For Motorists

Michigan motorists today received a belated Christmas gift in the joint statement issued by Secretary of State Clarke W. Brown and Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state-elect.

The announcement was to the effect that 1934 license plates will be legal until February 1, 1935, on all motor vehicles except trailers of more than 3,000 pounds.

Under the trailer-brake law adopted by the 1933 legislature, all trailers of more than 3,000 pounds gross weight must be equipped with brakes that can be operated by the driver of the truck. Because of this law, 1934 trailer license plates cannot be used legally after December 31, 1934, on trailers weighing more than 3,000 pounds.

We wish to take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the Holiday Season to express to our many patrons, our sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

TO SHOW PICTURE

Next Wednesday evening there will be shown in the Gleaner hall, Waterloo, that nationally famous picture known as the "Covered Wagon" in six reels. The picture dates back to the discovery of gold in 1848, a huge wagon-train of sturdy pioneers who had gathered on the banks of the Mississippi at Westport, setting out to take up their homestead sites in Oregon. The trip was fraught with danger. Not only were these hardy adventurers shut off from all supplies and out of communication with the more civilized East, but Indian attacks, prairie fires and the fording of rivers added to the terrors of the overland journeys. This is a thrilling, daring romancing picture. To see this picture carries one back to the early days of our national life. No admission will be charged but a free will offering will be lifted and the proceeds are to go towards the purchase of new hymn books for the church. The ladies will serve lunch at the close of the picture.

HOWELL—Sunday, under the direction of Game Warden Allen Wilkinson, of South Lyon, farmers over on the eastern edge of the county organized an old-fashioned "wolf hunt", the animals sought were coyotes or brush wolves. One coyote was killed, and is now in the possession of Warden Wilkinson. For some time the farmers over in that region around the General Motors Proving Grounds have been missing sheep, poultry and other farm stock, and to date over 60 sheep have been destroyed. Porter Bennett is said to have seen one of the animals attack a sheep, and with the light snow the predators were tracked and thought to be hiding in the neighborhood of Lubadie Swamp. A group of farmers were organized and "beat" the territory and one brush wolf or coyote was killed. Another is thought to be in the region and another hunt is planned for the near future when conditions are favorable.—Republican-Press.

A NEW YEAR'S
PUDDINGTAKE some human nature, as you find it.
The commonest variety will do.Put a little graciousness behind it.
Add a lump of charity or two.Squeeze in just a drop of moderation.
Hall as much fragility or less.And some very fine consideration.
Strain off all of poverty's distress.Pour some milk of human-kindness in it.
Put in it all the happiness you can.Stir it up with laughter every minute.
Season with good-will toward every man.Set it on the fire of heart's affection.
Leave it till the jolly bubbles rise.Sprinkle it with kisses for confection.
Sweeten with a look of loving eyes.Flavor it with children's merry chatter.
Frost it with the snow of wintry dells.Place it on a holly-garnished platter.
And serve with the song of New Year's bells.Christmas Program—

Great View of Lakes

Mount Katahdin is famous for its sheer-walled glacial cirques, its Arctic flora, and its view of lakes and forests, says the American Nature association of Washington. The peaks of the White mountains also rise above timberline and look down on wooded notches where ravines and waterfalls are hidden.

ZACCHAEUS

Gospel of St. Luke 19:12

To write a verse of compliment,
Of compliment and praise,
Of one who dare confess his sin,
And sound his Saviour's praise,
Is pleasing to an Angel heart,
Or Angel-hearted man.
In sounding loud a note of joy,
In filling up God's plan.
A little man named Zacchaeus,
Who lived in former days,
A chief among the Publicans,
And public an' queer ways.
He scarce were more than four feet high,
Yet, tax collections tilled,
And by unjust collections made,
His purse was kept well filled.
He also lived on earth in days,
When Jesus walked with men,
And listening to the truth he preached
Was dreadfully condemned.
Because he had unjustly taken
By taxes gathered in,
Far more than law allowed him.
Which condemned him of great sin.
A yeamore tree he climbed one day,
To see his Lord pass by,
I'm out of sight, thought Zacchaeus,
Yet, Jesus caught his eye.
Come down, come down, friend
Zacchaeus,
A load is on thy heart,
I came this way to lighten it,
And bid your grief depart.
A homely invitation then,
Was given him to dine,
Resulting in confession, with
Great joy and peace of mind.
With tear-filled eyes acknowledging,
Behold dear Lord, I give
One-half my goods to feed the poor,
I gladly—gladly give.
If I have taken anything
From any man for naught,
I'll gladly give him back four-fold,
I truly feel I ought.
Me thinks I hear my Saviour say,
Just then, my brother man,
Today, you're born again, you are
A son of Abraham.
I've tried to make this story plain,
Ill gotten gain is dross,
And Zacchaeus found how Jesus came
To seek and save the lost.

