Herbert Rank Injured When Car Hits Wagon

While driving a team, hitched to an empty wagon, along US-12 about a mile west of his home on Monday, Herbert Rank suffered minor injuries when a car driven by a lady from Detroit collided with the wagon. The driver of the car attempted to pass the wagon but when she could not do so on account of oncoming traffic was unable to stop before striking the wagon.

Luckily for Mr. Rank, who was thrown down by the impact, he rolled off the wagon. The team ran away, into a telephone pole, demolishing the wagon and breaking the harness so they were separated. The horses continued on their homeward journey, scattering pieces of the harness along the way.

Mr. Rank suffered injuries to his arms, neck and back, and was considerably bruised.

Only Two Parties Holding Primaries

Despite the fact that there are nine duly qualified political parties in Michigan, only two of them will be represented at the primary election Sept. 11.

The state law provides for primary elections only for parties which poll more than two per cent of the total vote cast for secretary of state at the last general election. Under this provision, the primary balloting will be confined to the Republican and Democratic parties.

Other parties wishing to be represented on the ballot at the general election Nov. 6 must select their candidates by caucus or convention and must certify the names of their candidates with the secretary of state at least 25 days prior to election.

At least four parties will be on the November ballot as the department has been notified by officials of the Socialist and Farmer-Labor parties that they will have candidates for state and congressional offices. One or two other parties may secure places on the ballot with partially-filled tickets, it is believed.

Eastern Star To Stage 'The World's All Right'

On Thursday and Friday, September 13 and 14, at 8:15 o'clock in the high school auditorium the O. E. S. will stage a hilarious comedy of radio life entitled "The World's All Right." The play will have an all star cast of one hundred local people. This play has been produced with great success all over the United States and the Eastern Star organization feels fortunate in securing such entertainment for this town. Miss Phillips, representative for the Universal Producing company is here arranging for the production of the show.

The show has as varied a program of entertainment as is found on any radio program and takes the audience back stage in a radio broadcasting station and lets them see the heartaches, triumphs and discouragements of a radio announcer. All who see this play will be sure to agree that "The World's All Right."

BROTHERHOOD HOLDS PICNIC

The annual Federated Brotherhood picnic of Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Bridgewater and Rogers—Gorner churches was held Monday at Soda's grove, Pleasant Lake, with about 450 in attendance.

A basket dinner at one o'clock was followed by a contest for the young folks—a horseshoe tournament for the men and a ball game, with Ann Arbor vs. Bridgewater and Rogers Gorner, in which the city won, 16 to 8. A tug-of-war was won by the country boys.

Rev. M. W. Brueckner was chosen chairman of the committee on arrangements for the 1935 picnic.

MRS. AMY SMYER

Mrs. Amy Smyer, 66, died Friday, August 31, at St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor. She was born in Charlotte, N. C. and for fifteen years had been housekeeper for Rev. Henry Van Dyke. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Wade Brown of Charlotte.

Funeral services were held Monday forenoon at 9:30 at St. Mary church. Bishop Pigeon of Detroit officiated at the mass, and Rev. Allen J. Babcock of Ann Arbor delivered the sermon. The altar boys, who were her friends, acted as pallbearers.

Interment was in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

CAMPERS HOLD PICNIC

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Musbach attended the "Crooked Lake Campers" picnic which was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allmendinger. About seventy-five guests were present and games furnished amusement for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith and children of Niles were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sutton on Wednesday.

Homecoming Plans Include Hundredth Birthday Party

At a well attended meeting last Friday evening final plans were made to stage a Homecoming on October 5th and 6th to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Chelsea district.

Merchants and professional men who were well represented at the meeting, are cooperating to the limit, and are donating prizes for the various events which will be held, and it promises to be two days of real sport for the children, starting off with a great "Kids' Parade."

Many suggestions were offered for the entertainment program, and the various committees which will be named at the Legion meeting tonight will have plenty to work on.

The program of events will be ready for publication next week, and some of the features of the entertainment will also be announced.

The invitation committee will need the help of everybody in the village so that none of the old-timers will be overlooked, so they are asking you to help them secure the addresses of any former residents you may know so a personal invitation may be sent them, and the registration committee will soon make a survey of rooming facilities for those who will stay over for both days.

The question which is most bothersome in compiling the history of Chelsea is "why was the village site called Kedron?" Can anybody give us the information?

