Chelsea Legion Men Honored By District

Drum and bugle corps from eight American Legion posts in Michigan competed for honors in exhibition drills on Sunday at the University of Michigan stadium, Ypsilanti receiving the first prize of $200. Red Arrow Post of Detroit won second prize of $100, Coldwater Post the third prize of $50, Monroe Post the fourth of $35 and Dearborn the final prize of $25.

Main street was decorated with American flags for the parade in which the drum and bugle corps, veterans and fraternal orders participated and commercial concerns provided floats. Two women's groups, the Wayne county auxiliary and the Hamtramck auxiliary took part in the parade. Flag-raising ceremonies on the stadium field preceded the drills, after which music was rendered by the Lyra chorus of Ann Arbor and performances were given by the drill team of the Eagle lodge of Detroit.

Don Beardslee of Detroit, State Legion Commander, was a special guest at the dinner, which was served at noon in the Masonic temple.

In conjunction with the drills, the district convention of the American Legion and the Auxiliary was held Sunday morning in Ann Arbor, with about 200 Legionnaires attending from Monroe, Washtenaw, Lenawee and Jackson counties and about 150 members of Legion Auxiliaries located in the four counties.

Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31, Chelsea, had one of the best records for any post of its size in the district, showing a 75 per cent membership increase over last year. Among the officers elected was Paul C. Maroney of Chelsea as district finance officer.

Wm. G. Kolb of the local post was elected Washtenaw county commander, succeeding Lawrence Leever of Ann Arbor.

Voters Will Pass On Six Constitutional Changes

Although nearly a score of proposed changes to the state constitution were discussed in the last few months, only six of the proposals have been qualified for places on the ballot at the November election. Five of the questions will be submitted to the voters after initiatory petitions bearing sufficient signatures were filed with the Department of State. The sixth question was ordered on the ballot by the legislature. The order in which the proposals will appear on the ballot and brief summaries follow:

1. This provides that all judges be elected on non-partisan ballots.

2. This proposal would reduce the gasoline tax from three to two cents and would prohibit the legislature from increasing the tax above two cents a gallon.

3. At the present time the automobile weight tax is 35 cents per hundredweight. This proposed amendment would prohibit the legislature from increasing the weight tax above the present figure.

4. Reorganization of county systems of government along plans adopted by the legislature or submitted by initiatory petition, is provided for in the fourth proposal. The amendment would permit abolishing any present constitutional office upon approval of a majority of the voters in a county.

5. This proposed amendment would eliminate the "uniform taxation" provisions from the state constitution, and would allow the legislature to enact an income tax law.

6. This proposal would give justices of the peace jurisdiction in civil cases up to $300 in cities of more than 250,000 inhabitants.

Former Local Pastor Studying In Europe

The following clipping from a Great Falls, Montana paper, regarding Rev. P. W. Dierberger, former pastor of First Congregational church in Chelsea, will be of interest to his many friends in this vicinity:

The Rev. P. W. Dierberger, pastor of the First Congregational church, will leave Sunday night, July 8, on a trip to Russia, where he will study religious, social, economic and educational conditions. He also will spend a short time in Germany and Austria, studying conditions there. The Rev. Dr. Dierberger, who will sail from New York city on the Aquitania, Cuna line, will return about the middle of September.

Arriving at Southampton, the local minister will go on to London and will spend several days visiting Oxford and Cambridge universities to contact educational leaders. From London he will proceed by way of soviet steamers to Leningrad and will arrive there the latter part of July. Following his stay in Leningrad, the Rev. Dr. Dierberger will go to Moscow and will take the Volga river tour, including stops at Gorki, Kazan, Samara, Saratov, Stalingrad, Rostov and Kiev.

On his return from Russia, he will visit in Berlin, Dresden, Frankfurt and Heidelberg, Germany, and in Vienna and Innsbruck, Austria, and will be in Paris, France, for a short time before proceeding to Cherbourg, from where he will sail early in September.

Enroute to New York this month, the Congregational pastor is to stop in Chicago for the World's fair and in Washington, D. C. to visit his son Wesley.

METHODIST HOME

Almost all of our people who were gone last week have returned and others have gone on a vacation.

Mrs. Brumb's callers on Wednesday of last week were her daughters, Mrs. Atwood McAndrews of Ypsilanti and Misses Elizabeth and Irene Lucas, who are teachers in the public school of Romeo.

On Thursday, Mrs. McGregor was surprised when her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Gilmore of Romeo, came for her. They were accompanied by Miss Kennedy. Mrs. McGregor went for a short visit.

Thursday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. McCraight and three daughters of Ypsilanti visited Mr. and Mrs. Drake.

Mrs. Wolfe of Albion came Thursday for a few days' visit with her mother, Mrs. Welles.

On Sunday evening, Miss Ruth Dancer of Dundee, who was visiting her parents in Chelsea, called to see Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. Gage's Sunday callers were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davison and daughter of Tecumseh.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinkleman and Dr. Slocum of Detroit visited Mr. Washer on Sunday. They went for a ride in the afternoon.

On Wednesday morning of last week Mrs. Ida Kishpaugh, Miss Geraldine Kishpaugh and Mrs. Pauline Poucher of Adrian called on Miss Hannah L. Boering. They were on their way to Cavanaugh Lake.

