Navy Day Proclamation

Whereas, Saturday, October 27th, has been designated as Navy Day, the anniversary of the establishment of the American Navy by the Continental Congress in 1775; and

Whereas, This day will be observed by the citizens of this country, as a tribute to the past and present services, which the Navy of the United States has rendered to the Nation during one hundred and fifty-eight years, and to the men who have responded in times of peril to the call to arms, and who stand ready at all times to defend with their lives, if necessary, the ideals and institutions of this great country;

Therefore, be it resolved, that I, J. E. McKune, President of the Village of Chelsea, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the law, do designate Saturday, October 27, 1934, as "Navy Day", and urge that our appreciation of the loyal services of the Navy be shown by a display of the National Colors, and that appropriate exercises be held to commemorate the occasion.

(Signed)
J. Edward McKune,
Village President.

Freshman College Is Started This Week

The Chelsea Freshman College is under way with the necessary enrollment for three instructors. The director of the college work is Wm. McClure, and he also instructs in Political Science, History and Public Speaking. Mr. Engstrand has classes in French, Spanish and English Literature. Mr. Case has the work in English and Trigonometry.

Mr. McClure has nearly completed the necessary work for his Ph. D. degree. Mr. Engstrand will be awarded a Ph. D. in the near future and Mr. Case is the holder of M. A. degree. These men are excellent instructors and the students enrolled in the Freshman College are fortunate in having these well trained teachers.

After enrolling a number of people for commercial subjects an order came through from Lansing on Saturday cancelling all the work in shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping so in a number of cases new subjects had to be selected by the freshmen taking the college work and some people who had enrolled did not start the classes due to the fact that the commercial subjects had been eliminated.

This certainly is a grand opportunity for these students to get college work at a minimum of expense. There is still room for additional students to enroll.

Candidates Laud New Deal Achievements

A Democratic rally was held Saturday evening in Sylvan town hall, at which John Keusch presided and introduced the speakers.

Congressman John C. Lehr gave a brief resume of his achievements in the House of Representatives, mentioning some of the prominent bills which he was instrumental in passing. He also gave a general outline of what has been accomplished under the New Deal.

Other speakers on the program were George L. Emen, candidate for State Representative, Prof. Mayskens of the University of Michigan, and Arthur Lehman, Dr. Conrad George, Mrs. Jane Forshee and Erwin Stoff, county candidates.

They unanimously upheld the present administration and pledged their support to the whole Rooseveltian program, as did Arthur J. Leay, candidate for governor, who spoke to about fifty people here Monday afternoon.

FREE MOTION PICTURES

On Friday evening, Nov. 2, at 8 o'clock at the U. B. church in Waterloo, there will be free motion pictures from the Michigan Conservation Department. The reels consist of Isle Royal, Deer, and Nature Gangsters. There will be no charge to see these pictures. The ladies will serve coffee at the parsonage after the picture.

FARMERS' UNION MEETING

There will be an organization meeting of the Farmers' Union at Sylvan town hall on Tuesday evening, October 30 at 8 o'clock. The milk price situation will be an important topic for discussion at this meeting.

TO ENTERTAIN LEAGUERS

The Carry On Class of the Methodist Episcopal church will be hosts to the Epworth Leaguers of Washtenaw county on Friday evening of this week. Pot luck dinner, League rally and Halloween social. Rev. Victor Longfield of Dexter will preside.

Amendments Will Be Discussed Friday

Wm. M. Laird, Ann Arbor city attorney and former Washtenaw county prosecutor, will discuss the six constitutional amendments which will appear on the November 6 ballot, in an address at Sylvan town hall on Friday night of this week.

Mr. Laird will address the members of the Methodist Old People's Home family at 6:30 and will appear at the town hall at 8 o'clock.

Following his discussion of each amendment Mr. Laird will give his audience an opportunity to ask questions before taking up the next amendment.

This will be an impartial, non-partisan explanation of all provisions of the amendments and will be a good opportunity for the public to become acquainted with the questions they will be asked to vote upon November 6th.

Mr. Laird has made a careful study of the six amendments, and has spoken at many gatherings throughout the county during the past few weeks in an effort to clarify the much-discussed subjects.

Fire Destroys Two Barns On Weiss Farm

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed two large barns, with their contents, a hog house and milk house, on the farm of Mrs. Edwin Weiss, in Lima township, Thursday afternoon. The fire was discovered about 4:30.

The barns, 62x40 feet and 36x50 feet, respectively, contained about 50 tons of hay, 250 bushels of oats, 1000 bushels of oats, 300 bushels of wheat and 50 bushels of barley. The loss is estimated at $6,000, partially covered by insurance.

The local fire department responded to the call, but the flames had gained too much headway and damage to the electric pump hindered their efforts. The farm is occupied by Geo. Steele, who is employed by Mrs. Weiss. Plans are being made to erect a new barn in the near future.

Buildings on the Fred Riemen-schneider farm, which are located near the Weiss premises, were saved through the heroic efforts of neighbors and firemen.

Girl Scouts Entertain Mothers On Friday

The Girl Scouts entertained their mothers at a pot-luck dinner Friday evening at the public school auditorium.

Mrs. H. L. Bleeker, chairman of the Girl Scout Council, opened the program by calling for rising votes of thanks to Past Captain Florence Yager and presenting Gertrude Hindelang as this year's captain. The program was then turned over to the captain and was as follows:

Aims of Chelsea's Girl Scouts — Captain Gertrude Hindelang.
Musical selections—Mrs. George W. Walworth.
Girl Scout Objectives—Mrs. Hara of Ypsilanti.

Musical selections—Mrs. I. V. Burg.
Girl Scout Camping—Mrs. Heise, Ypsilanti.

Group singing, led by Luella Huston.

Dancing was enjoyed during the remainder of the evening.

Mrs. Barrs and Mrs. Heise of Ypsilanti were out of town guests. Their talks included Girl Scout objectives and camping, explaining the policies, works and benefits of a Girl Scout troop.

Thank you mothers for the fine dinner you brought with you. We hope that we may have many such gatherings throughout the year.

—Scout Scribbles.

GIVE SPECIAL PROGRAM

The meeting of the Child Study club was held on Tuesday evening in the kindergarten room of the public school. The members and fifty guests were present to hear the special program. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Paul Schaeble, who read the Litany of the Federation of Women's clubs. Miss Katharine Fletcher sang two songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. R. Daniels.

Mrs. E. W. Eaton, chairman of the library committee, gave a brief history of the library since its beginning on February 27, 1932. The library was started with 22 books and 150 books from the State Library. Now there are 1800 books on the shelves and the past year 9000 books were loaned.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Constance Bement, director of the Extension Department of the State Library at Lansing. Miss Bement gave a splendid talk on "Why a Library". She said the important thing now is to get people interested in reading books to take up some of their leisure time.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

MORENCI—Entertainment for Halloween has been planned by the American Legion and Ladies Auxiliary to be known as a Halloween Festival and will be held on the streets of Morenci, Wednesday, October 31. Amusements for both old and young have been carefully planned. The young people will be so well entertained that they will not even want to take time off to tip over any garages or misplace any of the property in the city.—Observer.