Sticker Permits Are Void After Aug. 31

Enforcement of motor vehicle laws relative to license plates after August 31, is in the hands of local law enforcement officers.

Time for use of 1933 plates with windshield permits was extended from August 1 to August 31 by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald after this action had been given written approval of majorities of both state senate and house of representatives.

In response to a query, the Michigan Department of Public Safety was informed that enforcement of laws was up to local officers after the expiration of the additional 30-day period.

MISS RUTH MOORE WEDS

An article in an Ontario (Calif.) newspaper of August 17 describes the wedding of Miss Ruth Moore of that city, who is a granddaughter of the late Thomas Leach of this place, and has many relatives here. The story follows:

Amid banks of ferns and sinulas in yellow and orange shades, Miss Ruth Moore of Ontario became the bride of Harold Stevenson, Torrance, in wedding rites performed Friday at 8 p. m. in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lucy L. Moore, 531 West D street.

The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white lace and organdy and a veil of net, caught to the head with two bands of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses, white sweet peas, lilies of the valley and fern.

Miss Elizabeth Cummings, former Ontario girl now residing in Los Angeles, was the maid of honor. She wore yellow organdy and carried sweet peas in pastel shades.

Mary Lee Foster of Orange, niece of the bride, and Donald Stevenson, Torrance, nephew of the groom, wore the flower girl and boy. Miss Foster wore pink organdy. The train bearer was Donald Foster, Orange, nephew of the bride.

The groom was attended by his brother, Lawrence Stevenson of Torrance. Dr. Charles F. Seltzer, superintendent of Methodist churches in the Pasadena district, performed the ceremony, and Miss Bernice Skeen, Los Angeles, violinist, played "I Love You Truly."

The bride is a graduate of Chaffey high school. For the past three years she has been in training at the Queen of the Angels hospital, Los Angeles. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Stevenson of Torrance. He is a graduate of Torrance high school and for some time was an aviator for the California Aerial Transport company, later joining a manufacturing concern in Torrance, where he is now employed.

The wedding ceremony was performed in a simple garden setting decorated with Japanese lanterns in yellow tones. An informal reception and cutting of the cake, a gift to the bride from Mrs. Burton Burke of Ontario, followed the rite. The guests were relatives of the bridal couple, Morris L. Moore, the bride's brother, presented her in marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson will make their home in Torrance, following a wedding trip to Lake Arrowhead.

The Remedy

A romance is a misapprehension shared by a man and a woman which may easily be cleared up by marriage.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I want to ask you if grain that has been found in Egyptian tombs will grow if planted?

Ans.—No. They will not grow if they have been in the tomb for 35 years or longer. According to botanists, all life in them is dead at the end of that time.

Ques.—Is there a law which makes it compulsory for a dealer to hand out the whole box to a customer when he wants to buy a cigar or a few cigars? If not, why does he do it?

Ans.—There is no law that compels him to hand out the box. However, there is a United States law against returning to the box a cigar or cigars that have been taken out of it. As an example, a customer asks for a couple of cigars. The dealer takes two from a box and hands them to him. At this juncture the customer decides he wants only one. The dealer puts the other cigar back in the box, which would be illegal, and the dealer subject to arrest.

Ques.—What are the motto and flowers of Hawaii? Also what are the products of the island?

Ans.—Hawaii has no official motto or flower. The products of the island are: Sugar, rice, potatoes, bananas, coconuts, papayas, pineapples, coffee and live stock. There are a few small manufacturing concerns.

Ques.—Why does a rainbow appear in colors? And where does the end of the rainbow go to? What are its colors?

Ans.—The cause of the rainbow's colors is the breaking up of the sun's rays into the colors of the spectrum. The rainbow is a perfect circle, which, of course, has no end. This has been proved by aviators high above the earth who can see the rainbow as a circle, and as long as it remains visible to them they are in the center of the circle. The colors of the spectrum, which the rainbow reflects are blue, yellow, violet, indigo, orange and red.

Ques.—Is there such a thing as electric fish which give out electric shocks, as I have been told?

Ans.—Yes. There are about 20 known species of electric ray fish. The very large variety are found in the deep waters of warmer seas. Fresh water electric fish consist of eels and one member of the catfish family of South America and Africa respectively. The eels are found in the rivers, swamps and lagoons of Brazil. The catfish (electric) are found in the Nile, Niger and Congo basins of Africa.

