Freshman College In Chelsea Is Assured

Judging by the attendance at the meeting of high school graduates interested in the establishing of a Freshman College in Chelsea it would seem that the project is assured. There were 35 people present to listen to the remarks of Director Wilber Monday evening. Of this number 23 signed application blanks, four more signed blanks on Wednesday and there are several more people that have signified their intention of taking the work but have not yet sent in their application blanks. The minimum number is 30 people and with that number taking the work Mr. Wilber thought that three teachers would be selected to handle the classes.

If there are any more people in Chelsea, graduates of a four year high school, who have not consulted the superintendent of schools relative to taking these courses it is necessary, if you wish to take the work, that you consult with him not later than Thursday at four o'clock.

It is hoped to get the classes started on Monday, October 15, so that three terms of 12 weeks each can be made possible. All wishing to avail themselves of this splendid opportunity, unless you are notified to the contrary, be present at the schoolhouse Monday, October 15, at 7:30 o'clock for enrollment and assignment to classes.

Reception Held At M.

E. Church Wednesday

A reception given in honor of Rev. and Mrs. F. D. Mumby, returned by conference to the local Methodist pastorate, Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Leeson and Mrs. E. B. Bennett was held Wednesday evening in the Methodist church parlors. Flowers and potted plants gave the rooms a home-like effect.

During the evening, a piano solo was rendered by Miss Virginia Barus and a vocal solo by Mrs. A. A. Palmer. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. W. Lenz.

Words of greeting by N. W. Laird were responded to by Rev. Mumby, Dr. Leeson, superintendent of the Methodist Home, and Mrs. Bennett, matron of the Home.

Light refreshments were served.

W. R. C. HOLDS PARTY

The W. R. C. held an enjoyable party on Tuesday afternoon of last week at the home of Mrs. Warren K. Guerin. Twenty-two members and seven guests were in attendance. Games furnished diversion for the afternoon. High honors in 500, Mrs. J. E. McKune in bridge, Mrs. Blanche Mohrlock in euchre, and Mrs. Myrtle Aichele in buncos. A pot luck supper was served after the game.

FARMERS' CLUB MEETING

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts had their first meeting of the year at the school last Thursday evening. Sixty-five girls enrolled and many plans were made for the coming year.

The Child Study club, which sponsors the Girl Scouts, has provided the leaders with a working council to aid them in the duties of Scout work in Chelsea. With this help the Girl Scouts expect to climb high and prove their worth to residents of this community.

PRIMARY TEACHERS MEET

The Primary teachers of the Methodist Sunday school met at the home of Mrs. Florence Fisher on Thursday. A delicious luncheon was served, after which the meeting was called to order by the superintendent, Mrs. Ruth Wilkinson. Roll call was "Suggestions for the month of November." Plans were made for a Mothers' meeting.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Ida Johnson was pleasantly surprised last Tuesday by the arrival of relatives who came to celebrate her birthday. The guests served a delicious dinner and presented Mrs. Johnson with several gifts. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Watts of Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Watts of North Lake, Mrs. Millie Chamberlain of Webster and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnson of Chelsea.

TACHEZ CLUB MEETS

The Tachez club was entertained at the home of Miss Wilamina Burr on Monday evening. Four tables of 600 were in play. Honors were awarded to Mrs. Josephine Roy and Mrs. Mary Burg. Refreshments were served.

Homecoming Event Was Real Success

Old timers from far and near poured into Chelsea during the Homecoming last Friday and Saturday, to be greeted by the village in a gala mood. A real "Mardi Gras" spirit prevailed and it is estimated that 5,000 attended the event.

The children and quite a few grown-ups went wild over the mechanical rides which merrily ground out music and noise every minute during the celebration. The lunch stands operated by the American Legion Auxiliary were busy turning out sandwiches and coffee and soft drinks and the various concessions added their barker's shouts to the din. The free attractions on the bandstand and the impromptu acts and antics along Main street added much to the general enjoyment.

Aerial acts, comedy sketches, mind readers, trained animal acts and musical renditions all strutted their stuff across the boards and the crowd surged forward to get a better view. The Ann Arbor drum and bugle corps had the audience on their tip-toes as they swung along Main street with their stirring music, and their snappy military maneuvers brought cheers from the audience, and the antics of the Adrian Legion Duth Band kept the audience in an uproar.

One very unfortunate error crept into the program and that was the failure of the Legion to provide a piano for the accompanist of the Community Choir and made it impossible for this splendid part of the program to take place. At the meeting of the American Legion Monday evening a unanimous vote of apology to the Community Choir was entered on the minute books and the Legion takes this opportunity to publicly acknowledge their error and regret that this slip-up occurred.

State Senator Andrew L. Moore, who was scheduled to speak Friday afternoon decided not to go on the platform as he declared "They are having too good a time to listen to an address. What they are getting is entertainment and I don't think I should interrupt it." Senator Moore is scheduled to make an appearance here later this month.

