Legion Team Leads Twilight Ball League

Contrary to predictions of local baseball dopsters who planned to see a "World's Series" in the Twilight Ball League, the season closes with the American Legion team leading the league to take the pennant—unless the Sea Scouts are fortunate enough to take the only remaining game to be played from the Legion. This seems rather doubtful inasmuch as the Scouts have won only one game during the season.

The apocryphal was upset during the past week when the Trojans defeated both the Legion and Sea Scouts. The Paul team, breaking the triple tie for the leadership of the league, the Congregationalists were again defeated on Tuesday evening, by the Methodists, which takes them down to third place.

The only game remaining to be played is scheduled for tonight, between the Legion and Sea Scouts. Unless the Scouts win this will close the season. If the Legion should be defeated they will be tied with the St. Paul's team for first place, in which case there will be a series to decide the championship.

Standings	W	L	Pct.
Legion	11	3	.786
St. Pauls	11	4	.733
Congregationalists	10	5	.667
Trojans	6	9	.399
Methodists	5	10	.333
Sea Scouts	1	13	.071

Friday—Trojans 8, Congregationalists 4.
Monday—Trojans 5, St. Pauls 2.
Tuesday—Methodists 5, Congregationalists 2.

Schedule
Thursday, August 16—Legion vs. Sea Scouts.

Effort Being Made To Secure Queen

Difficulty is being experienced in arrangements for selection of a Miss Chelsea to represent the community at the Washtenaw County Fair, when a Queen of the Fair will be chosen, the prize for which will be a free trip to a Century of Progress in Chicago for the Queen and her mother.

A number of nominations have been made for local girls to enter the contest, but when approached they are reluctant about entering the competition.

It is planned to select Miss Chelsea at the Princess Theatre next Monday evening at 9 o'clock and it is hoped a group of young ladies can be induced to appear at that time for the contest. Judges will be present to pass judgment as to the most attractive girl to represent Chelsea at the Fair.

Other communities are selecting their entries in the contest and Chelsea surely can send an entry which will have a good chance of winning the county contest if the young ladies will enter for the event next Monday.

Log Tells Of Cruise By Local Sea Scouts

An interesting log of the cruise taken by Chelsea and Ypsilanti Sea Scouts on the Great Lakes on the U. S. S. Truant was prepared daily by Foster Belsael, one of the local Scouts. This log, which is very interesting and describes full details of the cruise daily, follows:

Thursday, July 26—Cast off from dock at Naval Armory, Detroit at 2:30 p. m. Ship working perfectly and making about 10 knots an hour. Ate supper as we were crossing Lake St. Clair. About 7:00, began to lose steam pressure and had trouble with pump. The stack which had filled up with soot burned out and scorched all the paint off. Just as we came in sight of Tashmoo Island. Docked at island at 7:30. Cleaned stack and fixed pump temporarily. Had to repair engine room telegraph cable which broke as we docked at Tashmoo.

Friday, July 27—Finished making repairs and cast off from Tashmoo at 1:30 a. m. Arrived at Port Huron about 7:00 a. m. and docked there for repairs until 2:30 p. m. Entered Lake Huron at 3:00. Passed Lightship Huron. Sea began to get very rough about 8:00. Heavy wind blowing and rain. Most of crew was over the rails seasick. Ship tossing very bad. One of crew fell out of bunk and landed in a bunk beneath his while ship was rolling hard.

Saturday, July 28—About 3:30 a. m. something broke in the engine room and as it was still very stormy had to drop anchor. Could see lights of Harbor Beach and started down hoisted anchor and started engine. Pulled into Harbor Beach and docked. Fixed the engine and took on coal. Left Harbor Beach about 2:30 and headed north again. Sea still rough. Crossed Saginaw Bay during night.

Sunday, July 29—Crossed Thunder Bay about 6:00 a. m. Sighted Alpena. Passed Presque Isle. Passed Rogers City about 11:00 a. m. Sea became very rough again. Heavy wind and rain. Ship tossing very hard at 3:00 p. m. Some of crew seasick. About 4:00 engine broke down. The piston ring seat in the medium compression steam cylinder broke. Dropped anchor. Engineers removed broken piston. Hoisted anchor and proceeded very slowly into Cheboygan. Ship rolling so hard that galley stove broke loose and slid across the room. Dishes flying all over. Pushed stove back in place and fastened it there. Hooked up gas and continued getting supper, with two fellows to hold the things on the stove. Docked at Cheboygan about supper time. After supper had shore leave until 12:00 p. m. Most of crew went to dance in Cheboygan.