SALINE—Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Nisley's home on West Michigan avenue was slightly damaged Saturday evening when a Square Deal truck from Detroit, carrying four new cars, crashed into it and tore off the front porch. The truck parked at the Tavern while the driver ate supper, in some way got started down the hill, left the road at Heininger's garage and struck a limb of a tree which somewhat broke the force of the impact against the house. Two of the cars were badly smashed.—Observer.

CHAPTER XII

Bent over her work bench, the sleeves of her green linen smock rolled above her elbows, Prudence was intent on soldering the last link in the collar for Jean's kitten.

Finished, and a piece of work which made her artistic self purr when she looked at it. This was the last piece of Christmas work. Tomorrow would be Christmas.

Christmas! Two weeks since the first she had not seen Rodney Gerard. Every moment she could spare from work outside had been spent at her bench, and he had not come to the red brick house. David rarely mentioned him. Why should he come? What modern man would be interested in a girl who "passed out cold" in an emergency?

Her face burned. Why, why had she collapsed for the second time in her life—like a mid-Victorian heroine in a crisis, when she might have gone on helping! Even the fact that she had forgotten to eat before she started on her man hunt, that her heart had stopped when the girder fell, as she supposed on Rodney, was no excuse.

She extinguished the lamp under the crevice and glanced at the boy window. Time enough to set the stones before she dressed for the party.

The party! She opened a white packet and poked the cat's eyes on the issue paper into the order in which she would use them. How they glowed! They were like eyes, inscrutable eyes. Like Rodney's the night they had met here over Jim Armstrong's shoulder. What had he thought when he saw her clinging to his friend? Only one thing he could think after she had told him that she was engaged to Jim. She had lied to set an insurmountable wall between them, and then she had found that no barrier was needed because, rich or poor, she knew that she loved him, that he would be true and true all his life. She hadn't been sure of it, though, until Milly Gooch had flung the truth at Calloway that night in the smithy. She had wanted love without risk of heartbreak; it looked as if she would get heartbreak without love.

The morning after the cattle burn had burned to the ground, every able-bodied man in the village had dropped his own work to help rebuild. Each man of the scorched, chastened crew, who had been able to use his hands, had tried to do the work of three in the woods. They had been blighted in burns. They ought to work their arms off—hadn't their rioting caused the damage? That wasn't quite fair; the truck which Len Calloway and Walter Gerard had dumped at their door had been the real cause.

The new building had gone up as quickly as if a radio-circulator had waved a magic wand. In appreciation of the neighborly spirit, Rodney Gerard was giving a Christmas eve party to the townpeople. Milly Gooch would not be among those present. She had left the Puffers' the day after the fire.

Although David spent most of even days where the crew was working, he never mentioned Rodney Gerard. They were shutting her out. She would have loved to help in the preparations—she adored getting ready for parties—but:

"I couldn't crush in and offer my invaluable assistance, could I?" she interrogated the emery wheel, but the wheel merely threw off a spiteful little shower of pumice in answer.

Her thoughts kept pace with her foot on the treadle. Would Rodney Gerard come for the collar? Perhaps he had forgotten it. What would she do with it? She would hate like the dickens to remind him. It had proved expensive. If they were friends as they had been that day he had ordered it—

Why, live over that? It only made her heart ache as if something were squeezing it unmercifully. Why had she been so obsessed with the idea that a man of wealth couldn't remain true to the marriage covenant? The fact that her brother's wife and her sister's husband had been philanderers was no excuse for misjudging Rodney.

"You shouldn't be working without a light, Miss Prue," Prudence looked up with a start. "When did you get in, Macky?"

"I didn't steal in, I don't like that word, Miss Prue. The shade of the lamp rattled as Jane Mack moved it."

"My mistake. Bring the light to the bench, will you?" She held up the collar.

"This is the best thing I've done yet. It's a triumph. I'm not pleased with myself, am I? It is a collar for Jean's kitten. See the little Mickey Mouse?"