Jacob E. Fahrner was the guest speaker on the "Old Settlers Hour" Saturday afternoon and the audience enjoyed greatly his reminiscences of Chelsea in years gone by. After his address an award of a cabinet portrait sitting each was made to the oldest gentleman and to the oldest lady present. W. E. Collins, who was born in 1846 in Lyndon and has had 88 years of residence in this vicinity was awarded the prize, while Leroy Brower, whose 85th birthday was celebrated Saturday was runner-up. A. D. Baldwin, 83 years old, and Messrs. J. Graham and S. Weber, both 81, were among those present. Mrs. O. C. Burkhardt, with 84 years to her credit, received the prize for the ladies, with Mrs. A. L. Congdon, 80, the runner-up. Mrs. Congdon, who is a descendant of the pioneer Pierce family after whom Pierceville was named, also had the honor of being the first to register at the Registration Headquarters where Legionnaire Ransom Armstrong was the official (Continued on Last Page)

A musical program is being prepared, and music for the dinner hour and for dancing following the program will be furnished by Klager's orchestra. Dancing will be free for those who attend the dinner and program.

Paul C. Maroney is general chairman of arrangements for the event and the following committees have been appointed to participate in completion of plans:

Tickets are now on sale by the committee and the public is invited to attend the meeting.

Monday Is Last Day To Pay Village Taxes

Monday, October 15 is the last day that village taxes can be paid to the local treasurer. Immediately after that date, Chester Miller, treasurer, will turn the rolls over to the county treasurer.

According to Mr. Miller, more than half of the taxes have been paid, and he expects a last minute rush from those who desire to pay their taxes before it is necessary for them to be paid in Ann Arbor.

In the past, almost 100 percent of the village taxes have been paid here and it is hoped this record will be continued this year.

HOLD-UP MAN ARRAIGNED

ing to America in 1881. Mrs. Atkinson, formerly Jennie Patterson, born in 1866, came to Chelsea in 1883. They were married October 14, 1884 by Rev. Thomas Holmes and their entire married life has been spent in this community.

Member • 1934PROMISES GAS PRICE CUT
IF TAX IS REDUCED

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Replying to a newspaper inquiry, President Edward G. Seubert of Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced today that if Michigan voters put through the proposed reduction of one cent a gallon in the state gasoline tax his company will reduce its prices accordingly the minute the reduction becomes effective.

"Some question has apparently arisen," Mr. Seubert said, "as to whether the oil companies or the consumers who pay the gasoline tax will benefit by the reduction. I can definitely promise for my company that any reduction in the tax will at once be met by a corresponding reduction in the price asked for our gasoline."

Mr. Seubert recalled that when the federal gasoline tax was reduced on January 1, 1934 his company at once reduced prices accordingly throughout its territory.

THE GARLANDS OF OCTOBER

The leaves and petals of autumn
Have rusted to yellow and brown,
The rose and hyacinth faded,
The lily stalk bent to the ground.

A sense of sadness and sorrow,
At times, may be wafted on air,
But look, there's harvest and fruitage
Abundant for all—everywhere.

The flowers and fragrance of Spring-time,
With foliage and beauty so rare,
The summer, its birds and perfumes,
We've seen and inhaled everywhere.

The season's perfection and beauty,
Rejoicing our hearts as we sing,
But the climax of all is accomplished
With the garlands that God's autumn brings.

So I walked in my garden this morning,
And was charmed by this October sun,
Trying hard to glimpse its brightness
Through the mists, golden mists
Which had come.

—Arthur Carlton.

BROOKLYN.—The D. B. Aiken store building on the southwest corner where M-50 turns in Napoleon village was burned to the ground, a total loss, Monday morning. Fire was discovered by truck drivers on M-50 about 1:30 in the morning. The fire had apparently started in the part used as a restaurant, but the flames had made such progress before anyone arrived that only a few groceries and the cash register from the Aiken grocery could be saved.—Exponent.

110 Mollusk Species Noted

Lack of color does not mean lack of variety. And, though the warmer waters are more populous, says Nature Magazine, the coast line from Long Island northward will yield some forty different families of mollusks, numbering, perhaps, 110 species.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, Dave, whose health has been broken by tragedy.

CHAPTER II.—The second day on her farm Prudence adventures into the barn loft after eggs. She slips on the hay and falls. The ground would have been badly hurt had not strong young arms been there to catch her. The arms are those of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, who lives at High Ledges on the neighboring farm. There is at once a mutual attraction between the two. Rod decides to stay at his home throughout the fall and winter, "looking after the timber." But Prudence decides to maintain a cool attitude toward him. She suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife.

CHAPTER III.—Len Calloway, a rival of Rod Gerard, tries to buy the timber off Prudence's land, but she dislikes his conceited attitude and contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. On the evening of the day after the deal is made with Rod, Prudence is visited by Mrs. Walter Gerard and her thirteen-year-old daughter, Jean. They are hateful, curious persons and leave Prudence fuming.