Monday, July 30—Spent most of day cleaning and painting ship. Found out that we would have to stay about two days in Cheboygan until they could finish making the new part for the engine. Had shore leave from 6:00 p. m. until 12:00 p. m. Shorty Woodruff and myself hitch hiked to Mackinaw City. Visited the old fort. Went all through the large car ferry and were treated to a lunch while on the ferry. Rode back to Cheboygan with same people that gave us ride to Mackinaw City.

Tuesday, July 31—Rained all day. Not much doing except wait for new part to come. Went to a movie in the evening.

Wednesday, August 1—Cleaned ship in the morning. Some of crew went fishing in the afternoon and caught some nice bass. New part arrived and engineers installed it. Had shore leave from 6:30 until 8:00 p. m. Left Cheboygan at 9:30 and passed through Straits. Passed Mackinaw City at 11:00 p. m.

Thursday, August 2—Passed South Fox Island about 7:00 a. m. Quite a heavy storm during night but it is all (Continued on Last Page)

Michigan Department of State

WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Secretary of State

Sale of new automobiles in Michigan was 58 per cent greater during the first seven months of 1934 than during the same period in 1933, records of the department of state show. Used car transactions increased 24 per cent during the same months.

The statistics were obtained from department records showing the number of certificates of title issued. Thus far in 1934, a total of 91,988 titles were issued on new vehicles or 33,999 more than for the corresponding seven months in 1933. 223,445 titles were issued on used cars as compared with 172,896 in 1933.

Another interesting fact is the 24 per cent decrease in the number of vehicles that are repossessed. Thus far this year 5,445 cars were repossessed, being 1,524 fewer than last year.

During the past seven months 845 cars were reported stolen and of this number all but 69 have been reported as recovered. Up to Aug. 1, 1934 a total of 1,114 cars were reported stolen. This decrease in auto thefts is significant when it is realized that 114,398 more vehicles were licensed for operation on Aug. 1 this year.

Copper automobile license plates are being tested in Michigan.

In an effort to ascertain data relative to the use of copper plates, special test plates have been made up and are being used on cars belonging to Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald and other executives of the department. As the cost of copper in past years has been the one factor preventing the use of this metal, the tests are aimed to determine how light a plate may be made and still possess sufficient durability.

SALINE—Another bubble has gone the way of all such things. Last week we predicted that Saline would soon have a new oil supply station at the depot, but it seems the 'promoter' is just hitch-hiking about the country, securing lodging and meals on the strength of his story of locating oil supply stations, and then leaving for another green pasture.—Observer.

HOWELL—The test well for the city of Howell being driven by Mr. Chapman of Fowlerville at the south-east corner of the school grounds is now down about 90 feet. At various levels, clay strata was pierced, a little indication of coal, and plenty of grey sand, salt and pepper have been found. It is expected to strike water in the neighborhood of the 100 foot level.—Republican-Press.

OLDSMOBILE SALES GAIN

"Oldsmobile retail sales for the month of July were 131 per cent ahead of the same month last year," according to D. E. Ralston, vice president and general sales manager of Oldsmobile.

"Sales for the last ten day period of the month were 10 per cent ahead of the second ten days. This increase is unusual," said Mr. Ralston, "in view of the fact that automobile sales generally show a decline during this period."

Mr. Ralston said, "We have no indication of a slackening in the public demand for the Oldsmobile six, or eight. The splendid sales record made by Oldsmobile dealers during July and reports from all sections of the country lead us to expect new sales records to be established for Oldsmobile during the late summer and fall months."

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Which are the three largest wheat-producing countries in the world?

Ans.—The three largest wheat-producing countries in the world are the United States, Russia, and Canada in the order named.

Ques.—Will you be brave enough to tell me who is the biggest liar in this whole county? Don't quibble over this.

Ans.—A rather pertinent question, but if you will be bold enough to let your name be known, we may be able to make a reasonable guess as to who is the biggest liar in "this whole county."