PINCKNEY—Russell Galatian is spending a short time with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Mohrlock, near Chelsea, where he is recovering from a badly broken collar bone caused by being thrown to the pavement at Ann Arbor when his car was struck and demolished by a truck belonging to the Ann Arbor Packing Co. His brother, Hunter Galatian and cousin, Mrs. William H. Keedle, visited him Wednesday evening.—Dispatch.

HOWELL—All roads led to the country Monday morning. From 2 to 3 o'clock the local restaurants were filled with hunters headed for the open fields in quest of pheasants. One party reported counting 2,000 cars passing through Howell from 1 o'clock to 4 a. m. Monday morning. Before daylight farmers' yards were public parking places, and small groups could be seen on the highways preparing to beat certain swamps, or drive fields where the wary birds were suspected of being present.—Republican-Press.

GRASS LAKE—Careless hunters are blamed for the starting of a fire in timber about a half-mile north of Leoni, Tuesday. Although the flames were battled for hours by firemen and the county pumper as well as farmers and others attracted to the scene the blaze was still burning Wednesday with prospects that it would continue its destruction until it had burned out. Approximately 20 acres had been covered by the flames Tuesday afternoon.—News.

SOUTH LYON—Last Saturday Sidney Smith made the discovery that three deer were foraging in the woods on his big farm northwest of this town. Knowing they must have broken out of a park somewhere he communicated with Conservation Officer Wilkinson and learned that they had wandered from the Haron River Hunt and Fish Club in Green Oak. Although the animals—a doe, a young buck and a fawn—seemed quite tame they apparently enjoyed their freedom so much that they could not be caught. Tuesday evening a fast train on the P. M. railroad killed the doe. The remaining two have become so wild they cannot be approached. Mr. Wilkinson tells us there are over a hundred deer running wild in the vicinity of Oak Grove, Byron and Co-hoctah.—Herald.

MASON—Mighty members of the Ingham county board of supervisors and a nurse at the Ingham tuberculosis sanatorium were "up in the air" last Thursday during an inspection trip of the county institution. The 18 persons were being escorted through the sanatorium by a nurse. The entire party entered an elevator. A descent was started but the heavy load caused an automatic safety device to function and the 18 men and one woman were trapped between two floors. After a long delay a crew of engineers forced open an elevator door and the supervisors and the nurse crawled out of their cage.—Ingham County News.

Vitamin C Known of 200 Years—Evidence that vitamin C exists was obtained nearly two centuries ago by the observation that juice of citrus fruits and apple cider would cure mariner's scurvy.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—To settle an argument will you please answer in the question column of your valuable paper if the moon is round or just half-round?

Ans.—The moon is neither. The moon is shaped exactly like a football. The end of this football-shaped moon (and always the same end)—is pointed directly at the earth and gives the appearance that the moon is round or half-round. This idea, therefore, is misleading, as we never see the broad side of the moon.

Ques.—Can you tell me if there is land at the North and South Poles? Or is it all water and ice in those regions?

Ans.—At the South Pole there is a mass of land which would indicate that a continent exists there. However, it remains to be charted by explorers who are endeavoring to further this work, but as yet with little success. The North Pole, so far as is known, has only a few scattered islands.

Ques.—How many Jewish people are there in the world at the present time? Also what three countries have the greatest number of them? Does Russia lead?

Ans.—At the present time there are 15,450,000 Jewish people (Israelites) in the world. The three leading countries that have the greatest number of Jewish population are as follows: Poland, 3,300,000; Ukraine, 3,300,000 and the United States 3,100,000. Russia has only 900,000.

Ques.—Does gravity affect birds while flying? And do they change the action of their wings while making quick turns, twists and darts through space?

Ans.—Gravity will affect everything made of matter. If the birds folded their wings and rested, they would fall to the earth instantly. They keep themselves suspended in the air by the action of their wings or by gliding. Their different motions in the air are accomplished in the same manner in which you can swing your arms or make other movements of the body.

Ques.—I am told that if Jo Mendel, the world-famous educated chimpanzee, had lived, his posterity would have eventually developed into the human race. If this is true, how long did they figure it would take for it to take place?

Ans.—Scientists do not think this theory is true. They hold that the monkey and man had a common ancestor, but that is all. Man has not developed out of the monkey, nor is it probable that the future generation will ever bring about anything of that sort. Certain species of the monkey may attain a high degree of intelligence, but there is no foundation for the belief that they will ever become human.

Ques.—Why are black-eyed people more high-tempered than those who have blue or grey eyes?

Ans.—This is because a greater percentage of black-eyed people have higher strung nerves and nervous organizations in other ways. This is a racial characteristic. Black-eyed people are usually of the dark-skinned or the Mediterranean branch of the white race, while the blue-eyed and grey-eyed people are of the light-skinned or Nordic branch. The former are usually fiery and quick-tempered because of their nervous condition, while the latter are cool and collected because of the absence of high-strung nerves.

Ques.—I would like to ask in your question department if it is correct to use the word "ain't"?

Ans.—In a broad sense it is permissible to use the word "ain't". The word appears in our latest accepted dictionaries. However, the use of the word is considered inelegant and low.

Ques.—Is there such a thing as a "criminal face" or a "poker face"? If so, will you describe them for me?

Ans.—Criminal tendencies are not indicated by anything in the features. While a great Italian criminologist held to the theory of a criminal face, his views have not stood the test of time and are no longer held. "Poker face" is a term to describe a face that is expressionless—a face that does not change in expression, no matter if the conditions are adverse or favorable. It originated in the game of poker, when a man's face would not reveal whether or not he held a powerful winning hand.

Ques.—I am writing to ask why does cold make us shiver?

Ans.—We shiver because there is an automatic subconscious device in our system that set the muscles in motion to increase the flow of blood to them so that they can warm up. It is the same thing as when one jumps about or beats his hands together consciously to keep warm.

Use for Cacao Bean—According to the National Geographic society, not only does the cacao bean supply the producers of candies and sweetmeats with a unique solid ingredient and flavoring, but it furnishes "the makings" for a hot beverage, surpassed in world importance only by coffee and tea.

EMMAUS

A blessing came with Jesus on the way to Emmaus. That sad and dreadful day; He overtook the trio that he might their faith renew. And thus he wills to do for you today. And though they knew him not at first, And thought their hearts would break with grief; He stopped to dine with them, make himself known, and bring relief, then vanished from their sight.

Back to the city though it was night, And dark they almost ran, And with one accord told the disciples They had seen their Lord.

Thus today, dark hedged our every way, We take the Emmaus road. When, suddenly, one whose name is Love, Illumines all our way, dispelling fear, We shout with one accord— We have seen the Lord!

—Arthur Carlton.