Ques.—I would like to know if an Indian could be elected President of the United States?

Ans.—It is possible, but not very probable. Any natural born citizen of the United States is eligible to be President. In June, 1924, an act of Congress made all Indians natural born citizens. This would qualify them if nominated as a candidate.

Ques.—If an airplane would take a direct southern course from Washington, D. C., would it pass over any part of South America, or would it fly east of that continent?

Ans.—An airship maintaining a direct southern course from Washington, D. C., would pass over Columbia about 100 miles from its west coast; thence over the northwest corner of Peru, then down over the Pacific ocean to the Antarctic ocean.

Ques.—Where is Mooresville, which was the home of John Dillinger, the outlaw who was shot to death in Chicago? Is the place just a hamlet? Or what is the population of the place?

Ans.—Mooresville is situated in Morgan county, Indiana, about 35 miles southwest of Indianapolis. The population of the place, according to the 1930 United States census, is 1,910.

Ques.—Can you explain what causes a click in a radio just before a very sharp flash of lightning?

Ans.—Just before a flash of lightning there is an invisible discharge of electric particles, which are called electrons, and they take place between the clouds and the ground. Then an instant later a more violent electric arc shoots along the path taken by the electrons. This we call lightning. The click in your radio is heard during the discharge of the electrons, followed very closely by the lightning. Just how it causes the click is not known to science.

PINCKNEY—Rev. C. H. Zuse of Moline has been extended a call to the pastorate of the Pinckney Congregational church and will conduct services Sunday morning.—Dispatch.

Save Seed Stocks
— Supply Is Limited

One of the by-products of the 1934 crop season will be a scarcity of adapted seeds if care is not exercised in saving for seed all varieties suitable for that purpose, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

The lack of livestock feeds will complicate the situation because grains will be fed which might otherwise be carried through the winter and be available next spring. Michigan will have to depend almost entirely upon her own resources for next year's seed stocks.

Seeds are scarce in many other sections; and, areas where surpluses are held, do not all produce seeds which are adapted to Michigan conditions. The federal government, in some sections, is buying seed stocks and holding them for distribution next spring. That source should not be depended upon by Michigan men.

Michigan grains this year, while short in yields, were quite good in quality. Seed oats and barley stocks should be removed from the feed bins now. Farmers who do not have suitable seed should attempt to find good stock in their own neighborhood and get possession of it before it is used for feed. There does not appear to be any chance that seed prices will be lower any time between now and seeding time.

Seed corn, grass, clover, and alfalfa seeds will not be too plentiful. Arrangements should be made to insure a supply as soon as possible. Seeds for emergency crops, soybeans, Sudan grass, and Reed canary grass, should be husbanded carefully.

Store all seeds where there is no chance for loss from weather, insects, or rodents. Good crops can be raised from thin seedings of high quality seed.

DESPITE the Polish denials that a secret pact has been concluded between Germany and Poland, La Liberte, nationalist newspaper of Paris, charges that such a treaty has been signed, and gives its alleged stipulations which provide that Poland shall relinquish the Polish corridor to the reich in exchange for German support of a Polish attempt to gain control of Lithuania, peacefully or otherwise.

The nationalist organ reports in addition five military and territorial articles and the fact that the treaty contains a series of economic agreements. The chief of the latter calls for furnishing raw materials to Germany by Poland, even in time of war, in return for German exports to Poland.

FRANCIS J. GORMAN, head of the strike committee of the United Textile Workers, sent to the sectional leaders the secret instructions for a general walk-out in the cotton textile industry on September 4. The order affects approximately 500,000 cotton mill workers; and about 300,000 more will go on strike then or soon after in the silk, rayon and woolen mills.

"I am fully convinced," Gorman told reporters, "that the strike not only will materialize but will be successful." The administration, however, still hoped that the strike could be averted through the efforts of the national labor relations board headed by Lloyd Garrison. The union leaders have made it plain that they expect the strike will be indirectly financed by the government through the relief organizations. They admit that their unions have not sufficient funds to carry the workers through the prospective period of idleness.

HEARTY approval was given by the world Baptist congress, in session in Berlin, to a proposal that a plebiscite be held in 40 countries to determine whether the people want to fight another war. The suggestion was made by Rev. Harold Camp of Oakland, Calif., who said the Kellogg pact should be made the basis of such a vote.