CHAPTER IV.—A few days later Prudence comes in contact with them again when she accompanies Rod to his place. A clown comes, advertising a circus in a nearby town. Prudence tries to accompany Rod and Jean to the circus.

"Is Armstrong an old friend, Prue?" her brother asked.

His tone brought the color to her face. "No, I've never seen him before today. Why?"

"You seemed to twinkle, twinkle with excitement when you spoke to him."

She dropped to the floor cushion beside his chair. "Humorous, aren't you? Perhaps I did rather overdo the welcome-to-our-city act, Dave, but—"

"But it was done for Gerard's benefit, wasn't it? Like him a lot, don't you?"

"Like him? No. He leaves me cold."

"What have you against him?"

"You said yourself that you were confoundedly sorry that he knew that circus clown, Dave."

"If I had any suspicion of him then I haven't now. I think him one of the finest, clearest, straightest, most likable men I ever met, and you will admit that I have had some experience."

"That's what we thought about Juliet's husband before they were married."

"I never thought that. He was irascible and charming but—he had a bad eye. I tried to make Juliet understand, but she wouldn't listen. I never have bared my heart to you before, Prue; never will again. I am doing it now to beg you to listen to your instinct when it sounds its warning to you."

"I shall never love any man but you, Dave darling. I shall remain Prue of Prosperity farm and make your life a burden by camping on your trail."

"Go slow. No armor ever has been forged which is invulnerable to love. If you haven't really loved, you haven't really lived. As for having you camped on my trail, I wouldn't have pulled through if it hadn't been for you—and I have pulled through. I feel like a new man. I have a brand new outlook. I know now that I got the signals mixed, I surrendered to heartbreak and weakness when I should have accepted them as a challenge."

"Dave! Dave! How marvelous! There's the knocker. Who has come, I wonder. You've had visitors enough this morning, so I'll close the living room door. A peddler, perhaps."

Prudence opened the front door. Len Calloway confronted her.

Without speaking he passed her and entered the shop. His assurance crisped her voice.

"What do you want?"

"Same old request. I want the contract to cut your timber."

"Same old answer." Prudence mimicked his diction to an infection. "I have made arrangements with Gerard to cut it."

"Gerard again. Do you still think he is serious about this woodsman stuff? He—well, you saw that circus rider who calls herself Mademoiselle Millee, the day the old clown passed out. Her right name is Milly Gooch. She was engaged to me. Threw me over for Gerard and he—"

"That's a lie like some of the other statements you have made, Calloway. Her tone lashed his color to dark red, hardened his eyes."

"Oh, I see. See this?"

He held out an envelope. Involuntarily she read the address. Mr. Rodney Gerard.

"Get that? Now listen." He pulled out a card. "And get this:

"Dear Roddy—
Thanks for the check. Don't mail it again. Bring it as usual. I've kept my promise. Nobody knows."

Milly."

"I found that on the floor near Ger-ard's desk. Now will you let me handle your timber?"

Furious with herself that she had stood like a lump of putty and listened to the note, an unbearable realization that it confirmed her suspicions of Rodney Gerard's phandering, Prudence scolded:

"You must be the original if-at-first-you-don't-succeed-try-again lad. But this time you have thrown sand in the machinery. It won't work. Rodney Gerard and I will get that timber out."

Calloway's eyes burned red.

"You and Rodney Gerard! That's a joke. Try to get men to cut. Just try, that's all. I suppose you are trusting to your partner for that?"

Prudence swallowed a nervous chuckle. "You have guessed it. I am trusting to my partner to engage the men to cut. Good morning."

He looked like a man who was still dazed from a body blow as he departed. Once his lips moved, but Prue banged the door behind him before he could speak.

She leaned against it. Had Calloway found that note of Milly Gooch's in Rodney Gerard's room? "Don't mail it again." Apparently there had been other checks. Why hadn't she asked the man why he had been snooping at High Ledges? Not that she cared who wrote to Rodney Gerard or what he did with his money. Mrs. Walter had been right. Her butterfly brother did fit from flower to flower. He had thought that she—Prudence Schuyler—would allow—

A sob of fury shook her. She brushed her hand savagely across her lips.

CHAPTER VII

With sighs of relaxation Gerard and Armstrong, in the tweeds in which they had come from a long day in the woods, settled into deep chairs before the fire in the library at High Ledges and lighted their pipes.

"I'll say I started something when I set out to thin my woods," Gerard said. "I thought that all that was necessary was to chop down a few trees and there we were. Now it seems that I have embarked on a life work. Puffer was to report on the labor question this afternoon. There he is now! That's his voice when he is excited. It doesn't sound good to me. Come in, Si."

Puffer stood in the doorway. He chuckled.

"Howdy, Jim! Don't have to ask how you two are, Rod. Kinder beat out, ain't ye?"

Gerard pulled himself stiffly to his feet and drew an inviting chair nearer the fire. "All right, old-timer, shoot."