Servants in Medieval Castle

In a medieval castle servants included the steward who was a general doorman or butler. There would be one or more cooks, depending on the size of the establishment. There would be scullions, butchers, millers, cellars, cup bearers and a miscellaneous crew of boys and men doing menial work. More on the military side, but still servants, were the armorer, farrier, hostler and groom. Every castle had its priest, who also was a sort of secretary. A priest might also act as almoner and scribe. There often was a fool or jester. There were many maids, a housekeeper and sentinels.

Epsom Downs

Epsom Downs, which draws vast multitudes of visitors from all parts of the world to witness the cream of the world's horseflesh in operation, were once styled Banstead Downs, and long before they became connected with the turf seem to have been associated with pedestrian races for running "footmen," kept in training for the purpose of their masters. But these noble Downs, covered with grass finer than Persian carpets, and perfumed with wild thyme and juniper, possess many amenities unnoticed by ordinary racegoers.

Nelson Relics

Interesting Nelson relics closely connected with the Battle of Trafalgar are still in existence. One is the actual musket ball by which Nelson was killed. The ball struck the top part of the hero's epaulet and entered the left shoulder. On removing the ball a portion of the gold lace and part of the epaulet, together with a small piece of the coat, were found firmly attached to it, so firmly that they might have formed part of the bullet when molded.

Pronouncing Given Names

The pronunciation of any given name, or of any surname, is a matter for the owner of that name to decide for himself. The customary pronunciation of Joan, and the only one recognized by the dictionary, is Jo-an-ah, as in go. If the name is pronounced in two syllables, Jo-an-ah, the customary spelling is Joanne.—Literary Digest.

Early Use of Dice

Dice were probably evolved from knucklebones. It is almost impossible to trace clearly the development of dice as distinguished from knucklebones, on account of the confusing of the two games by ancient writers. It is certain, however, that both were played in times antecedent to those of which we possess written records.

Eskimo Needs the Caribou

The caribou provides the Eskimo not only with food but with clothing as well. From the deer skins all the clothing of Eskimo men, women and children is made; also their sleeping bags and rugs. The Eskimo tries to get the hides of the younger animals for making clothes, because the fur is darker and finer than that of the older animals and does not fall out so readily.

Exercising Charity

A VERSE from a cherished old scrapbook runs:
If God were all-in-all to me,
I'd think good thoughts the while,
And inwardly I'd joyous be,
And outwardly I'd smile!
No thought of sorrow could there be,
Nor ought but what is true—
If God were all-in-all to me,
If good were all I knew!

There are many earnest Christians who are not getting from their devotion to God a full sense of joy, health, and peace, such as the above verse indicates as conditionally possible. At such times there should be fear, honest checking of our motives, aims, ambitions, in relation to our understanding of what God means to us. In this mental inventory we may be forced to recognize and cast out some narrow theological views, doubts, educated beliefs, superstitions, in order to gain a clearer revelation of God as ever ready, ever loving, ever watchful of the welfare of His children, bestowing only good. Paul, perceiving that some individual effort must be made, said in his letters to Timothy, "Pursue after righteousness, faith, charity, peace," and again, "Refuse profane and old wives' fables, and exercise thyself rather unto godliness. For bodily exercise profiteth little, but godliness is profitable unto all things." The godliness which is "profitable unto all things" is based on Love. In summing up the qualities to be added one to another in the Christian's life, Peter mentions diligence, faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, charity. Our love for God and our exercise of brotherly kindness are more closely related than is commonly admitted. It may be that someone feels that love is not essential in his daily affairs. To another, charity may seem a sign of weakness; and he may fear that, while he is manifesting love, one expressing a sterner quality will deprive him of his rights. Still another may say that he possesses a great deal of love in his heart, but it is so difficult for him to express love that others are seldom aware of his inmost feelings.

Mary Baker Eddy asks this question (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 130): "Know ye not that he who exercises the largest charity, and waits on God, renews his strength, and is exalted?" And in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," she writes (p. 57): "Human affection is not poured forth vainly, even though it meet no return. Love enriches the nature, enlarging, purifying, and elevating it."

A statement in Proverbs reads, "A friend loveth at all times." It is in daily contact with our fellow men that we discover constant favorable occasion to exercise charity—to train ourselves by practice to love wholeheartedly; for we are redeemed by the true love sustained and diffused within our own hearts. Where the right motive exists and the majority of one's acts are honestly sincere, love avoids referring to past mistakes. Love enables us to resist hate and fear with good-humored courage. Love maintains its own position of integrity cheerfully, without censure. Love is never in a hurry, never too busy to give a friendly word or smile. Love is unselfish, considerate, having no time to waste in self-pity. Even if our situation seems cramped, our mental horizon is as wide as we make it, and there is always constructive thinking to keep us active and useful. One who loves truly never returns evil for evil, or feels depressed by another's self-assertion. Armed with the love of God and our intercourse with coworkers, associates, relatives will be wholesome and remunerative.

Even from a human standpoint, love reveals many worthy traits and characteristics in our neighbors for love looks through its own lens. How much greater progress is made when we see at a glance the divine Love. This spiritual view rises above matter, material laws, human frailties, beholding man's normal, rightful heritage of health, purity, authority.

We may measure our love for God by our love for one another. Christ Jesus said, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." He also said, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another, as I have loved you." "As I have loved you" may seem a high goal; yet let no one feel that it is impossible of ultimate attainment. Let each one start right where he is, to enlarge the love that eternally lives within the heart. Love expands with use, and the smallest exertion toward un-selfed generosity brings a glow of healing satisfaction. One who has thought himself devoid of affection, callous, hard, cold, will find joy exceeding that of any previous experience, as he exercises this gracious quality and trains himself to love. Love proffered another returns with increase to bless and prosper. Thus we may see the reason for obedience to the Scriptural command, "Let brotherly love continue."—The Christian Science Monitor.

OIL COMPANIES PROMISE CUT IF TAX IS REDUCED

Leading oil companies operating in Michigan are publishing today in the Standard an advertisement pledging themselves to reduce the price of gasoline if the constitutional amendment to reduce the state gasoline tax carries at the polls on November 6. The pledge is made, according to a spokesman for the companies, to meet squarely a story which has been circulated by opponents of the reduction to the effect that oil companies, rather than motorists, would benefit by any reduction.

