Severe Wind Storm Sweeps This Section

The intense heat wave of the past week was broken Friday afternoon by a 60 mile gale, accompanied by a torrential rain which swept through the southern section of Michigan, leaving death and destruction in its wake. Following the storm electric light service in Chelsea was interrupted for several hours and telephone service through the county was badly crippled. In less than half an hour, the mercury fell from 85 to 73 degrees.

In rural districts, especially the western part of the county, barns and silos were blown down and hay and grain scattered by the wind. At Cavanaugh Lake a large tree crashed into the corner of the Donaldson cottage.

Reuben W. Sadt, 48, of Sharon township, who was mowing marshland hay when the storm broke, was struck by a falling tree and pinned to the ground. With him were his sons, L. Dean and Howard, 8 and 9 years of age. One of them ran to inform the mother, and shortly after she called a physician the telephone wires became disabled.

Neighbors worked in the pouring rain, sawing the tree to extricate Mr. Sadt. He was taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor, where his condition is reported as serious. His injuries consist of a broken leg, a broken back, broken collar bones and three fractured ribs.

Judge Rules No Cause For Action In Suit

On Tuesday of last week Circuit Judge Geo. W. Sample rendered a decision reversing the decision of the jury and granting no cause for action in the suit of Ruth Clark versus the Village of Chelsea. Miss Clark was granted a judgment of $250.00 against the village by a circuit court jury several weeks ago, for injuries received last January when the car in which she was riding collided with the flag pole, Main and Middle streets.

The decision of Judge Sample, which is self-explanatory, is as follows:

"This cause came on to be heard on June 28, 1934, on motion for the entry of a judgment of no cause for action notwithstanding the verdict of the jury and after listening carefully to argument of counsel and after a careful examination of the cases cited the Court has come to the conclusion that the motion ought to be granted.

I am of the opinion, the plaintiff's driver having testified to the fact that he was aware at all times of the location of the pole in the street while he was driving in that vicinity and was aware of the snowy and icy condition of the streets as well as having driven in the snow while it was falling that evening and some having accumulated on the pavement making an icy condition to some extent; that the plaintiff's driver was guilty of contributory negligence in operating his vehicle so that it crashed into the pole, which testimony showed was well lighted and which the testimony also showed was in the street partly for the purpose of carrying lights as well as intersection signals and the law in such case made and provided being that the contributory negligence of the plaintiff's driver is imputable to the plaintiff herself.

On the payment of the judgment fee a judgment may be entered in said cause of no cause for action with costs to be taxed against the plaintiff."

Geo. W. Sample, Circuit Judge.
Dated: July 3, 1934, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Sticker Permits Expire August 1

The 351,642 Michigan motorists who have been operating their cars under the two-payment permit plan, must pay the second half of the 1934 weight tax and secure 1934 license plates before August 1. Under the law authorizing the windshield sticker permits, the Secretary of State is not given power to extend their use after August 1.

Gasoline Taxes Are Increasing

Michigan's revenue from gasoline taxes this year is expected to be approximately $1,000,000 greater than in 1933.

This estimate is obtained from Department of State statistics which show that $7,604,095 was collected in gasoline taxes during the first five months this year as compared with $6,919,759 during the same period last year.

The records also indicate that the increase is due to the fact that the weight tax reduction placed on automobiles on the highway. The gasoline tax for January 1934 was below that of January 1933 while each succeeding month has shown an increase over the corresponding month a year ago.

Chain Store Law in Supreme Court
The State Supreme Court is now considering the legality of the chain store tax law. In event the law is held to be valid, 23 of the larger chain store organizations will be required to pay the Department of State $1,298,000 as 1933 and 1934 taxes.

Soon after the law became effective, suit to prevent the collection of the tax was started in Wayne county Circuit Court and has been appealed to the higher court. Pending decision the companies involved have been compelled to deposit bonds and securities to guarantee payment of the tax in event the law is upheld.

OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH LYON—The Blackwood school was destroyed by fire on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Among its contents were a piano, a fine library, water fountain, office desk, new maps and playground equipment. The blaze is believed to have had an incendiary origin, as the door to the place, which had been locked, was found open by those who were the first to reach the fire.—Herald.

HOWELL—Secretary John Kirk announces that the Livingston County Fair will be held this year during the week of September 10th, three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 12, 13 and 14. The fair will follow the week of the State Fair.—Republican-Press.

GRASS LAKE—One of the meanest acts of thievery reported in some time occurred at the Federated church parsonage the past week when someone stole a large number of gold fish belonging to Rev. Engelmann. The fish were in a pool in the yard and comprised both adult fish and a large number of fish that were hatched this spring.—News.

DUNDEE—The Future Farmers Club has used the greenhouse to a profitable advantage this year and are to be commended for their foresight. Early in the season they secured from several seed firms their best and most popular varieties of tomato seed and carefully planted them in boxes. When the season opened they were surprised to learn that the demand for choice plants far exceeded their supply and next year they plan to double their project. Several dollars in profits were realized for their treasury.—Reporter.

JACKSON—Dr. Walter L. Finton, 152 Carleton boulevard, associated with the museum of mammology of the University of Michigan, returned last week from a three-months' expedition into northwestern Alaska. Trophies consisted of the skins of two giant Alaskan brown bears, largest existing carnivorous animals, skulls of which will go to the museum, squirrel skins, minks, seals, foxes and eagles, 4,000 feet of motion picture film and 400 stills. For memories he had: sight of a volcano in action, experience of a slight earthquake, his ship twice grounded upon rock and one bad storm. Dr. Finton plans to return next year.—Evening Star.

Duck Hunters Must Get Federal Stamp

Under provisions of a new federal act all sportsmen who hunt any species of migratory waterfowl during the coming season will be required to purchase a federal duck stamp at a cost of $1, according to the Department of Conservation.

The stamp is the first of its kind ever issued. The funds derived from its sale in every part of the United States have been set aside by Congress for the purpose of acquiring marsh and water areas as inviolate refuges for ducks, geese and other waterfowl.

Stamp collectors as well as hunters are interested in the new stamp. It will be unique in character as well as design, having an appropriate waterfowl scene.

Every sportsman engaged in hunting migratory waterfowl this autumn must have in his possession a federal migratory waterfowl hunting stamp, valid from July 1 of the year of issue to June 30 of the succeeding year. It will be possible to obtain the stamps at a cost of $1 at post-offices in county seats having populations of 2,500 or more and in certain post-offices conveniently located to be designated later. The individual applying for a stamp will be required to fill out an application form to be provided by the postmaster. The stamp must then be affixed to the individual's hunting license. It is not transferable.

Possession of a federal stamp does not prevent the arrest of a holder under state law if he does not have a state hunting license. If he possesses a state license but not a federal stamp while hunting, he is liable to prosecution under federal law, according to the Department. If the hunter holds neither a state license nor a federal stamp he may be prosecuted in both federal and state courts.

Under provisions of the federal migratory bird treaty act, hunters who do not have in their possession a duck hunting stamp while hunting migratory waterfowl are subject to a fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment of not more than six months or both upon conviction in federal court. The federal bureau of biological survey, which has the task of selecting and acquiring the refuge areas as well as administering them, expects that the sale of the stamp will provide a revenue of from $600,000 to $1,000,000 each year.

Naturalists, sportsmen and conservationists have long realized the necessity of an extensive system of waterfowl refuges, not only on the breeding grounds of the north, but on the southern wintering grounds as well. The duck stamp is the result of years of agitation for federal aid on the part of the conservationists who have been growing alarmed at the steady decrease of ducks and geese.

PLYMOUTH—From what can be learned there are no Plymouth boys who have enlisted for the new CCC work that is being started by the government. While last year some twenty or more boys from Plymouth and vicinity joined the CCC forces in the north woods, the announcement a few days ago that there would be places open for 600 more young men from Wayne county did not bring forth a single application from Plymouth. City officials state from what they can learn there are more young people working this summer than last. This apparently accounts for the fact that there were no enrollments from Plymouth for CCC work.—Mail.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—How many and who were the women whose pictures have appeared on the U. S. postage stamps?