"No use beatin' 'bout the bush. I've been to every village within a hundred miles an' I can't get a man to work for ye, Rod. They're afraid of Calloway. I guess we're up against it, all right."

"We can't be up against it, Si. That timber must be cut. I'll find some huskies somewhere who haven't sold out body and soul to Len Calloway. Do we need skilled lumbermen, Jim?"

"No. Skilled labor would save time and money, but with you and Puffer and me to boss a crew we could get the wood out."

Patch, the butler, appeared at the door.

"Miss and Mr. Schuyler." Gerard doubted his ears. Prue here! He heard Jean's ecstatic, "Oh, goody!" as he crossed the room to welcome the girl and her brother. His lips tightened at the hostility in her eyes as they met his. It was abundantly evident that he was still in disgrace for his passionate outburst of yesterday. With difficulty he kept his voice steady.

"This is a clear case of thought transference. How did you know that we need your advice and your brother's at this very moment, Prue? Come over by the fire, Dave."

Schuyler laughed. "How you all conspire to spoil me! We are not so neighborly as we seem. We were driven here for shelter."

Prudence smiled radiantly at Armstrong, and explained:

"Dave and I have been to the village to buy axes and saws and to get groceries. Just as we reached this drive, Success belied her name and passed out. I didn't dare let Dave sit in the cold car—it is beginning to snow—while I probed for internal disturbances; he finally refused to leave me in the dark road—he had the escaped convict on his mind—so here we are. Now that he is warm and comfy, perhaps you will come out with me, Jim, and help diagnose the engine trouble."

Gerard spoke to the man who had been laying wood on the fire.

"Patch, tell Jenkins to look over Miss Schuyler's car. When he has it in shape, let me know."

He turned to Prudence. "Your arrival is uncannily opportune, partner. Jim, Si, and I have struck a snag."

"All is not serene on the logging front!" Prudence asked anxiously.

"Calloway again? I hope you haven't permanently incurred that man's enmity because you are helping us."

"That's only a little gas spilled on the fire, Dave. Len is drunk with the idea of his importance in this community."

Hands clasped on her knees, Prudence leaned forward. "It makes me see fiery pinwheels in frenzied revolution when I think of Calloway's power. He will find that I won't stand being dictated to."

Gerard's relief left him limp for an instant. Yesterday she had been strong for Len. Had she been putting up a bluff to defy the man who had kissed her, or had Calloway chucked off his own head by a stupid move? Whatever the explanation, the fact remained that she was still relying upon the original plan for getting out her timber.

"Jim, suppose no one here will work for us? What shall we do?"

Gerard's recent satisfaction burned up in anger. She was deliberately ignoring him. He cut in:

"We'll have to hire men from outside the state. I'm going to New York tomorrow to try my luck there."

"New York!" David Schuyler repeated thoughtfully. "What sort of men do you need for the work in the woods, Rodney?"

"Husky lads. Jim will do the head work and Si and I will drive the crew," Gerard answered.

"We need men who can swing an ax and cut as we direct," Armstrong elaborated.

"You said you were going to New York to look for them. I have been thinking—"

"If you have a suggestion, for Pete's sake, don't hold out on us, Dave!"

"It may not be worth the breath to state it, Rodney. I was wondering if some of the men at the Rescue mission might not fit in. They're a rough lot, but there are about twenty of them who are devoted to me. If they came, I could keep them straight while they worked, I think, but where would they live? The villagers wouldn't take them in! I wouldn't ask it."

Gerard did a sum in lightning calculation. "They could live in the big cattle barn down by the pond. I'll have bunks built, wood stoves would heat it, and get a cook from New York to feed them. Whoops! I believe you've solved the problem! I'll pay any wages you say—providing, of course, my partner approves the plan."

MASON—Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, has ordered that a speed limit of 45 miles per hour be obeyed on US-127 between Willoughby Road, a mile north of North Holt, and the south city limits of Lansing. Under an act adopted by the 1933 session of legislature the speed limit may be reduced at the discretion of the highway commissioner.—County News.

Concha

A concha, meaning shell, was originally a shell-shaped ornament, usually silver, though sometimes of leather. It is a common adornment for saddles, bridles, and chaps in the Southwest, and is also the name given to the button-like ornament that conceals the clasp on the lower leg of tight-fitting Mexican trousers.—Literary Digest.

Personal Service Bureau Is Again In Operation

Rear Hi-Lighters: Greetings, salutations and what not! After a summer's vacation the Personal Service Bureau again takes up its duties of serving the students of dear old C. H. S. with latest in everything. So with no further ado we proceed.

We noticed several rather queer combinations at the dance Saturday evening last. It seems two very daring Sophomores are taking to escorting Senior girls. At any rate we saw two blonde boys, (they both play saxophones in our organization—get me!) and two blonde girls who are always seen together (they occasionally dress alike too) are hitting it off pretty regularly at every dance or so they tell us. It also seems along with these four were a Junior boy (another saxophone playing blonde, God bless him) and yet another blonde (are there no brunettes?) tho' some people call her hair red. But all that is neither here nor there. We come to bring tidings of who's who in school this year and why not?

