Legion To Entertain Friday For Kiddies

A good time is promised for all kiddies of the community who attend the American Legion Christmas party at the public school auditorium Friday evening. At 6:45 the Hart Sweetheart Orchestra will render several selections, followed at 7:00 o'clock by a program of songs, special dances and musical numbers. The following local artists will take part in the program: Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Nie-haus, Henry Werner and Wilma
Burg. Radio artists from WIBM,
Jackson, will also be present to entertain the group. They are: Wm.
Dunn, piano, songs and comedy;
Chuck Leone, Jackson's favorite hillbilly boy; Worth Weed, piano accordian.

More than four hundred kiddies attended the Legion party last year, and preparations are being made to accommodate a larger crowd this year. Plenty of snow fell on Wednesday which makes it more certain that Santa Claus, with his reindeer and hundreds of well-filled stockings, will be present to greet the kiddies.

A MESSAGE from the WASHTENAW COUNTY TUBER- CULOSIS ASSOCIATION

To the average individual in good health it is hard to sell the idea that his good health is worth preserving. But this is what the Washtenaw County Tuberculosis Association
is trying to do.

Great gains have been made against tuberculosis, but it
still ranks among the most deadly of
"children's diseases" and it kills more boys and girls every year than any three diseases.

Washtenaw county had 12 deaths from tuberculosis and 32 new reported cases under supervision in 1933.
The Washtenaw County Tuberculosis Association is supported solely by the sale of Christmas Seals.

The money is used for case finding,
arranging for sanatorium care, home
instruction, educational purposes.

The Kiwanis Club of Chelsea has for the past four years sponsored the Christmas Seal sale in Chelsea and are doing so again this year.

STORES OPEN
For the convenience of Christmas shoppers, Chelsea stores will be open evenings until Christmas.

On Christmas

We wish to take this means and this space, though small,
to thank you in a BIG way for all of the patronage in the past and sincerely trust that we will be favored with your 1935 business. Deeper than drifted snows and warmer than the glow of the Yulelog is the remembrance that prompts this Christmas wish of yours!

ENTERTAINS TACHEZ
The Tachez club held their annual Christmas dinner and party at the home of Mrs. J. Vincent Burg on Monday evening. Dinner was served at 6:30. The room was trimmed with garlands of red and green which formed an arch over the long dining table where covers were laid for 19 guests. A Christmas tree of glittering silver centered the table, while red tapers in green, crystal holders and miniature Christmas trees formed a line down the center of the table. Little red cellophane bags of sweets marked the place of each guest. Later in the evening carols were sung and games were played, including 500. High scores in 500

OUR SANTA CLAUS

THE American Santa Claus is a corruption of the Dutch Santa Nicolaas. H. H. Mettighues says: "Santa Claus, the name derived from St. Nicholas through the familiar use of children in Teutonic countries, crossed to America. The direct route followed by him is some what open to question. On the way he traded his gray horse for a reindeer and made changes in his appearance."

Making Sugar Toys

Sugar toys may be made according to the following directions: 4 pounds of sugar, 2 ounces of corn syrup, 1 pint of water. Boil to 240-242 degrees, then stir until cloudy and pour in plaster of paris moulds that have been drained after soaking in cold water for two or three hours.

Christmas Air

Every big London market has its own special characteristics. One of the most characteristic of all is Leadenhall market, because of its position and the essentially friendly and family air about it. During the Christmas season the air is positively festive.

The Need of Santa Claus

"If there were no God it would be necessary to invent him," said a well-known writer. There is no Santa Claus in our grown-up world, but we have found we needed him as one of the most beloved characters in the world of childhood which is peopled with legends of the child's own making. The enchanting belief in Santa and his reindeer, his paunch and his pack filled with toys will never hurt a child. The cynical grown-ups, who have too completely lost their belief in him and his kind, need your help.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

The week before Christmas,
Coming home from the store,
Met a bunch of young fellows
In happy galore;
No thought of discourtesy entered
their mind—
Just bunching down street
To have a good time,
They gave us the sidewalk—
'Twas more than we asked,
And smiling, we said:
"Merry Christmas"—and passed.
"Halloo, Daddy—say—
We wish you good cheer—
Old-Time Merry Christmas—
A Happy New Year."
They hiked it down street
And were soon out of sight,
While this old heart of mine
Felt a twinge of delight.

Though years may bespeak,
Or betaken of care,
Lines of age deeply furrow,
Though snow white our hair,
We'll keep every heartstring
Attuned to Good Cheer—
A right Merry Christmas,
And a Happy New Year.

"O, Little Town of Bethlehem..."

SO BEGINS one of our best-loved songs in honor of that small community which gave to the world two thousand years ago something that has been cherished down the ages as infinitely precious.

And now at this season of the year when our thoughts turn to the events which have made that little town of Bethlehem forever famous, let us, who also live in a small community, think also of the blessings that come to us because of that fact.

Let us think of the neighborliness, the friendly interest in each other's welfare, the sharing in each other's joys and sorrows, the close kinship in ideals and aspirations which are characteristic of such a community as ours.

Let us increase that neighborliness, that spirit of helpfulness, that unity of purpose in making our community a better place in which to live. Let us renew our faith in our own "little town" and be proud of it and its people—our neighbors and our friends.

It is in this spirit that your Home Town-Paper, a community institution devoted to the best interests of our community, reminds you of that other "little town" and with it sends you its best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a greater measure of happiness in our community than it has ever known before.

New Trailer Law Effective January 1

The department of state will be unable to register and issue license plates after January 1 for trailers weighing more than 3,000 pounds unless the trailers are equipped with brakes in conformity with the law adopted by the legislature in 1933.

The law also prohibits the use of trailers of 3,000 pounds on the highways after that date unless they are equipped with brakes that can be operated by the truck driver.

Reports reaching the department of state are to the effect that many owners of trailers are not familiar with the provisions of this law. Section 6-a of Act 253 of Public Acts of 1933 reads as follows:

"It shall be unlawful to operate any train or combination of motor vehicles upon the public highways of this state, on or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred thirty-five, unless the power generating unit of such train or combination of vehicles be equipped with brakes as required by law, and unless each and every other vehicle in said train or combination of vehicles, the gross weight of which shall exceed three thousand pounds, be equipped with air, vacuum, hydraulically operated brakes, or some equally effective device, for controlling the speed of such vehicle and adequate to control the movement of and to stop and hold such vehicle, which brakes may be applied by the chauffeur or driver of such train or combination of vehicles to each vehicle concurrently, and which brakes shall at all times be kept in effective condition of repair and ready for use at the discretion of such chauffeur or driver."