Ques.—I wish to ask you how old was Floyd Collins, the cave explorer who lost his life while exploring a cave in Kentucky about ten or twelve years ago. Where was he buried. And any other information concerning him will be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Ans.—Floyd Collins, the cave explorer, was 35 years old when he met his death. He lived at Cave City, Ky., a small town about eighty-five miles south of Louisville. On Friday morning, Jan. 30, 1925, Collins entered Sand Cave, which is near Mammoth Cave, for the purpose of making observations. He started to return. He had a narrow, six-foot climb. In making the ascent, he dislodged a large and heavy boulder which fell against his ankle and held his foot firmly in a crevice. His predicament was not known until the following Sunday when John Gerald, another explorer, had entered the same cave for the same purpose as did Collins. He found Collins alive, trapped and pleading for help. But he could not be reached because of fallen rocks and debris. Rescuing parties, however, could get close enough to supply him with some food and water. On Feb. 10, 1925, rescuing parties reached him, after tunneling about seventy-five feet. They found he had been dead about 24 hours. Simple funeral services were held on the spot, and it was decided to let the cave be his tomb. On April 23, 1925, the body was brought to the surface and was buried on a hill overlooking Crystal Cave, which Collins had discovered several years before.

Ques.—What was the maiden name of the mother of George Washington, the first President of the United States?

Ans.—The maiden name of George Washington's mother was "Mary Ball."

Ques.—Where is the home of Mr. Childs, the man who owns a chain of restaurants over the United States?

Ans.—The home of Samuel S. Childs, the nation-wide restaurant owner, was in New York City. He died March 17, 1925.

Ques.—Can you tell me in your paper if Iceland is a republic? If so, who is the president? Do women vote there?

Ans.—Iceland belongs to Denmark, but it is a free state much like Ireland is to Great Britain. They elect an upper and lower house of Congress, which they call "Althing." Both men and women may vote if they are 25 years of age or older.

Ques.—In news matter pertaining to moneys owed the United States by England, France and other powers, the phrase "token payment" is used. Now I would like to know just what that means, as I have never heard it explained.

Ans.—A small payment instead of the regular amount due at the specified time is termed a "token" payment. The word "token" means that it is a sign or indication that the debtor country acknowledges the debt, but is unable to pay the full installment at the time it is due.

Ques.—May I ask you if presidents of the United States are obliged to pay income tax?

Ans.—Yes. A law went into effect on March 4, 1913, requiring presidents of the United States to pay taxes on their salaries. Previous to the above date they were exempt.

Ques.—A friend of mine told me that a United States battleship costs more than a million dollars. Is that true or is he dreaming?

Ans.—The average United States battleship costs about twenty-five million dollars. Some cost as much as thirty million, but none less than twenty million.

Ques.—What determines the value of pearls found in oyster shells? Where are the best ones found?

Ans.—The value of pearls depends upon their uniformity of size, sheen and freedom from flaws. Some pearls during the process of formation become attached to the shell and are irregular in shape. These have very little value. A string of pearls all of one size or graded size, sheen pearls and flawless, may command a value of more than a million dollars. The best are found in oyster shells in tropical waters.

NORTHVILLE—The Northville schools will open Monday, September 17, and attempt to run nine months. It was decided by the board of education in its regular meeting Monday evening.—Record.

Birds Warm Blooded

Birds are much warmer blooded than human beings. Their bodily temperatures range from 100 degrees in the wingless kiwi to from 107 to 111 among sparrows and warblers. Birds with temperatures intermediate between these two classes are the emus and penguins, 102 degrees; and ducks, fowl and game birds, the temperatures of which range from 105 to 107 degrees.

Little Left of Ranch

A court action in San Mateo, Calif., revealed the Buri Buri Ranch, which included the entire San Francisco peninsula in Spanish California days, had dwindled to a single acre.

Lead as Water Users

People of Scotland use more water per person than anyone else in Great Britain, and they use it primarily for washing. Dunblane, Scotland, uses an average of 130 gallons per person a day. Other Scotch cities and towns are not far behind. Even large industrial districts do not use near that amount.