AN EARLY MORNING LESSON AFTER A REFRESHING SHOWER AMONG THE GROVE MAPLES

For The Standard by Arthur Carlton

I had to smile this morning
As I watched the leafy trees,
While the zephyrs played among them
And kissed their glossy leaves.

Each had a smile of gladness,
And a voice but few may hear,
While they bowed to one another
In courtesies of cheer.

A shower had washed their faces
Until each brightly shined,
And polished all their graces,
Which shamed me of my own.

But yet I laughed outrightly,
For the lesson taught to me
Through the perfumed summer
breezes,
And the smiling leafy trees.

OUR NEIGHBORS

GRASS LAKE—Numbering of the houses in the village was completed the past week by Anthony Stebbles post, American Legion. Street signs are also to be erected by the post. Both will prove of great value to the community, especially when strangers desire to locate a certain family. The numbers were supplied by the Consumers Power Company, gratis.

News.

PLYMOUTH—Official announcement was received by Postmaster B. E. Giles early this week that the treasury department of the government had accepted the bid of John H. Patterson for his property on Penniman avenue for a postoffice site in Plymouth and that steps to close up the transaction had already been taken. The information came from the legal division of the treasury department. The site has frontage on Penniman avenue of 114 feet. The property extends through to Fralick avenue, better known as Gravel avenue, thereby enabling the government to have access to the property from the rear of the building. The government will pay $10,000 for this piece of property.

BROOKLYN—The 1934 summer resort season in this locality of lakes and hills has brought the largest number of people ever seen here. The resort hotels and the Brooklyn hotel have been enjoying the best business in several years, but the most notable increase has been the number of cottagers. The season started slowly in June, the numbers increasing in July and since August 1 practically every cottage on every lake around here has been occupied.

WAYNE—Preparations for drilling for the first oil well in this vicinity were being completed this week with the moving of drilling equipment to the Alice Schmidt farm in Canton township. It was stated that the drillers would be "making hole" about September 1. A large National Drilling Rig with a six foot boom and capable of going to a depth of 4500 to 4800 feet is to be used. Those interested in the project, however, do not anticipate the necessity of drilling to that depth to procure production of either oil or gas.

MORE electricity for more people at lower rates is the aim of the federal power commission in a national survey which has just been started. According to Basil Manley, vice chairman of the commission, the survey will enable that body to compile and submit to the next congress the "most comprehensive and authentic exhibit of our power resources and possibilities ever made in this or any other country." To obtain the data required the commission has sent a questionnaire to every private and municipally owned power plant in the land.

"Determining the nation's power requirements and how they can be most economically and advantageously supplied is the primary purpose," Mr. Manley explained. "Markets must be considered, as well as power sites that can be developed at reasonable cost, either by governmental enterprise or private capital."

"One purpose is to establish and maintain that balance between steam and hydro-electric power which will give America the most dependable sources of energy at the lowest possible rates."

Telephonic Atmosphere
In the Arctic regions people can talk to one another quite well when they are as much as a mile apart—the cold, dense air and the smooth surface of the ice and snow both being helpful to the carrying of sound.

Earl Michener

You Always Re-Hire a
Competent Workman

We all go to a certain garage, patronize a certain plumber, call in a certain physician, confer with a certain attorney. Where personal service is a factor, we have found one whom we can trust to do the job right.

In the years Earl Michener served in Congress, he proved himself to be a competent workman. We found we could trust him. We found he did every job painstakingly. We found him prompt. And we found he always knew what he was doing.

You and I now have a job for a Congressman to fill. We want the job done well. We want an experienced man. We want a Competent Workman.

So you and I—like thousands of others—have determined to pick Earl Michener for the job. We know he was—and will be—a Competent Workman.

Re-Elect Michener to Congress

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, whose health has been broken by tragedy.

CHAPTER II.—The second day on her farm Prue adventures into the barn loft after eggs. She slips on the hay and falls to the ground—would have been badly hurt had not strong young arms been there to catch her. The arms are those of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, who lives at High Ledges on the neighboring farm. There at once a mutual attraction between the two. Rod decides to stay at his home throughout the fall and winter, "looking after the timber." But Prudence, looking toward him, she suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife.

CHAPTER III.—Lena Calloway, a rival of Rod Gerard, tries to buy the timber off Prue's land, but she dislikes his conceited attitude and contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. On the evening Prue is expecting David from New York she is visited by Mrs. Walter Gerard and her thirteen-year-old daughter, Jean. They are hateful, curious persons and leave Prue rankled.