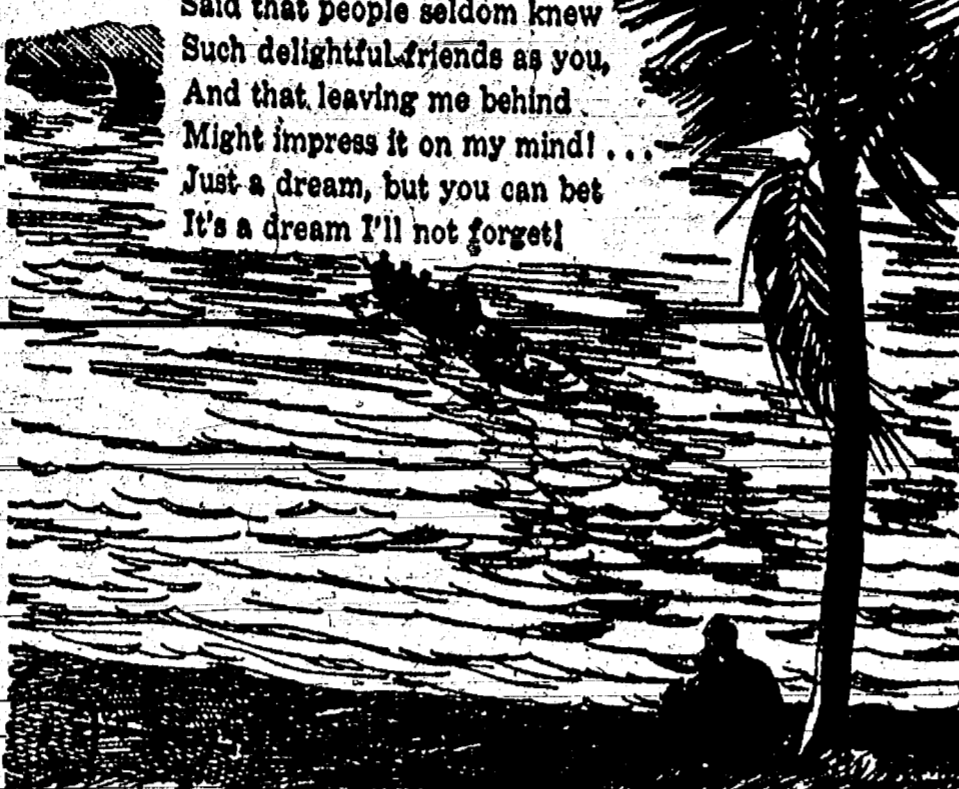

"I have never known of a case where the price of gasoline was not decreased when the tax was reduced," Henry M. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil Company, declared in a statement forwarded to the American Petroleum Industries Committee. "We will, of course, reduce the price of gasoline that we sell in Michigan by the amount that the tax is reduced."

A similar personal declaration was made several weeks ago by Edward G. Seibert, president of Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Frank Phillips, president of Phillips Petroleum Company, wired the Committee, "Any reduction in Michigan's gasoline tax will of course be passed on to our customers." The Committee has on file definite pledges from heads of enough other companies to make it absolutely sure that the gasoline price will be lowered if the reduction of tax is voted and carried through.

To a Neglected Friend

Had a dream the other night,
And it gave me such a fright!
Dreamed a ship left you and me
On an island far at sea;
It was lonely, bleak and small—
No inhabitants at all;
Not so bad, until the day
Rescue boats took you away;
Someone said that, if I'd learn
To be friendly, they'd return—
Said that people seldom knew
Such delightful friends as you,
And that leaving me behind
Might impress it on my mind! . . .
Just a dream, but you can bet
It's a dream I'll not forget!

Crabs "Shed" Quickly

The transition of crabs through the three stages from "peeler" through soft shell to hard shell is only a matter of a very few hours under natural conditions. The hardshell crab, having outgrown its shell and with a new or soft shell developed beneath, gradually breaks out of the hard shell. During that stage it is known as a peeler. Once out of the shell the new shell is soft and will remain so if the crab is taken out of the water and packed for shipment to market; however, if the crab remains in the water for two or three hours after sloughing the shell, the new shell also becomes hard. The entire process may not require more than four or five hours.

Vicious Fish Menace

One of the most dangerous of the wild creatures of South America is a fish. Strange to say, the vicious piranha, as they are called, are not ferocious looking and usually are only 18 inches long. However, they are the terror of river crossings. They are voracious meat eaters and yearly kill hundreds of cattle and horses. Since the fish travel in schools they also have been known to attack and to kill men, stripping the flesh from the body in a few moments.

FRANCISCO

Mrs. Herman Bohne was hostess last Thursday afternoon to about 40 neighbors and friends at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of her daughter, Miss Stella Bohne, bride-elect of Mr. Hoke of Jackson. A most amusing and entertaining feature was the mock wedding in which Miss Stella was the bride in a flowing floor length bridal veil, with Mrs. Chester Notten—the groom. Miss Gladys Bohne acted as the bridesmaid while Mrs. Clifford Wolfe served as best man. Mrs. Fred Lambert, daintily dressed, carried the ring on a lacy pillow. The marriage service was impressively read by Mrs. Nina Lehman. Anyone in doubt as to the proper marriage costumes to select, will do well to interview any of the above mentioned people, and be advised as to materials and style of garments.

Ten Parties Listed On November Ballots

Large ballots will be handed the voters on November 6 as ten political parties have made proper certification to Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald and have been given places on the ballot.

The parties and the order in which they are listed are: Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Communist, Commonwealth, Socialist-Labor, American, People's, Progressive, Farmer-Labor, and National.

In twelve cities and one county where voting machines are used, many changes will be necessary in order to accommodate the large ticket.

In several cities, according to information given the department, it may be necessary to return to paper ballots for the coming election.

In addition to the candidate ballot, voters also will have a state constitutional amendment which contains six proposals, and their local ballots.

Code Names Assigned to Britain's Rolling Stock

The numerous kinds of rolling stock used by the railways in Great Britain have been assigned code names, and these to the railway man that he may easily speak of the vehicles by their code description, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. A language of birds, beasts, flowers, and reptiles has thus been evolved and is readily understood. Among rolling stock code names are:

Scorpion—Carriage truck open (ordinary).

Macaw A—Four-wheel double holster wagon to carry 14 tons of deals, timber, etc.

Termite C—Third-class three-wheel coach with corridor, five closed and open smoking compartments.

Hydra—Passenger well-truck, fitted with vacuum, run in passenger train for conveyance of vehicles on their own wheels, such as buses, etc.

Crocodile—Trolley to carry 15 tons.
Length 24 feet, 6 inches in width.

Beetle—Special cattle wagon fitted with under-mentioned brake or pipe to run in passenger trains.

Bloater—Four-wheel large covered fish truck fitted with gas lighting and three sliding doors each side. Wheel base 18 feet.

Many of the words are used to describe varieties of the particular vehicle by the addition of A, B, C.

Every station master at each of the 6,800 stations in the kingdom possesses a copy of the Code book and can rapidly decipher a message in this strange language.

Mount McKinley Park

Mount McKinley park lies to the south central portion of Alaska and offers everything from a vast wilderness, with ice-capped peaks and grinding glaciers to spruce-covered valleys dotted by countless lakes. The glaciers in the park are many. Silent rivers of solid ice, miles in length, creep and gnaw their way out of mountain retreats that have never heard the footsteps of man. Some of these glaciers, many of them unnamed, contain more ice than all the glaciers of Switzerland. All of the largest northward flowing glaciers of the Alaskan range rise on the slopes of Mount Mc-Kinley and Mount Foraker. The large-est are the Herron, having its source in the fields of Mount Foraker; the Peters, which glaciers the northwest end of Mount McKinley, and the Milroy, whose front is about 15 miles northeast of Mount McKinley, and whose source is in the unsurveyed heart of the range.