Age of Earth Disputed
Despite the fact that there are forty different methods of estimating the age of the earth, scientists still know little about it. They now mention 1,852 million years. Yet there is much evidence that its actual age exceeds this figure by hundreds of millions of years. —Collier's Weekly.

HOLLY—On account of lack of patronage, not reaching the requirement of $100 per day, the state liquor store at Holly has been closed, and the stock is being moved to Flint this week. —Herald.

Nantucket's Fame
The island of Nantucket, 28 miles south of Cape Cod, Mass., was for more than a century a principal seat of the whaling industry.

Aunt Chloe's Inherited "Merry Christmas Gift"

OLD AUNT CHLOE was a ducky almost as wide as she was high. She had a smile that would melt a quart of ice cream. She wore a red bandanna handkerchief tied about her head, with two corners sticking up like rabbit's ears. Her aprons were big enough for the maids of a square rigger. She radiated such a warmth of hospitality in her clean little, clean little shack that many visitors called there for the pleasure of basking in the glow of it. Aunt Chloe was very poor and unconquerably cheerful. She also had imagination.

Tacked to her walls were two colored prints: one was of a garden in full summer bloom. The other depicted a Christmas scene—a sleighload of people going off on a glorious ride.

Christmas morning some of her neighbors dropped in to complain a little about hard times. They found the old woman gazing intently at the summer picture. She turned her head to welcome the visitors. "When it all in a little cold," she explained, "When it all don't have much Christmas, I got one all-don't never talk about it in all but and steady in the summer, and tinned, too, I looks at de summer picture, and right away Ah'm cool. And now in de chillsome time, Ah keeps a looking at de summer one. I kin open feet de sunshine on mah back. Dem things is so... when it day ain't so just de minute, it's a gift from de Lord—chillings—a gift from de Lord. And it keeps me fannin' along," her wide smile lit up the room. "Like nobody's business!" —Martha Manning Thomas.

Christmas Luck; Omens

Used in Days Long Ago

DO YOU know that a full moon at Christmas day is supposed to be unlucky, the saying going:

"Light Christmas, light whenshest; dark Christmas, heavy whenshest; and that a windy Christmas and a calm Christmas were held as omens of a good year. Rain during the twelve days after Christmas was said to foretell a wet year to follow. When decorating the house with Christmas holly, be careful not to burn any leaves or berries that fall, but put them carefully away until Twelfth Night, when they should be burnt with the rest of the decorations. Then luck and happiness will follow, but if so much as a holly leaf is burned beforehand, you are courting disaster, say the old-fashioned country folk who get store on Christmas omens. Look to your fire on Christmas day, for if it burns brightly it is a sign of prosperity; if, however, when the fire is first lighted it smoulders and refuses to "draw," set backs may be looked for during the year to come.

Wear something new on Christmas day if possible, "for luck," and be very careful to put on no garment with a hole or tear in it, otherwise you will lose money. Also, remember that the first words spoken in the day should be cheerful; to speak a word of grumbling is to court bad luck. —Montreal Herald.

WATERLOO

Gladys Runciman spent Sunday at the home of her parents.

Rev. Uhrig and Walter Vicary spent a day at Lansing, where Rev. Uhrig visited among friends, having lost four in the Kerns Hotel fire. They were two senators and a minister and his wife.

The Christmas program at the church is well under way. The cantata-pageant, "Christmas Through the Ages," will be presented, along with other numbers by the smaller children. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. The regular Sunday preaching service has been changed to 10 o'clock and Sunday school at 11. You are also welcome to all these services.

Leona Moeckel spent the week-end with her parents.

Arthur Walz and family were Jackson visitors on Monday.

Chas. Strauss attended the funeral of his brother-in-law, Richard Osler, in Detroit last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schulz visited the latter's sister, Mrs. Geo. Worden, at the hospital in Stockbridge on Sunday.

HOLD CARD PARTY

The monthly card party was held at the Jerusalem school Friday evening for the patrons of the district. There were about 65 in attendance. Ten tables of pedro were in play, high honors being awarded Marian Schiller and Clarence Koenigster. Low score went to Irene Bollinger and Earl Koch. A lunch was served. The committee in charge was Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grieb and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Koch and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trinkle. The Christmas program will be held at the school Friday evening, Dec. 21 at 8 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

We are proud to place at the head of our assets the mutual confidence and good-will that has marked our association with each other, and can only express the hope that the New Year will further cement this relationship and bring us into even closer contact with each other.

Be Brave! Be Bold!

by Lawrence Hawthorne

Be not content with meager vistas;
Life is a scene of broad expanses!
Let not the scope of your endeavor
Be circumscribed by circumstances!
Look up! Climb high! Enlarge your view;
The far horizons call to you!

Whatever dreams your soul is dreaming,
Whatever hopes your heart may cherish,
Give them the chance to find fulfillment
Before they grow inert and perish!
Be brave! Be bold! Make dreams come true;
The far horizons call to you!

The only bounds to your achievement
Are fashioned by your own submission;
Your destiny is in your keeping;
Your will determines your condition.
Revive! Revolt! Demand your due!
The far horizons call to you!

FEEDING AND IDENTIFYING BIRDS

A Contest for Rural School Children Sponsored by Michigan Audubon Society, Kent Scientific Museum, Grand Rapids

The girl who will, around her own home and farm buildings, feed and identify the greatest variety of birds, besides the English sparrow and the crow, will receive one set of fifty "Winter Birds of Eastern North America," (bird portraits, postcard size, in color, with descriptions of birds on back of card) and two booklets on birds. Each list submitted must contain the pupil's name and complete address, school, and county school commissioner's name. Besides each bird's name, the pupil must list three identification characteristics (plumage colors, notes or song, what food the bird ate, or if not seen at the feeding station, just where it was seen) and state whether or not the bird was a common visitor and if not, how often it came.

To the boy who will, in fields or woods or both, one half a mile or more from home and farm buildings (except in parts of the Upper Peninsula if the snow is too deep, one quarter mile away) feed regularly and identify the greatest variety of birds excluding the crow and English sparrow, will be given a similar prize.

Second prizes: In each zone, to each girl and boy having the second largest list of birds fed and identified under the above conditions will be given two booklets on birds, except that no two prizes will be given in the same school.