Ans.—We can find no records of this except that of Pocahontas issue of the 300th anniversary in 1895 of her birth. It is conjectured if this is her likeness. Mother's Day stamps show the likeness of a woman, but the likeness does not represent any particular woman.

Ques.—I am writing to ask you when was silver first coined into United States money?

Ans.—Silver as money of the United States was first used in 1792. It was authorized by act of Congress on April 2 of that year.

Ques.—Which State of the Union has the largest acreage of national forests, and which has the least?

Ans.—California has the greatest acreage of national forests, with 24,214,304 acres. Maryland has the least, with 4,725 acres.

Ques.—Where does one's thoughts come from, or how are they developed?

Ans.—According to scientists, thought consists of nerve messages passed around among the nerve cells in the gray matter of the brain. Your eye sees the words you are reading at this moment, and a message of them is flashed by your eye nerve to your brain. That starts a lot of other brain cells into operation, and they pass messages back and forth from one to the other just as commanders of allied armies might exchange telephone messages while they were planning a campaign. That is what is happening inside your head just now, while you are thinking about the meaning of these words.

Ques.—If you or any of your assistants are so smart can you name who is the biggest "kicker" in this town?

Ans.—That's easy if you will just tell us what your name is.

Ques.—What do the initials "O. K." mean? And how did that phrase originate?

Ans.—The Choctaw Indian word "okeh" which is pronounced "O. K." means "it is so." It is very probable that the phrase got its start from this Indian word. However, another explanation is that it was derived from the name of a port in Haiti named Aux Cayes (also pronounced O-Kay) from which very fine tobacco and rum were imported. That name was often written "O. K." and these initials gradually came to signify good quality. But, no evidence bears out either story. Its first recorded use is found in the court records of Sumner county, Tenn., for October 6, 1790, in which Andrew Jackson "proved" a sale of a negro and the record states "which was O. K."

Ques.—To settle an argument will you please answer what three States in this country have the greatest number of miles of electric railways, and which is first, second and third?

Ans.—The three leading States in electric railway mileage are as follows: New York, 5,428 miles; Pennsylvania, 4,592; Ohio, 3,327.

Ques.—Who is the greatest horseshoe pitcher in the world?

Ans.—There are no records available of horseshoe pitching in foreign countries, so we cannot definitely answer your question. In the United States, however, C. C. Davis of Columbus, Ohio is an outstanding figure. Besides being champion of the United States he topped his glorious achievements by pitching 13 fingers out of a possible 15 pitches. This feat has never been surpassed nor duplicated as a matter of official record.

Ques.—I would like to ask you if the sun's distance from the earth makes the difference in summer and winter?

Ans.—Distance of the sun from the earth has no bearing upon winter and summer. As a matter of fact, the sun is some 3,800,000 miles closer to the earth in January than it is in July. It is colder in the winter because the sun is farther south in the sky and its rays strike the earth more obliquely than in the summer when it is more directly overhead.

Expect Increase In Fishing Revenue

The Department of Conservation may realize $200,000 from the sale of fishing licenses this year or approximately $60,000 more than in 1933, according to a report of the License Division.

A total of 460,000 licenses have been distributed to agents in all parts of the state. It was expected that the heaviest sales would come late in June and in early July due to the opening of the inland lakes to fishing. The License Division believes that probably 400,000 licenses will be sold before the end of the resort season.

The new 50-cent resident fishing license is having its first full test this year, having become effective May 8 of 1933. Last year the Department sold 286,532 resident rod licenses. Receipts of license sales are placed in the game-protection fund.

MASON—New devices may be introduced in the long and so far unsuccessful drive to oust blackbirds and starlings from their Barnes street haunts. At the council meeting Monday night several new plans were discussed. One was to hire an aviator to swoop down low over the trees to scare the birds. Another was to place stuffed owls in the trees. It was said that the plane would frighten the birds so they would abandon their roost. Proponents of the owl method claimed that crows and blackbirds fear owls and that if they found their roosting places occupied by owls that new quarters would be sought immediately. No action was taken by the council.—County News.