NAVY DAY—OCTOBER 27

Thirteen years ago, on October 27, the Navy League of the United States, a group of citizens interested in the welfare of the Navy, sponsored the first nationwide celebration of Navy Day.

That date was chosen because it was on October 27, 1776, that the Special Congressional Committee, composed of Silas Deane, Christopher Gadsden and John Langdon, presented the first bill for the acquisition of thirteen frigates. Those men were the fathers of our Navy, and their bill was the foundation of what was then called the "Navy of the United Colonies."

October 27 also is the anniversary of the birth of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, whom many call the father of our modern Navy. As late as the early nineties, our Navy still was composed of ships left over from the Civil War, and Roosevelt worked vigorously toward its modernization.

Because only about one person out of every fifteen hundred of our population are attached to the Navy, and because so many of our people seldom or never see any part of the Navy, the celebration of Navy Day has been continued each year.

Most young people in our schools probably know considerable of the glorious history of our Navy and the heroic exploits of its men, especially that part dealing with the wars into which we have been forced. Probably they are inclined to think of the Navy, however, entirely in the past tense, and overlook the fact that we still have one, its men going to sea every day, training and studying to fit themselves to defend us if it should become necessary.

It is a young man's Navy, too! The majority of the personnel are under twenty-five years of age and probably are of the best blood in the United States. In contrast with the sailor-men of a generation ago, the officers today are practically all Naval Academy or University graduates and nearly all the enlisted men have at least some high school education. They come from every section of the United States, from families of rich and poor, and their work in the Navy, that belongs to all of us, is a service that should be respected.

The Navy League asks you to remember this human side of the Navy that is so often forgotten. It asks you to remember that the men of the Navy are serious minded humans, some of them perhaps, your own kin. To some extent their morale is in your hands. Hostile criticism and lack of interest are as harmful as merited praise is helpful.

As long as human nature is such that we must have police forces locally, armed protective forces will be necessary nationally and the Navy is our first line of defense. It's your Navy. Give it your hearty support.

Animals Too Minute to Be Visible to Naked Eye

It has been said that this is a world of dog eat dog, the large preying upon the small, the strong upon the weak. But this is not always the case of animals—a writer in Pathfinder Magazine. In many instances we find little fellows living on the great and even destroying them. This can be said of the Protozoa, smallest animals in the world, though by no means all of them are destructive of life or pernicious. The largest of the Protozoa are scarcely visible to the naked eye, while the smallest are microscopic.

The Protozoa move about by means of tiny mobile lobes, or tiny hair-like vibratory appendages called cilia, or flagella, which propel the body or aid in taking food. The simplest types consist of a mere drop of naked protoplasm enclosing a nucleus. In most forms, however, a cell membrane covers the mass and limits its activity. Many forms possess protective covering such as shells, scales, and spines. Membraneless forms can ingest food at any point, but those with membranes have at least a mouth.

Protozoa, when spineless, often infest human beings, causing diseases such as malaria, yellow fever, typhus, sleeping sickness, dysentery. They represent the form of animal life that is closest to plant life. In fact, it is practically impossible to tell exactly where one ends and the other begins, the essential difference between a plant and an animal being one of nutrition. A typical plant feeds off gases in the air and inorganic salts in the soil or water, while the typical animal must get ready-made protein for food from other animals and from plants.

Hiawatha Brought Peace and Goodwill to Indians

Hiawatha is the Iroquois name of a hero, of miraculous birth, who came to the North American Indians, to bring them peace and goodwill, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Longfellow's poem, published in 1855, he was a member of the Ojibwa tribe, reared by his grandmother, Nokomis, daughter of the moon.

Hiawatha represents the progress of civilization among the Indians. First he wrestled with Mondamin (Indian maize), whom he subdued, and gave to man bread-corn. He then taught man navigation; then he subdued the Mische-Nahma of sturgeon, and told the people to "bring all their pots and kettles and make-off-for-the-winter."

Hiawatha then conquered Megisogwon, the magician, "who sent the fiery fayer on man; sent the white fog from the Yen-lan-ki; sent disease and death among us" and he taught his people the science of medicine. Then he married "Laughing Water," settling his adherents an example to follow. Lastly, he taught them picture writing.

With the arrival of the white men and their religious faith, Hiawatha asked his people to receive the new words of wisdom and departed to the kingdom of Ponemah, the land of the Hereafter.

"The Mail"

"Mail" was originally the name of the mail used in playing pull-mail, a game played in France, Scotland, and England hundreds of years ago in which a ball was driven with a mallet. By extension, "mail" was applied to the game itself, as well as to the place where it was played. Thus Pull-Mail, a famous street in London, received its name from the fact that it was formerly a pull-mail alley. In the course of time "mail" came to mean a public walk, especially a shaded one. "The Mail" is applied to a strip of land in Washington, D. C., lying between the Capitol and the Washington monument, bounded on the east by the Capitol grounds, on the south by Maryland avenue and on the west by the west by Seventeenth street, and on the north by Pennsylvania avenue and B street N. W. The name is also applied to a Cleveland strip of land.

Longest Life Span

The longest recorded life span of any backbone animal is 162 years and is credited to a giant land tortoise known to have lived on the island of Mauritius from 1708 to 1918. As it was not young when the record started, its true age may have been more than 200 years. The largest land turtles and crocodiles probably live beyond 100 years, states an authority at the Field museum, Chicago, but records are few. The greatest recorded age for any crocodile is that of a Chinese alligator which has lived since 1888 in the Frankfurt zoological gardens.

Origin of Word "Bank"

The origin of the word bank as the place of business of money dealers is obscure, says Literary Digest. In that use the first appearance of the word in English was in the last quarter of the fifteenth century. Etymologists believe it to have been derived from the earlier banca (banck, bank, banca, banco, as alternate spellings), meaning bench or shelf; a sense that traces back in English to the Eleventh century.

Largest Roman Forum

The largest Roman forum is at Salamis, on the island of Cyprus. Five miles away, at Famagusta, in one of the town's fortifications, stands Othello's Tower, where Desdemona met her tragic end. To the southeast stands Limassol, where Richard the Lionhearted married Berengaria, and there she was crowned Queen of England.

The corn-game party which was to be held Thursday evening at St. Mary's auditorium has been held over to next Tuesday, due to repairs now being made to the heating plant. The donors of the poultry and other supplies are to bring their donations to the committee next Tuesday afternoon and evening. The equipment still shows the lavish splendor of early Russian decoration and contains the same vestments.

HILLTOPS CLEAR

By Emilie Loring

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, whose health has been broken by tragedy.

CHAPTER II—The second day on her farm, Prudence, adventuring into the barn loft after eggs, she slips on the egg and falls to the ground—would have been badly hurt, had not strong young arms been there to catch her. The arms are those of Rodney Gooch, a young man, who lives at High Ledges on the neighboring farm. There is once a mutual attraction between the two. Rod decides to stay at his home, but Prudence decides to maintain a cool attitude toward him. She suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife.