Conditions: The feeding must be done during the period between January 1 and February 28. Each teacher to report to her school commissioner not later than March 9, the boy and girl who have the largest lists of birds fed and identified from the district.

One of Hottest Stars

Rigel is about 17,000,000 miles in diameter, the American Nature association. It is equal in brightness to the combined light of 13,000 stars as bright as our sun. It is one of the hottest stars with a temperature of about 20,000 degrees Fahrenheit as compared with a temperature of 6,000 degrees for the low temperature star, Betelgeuse.

Make Their Own Scars

Anything in the nature of a scar is viewed as a distinct blemish in Europe, but African girls make a parade of these scars as tokens of love. To obtain the desired effect, they smear their faces with sharp shells and rub black paint into the wounds. When these self-inflicted injuries heal, they leave a beautifully raised mark. —Pittsburgh Courier.

Santa All the Year Is Found to Be Good Idea

SANTA CLAUS comes in July as well as December to those who need him in Columbia, Mo. Last Christmas a dollar given anonymously by "a group of children" was used by the Welfare Society to start a fund for year-round needs. Many of the poor people with too many baskets of goodies one day out of 303.

These are some of the things the fund has paid for: glasses to replace those broken by a boy whose mother wishes to keep him in school; means of getting a crippled girl to and from school; shoes for the old horse used by the society when there is nothing to be done; the cure a grandfather needed to help him get about; taxes of a trachoma patient and a tubercular child who were sent to hospitals; soup and a razor for a young man who wanted to clean up so he could try for a job.

Regular donations to the society may be spent only for food, fuel, clothing and shelter; these all-the-year gifts through badly needed, would have been impossible but for the dollar given by children. To use any way you want that gave welfare workers the idea of the Santa Claus fund. —Frances Griffin.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—What states have passed laws against Child Labor in factories, mines, etc.? At what age is it lawful to start at working for wages?

Ans.—All states in the Union now have a Child Labor Law, either in a modified form or in a stringent form. In most states the age is 16 years before they are permitted to work for wages. In some states the age is as low as 12. And some will grant permission for them to work under extenuating circumstances, such as self-supporting or supporting infirm relatives, etc. The federal NRA law, however, controls the situation for the time being at least, and has eliminated the unpleasant features of child labor.

Ques.—I would like to ask you if perpetual motion is a possibility, even if not a probability?

Ans.—Perpetual motion is an absolute impossibility, because of the fact that energy cannot be created.

Ques.—What is the difference between a lobstick and a lopstick? Also what does the word mean?

Ans.—There is no difference except in the spelling. "Lobstick" is the way it is spelled in Canada and England, and the word is spelled "lopstick" in the United States. The word is a noun and means a tree having the lower branches trimmed out so that it may serve as a landmark, memorial, or the like.

Ques.—Is there any Book of the Bible that does not mention the name of God? If so, which Book?

Ans.—Yes. The Book of Esther does not mention the name of God.

Ques.—What are the three largest countries in the western hemisphere in point of population? How does Canada stand?

Ans.—The three largest countries in this hemisphere in point of population are as follows: United States, 124,070,000; Brazil, 40,272,650; Mexico, 16,164,043. Argentina is the fourth, with 11,660,000 and Canada is fifth, with 10,374,196.

Ques.—Last Sunday our minister said in his sermon that the automobile is a menace to religion, and only taught people profane language. Don't you think that was a little bit absurd?

Ans.—Probably, but maybe the poor fellow owns a second-hand car.

Ques.—What is the population of the City of Hong Kong, China?

Ans.—Hongkong, China is not a city. It is an island in the China Sea, about 100 miles south of Canton. The island is about six miles wide by about fifteen miles long, and its total population is approximately 5,000,000.

Ques.—Why were a certain group of islands called "West Indies" while another group were called "East Indies"?

Ans.—When Christopher Columbus, sponsored by Spain, sailed westward he landed on an island which he thought was a part of the Indies. They were called the West Indies to distinguish them from the East Indies of Europe. What Columbus discovered was part of America, but he did not know it.

Ques.—When was the Great Wall of China built, and what was it built for?

Ans.—The Great Wall of China was built in the fourth century B. C. by the Chinese of the southern part of the empire as a protection from invasion by their enemies, the Tartars, who abounded in the northern part of the Chinese empire.

Ques.—How does an automatic pistol work?

Ans.—The automatic pistol is one in which every shot, except the first, is used to eject the empty shell and bring a fresh cartridge into firing position. The cartridges are carried in the handle, and they are forced upward to firing position by a coil spring. With each pull of the trigger the hammer goes back simultaneously with the spring forcing up the cartridge.

Ques.—Is it true that a person will get warts from handling toads?

Ans.—No; but there is more or less danger that your skin will be poisoned by handling toads.

Ques.—The rain clouds are cold and wet, also contain more or less electricity—what sets fire to the electricity so as to cause lightning?

Ans.—Lightning is emitted by a discharge of electricity when passing from one cloud to another, or from a cloud to the earth. This atmospheric electricity is essentially the same as that produced artificially. It is caused by friction due to dry air coming in contact with moist air. There is always more or less electricity in the air, and during a clear sky it is known as "positive", but takes on the "negative" form in cloudy weather. When the two come in contact with each other the terrific impact creates what we call "lightning".

Christmas is a bright, cheery holiday, but you can make it even brighter by illuminating. A gayly lighted Christmas tree by the door, and softly lighted wreaths in the window lend an air of welcome and geniality to your home. They seem to say, "There's a Merry Christmas within, stranger, won't you come in and help celebrate?"

New Scout Executive
Selected for District

Walter MacPeck, assistant executive of the Washington, D. C. Boy Scout Council, was selected last week as Scout executive of Washtenaw-Livingston Boy Scout Council. He will begin his work in this area on January 1, 1935, succeeding Wallace F. Watt, who is resigning to travel for a year in Northern Africa, Europe and the Near East.

Mr. MacPeck is a graduate of the University of Chicago, and has also continued in graduate study. He was graduated from the National Training School for Scout Executives in 1926, and has been employed in Scouting continuously since 1925. He has served as assistant field executive for the Chicago Council, as Scout executive for the Northshore Area Council, and educational director in the Milwaukee, Wisconsin and Washington, D. C. Boy Scout Councils. He has been active in the work of the Community Chest in Washington, and for the past several years has been a member of the campaign committee.

Mr. MacPeck is especially noted in Scout circles for the number and quality of the articles which he has written for national publications, such as "Boys' Life", "The Scout Executive", and "Scouting" magazines. He is the author of the book "Glimpses Into Boyland", and is instructor in Scoutmaster training at the Wilson Teachers' College in Washington, D. C.