Miss Janet Clegg is visiting a friend near Manchester for a week.

On Wednesday of last week nineteen members of the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church came to visit Mrs. Filer and brought a picnic dinner which she enjoyed with them. Also brought her a present of a memory quilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy N. Carlton and Mrs. Fred and daughter Eleanor came Saturday morning to bring their father, Arthur Carlton, home from Detroit.

Mrs. Pugh left Monday morning for a visit of some length in her old home in New York.

The communion service here on Sunday afternoon, conducted by Dr. Balmer, Rev. Munby and Rev. N. N. Clark was a rich spiritual treat to the members of the Home.

OLD AGE

When I am old as mother is, And maybe just as grey, When I recall these written lines Of all the yesterdays;

The days so filled with happy hours, Carefree, without a fear, With Father, Mother, sister May, And all that made home dear; If I recall them with a charm, Perfumed with memories dear, OLD AGE will have a charm for me, No other quite so dear.

—Arthur Carlton.

LOWELL SHOWBOAT, AUG. 2, 3, 4

The Village of Lowell, which is located on M-21 midway between Grand Rapids and Ionia and at the point where the beautiful Flat and Grand Rivers meet, offers to the world each year what is probably the most unique production to be found anywhere in Michigan. It is the "Showboat"—an actual, living, throbbing boat propelled by its own power and carrying 150 performers who duplicate the famed showboats of the Old South in gay colored minstrelsy and many added attractions. The Showboat itself is a two-decker with stern paddle wheels, twin smoke stacks, pilot house, etc., gayly trimmed and brilliantly lighted. The Showboat entertainment has become an institution at Lowell in which the best talent of the village takes part in offering to the world a most entertaining evening's entertainment.

Lowell Showboat this year will be presented on the evenings of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 2, 3 and 4, and it is confidently expected that everyone of the 4000 comfortable seats will be occupied each evening. A nominal admission fee of 25c is charged and the entire proceeds are used for charity and other worthy projects.

The Lowell Board of Trade, W. V. Burras, President, and the Lowell American Legion Post, Wm. Delaney, Commander, jointly sponsor the annual Showboat production. Rudolph Van Dyke assists as co-chairman.

Canadian Tree Species
In Canada there are approximately 150 different species and varieties of plants reaching tree size. Only 31 of these are coniferous, but the wood of these forms 95 per cent of the forest products, and the trees themselves cover even a larger proportion of the potential forest area.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Will you kindly explain what is the greatest number of hits a baseball club can make in one inning right in a row, when two of the hits are triples, without making a run. Is it possible for a team to make six hits in this manner without making a run?

Ans.—It is possible, but there is no record of any baseball club having made six hits consecutively, two of which were triples, without scoring a run. It is possible to accomplish the feat in this manner: First man up hits a triple. He is put out in trying to stretch it to a home run. The second man up also hits a triple, and he also is nailed at the plate when he attempts to make it a four-bagger. The third man up singles. The fourth man singles. The fifth man makes a scratch hit (nevertheless it's a hit) filling the bases. The sixth man is credited with a hit when his batted ball hits one of the runners. The runner is out, retiring the side, with no runs and six hits, two of which are triples. All hits made consecutively.

Ques.—Can you tell me in your Questions and Answers if "Ten Nights in a Barroom" was written by a W. C. T. U. member? If not, who was the author?

Ans.—No. "Ten Nights in a Barroom" was not written by a W. C. T. U. member. Timothy Shay Arthur was the author of this famous temperance novel. Mr. Arthur was a man who died without knowing it was produced with great success upon the stage.

Ques.—I am writing to ask you how "Arkansas" is pronounced?
Ans.—"Arkansas" is an Indian word, and the Indian pronunciation is, "Ar-kan-saw," with an accent on the first syllable. The state officially retains that pronunciation.

Ques.—Did the idea of "The Unknown Soldier" originate with the American Expeditionary Forces?
Ans.—No. According to our authority, the Rev. David Ralston, an Episcopal minister of England originated the idea. During the World War he saw a grave in a small garden near Armentieres. On the wooden cross that marked the spot was this inscription: "An Unknown British Soldier." The idea was suggested to the British government and the project was carried through after the war.

Ques.—What were the names of the children of George Washington? And what became of them?
Ans.—George Washington had no children.

Ques.—I wish to ask you where is Stone Mountain? And what is it?
Ans.—Stone Mountain is a solid block of gray granite 867 feet high and a mile long, located near Atlanta, Ga. On its side there is a design to commemorate the Army of the Confederacy. The design is 200 feet high and 1,300 feet long.

Ques.—Can you answer why neckties are sometimes called "cravats," and when were they first worn?
Ans.—The wearing of neckties is a custom that was borrowed from the Croats about the time of the French Revolution. The Croats were called "Cravats," which was corrupted into "cravats" with reference to the popular term, "necktie."

Ques.—How many foreign countries are represented by ambassadors that now reside in Washington?
Ans.—At the present time there are 61 foreign countries represented by ambassadors and ministers who reside in Washington, D. C.