CHAPTER III—Len Calloway, a rival of Rod's, tries to buy the farm of Prudence's land, but she declines his coveted attitude and does not place a value on the farm. The evening Prue is expecting David from New York, she is visited by Mrs. Walter Gerard and her thirteen-year-old daughter, Jean. They have heard of Prudence's arrival and have come to see her.

CHAPTER IV—A few days later Prudence comes in contact with her cousin when she accompanies Rod to a place. A crowd comes to see her, and she is surrounded by a group of people. She is asked to accompany Rod and Jean to the circus.

CHAPTER V—They go to the circus, and while they are watching the parade, a crowd of people is gathered around them. A man is killed by a horse, and Prudence is the only one who is not hurt. She is the only one who is not hurt.

CHAPTER VI—Milly Gooch broke her engagement to Calloway; he believes Rod was the cause and has since been Rod's enemy. After the accident to Calloway, Rod calls on Milly to see if he can be of any help. Prue hardens herself still more against Rod when she sees in the newspaper a photograph of her sister with Milly.

CHAPTER VII—Prudence approached the front door of High Ledges. Prue's eyes followed Jean as the girl stopped short to stare at the man at the top of the steps.

He was of medium height and slimly built. He might be forty-five, though he looked thirty-five. His sleek black hair was gray at the temples; his eyebrows were not much heavier than his clipped dark mustaches, high cheek bones added to the impression of enormous eyes. His lips were full and red. Jean sniffed.

"Wouldn't you know it! Wouldn't you know he'd appear just as I was getting ready to have some fun!" She looked at Prudence through tear-filled eyes. "In case you don't know, that's my father."

Walter Gerard abruptly introduced himself. Prue noted the puffiness under his eyes, the unsteadiness of his hands. She recognized his type. She had one like him in the family. Apparently unaware of her latent hostility, he twined his daughter's arm about her, explaining that he had come to see Rod on business, that when he discovered he had gone he had planned to follow him to the city.

"But now," he looked at Prudence

"I'll Camp Here Until Rod Returns."

and twisted one end of his mustache. "I'll camp here until Rod returns," Armstrong touched Prue's arm. "Jump into the car. You were in a hurry to get home, weren't you?"

Prudence caught Jean's hand. "Your father is coming to stay with me, Mr. Gerard. The visit was planned before we knew you were coming. You won't need her here, will you?"

I shall miss my dear little girl, but I wouldn't deprive her of what I know will be a pleasure. Au revoir. Don't feel badly about leaving me, Jean. I'll drop in to see you daily.

The car shot forward.

At the entrance to the red brick house, Armstrong, lifting a bag from the rumble, said in a low voice:

"If that fellow annoys you by coming here, Prue, give me a ring. I'll see that he doesn't repeat."

"My word, Jim, don't scowl, so. How can you stop his coming to see his dear little girl?"

"Piffle! He's lost his job. I'll bet a hat Rod would lose his mind if he knew Walt was in the neighborhood."

"Then he mustn't know. Curious that he should appear just as Rodney left. I wonder—I wonder—" She looked up at Armstrong's spectacled eyes without seeing them.

"Do you know, Jim, something tells me that Calloway pulled the wire that brought Walter Gerard to High Ledges."

CHAPTER VIII

As the week traveled forward, Prudence's suspicion that Walter Gerard and Calloway were in some underground fashion allied strengthened. Why did she think it, she asked herself, as perched on a step ladder she carefully wielded a brush in her white-gloved hand.

Another splash of yellow on her blue smock. One before had trickled from her suspended brush an hour ago when she had heard a plane flying over the house. For an instant she had thought that her brother and Gerard had returned from New York; then she realized that it could not be they, they wouldn't come without the man from the Rescue mission—supposing that the men had decided to accept the offer of work.

"Miss Prue! Miss Prue!" Jean, in a white apron over her green wool frock, followed her voice into the room. "Mr. Jim is here! Uncle Rod is coming tomorrow!"

"Tomorrow?" Glowed hand clutching the handle of the paint pail, Prudence perched on the top of the steps. "Tomorrow?" She repeated, as Armstrong entered carrying a long, white cylindrical box. "Are they really coming tomorrow, Jim? Look at this room!"

He peered about in his short-sighted way. "It is upset, isn't it? Can't you get it straightened out before they come?"

"Straightened out! The paper isn't on."

"No hurry. You'll know why when you hear Rod's letter. That is, if you want to hear it. It came by plane—with this."

He held out the white box.

"For me?" Prudence looked at it without touching it.

"If your name is Prudence Schuyler, it is, isn't it? Take it. Come off those steps. Don't look at it as if you expected it concealed a bomb."

Prudence set the box on the table, untied strings, and removed wrapping.

"Oh-o-o! How beautiful!"

Prudence clasped her hands in ecstasy as she looked down at the long-stemmed roses in the open box. She lifted two of the lovely blossoms to her face.

"Rod certainly has said it with flowers this time," Armstrong observed, gruffly.

"Said what?" Prudence demanded, and promptly wished she had not asked the question.

"Your innocence is good—but not good enough, Prue. Want to hear this message—I'm in a hurry."

"Of course I want to hear it. Jean, dear, take the roses to Jane Mack and ask her to put them in vases. Come to the shop, Jim."

Armstrong followed Prudence into the room. As she perched on the stool in front of the toilet-litteral bench, he frowned at the open safe.

"Do you leave that unlocked? You need a guardian. It would be easy for someone to pick up those insect jewels and rob you of your own. I don't want to frighten you, but that espermovict is still at large."

"It may ease your mind to learn that you and David and Jean—and one other, I did tell Rodney Gerard—are the only persons who know I have those insect jewels."

"Four! It's four too many. There's bound to be one broadcaster in the bunch. Keep the safe locked. Is Walt Gerard still putting on the devoted father act? He has, as I suspected, lost his job. Why is he hanging round this town? I don't like his eyes. They are furtive."

"He is here on one pretext or another every day. He pretends that I am the lure—I've heard his obvious line before—but I know that I'm not. And it isn't a paternal urge which brings him, I'll wager my best bit of jade."

"Does he annoy you?"

"Don't roar. He annoys me by taking my time which I want to devote to work. I have several Christmas orders besides this necklace I'm making for Jean of these stones—and I haven't touched my tools since David left until this minute. Now, Jim, the letter."

"For an instant there was no sound in the room but the tick of the clock. Armstrong pushed his spectacles up on his forehead as he began to read.

"Dear Jim—

"I have waited before writing for something definite to report. Don't dare wire or phone for fear Calloway will get on to our plan, so am sending this by plane. Schuyler is none the worse for the activities of the last week—we've kept on the move—on the contrary, the interest and excitement quite set him up."

"When Schuyler and I arrived at the mission, he received an ovation which set the radiator rattling. In its fair I've met individual down-and-outers, but never before have seen them en masse. The place smelled to heaven of damp wool and unwashed humans. I confess that for a minute I flinched, but not David Schuyler. He was in their midst, beaming, encouraging, but never, apparently, condemning."

"The men quieted down after a while and David explained our plan. Then he called for volunteers to go back with us and stick—he was emphatic on sticking—until the timber was cut."