"I am delighted at the choice of Mr. MacPeck as my successor," stated Mr. Watt. "Of all the executives in the country, he would be my choice. I were in the position of naming a leader most eminently fitted to carry the work of the Scout movement to greater heights in Washtenaw and Livingston counties. I am sure that every parent, scout leader and boy in the Council area will soon come to appreciate their good fortune in obtaining a leader of Mr. MacPeck's calibre."

STATE COOPERATES WITH NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

Michigan ranks high in the list of states of the union in the volume of response to the National Housing Act, according to Raymond M. Foley, State Federal Housing Administration Director for Michigan. The latest official reports show Michigan to be in eighth place in number of loans made by the banks under the National Housing Act and also in dollar volume.

"The most interesting point," says Mr. Foley "is the rapid rate of increase being shown in the state. While active work has been going on for about three months, the work of the first month had to be devoted to preliminary preparation. Only about 4 percent of our total loans were made in the first month. In the second month 28 percent were made. In the third month about 68 percent were made. This rapid increase shows the degree of interest being aroused in Michigan.

"The opportunity to purchase home modernization on a plan which is, in effect, installment buying at the lowest interest rate known for this sort of borrowing, is taking strong hold in the state, but we have added to this the effect of the campaign of organization and publicity in producing many cash sales and much business financed in other ways. We estimate between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 have been spent thus far on modernization of buildings in Michigan as the result of our campaign."

Glacier Park's Peaks

Glacier National Park's lofty peaks were formed by the same eruption which made the Rocky mountains and the Continental divide. The earth, cracking, thrust the western edge up over the eastern. Erosion has exposed the oldest rock formation on the continent in greens, reds, and grays, 60,000,000 years old. More than 60 glaciers feed the many lakes, and, in one, toberus float all summer.

Many Are Driving Without Licenses

Approximately 260,000 Michigan motorists are operating automobiles without drivers' licenses, according to records of the department of state.

Under the present motor vehicle operators' license law, which was adopted by the 1931 legislature, 750,000 motorists obtained new licenses by Dec. 1, 1931. These licenses must be renewed every three years but thus far in 1934 only 490,000 drivers have applied for new permits.

While operating a motor vehicle without a proper license has been a misdemeanor in Michigan for years, the financial responsibility act, adopted by the 1933 legislature, makes a motorist without a license liable to the provisions of that act.

The present operators' law is intended to bar those unfit to operate automobiles from the highways. Secretary of State Clarke W. Brown asserted, "It protects every user of the highways. I suggest that every automobile driver look at the expiration date of his present license and if it has expired or will do so in a short time, he should apply for a new one."

In order to provide prompt issuance of licenses, the department is now working 24 hours a day.

OUR NEIGHBORS

DEXTER—Sometime in late August Martin V. Guntzwiller, Ten-Mile and Taft road, caught a young hawk at his home. He let the bird loose after fastening his name to its leg. Just the other day, he received word from Cypress, Tenn., saying that a young hawk had been taken with a leg band bearing his name and address.—Leader.

NORTHVILLE—Some 450 students were given an enforced holiday Tuesday forenoon at 11 o'clock when a fire broke out in the Northville high school building that had more smoke to it than actual flames. Due to the necessity for repair work, school was dismissed at that time until Thursday morning. The blaze appeared in the rear of the junior high assembly room which is directly over the furnace. Prompt efforts of the fire department confined it to a small portion of the floor. Credit must be given to Supt. R. H. Amderman and the teachers for the splendid system in which the students evacuated the building. It was like any other fire drill, all students were outside the building in the space of a minute.—Record.

MANCHESTER—The ice on the upper pond in the village was considered thick enough to permit using it for skating on Sunday afternoon by the boys and girls and a large area was swept clean and the fun enjoyed by a joyous crowd. The bridge was lined by a group of young people watching the sports.—Enterprise.

MILAN—Mrs. Lester M. Gillis arrived in Milan late last week and will be a permanent visitor at the Milan Federal Prison for a year and a day. She is another of the noted women in the gangster warfare that is rapidly being broken up by the Federal Agents. The original information released by the Federal Courts indicated that she would serve her sentence in Alderson, W. Va., but the place of her enforced vacation was changed on order of Sanford E. Bates, Director of Prisons. Mrs. Gillis is the widow of George "Baby Face" Nelson, who was shot to death in Chicago a few weeks ago in the battle with Federal Agents in which three lost their lives.—Leader.

DEXTER—Rev. John C. Sullivan, pastor of St. Joseph's church in the village of Dexter during the last six years, will leave Friday to assume the pastorate of St. Catherine's church, Algonac, and St. Mark's church, St. Clair. He has been assigned to these two important charges by the Most Rev. M. J. Gallagher, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Detroit, in recognition of his effective work in his church here. The new pastor of St. Joseph's church, who will take charge tomorrow, Friday, is Rev. Charles T. Walsh, assistant pastor of St. Stephen's church in Port Huron. Fr. Walsh comes to his new parish with a brilliant record of achievement.—Leader.

GRASS LAKE—Thieves ransacked the office of Supt. Jacobs at the high school sometime Sunday night and broke the combination off the safe but did not gain admission. Tools used were taken from the janitor's room. Entrance was made through a window in the girl's locker room.—News.

HOWELL—The drilling at the oil well on the McPherson village farm west of Howell on Grand River continues with nothing sensational or beyond the expected formation. At 2250 feet, however, a vein of salt (crystallized salt) was struck that is said to be a couple of hundred feet deep. Localities, garage, oil station owners, and others have hauled in barrels of the salt for use during the winter to keep the ice and snow off driveways, etc.—Republican Press.

Let Boys Run Farm Next Farmers Week

Michigan farmers and their wives should plan to turn the farm over to the young folks or the hired hands from Jan. 28 to Feb. 3 when members of the Michigan State College staff will be hosts at Farmers Week.

The Farmers Week program, as usual, is crowded with all manner of instructive and entertainment features. Homemakers will have their own meetings, starting Monday, Jan. 28, with a special program for wives of dairy farmers. The banquet for women will be held Tuesday evening.

Special meetings for the 30 different phases of farm business will be held forenoon. General meetings are scheduled in the afternoons and evenings and all special meetings will be adjourned to permit attendance. Feature programs will be given on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The grain and potato shows will be held as usual. A turkey show and a show for fancy fowls will attract poultrymen. All four classes of livestock will be exhibited by Michigan farmers who are cooperating with the College in the improvement of livestock.