Jane Mack smiled. "You do so much for other people, Miss Prue, it's a shame you should have—have lost that emerald and the diamonds."

"Forget it. This is Christmas. I have a feeling that those stones will come back some day. I suspect—"

"Who, Miss Prue?"

"Macky! Has the mere memory of last hold-up made you white? Hurry up and make us both a cup of tea. Everything ready for dinner tomorrow?"

"Yes, Miss Prue. I've had my tea. Saw a procession in the cup. Can't tell whether it's going to be a wedding or a party or a funeral."

Hours later, Prudence, squeezed into the back seat beside Mrs. St. in the Puffer car, looked up at High Ledges. "This is the party in your cup, Macky," she said gaily.

The windows were light with candles. Evergreens gay with colored bulbs bordered the drive. An all-white Christmas tree, dripping with silver tinsel, glittering with artificial snow, glimmering with white bulbs, loomed on the lawn in a flood of light. The atmosphere thrilled with gaiety and good cheer and Christmas spirit.

Prudence regarded herself in the long mirror in the dressing room. For the first time since she had left the city and festivities behind her, she was wearing an evening gown. The color was Christmas. Should she have worn a frock so blackless to a party like this? Why not? It was her best, and the best was none too good for this festivity.

Her brother joined her in the hall. "I've been looking for you, Prue. Sorry not to wait and come with you, but Gerard wanted me here early."

Janizaries Were Heroes

Won Envious Reputation

Six hundred years ago the Turkish Sultan, Orkhan, decided to force the thirty Christian prisoners he held to expiate the precious of Mahomet, and to prove their allegiance he forced the prisoners to join the army. They were formed into a special corps known as the Janizaries, a Turkish word meaning new army.

In the first 30 years of its existence this corps grew to 10,000. During that period, the bravery of the Janizaries won for them a reputation as the most famous fighting force in the world. In fact, so famous that the Janizaries became the model for the modern day Janizaries, the Turkish army.

Like many movements which gain momentum rapidly, the Janizaries soon became difficult to handle and within their ranks were bred many a conspiracy which resulted in the execution of a Sultan, or a vizier. In later years, the Sultan grew to fear the Janizaries and many efforts were made to diminish them or change their system, without success.

Finally, in 1520, the Sultan, Mehmed Second, formed a new army patterned after the European forces and met the Janizaries in battle. The latter were defeated and driven back into their barracks, which were fired, 8,000 perishing in the flames. Fifteen thousand more, who were taken prisoner, were executed and around 20,000 were banished from Turkey.

One of Largest Moths

The Cereopis is one of the largest moths. The wing spread is usually between five and six inches. The large silky cocoons are found during the winter months in clumps of willow along ditches. They are generally about eight inches from the ground, and are sometimes covered with snow. Many people do not notice them but the careful observer seldom misses them. The cocoons generally mature in about a week after they are taken in the house, and the moth emerges.

METHODIST HOME

Rev. Paul Wuerfel of Ann Arbor, who recently has spent a year in Syria visiting his youngest son who was on the faculty of the American College at Beirut, spoke to the family of his experiences and observations in Bible lands, Thursday evening, Dec. 26.

Surprise packages and greeting cards, Scripture text calendars, gifts, both large and small, have come to the Home from churches and friends in a constant stream, until the very spirit of good will and generosity has seemed to center at this haven aside from the busy stream of life.

Miss Emma Leeman's visitors were her cousin, Jacob Leeman of Chelsea on Thursday afternoon. Saturday afternoon her sister, Mrs. James Struthers of Sharon, and Sunday, Elmer Lehman, a cousin, from Sharon. On Monday her nephew, Maurice Leeman, called.

Miss Lilla Gage visited her sister, Mrs. Owens, Saturday and Sunday. Albert Smith of Ann Arbor visited his aunt, Miss Margaret Smith, Friday evening.

Miss Allen went to Ypsilanti to spend Christmas. William Hoffman and daughter called on Miss Lilla Harris, Friday.

Mrs. Nellie Francisco and Mrs. Helen Whitman, both of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Shirley Johns of Pontiac visited their mother and grandmother, and also great-grandmother, Mrs. Brewer, Saturday afternoon.

The primary department of St. Paul's Lutheran church visited the Home Saturday afternoon. Miss Wickenhut directed the children in a happy Christmas program and greatly delighted the members of the family.