"Here they are! Here's the design for the collar. See those medallions between the links?" She looked up. "You're not listening! You're not looking!"

"I'm looking all right. Never realized before how much red there is in your hair. The sunlight brings it out. It's gorgeous, girl."

"My hair! I thought you came here for a silver collar."

"I did. Cross my throat and hope to die, I did. You love this work, don't you? Your eyes are like stars."

"Of course I love it, but I get tremendously thrilled over whatever interests me."

"You'll wear yourself out."

"Better to wear out than rust out."

"Meaning me, I suppose?"

"If the shoe fits, put it on. Do you realize that you are wasting my precious time? I thought you were about to give me an honest-to-goodness order."

Gerard laid his hand on the sketch. "Don't put it away. I do want the collar. You were explaining about the medallions between the links. Will they be silver?"

"Yes. They are to be carved and tooled with Micky Mouse episodes. See these cut-eyes glow and snigger? I'll set them in silver to alternate with the medallions. This pair-shaped piece of Korean amber—which is supposed to contain a single will hang from the buckle in front. Like the idea?"

"You're a fraud. You ask that as anxiously as if you didn't know it was a knock-out. Of course I like it." He carefully lifted the paper on which lay the emerald and some diamonds. "Like these, too. Any chance of your making this ring up to order?"

"Did he want it to give to a girl? The thought flashed through Prue's mind even as she shook her head."

"Not a chance, even if I had money to invest in baquette diamonds, which I haven't. It has been one of the dreams of my life to wear that ring. Unless Prosperity Farm plunges as deep into the red that we can't pull it out, I'll hold on to the emerald."

She thoughtfully nibbled the point of the engraving tool.

"The silver collar for the kitten is likely to be rather expensive. I can't set a price because I have no idea how much time it will take."

"That's all right. I'll give it to Jean for Christmas. Think you'll have it done by then?"

"Christmas! I hope so, but, of course, I have many morning interruptions."

"I accept your delicate hint. I'm off."

Chicot gave an imitation which set the echoes jangling. It brought Si Puffer from the barn on a run. His wife and Miss Mack spilled from the kitchen door.

"You said the show was in a near-

It won't interrupt your work, I hope, if I stop to collect Jean and the kitten and speak to your brother, who is lying on the grass patch in the middle of the garden?"

"David on the ground! I left him—"

Prudence fairly flew through the house. She heard Gerard behind her as she raced into the garden. Dave on the ground!

She dropped to her knees beside him.

"Dave! Dave! Did you fall?"

With a murmur of concern, he sat up and put his arm about her.

"Prue! Prue. Of course I didn't fall, dear. After a while the chair seemed hard and the grass inviting, so I flung the rug on the ground and stretched out on it. I've been asleep."

He lightened his hold. "Look here, my dear, if you have me on your mind every minute, I'll go off by myself somewhere. Give me a hand up, Gerard. I've been lying here so long that I'm stiff."

Rodney Gerard linked an arm in his as he stood up. Prudence was conscious of the tension about her mouth as she looked at them. David's face was so pale in comparison to that of the man beside him. She achieved a fair imitation of a laugh.

"Have you on mind every minute, Dave? You'd be surprised if you knew that I haven't thought of you once since I tucked you into that steamer chair. Now who's coming?"

The gate in the white picket fence, which enclosed the garden creaked on its hinges. A grotesque figure turning cartwheels with incredible rapidity hurtled through the opening, came right-side up, scratched a chalky ear which protruded through his white skull cap, and made a sweeping bow. Jean raced to her uncle.

"A clown! Uncle Rod, a clown! Where's the circus?"

Had Rodney Gerard gifted an exclamation between his teeth, or had she imagined it? Prudence looked from his narrowed eyes to the smug, blue-eyebrowed, the lips like a bloody gash in the whiteness of the chalk-face of the man who was looking back at him. The regulation white suit of the sawdust ring, polka-dotted with black, showed traces of travel.

Jean's eyes were like stars. "Oh, Uncle Rod! Isn't he a peach! You will take me to the circus, won't you?"

David Schuyler held out his hand and smiled.

"How are you, Chicot? Must be two years since I've seen you. Where did you drop from?"