Did you know about this apparent combination of Junior girl (who never knows what she wants) and a senior boy? (They're the littlest couple on anybody's dance floor).

And there's bound to be some excitement now that St. Mary's has given us some of its eligibles. But that is yet to come. We'll let you know the latest, don't worry.

We're also expecting something interesting due to the arrival of a couple of brothers. That also is yet to come but it won't be long now.

Reports are coming in on the winter roast at Waterloo, a few days past. If you'd like to know particulars on that just consult the P. S. B. You'll find interesting combinations there too.

So until all these things develop further, we'll close—remaining as always.

With no good reason at all—

Kindergarten
George Leigh Palmer is a new member in our grade which makes the enrollment twenty-six.
We have been decorating our room with pretty yellow curtains and on the walls are silhouettes of boys and girls and various scenes.
We have also completed our work book and are now moulding fruit with clay.

First Grade
Being so excited about the homecoming events, we do not find much news this week but next week we are going to draw pictures of the things we liked best at the homecoming.

Second Grade
Naida Olson celebrated her seventh birthday this week.
Dolores McBride received a pair of skates as a prize during the homecoming.

We are sorry to tell you there are two absent from school with chicken pox.

Fourth Grade
Russell Scripser won a prize in our grade by climbing the greased pole.
We have our room all decorated with window decorations of wild geese and a pretty new parrot picture.
K. R. Platt and Douglass Miller have been absent.

Fifth Grade
Detroit is not the only place, having a World Series because the fifth grade are having one and the players are as follows:
Detroit Tigers—Cochrane; Slane; White; Allshouse; Gehring; Kinsey; Greenberg; Shinnaberry; Goslin; Holbrook; Rogell; Dietle; Owen; Elsie; Fox; Barry; Crowder; Gaunt; Fisher; Reed; Hayworth; Sheehan; Rowe; Spiegelberg; Walker; Schenk.

St. Louis Cardinals—Frisch; Crawford; Martin; Meservey; Rothrock; Alexander; Medwick; Spaulding; Collins; Wolf; Delancey; Lindsey; Orsatti; Lane; DeRoche; Knoll; Dean; Schmidt; Hallahan; Miller; Denny; Dean; Hoover; Vance; Fisher; Fuller; Downer.

Richard Kinsey worked out our schedule. The games stand, strange as it may seem, the same as the original Cardinals and Tigers.

Thank You, Legion

The homecoming is a thing of the past. But we still have those pictures we had taken of ourselves to remember it. Did you ever see such crowds in Chelsea at any time before this?

Everybody was looking for somebody that they never did find. We all know what "World's Fair feet" are but only Saturday did we find out what "Homecoming Feet" were. Those that were able to see all those free attractions certainly were lucky. Chelsea High was closed Friday afternoon so that we all might participate in the afternoon events. We all had a very good time and we wish to thank the Legionnaires for this homecoming.

May Never Happen

Chelsea Hi Loses To St. Johns of Jackson

Another defeat for the local lads, but nevertheless, it was a good game. Captain Seitz for the fourth time in a row, won the toss-up. (Maybe this is the reason why the lads can't win). Beutler kicked off for Chelsea and the battle was on. On exchanging of punts Dancer dropped the pigskin on his 13 yard line but the Jackson boys didn't have the "push". The first quarter ended with no score.

In the second quarter Chelsea was forced to kick and Young and Conway of Jackson blocked the kick and Lou- aige fell on the ball over the end zone. Duffy added the extra point with a place kick.

The second quarter ended with St. Johns leading 7-0.

The third quarter was of a mixture of line plays, punting and kicking. During the last quarter both teams were getting a bit tired and very few plays attracted the fans. The final score: St. Johns 7, Chelsea 0.

There were plenty of passes tried but the Chelsea team could only complete one and the St. Johns team completed two.

Are you going to see the game at Belleville this week? Let's try!

Since school has started we seem to have lost track of some of our members. I have heard several questions asked lately but I can't seem to figure them out. If any of our good readers can answer them, they are much better than I. Here are some of the questions:

Why is Leona Moeckel so interested in Grass Lake?

It seems that Gertrude Jensen is quite regular in attendance and much happier this year. Now, can anybody tell me why?

Robert Williams goes about school with a big smile on his face. Can anyone think of any special reason for all his happiness?

We hear that Dorothy Boyce wanted Pinckney to beat Chelsea last Friday. Is she being disloyal to Chelsea? But still, she may have her reasons.

Who can tell us why Helen Baxter always looks so sleepy on Thursday and Monday mornings?

I saw Doris Boone gazing at a map of Michigan and estimating the number of miles from Chelsea to Battle Creek. Now, why should she care about that?

We wonder why La Rue didn't want to go to the party Friday night? But she was there, so why worry?

Who is the curly headed Senior girl who is so interested in a curly headed Junior boy?—and they say he sure is a football hero.