Ques.—Is a Jew, Hebrew and Israelite all the same? If not, what is the difference?
Ans.—These three words are used interchangeably to designate the devotees of the Mosaic faith. Hebrew originally applied to Abraham and his descendants. Later the 12 tribes were called Israelites because they were the descendants of Israel. After the tribes became lost and what was left of them became assimilated with the tribe of Judah in Palestine. From Judah the name "Jew" is a corrupt contraction, and is frowned upon by the Hebrew race.

Ques.—I was born on July 1, 1904. Will you please tell me what day of the week that was, and also if it was an unlucky day.

Ans.—If you were born on July 1, 1904, you were born on Friday. Good luck or ill luck with reference to the day of the week on which you were born exists only in superstition.

Ques.—May I ask you if the original copies of the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution are in existence? Or have they been lost?

Ans.—The original Declaration of Independence and the original Constitution of the United States are now in a fire-proof vault built especially for them in the main lobby of the Congressional Library at Washington, D. C.

The "Hask" of Holland
"Rijsttafel" the national Dutch dish throughout the East, often contains as many as 30 different ingredients, including meat, fish, eggs, fruit, vegetables, deviled nuts and rice.

CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

WM. A. DAILEY

William A. Dailey, Republican, of Ann Arbor, has formally placed his name in nomination for the office of the Sheriff of Washtenaw county, by filing petitions last week.

Mr. Dailey is a resident of the city of Ann Arbor and in making his announcement stated: "Owing to the insistence of friends and acquaintances who, knowing the conditions, desired an individual who would be Sheriff of Washtenaw county and execute the duties of such office without political favoritisms and in full cooperation with all co-ordinated law enforcing agencies, I have placed my name in nomination."

"The effective enforcement of law within this county must be with the full cooperation of other law enforcing agencies and I am seeking this office in the belief that present conditions can be bettered by such cooperation and a large percentage of the costs of operating such office will be saved to the taxpayers of Washtenaw county; and if elected, I pledge a savings of not less than twenty-five per cent of the present budget, which now approximates $28,000.00."

"My friends and supporters feel that my sixteen years experience in police work, including approximately four years in the sheriff's office of this county eminently qualify me for this position."

Inca Ruins Uncovered

Hundreds of yards of stone walls on the site of a town of the ancient Incas, believed to have been hidden for more than 400 years, were unearthed by archeologists near Cuzco, Peru.

Red and White Lightning

According to the weather bureau there is no difference between red and white lightning, the color being due to atmospheric conditions.

DANSVILLE—Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the barns on the Henry Walker farm, four miles southeast of here, Sunday morning. Mr. Walker was up about four, and everything was all right, and at five-thirty he was awakened by the snapping and cracking of the burning timbers in the smaller barn. Mr. Walker said it seemed only about fifteen minutes before both barns, the milch house, wagon and ensilage cut-ter were burned to the ground. Three veal calves and harnesses were the only things it was possible to save. The barns were full of wheat and rye and the hay, which had been drawn the day before. Mr. Walker stated the barns were insured, but the insurance covers only a small portion of the loss.—Ingham County News, M.

BRIGHTON—Brighton people were given a little mild excitement Tuesday morning when the news was circulated that John Thompson of Fenton, who, under constant police guard at Mellus hospital, was convalescing from a very critical gunshot wound which he received when resisting arrest by a state trooper several weeks ago, had eluded his guard and made good his escape in the early morning hours. He made his exit through the window of his room. A state trooper was on duty at the hospital at the time. Thompson made his escape somewhere between the hours of 3:00 a. m. and 6:00 a. m.—So far no clew to the man's whereabouts has been found. The man was not in physical condition to go far without outside help, it would seem.—Argus.

BROOKLYN—The Ann Arbor Land Co., which owns much of the land in the Sharon school district, and which is operating the area of several thousand acres in a similar way to the Henry Ford project at Macon is proposing to repair the little red brick school house and to operate the school. Joe Blanchard, who has for several years looked after the operations and interests of the company, has never admitted that the Ann Arbor Land Co. is a Henry Ford project. But the community is quite satisfied that Mr. Ford is behind the enterprise and will make announcement in due time.—Exponent.

CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

William C. Haydon, Ypsilanti, whose name has been placed in nomination as candidate for Democratic nomination for the office of sheriff for Washtenaw county was selected only after a very careful and thorough search for a capable man whose integrity is of the highest order.

Mr. Haydon has been actively connected with the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, in whose undertakings he has always been prominently identified. He has spent his entire life in Washtenaw county and is thoroughly conversant with both the political and social conditions which are important factors in the conduct of sheriff's office.

His record is clean of all political entanglements and will therefore not be required to make any pre-election promises which so frequently interfere with this department of county government. Mr. Haydon has been in business for a period of over 15 years with a splendid record of sound and successful management and is very highly considered by his associates.

His executive ability has been proven throughout his career, so that if he should be elected the electorate may rest assured that the sheriff's office will be conducted in a manner that will be above reproach.

Mr. Haydon is altogether in accord with the "New Deal" which in his judgment is simply the assurance of impartial and fair consideration in all things and for all persons coming to the attention of the sheriff's duties.

Mr. Haydon's appeal for the support of the voters is therefore based solely on the desire to give to the people the best and clearest administration of the sheriff's office, which is a capable and far-seeing candidate can give.