Both Parties Condemned

The Ohio state Democratic convention, held in Allen county, June 15, 1933, passed a resolution declaring that "both political parties have demonstrated that they are powerless to check or control the existing tendency toward the utter demoralization of the politics of the country."

Water Power Was Used in Mills of Ancient Romans

The origin of water mills is buried in the depths of antiquity for they are mentioned by Pliny, and are said to have been introduced into Britain by the Romans, writes H. Augustus Dawson in the Edinburgh Scotsman. Yet they remained unknown in Scotland prior to the Twelfth century, and did not become anything like common throughout the country for a hundred years before their introduction was followed by building in a quern, a method followed in the Bronze Age, and depicted upon the rock tombs of prehistoric Egypt. When St. Columba studied under Pinian he learned to grind wheat with a quern each evening and at home caused his disciples to do so to grind their daily meals.

Up to the middle of the Eighteenth century water power was only applied to the grinding of oats. The other processes of production were carried on by the labor of human hands. After the harvest was cut the grain was separated by the use of the flail. In 1710 James Meikle introduced the use of fanners to remove the loose chaff, but his invention was opposed by religious farmers, who regarded the raising of wind as interfering with the dispensation of Providence, and it only came gradually into general use. Barley was ground by building in a mortar or "knocking stone," until about 1760, when these humble, crude and wasteful methods were replaced by mills for grinding barley.

President Roosevelt's Vacation Trip Ends—NRA Modification and Drouth Relief Taken Up—Von Papen's Hard Task in Austria.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ended his rather long vacation trip, returning to his home in Hyde Park, New York. During the remainder of the summer and until Congress meets, he will spend some time there and in Warm Springs, Georgia, but most of the time he will be in Washington, busy with the nation's affairs in his temporary office which has been established in the blue room of the White House. The executive offices are being remodeled and enlarged. One of the first matters to claim the President's attention is the modification of NRA. The secret cabinet committee he appointed to inquire into the legality and advisability of continuing and extending the price fixing features of NRA has decided this price fixing should be restricted and gradually abandoned, and there is little doubt that this advice will be followed. Whether or not the fixing of prices is legal, it has brought sharp and continuous criticism from Senator Borah and many others which has not been relished by the New Dealers.

President Roosevelt

On his way from the west coast the President not only saw some of the great public works projects of the Northwest, but also passed through regions that have suffered severely from the drouth. So he is backing up the government agencies in their work of hurrying vast sums of government money to the arid regions to ease the human suffering and also to lessen the chances of another such catastrophe. The public works administration, which had an original appropriation of $3,300,000,000, revealed it had spent about $400,000,000 on projects to aid impoverished western families.

Emergency relief administration officials announced they had allotted huge sums to feed men and women. They also have spent thousands to care for starving cattle. Public Works Administrator Harold I. Ickes, who was on an inspection tour in the drouth area, ordered his forces to expedite all construction projects affecting the dry regions.

NATIONALIZATION of silver, authorized by the last congress, was ordered into effect by the President. This will have little immediate effect on the average citizen, though the move is somewhat inflationary and started prices off the up-grade. Big debtors and owners of silver mines will benefit, but as the value of the dollar goes down, the holders of securities and bonds suffer loss.

The President's order directs the surrender to the government of all silver bullion and bars within 90 days, the price to be paid being 50.01 cents an ounce. Silver coins and silverware are not included. Under the silver purchase act the treasury is authorized to value the silver it obtains at $1.29 an ounce and to issue silver certificates on that basis. The government proposes to hold enough silver to make up 25 per cent of the metal backing of the national currency. No one knows how much silver bullion there is in the United States, and it may be necessary to make considerable purchases in China and India.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace joined in a statement concerning their efforts to revive America's world trade, explaining that the reciprocal trade agreements to be negotiated with foreign countries will be beneficial and not harmful to American agriculture and manufacturing.

The statement pointed out, in answer to criticism from farm organizations, that farm interests would not be sacrificed to aid other groups. It also said no sacrifice of any major or basic agricultural or manufacturing industry was planned, although Secretary Wallace told reporters that some harm might be done to a tiny fraction of the producers for the greater good of all.

ONE thousand men and women comprising the Minneapolis Protective committee telegraphed an appeal to President Roosevelt to protect the constitutional rights now superseded by martial law in their city. Copies of the appeal were sent also to Secretary Perkins and Lloyd Garrison, chairman of the National Labor Relations board.