Editorial Excerpts

No one can accomplish anything great who doesn't begin on a small scale.

If a person has real troubles he keeps them to himself.

People who mean well are usually people with limited means.

Time which you burn seldom helps to enlighten the world.

Wise is the person who ascertains what kind of advice his friend wants—and then gives it to them.

Do we want our Hi-Light? Or should we let it die a natural death?

Shall we fill in our few columns or just half fill them?

The Journalism club could take the above hints seriously but they don't. The work of the edition has been left to a few staunch members of the club. The last Journalism club meeting was quite a disgusting affair. All of the members showed up for the meeting but as the adviser was detained and could not be there for the beginning of the meeting, the majority left the meeting, unexcused, before the adviser could return.

Certainly the old members are not setting a very good example for the new.

Our adviser has planned to make our Journalism work more worthwhile this year providing she has our cooperation. Are we going to give it?

Let's have letters of advice or encouragement from some of our Chelsea Hi-Light readers. Just a short one would help. If you wish you may write it under a nom de plume (?).

Any criticism you have at any time will be appreciated.

Catacombs at Rome

The Catacombs at Rome, the sepulchers of the early Christians, sometimes give rise to stories below the surface of the earth.

How Columbus Discovered America

Saturday is Columbus Day. For this reason we print this "brain storm", brought to us by a very modest Sophomore. We always did wonder just what Columbus discovered. He was walking down Broadway one day when he met Queen Isabelle in her new automobile. He walked up to her and said "How are you, Bella?"

"She said, 'Fine, how are you?' He said, 'Fine, I think I have a great scheme worked up 'Bella.'"

"She said, 'What is it, Colum?'" He said, "I think if I had a couple of schooners I could sail over and discover America."

"So she took him in him three schooners and he set sail. Well, he sailed for years and years and years, finally one of the men on deck piped out, 'Land in sight.'"

Columbus said "That's not real land, that's only some real estate boom, any way we'll go over and investigate." So he went down in the hull of the ship, hitched up a team of mules and drove over. He found the shore lined with Indians, dressed in skins of all kinds (mostly bear skins), the chief, who had a little more than the rest, had a feather duster stuck down his back. The chief walked up to Columbus and offered him his lunch hook, beg your pardon, I mean his hand and said "Is this Columbus?"

Columbus said, "It is, did you get my cablegram?"

He said, "We did and we've been waiting here to be discovered!"

And Columbus moved to Ohio and any one traveling through Ohio can see Columbus—Ohio!

Just a "Whopper"

An explanation will be needed for this column or someone will be unjustly accused of fibbing. Miss Fowlkes assigned us this lesson in American Literature. We were to write a tall story. Now of course, we never tell yarns and we all exclaimed at this. But before I tell you the story that was picked out as the most original and the most preposterous, I am going to ask Miss Fowlkes why she gave us this assignment.

"I wish to see if my pupils could compete with the yarns of Frank Richard Stockton."

Farming in Alaska

The most money I ever made was in Alaska during the year of the yellow snow. That summer a mine blew up and the next winter it started snowing yellow snow. We went out and examined it and found it to be snowing gold dust and sand. Most of this collected in a valley between two mountains. The gold dust had become so hot up near the sun that it formed a desert and was warm all the year around. I decided to farm it. But the question was, "How to irrigate?" I solved that question easily enough. You know the big storms in Alaska? Well, I waited until just after a big storm, then I would go out and spread a lot of alfalfa hay around. Then the reindeer and carabou which had bedded down during the storm would come and while they were eating the hay the snow would melt off and irrigate the land. I then started to raise night blooming tulips. You know, the kind that are like glass and as black as the ace of spades and blossom at night! Well, I had built up quite a business by the time summer came.

I then had to find a new form of irrigation because it was so hot up there that the rain all changed to steam and evaporated before it reached the ground. After thinking a while I laid a lot of screens on the border of the farm; inside of that I put a lot of glue. For while the deer and carabou and bear were migrating they had to cross my farm. They would walk in the glue and then all the particles of gold would stick to their feet; it took so much energy to walk and the animals perspired, so that it irrigated the farm. Then when they reached the other side they would knock the gold into the screens and in that way I was making money hand over fist with my gold and night blooming tulips.

Caesar Says!

To open the discussion let me ask you two questions: First, Does hair on the lip mean you're a hairlip?

Second, Does an athlete have athlete's foot?

Here's an incident which took place recently. Tom Taylor brought to school a potato for Mr. Lyons. Now isn't it the usual idea to bring an apple for the teacher? But not potatoes. You can sure tell Tom's an Irishman.

Miss Hazard made a remark that she wanted everyone to leave the school on Friday afternoon as there were no classes. Your request was fulfilled, Miss Hazard, as no one could take the school with them. That's like the teacher who remarked that she didn't want anyone to interrupt her while she had the floor. A class wit or nitwit piped up, remarking, "You can have the floor, I'll take a chair."

"I'll leave you here, at this remark, because I can't take you with me."