—Campaign Committee.

ONCE more it has been demonstrated that the general strike is not a successful weapon in the hands of organized labor in the United States. In industrial disputes, the San Francisco unions, dominated for the moment by radicals, undertook to use this weapon, and within two days were forced to admit their failure. Governor Merriam, Mayor Ross and other officials, strongly backed by public opinion, were determined that San Francisco and the surrounding communities should not be deprived of the necessities of life, that the embargo on food shipments should be broken and that transportation should not be stopped. Nearly 8,000 members of the National Guard were mobilized to aid the police, and their efforts were seconded by hastily formed bands of vigilantes which raided the headquarters and gathering places of the Communists. The central committee in charge of the strike soon realized the movement was collapsing and the conservative members, regaining control, relaxed the restrictions, and made an offer of arbitration under certain conditions.

On Thursday the general strike was formally called off and the men ordered back to work.

General Johnson, NRA administrator, acting as spokesman for the federal maritime dispute board there, was on hand determined to bring about a peaceful settlement. The Pacific coast maritime strike, on behalf of which the mass walkout was called, remained a difficult problem, for the longshoremen and maritime workers were insistent that the main dispute in their case, control of the "hiring halls," should not be subjected to arbitration.

To the average person the whole thing looked unreasonable and unnecessary. The longshoremen, like their fellow workers all along the west coast, have been on strike for changed working conditions, and were joined by the maritime workers and teamsters. Then Joseph P. Ryan, national president of the longshoremen, signed an agreement that the men would return to work pending arbitration and a labor dispute board was appointed by President Roosevelt. But Harry Bridges, an Australian radical who is head of the local maritime workers, gained control of the situation and absolutely blocked the move for arbitration, persuading the men to repudiate the Ryan agreement. In the unions of the San Francisco metropolitan area it is said the conservatives outnumber the radicals, but the latter are trained in the tactics of intimidation and are seeking to wreck the trades unions for the benefit of the cause of Communism.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi announced a pledge to run every "Communist agitator" out of San Francisco. The pledge, announced through an emergency citizens' committee, said:

"I pledge to you that I, as chief executive in San Francisco, to the full extent of my authority, will run out of San Francisco every Communist agitator, and this is going to be a continuing policy in San Francisco."

THERE was disquieting strike news from many parts of the country. The unions of Portland, Ore., were pushing their plans for a general strike, and their officials said nothing could now be done to prevent it. The truck drivers of Minneapolis and their helpers voted for a renewal of their strike which in May tied up transportation and resulted in fatal riots. Representatives of 40 out of 42 locals of the United Textile Workers in Alabama decided on a statewide strike which will affect 18,000 operatives. The date was not announced. Demands made to the employers include: Thirty hour week with $12 minimum pay; abolition of the "stretch-out" system; reinstatement of all jobs abolished under the stretch-out system; re-employment of all workers discharged for union activity and recognition of the textile workers' union for collective bargaining under provisions of the NRA.

Employees of Walter J. Kohler in Kohler village, Wisconsin, are out on strike and began picketing the plant, though it has been closed down since July 4. These workers for whom Kohler built and maintained an "ideal" industrial town and who have been treated with remarkable generosity by the company, demand recognition of their union, a minimum wage of 65 cents an hour and a 20-hour week. The company has its own employees' union, a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour, and a 40-hour week.

CONSTITUTIONALITY of the Bank head cotton act is to be tested in the federal courts. Gaston Thorelli of Columbus, Miss., has served notice that he will bring the suit in the United States district court at Meridian, directing it against Harry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and internal revenue and extension officials in the state charged with execution of the act's provisions.

HOUSING conditions in the United States again demonstrate the need for new housing. Acting Secretary Dickinson of the Commerce department said in making public results of a national "real property inventory" now being conducted by the Commerce department.

Sixteen per cent of 1,811,402 dwellings in 99 cities are in crowded condition "or worse," Mr. Dickinson said. An additional 10.5 per cent are in need of structural repairs and 44.7 per cent need minor repairs. The incomplete returns show 32,442 houses, or 2.34 per cent of the total, as "unfit for human habitation."

NORTH DAKOTA was in a state of political chaos, with two men battling for the governorship and the control of the state government and National Guard. William H. Langer, according to a ruling of the State Supreme court, was no longer entitled to hold the office of governor because of his recent conviction on charges of conspiracy to defraud the federal government.

The court decreed that he must give up his office to Gov. Ole H. Olson. Langer defied the court, refused to move out of office, summoned the National Guard to support him and called a special session of the legislature, which he dominates.

Olson countermanded these orders and Adjt. Gen. Earle R. Saries seemed to side with him, though he kept two companies of the National Guard on duty in Bismarck to quell possible disorders. It was reported that thousands of farmers were on their way to the capital city determined to support Langer in whatever action he might demand. It was believed the legislature would vote wholesale impeachment of state officials, possibly including the members of the Supreme court, who voted to oust Langer.

State Senator A. B. Bonzer, in an address at Bismarck, declared the jurists had "pretended to base their decision as though interpreting the constitution of this state."

"The Supreme court of this state," he said, "has linked itself with the federal courts in an endeavor to continue the persecution of one who has dared to be a leader for the common people—namely, Gov. William Langer."