Sharpshooters can compete in the rifle shooting contest in which guns and ammunition are furnished. Rural dramatists are invited to enter their casts in the rural drama contest. The Grange chorus contest will provide competition for the musicians.

WITH THE

ELECTRIC HAND

"SURPRISE FEATURE" OF 1935

Would you like a "pre-view" of 1935 automobile styles, 1935 features and advantages? Then come and see the new Hudsons and Terraplanes. They're here today. A brand new Hudson Six. A greater Hudson Eight. The brilliant new Terraplane.

And the ELECTRIC HAND—great "surprise feature" of 1935, is here, too. It's available on any 1935 Hudson or Terraplane, and nowhere else. A magnificently easier and safer way to drive a car.

WITH 1935 STYLE • The vogue set by Hudson-built cars last year—now moved another year ahead. Longer, lower bodies. Narrower radiators, smarter louvers, lamps and trim. Two wide-vision rear windows.

WITH THE FIRST ROOFS OF STEEL • For the first time in any cars, these 1935 Hudsons and Terraplanes are ALL of steel—sides, floor, front, back and now even the roof. Full protection—even greater ruggedness.

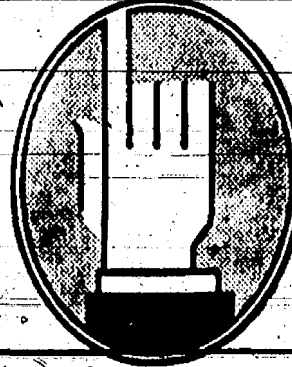

WITH BIG BENDIX ROTARY-EQUALIZED BRAKES • This year, Hudson brings you a new way of stopping—more quickly, more smoothly, more SAFELY, in a short, straight line.

WITH REAL 6-PASSENGER ROOMINESS • Hudsons and Terraplanes were big cars last year, but, for 1935, they're bigger still. Bigger outside. Bigger inside. Front and rear seats wider—real comfort for three.

WITH 1935 PERFORMANCE, ECONOMY, RUGGEDNESS • Record-breaking performance made greater! An even larger reserve of power, with increased gasoline economy and doubled oil mileage. Balanced bigness, with longer, gentler springs and improved oil-cushioned shock absorbers.

Debate Team Victors

The second League debate was on Wednesday evening, Dec. 12 at Dana-ville. Our affirmative team, composed of Helen Baxter, Jean Blocker and Richard Sowers, won, the decision being two to one. Our first League debate was won by an unanimous decision, giving us four points. Our second debate gave us three points, making a total of seven points. After Christmas vacation we have a third debate here at Chelsea. At that time Chelsea will uphold the negative side of the question.

Chelsea Defeats Dundee

Chelsea High fans saw one of the most thrilling games ever played at the local gym last Friday night. The Dundee team showed a fine offensive and clean throughout and the boys put on a fine show. Chelsea outplayed their opponents during the first half and led 13 to 10. At the half, Chelsea flashed a brilliant offensive that carried them to their lead at the end of this session.

The second half proved to be Dundee's main scoring session and they made the best of Chelsea's slow start and piled up a small lead going into the closing minutes. N. Panarites dropped a foul shot that knotted the count at 22 all as the whistle sounded.

The crowd was in a wild frenzy throughout the first overtime period which proved scoreless. The most interesting feature of this session came about due to the misunderstanding of the referee as to when time was up. A foul had been called on a Chelsea player and the dispute arose as to whether or not time had expired before the foul was called. It was finally agreed that Grabsby of Dundee should take two foul shots. The Dundee boy missed both of these shots and so forced the game into a second overtime period.

By this time the crowd was on its feet yelling continuously as the teams flashed up and down the floor. Dundee missed several scoring opportunities and with ten seconds remaining "Nick" Panarites sunk a basket and the final score was 24 to 22 in favor of those fighting Chelsea lads.

Tea Dance

At the close of school on Thursday, December the 20th a tea dance is to be given by the members of the Journalism club in the kindergarten room.

Entertainment and refreshments have been planned by special committees.

Invitations have been extended to all the faculty and we hope to see them present. Each Journalism member has also been asked to bring a friend and we sincerely hope all those present will have a good time.

Meet Clinton Tonight

Chelsea High will engage Clinton in three games tonight on the local court. This will be the first game for the girls and they promise to put on an interesting game. The boys' regulars and reserves will also play. This is the high school's last game until after Christmas vacation. The fine game the team put on last Friday night with Dundee shows that our kids are deserving of the best kind of support. So turn out and cheer our boys into victory!

SOPHOMORES ENTERTAINED

The Sophomores of Chelsea High school were entertained by a party. The party was given by and was held at Harold Harrison's home on Monday, Dec. 7. The boys and girls went up to a big hill to do their talking and a beautiful cold north wind drove them from the hill. The guests returned to the house for refreshments and to get warm.

Miss Hazard, Miss Fowles, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Wankiewicz were the teachers present among the guests.

A few games were played and goodnight to each other and went home.

What has America contributed to the festival of Christmas? Unlike Thanksgiving, which is a typically New-World holiday, Christmas has been adopted from the Old World, together with Easter and New Year. But Christmas as we know it is not the old world Christmas. It has been augmented and enriched by America and its traditions. As in reading we give our background, our store of past experiences and receive in return the pleasure of accompanying the author into strange scenes and situations, so the New World has given to Christmas its spirit, its background of four hundred and forty-four years, and received in return our Christmas. Every year we add something to Christmas by our own contribution.

Elementary News

Kindergarten
After having an attendance of ten or twelve we are glad to have our classmates return who have had the chicken pox. Our room is decorated for Christmas with drawings on the board and pictures on the wall. The flower box has red Christmas bells on it. The boy shop in our room is open for business. We are buying and selling with our play money.

First Grade
There is a new Christmas tree in our room that has real lights on it. Oh, what fun it is! We drew names and are to buy a ten cent present for our name. One reading group has started on their fourth book.

Second Grade
Another celebration in Second Grade! Melva Myers was seven years old on Friday. She shared her birthday cake with us and we lighted our candles in her honor. It was lots of fun.

We are reading a new set of books. All about Wolf, a teddy bear, and Sally and Joe. And we can read them by ourselves.

Everyone back to school now but Donna. Her seat looks pretty empty. We have a fireplace in our room. Reading is more fun when you can see where the fire glows. And we are nearly ready for our Christmas fun on Friday.