JERUSALEM SCHOOL NEWS

The Jerusalem school opened Sept. 4 with an enrollment of twelve pupils. There are nine grades.

We were glad to see the walls of the room painted cream and the woodwork and all the furniture nicely varnished. A Victrola and a cabinet file have been added to the school room this year. We have our book-ends repainted orange and black.

We organized our "Jerusalem Civic Health Club" the first day of school. Clara Trinkle was elected president and Helen Trinkle secretary, both for one month. We have 12 committees, who must attend to their work daily, or receive a punishment.

We made our Reading Chart. We combined our A-1 School card and Citizenship Code the first week. The third week we made a spelling chart. After a study in color, all the pupils made small booklets to use to put in the names of the books they read. We made spelling books also. We are working on study habits and have a chart showing progress in our work. The sixth grade made a History clock. Our room has been made more attractive by putting up some fall pictures we have collected.

The third week of school two new boys came to school. They are Donald McLain and Dan McLain. This makes the enrollment fourteen.

Our visitors for the month were: Mrs. Mildred Robinson and Flora Schanz. The per cent of attendance is 97.5 percent. Those neither absent nor tardy for the month of September were Junior Barth, Joyce Hoffman, Janice Hasley, Billy Stierle, Robert, Clara and Helen Trinkle, Donald and Dan McLain.

Signed, Billy Stierle, Marian Schiller, News Committee.

PINCKNEY—About 1500 people attended the auction of the personal property of the late Charles Pratt in Lima township over the line in Washtenaw county last week. Cattle, tools, and feed went high. Wheat in the granary brought 93¢ per bushel, wool brought the full market price of 21¢; hay, $13 a ton. Some of the hay sold was said to be seven years old. There seemed to be few cash bidders for the fine 125 acre farm when it was put up at auction. It was bid in for $63 per acre, the first time. The bidder, however, could not put up the money and it was put up the second time and sold for $53 per acre.—Dispatch.

IN RETROSPECT

"Twas a splendid celebration, But I must admit the truth, That in fancy I was wandering Through the Chelsea of my youth.

In those days up there on Main street Were Kempf's Bank and Wood's feed store, While across the way was Freeman's, Medicines for sick and sore.

Blushing brides wore rings from Wianans, Glad they'd not their choice delayed, Pallid grooms stood 'fore the preacher Clad in suits John Rafferty made.

Farrell's store below sold groceries, Sime Hirth ran the blacksmith shop; Boyd's Hotel, the home of travelers Who were always glad to stop.

Harry Avery was the dentist, Doctor Palmer the M. D.; George Ward, with his horse and buggy Made the milk delivery.

Holmes and Schenk's sold gowns and dry goods, Fenn and Vogel handled drugs; William Kiepp and Dennis Walker Hardware, guns and shaving brushes.

After school we children hurried Up to Burkhardt's for ice cream, O. T. Hoover ran the "Standard"— Strange how clear these memories seem.

Eppler's steaks were always tender, Caspari made fresh bread each day; The express was ably handled By Ed Chandler and his dray.

Glazier stoves from out the factory Traveled 'en to foreign shores; How we loved McLaren's movie— Standing wide-eyed at the doors.

Riemenschneider, the Postmaster, Sorted mail from every train; There were the six Taylor brothers; The "McKune House"; then again

At election time and caucus, G. P. Staffan, M. J. Noyes, Beckwith, Hummel, Bacon, Kalmbach, Often were the people's choice.

Mr. Gifford ran the High School, R. A. Snyder onions sold; Funny how my thoughts are straying, Can it be I'm getting old?

Must be so, because this minute I would gladly travel far, Just to be a youngster buying Peanut squares at the "Bazaar".

God bless Chelsea, and her noble Men, those striving pioneers, They, and those who followed after Led her on through struggling years.

Though her sons and daughters wander Paths which lead them far apart, I am sure that there is carried Love for Chelsea in each heart.

HOMECOMING HIGHLIGHTS

Did you hear Ransom Armstrong say: "Well, well, how are you? I haven't seen you for a long, long time."

The biggest thrill was wandering into the town hall and seeing the old-time show put on in the old-time way—and only a few got that thrill.

The moving of the bandstand Saturday morning showed the engineering training the Legionnaires received during the war.

Where's Elmer? The cry of the Chicago convention—but they were only looking for Elmer Cote of the Cote attractions who were the concessionaires of the rides.

But why were they looking for Elmer? Ask Ed. Eaton.

Did you hear the German singing of old folk songs at the Farmers' Exchange?

The three young boy musicians who after being paid for their services, started a concert of their own and were about to pass the hat when stopped.

If you enjoyed the boxing don't forget the Legion boxing shows this fall and winter.

Some one said it was too bad some merchant didn't win the battery each evening so we could get things charged at their store.

The pie-eating contest, and the boy who had to stop only a mouthful from the first prize—he couldn't take it.

Didn't the Ann Arbor Legionnaires make themselves at home?