They brought to the Home a box of home-made Christmas cookies, which were enjoyed by all. A beautiful specimen of the Fir Balsam from beyond the Straits came to the Home as a gift of Rev. Alex G. Doten of Newberry. This frontier minister is affectionately called the "Sky Pilot" by his conference associates. The tree is decorated in blue and silver lights and trimming and has been given a place of honor in the central hall, and is greatly admired by visitors and family.

Mr. Drake, the mail carrier, claims that this has been the largest Christmas mail which he has ever handled in the Home. Four auto loads a day, ranging from thirty to fifty packages have been brought to the Home each day for nearly a week, and the cards and letters have run into many hundreds.

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. E. Smith and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anthony of Ann Arbor were callers at the Home and visitors of the Browns.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eng visited Mrs. Eng's mother, Mrs. Allen, Sunday, and brought her Christmas gifts. Mrs. Henry Muebach of Chelsea, visited the Home, presenting the Christmas gift to each member of the Home of a nice red apple which all enjoyed.

Charles Adams and sister Mary of Ypsilanti visited their aunt, Mrs. M. E. Andrews on Sunday, and brought her fruit and bake goods.

Mrs. Koyle visited in Grass Lake on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gleeson of Detroit visited their aunt, Mrs. Margaret Bliss, and also Mrs. E. Wells, and brought Christmas goodies.

Monday, Mrs. Morley went to Detroit to spend Christmas with friends. Mrs. Earl Pettibone and daughter of Dexter called on Mrs. Margaret Smith.

Prof. and Mrs. Morse of Stockbridge called on Miss Abbey Carey. Prof. Morse is principal of school at Stockbridge.

Elmer Washer is in Detroit for the holidays. Edward King of Ann Arbor called on his aunt, Mrs. Elliott, Monday. Mrs. Stella Wood also called on Mrs. Elliott.

Francis Bennett of Detroit is visiting his mother, Mrs. Bennett, the Matron of the Home.

On Christmas Eve a Home talent program was presented, arranged by Suppt. Dr. Leeson. Stereopticon was used to put on screen carols and views. Francis Bennett of Detroit added the notes of the flute to the Christmas carols, and other enjoyable features greatly enlivened the evening. Prof. Edwin Brown brought timely "Christmas Reflections."

The Girl Scouts of Chelsea, with Mrs. Fletcher, visited the Home on Christmas Eve and sang Christmas carols, which were very much enjoyed.

Mrs. Barbara Quirk, former resident of Lynden township, died Sunday evening, December 23, at her home, 6340 Kearsley Ave., Detroit, after a brief illness of pneumonia.

Miss Quirk, daughter of Henry and Katherine (Miller) Doll, was born May 8, 1862 in Transit, Erie County, New York, coming with her parents to Lynden when six years of age. She was married in 1898 to John Quirk, who for many years was Battalion chief of the Detroit fire department. He died several years ago.

Surviving Mrs. Quirk are two sons, Dr. Edmund J. and John Quirk of Detroit; a daughter, Mrs. Guy Simpson of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. Peter Winkler of Lynden and Mrs. Margaret Hindelang of Mishawaka, Ind.; three brothers, Edward and John Doll of Chelsea and William Doll of Ann Arbor, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Our Lady of Help church, with burial at Mt. Elliott cemetery, Detroit.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I would like to ask through your good paper why tea is the universal drink in China?

Ans.—Chinese law makes it compulsory for all drinking water to be boiled for sanitary and hygienic purposes. Originally it was drunk while hot. Then the Confucianists found that tea made the hot water more palatable. Following this custom the Chinese people became addicted to tea-drinking.

Ques.—If the highest mountain in the world were placed in the deepest part of the ocean would it be completely covered by water?

Ans.—Yes. The deepest part of any ocean is about six miles deep, which is deep enough to completely submerge the highest mountain in the world.

Ques.—I read so much about "storm troops" in Europe, and I would like for you to answer what kind of troops they are. Thank you.

Ans.—"Storm troops" are troops that are specially suited and chosen for offensive work because of their morale, training and discipline.

Ques.—What is the age of Mussolini, the premier of Italy?

Ans.—Premier Mussolini, the Fascist leader and premier of Italy, is now in his 52nd year.

Ques.—Why does weather affect one's corns?

Ans.—The weather has nothing to do with corns. If corns hurt only during rainy weather, invariably it is due to the slight shrinkage of the shoe leather during wet weather which is not perceptible to the wearer. Sometimes it is a coincidence when they hurt during that period.