"About twenty-five lined up, and their expressions as they looked at David Schuyler tied my throat up in a hard knot. If anyone questions whether his work in the mission has paid, that bunch is the answer."

"Send back word by the pilot—if the accommodations are ready. Make it snappy. Dave and I will come by train with the well—we can hardly call them a crew yet, gang is a better word. We don't dare let them out of our sight. If you write O. K. we'll arrive tomorrow afternoon."

Armstrong looked up. "With your brother staying at High Ledges, no need to rush the papering. Here's a message for you."

"Tell Prue, if you see her, that 'it' is my little joke—that her special boy—friends, Terry—McGowan and Shance O'Shea, are in our personally conducted party. Love to the Kurious Kid."

Yours, Rod."

Armstrong folded the letter. "The plot left an hour ago with my letter telling Rod to come on with the gang. Calloway is too keen not to know of the work going on at High Ledges, he must suspect Rod's plan, but just the same, I wish he might be providentially called out of town an hour or so before that train arrives."

Prudence shook her head. "Perhaps you'll think I have a four-cylinder mind when it comes to experimenting—but I'm afraid Rodney Gerard will be mightily disappointed when he tries to make those men work."

"I'm not. Rod has better say had in a lazy manner, but he has developed into a hard-hitting, daring business man. He's a dynamo when he gets his mind made up."

A picture flashed on the screen of Prue's mind. Rodney Gerard standing in the sunshine before the big barn; she could smell the scent of the hay, see his eyes deepen to indigo, hear his voice, low, controlled, declare:

"I'm not in that class you detest. I'll make you take back what you said about my being of that type. I'll make you! It will be a no-quarter battle. Get me?"

She had been on the verge of taking it back when Milly Gooch had said: "Would Jean and I complicate matters, Jim, if from a discreet distance we watched the arrival of David and his followers?"

"Not if you keep out of sight. I'll drop in this evening to report. Take it easy, Prue. Don't rush to finish that room."

When he had gone, Prudence laid her face against the crimson beauty of the roses and drew a long breath of their fragrance. Lovely things! It wasn't their fault that a man whom she disliked and distrusted had sent them. Jim Armstrong didn't know that "saying it with flowers" was a habit with Rodney Gerard.

"What will you do first, Miss Prue?" Jean's question brought Prue's attention back to the present. With long fingers she began to poke among the colorful tourmalines.

"As there is no need to hurry about getting the living room in order, I'll put in an hour at my bench. Change of work will rest me. Bring me the stones from the safe; will you, Jean?"

"Goody, I love to look at them."

"Miss Prue!" Jane Mack appeared in the doorway. "The market man phoned. He wants eggs and wants them quick. He has a rush order, and he says, can you bring them right down to the village."

Prudence dropped the pincers and picked up the paint pail. "Of course we can, Macky. Come on, Jean, we'll gather the eggs. But the packets of stones in the safe, will you, Macky? Don't lock it. Leave the tourmalines on the bench. I may have time to select the colors when I return."

It was somewhat difficult to make a domestic career and an artistic career jibe, Prudence decided an hour later in her shop, as again she slipped into her smock. She had brought the paper hanger from the village. David might decide to come to the red brick house instead of going to High Ledges, and she had reasoned, and it would be better to have the living room in order.

She picked up the pincers and commenced to experiment with the tourmalines on a penciled design.

"This sketch isn't right. Bring my portfolio from the bookcase, will you, Jean?"

"Trade last!"

"Trade last!" is popularly used as a compromise, particularly to one of the opposite sex. The meaning is: "If you will say something agreeable you have heard about me, I shall say something agreeable to you."

While there is a trading of compliments between the parties, the phrase would indicate a preference for the last one to be spoken.

"All-righty."

Prudence poked and fitted. No combination of stones suited her. She called over her shoulder:

"Can't you find it? It ought to be on the bottom shelf."

"Where did you get this?"

"Get what?" Prudence turned. Jean was staring at the newspaper picture of Rodney Gerard and Milly Gooch.

"This. It's a picture of the same circus rider I found in Uncle Rodney's desk in the gun room at High Ledges. She'd written—I suppose she wrote them—some slushy words on the back. Stopped with just 1 of. Why didn't she finish it?"

A laugh, a hootful laugh, cut into her excited question. Jean stared at her father in the doorway—the clipping fluttered to his feet.

"So you found a picture in your uncle's desk? Prying again, my darling daughter!" He mimicked his wife's tone. "What happened to the photograph with the word love unfinished?"

Jean gulped. Her eyes appealed to Prudence who put her arm about the thin shoulders.

"Answer your father, dear."

"I—I think Mr. Calloway took it."

"Calloway! Can't you talk without gulping? Calloway has it? Jean, there are times when I'm tempted to—"

He took a step toward her. As his daughter crushed her face against Prue's shoulder, he laughed.

"Don't be afraid. For a minute I saw red. I hate that man Calloway like the devil. He doesn't love your Uncle Rodney, and with that picture in his possession he can make trouble for him."

His shifting eyes rested for an instant on the tourmalines shooting rays of color as the sunlight touched them. He whistled, a long low whistle.

"Where did those come from? Did a traveling jeweler drop from the sky?"

Prudence held a stone to the light. "Nice color, isn't it?"

He took the pincers from her hand and held up the stone. "Nice! It's a corker. Interesting work you're doing. Do you use precious stones as well?"

Homing Pigeons Popular
Messengers During War

The use of homing pigeons to carry messages is as old as Solomon, and the ancient Greeks, to whom the art of training the birds came probably from the Persians, conveyed the names of Olympic victors to their various cities by this means, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. Before the electric telegraph this method of communication had a considerable scope among stock brokers and financiers.

The Dutch government established a civil and military pigeon system in Java and Sumatra early in the nineteenth century, the birds being obtained from Bagdad.

During the siege of Paris in 1870-71 pigeons were used extensively as carriers of messages. This led to a revival in the training of pigeons for military purposes. Numerous private societies were established for keeping pigeons of this class in all important European countries, and in these various governments established systems of communication for military purposes by pigeon post.

When the possibility of using the birds between military fortresses had been thoroughly tested attention was turned to their use for naval purposes, to send messages between coast stations and ships at sea. They also were found of great use by news agencies and private individuals.

In order to hinder the efficiency of the systems of foreign countries, difficulties were placed in the way of importation of their birds for training and in a few cases falcons were specially trained to interrupt the service in wartime. The Chinese used to provide their pigeons with whistles and bells to scare away birds of prey.

Homing pigeons were used by Great Britain in 1914, followed shortly by France and Germany. The United States upon entry into the World War adopted practically the same system as that used by Great Britain. Carrier pigeons used during the World War traveled at the rate of approximately 45 miles an hour.

