, and buckwheat is thought to be of Siberian or Manchurian origin.

The parentage of our cultivated cabbage, lettuce, spinach, asparagus, celery and most root crops is traced to southern Europe. Apples, pears, cherries and other such fruits are of European or near eastern origin. From central Asia the rhubarb is supposed to have come, and from farther east the onion, cucumber, horse radish and melon. The banana is at home in all tropical countries, while the citrus fruits are from southern Asia.

Life Span May Increase, Is Belief of Scientist

It is the belief of a German scientist, that in the not too distant future an extension of the life-span of mankind is possible. He bases his belief on the recent advancement of research into the processes of life. In search into the processes of life, he found that there are five factors which make up a "chemical psyche." These are the enzymes, hormones, vitamins, activators and inhibitors. Vitamins and hormones are distinguished in the subposition that hormones have their source in animal life and vitamins in plant life. However, one class of hormones has been found to exist in plant life. Hormones are the chemical messengers from internal secretions that excite activity and vary greatly with the vitamins in their dosage. A slight overdose of a hormone can be very detrimental while to be harmful a vitamin dose must be increased at least 1,000 times.

Father of Factories

Richard Arkwright, the inventor of the spinning-frame, was born on December 23, 1732. Before the days of Arkwright, British cotton manufacture was a home industry, carried on in the cottages of the workers. His invention of the water-frame, which made spinning—a mechanical process for which water-power could be used, started the factory system, which, after a period during which the old methods and the new existed side by side, completely killed the domestic industry. A curious fact about Arkwright is that, although his invention revolutionized cotton manufacture he had very little mechanical skill himself, and had to enlist the services of another man to carry out his designs. Like other inventors of the period, too, he had considerable trouble over patent rights. But he was luckier than some in being able to make money. He died a comparatively wealthy man.—Montreal Herald.