Langer and several defendants were convicted in June. The federal government charged that the Langer group forced federal employees to contribute to a political fund. This fund, it was said, was collected supposedly for a newspaper. The government contended that the money eventually went into the campaign chest. Langer soon afterward was re-nominated by an overwhelming vote, and following this he was sentenced to 18 months in prison.

SENATOR WILLIAM G. McADOO of California was too fond of politics and travel to suit his wife, whose interests were in sculpture, painting and home life. So the former Eleanor Wilson, daughter of the wartime President, went before a judge in Los Angeles with her complaint, and in 42 minutes had been granted an interlocutory divorce decree. "Mental cruelty" was the charge, and Mrs. McAdoo testified that the senator had been living almost entirely in Washington for two years, and that it was impossible for her to reside in the National Capital because the climate there was injurious to her health.

Senator McAdoo did not contest the divorce, and there was a property settlement the details of which were not made public. The custody of the two children was vested in both parents. It was revealed that the McAdoos have been separated since last December.

DAYS of torrential rain in the mountains of southern Poland resulted in raging floods that poured through the valleys, drowning perhaps as many as three hundred persons. More than 65,000 were without food and shelter. The property loss was tremendous, all the crops just harvested being ruined.

Many popular resorts crowded by summer vacationists were cut off. Eighty-three camps of Boy and Girl Scouts were evacuated, after the youths experienced harrowing difficulties.

PRESIDENTIAL SECRETARY MARVIN MINTYRE announced that the President had created a special committee to formulate a new federal policy concerning the generation and distribution of electricity, and in Washington this was looked upon as a probable move for the nationalization of the power industry.

In a letter to Secretary Ickes asking him to head the committee, Mr. Roosevelt said: "It is duty will be to develop a plan for the closer cooperation of the several factors in our electrical power supply—both public and private—whereby national policy in power matters may be unified and electricity be made more broadly available at cheaper rates to industry, to domestic, and particularly, to agricultural consumers."

As time goes on, there undoubtedly will be legislation on the subject of holding companies and for the regulation of electric current in interstate commerce. This committee should consider what lines should be followed in shaping up this legislation. Since a number of the states have commissions having jurisdiction over intrastate power matters, it is necessary that whatever plan is developed should have regard to the powers of these various state commissions as well as of the states in general.

Besides Mr. Ickes, who is to act as chairman, the committee will consist of Dr. Elwood Mead, bureau of reclamation; Frank R. McNinch, federal power commission; Morris L. Cooke, of the PWA Mississippi valley committee; Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers; Robert E. Healy, of the federal stock exchange commission; David E. Lilienthal, Tennessee valley authority, and T. W. Norcross, assistant chief of the forest service.

KING GEORGE of England officially opened the Mersey tunnel connecting Liverpool and Birkenhead, the largest undersea highway of its kind in the world. More than half a mile longer than the Holland tunnel of New York, the tube under the Mersey river stretches 1,350 feet from the main entrance in Birkenhead. In addition to the main tunnel, which accommodates four vehicles abreast, there are two-lane tributaries connecting the docks which give the whole undertaking a length of 16,445 feet.

The engineers responsible for the design of the $35,500,000 tube, chief among whom is Sir Basil Mott, concede they owe much to the experience American engineers gained on the Holland tunnel. They waited until the American tunnel had been operated before completing their plans for the Mersey project's ventilation plant.

TAMMANY HALL has a new chief. In the person of James J. Tooling, elected at the urgent demand of Postmaster General Farley. He took his seat at the head of the once great Democratic organization and announced that he would undertake to do two things. The first is to restore harmony within the society by eliminating factional disputes; the second, and perhaps harder task, is to change the New York point of view toward Tammany.

ALL Germany and most of the rest of the world heard Adolf Hitler justify his bloody purging of the Nazi party, involving the violent deaths of 77 persons, and his defiance of his enemies within and without the reich. The chancellor, in his speech before a complimentary reeling assembly, employed his well known gift of oratory to the limit, and unless the Berlin correspondents are mistaken, he won to his support the great majority of German men who were wavering in their allegiance to him.

Hitler not only defended the slaughter of the alleged conspirators, but also gave warning that a like fate awaits all other "traitors."

"Every one is to know for all future times," he said, "that if he raises his hand for attack against the state, certain death will be his lot."

Far from apologizing for the killings, he shouted: "I gave orders to shoot those who were mainly responsible for treachery. I gave further orders to burn out into the raw flesh the pest bull of our internal war poisoning and the poisoning of foreign countries. I was the supreme court of the land for 24 hours."

His indictment of Roehm and the circle of perverses that surrounded him was terrific in its details and convincing to most of his countrymen. Just before the delivery of his address, Hitler and his government were notified by Great Britain and Italy that they approved the eastern European security pacts that France is fostering. These would include Russia, Poland, the Baltic states and Czechoslovakia, and unless Germany also signed up the result would be the forging of an iron band around the reich.

Hitler alluded to this plan in defiant language. He said: "If our trade balance, through economic barriers in foreign markets or through political boycott, becomes a passive one, we shall, through our own ability and thanks to the genius of our inventors and chemists, find ways of making ourselves independent of those raw materials which we ourselves are in a position to manufacture or find substitutes for."