"We are satisfied," they wired, "that an agreement between employers and employees could be reached were it not for the interference by a small body of citizens known to be Communist agitators who are being supported in their activities by the sympathetic attitude of Gov. Floyd B. Olson."

At the end of the statement was a sentence interpreted as a request for replacement of the federal mediators, Father Francis J. Ilans and E. H. Dunnigan.

The conciliators were authors of a peace plan which the union accepted with alacrity because it granted a maximum of the demands made before the walkout. It was turned down by the employers, but mediation proceeded until the principal point of difference now concerns the rehiring of all the strikers. The Hans-Dunnigan plan makes that blanket provision. The employers do not wish to be forced to take back men who have Communist sympathies.

"The federal conciliators now here are unable to effect a settlement," the protective committee told Mr. Roosevelt. "Labor is being deprived of its earning power; business institutions are suffering substantial losses; taxpayers are being subjected to further burden (through maintenance of the National Guard) and our city and surrounding territory are demanding the right to conduct lawfully ordinary business and industrial affairs."

"We appeal to you to take immediate steps to remedy the situation and send us conciliators who will recognize the needs of all citizens and prevent demonstration of the situation for political purposes."

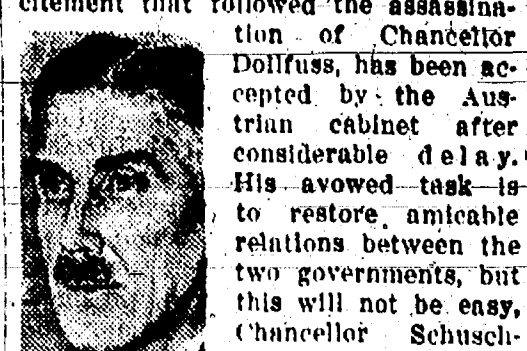

Gen. Hugh Johnson's efforts to end the strike of live stock handlers at the Union stockyards in Chicago were successful. The strike was called off and Federal Judge Sullivan resumed his work as mediator to construe the award he made on May 31 as arbitrator of a similar strike that took place last November.

IN GREEN BAY, WIS., the President delivered what was considered his principal political address of the year. He told his hearers that the New Deal was going ahead on its non-partisan road and that those who support it "do so because it is a square deal and because it is essential to the preservation of security and happiness of a free society."

The President's reference to Wisconsin political alignments was this significant remark: "Your two senators, both old friends of mine, and many others have worked with me in maintaining excellent co-operation between the executive and legislative branches of the government."

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Republican Independent and sponsor of the new state political party, is up for re-election. F. Ryan Duffy, Democrat, is the other senator from Wisconsin, elected in 1932.

FRANZ VON PAPEN, vice chancellor of Germany, who was appointed minister to Austria during the execution that followed the assassination of Chancellor Dollfus, has been accepted by the Austrian cabinet after considerable delay. His avowed task is to restore amicable relations between the two governments, but this will not be easy, Chancellor Schuschnigg is as determined to root out Nazism in Austria as was his predecessor, and at the same time the German Nazis are keeping up their press and radio attacks on the Austrian government. In camps around Munich are about 40,000 Austrian Nazi fugitives for whom Von Papen is expected to obtain amnesty so they may return to their country; but as they have been hoping to march into Austria under arms to overthrow the government, it isn't likely Schuschnigg will care to let them return.

Franz Von Papen

The cabinet in Vienna is taking vigorous action to curb the Nazis, and it was reported that the executive of that party had been ordered dissolved, the members being told to take leaves of absence and to cease activities. Chancellor Hitler is daily solidifying his power in Germany. The latest step is to require all Protestant pastors and church officials to take an oath of fealty to Hitler just as did the Nazi storm troops and members of the regular army. New rules were imposed by the national synod that make Reichsbishop Mueller the supreme law-maker and authority for the church.