NO EXTRA CHARGE

for MORE LIVE POWER per gallon

IT'S yours for the price of "regular" gasoline—this richer, livelier, thriftier Standard Red Crown Superfuel. That simply means it's the greatest money's-worth you can buy from a gasoline pump today. —> Actually, more live power per gallon means more live power per dollar. It means that for every penny you pay for Standard Red Crown Superfuel you get a greater supply of usable energy—power that you can turn into longer mileage, smoother climbing power, higher top speed, or any other super-performance you want. —> That's not just a claim. Tests of many gasolines have established the fact. But prove it to your own satisfaction. —> Fill your tank at any Standard Red Crown pump. Then, as you drive your car, watch its performance—watch the mileage—compare it on economy and out-and-out value with the results you've gotten from any other gasoline. That, we believe, will convince you that Standard Red Crown Superfuel does give you more for your money.

CARRY ON

If you are right, stand firm,
If you are wrong, return;
You need not quarrel, be true,
Be God's man and go through;
Truth crushed to earth will rise,
Eternal life it's prize.
I often feel an inspiration
Coming o'er me like a charm.
Something I might give for others,
Verse, or prose, or maybe psalm.
If I yield promptly, quickly,
To the urge I sense within,
Often gratifying pleasure
Crowns the effort of my pen.
That the urge and pen united
Be an oasis to prove,
God's unbounded great salvation
Is the Free Gift of His love.
—So "carry on" with cheer, God's arm
Is strong,
Don't fear!

—Arthur Carlton.

PLAN EVANGELICAL RALLY
A group of evangelical men and pastors representing the Evangelical churches of the Ann Arbor Region met in the afternoon of Sunday, July 8 on the church lawn of St. John's Evangelical church, Rogers Corners, and with one accord decided to observe Sunday, July 29 as Evangelical Day at Immanuel's Evangelical church, Manchester, Rev. H. S. von Raguo, pastor.
Rev. A. A. Schoen of Dexter presided at this meeting, and judged by the measure of enthusiasm shown by the men, this Evangelical Day promises to be a great success in the best sense of the word. Because of the merger of the Evangelical Synod of North America and the Reformed church in America, consummated recently in a most ideal and singular manner in Cleveland, Ohio, this Evangelical Day will be of greater interest.
Two services are to be conducted, the forenoon service at 10:30 a. m. being really a double service, the one conducted in the church, the other in the hall, in German and English respectively; the afternoon service at 2:00 o'clock, in English, amplifiers to accommodate the expected large attendance.
Prominent speakers have been secured for these services: Dr. Heyl and Rev. E. N. Kraft of Cleveland, and Rev. F. W. Schroeder of Chicago. The choir of Bethlehem church, Ann Arbor, St. Paul's church, Chelsea and St. Paul's church, Saline will furnish special music.
Let every Evangelical reader of this advance announcement consider himself or herself responsible to boost this venture with contagious enthusiasm.

man will make their home in Ann Arbor.
Guests at the wedding were Mrs. Martin Belsky, Mrs. Walter Belsky, the Misses Mary Osborne and Agnes Wickman of Ann Arbor, Harold Cummings of Detroit, Carl Belsky of Blackburn, Va., Mrs. Howard Armstrong and son Francis of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Jolly.

THE STUDENT FRATERNITY MURDER

by Milton Propper

Copyright, 1934, by Milton Propper
WNU Service

"Judge? What judge are you talking about?"

"The judge that presides over the trial of the murderer of Stuart," said the man in the suit. "It is about a foot wide and continuous, and since Stuart's windows were usually open, gave her easy access to his quarters. Randall's charwoman said it was not unusual for students to use it to pass from room to room or for flight during class scraps. Of course, if that convenient entry had not existed, she would have had to devise another means. And it explains all the evidence incriminating Mr. Edward Fletcher that baffled me so. He had the motive of jealousy, and it appeared it was he who entered Jordan's room Tuesday morning, after the charwoman straightened it out, and tampered with his shoes. I also found the hypodermic needle with which the poison was administered in his room."