Did you see the awing of the "prize" by the Adrian German Band?

Was there anybody at the other end of the rope when the Firemen started the Tag of War?

If there had been no age limit set there would have been many more entries in the greased pole contest for that dollar bill looked very big even up so high.

During the Friday evening performance at the Princess Theatre featuring Aloma and her mystery act, Conrad Lehman was one of the subjects of an exhibition wherein Aloma named objects touched by her assistant.

After correctly describing the article touched as a hat, the assistant asked "What price hat?" and Aloma answered "1.98" and a laugh went up at Mr. Lehman's discomfiture.

On Monday Mr. Lehman received a letter from Jackson where Aloma is appearing in a theatre, stating that she had been looking into her crystal and found that she had cheated him out of 52 cents as his hat had cost $2.50, and enclosing two Princess Theatre tickets to make-up the difference.

Naturalization Law

The law states that the naturalization of a foreign woman does not carry with it the naturalization of a minor child, born outside the United States in a case where the father and mother are living together and the father has not become naturalized.

In River's Mouth

The mouth of the Amazon river is very large—so large that the island of Marajo, as large as Belgium, does not obstruct it as far as navigation is concerned.

CURRENT NEWS REVIEW

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S latest radio talk with his fellow citizens was well written, well delivered and peculiarly vague as to his future intentions. He sought to reassure business and labor, both of which are questioning him anxiously, but he made no definite replies to their categorical queries. His one specific statement was that within a month he would seek to negotiate a "truce" between large groups of employers and large groups of employees.

Through which there would be a cessation of the strikes that have been disrupting the nation's business. He said he would ask the representatives of those forces to agree temporarily on questions of wages, hours and working conditions, and that with such agreements in force he expected further adjustments would be made peacefully, through governmental or private mediation.

"I shall not ask either employers or employees permanently to lay aside the weapons common to industrial war," he added. "But I shall ask both groups to give a fair trial to peaceful methods of adjusting their conflicts of opinion and interest, and to experiment for a reasonable time with measures suitable to civilize our industrial civilization."

By way of reply to the appeals of many business, industrial and financial leaders that the more radical measures of the administration's program be abandoned, Mr. Roosevelt declared the New Deal is to go on. To the questions of those leaders concerning balancing of the budget, government expenses, further devaluation of the dollar or return to the gold standard, he made no reply. However, he did declare himself in favor of a system of business based on private profit. Then he said:

"I am not for a return to that definition of liberty under which for many years a free people were being gradually regimented into the service of the privileged few. I prefer and I am sure you prefer that broader definition of liberty under which we are moving forward to greater freedom, to greater security for the average man than he has ever known before in the history of America."

Concerning the NIRA, the President gave praise to General Johnson and said the national recovery administration was entering its second phase, "which is in turn a period of preparation for legislation which will determine its permanent form." He admitted there was a question as to the wisdom of some of the devices employed during the first phase of the NIRA, but declared the attacks on the constitutionality of many of the things his administration has done. "We are not," he said, "frightened by reactionary lawyers or political editors. All these cries have been heard before."

Near the beginning of his address, the President said:

"I am happy to report that after years of uncertainty, culminating in the collapse of the spring of 1933, we are bringing order out of the old chaos with a greater certainty of the employment of labor at a reasonable wage and of more business at a fair profit. These governmental and industrial developments hold promise of new achievements for the nation."

First formal response to the President's speech came from the National Association of Manufacturers, which urged him to issue a proclamation for a "truce on industrial warfare" during which existing employment relations would be continued, and challenged the American Federation of Labor to take like action. Its statement said:

"The President will find employers willing to sit down with him, as he proposes, to devise means for ending the constant series of strikes which have been one of the major obstacles to recovery."

Green and Morrison, respectively president and secretary of the federation, said this was a subterfuge and that the manufacturers should first publicly announce they would obey the decisions of constituted authorities, especially concerning discrimination and collective bargaining.

HOME COMING EVENTWAS REAL SUCCESS

greeter and was kept busy every minute of the two days.

Mrs. Christine McDonald gave an inspiring address to the women regarding their political duties, Saturday afternoon, and the program of entertainments kept on until well after 10 o'clock after which prizes were awarded on the numbers of the souvenir badges.

The dance at the high school gym was exceptionally well attended and late Saturday night saw a tired but happy throng who voted the Homecoming a huge success as they wearily went home.

One of the most interesting features of the celebration was the worthwhile collection of relics, antiques and pictures displayed in the store windows of the village. Many happy memories were brought back to the old-timers who went window-gazing and comments were heard on all sides as to the keen enjoyment afforded by these displays.

As closely as can be ascertained at this time, the local American Legion post will clear less than one hundred dollars from the celebration, but what was not gained in cash has been gained in a new spirit of cooperation and fellowship among our citizens.

The Legion wishes to express their thanks to all the business and professional men who so generously donated prizes and their services to enable the Legion to make the party a success, and to the village authorities who went out of their way to do everything possible for the good of the party.