Between eight and ten thousand political prisoners in concentration camps were given their liberty by an amnesty decree announced by Hitler in memory of President Von Hindenburg. ARABS of Algeria, like the Arabs of Palestine, do not love their Jewish neighbors, so they started anti-Semitic riots in Constantine and surrounding towns in the course of which a great many persons were killed or wounded. Nearly all the casualties were among the Jews. The French military authorities quickly got control of the situation. Constantine is a wheat growing area and the Arab farmers had a poor crop this year. The rioting gave them a chance to wipe out many debts to Jewish bankers and shopkeepers.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, whose health has been broken by tragedy.

Mrs. Puffer's question about the city he returned to Prue's mind as several hours later she uncurled the string of pearls before the mirror on the chintz dressing table. She looked at the lovely, gleaming things which dripped from her pink palm. Her sister's pearls! Lovely Julia, who had married the son of a multi-millionaire, adoring him, believing in him. When after two years of marriage she had discovered his unfaithfulness—the treachery of her brother's wife—she had crumpled, her life had gone out like a candle, and with it the life of her baby. The tragedy had seemed to run back into the very roots of Prue's heart—if one's heart had roots—or the spring of her heart which threatened so often to bubble up in tears. It had killed the lovely shining belief she had had in people, taken the sunshine out of living.

Time had eased the ache, but it had not restored her faith. She had had men, friends, but she had steeled herself against their protestations. There were plenty of safe, sane interests without staking her happiness on a man.

Men. The eyes of the girl in the glass narrowed a trifle. She had met two today. Mrs. Puffer had declared: "There's one or two smart Alecks in the village who'll do you, if they get the chance."

Prudence laid the pearls in their satin bed and snapped the case shut. She tapped the velvet lightly with a finger as she reflected aloud: "One or two smart Alecks. I wonder—I wonder if Mrs. Puffer was warning me against one or both of my new acquaintances."

CHAPTER III

Prudence, perched on the top of a grain bin in the dusty, shadowy barn, dangled her feet in their white and brown sports shoes. She nibbled a straw as she thoughtfully regarded St. Puffer, who, seated on a milking stool opposite, gazed back at her with fatuous admiration.

"What sort of man is Len Calloway, Mr. St.?" He has called on one pretext or another every day since I took possession of this property. You don't have to tell me that he is a compelling person and good-looking. I know that. His eyes are too dark and flashing, his chin a bit too assertive, his hair is getting perilously thin on top, isn't it? Is he the whoop-de-doo lad of the village? Mother Puffer said that he was born in the red brick house. Has he always lived in this town?"

Puffer rubbed an unshaven cheek. "Grew up here. Went west 'bout two years ago after he'd met with a disappointment in love. Then his father died and he came back bursting with know-how and began contracting to cut timber. What's he been saying to you?"

"He wants to buy the trees on the upper wood lot—the one Uncle Austin bought of his father. He didn't make a definite offer. He asked me to sign a contract giving him the right to cut all trees over ten inches and all wood necessary to get it out. Of course, I don't know anything about the business, but when he added that last clause the Imp who regulates traffic in my mind flashed on a red light."

Puffer chuckled. "You sure have your own way of saying things, Miss Prue. I guess that Imp was on his job. Mind, I don't say Len would set out to cheat you, but he isn't in business for his health alone, and if you crossed him—well, don't have nothing to do with him. Then you're sure, if you like him, that's your business. All I'll say is, handsome as he handsome does. Hullo, here's Rod! Wonder if he wants to buy timber?"

He waved his hand to Rodney Gerard, who, with a spectacular flourish and fanfare of French horn, stopped his car in front of the barn. "Greetings, Prue of Prosperity farm! Morning, St. Come for a ride, will you? It's a white of a day. His eyes were on the girl.

"Terrible sorry I can't go, Roddy, but I've got to work on those poultry houses. My boss is all-fired fussy." Puffer chuckled and vanished round a corner.

Prudence took possession of the stool her man-of-all-work had vacated. She shook her head as she answered the question in Gerard's eyes. "If that invitation was meant for me, I can't go. I'm busy. The hens are approaching the season of diminishing returns—to put it conservatively. High yields and large profits must be my battle-cry. Ever heard of an economic graph? Mr. St. and I have been tracing one. You seem to forget that I am a woman of affairs. I can't waste time playing with idle little boys like you."

"I Can't Waste Time Playing With Idle Little Boys Like You."

"All right, I'm an idle little boy. Why should I work? I don't need money. I put the best I've got into any sport I make a stab at. I like a good time and—there you are."