Ques.—To decide an argument will you please state the day and date that P. T. Barnum died? I mean the circus showman.

Ans.—P. T. Barnum, the circus man, died on April 7, 1891.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer how many judges there are in the United States Supreme Court, who they are and who is the chairman?

Ans.—The United States Supreme Court consists of the following nine justices: Roberts, Hughes, Brandeis, Cardozo, Brandeis, Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Hughes. Mr. Hughes is the Chief Justice.

Ques.—What is a Take-Out Double in the game of Contract Bridge?

Ans.—A Take-Out Double is meant as a signal to his partner to overcall his adversary's bid (if it is not more than two) with his best biddable suit, providing he holds at least three honors in two other suits. It means the player who made the double has a strong hand and wants to win the declaration, but wants more information from his partner, so he can play for a possible game.

Ques.—The rheumatic ailment makes my skin smart. Should I discard it?

Ans.—No. Use it on your head.

Ques.—How does a machine gun work? How fast can they be fired without overheating?

Ans.—The machine gun is automatic and is fed by a web belt that contains 250-300-caliber cartridges, operated by recoil action. It is capable of firing more than 600 shots a minute and the barrel being cooled by a water jacket.

Ques.—If you are so wise in answering questions will you please tell me why dogs hang out their tongues when they pant?

Ans.—Dogs hang out their tongues just so they can balance their tails, you dumbbell. Let's hear from you again.

Ques.—I am told that shaving and cutting the hair makes the beard and hair on the head grow faster. Is this true? If so, why?

Ans.—This question has met with dispute among some scientists. Some leading scientists say that cutting the hair of the head does not increase the speed or the strength of the hairs' growth. They say further that shaving speeds the growth of the beard and makes it stiffer and heavier. They contend that it is not the actual cutting of the beard that makes it grow faster and thicker, but the irritation and stimulation caused by shaving.

Ques.—Will you please tell me on what day of the week I was born? The date was February 5, 1871.

Ans.—February 5, 1871, was on Sunday.

The Scale Stick. A scale stick, used by piano action manufacturers is a long, thin wooden strip, which shows the location, inside a piano case, of the action brackets and the exact location of the centers of the hammer flanges. It is from this stick that an action manufacturer makes up the action for any particular scale piano. A scale stick is generally about four-fourth inch thick and an inch wide, the thickness depending upon the length of it.

Names Painted on Cliffs
Ships, entering for the first time the port of Munket at the entrance of the Porlan gulf, leave a pulley "calling card" by having their names painted in large white letters on the sides of the 400-foot perpendicular cliffs that surround the harbor. These cliffs, with their hundreds of names, look like gigantic billboards. Collier's Weekly.

New Resolutions
by Luella E. Lyons

I WAS such a budding thing to have to promise to do something for some one—at least one good deed each week. "Hittin' Nerris" wondered who had ever started the fool resolution business anyway.

"Good afternoon and happy New Year to you, Miss Norris," Jeff Sowards called out as she stopped for a couple of magazines at the corner shop.

"Thanks, but this happy New Year stuff is the bunk—bunk—it can't you imagine it, I've tramped this town over this afternoon trying to find some one for whom I could do my first good deed of the year—a resolution, you know. Could I find a thing to do—

"That's funny, I always thought there were so many such deeds just waiting to be done that there weren't enough folks in the world to do them."

"You're wrong, Jeff; that's not the way I know," she affirmed, but still he looked doubtful.

"You come back some evening when I'm not busy and I'll take time to name a few such deeds waiting to be done, Miss Norris," he told her, a smile on his lips, but a frown across his brow.

"That's a bargain," she called out and started back to her little apartment in the Carol Flats.

But just before she reached the big doors of the flats she heard a light tapping on the window next to the screen. Little Janet Abernethy waved and then threw a kiss to her.

"Come in, Miss Rita; my daddy had to go to work a couple hours earlier than usual today, so I was hoping you would stop in to see me." Little Janet, a motherless little tot, had to stay alone while her father went out to work.

Three hours later, just as Rita finished melting some butter to put over the huge pan of corn she had just popped, she told Janet all about the resolutions they had made. "And to think I chased all over this town trying to find some one to do something for and here right before my very eyes, I found all kinds of good deeds just hunkering to be done."

"And, Miss Rita, I think New Year's resolutions are the grandest things over, I do. Don't you?" Janet asked, happy tears shining in her eyes.

"They are just the stuff, I'd say. And I'll tell you so when I see him again, too!"