Mr. Warwick pursed his lips and placed together the tips of the fingers of both hands. "I must confess it isn't clear to me how the judge solves those problems. You'll have to be a bit more explicit, Rankin."

The detective bent toward his listener as though to impress him more strongly.

"It is wholly a matter of the sequence of events. At ten-thirty the morning of the murder, Stuart went to class and Mrs. Hogan entered his suite to clean up. She was finished by eleven o'clock. Less than five minutes later, Mrs. Jordan, as Randall, climbed in the window to put thumb-tacks in all his shoes. At eleven fifteen, Mr. Fletcher arrived to see the boy, and claiming to be his uncle, persuaded Mrs. Hogan to let him in. The late to evening, she overheard the conversation in the hall, as the key rattled in the door, she could only drop the shoes hastily in Stuart's vestibule, where the charwoman later noticed them, and conceal herself in his bedroom closet."

"His closet?" Mr. Warwick spoke in surprise. "Then she was hidden there the entire time Mr. Fletcher searched the study and abstracted all his mail?"

"Yes, she was; although from the bedroom, she could not see him pocket it. She did not dare open the closet door too wide to watch him. She did, however, catch several glimpses of him as he moved about stealthily and hunted nervously through Jordan's property." Rankin talked deliberately to emphasize his statements still further. "And that is the most important point, Mr. Warwick," he went on. "Mrs. Jordan had never even heard of Edward Fletcher; nor had she the least information of the unpleasantness between him and her husband. But at some time or other, Stuart had either shown her a photograph of Mr. Merrick or pointed him out to her. She knew, therefore, that the intruder was an impostor. There was something undeniably about his look, his surreptitious hunt and his guilty conduct. Obviously, he had no more business there than she; he too was up to some nefarious scheme for Stuart's destruction."

"Naturally, more than mere curiosity impelled her to spy on him. The instant of his departure, Mrs. Jordan climbed out the window and swiftly reached her own room without attracting much attention. She got down stairs just behind him and like Mrs. Hogan, saw him enter his yellow coat, step on the street and drive off; she even noted down his license number. And that very night at eight forty five, as she entered the fraternity to poison her husband, she discovered the same car parked outside! The owner, also apparently his enemy, was inside the house! Once more she seized on a heaven-sent opportunity to detect suspicion. The murder committed, she escaped during the excitement of Jordan's collapse; without expecting to incriminate Mr. Fletcher as deeply as he eventually became involved, she stopped long enough to drop the hypodermic into the pouch of his machine."

The supervisor nodded his understanding. "How did she open the front door of the fraternity in the first place? Where did she secure a key?"

"I can't be quite positive about that," the detective replied, slightly dubious. "Doctor Prince might have got it for her just as he borrowed it for all the necessary coronation secrets. He probably didn't, though; Stanton said nothing about his ever sending for one. More likely, Mrs. Jordan spent several mornings, just before dawn, outside the house when the street was most deserted, obtaining an impression of the lock. It clicked, she could easily get away with it by pretending to be a drunken member of the chapter, attempting to locate the key-hole."

"Such after midnight, the night of the crime, she went back to Stuart's quarters to steal her letters and the canceled checks. She had to wait until after his death to take them, lest he discover they were missing and suspect something amiss. The checks she removed, which explains why I couldn't find them Wednesday morning."

"Then, Much After Midnight, the Night of the Crime, She Went Back to Stuart's Quarters to Steal Her Letters and the Canceled Checks."

ing, but the letters were already gone. No wonder she hesitated about telling a story which they contradicted, when she first arrived at headquarters on Friday evening. She more than fully justified the intruder had them; though why she wanted them, she could not tell. In that case, it seemed very unlikely he would ever return them to her, and she could safely and freely speak of her happy married life. But she dared not disregard them altogether until I assured her I possessed no letters of hers and had no idea of their contents."