Prudence rested her elbows on her knees, her chin in her palms, and studied Rodney Gerard curiously from under a fringe of lashes. His clean-cut face—she reluctantly conceded that it had an underlying strength—was care-free, debonaire. Her memory flashed a close-up of Len Calloway. She compared the two. Rodney Gerard was as tall as the lumberman. He gave an impression of lithe strength where the other man was massive.

"What's happened to your ambition? Arrested development? Don't you care to accomplish things?" she asked gravely.

"Some things. Do you?"

"Adore it. I love trying to do what I have to do superlatively well. I made good as a craftsman."

"What sort of craftsman?"

"Silver and gold. When people began to sneak cautiously from their financial crash-proof dugouts, began to unhoard, I earned a fairly good income making jewelry and silver boxes. Then the back-to-the-land urge caught us, turned me into a farmer—and here I am."

"Giving up your craft?"

"Not if I can possibly squeeze in time for it. I adore it. From now on I shall be an extremely busy person; Mother Puffer is about to instruct me in the thirty art of canning. You, doubtless, will soon return to that gay circle of society in which you must be a bright and shining light."

She hadn't known that blue eyes could be flamingly black, nor that a fair skin could turn so darkly red.

"You've got that wrong. I'm an extremely busy person, too."

"You! Busy? About what?"

"Taking a medical correspondence course."

"Don't look so skeptical. Perhaps it isn't medical, perhaps it's surgical. Trying to learn the remedy for hardening of the heart." There was a hint of seriousness underlying the light words. He regarded her steadily. "May be able to arrest the ossifying of yours. Is it true, as Mrs. Puffer intimates, that there's a white-haired boy in your New York state line who's yearning to smash his farm obsession and carry you back to the city?"

Surprise hobbled Prue's voice. "What?"

"You know what I said. Don't side-step."

Indignation clarified her mind and loosened her tongue. "Side-step? Why should I? There is, there was a man for whom I might have cared, but—you have brought this on yourself by your question—he is of your type; wealth is an acid test few of the men I have known could stand—so I'm a perfectly safe person so far as you are concerned. Mr. St. told me that you were in terror for fear some girl would marry you for your money. I wouldn't marry a rich playboy if I loved him to distraction. I had to stand by helpless while my sister broke her heart over one of them."

Rodney Gerard caught her hands and pulled her to her feet. "St. talks too much. I'm in terror about anything? That's his joke. Your heart wouldn't break for a man, would it?"

Prudence twisted free. "Not unless it split from fury, because I had been so dumb as to believe in him."

"That's one in the eye for me, I take it. Boy, but you're bitter! I'm not in that class you defeat. I'll make you take back what you said about my being of that type. I'll make you. It will be a no-quarter battle. Get me?"

She clasped her hands behind her back, leaned toward him smiling. "Smashing climax. This is where a movie director who knew his business would shout 'Cut!'"

His eyes held her mocking eyes with steady inflexibility. "St. Puffer says that you are smart as a steel trap. You may be, but apparently not smart enough to distinguish between the real and melodrama. I may be a lazy devil waiting opportunity, but I still believe in character, believe that there are levels below which—well, in the century in which you belong they called it noblesse oblige."

His face was colorless as he turned away to his car. Prue's conscience smarted. Had she been unjust? She couldn't help liking him. She was beside him as he stepped into the roadster. She smiled apologetically.

"Don't go away angry. You asked a question. I answered it. Just because we live on different planets of ideals and ideas is no reason for our quarreling, is it?"

"How do you know we are so far apart?"

"Help! I've said the wrong thing again! I would love to motor with you, really I would, but David is coming on the afternoon train and I have heaps to do before then. You don't know how you tempt me."

There was a reckless light in Gerard's eyes. "Quote. Fly pleasure and it will follow you."

"Then I won't fly. Will you take me to the Puffers?"

He swung the roadster door wide. Grinned engagingly. "Taxi, lady?"

As the car shot forward, he inquired: "Who will bring your brother from the station?"

"Mr. St. I have been too busy about the place to try out the car. Uncle Austin left me."

"The road is still torn up. He would be jolted to pulp in that old machine of Puffer's. If you think a 'rich playboy' may be trusted, I will meet him."