Third Grade
All of us are working hard, and getting ready for a Christmas party. There were nine children who made perfect scores in their work book last week.

We are having a spelling drill in our class. After being out two weeks with chicken pox, Ronald Genter is back to school. We hope Dick Poor will soon be back with us.

Fourth Grade
We have a Christmas tree in our room. We have Mary and Joseph, baby, shepherd, and wise men, and an angel underneath the tree.

Miss Ackerson drew a picture of Santa Claus in his sleigh on the blackboard. It is very pretty.

Margaret Knapp brought us some pictures and writing from a hospital to Miss Minn, which was lent by Mr. Schumacher.

Our self-control is excellent. Our room has been divided into two groups. Bobbie Stricker and Luther Oosterle are captains. A Christmas tree has been made for each side, and each child has a candle for it. Bobbie Stricker's group is ahead in the contest now.

We have a bell, drawn on blackboard, for each child. Anyone who has one gets his name in it, but there isn't one on it so we are really doing fine!

A program is being planned for Friday afternoon and we are inviting our mothers.

A fireplace can be found in our room too, and it is very pretty.

Sixth Grade
Two nice plans for bird sanctuaries were made by Ruth Vailah and Dorothy Oosterle. Small ones were made by most of the rest of the class.

Margaret Harper brought some pictures of flags of British Empire. Betty Platt had a nice birthday present, the chicken pox!

The Chelsea High Reserves won their second game of the season by defeating the Dundee Reserves. The game was close all the way through although the Chelsea team seemed to have a slight edge in the battle. The score was 3-4 at the end of the half, in favor of Dundee.

A Whopper

A pie was prepared in 1770 for a certain Sir Henry Grey, an English baronet. The ingredients were: 2 bushels of flour, 20 pounds of butter, 4 geese, 2 turkeys, 2 rabbits, 4 wild ducks, 2 woodcocks, 1 snipe, 4 plovers, 2 neats' tongues, 2 curlews, 7 blackbirds and 6 pigeons.

"Stand here, Johnny," commanded Miss Meade, "and don't let either of us bother you in the least, because you're singing to entertain us. We won't be too critical."

Johnny did as he was bid, while Janet ran over a few measures of something on the piano, then she broke into the introduction. She smiled reassuringly to Johnny and nodded to him to begin, which he did.

All during the performance both Gregory Dawson and Janet Meade remained entirely unemotional. Their faces displayed neither pleasure or displeasure. It was all pretty hard for Johnny but knowing this was his big opportunity he knew that if he were to show them he was right, he would be now. He worked with all willingness. It was also pretty hard to describe the manner in which Johnny sang. Johnny was a victim of circumstances. Poor Johnny! Johnny was the innocent victim of the teachings of a small town vocal teacher, and it didn't take Janet Meade long to conclude this. Underneath it all Johnny's voice was a lovely quality.

It was tender but quite low in range. He sang very softly, though, but it wasn't Johnny's fault. Janet could plainly see that Johnny was just another of these small town fellows who had been the only bit of talent that was available, and everybody thought that his voice was exceptional. Because they hadn't had an opportunity to compare it with those of other young people as had Mr. Dawson and Janet. She could also see that Greg thought the same thing, so when Johnny finished she knew just exactly what Johnny would be told. Sadly he'd tell him the usual thing told to youngsters, new in the game: "He'd tell him to come around again in a few more years. However, when Greg spoke Janet was surprised at what he said.

"That was fine, Johnny," he began quite to Janet's surprise. "Now that you've sung for me we can talk more frankly, Johnny, who ever told you that you should sing opera?"

"Why no one in particular, I guess. I've just thought I would like to try it as an end to my singing. Mr. Patterson, my vocal instructor in Reed City thought it was a mighty fine idea. He said that every young man—"

"Pardon me for interrupting, Johnny, but I thought maybe there was something like that at the bottom of the whole situation. So you've taken vocal lessons? Well, that explains everything. From whom have you been receiving your instruction? Patterson, doesn't seem as if I ever heard of any of his prodigies, have I? How long did you receive instruction from this Patterson person?"

"Oh, about a year," answered Johnny, "maybe not quite a year."

"Well, thank Heaven you didn't go any longer. You've got a very, very nice voice, Johnny, minus all the extra stuff that hick teacher tried to add, that is, Johnny my boy, you're no more fitted for opera than I am. You can sing—I agree on that very readily—but I also agree with Janet, you'd be pretty punk in opera."

"Me?" asked Janet. "I didn't say a word!"

"Maybe not," Greg replied, "but you looked it."

During all this Johnny hardly knew where he was at. He'd never had anyone talk like this about him, and here they were, saying he wasn't fit for opera. After all his work, his dreaming, singing in Mr. Hardwick's class, it made Johnny pretty angry and he burst forth:

HILLTOPS CLEAR

By Emilie Loring

She didn't say much more, except to ask me where the blacksmith shop was.

Gerard crossed the room to the telephone, and waited.

"Can't you get the house, Rodney?" David asked.

Gerard replaced the telephone. "No answer," he declared. "The voice of huskiness. This is a very night, she may have gone—that's a thought."

He picked up the phone again and gave the Puffery number. Impulsively as she was, Prue couldn't have done such a mad thing as to go to the old blacksmith shop, he told himself. But suppose she had?

"Keep on ringing, operator. Important!"

"I'm making a break for the cattle barn, Rod."

Gerard nodded his response to Armstrong's husky voice. "How white he was! White! If he was so anxious about the girl to whom he was engaged, why waste a minute on that infernal crew? Why not make a break for the smithy?"

"I'll tell you together," he greeted his teeth. "It's just your crazy idea that Prue has gone to the shop. Probably Jim knows her too well to think she'd do such a fool thing."

He laid down the phone. "No answer, Dave."

"Color stole back into Schuyler's face. 'She has gone to the movies with the Puffery and Jane Mack of course, let's get going, Rodney. If you mean to make this blacksmith shop, here, we will have to hustle.'

"We'll hustle all right," Goodnight, K. K. Go to bed and sleep."

"You—you want me too hard on Father, Uncle Rod?"

Gerard murmured a smile. "Of course not. Why should I? Miss Prue is right; probably Calloway has given him a job to look a lumber crew. As a good child, don't worry. Let's get going, Dave."