Mr. Warwick's tone again held a sharp inquisitive note of perplexity.

"You say, Rankin," he inquired, "Mrs. Jordan herself, appeared at city hall, last Friday night?" But as Rankin, she visited my office that same afternoon, to arrange conclusively about dropping out of college. She was dressed with me, my room, when you came to arrest Buckley."

"Oh, that was simply managed, Mr. Warwick," Rankin answered readily. "Friday, you see, was the day Mrs. Jordan was due in Philadelphia. Some time that morning, still in morning clothes, she checked in at the Quaker hotel; of course, she gave a fictitious name, but she brought along the suitcase containing her feminine outfits and wig, which had been in the checkroom of one of the railroad terminals the past six weeks until she needed them. At two o'clock, she called here with a new certificate of ill health from her physician, to be granted a permanent leave of absence. Then, after my visit interrupted the discussion, she returned to the hotel and donned her woman's clothes and wig. She met Myra Prentiss at four o'clock in the ladies' room at the Pennsylvania station; and for two hours obtained from her the evidence of her voyage east and memorized its details and events. At about seven, she presented herself to me at headquarters and finally registered over again at the Quaker hotel, as Laura Jordan."

"I see that makes it quite clear," the supervisor said, and he folded his arms. "In fact, I think I understand every point now but how you penetrated her disguise after knowing her only as Randall. She took you in completely at your first meeting, didn't she?"

"Except for a vague sensation of familiarity I had on her arrival. She was a clever actress, Mr. Warwick, and well disguised, especially by that blond wig. But puzzled me when Miss Prentiss mentioned she had changed the color of her hair. Originally, Laura Dumont was a brunette, like the show girl, herself; when she got it to get as Randall, naturally, her hair was also brown. But there was danger that if she became Mrs. Jordan again with the same hair, the resemblance might be noticeable. Accordingly, she adopted a blond wig, and Miss Prentiss also had to wear one, to pass for her."

"Yes, but that doesn't explain," Mr. Warwick began; "what else gave you the connection in the conspiracy between Randall here and Doctor Prince in St. Louis?"

"I'm coming to that now," the detective interrupted. "It was Randall's certificate from his physician about his tubercular condition that told me the truth. That was the first one I actually saw among his papers on the desk before my afternoon. He presented previously, to be excused from college in October and on his return in February, had been filed among his records in his department, the business school. They all came from Doctor Prince, whenever Randall or Mrs. Jordan required them. Of course, he did not fill them out as Doctor Prince, or I'd have recognized the plot at once; he was shrewd enough to keep his name out of it. He wrote them on an printed form he secured of a non-existent doctor in Chicago, Randall's home town, choosing a name resembling an actual physician there. Dr. Harold Lincoln, I believe it was. The university was accustomed to accepting such reports without much investigation."

"But when I happened to notice Doctor Prince's written prescriptions, in his office in St. Louis, I realized his connection with Randall. The handwriting was identical! At the same time, it hardly seemed likely that she would leave that evidence among the university files. It not alone implicated him in the conspiracy and linked him with the Randall disguise, but it was absolutely conclusive. And she would not dare go home Monday, as she said, if only because it was wise to allow several days to elapse between her appearance as Stuart's wife and her departure as the student. I fully suspect she intended to purchase the one certificate by some slight of hand on Friday afternoon; unfortunately, my interruption spoiled her opportunity and compelled her to postpone the theft. The only question then, was when she would call at the business school office, ostensibly to study her records, and steal all of them together."

"I made this discovery in St. Louis, proving the doctor's guilt, shortly after midnight, Sunday night. If Laura had already got hold of the doctor's excuses on Saturday, it was, of course, too late to save them. However, the office is open only half of that day. If she waited until Monday to abstract them, just before she dropped out of the scene as Randall, I might yet prevent their destruction. Provided I could be back in Philadelphia early on Monday morning. It was a chance I had to take to elench my case; and the only way I could accomplish the trip in the short period left me was by air, on a fast plane."