"Don't be snippy. I have been dreading the trip for David, but if he comes in this wonderful roadster—he is so precious. Emotion broke up the sentence, menaced her voice."

"I will accept your kindness only if you'll promise to come in and have tea when you bring David home."

There was a small-boy radiance in his face and voice which contracted Prue's throat.

"Mean it? Then of course I'll come. I'll drive this car as if it were a bubble with a grain of radium for passenger. Those are the most breakable and precious commodities I know. How are you, Calloway?"

The dark-eyed, dark-skinned man, passing, brought his red car to a sudden stop and swung off his broad-brimmed hat.

"Good morning, Miss Schuyler. I've just been to your place, Gerard. They told me I was likely to find you somewhere round here."

There was nothing in the words which could be challenged. It was the implication. Rodney Gerard reddened. "Come to High Ledges tonight, Calloway, and I'll let you know what I have decided about the timber."

"Can't you tell me now?"

"No, I can't."

"Perhaps Miss Schuyler will say whether she has decided to let me have hers—or do you decide for her?"

"You're mighty impertinent," Gerard dared, and shot the car forward. "Oh dear! Have you made an enemy because of me?"

His laugh was curt. "The animosity between Len Calloway and yours truly is nothing new. He always gets me goat. Do you intend to sell your timber to him?"

"Mr. St. advises against it."

"Give me the contract to handle it, will you?"

"You?"

"Even I. Don't let surprise that I am interested in something besides sports shock you into insensibility. I have about a thousand acres of timber which have been on my mind for some time. I've decided to cut it this winter, and the more I have to cut, the better and more profitable job I can make of it."

"But—you'll have to live here!"

"All right. I'll have to live here. What a profound observation! Coming from a woman of affairs like yourself, it's a smash."

She stole a glance at his grave face. Her thoughts raced as swiftly as the fleecy clouds against the glaring blue sky. Had he had this in mind while she had been accusing him of indolence and indifference? Contrition warmed her voice.

"I should love to have you cut our timber, but, I warn you, I'm likely to be a pest I shall ask so many questions."

"Fire away. What say to forming a partnership?"

"Sounds grand—but that would take capital, wouldn't it? Why not sign a contract to the effect that the interest on your investment is to be paid before the profit is divided?"

"Hokey!—"

"Unless that is done I'm off the partnership, Mr. Rodney Gerard."

"Oh, all right. I'm a lawyer—though I haven't done much at it. I'll draw a contract which will put aside here we are at the Puffers. Come on a little way. We have so much to decide, we are in business now, remember."

ber. We'll trace that economic graph you're so keen about."

Prudence swung open the door of the car. "Don't wheedle. I'll expect you for tea this afternoon. Morning partner."

She turned to wave her hand before she entered the path to the back door, opened it in response to a soft cushiony:

"Come in!"

The kitchen was gay with blue and white checked gingham curtains at the plant-filled windows, a blue and white linoleum on the floor, blue pots and pans arranged on the shelves. Spotless town, if ever there was one.

"Glad you've come, Miss Prue. I cut that bakay for you. Wasn't that Rod Gerard with you? I wonder what's keeping him in this part of the country so late in the season."

"He is looking after his timber!"

"Lor! I hope he and Calloway won't get into trouble again. Len's been jealous of Roddy since they were boys, when little Milly Gooch, the circus folks' kid, was always turning down Walt and Len for him. Len thought 'twas because Rod's folks were rich and a fine family, but what did the child care for that? She just about worshipped Roddy. Then there was bad feeling between the two before Len went west. He gets terribly ugly if he's crossed. I'm afraid he'll get the heat of Rod, who's easy-going."

"Why not warn Mr. Gerard? He could escape before anything rough happens to him. It's good flying weather."

"Now, Miss Prue, don't you make fun of Rod."

"I'm not making fun of him; on the contrary, I am thinking of engaging him as my legal adviser."

"Then you've got another think coming to you."

Prudence wheeled. Her eyes widened as they met the dark, near-set eyes of Calloway, leaning against the door frame.

"Understand, Miss Schuyler, that if I cut your timber, I deal with you and you and no one else. Gerard will keep out of my business or I'll know the reason why. He stepped between us and a girl once before—and it's the last time."