The Only True Success

by Lawrence Hawthorne

What is the truest measure of success? Is it a million-dollar bank account? Is it a lengthy list of stocks and bonds? Is it, perhaps, a generous amount of public acclamation and applause? Which one of these—if any—designates the surest indication that a man deserves the commendation of his mates?

There must be something better, more ideal by which to value genuine success. Material possessions, power, fame—these things do not bring lasting happiness. These things so often bear the brand of pride; they are one of selfishness and greed; Oh, surely, there must be some higher goal. And true success must have a nobler creed!

Have we not learned that honesty and right? Humility and friendliness and cheer? Alone can hold the confidence of men. And bring increasing joy from year to year? Have we not learned to use the Golden Rule?

As our unflinching guide by which to live? Success is never gained through what we get. But only through the happiness we give!

Government

WITH drastic changes taking place in the governments of nations, much attention is turned in these days to forms of government and to discussions of various types of government. People, somewhat bewildered by adversity and untoward conditions in their personal affairs, are prone to turn to their national government either with appeals for help or with condemnation.

Some are looking for safety and security in government, while others are fearing the encroachment of government control. Christian Science has much to say about government. Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, speaks often of God's government of man. She speaks of the endowment with life and intelligence of whatever is governed by God. "God has endowed man with inalienable rights, among which are self-government, reason and conscience," she writes on page 108 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." And adds, "Man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by his Maker, divine Truth and Love."

Through the ages, mortals have sought freedom to think according to the dictates of their own conscience, freedom to act according to their own best judgment, and freedom to govern their affairs righteously without interference from others or from the state.

For a long time mortals have sought freedom from tyranny, freedom from slavery, freedom from oppression and depression, freedom from sin and from sickness. Christian Science strikes at the root of these evils, and helps weary people to find the realization of that state of being wherein man is governed by his creator—free from enslaving beliefs.

Sometimes a person is not aware of just what it is that is governing him. It may be fear of the future or grieving about the past that seems to cast a shadow over his mental outlook. It may be that some person with whom he is associated exercises much influence over him and presumes to govern his thinking and decisions. It may be that the responsibility for his troubles and misadventures is laid to business circumstances or family connections.

Whatever may be the seeming influence of unrighteous government, there is a way of escape and a means of correction. Christian Science gives the spiritual basis from which a person can learn how to have his thinking and his actions directed and governed by God. This alone leads him to safety and security. It demands that he look outside of human self for guidance and control, as did Jesus, the master Christian.

Jesus sought beyond his human personality for direction and government. By his constant recognition of his true self, spiritual selfhood, which was ever existing with God, and by his obedience to God's government, Jesus was able at all times to prove his freedom from wrong influences and unrighteous control, and therefore was able to demonstrate the true government of God. He always maintained close communion with his heavenly Father, and acknowledged the power of Mind, or God, and his unity with it. At one time, when speaking of his healings, he said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."

To be "properly self-governed," then, and guided rightly, each one must be governed by his Master, by Truth and Love. Each individual must seek the guidance of the Father, and be willing to let Truth control his thinking. Being governed rightly requires a surrender of self-righteousness, a giving up of human will, forsaking of the carnal thoughts of jealousy, rivalry, hatred, and the like. This brings true freedom, which establishes both divine and human rights.

This working out of God's righteous government in his own experience helps an individual to support in his nation, for a nation is made up of many people, the understanding of righteous government by more and more of these people will of necessity aid in bringing about improved national government.

Regardless of the vicissitudes through which the governments of nations may go, or through what changes their constitutions or laws may pass, the enlightened citizen will hold to Mind's righteous government of the individual. He will maintain and cling to the God-given rights of freedom. He will recall often the prophetic account of the coming of the Messiah by Isaiah, where it is said: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Hands Reveal Our Types, Assert French Palmists

Human beings have seven kinds of hands, according to French palmists, writes a United Press Paris correspondent. These are called elementary, spatulate, or active, conic, or artistic, square, or useful; knotty, or philosophical; pointed, or psychic, and mixed. The elementary, simple, or ordinary hand, has short fingers. The longest finger is usually shorter than the length of the palm. The palm is thick and somewhat rounded.

The spatulate, or active hand, broad and knifelike, indicates the worker. The thumb is large and the fingers sensitive and well developed at the tips. The palm is wide, but narrows near the fingers. People with spatulate hands are just and orderly, resolute and self-confident.

The conic, or artistic, hand, is full and soft. The fingers taper and their points are long. The skin is smooth and unblemished and this is the hand of luxury, voluptuousness and weak will.

The square, or useful, hand has flat fingertips, with the corners somewhat angular. The nails are square at the corners, the hand is broad and the joints large. This is the hand frequently found in artisans.

The knotty, or philosophical, hand is an exaggerated conic. The joints and fingers are knotted, the fingers usually long and tapered. Idealists have the joints next to the fingertips well developed.

The psychic hand is still more definitely pointed and conical, and it is without the conspicuous knots of the philosophical hand. It is smooth and the muscles are soft.