The clown shook Schuyler's hand. He blinked and swallowed, turning his cap-shaped cap in chalky hands.

"Never expected to see you here, sir. They told me at the Rescue mission that you was sick somewhere. I'm with Sassoon's Smashing show. It's stuck in a nearby town, and when the boss found I—I'd once lived in this region, he thought I might have a drag with folks and sent me on a motorcycle to drum up trade."

His eyes shifted to Rodney Gerard. "The little girl would like the show, Mister. It's a swell show."

"Uncle Rod, you will take me, won't you?" Jean's lips quivered with eagerness. "I've never seen many horses! I've never been to a circus! Mister Prue, they're cheap. Oh, Miss Prue, ask him to take me, please—he'll do it if you ask him."

Significance shone through the amusement in Rodney Gerard's eyes as they met Prue's. Only an instant their glances met, before he parleyed indifferently.

"Take it easy, Jean. You've got me all excited. You've started something, Chicot. You said the show was stuck in the next town. What's the trouble?"

Again Prudence had the sense of an undercurrent, a dramatic undercurrent at that, Gerard's curt question seemed to set atmospheric high-potency waves in motion. Was he angry? Annoyed was a better word. Whatever his mood, it tightened her nerves. The clown crushed his cap in one yelp-knotted hand.

"It's this way, Mister. The next town we were billed in was cleaned out by fire. Our show keeps up with our paper, ruin or shine—floods or knee-deep mud, but when the town itself goes bloody, what have you? That throws us out. So the boss says we'd lag out the show in the burg. I've come from it—a grand honest show for the little girl to see, Mister."

He pulled at a painted forelock, looked at Prudence with haggard eyes, stretched the red gash in a grin.

"An' for big girls, too. You've had to turn away crowds all season, and the parade—whooops, you should see the parade! All the headliners out—and the cattope. Sounds this-a-way."

Chicot gave an imitation which set the echoes jangling. It brought Si Puffer from the barn on a run. His wife and Miss Mack spilled from the kitchen door.

by town, Chicot. How near?"

Prudence caught the swift glance between Rodney Gerard and Mrs. Puffer as he asked the question, was aware of the sound as of gas escaping from a punctured balloon, before she closed her lips and retreated, pulling Jane Mack with her into the house. Did the clown's presence mean something to her, too?

"Sure it's nearby. Only fifty miles, Mister. I wish all you folks would come. The little girl would get a great kick from it." Jean's voice broke from excitement.

"Take it easy, Jean, we'll go. What time does the parade start, Chicot?"

"Nine."

"We'll be there. Prue, Jean and I are counting on you to keep us company."

"I'd love it—if—"

"Thank you, sir. I will, sir. There ain't no occasion for me not to, sir. Well, folks, I'll be seeing you."

He pulled his cap hard over his ears, and departed on his hands, his legs in the air. Jean ran beside him, petting him with questions, going into girlish giggles of laughter. As the clown disappeared through the gateway, Rodney Gerard and Si Puffer followed with out one backward glance.

Prudence dropped to the grass beside her brother.

"Strange that you should have known that clown, Dave."

"All sorts of men come to the Rescue mission, Prue. Chicot was to great trouble about a granddaughter who had been running wild. He beat up one of her followers—to hear him tell, it, she had a lot of them—and lost his job for a while."

Prudence appeared absorbed in her search for a four-leaf clover.

"Dave, did it occur to you that Mrs. Si knew that clown, that Rodney Gerard knew him?"

Schuyler swung his feet from the chair and rose. The lines between his eyes deepened as he answered gravely:

"I'm sorry to say it did, Prue. Confoundably sorry."

CHAPTER V

Jeann Gerard regarded the desk in the gun room at High Ledges with pursed lips and angry eyes.

"Gee, but you make me mad!"

She addressed the piece of furniture as if it were maliciously responsible for her frustration. She wriggled a hatpin in the lock of the top drawer. Then with teeth set, she grasped the handles, jerked with all her strength. The drawer came out with a suddenness which sent her sprawling and scattered three letters from the desk onto the floor.

Ruefully she rubbed the back of her head. She knelt beside the drawer and eagerly examined its contents. There were several photographs of a pretty girl. One showed her in bouffant tulle on the back of a horse. Jean's eyes dilated.