Don't Count
"Big talk," said Uncle Eben, "is like overvalued overalls that give in the way instead of being useful."

board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day. The Useful Swallow

There are seven common species of swallows found in the United States, four of which have abandoned to some extent their primitive nesting habits and have attached themselves to the abodes of man, according to the Bureau of Biological Survey. The barn swallow builds exclusively under roofs, mostly in barns and under bridges, having abandoned entirely its former home; under cliffs and overhanging rocks. The cliff swallow has also abandoned its nesting site in cliffs and taken up its abode under the eaves of barns, while the martin prefers a more modern home provided for it by farmers and furnishes in back yards and around the farmstead. The chief of these birds is the common swallow, which is of insects. Their food is taken exclusively while on the wing, where they skim from the air or from the tops of tall grass and weeds such flying insects as flies, beetles, flying ants, gnats and many other insects.

Origin of Shintoism

The origin of Shintoism, the oldest and the basic religion of Japan, is unknown. Its traditions and legends are said to show a Chinese influence. Shintoism rose in prehistoric times and existed until after the beginning of our era without a name, dogmas or writings. There was room in this primitive religion for the worship of whatever aroused the admiration or awe. About the Sixth century A. D. it entered a new period, with definite forms and organization. Then, upon the introduction of Buddhism into Japan it combined with and was to a large extent superseded by that religion. But shintoism has undergone a very successful revival in comparatively recent times with the development of Japanese patriotism and national pride.

American Colonization Society

The constitution and rules for the government of the American Colonization society, the organization which negotiated for the purchase of the strip of land in Africa, now known as Liberia, were prepared by Francis Shott Key, Bushrod Washington, E. B. Caldwell, James Breckenridge, Walter Jones, Richard Rush and W. G. D. Worthington. The constitution and rules were adopted at a meeting held in the hall of the house of representatives on December 28, 1810. The society was not definitely organized, however, until January 1, 1817, when it met at Davis' hotel in Washington.

Lions Transmit WarningBy Long Distance Method

Wild animals of many kinds are undoubtedly able to transmit warnings to others of the same species at a distance. A big game hunter, says a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine, during his long wanderings in the wilds with a cinema camera, noticed this fact over and over again. Even lions, he explained, are susceptible to the "danger" message, and where a few years ago they were plentiful they are now rarely seen, simply because the hunter has raked that part of the country with his motor-car rifles, and an army of "boys."

On the other hand, whenever a sanctuary is made, animals and birds journey to it from great distances. In some mysterious way they get the news that a certain spot means safety, and there they will gather and breed and rapidly become almost tame.

If conditions in any particular place become suitable for any special bird, animal, or insect, in some inexplicable way that creature appears there.

A form of wireless occurs also among insects. There is a variety of moth which frequents only a certain kind of tree. A naturalist took one of the females of this species and placed her in a cage three miles from the nearest wood in which others of her kind were to be found. The next night two moths of the species were discovered, clinging to the outside of the cage, but how they had become aware of the presence of their mate is a problem which defies any ordinary explanation.

Every Motorist Should Know Needs of His Car

If you would reduce automobile accidents, give heed to the four commonest causes of mechanical failure. These four causes are listed as follows by Wilson S. Isherwood, prominent automotive official and a leader in safety campaigns:

1. Bad brakes.

2. Worn tires.

3. Worn steering gear.

4. Poor acceleration.

Every motorist should know when brakes are not properly functioning and when tires have reached the danger point, Mr. Isherwood declared.

But there are many who are unaware of the necessity for steering gear inspection, and for tuning up the motor, for better acceleration. A motor that is well tuned up, he stated, seldom stalls on a railroad crossing or goes "haywire" in traffic.

In tuning up the motor, Mr. Isherwood points out the necessity for a complete tune-up, which can be performed in about 30 minutes. This consists of the following operation:

1. Clean and adjust spark plugs, replacing any worn plug.

2. Inspect ignition cables and battery.

3. Clean breaker points.

4. Adjust timing.

5. Adjust valve clearance.

6. Adjust carburetor.

Fat Men and Giants

The United States has its fair share of fat men and giants. Miles Darden was both, says a writer in the Kansas City Times. He was 7 feet 6 inches, and weighed a little better than a half ton. He was born in 1798, and lived until 1857, was married, a father, worked all his life, and was a pretty normal individual in spite of his size. Silly statistics and information are always in order when discussing giants or fat men—it took thirteen and a half yards of material to make a coat for Darden.

Where Spanish Is Spoken

Countries in which Spanish is the principal language spoken include Spain and the few remaining Spanish colonies, including the Canary Islands, the Philippines and some other African odds and ends; the Philippines, where Spanish ranks with English as an official language; Porto Rico, Santo Domingo, Cuba, and some lesser West Indian islands; Mexico, and all of Central and South America, except Brazil, the Guianas and British Honduras.

"One Cannon Ball Battle"

A "one cannon ball battle" occurred at Sackett's Harbor on Lake Ontario during the War of 1812, says Glen E. Sears, Chicago, in Collier's Weekly. A British ship came up and fired at the American fort. But the cannon ball fell short and landed harmlessly at the feet of an American, who promptly placed it in his cannon and fired it back, raking the ship from stem to stern, killing 14 men, wounding 15 others and ending the battle.

Ban on Competition

During the Middle Ages, Belgium had very strict laws to prevent what it considered to be unfair competition, writes Isaac Horshkowitz, in Collier's Weekly. In at least one town, craftsmen and vendors of goods were not only forbidden to advertise but they were not even allowed to stand in their doorways for fear they might blow their noses or sneeze in order to attract the attention of passers-by.

Naturalization in Canada

British subjects domiciled in Canada do not need to take out naturalization papers. Under the provisions of the franchise law they may vote after the expiration of one year. Under the terms of the Immigration Act a British subject or an alien must live in Canada five years before becoming a citizen.

Idiosyncrasy Is Found to Affect Many Adults

Idiosyncrasy among human beings is not merely an occasional phenomenon. Statistically, 90 per cent of all adults are susceptible to reaction of more or less moment when brought into contact with some reagent, according to Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

While the mechanism of idiosyncrasy is not understood, it is quite definite that two types exist. The first type is to be looked on as a disease in which the inherited physical make-up of the individual is such that he may readily acquire a peculiar sensitivity toward certain substances, generally those of a protein nature. This type gives rise to such familiar symptoms as hay fever and asthma.

The victim of the second type of idiosyncrasy displays a profound sensitivity when brought into contact with certain drugs and other chemical reagents not necessarily of the protein nature. Fortunately the manifestations are often confined to the skin and give rise to a rash or to an eczema as, for example, in the case of poison ivy.

While the tendency toward the conditions manifested in the first type of idiosyncrasy is inheritable, the second type has nothing to do with inheritance.

Shellfish, printer's ink, furs, feathers, flowers, tobacco smoke, "horn" rimmed glasses, perfumes and telephone earpieces are all capable of creating idiosyncrasy in certain persons, according to examples given.

Gems Believed to Have Sex For many centuries various gems were believed to have sex and the ability to produce offspring. Between 400 B. C. and 1000, there were numerous serious accounts of germinating diamonds. As late as 1913, the pearl fishers of Borneo saved every ninth pearl in the naive conviction that it had some magical power to breed others of its kind. Collier's Weekly.