Chiseling Exemplified by the Crafty Seagull

If you don't quite know what a chiseler is, this real life story from the Chicago Sunday Tribune will make it clear. The setting of the story is near Atlantic City, N. J. Far out on the frozen salt marshes near here a lone duck found an air-hole and was diving for his dinner this morning. As the duck ducked, however, a seagull swooped down and perched on the ice beside the hole. Up came the duck with a succulent morsel. Snap! went the force-like beak of the gull extracting the titbit neatly and gulping it down before the duck could do more than blink.

Down went the duck again while the gull quacked smugly, like the proprietor of a sure thing. Up came the duck. Snap, went the beak. The ring was perfect. It was a small fish this time. Down—snap. It went that way for half an hour, until finally even the dumb duck got the idea he was dealing with a chiseling muscle guy.

As the duck, exhausted and disgusted, climbed out of the water and started to waddle away, the gull with a squawk of rage pounced on the quitter and gave him a sound thrashing.

Fire! Thief!

By PEGGY STOKES

It was an absurd thing, the quarrel that made Marian decide not to marry Stewart Browley. It wasn't that they didn't love each other; they did. But they were both a bit hot tempered, and when Stewart came out of the house and she wouldn't allow him to go after she was married, they both said more than they really meant, and soon found themselves involved in a real quarrel.

Marian hadn't wanted to work, really. She had even told the principal of her school that she would resign at Christmas because she expected to be married early in January. But she had fought for the right of a woman to work outside her home and still be a good wife.

"And," Marian had ended up, after hot and unconsidered words on both sides, "I won't be a slave in your kitchen."

"I don't want a slave," said Stewart, "I'd like a wife. What I want is a decent wife—not a shouting, quarrelling—"

So, before they knew it, they had broken their engagement. Within five minutes after they had parted each had realized the mistake—the absurdity of letting something so trivial break what was so beautiful, so strong. And it wasn't just that. Their house was waiting for them.

Marian couldn't think of that house rented to strangers.

Half the time she abused herself for her stupidity. She realized that she and Stewart were unusually well suited—unusually likely to make a real success of their future together.

If anyone had kept track of what Marian did with her time, it might have seemed strange that she spent so many hours shut in her room sewing. Marian never looked at the house, but turned her gaze to the other side of the street. Nevertheless she could feel the unfriendly and resentful attitude of the house that should, even now, have been filling with furniture and rugs, dishes and curtains, to make ready for her first homecoming.

That's what started Marian to sewing. Table and household linen lay all finished and marked in a trunk. She had done that work in summer vacation. But she had planned to make the curtains for the seventeen windows of the little house after she had had a chance to measure them—and now that most of her evenings were free, she could just as well spend them sewing as not—well, she decided to make the curtains anyway. Those staring windows were getting on her nerves.

She took the dotted net from her bureau and went to work.

Then, one moonless night, with a flash light in her pocket and a yardstick buttoned under her coat, she stole over to the little house, went up the front porch, measured a window.

When all the downstairs curtains were finished Marian faced the problem of the upstairs windows. Those on the side of the house were probably the same height as those downstairs, but those at the front and back, domered out from the deeply sloping roof, were surely shorter. She's have to measure them.

That night, with her trusty flashlight and yardstick hidden away, she went to the dark little house. She would have liked a ladder, of course. But she hadn't lost her childhood ability to climb trees, and it wasn't long before she was stepping along the flat little strip of roof outside the back dormers.

It was rather spooky work up there in the dark. Marian thought. She peered into the darkened windows as she pulled at the yardstick under her coat. But—they weren't dark. A dull glow, flickering, now bright, now dim, showed through the half-opened door into the hall. The house was on fire!

Marian's only thought was to get inside and put out the blaze. It was her house that was burning—hers by every right. She couldn't bear to see it consumed or even damaged by flames. She must save it.

She tried frantically to open the windows. But they were securely locked. Then she tried her shoe. If she could only get in! She didn't remember, at the moment, that the water would not have been turned on and that a far more sensible course would have been to notify the fire department. And when she heard the glass crack under the heavy impact of her shoe heel she gave a little cry of joy. Then she screamed.

There was a loud sound of footsteps coming up the stairs, and in another minute one of the windows was pushed up. A man's head appeared and, "Stop, thief!" he cried.

"Fire!" shouted Marian.

And that's all there is to the story. The man crying thief, on hearing Marian's voice, had crawled through the window to the roof and taken her into his arms.

"Fire!" he echoed, as he pulled her into the empty house after him. "Yes—down in the living room—the fireplace, where I was trying to think things out, wondering how I could get on without you, Marian."

"Thief!" echoed Marian. "Never again! I'll never again try to steal anything that belongs to you or your little house, as I did when I left you, Stewart. Have you some candles? Let's go get the downstairs curtains and put them up."

Detroit Children Feted at Fair

The happy smiles on the faces of Joan Margaret Naylor, 8, and Jimmie Herbert Naylor, 7, were born when Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck chased them a random at the first entrance to a Century of Progress, and made them king and queen of Children's Day (July 12) at the Fair. They were Buck's guests for the entire day and rode in his private ricksha in the Children's Day parade, pulled by Fast Black, Malayin boy whom Buck brought from the jungles. Whale and Basking Shark Reach an Enormous Size

The average person looks upon the shark as the greatest terror of the sea, and for ages the belief in them as man-eaters has been handed down from generation to generation, says a writer in Tilt-Bits Magazine.