"Circus rider," she crooned. "Good. I'll see one like her tomorrow." She turned the photograph over. On the back was scrawled:

"Miraculous escape. From Calico and Calloway to liberty and love— Fondly, Milly."

"She's a cutie all right. I—"

Jeann gulped as a shadow fell across the photograph.

"Where's your uncle?"

The photograph fell from her hand and lay with piquant smiling face upward as Jean stared at the scowling man who loomed over her.

"I—I—don't know. Shu! I try to find him, Mr. Calloway."

Ten Calloway removed his glance from the pictures and letters on the floor long enough to glare at her.

"Tell him I want to talk with him. Scram!"

Frightened at the grayness of his face, Jean fled. She scurried through the different rooms. Called. No answer. She had better go back and tell Mr. Calloway.

As she entered the gun room, one of the long French windows banged.

"He's gone. I guess that's that."

She dropped to her knees beside the drawer. Better put it back before anyone saw it. She scrambled up the contents. Where was the picture of the cutie circus rider? Gone. Had Mr. Calloway taken it? Why should he want it? Would her uncle be mad with her for having touched the desk?

"I'd better get a move on."

She hurriedly replaced the drawer, picked up the letters. Only two There had been three when they fell. Had Mr. Calloway snatched one? What would he do with it? "Gee, have I started something?" she thought.

STATE NEWS
SENATOR THOMAS D. SCHALL of Minnesota, Republican, engaged in an acrimonious controversy with President Roosevelt concerning the administration is seeking to curb the press, and the blind senator used language that was so disrespectful to the Chief Executive that even Mr. Roosevelt's severest critics could not approve of it. The President had asked Mr. Schall for the "facts" on which he based his recent assertion that plans are under consideration for a national press service to take the place of the Associated Press, the Hearst News Service and the United Press. "This service, Mr. Schall said, would have exclusive use of all government news and be in a position to give its service only to those newspapers loyal to the Roosevelt dictatorship."

"Once these facts are in my hands," said Mr. Roosevelt, "they will receive immediate attention in order to make impossible the things you say will be done, because I am just as much opposed to them as you are."

The senator immediately sent the President and made public a 650 word letter in which he said in part: "You ask me for 'information' concerning what you yourself have done. Are you attempting to secure the facts so that you may be in a position to refute yourself?"

"Your telegram to me bears out the suggestion of the constant effort to mislead and fool the public. Your desire to make yourself appear before the people of the United States as champion of a free press may be as insincere as your promises to the people when you accepted the Democratic nomination at Chicago with the statement that you were for their platform 100 per cent."

"To date you have not kept one of the covenants you pledged the people at that time. Let me recall your treaty anger at your disappointment in keeping out of the press code the expression of a free press."

Schall went on to cite what he called "specific evidence" of an intention by the President to force a censorship of the press so that "your acts and the acts of your Communist bureaucrats might be hidden from public gaze."

Mr. Roosevelt sent the senator an answer sharply rebuking him for his "vituperative" letter "which gives no facts and does not answer my simple request." In conclusion he said: "The incident is closed."

Schall retorted in somewhat milder language that he as a representative of the people could not let the affair rest.

SENATOR HUEY LONG was marching rapidly toward victory over his arch foe, Mayor T. Semmes Vainmire of New Orleans, and there didn't seem to be anything the latter could do to stop the Kingfish. The state legislature, safely in the control of Long and his henchman, Governor Allen, was swiftly pushing through a series of measures designed to put every parish and city of Louisiana in the grip of those two politicians before the state primary on September 11. The legislators also passed a bill for an investigation into the affairs of New Orleans.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son, who passed into the great beyond one year ago Sept. 6, 1933:

No one heard the footsteps of the angels drawing near,
Who took from earth to heaven the one we loved so dear.

The gates above were open,
The gentle voice said "Come."

Just one year ago today,
He softly called him home.

In perfect peace he's sleeping, all mortal pangs are past,
Jesus came and took him home, beyond the stormy blast.

He is resting above, on yonder shore,
His memory will linger forever more.

A voice we loved dearly ever was stilling,
We loved him sincerely, but God knew best.

Closed his little eyelids, gave him eternal rest,
Sweetly whispered "Peace be thine."

There is something always missing—and that, Carl dear, is you;
We will try to meet beyond the river where the skies are ever blue;

We will try to bear our sorrows, and smile the tears away,
Until its time for us to go, and try to join you there some day.

Wilbert Trinkle Family.