As though to terminate his explanation, Rankin became silent with a gesture of finality, and a slow smile spread over his face.

"Luckily for me," he said, after a moment, "all my deductions happened to be correct, and the gods were kind to me. Mrs. Jordan delayed until noon on Monday, before disclosing her impersonation of Randall altogether; and I arrived before she had time to rid herself of the certificates. She had only obtained them from her department under the very eyes of the clerks a short while before. As matters have turned out, there won't be the slightest difficulty in convicting both her and Arnold Prince."

(THE END.)

Penguins Good Swimmers

Probably no member of the bird world is as adept at water as the penguin, which feeds largely on small crustaceans and fish. The wings of this bird are useless as far as flight is concerned, but make excellent paddles in the water.

What a Man Thinks

"If you would really know what a man truly thinks," said Ill Ho, sage of Chinatown, "you must cease to flatter him and take the risk of making him angry."

BAD MISTAKE

"I tell you, it pays to be polite. A 'Thank You' never hurts anybody."

"It did me, I said it to a lady without thinking, when I had me deaf and dumb card on and she had me arrested for a impostor."

HOW ABOUT THAT?

She—Every one seems to be here for his health.

He—Yes, every one but the proprietor.

ANYTHING

Minister—Do you promise to love, honor and cherish this woman?

Politician—Yes, whatever the platform is I subscribe to it.

VEGETARIANS

Cucumber—Is he strong?

Potato—I should say so. Almost as strong as an onion.

GOOD REACH

"There is something about Fred that draws me to him."

"So I noticed last night in the conservatory."

SIDE-SLIPPING

"Cheer up! There's a silver lining in every cloud, you know."

"Yes, but I'm no aviator."

OLD KNOCKER

Worm—Say there, Mr. Woodpecker, use the bell when you call. You are punching our door full of holes.

NEXT CASE

"Is he versed in the law?"

"Well, I don't know. He's reversed pretty frequently."

CHANGE EXCHANGE

"I am going to get married—just for a change."

"I am getting a divorce for the same reason."

ENOUGH

George—Gee, said if any man kissed her without wanting she would scream for her father.

Jack—What did you do?

George—I warned her.

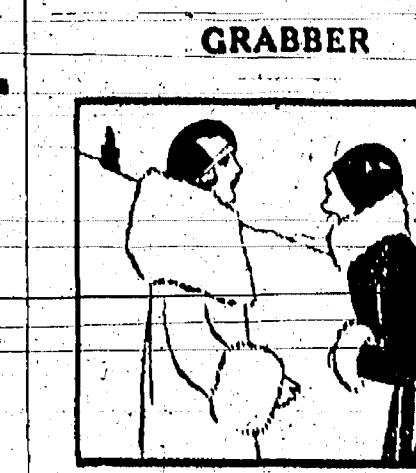

FINGERS CROSSED

"Who does the baby resemble?"

"He is absolutely neutral."

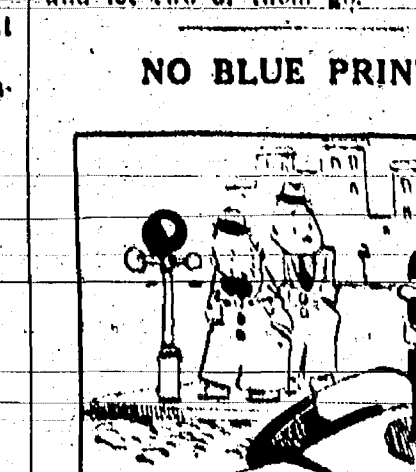

GRABBER

"Why, Susie, how do you do? I haven't seen you for years. Have you caught a husband yet?"

"Goodness, yes! I've caught three and let two of them go."

NO BLUE PRINT

"He says he is a self-made 'man'."

"I don't doubt that he did the construction work, but the plans and specifications were made by a man."

LOOK OUT

Professor—Man belongs to the high order of animals. What is the next lower order that always comes after man?

Stolid Pupil—Woman.