The two largest species, the whale shark and the basking shark, both of which grow to an enormous size, are certainly lazy, slow, inoffensive, and practically harmless. However, the great white shark of tropical seas is considered to be a man-eater, and other closely related species are looked upon as very dangerous.

Another fish, the barracuda, smaller than the average shark, is regarded by many as far more vicious and dangerous. It seldom attains a length greater than 8 feet, but is described as "bloodthirsty, bold, inquisitive, and of an implacable temper." The barracuda is a large, pike-shaped, predatory, and extremely voracious fish, allied to the mullet and inhabiting the tropical and semi-tropical seas. It differs from the shark in many ways. Its head and mouth are proportionately large. The head alone is one-fourth of the entire length of the fish, and the huge alligator-like mouth is fitted with sharp canine teeth. The body is compressed, rounded, and powerfully muscled.

The Early Pig

A "rummaging pig," which never went to market because he lived some 40,000 years before the establishment of stockyards but disported himself on the great river flood plains which are now the big bad lands of South Dakota, is on exhibition in the University of Michigan museum, "Meryciodontodon Culbertsoni" is the little animal which has given this early animal, which had skeletal and dental characteristics resembling both the modern swine and rummaging animals. When the skeleton is modeled over with clay, to reproduce the bulk of the animal, it resembles the rangy razor-back hog of the South, but with a somewhat different skull form and a long, instead of a short, tail. Dromes of the little animals were to be found in the Dakotas during the Oligocene period, a time when early types of mammals were dying out and the modern forms beginning to evolve.

Canada's Great Lakes

In popular usage the term "Great Lakes" refers to these vast bodies of fresh water, Lakes Superior, Huron, Erie, Ontario, and Michigan. There is no other such chain. But on this continent there are other lakes greater than some of these. Great Bear lake, for instance, in the Canadian Northwest territory, is larger than Erie by 1,720 square miles and larger than Ontario by 4,120 square miles. Great Slave lake is nearly the size of Great Bear. Lake Winnipeg in Manitoba is about 2,000 square miles larger than Lake Ontario. Twelve Canadian lakes are above 1,100 square miles in extent. Like the great lakes of the border, the lakes wholly within Canada are of high importance to transportation and fisheries, climate and sport.

"In the Doldrums"

The expression "in the doldrums," came from large ocean areas which, because of their complete calm, were once the bane of sailors, as it was not uncommon for a ship to get in one of them and remain there for months at a time.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD FINDS BANKING BETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A review by the Federal Reserve Board indicates that the condition of operating banks, particularly in country districts, has improved in recent months, as shown by the fact that these banks have been able to reduce their indebtedness to the reserve banks, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and to others.

The July bulletin of the board in discussing these findings says:

"At the same time progress has been made in making available to depositors funds that had been tied up in closed banks."

"Banks in financial straits have been out of debt to the Federal Reserve Banks for a long time and in addition have had a large volume of excess reserves. At the beginning of the year there were still many small banks throughout the country, however, that carried a considerable load of indebtedness."

"Country Banks Reflect Improvement"

"The liquidation of indebtedness by these banks reflects in part improvement in business condition and the consequent ability of customers to repay bank loans which long had been frozen. It constitutes a strengthening of the banking position."

"The board pointed out that the reduction of member bank indebtedness has been continuous, since the beginning of 1933 except for a brief period during the banking crisis in the Spring of 1933. The review continued:

"In 1932 liquidation of indebtedness of member banks to the reserve banks was accompanied by an increase of their borrowings from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. In the past year and a half, however, indebtedness of member banks to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has also been reduced."

SEES TURNING POINT IN BANKING HISTORY

NEW YORK.—The American Bankers Association Journal in its July issue presents the following review of banking and business conditions:

"It is an almost universal opinion among bankers that June has been the turning point in banking history in the matter of recovery. Reasons for the optimism are twofold—the condition of the banks and the prospects of better banking business."

"The reorganization of the banking system after the holiday of sixteen months ago is now practically complete. The comparatively few banks yet to be reorganized and reopened are no longer a serious factor in the situation. The year's preparatory period for the enforcement of major provisions of the Banking Act of 1933 has passed, and banks now have a definite idea of where they stand."

"Most Sensitive of Senses"

The eye is the most sensitive of the five senses. It is capable of distinguishing between differences as small as 1-200th of its range while the touch as small as 1-50th. Measurements by the bureau of standards have shown that after the eye has adapted itself to the dark it is 300,000 times as sensitive as the thermopile, the most sensitive instrument yet invented."

"They're Not Police Dogs"

British dog fanciers are insisting that the Alsatians (known as police dogs in America) are improperly called dogs and state that this breed should be registered as German wolf dogs.

Life of a Paint Coat

The life of a paint coating is said to depend upon three things: the quality of the paint, its application, and the conditions to which it is exposed. A good paint, well applied to a frame house and exposed to ordinary weather conditions should protect the surface adequately for from three to five years.

The dictionary does not recognize the word "across." The term is illiterate or childish, and possibly has crept into usage through ellipsis, in which the letter "t" of the, which usually follows across, has been improperly joined to the preposition. LITERARY DIGEST.