Neither man spoke as the black roadster raced along trailing a cloud of snow like the wake of a vessel. The tumult in Gerard's mind quieted. He certainly had a brainstorm back in the living room, of course Prue wouldn't go to the smithy. What did she really care about the firm of Schuyler and Gerard? Not a hang.

He felt as if he ought to apologize to Prue. He cut in on his own conclusions. "For even thinking she would do such a dumb thing as to try to get to that shop."

"Do you? I don't. She would do that if she thought she could help. What's all the shouting for? Here it! Must be the crew at the cattle barn."

"Hear it! It would sound the Sexton Sleepers. They are yelling now. Sound to me like an alarm-bell ring with a light or two thrown in for good measure. Step on the gas, Rodney. I haven't helped much in the woods, but I can stop that."

The roadster sped on. The uproar increased. Gerard peered through the windshield. Something might be in the air, he thought.

He ground on the emergency brake with a suddenness which froze them both against the unshrinkable windshield.

"What?"

enough. Boys," he stamped his foot down on the glittering knife. His voice was steel in a velvet sheath. "Nothing doing, Kussko!"

The man, who had crawled forward, glared at him from his knees and snatched back his dirty hand.

"Spiritual force against brute force. I want to remember that as a noble experiment in a far-off country," panted Jim Armstrong at Gerard's shoulder.

Rodney nodded without moving his eyes from the group ahead. Every muscle was tense, he was ready to spring if a hand were laid on David Schuyler. The cool voice went on.

"McDowen, roll Kussko in the snow. Cool him off. Better all of you play 'Blair Bear'—You—"

"Ill there!" yelled a man on the steps of the bunk-house. "Bring along that—"

Shouts behind him drowned his words. The sounds of scuffling followed; then a crash. Ominous silence for a second. Then yells of fright. One voice pierced the tumult:

"Look out! The stove! Fire! Fire!"

"I'll take care of the snooper hiding in here!"

At Calloway's harsh threat Prudence flung herself flat on the dirty floor behind the wood pile.

A light on the wall—How soon would Calloway grab her? It was coming her way! Had she better crawl out and appear nonchalant? Nearer! Nearer—a door banging!

The lean-to went pitch-black. "Tried to walk out on me, have you, Walt? You—Milly! What are you doing here?" It was Calloway's voice, shaken, ugly.

"You tell me. Where's Walt Gerard?"

In his surprise the snooper in the lean-to had been forgotten. Prudence tiptoed to the door. It was like looking at a scene in a play. Calloway held the lantern high; the motion of his unsteady hand sent a little whirl of drift snow against the glass chimney. His black eyes glittered in the wavering light as he scowled at Milly.

"Gosh, I'm tired from that tramp here. Don't walk much. My feet ache like a tooth gone noisy."

"Why did you come?" His Walt Gerard double-crossed him! "You tell me, and you'll tell me quick!"

Milly Goach glared at him from behind half-closed lids. His blood ached from her glare.

"Calloway got the lantern on the floor beside her. 'Now look here, Milly,—his tone was prophetic—'I'm a just man—"

"Nothing else but—"

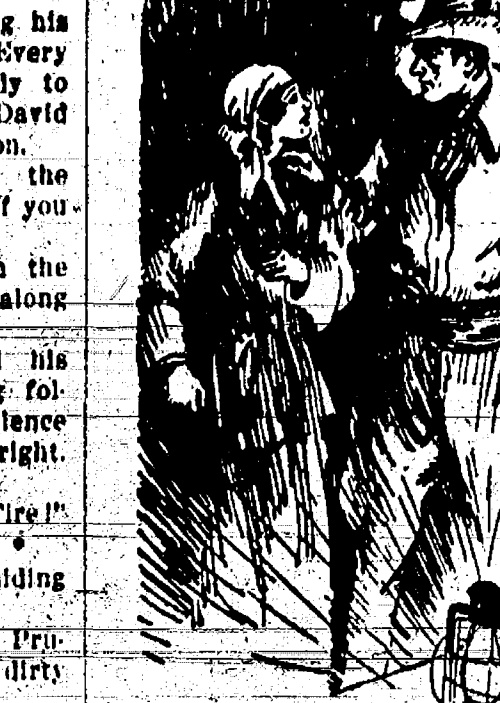

She slipped to her feet. With incredible swiftness she reached the door and banged it. Backed against it she thrust her hands into the pockets of her coat. Her eyes looked enormous as she defied him.

"You're so just, Len, that of course you won't mind staying right here till you've told me what fifty dent you and Walt Gerard are putting across."

Calloway's glance flashed to the double doors. Prudence's blood tingled. He was planning escape that way, was he? To her surprise, instead of turning purple with anger and blustering, he shrugged and put one foot on the stool. Elbow on his knee, he swung the lantern in his free hand as he faced Milly Goach.

"I'm not kidding—with you to look at."

shrugged, pulled a vanity case from her pocket and applied a lipstick. "Took you a long time to put on your act, didn't it. I saw you stealing away from the red brick house. I went there to ask if I might see the rooms; I lived there once. You sneaked across the road. I knew I knew Roddy liked you. So I followed to see what you were up to. Don't kid yourself. I found out. You came to meet that rotten Walt Gerard!"

Had the roof collapsed on her? Prudence Schuyler, was being accused of a rendezvous with that sneaky man!

"Don't be foolish!" She tried to keep her voice condensingly amused; she succeeded only in producing words which shook with anger. "If you are interested in know, I can burn down Calloway and Walter Gerard conspiring to hurt Rodney."

Milly caught the arm of the man who stood scowling from one girl to the other.

"Have you hurt Roddy, Len? If you have—"

Her small pointed white teeth set in her slender lip like those of an angry cat.

"The veins in Calloway's temples stood out like cords. 'Didn't I tell you when you throw me down for him, Milly, that I would run Rodney Gerard off the earth? Well, I'm doing it, this time. He's out of my life. He'll think twice before he cuts in on my girl's business again.'

Milly shook him. "You great sap! You—you fat tire!" Her voice rose in shrill invective. "Rodney Gerard had nothing to do with my throwing you over. It was Walt! Your present pal!"

"Wait! Don't try to be funny. De Walt have your picture with—Prudence and Calloway to liberty and love; written on the back of it! Did he keep it in the room Rod uses for his office at High Ledger?—Walt? Try another ally, Milly, try another."

She shook him again with as much effect as a mouse attempting to pull down a stone lion.

"Have you gone haywire? I never sent a photo to Roddy—the one you saw belonged to Walt. I suppose he could use a desk at High Ledger, couldn't he? You make me sick with your suspicions of Roddy. What have you two—racketeers done to him?"

Calloway's face was as colorless as white chalk. "Say that again about Walt Gerard having that picture, Milly."

"I'll say it again. Shall I tell all? It isn't a bedtime story. It might have been more snappy if it hadn't been for Rodney Gerard. I was dead sick of working—and one-night stands and shabby clothes and Grandpa's sick and out of a job—most of the time. Walt came along and offered to make life walk easy—for a consideration. And he can hand out a line, I'm telling you!" Her eyes and voice trembled.

"Before I closed with his offer, Rodney found it out—and he made it easy for no consideration. Get that, Len?"

"Is that right?"

"Sure, a hundred per cent right. I'm telling the truth. Rodney Gerard doesn't know I'm on earth—except when it's time to send me a check or bring me one. I've kept on making the money so I would see him sometimes."

He glared at her uneasily. "I've been hunting the wrong man here! Walt was back of your break with me! Rod Gerard has been stealing his non-count brothers. And I thought I was such a just man! I—"

His face worked horribly. Prudence felt as if a striped soul had been laid bare.

A Christmas Introduction

By Florence Harris Wells

PETER MANLEY, the mail carrier, looked at the gray red letter he was delivering at the door of Miss Waters' apartment two days before Christmas. Miss Waters had requested that Peter leave her mail on the table by her door. Peter did so. He silently adored the trim, competent little seamstress.

Peter couldn't help but read what was on letters and this time it was so surprising. Peter fairly gasped; for there in a plain, capable hand were the words, "From P. Manley." This was an opportunity Peter was quick to seize. He knocked briskly on the door. No response. All was perfectly still within. Peter hastily drew an arrow on the envelope pointing to the name and wrote, "This is my name," and signed it, "Your mail carrier." Peter was hopeful it might lead to closer acquaintance; just how he had not exactly figured out.

The next morning Peter ascended the steps to Miss Waters' apartment, his hands full of Christmas letters and his mind and heart eagerly anticipating some thing, though he didn't know what. But even Peter was unprepared for the door of the apartment being flung open and the little seamstress peering coo fronting him. "Are you Peter Manley?"

"I'm sure not any body else," Peter answered breathlessly. "Were you in the war and did you have a twin brother?"

"I sure did," Peter was startled, but he managed to stammer that Peter had been killed in that war.

"But he wasn't killed," Miss Waters insisted. "He was just reported killed. He's married to my sister and he's been trying to find you for years. And here you were bringing my mail all the time. I'm going there for Christmas tomorrow. You must go, too. Peter—Mr. Manley. I'll write them you are coming," then she blushed crimson. The little seamstress had allowed her enthusiasm to run away with her for once. But Peter was equal to the occasion.

"I'd be glad to take you in my car, if you'll go, Miss Waters."

And Miss Waters, who really was very careful of her pennies, murmured, "That would be fine."

All the rest of his route Peter kept saying to himself:

"Two brothers married two sisters and they all were together last on Christmas day," and every one that met Peter that day was filled with such a "Merry Christmas" as Peter had never shouted at them before.

Stonehenge's Secret Is Still Puzzling Mystery
Every year the early morning of June 21st was a large number of people assembled at Stonehenge to watch for the moment when the first rays of the sun strike the grim stone on which, long ago, so many human beings died under the Druids' infernal knife.
You can hear the latest dance music where once the Druids chanted their hymns, and captured laughter replaces the cries of the unhappy victims, to whom the feast of the summer solstice meant death, perhaps in a painful form.
Who built Stonehenge? A theory on this subject was put forward by a well-known archaeologist and biblical scholar.
He believes that it was built by the Egyptians, 2,000 years before the birth of Christ, for the worship of the sun and of the dead. And he produces evidence, mainly consisting of place names, that the Egyptians had colonies in Britain.
It is an interesting theory, but what we know for guess of the customs and religion of our ancestors might equally justify the belief that their tombs were copied from those of the Phoenicians, who came to our shores to-day, much later. And some of these customs still survive.
There is, for instance, the Beltane Queen Festival at Ballis in Scotland, which is held about the time of the mid-summer solstice. Some authorities say that "Beltane" is derived from Bael, the god of the Phoenicians, and that it was this god who dwelt among the Druids worshipped. In any case, it seems fairly sure that in the old days the Beltane queen, as a human sacrifice at the end of her belief.

Effects of Gulf Stream
As for the reported effects of Gulf stream changes on American climate, scientists reassure us that the effect of the Gulf stream on the climate of the United States Atlantic coast is negligible. Wind which really controls climate comes prevailing from the Northwest, that is from the land, and the Gulf stream lying several hundred miles off shore cannot moderate the climate. The winds that pass from the sea over northwestern Europe do transport warmth that the Gulf stream has carried over there and Europe thus have some of its climate made in the Gulf of Mexico.—Kansas City Times Science Service.

Animals of the Jungle
The chimpanzee leads in imitativness; the orang comes second in this respect; but the gorilla displays some resistance to learning by imitation. When it comes to learning by ideas, experience and insight the gorilla leads. If he rules the jungle it is by brute strength, which enables him to fight off tigers and other beasts of prey that run off with the young.

Stonehenge's Secret Is Still Puzzling Mystery
Every year the early morning of June 21st was a large number of people assembled at Stonehenge to watch for the moment when the first rays of the sun strike the grim stone on which, long ago, so many human beings died under the Druids' infernal knife.
You can hear the latest dance music where once the Druids chanted their hymns, and captured laughter replaces the cries of the unhappy victims, to whom the feast of the summer solstice meant death, perhaps in a painful form.
Who built Stonehenge? A theory on this subject was put forward by a well-known archaeologist and biblical scholar.
He believes that it was built by the Egyptians, 2,000 years before the birth of Christ, for the worship of the sun and of the dead. And he produces evidence, mainly consisting of place names, that the Egyptians had colonies in Britain.
It is an interesting theory, but what we know for guess of the customs and religion of our ancestors might equally justify the belief that their tombs were copied from those of the Phoenicians, who came to our shores to-day, much later. And some of these customs still survive.
There is, for instance, the Beltane Queen Festival at Ballis in Scotland, which is held about the time of the mid-summer solstice. Some authorities say that "Beltane" is derived from Bael, the god of the Phoenicians, and that it was this god who dwelt among the Druids worshipped. In any case, it seems fairly sure that in the old days the Beltane queen, as a human sacrifice at the end of her belief.
